made a testamentall discourse, saying, thathe was now going to beauen to rest with his Father the Sunne, which called him out of the bath, ever fince which time be was so indisposed of body: when I am dead you hall burie my body as is weed to be done with Royall bodies, my heart and entrals in Quitu. in token of the loue which I beare it; my body you shall carrie to Cozco to lay it with my ancestors, I com- 10 mendyou to my Son Atahuallpa whom I fo much loue, who remaineth for Inca in my place in this Kingdome of Quitu, and in all the reft which be shall conquer by armes to augment his Empire. And for you the Captaines of my armie, I charge you in particular to ferue bim with that fealty & love which you one to your King, in all and every thing doing what he shall command you, which shall be the same that I shall reneale to bim by order of our Eather the Sunno. Ilikewife commend unto you instice and clemencie towards the Vasfals, that the Title of Louer of the poore given onto us, be not loft; and that in enerything you doe lice the Incas, Sounes of the Sunne. Having made this speech to his children and kinimen, he called the rest of the Captains and Curacas which were not of the bloud royall and game them in charge fealty and fernice due to their King, and at last concluded : It is many yeares fince that by The Prophetic renelation of our father the Sunne, we hold that when twelve Kings are passed of his Sonnes, there shall 50 come a new and unknowne people into those parts, and shall gaine and subject to their Empire all our King. domes and many others. I suspect that they shall be of those whom we know to have gone along ft the coast of our Sea : they hall be a valiant Nation which every way hall exceede you. We well know that in mes is compleat the number of twelve Incas. I certifie you that a few yeares after my departure from you. that new Nation fhall come and fulfill that which our Father the Sunne hath floken, and frall eaine our Empire and rule ouer it. I command you that yee obey and ferue them as men which enery way feat have advantage of you: whose Law skall be better then ours, and their armes more mightie and mumcible then yours. I leave you in peace, for I goe to rest with my Father the Sunne which

Cufbualles his that speech.

Empire.

All this the Indians held in great veneration, and fulfilled every for thereof. I remember that 60 one day that old Inca ipeaking in prefence of my Mother, and rehearing these things, and the Spaniards entrance, and their conqueit : I asked him how, their Countrey being fo rough, their people so warlike, and their number so many, they lost their Empire to so few Spaniaras. Heavfwering me, repeated the foretelling or prophetie of the Spanards aforeignd, and faid t' at the Inca had commanded them to obey and serve them, for every way they should have the advantage of them. And for that obicction of cowardife, he aniwered me. These words which our Inca faid unto us, being the last that ener be spake to us, were more powerfull to subject us and quite our Empire. then the armes which thy Father and his companions brought into this Land. Thus died Huayna Capac; Ruayna Capacs his body was embalmed, and carried to Cozco; his heart interred in Quita. His funerall folem- death. nis body was and mourning continued a yeare, according to the custome of the Inca Kings. Her lett 2- Indianthate to houe two hundred ionnes and daughters; fome Incas affirme about three hundred to exaggerate Atabashe tot the crueltie of Atabnallpa, which flew them almost all; who therefore was so odious, that causes sollowthe Spaniard, having put him to death, were thought men fent from their God the Sun to take ing-to vengeance on the destroyer of his seede. And when they brought Cockes and Hens with them Cock conceits into Peru, they hearing the Cockes crowing faid, that in perpetuall infamie of that tyrant and whereby it apabhominable memory of his name, they pronounced it in their crowing, laying Atabuallya, and pearein that would answer the Cockes crowing with reckoning the name Atabually a: wherein the children they had no imitated them in those times, so that if they had heard a Cocke crowe, they would recrow in like tune the name of Asuhallpa: a thing which I my selfe and other boyes my Schoolefellowes, children of Spaniards by Indian women haue often done, together with the Indian children. They named likewise on such occasion his principal Captains, whose names were of so many syllables, Challenchima, Quillifeacha and Ruminnani. The Spaniards thought they did this for his honour, faying the Cockes made this honorable mention of him: fo Blas Valera writeth, which received it

20 of the Indians of Quitu his naturall subjects, which applied to a good mention that which those of Conce denifed in eaill, for his cruelties there done.

Huanna Capac being dead, his two Sonnes Huascar and Atabuallpa raigned quietly for the space Huascar the of foure or flue yeares, one in Cozco, the other in Quite. After which Huafear began to thinke thirtcenth, and with himselfe that he had done ill in consenting to his father in the matter of Quita, which now last tree Empewas his brothers; whereby he was barred vp allo from further conquests; the other three waies rour. being locked up by the Antis, the Sea and Chili; fo that his brother might by new conquefts make himfelfe greater then he : and whereas now his file was Capa Inca (onely Lord) in time, the other might both equall and exceede him. Thefe things more and more troubling him, hee Huafcars meffent a Messenger to his brother, saying; that by the ancient constitution of the first Inca Manco Ca- sage to Atabu-

30 pac, the Kinadome of Qutu, and all the Prominces which he possessed to the crowne and Em. alsa.

pire of Cozco, which howsoener he had quitted to him upon his Fathers command, yet was it more by force then inflice, being to the loffe of the crowne and preindice of the successors; and therefore neither ought his Father to command it, nor was be obliged to fulfill it. Tet seeing he had ginen consent, he was content upon these two conditions; first that he should adde nothing to his Empire; secondly, that hee Should doe him homage and fealtie, as his vallall and fendatarie. Atabuallya received this mellage with great humilitie and feeming fubmition, and three dayes after returned answere, that in his heart he had alwayes reknowledged vasfallage; being returned to the Inca by Post, he was much Hisanswer and content, fending reply, that he againe confirmed that estate to his Brother conditionally, that by luch a time he should make his personall homage at Cozco. Atabnallpa answered hee was a 40 happy man to understand such the Incar pleasure, that he would doe it by the time fet him; but for greater folemnitie, he did befeech his Maiestie to give him leave that all the Provinces of his eftate should come with him to celebrate in Cozco the obsequies of Huayna Capac his Father, with rites agreeable to those of Quitwand the other Provinces, which ended, hee and his would doe their due homage.

All this did Huafear grant, and Atabualla made vie of to his project of foueraigntie. He fent proclamation to all his Prouinces, that all men feruiceable should in such a space make ready to with forces to goe to Cozco to celebrate his Fathers obsequies, and to performe the homage to the Monarch affault Hugher Husicar Incs, and that therefore they should fet forth in theirbest ornaments and brauery for voder preice greater folemnitie. But privily he fent to his Captaines to leuie the best Souldiers which should of obsequies carry their armes closely; for he more minded executions then exequies. He commanded them to Huayna Ca-50 to march in bands, fine or fixe hundred together, one band two or three leagues after the other : pac. and when they came within ten or twelves dayes journey of Cozea, that they should joyne together, the laft doubling their journies to overtake the former. In this manner Atahuallpa fent about 30000, men, most of them old Soldiers of his Fathers, with shoise Captaines, and appointed two Camp-mafters or Generals, Challeuchima and Quizquiz. Hunfear relying on the loyal - Hunfears fecutie of his Subjects, and his Brothers faire promiles, not onely suspected no treaton, but prouided rine. them necessaries. Atahuallpa vied this distimulation, knowing himselfe of vnsussicient power to warre openly on his brother. But some of the experimented Gouernors and Captaines, as they paffed, could not but refent and difguit this courie; and fignified to much to the Inca, who thus 60 awakened out of his dreame, fent to gather forces in the South pars and East and West : to Chinchafuru he fent not, which were the best Soldiers, because of these forces marching thorow their Countrie. The other through long peace were unaccultomed to armes, of which were leuised as Seo medicina boue 20000, the rest being too remote for a sudden businesse.

Atahualleas men passed the River Apprimae without contradiction, and embattelled them-

Ill conscience tearefull, and

racocha.

Dan Melchiar next in bloud

felues in three fquadrons, fo marching to Villacunca within fix leagues of Cozco. He himfelfeahode full in the confines of his Kingdome, there to observe the successe of this battel, wherein he placed his chiefe truft, by reason of the negligence of the other fide, & the courage of his old souldiers. These thought the shortest way the surest, before more forces might be assembled by twist Atabaill. Hus fear. and within two or three leagues Weltwards from the Citie was the battell fought. in which one fide fought to get, the other to keepe the Inca, whose vnbappy fate made him prisner to Atabually as men as he was fleeing thence with 5000, which were all in monner flaine in presence, some by the enemies, some by themselves seeing their Lord prisoner. Many also not willing to enjoy liberty after he was taken, offered themselues prisoners. They set a sure guard about the Emperours person, and sent to proclaime his taking thorow all the Empire, lest other 10 forces should come to his succour; sending word alto to their Master Atabuallya. Hee vied his chyandoidi. victory most cruelly ; for diffembling that he would restore Huasear to the Kingdom, he summoned all the Incas in the Empire, and all the Rulers and Officers to appeare at Cufco by fuch a day, to capitulate on certaine Articles to be observed betwirt the two Kings, that they might hue together in loue like brethren. Thus all the Incar, except those whom sicknesse, age, or remotentale hindred, came thither, whom Asabuallya cauled to be put to divers and cru-

For he knowing that he was not of the Incas bloud legitimate, that is, by the Cora or fifter of the King, nor yet of the whole bloud, to to challenge the inheritance by Father and Mother. removed these rubs out of the way of his ambition; yea all those who were of the halfe bloud, 20 though further from claime, yet lest they might imitate his example, he caused also to be slame. Not contenting himselfe with the death of his two hundred brethien and litters, the children of Huanna Capac, he proceeded to the Vincles, Coulens, and all, whether legitimate or baftards: fome he cauled to be beheaded, some hanged, some were cast into Rivers with weights at their neckes, some cast from high precipices. All which were done before he had passed Sansa, nintie leagues off the Citie. Yea they brought forth Huafear to fee thete difmall executions, that he might dye in the death of energy of his kinfmen. The Curacus Captaines and Nobility they brought forth being the rest of the prisoners bound, to the Valley of Sacfabnana, and made a long lane of them, thorow which they made poore Huafear to paffe couered with mourning weedes. and having a roapeabout his necke : they feeing their Inea in this cafe, fell downe with criesto 30 doe him reuerence, and were therefore. I une with Ha chers and Clubs before his face. After this the cruelty passed to the women and children of the bloud royall, Atabuallya commanding to take them all (but those in the house of Virgins) which were brought to the field Tahuarpampa, or blondie field, a name confirmed by the cruell executions, by starting, hanging, and diversified torcures on that tender fexe, and innocent age. E ery quarter of the Moone they renewed these cruelties, from which some were yet suffered to escape, of which number were my Mother and her Brother then eleuen yeares of age or vader, which they fent away in difguiled habits of the common people; for all degrees might they be knowne by their habit.

Of the August or Infants Royall wines eleaped, were Paulin and Tith the Sonnes of Huayna ry eitheiteas. Capar. Den Carlot the fonne of Paulla, married with a Spanish woman, by whom hee had Den 40 Million for a substitution of the subst Melchior Inca, which in the yeare 1602. came into Spaine to receive rewards promifed for the feruices of his Father and Grandfather in the pacification of Peru, Anne 1604. I received a letkept in Spane. ter of Valladolid that he was allowed 7500. Duckets of renenue in the Citie of Kings, and that Atabasiloss fon he multibring his wife to Spaine, that the Indians which are his inheritance shall be fet ouer to the Crowne, and that he shall no more passe to the Indies. This is the chiefe of the bloud of the Incas, by the male line descended of Huayna Capae. Of Atarnallpa I knew one Sonne and two flerity wifted. Daughters, one of which Donna Angelina by Marquelle Pigarro had a Sonne called Don Irancifco, he died a little before I came co Spaine: the next day, before his buriall many Incas came to my Mothers, and amongst others her old Vnele, who faid that Pachacamae had preserved himmany yeares to feeanend of all his enemies; and inflead of mourning much, reloyed; 50 whereof I demanded the reason why we should be glad for the death of our Kinsman! he biting his mantle (which with them is a token of great a ger) laid, What, wouldft thou be the kinfman of an Auca, fonne of an Auca (that is, a tyrant trattor) which destroyed our Empire, killed our linea, confumed our blond and linage, which did fo many cruelties fo differing from the nature of the Incas! I could eate him raw without fauce now he is dead : for his Father the traitor Ataivallya was not the fon of Huayna Capac our Inca, but foune of Quitu Indian, which with his mother wrought treason to our King; otherwise he would never have done, no not imagined such things to his enemies, much life to his kindred , fay not therefore, he is our kinfman, thou wrong ft thy kindred to reckon to it fo cruell a tyrant, ere. This Francisco whiles he hued, feeing the hatred which the Incas, and all whee Indians bate dissisted Alabas him, had little to doe with them, and came little abroad, they full calling him Auca. His Fa-60 ther destroyed the Officers and Servants of the Kings house, and the Townes whereof they were, being by Manco Inca priviledged Incas, of tome a third, of others a fifth or a tenth part. Hee named also and committed great mischiefes on the Cannaries, & slew 70000.0f them, because they would not fullieft themselves to him at the beginning of his rising, whereby there were laid to remaine fifteene times as many women as medCH AP. 13. Incas posteritie, their miserie, Friers speech, Atahualpas answer. 1485

In the end of the yeare 1603, the Incas of Pern Witt to Don Melebior Carlos Inca, and to me, nall their names desiring vs to make supplication to his Maiestie, to command that they should Mistrable state be exempted from tributes which they paid, and other vexations which they fuffer no leffe then of the locas in other common Indians. They fent painted in white Chis taffats the Tree royall from Manco Pers. Capac to Huaina Capacs some Paulla, in their ancient habit, with the coloured ribbon of their heads, and eare-rings in their eares, with Partifans instead of Scepters in their hands. Their phrate was much mixt with Spanish for now they are all Spaniolized. They rehearfe much mi-Private was much a which cause I doe not here record it. They write with much confidence Incar and their that the Kine would not onely relieue them, if he were made acquainted, but reward them, as posteride lito the posterity of Kings. At the lide of every Kings picture they let those of his posteritie, with wing in April the title Capac Aylla, or the Royall flocke, difting withing each Kings descendents. Of Manco Ca. 1603. pace posterity there remaine 40. Incas : of Sinebi Roca 64. of Lloque Tupanqui 63. of Capac Tupan-qui 56, of Maria Capac 35. of Inca Roca 50. of Tahuar Huacac 51. of Viracocha Inca 69. of Pachacutes and his Sonne Tupanqui put together 99. of Tupac Inca Tupanqui 18. of Huayua Capac 22. Their two laft generations (as neerer the Crowne) Arabnallpa with great diligence destroyed. The whole summers 567, persons, all descended by the male line; for of the female they made no such account, except they were Sonnes of the Spaniards which conquered the Land; for those they call Inew also, beleeuing that they descended of their god the Sunne. This writing was figned by eleuen Incas, agreeing to the eleuen deicents, each for all of his race.

CHAP. XIIII.

The Suppliment of the History of the Incas, briefely collected out of the Authors second part, or Generall Hiflory of Peru.

riginal and tues of the faces. In his fecond part, entituded the General History of Parts, breakers the Sand A. D. Chern Hus have we run thorow the Authors first part, or Commentaries Roiall, of the oof Peru, he relates the Spanish Acts, Discoueries, and conquests there; part of which in Benzo, Vaz, and others ye have feene already, and the Spanish Authors have related the same at large. I will briefely touch a few things to perfect this Friet Vincents our flory of the Incas. In the taking of Atabuallya he relateth at large the Ora- freech to Atation of Frier Vincent de valle viidi. First, touching God, his creation of the world, and of man. Secondly, Touching Adams tinne and Christs redemption on the Crosse. Thirdly, his power gi- Note the late uen to the Apostler, and ouer them and all Christians to Peter and his successor the Pope. Fourth- ter part of this ly, the Popes gift of all those Countries to the Emperour, Lord of the world, to the end to bring Friers Oranithem to the Christian faith. Fifthly, the Emperours authorifing Francis Pizarro as his Embal- on : tor which them to the Christian tatth. Fitthly, the Emperous authoriting transis Fixerro 25 his Emoals and fador and Lieutenant, that these Realines might receive that benefit, and that he might begin alliance inserted it at and confederacie betwirt the Emperours Maietie and the Inca, in such fort that his whole Kingdome large. should become tributarie, and the Inca become his subject and wholly deliner on his Kingdome and renounce the administration thereof, as other Kings and Lords have done. Secondly, after such peace and friendship, and subjection voluntary or by force, bee was to give obedience to the Pope, and receive the faith of Carilt quite abandoning his superst stion of Idols, invented by the Divell. All which, O King, thou art to take well in worth as being very profitable to thee and thine : and if thou deniest, know that thou shalt be compelled by warre, fire and bloudshed, and all thine I dols skall beethrowne downe to the thou shalt be compelled by warre, fire and blondined, and an inine lants fram occurrowere down to the Strange ground. And we will constraine thee with the Sword, that leaning thy false Religion whether thou will preaching of or no, thou halt receive our Catholike Faith and pay Tribute to the Emperour giving up thy Kingdome Christianita to him. But if thou Shalt obstinately resist, know for most certaine, God will suffer, at of old Phatao and all his Army perified in the Red Sea, that thou likewife and thine Indians (hall bee destroyed by our

This Oration was kept by the tradition of Quipus (or Quipos) which are the knot-records of Caffamarca where the deede was done : the words of trinity and other Christian Mysteries were not well understood, and therefore ill deliuered by the Interpreter : that language still wanting proper tearmes for them, and being forced to Indianize Spanish words for that purpose. Atabuallpar antiwere was, with great griefe for thole last words, of Pharao and destruction, lay- Autualica and ing, Atac (an interiection of forrow) and first complained of his Interpreter, and that this mi- fwer, nacing melfage was contrary to the former which they had fent him , that their Prince and they ,60 might feeme tyrants to to goe about destroying the world, killing and robbing those which had done them no wrong : or elie that they might feeme the feruants of Pachacamac which had fent them to their destruction; which if it be so, he and his were ready to offer themselves to whatfoeuer pleased them, not for feare of their minaces or armes, but to fulfill his father Huayna Ca-

pace command at the houre of his death, that they should serve a branded Nation more valuant

1486

then they, which was to come and bring them a better Law and Customes. But if this bee fo. Pachacamae is pitifull and mercifull, whom they oughe to imitate, and not to beginne with robberies and cruelties as they had done in Tampiz, and the confines. It feemed strange, he faid. to him, that the Emperour should bee Lord of the World, and yet the Pope should make him a new grant; and then also is the Pope greater then he, and Lord of the world. Againe hee had the wed no reason why hee should pay tribute onely to Charles; which rather hee thought was due to Gid, as Creator, or to Adam the first man, or to Christ the best man, or to the Pope which hath power to give his Kingdome and person to another, of all which he in his speech had difcourfed. And it he had any right ouer him, it had beene meet, fi. ft to have fignified it to him. before menacing of warre, fire, and flaughter, &c. The Spaniards impatient of this long diff. In course fell to rifling the Indians, others to robbing an Isoli Temple of the Silver plates; and comming forth to fight, the Inaians raised a great shout. But the Inca with a great voice comman-geance *, as some have written, with other things against the Pope and the death of Christ, Five thousand Indians were flaine, and no Spaniards hurt, but the Generall by one of his owne, flight-tent to Cozco, which at Saufa in the way had light of Huafear, there kept prisoner; who by an his progenitors: whereas Atahuall, a had little treasure but what be tooke from Churches. They aniwe-

red, that they must first goe to Cozes whither they were fent; and in the meane time Atabuallus has intelligence of these passages. Hee subtilly to found the Spaniards, how they would take the death of his brother, fained himfelfe very forrowfull for that hee had heard one of his Captaines promifed to right and revenge the euill on him which had done it. He feeing that Picarre tooke it in no worse part, sent a speedy Post to dispatch him so suddenly, that the Spaniards could not

Huafcar at his death foresold) by the unsust instice of the Spaniards, many of which protested by word and writing against that ernelty, in vaine. His corps were carried to Quite to be interred, where vnder pretence of more honourable Obsequies, Ruminnam one of his Captaines (following his examples) wrought a great treason; made a feast to Quillifeache brother of Atahualha, and other great men, whom having made drunke vnawares with the drinke Sora, a heady liquour for-bidden by Law, hee flue, with Challenchima the Generall, and the Sonnes and Daughters of Asabuallya, and all that might stand in the way of his ambition. Hee buried aliue the Chofen Virgins, which smiled at his reports of the Spaniards (interpreting it to lust, being done rather to please him) causing to vodermine and cut the Hills to execute that dismall fate more terribly. After some bickerings with the Spaniards, hee fled to the Antis, and there peri-40 tell but that it had beene done before. His owne death followed after (as before is recited and to ded that they should not smite nor hurt the Spaniards, though they tooke or killed the King. Frier an ' crue'l Spaneards which Unicent made a plautible Speech to the Spiniards, in fauour of the Indians; but they could not heare him for the crie : neither did the King cast the Booke on the ground, or the Frier crie vennot relifting. Sothey which were there, and Goly, in the taking of Atabualipa. When he had agreed on his ranfome, which was never wholly mara, Benzo, Herr , &c. but paid, for want of time to accomplish it 1: (4605670. Duckers of it came in) Soto and Barco were the later Inquifiors feem fignes defired aide of the Spaniards to reftore him to his Empire, promifing three times as much as Atahuallya had done, better able to performe it, as having and knowing where to fetch the treasures of Vincents furie. " See contra, cap.vlt. Bualcare prom.fes to the Spanars, Hudfar flaine, had killed him, and refused to eate, making shew of much griefe. Pizarro comforted him, and cruelties.

Fasie victorie

Atabuallo4 flaine.

Manco Inca.

the Empire of

Rome with Au-

gullus and Au-

Constantinovle

withtwo . 07-

Manco impri-

flantines.

Marco Inca Brother of Huascar, came to the Spaniards at Cozco, to demand the repossession of the Empire, by inheritance due to him. They made him faire semblance : and he offered to gan and ended with Moses; as promote the Gospell (according to his Fathers tellament, as a better Law) and the Spanish affaires. Articles were agreed on, and they granted him a Diadem with great folemnitie, bu: fo farre thort of the wonted, that the old men cried as fall for the want of that, as the yong boyes shouted for joy of this. When afterwards he propounded the accomplishment of those Articles guffu'u, and of which had beene made betwixt the Spaniards and the Indians, that the Naturals might line in quiet, and knowe what feruice to performe to the Spaniards, with the reall restitution of his Empire: the Gouernour Pizarro, and his brethren excuted themselves by the broyles and flines 50 which had growne amongst themselves, which hitherto permitted not the accomplishment. They further expected antiwer from the E pperor their Lord, of whom he might hope for al good, (the Articles being good for both parts) to whom they had given account of the capitulations, his brother Hernando being shortly to returne with answere. But when he was a rived at Tumpiz, the Ma: queffe tooke occasion to rid himselfe of the Incar importunitie, and with many faire words increated him to returne to his Fortreffe till things might be perfected : which he doing, they held him there Prifoner, fearing his haughty courage. The Indians leeing their Inca Prifoner, were much grieurd, but he comforted them, laying, that he and they ought to obey the Spamards, for to Huayna Capac had commanded in his Testament, and that they should not be westy till they had beene the last iffue of these things. Hee hoped that this his imprisonment would 60 turne into greater liberalitie with him, thele Unacochas being a Nation comne from Heaven.

The Marquelle difmifled himfelfe of the Inca, whose person and guard hee commended to his brethren Isan and Gonzalo, and went to the Citie of Kings, to people and enlarge it. The Inch Mance with much objequiousnelle to all the Spaniaras, and many presents of Gold, Silver, CHAP.14. Mancos speech, atts, agains Spaniards, death. Don Diego Inca. 1487

Gemmes, Fruits, &c. making no thew of griefe for his imprisonment, obtayned his libertie: which he had laboured the rather, hearing that Honando Pizarro was comming to gouetne in Mancoren. Which he has release to goe to Tucay, which was the Garden of the Kings, to which place he largement and furnmoned his Captaines, and complained of the Spaniards breach of promile, in not performing taking Armes. the Capitulations which they had made with Tits Autanchi, his brother, and that they had laid him in prilon with Iron fetters: that he had perceived their ill mindes from the beginning but fuffered it to inflifie his cause with God and with the world, that none might object to him the diffurbing of the peace. But now he could no further relieon their vaine promifes, well knowing that the Spaniards (hared the Land amongst themselves in Cufeo, Rimac, and Tumpiz, where-10 by it well appeared that they intended not the restitution of the Empire to him: and that he was loth to make further triall of their fetters, and therefore required their best aduice, intending with Armes to recouer his right, truiting in Pachacamac, and his father the Sun, that they would not herein for lake him. They told him, that he might looke for like reward at the hands of thole

Strangers as Atabualha had found, notwithstanding the payment of his ransome: and it was Pachacamaes great grace, they had not dealt with his Royall Perion likewife, &c. Thus Mance railed forces, fo that 200000. Indians came to Cozeo, and shot Arrowes with fire An Armicof on them on all the houses of the Citie generally, without respect of the Royall houses, only they socood, Indiana referred the Temple of the Sunne, with the Chappels within it, and the house of the Virgins : corce burnt which two they ipared (thogh their wealth was gone) not to commit any facrilegious aft against 20 their Religion. Three Hals alto they referued wherein to make their feasts in time of raine, one of which was in the house that had belonged to the first Inca, Mance Capac. (The author proceedes in the particular fights and feege of the Spaniards, too long here to rebente.) In divers places they killed feuen hundred Spaniards. But at last Manco was driven to forfake the Countrey b by the b When Almas inequality of the Spaniards horfes, Guns and other offentiue and defentiue armes, against which go returned they had no experiments to make refiftance. In the civill-vacuill broiles and warres of the Spa- Alumado with miards in Peru, some of them fled to Manco Inca to avoide the Viceroies feuerity, one of which other Spaniards was Gomez Perez a cholericke man, which playing at Bowles with the Inca, would fland fo camein, thifely on measuring of his cast, and the earnest folly of play, that forgetting all good manners, he one day vied the luca as if he had beene an ludias flaue; wherewith the luca prouoked gave him 30 a blow with his fift on the breaft, whereupon Gomez with his Bowle ftrooke the Inca on the head fo great a blowe, that hee fell downe dead. Whereupon the Indians fet on the Spaniards, Gomez an vin which first fled into the house to defend themselves there, but were fired out; and the Indian; grareful proud hauing killed them with enraged furie, had purpoled to eatevp their fielh raw: but after left spiniord. them to the birds and wilde beats, for foode. Thus died Mazes by the hands of those whom fine. hee had preserved from death , and had kindly vised in those wilde Mountaines of Uilca campa, which hee had chosen for his securitie. I was present, when some Incas present at the act, with teares recounted this to my Mother, which came afterwards from these Moun- Sami Tupes taines with the Inca Sayri Tupac, the some of that whfortunate Prince , by order of the Vice- his sonne. ry Mendoza, Marqueffe of Canete. This Vice-roy vied (to periwade that comming in of 40 the Inca) the Ladie Beatriz his Fathers Sifter, which fo wrought with his Guard, hee being then too young to take the Diademe, that vpon promise of certaine conditions hee came and rendted himselfe to the Vice-roy, and after went to Cufe, and was baptifed by the name of Don Diego, together with his wife Cufci Huarcay, grandchilde to Huafcar Inca, Anno 1558. Shee was a faire woman, but somewhat pale, as are all the women of that Countrie, about fixteene yeeres olde. I went in my mothers name to visite the Inca, and to kiffe his hand, which vied mee courteoully, and two small vessels of gilt Plate were brought forth . of which he dranke one, I the other. He spent his time, one day visiting one part, and another, another part of the Citie. Hee adored the Sacrament, calling it Pachacamae, Pachacamae. He went thence to the Valley of Tucay, and there remayned till his death, which was about three yeeres 50 after, leaving no issue but a daughter, which was married to Marsin Garcia de Lorola. His brother Tupac Amaru tooke the Mountaines. Francisco de Toledo second sonne to the Earle of Oropesa, being Vice-roy, determined to bring Tupac Amatu from the Mountaines of Villea camps the Prince Topac Amaru, the lawfull Heire of that Em- his tragedic, pire, after his faid brothers death without iffue male. Hee fought to doe it by faire and gentle perswasions sending Messengers to that purpose, promising him maintenance from his Maieftie for his person and familie. His kindred and friends told him that his brother had received fmall recompense from them, or society with them, and therefore counselled him not to goe, it being better for him to live there, then to die with his enemies. The Spaniards counselled the Vice-roy to force him, alledging that his Indians robbed the Merchants, hoping also by his imprisonment to recouer the treasures " which his progenitours had hidden. Such robberies were " Hincille le indeed committed in his father Mancos time , but feldome , they being forced thereto of ne- cryma. ceffitie for want of victuals , which the Mountaines yeeld not. But after his death there was no fuch matter. The Vice-roy Tene Martin Garcia Lojola, with two hundred and fiftie Souldiers well prouided against the Inches The firength of those passages was abated, and the wayes Hhhhhh plained after the iffue of Sayri Tupac, fo that the Prince Tupac Amaru fied, and the Sagamiards purfued, and hee being guilty to himselfe of no crime, yeelded himselfe with his wife. two fonnes and a daughter, and all his Indians, looking for no ill measure, but maintenance at The Vice-roy framed a processe against the Prince, and against all the Incas of his kindred and against the Mestizos begotten of that stocke by the Spansards, some of which were condemned to be tortured, that fo they might finde some clearer matter against them. One of their mothers came to the prilon, and cried out that they had got that reward, for that their Fathers had conquered the Countrey, for which their Children should be all hanged. Why did they not as well kill their Mothers, for whose sinnes Pachacamac had suffered this, which had beene traytors to lo the Inca for love of the Spaniards; with other outcries of vengeance in this world, and the next from Gods hand. Thus went thee crying in the fireet, which made the Vice-roy furcease his purpole, & he proceeded not to put any to death; but banished them to line a lingring death in divers pares of the world, out of that, which their Fathers had conquered. Some he fent to Chili (one of which was the lonne of Barco aforelaid, which had beene with Hualcar) others to the new Kingdome of Granada, to the Iles of Barlonent, to Panama, to Nicaragua, and some hee fent to Spaine, one of which was I wan Arias Maldonado, who lived there an exile ten yeeres, and recounted these things to mee; her after got leave of the supreme Councell of the Indies to returne to Pers, for three yeeres to recouer his goods, and then to returne to Spaine, there to end his dayes. All the rest perished in ban shment. The Indians of the bloud Royali, which were sixe and thirtie of the principall of the bloud Royall, he exiled and confined to the Citie of Kings, and with them the two formes and daughter of the poore Prince, the eldeft not ten yeeres old: the Arche bishop of Rimac or The Kings, pitied the young girle, and brought her vp : the two sonnes with three and thirtie more died in little about two yeeres, comming out of a cold hilly Countrie to the hor Plaines by the Sea. The three remayning were Don Carlos my School-fellow, sonne of Don Christonall Paully, and two others, which were fent home to their houses, but died all in a veere and halfe after. Of Don Carlos fonne we have faid before, that hee came into Spaine in hope of great rewards which in Pers were promifed him. He died Anno 1610. at Alcala de Henares of griefe to fee himfelfe flut vp in a Monastery, and left one some with three daughters. The sonne died being a childe of little more then a yeere old, and so the Rent granted by the

Bloudy Vice-

Don Melchiars the laft Incas

Contractation house at Simil to his father ceasiled. Now for the Prince Tupac aforefaid (to returne to him) they fentenced him to lofe his head, which was executed, the Crier proclayming his treason and tyrannes against the Catholike Maiestie of King Philip the second, King of Spaine, and Emperour of the New Word. They told the inca that he was fentenced to lofe his head, without any particular cause mentioned : hee answered hee had done nothing worthis of death , that the Vice-roy might fend him prisoner to Spaine, to kiffe the hands of his Soueraigne King Philip, which would be fecuritie enough. And if his tather were not able with 200000, Indians, to tubicat 200. Spaniards in Cozco, what needed the Vice-roy now feare any new commotion? The religious haitened to infiruct him for baptiline, to which he was willing, he faid, his Grandfather Huayna Capae having commended the 40 Christian Law, as better then theirs: He was Christened by the name of Don Philip, with as much griefe of thole which were prefent, as was icy made at the baptifing of Saits Tupae. The Spamigral did not imagine that the fentence thould be executed, being focontrarie to humanitie, and disagreeable to the Maiethe of King Philip. It was performed on a Scaff ld in the chiefe Street of Cozes. Many fought to petition the Vice-roy, which knowing their errand, would admit none to audience. They let the Prince on a Mule, with a rope about his necke, his hands tied, one going before, to proclaime his treaton. He not understanding Spanife, asked the Friers, and hearing that he proclaimed him Anca, called him to him, and faid to him, Say not fo, for thou knowest it is a Ire, and I never die or thought treason, as all the world knoweth; but say, that I must die for the Viceroys pleasure, and not for my faults against bim or the King ; I appeale to Pachacamac, that this is true. 50 The multitude crying and lamenting, they feared some stirre, there being 200000, scules allem-- bled in the streets, bey hasted to set him on the Scaffold. The Priests prayed him to still the clamours and out-cries of the people. Hee stretched out his arme with his hand open, which hee layd on his eare, thence letting it fall by degrees to his thigh; whereupon followed a fulden filence, as if there had not beene a man left in the Citie. Which made the Spaniards to wonder, and the Vice-roy among to there which flood at a window to fee the execution. Thus died the Inca with great magnanimitie, as the Incar have beene in such cases accustomed, he worthipping the Images of our Saujour, and of the Virgin, as the Priests taught him.

He is bapti'ed ... The Vice-roy returned with great wealth, and with 500000, Pezos in sold and filter, and Philip going to kiffe the Kings hand, he bad him get bim to bis boufe; be bad not fent bim to Peru, to kill 60 Vice-roys tuft: Kings, but to ferne Kings. The Councell of Indies receiving information against him arrested all his treature aforefuld, which filled him with fuch griefe that hee died within few dayes at er-Loyola, which had taken him, and was husband to his brothers daughter, was jent generall to Chili, where the Araucaus having spies on him, when hee had fent moit of his Souldiers to gat-

CHABAS. Description of Caxamalca, and of Atahuallpa. F. Vincents charity. 1489

rifons, with voices of birds and bearts gaue fignes to their fellowes, which came in with a great Areacon policy power of Indians, and killed him and all his Spaniards. Anno 1603.

Ower or insumon, and animal and are the lineas Historie of the Incas; the Spaniards (whose acts hee principally bandleth in his second part) bane enough of their owne to relate their acts, some of which also principally, and others have gone before, to them how they conquered and used their conquests of and in the New World. The greatnesse of that State, and strangenesse of the rising, proceeding, and rutne of the Incas, made mee the larger, though all this be not fo much in words, as one of the fenenteene Bookes, ont of which it is gathered. It may bee of good vie, both to underfland the Spanish Indian Historians, as Acosta, &c. and in many things in which for want of Language, and acquaintance with the Incas, they 10 bane received and delinered errours, to amend them : and in this kinde, for antiquities, is a iewell, such as no other Peru Merchant bath fit to fale. If I have feemed confused, and without exact method, I base followed my Author, who fetting forth the former part, Anno 1608, published the other, 1617. bassing receised of some later occurrents better intelligence. Wee will now lease this Inca-Spanistd, and waning received of some later occurrents octier intemprete, rec min now seame tous ance-spaniato, and briefly received from the Spanish Afters and Authors, what passed in those first and great mutations. Ramulio published these three following Discourses at large, which wee have thus contracted.

CHAP. XV.

Briefe Notes of FRANCIS PIZARRO his conquest of Peru, written by 4 Spanish Captaine therein employed.

Certaine Spanish Captaine, whose name is not added to his Tractate writeth, that in Februarie 1531. he went with Pizarro from Panama, who arrived, and flayed three moneths at Tumbez, and thence went to Tangarara, and founded Saint Michaels, where he heard of Atabalipa or Atabaalpa, and his warres with his brother Cufco: who fent a Spie thither, and as hee marched, prefents, to Pizarro. Hee with cortures learned of two Indians what and where Atabalipa was. They marched on (he fayth) to Caxemalca, a Citie foure miles in circuit, entred with two Gates. On caxemalca of 30 one fide of the Citie is a great Palace walled about, with a great Court planted with trees. This Caffameres dethey call the Honje of the Sunne, whom they worthip, putting off their Shooes when they enter. And fuch there are in every great Towne. There were two thousand houses, in streets straight as a Line, the walls of strong stone, three paces (or fathoms) high; within are faire Fountaines of water, and in the midft a greater ftreet then any in Spaine, walled about; before which is a Fortreffe of ftone, with itaires from the Street to the Fort. On one fide of this Street is the Palace of Atabalipa with Gardens and Lodgings, the houses all painted with diners colours : in. one roome were two great Fountaines adorned with plates of Gold, in one of which runnes water fo hote that a man eannot indure his hand therein, the other being very cold. The people are neate, the women are honest, weare a wrought Girdle on their long garments, about that a 40 Mantle which couereth them from the head to the midft of the thigh. The men weare white Frockes without fleeues. The women in a Palace made Chicha for the Armie. After the Armies Chicha is a Frockes without fleenes. The women in a Palace made Uniona for the Armie. After the Armie approached, a Frier of the Order of Saint Dominite, went and told him that the Christians were mide of Maize mide of Maize his friends. The (acique (Arabalipa or Arabualipa) answered, that first hee would have them Frier Pincent. reftore all that they had taken in his Land, and after hee would doe as hee should see cause. The This is denied Frier with a Booke in his hand, beganne to speake to him the things of God; hee demanded the by Incavega, booke, and the Father gaue it him, and he threw it downe about his people. The Indian Inter- because (it booke, and the Father gaue it him, and he threw it downe about his people. The Thank Intera feemes) the preter ranne and tooke it up and gaue it the Father, who fuddenly returned, crying, Come forth thing feemes Christians, come forth, and fet on these Enemies, Dogs, which will not accept the things of God, whose odious, rather Prince bath throwne on the ground the Booke of our holy Law. Thereupon the Gouernour founded then falle; and 50 the Trumpets, and gaue a token to the Gunner to discharge the Ordnance, and the Spaniards on he might not the Trumpets, and gaue a token to the Gunner to discharge the Grunner, and the Spaniaris of tell tales offenfoot and horsebacke rushed on with such furie, that the Indians hearing the dreadfull thunders fine to Spanish of the Artilerie, and seeing the force of the Horses, fled: the Gouernour went directly to the eares:expecial Litter in which Atabalipa was whom hee tooke, many Indians whose hands were cut off bea- ly to the Friers ring the same Litter on their shoulders. Sixe or seuen thousand were slaine besides many which which authorihad their Armes cut off, and other wounded.

Atabalipa, by an Indian, fent to the other Indians, that they should not flee, for hee was still to the prefice alive in the Christians hands, whom hee commended for a good Nation, and commanded his to ferue them. He was about thirtie yeeres old, a personable man , somewhat groffe, with thicke Atthalija taferue them. He was about thirtie yeeres old, a personable man, somewhat good, with the ken; descripting, and eves incarnate with bloud; his speech grave. The next day the Spaniards got fifte tion of his personable man, somewhat got fifte them; description of his personable man, somewhat got fifte them; description of his personable man, somewhat got fifte them; description of his personable man, somewhat got fifte them; description of his personable man, somewhat goods, and so the somewhat got fifte them; description of the somewhat got fifte t 60 thouland Pezos of Gold(each worth one Ducket and two Carolines) and feuen thouland Markes fon. of Silver, and many Emeralds, where with the Cacique feemed content : and faid, that he would giue him as much Gold as would fill a roome to luch a marke, higher then a tall man could reach A Markeis in by a spanne, the roome being twenty flue foot long, and fifteene broad. The Gouernour asked these discourhow much Silver hee would give ? he faid, that hee would have tenne thousand Indians, which les 8. ounces.

Hibbhbb 2

* Thele first no Cance and chiefe Citie Cuico.

should make a partition in the midst of the Palace, and fill it with vessels of Silver of divers forts. all which he would give for his ransome. The Governour promised him his libertie on this condition, and to worke no treason against the Christians. Fortie dayes were set, and twentie malfed in which came no Gold. Then we learned that he had taken his brother Cufco " his brother entiers of Peru by the father, a greater man then himfelfe. He had told fome, that Atabalipa promifed the Gold call both Huay- which he had, and hee would give the Christians foure times as much as the other had promifed: which being told to Atabalipa, he caused him suddenly to bee dispatched. Hee killed another of Husser by the his: which I my felfe faw, and all that went with Hernando Pizarro. I faw the head with the skinne, the fielh drie, and the haires on, and his teeth closed, and betwixt them a Pipe of Sil- to uer, and on the top a Cup of Gold fastned to the head, with a hole going into it. His Slaues put Chicha into the Cup, which ranne by the mouth into that pipe, whence Atabalina drunke. Anno 1833. the Gouernour gaue his brother Hernando leaue to goe with a Companie of Spaniards to Guamachuce, and there he found an hundred thousand Calliglians of Gold, which they brought for Atabalipas ransome. Diego Almagro came with an hundred and fiftie men to our fuccour. Because the Gold came so slowly, Atabalipa willed the Gouernour to send three men to Culco, laying the blame on his imprisonment, which made the Indians not to obey him. These Christians were carried by Indians in Hamacas, a kinde of Litters, and were ferued. They arrived at Xanxa, where was Chilicuchima, a great Captaine of Atabalipa, the same which had taken Culco, which had all the Gold at his command. He gave the Christians thirty burthens of Gold, an of which each weighed an hundred pounds. They faid it was little, and he gaue them fine burthens more, which they fent to the Gouernour by a Negro, whom they had brought with them. They went on to Cufco, where they found Quizquiz, a Captaine of Atabalipus, which made Tourney to Lucie account of the Christians. He laid that if they would not restore his Master for that Gold he would give, he would take him out of their hands : and fent them prefently to a Temple of * In the infide, the Sunne, couered with plates of Gold. The Christians without the helpe of any Indias (for The the mind, 8c. See [up. in they refused, faying they should die, it being the Temple of the Sunne) with Pickaxes of Brasse the Inca Vigas disfurnished the same, as they told vs afterwards, and spoyled the Temple. Many Pots and veffels of Gold were also brought (which there they vied for their cookery) for ransome of their Lord Atabalipa. In all the house, there was such store of Gold, that it amaled them. They were 30 amazed to see one seat in their house of Sacrifices which weighed nineteene thousand Pezos of Gold: in another where old Cufco lay buried, the pauement and the walls were covered with plates of Gold and Siluer, which they did not breake, for feare of the Indians displeasure, nor many great earthen Pots there, couered with Gold likewise. In that House were two dead and embalmed, neere to whom stood a woman with a Maske of Gold on her face, which fanned away the winde and Flies. Shee would not let them enter with their shooes on ; they went in and tooke much Gold, but not all, for Atabalina had intreated them, because there lay his Father. They found there a great house full of Pots and Tubs, and veffels of Silver. They would relation.

Poore thifts for horie thooes.

chacamac, in the former relation. This Idell perhaps was that which the Natives had kept trom before the lasas conquest. forthen they worthipped ' none, Efetts trearife of this Voyage is in Gouernour Francis Pizarro, and fet a guard on it. Quer the Rivers as they passed, they found two Bridges together, one open for the vulgar, the other shut for the passage of great men. Hernando Pizarro travelling over the Mountaines with his Horse, where the way was made with hands in many places as a Scale or Staires, which ware off his Horse shooes, commanded the Indians to shooe his Horses with Gold and Silver, and so came to the Citie, bigger then Rome, called Pachalchami *, where in one filthie chamber Temple of Pa. was an Idoll of wood, which they faid, was their God which gives life to all things, at whose feete were many Emeralds faltned in Gold. They have him in such veneration, that none may ferue nor touch him, nor the walls of the house, but such, as they say, are called by him. It is certanie, that the Deuill there speakes to them, and tells them what they should doe. They come 50 300. leagues off to him, and offer him gold, filuer, and iewels, giving it to the Porter which goeth in and returnes them an answer. They which serve him must be pure and chaste, abstaining from eating, and women. All the Countrie of Catamer payeth him tribute. The Indians feared that the Lioil would have deflroyed the Spaniards: which neverthelelle entred without femple, and brought very little Gold thence, for the Indians had hidden it all; they found the places whence they had carried great store; so that they got not about 30000, Pezos, & of a Cacike 10000, more. Chilicuchima fent them word, that he had ftore of Gold for them at Xanxa, but deceived them.

have brought much more then they did, but that they were alone, and aboue two hundred and fiftie leagues from other Christians: but they shut it vp, and sealed it for his Maiestie, and the 40

They brought him and other great men to Atabalipa, which put coarse Cloth on them before their entrance, and did him great reverence, lifting up their hands to the Sunne, with thankes that they had feene their Lord, and came by little and little neerer him, and killed his 60 hands and feet, who shewed great signes of Maiestie, and would not looke any of them in the face. They tied Chilenebima to a stake, and fet fire to him, to extort a confession of old Cuscos Gold from him, which (much burned first) faid that Quizquiz had it in keeping : and that old Cuses, though dead, was still observed, and had victuals for before him; and told of another P2CHAP. 16. Pizarros acts, Golden Sbares: iron instice to Atahualpa.

uilion, where were great veffels, from whence the Gouernour fent and fetched much Gold. The Christians came from Cofco with aboue an hundred and ninety Indians laden with Gold. Some welfels were fo great, that twelve Indians had much adoe to bring them. The Governous melted all the small pieces, which I can well tell, for I was keeper of the house of Gold, and saw it melted, and there were about nintie Plates of Gold: there were in that roome two hundred great tankards of Silver and many small, with pots and other peeces very faire. I thinke I Canterla But weighed of the Silver cooo. Markes. There were also in the same roome eighty tankards of Gold, and other great preces : there was alfo a heape higher then a man of those places or very fine Gold; and to fay truth, in all the roomes of the house were great hils or heapes of Gold 10 and Silver. The Governour put them together and weighed them before the Officers, and then shole fome to make the shares for the company. The Gournour fent the Emperour a prefent of 100000, pesoes in fifteene tankards, and foure pots, and other rich peeces. Euery footman had 4800. peloes of gold, which made 720%. Duckets, and the Horsemen twice as much. besides other aduntages. Before the finaring he gue selmanges company 25000, pefore, and 2000, Others fly pefors of Gold to thoir which had staid as Saint Methods: and much gold to all that came with 100000. the Captaine, two or three great Cups of gold a peece to the Merchants, and to many which had gotten it, leffe then they deserued, I fay it, for fo it fared with me. Many presently, amongst which I was, demanded leaue to returne to Spaine, and fine and twenty obtained it. When Atabalipa heard they would carry the gold out of the Country, he fent for men to come Atabalipas pre-20 and affault the Gouernour. A few dayes before two Sonnes of old Cofee came thither and lodged with the Gouernour, one of them was naturall Lord of the Countrey. Vpon newes of for- " Manceces comming, they brought Atabalipa by night to a stake to burne him alive, by the command of the Gouernour ; but he faid he would be a Chriffian; whereupon after Baptil me they thrangled him that night, and the Countrey was quiet. The Gouernour made the eldeft Sonne of old Cufee Lord of the Country, which caufed great toy to the Natines. Wee arrived in Smil, January the fifteenth 1 5 34.

CHAP. XVL

The Conquest of Peru and Cusco, called New Castile, and directed to the Emperour by FRANCISCO de XERES, Secretary to Captaine FRANCIS PIZARRO which conquered them.

Rancis Pizarro lived in Panama which the Governor Pedrarias de Auila had peopled. He was Sonne of Captaine Gonzale Pizarre of Trugille: hee obtained li- Pizarre becence of Pedratias to goe vpon new discourries; and having bestowed a good part ginning, of his effate in a Ship and necessaries, he departed from Panama Nouember the foureteenth 1524, with one hundred and twelve Spaniards, and fome Indians: Land of Ham feuentiedaies after they went on land, which after they named Of Hunger, with gre. eightie men, the rest being dead, and sent she Ship to the Mand of Pearles neere Panama for victuals, hoping of their returne in twelue dayes, which continued forty feuen, they living on the Seas wilde prouitions meane whiles, whereby twenty dyed, and the rest were very weake. A Cow hide which they had for feruice of the Ship, they had shared among ft them and eaten before the Ship returned. Then did they proceede on the Voyege, and came to a Towne which the inhabitants had forlaken, where they found ftore of proussions: and the next day the Countrie Pizers wounpeople fet on them, eatily ouerthrew ours being weake, gaue the Captaine feuen wounds very ded-50 dangerous, and left him for dead; flew five, and wounded feuenteene of the reft : whereupon they returned for Panama, and he stated at Chuchama to refresh and cure himselfe. A little before Diego de Almagro his companion was gone for his fuccour with a Ship and feuenty men; and landing at the place where Pizarro was beaten, was there affaulted and loft one of his eyes; many ded. Christians were wounded, but for all that they fired the towne, and put the enemy to flight: failing thence, they came to a great River which they called Saint Iohns, and found there some thew of Gold, and returned, and found Pizarro in Chuchama.

Almagro was sent to Panama, where Pedrarias milliked and croffed this designe which had proved hitherto fo vaine; but he with much adoe returned with one hundred and ten men to Pia Three yeares Zarro, with whom fiftie of the former remained of both companies, one hundred & thirty being troubles. 60 dead. In two Ships they fet forth and fpent three yeares in great trauell; hunger killed the most of them, that fiftie onely remained: not finding neuertheleffe any good Countrie. Then it was their hap to finde great hopes of Gold and riches, comming to Cancebi, and tooke fix men to cack Lland, learne their language. Almagro was fent for more men to Panama, whiles Pizarro flaied at Cock-Hand, But some had written to the Governour to be freed from thence. The Governour fent couery arrued at Panama. Pizarre was fent into Spaine to get graunt of the Countrey, which in large Commission hee obtained, and after his returne departed from Panama with three Ships, and 180 men, and 27. Horie. In thirteene dayes he arrived at the Port of Saint Matthew, which was as much as before Understand of he could doe in two yeares, and landing there, found all the Country in armes. They marched till they came to a great towne called Coache, which they fuddenly affaulted, and there got in Gold. to the value of 1,000. Castellines, and 7,0 pounds of Silver, and many Emeralds, which they weight, as by then knew not and therefore for imall triffes exchanged them with the Indians. Thence the Go- to m :rk:s eight ounces, oy ca-fellines Peros. vernour fent backe for men and horfe to Panama and Nicaragna. He went with his Spaniards to the Isle Puna, rich and populous, which subsected themselves, and because it was winter. staid there. Thole Indians rebelled and raifed forces. Hee tooke the Cacique (hauing vinderstanding hereot)and made great flaughter of the Handers, and having beheaded ten principall men. he fet free the Cacique to call together the Handers, which had fled to Tumbez Pizarro went thence to Tumbez, where he found the Indians in armes. Three which lad gone in the Boates were robbed and flame, but Tumbez and many other places rued it. May 16. 1532. he departed from Tambez and was well received in many places to which he gave notice that he came to bring them in subjection to the Emperor, and to the knowledge of the holy Catholik fai hito which many of the Caciques yeelded. Comming to a good River, which he found to haue a good Port, he planted a Colonie fixe leagues from the Sea, and catted it Saint Michaels. At Chira he found that the Cacique of that Towne, and another of Almotaxe had confivired to kill certaine Christians; hee tooke them both with their chiefe men and burned them aline, sparing the Cacique himselfe of Chira, whose fault was left, and giving him Almotaxe also. This execution was creadfull to the whole Country. There he shared the Gold which the Caciques, and the men of Tumber had given them, and paid the Marriners their fraight. He departed thence the foure and twentieth of September 1932. having newes of A: abaliga at Caxamala Picoresarmy. c4: 55. abode at Saint Michaels, and with the Governor remained 62. horsemen and 102, footmen!

Habbbbb 3

As he marched he received better intelligence of Atabalips, and of Cufce, in which old Cufce lay interred in a place which had the roofe and wals coursed with Gold and Siluer. Hee fenta 30 Captaine to Casas and Guaramba, with certaine horse and soote. He learned of the way (which he paffed betwix: thefe two townes, the latter of which had a faire ftone Caftle) that it reacheth from Cufco to Queso aboue 200 leagues, fo broad that fix hertemen may ride abreft, with water passages all alongst for travellers to drinke, and houses for their lodging every dayes sournes with Atabalicas pre- this Captaine returned an Indian with a prefent from Atabalica, of two Fountaines of flone and two burtness of dried Ducks (which is the fashion of that Country) fignifying his great delire to fee the Governour at Caxamalea. All the way from the River of Saint Michaels to Chimeba is a Vallie well peopled, hath the way made by hands, walled on both fides with trees in many places let for fliadow, made by old Cufes. The people line much after one manner. They a facrifice their children, and fprinkle the bloud on their Sepulchers, and daube their Idols faces therewith. 40 Their Serifices goe dancing and finging to their death. The Temples are compafied with ftone wals and feated in the highest part of the Citie. He fent an Indian meffenger to Atabalipa with words of greatest kindenesse. Leaning the Chinchs way, he tooke that which goeth to Cassanalauthorderieth ca, and alcended a great Mountaine, the horsemen leading votheir horses, sometimes mounting as it were by flaires, there being no other way; till they came to a forcrefle of Stone, walled with and founded on the rocks. As they proceeded in this Mountaine, they found it very cold. The wa-Spanners dent . feel fuch impu- ters on the top were very cold that without heating they could not drinke them, and they les up their tents and made fires when they flaid, because of the cold.

Here came mellengers with ten Sheep for a prefent from Atabalipa, which told Pizarre of the great victories which he had had against his brother. But hee answered that his Emperour was 50 King of Spaine, and of the Indies, and Lord of the whole world, it had many formants which were greater Lords then Atabalipa ; and be had fent him into these Countries to draw the people to the knowledge of God & to his subjection; and with thefe few Christians, faid he, I bane ouercome greater Lords then is Atabalipa. If he will have friendship I will belpe bim in bis wars & leave him in bis estate, but if he choose warre, I will doe to him as to the Cacikes of Puna and Tumbez. The Indian which Pizarro had fent returned from Canamaica and related that Atabaina there abode with an armie, and would have flame him, had hee not faid that the like should be done to his Messengers, then being with the Spaniards: that he could not speake with him, but an Vncle of his, which had enquired of the Christians and their armes, all which he extolled to the vtmost.

The Gouernor came to Caxamalea the fifteenth of November $ 32. Atabalipa fent other mel- 60 fengers with prefents. Fernando Pizarro was fent to his campe with another Captain, which did his meffage to him, but he did not once looke on him, but was answered by a principall man; till the other Captain fignified that he was brother to the Gouernor; & then the tyrant lifted vp his eyes and obiected the reports of their ill viage of his Casiques, but for his part he would be friend founded.

Saint Michaels

Cacite and o-

thersburned.

pounds by

Long high-

before the Incar conqueft. But our Inca this and Cafu Spaniards deui tations of fodomy and humane factifices &e to couer their cruelties in ail places.

> Catamaka Firlinand Pie

CHAP. 16. Conferences of Span. with Atabalipa, Battell, prisoner, ransome.

to the Christians, taking them to be good men. They promised helpe against his enemies, He laid, he would employ them against a Cacique which had rebelled, together with his Soldiers, Pizarre answered, ten of their worlemen woul i be enough to deltroy him without helpe of your Indire answeren, and and and have mount of choosing the would the next day ice his Brother, and Aubulpa laughed and bad they should drinke, laying he would the next day ice his Brother, They to excule drinking, faid they taited but he importuned them, and women came forth with veffels of gold tull of drinke of Mayz. Hee looked on them without speaking a word, and they went againe and brought greater veilels of gold, whereof they dranke, and were licenced to depart. There feemed to be 30000, men in the Campe; they stood without their tents with lances without right in their hands, ike to Pikes. The next morning, being Saturday, came a Meftinger from Atabali- otthe Indian to palaying that he would come to fee him with his people armed. He aniwered, that he should vie Brane bragge his pleature. The Governour had placed his horie and foote courtly in great houles that they thould not firre forth till opportunity feued(the figne being given, and the Orunance thereupon acd where non discharged) then to rush out luddenly from Jivers pares & askule the Indians. And leeing Asabaupa finkeith as be flaid to long, till neere night, he tent aM. ffenger to hun, fignifying his defire to fee him, Hereupon filet store. he moued to the cown with his armie in iquadrons, finging & dancing, richly adorned with g.hd disables russ and filuer. The Gouernors purpose was to take him alue, & therefore expected his entrance into that walled or closed three of Caxamales, which the Indians had for laken with the fortrelle, & left quined, as Fig. to him.lt was late before he came into the town, and being come into the freete he made a stand. enrollmente The Governor lent Frier Vincent to him with a Cit ffe in one hand, and a Bible in the other, be- wites in the 20 ingentred where Atabahpa was, he laid by an Interpreter, I am a Prieft of God, and teach the nearthap, yet vs, and is written in this Booke. And therefore on Gods behalfe, and of the Christians, 1 pray you after they had to become their friend; for God commands it, and it shall be well for you; and come to speake made him a with the Gouernor which expect you. Atabaliga asked for his Booke, which he gave him that. Chaff on Gree He not knowing which way to open it, the Frier firetched forth his hand to doe it, and he with great diddine bit him on the arme, and at last opened it himselfe. And without wondring at the the Specified; letters or paper, as other Indians vie, cast it away fine or fix pices from him: and to the words for their cruelwhich the Frier had faid to him, he answered with great pride : I well wot what thou hast done ties to the lain this younge, and how thou but handled my Carpurs, and taken away their goods. The First and first and the Grant has no did done this but found had been suitable to the Grant has no did done the but found had been suitable to the Grant had no did not not be the found to the found to the found had been suitable to the found to did naural 30 (were title Christians have not done this, but some ladious without the Governours knowledge, drafts, although who knowing it caused them to make rethrusion. Asabaipa replied, I will not depart hence till had had in Athey bring it all to me. The Frier carried this answer to the Godernor, and that he had throwne rabalipes death the holy Scripture on the ground; who prefently fet on the Indentioned came to the litter where died milerably. Atabalpa was and tooke him by the left arme, crying Saint lames, S. lames. The Ordnance plained fuffered the the trumpets found-dythe horie and foot fet forthy he Indiana fled, the horiemen purfuing & flay- wars, &che na ing, the footmen killing all in the streete, the Governour got a wound on the hand in faung his methalocespriloner. In all this hurliburly there was not an indeas which lifted up his armes against the Chrismian, Robleds, Biant, Picarro bid his priiner not be amafed at his captinity, for with these Corolling, though few. I have subsected greater Lords then thou art to the Emperor, whose vasfall I am, who is Lord whom God

40 of Spaine, and of all the world; a d by his order I am come to conquer these lands that you may plaged for en come to the knowledge of Gos, &cc, adding many words of their pitie to the conquered and his rannies to the good parts and act. The Spaniards had no harme, onely one horfe had a fmall wound: whereupon He had been the Gouernor thanked God for the bmiracle. The Sun was down before they began, and the batteli lafted halfe an houre, 2000. Indians were killed, besides those which were wounded, and Effectes dif-3000. taken. In the free of Caxamalca, Pizarre caused to build a Church for the Masse, and fortie course of the fied the place against all occurrents.

Assisting promifed for his ranfome to fill a roome 22. foot long, and 17. wide, with gold vp as highas the middle of the roome, higher by one halfe then a mans height, in pots and other veilels, plates & peeces; and the fame roome twice filled with filter, in two moneths space. But so much #### [and b. not comming in fo foone, the Gouernor fent three men to Cufes, February 15. 1533.commanding that in their

50 one of them in the name of his Maiefty, & prefence of a Notary, to take possession thereof. A Negro which went with them returned, Aprill 28. with 107 burthens of gold, and seven of files, ed gold of 14. May 25. Fernand Pizarro came to Caxamalca with Chuicucima, May the thirteenth, the Nota carasst 7. and ry returned from Culco with relation that they had taken possession, & had found 30. great Cities by the abunin the way besides small. He said that there was a Pallace with plates of gold, fouresquare, each dence thereof fquare containing 350, pales from corner to corner, 700, of which they had taken away, each of which waighed soo. Cafulians : from another house the Indians had taken as much as 20000. ming, pride & Castilians, which they rejected because the gold was base. He faid that Chische was there with othervices; he 30000.men for guard of the Citie. They brought 178, burthens of gold, each as much as foure Is aith that the 60 diens bare on their necks, to that it could not come thicher in a moneth by reason of requiring to three lent to many Indians to carry it. It was the thirteenth of June before the gold came from Cajes, we the fooles & heir was two hundred burthens & twenty fine of Silver, After this came fix ie burthens of bale gold, behauler caus taken from wals of houses, it was shared on S. lames his day. The nith being taken out for his fathe Incluses

Starif mirae Confirms things dunne, and come likewife to instruct you that which the great God hath raught thered, & that

Maiefly, every horfeman had 8880. Cathlians in gold, and g62, markes in filter, such marke being to vade value eight ounces. The tootemen had halfe to much, tome more and tome leffe, as the Gou. mour

* A Maske is 8. ounces and a Calilian is a Pez which containeth in this Peruacconnt after Insa Vega 450. Marauediz: ewery 5. Peans being fix Duekers: about feuen fhillings Miferable com

valued their merits. The Emperours fifth was 262259. Castilians of Gold and $1610. Markee

He fet apart a quantity for those of Saint Michaels, and for those which came with Alma. ere, and the Merchants, and all the Marriners, Prices of things were according: a Horse was commonly told for 1500. Castilians of Gold; a vessell of tex quarts (Becali) of wine for fixtie Castilians, I paid fortie for foure quarts : a paire of shooes for forty, as much, or fiftie for a sword. I paid twelve for halfean ounce of had Saffron : ten for a sheet of Paper to write; nothing feemed cheape but Gold and Silver, infomuch that they would not fland to weigh their Gold, but gaue it in malle; and if hee gaue not twice the quantitie, hee cared not. Debtors & went from house to house with Indians laden with Gold to pay their debts. Atabalipa beeing accused of to Treason by another Cacique, that he sought to rayle forces in Quito, was therefore sentenced tobe burned, and brought forth to execution, where he taid he would be a Christian, and Frier Vincent baptized him and comforted him at his death; the Gouernour commanded he should not be burne but strangled, which was executed on a Saturday, about the same houre that he was taken. One of his Brothers was made Lord by the Gouernour in prefence of the Caciques, with great folemnitie, they litting up their eyes to the Sunne with thankes for giving them a naturall Lord. Fernando Pizzaro was tent to Spaine, and fome others had license, many flocking thither, hearing of Herera Dec. 5.1.3. Sanb that Atahuallpa had defired his libertie because his ransome was paid and his promife fulfilled (as Pizzero himselfe by found of Trumpet acknowledged) which being deferred bis " Captaines offered bim to free bim by force. Atahualpa refused and commanded them to serve the Christi. ans. The Yanaconas a flauth hand of people, defiring to free themselmes from the Oreiones and Incas in those broiles rayled fulse newes that Armies were rayled to affants the Spaniards. Pizarro feeing the Atahualpa flood in his way, and hindered bis foundation of a Spanish Empire in these parts, which could not be without the diffipation of that of the Incas, nor that without Atahualy as death . Yefto tenia nor infto, pues era prouechiofo, He beld it suft becanfe it was profitable: Hee fluke to the Inca complaining of insurrection which be answered was but the rumour of his enemies, that he had paid his ransome or Pizzaro made frem (diffembling bie purpose) of great feare of the enemies (which caused the Spaniards to urge and important Acabalipas death (and to speake as you have read in them) whereupon Pizatto bad sufficient colour for his Designe, making shew that the Treasure paid in name of a ransome was " not for the Incas libertie, but left the Indians Should bide it. Frier Vincent confented alfo, and fo be mu fentenced to be burned, Oc. Hee addeth out of Seneca , Profperum ac toelix icelus virtus vocatur. Thus the Kings Chronicler , faring alfothat Pernand Pizarro was Atahualpas friend, and his brother did it after his departure. He died in Prifor, and all the rest (of whose names Hetcia giveth a Catalogu) were flaine and murthered in small warres, or came to illends. Yea, fill the warres continue in Atauco, to the death of many Spaniards, bofides the civil marres of Giron, de. in Peru after that of the Pizztrifts. God is inst, and therefore Pizasto the Mumberer of Atahualpa (a cruell Muriberer allo) was mourthered, and so bee that murthered Pizarro, and so forwards; the Serpents iffue and Generation of Hell proceeds from murther to murther the Deuill himselfe being a Murtherer from the beginning. Once, Peru alone with Chili (both subietts to the Incas Empire) bath more advanced the Spanish Treasure then all the New World besides : neither is there any so likely may to supplant that Cattilian-American greatnesse, as by the Araucos.

CHAP. XVII.

Relations of Occurrents in the Conquest of Peru after FERNAND PIZARROS departure written at XAVXA, Iuly 15. 1524. by PEDRO SANCHO, Notary Generall in the Kingdomes of New Castile, and Secretary to the Governour FR. PIZARRO, subscribed by the faid Gouernour himselfe and others, and Sent to his Maiestie.

En or twelue dayes after Fernand Pizarres departure, two Spaniards came from Cueso with Gold, part whereof was melted being finall and fine pieces, takenous of the wals of a certaine houle in Cufes, being aboue fue hundred wedges or plates of Gold, the finall weighing foure or flue pounds a piece, the greater ten or twelst.

All the wals of that Temple had beene couered with them, They brought a chaire. or throne of most fine Gold, weighing eighteene thousand Pezos, and a Fountayne of Gold of 60 excellent workmanship, and the mould in which it was cast; and many other pieces, pots and veffels : which all mounted to two Millions and a halfe, and beeing melted into most fine Gold came to be one Million 320000. Pezos and vowards : out of which his Maiesties fifth was taken, about 260000. Pezos, they made it vp 270000. Of Silver there was 50000. Markes, his Maiesties part 5000, the rest was shared amongst the company according to their qualities and merits. After this, the Gouernour made an act before a Notary, in which he acquitted Atabalipa of his promife to the Spaniards, for to much as the house would hold, and cauled it to bee published in Caxamaloa by the found of a Trumpet, acquainting Atapalipa himselfe therewith by an Interterpreter, declaring withall that for his Maietites service and security of the Countrey, he would fill detay ne him with a guard, till more Spaniards came for his fecurity : specially confidering that hee had taken order for leuying of men of warre to assault the Spaniards, which hee had no meanes to avoid but by keeping him fast, and his Captayne Generall Chilichnehima. A few dayes after the Indians renealed the Treatons of that Tyrant, notwithstanding all his good viage by the 10 Gouernour and Spaniards, which was preuented by his death: his fentence of burning by reason of his Baptisme being executed with strangling, and after his death some part of his clothes and flesh were butned. It was late in the Evening, and the next morning he was solemnely buried in the Church, as if he had beene the chiefe Spannard in the Campe: which gave much latisfaction to his principall Caciques and Captaines.

This done, in prefence of many Commanders and Cacikes he gaue them a Lord in the name of b Other Incas the Emperour, a Sonne of Guaynacaba (Huayna Capac, or as the Spaniards vie to call him Guai- madesone calthe Emperour, a Sonne of Gusynacaba (Husyna Capae, or as the Spaniaras vie to call into Gusta led Atabalipa, nacapae) called Atabalipa, b to whom the Empire was due, and placed him in his Seat, they all to ferue the offering the Rites of vaffallage to him, to wit, a white feather, according to their custome. The Semiards turn. new Inca faited three dayes for the deceafed, thut up from all locietie but his Pages, and after Without them 20 came forth honourably attired and attended with about fifty Cacites and Captaines there pre- (as in the confent, and did eat to ether on the ground (for they vie no Tables) after which, he offered a white Feather in token of his vassallage to the Emperour. The Gouernour received it and embraced could, being so him with much loue, and concluded a peace, taking the names of the Cacrkes, and the Countries femouses under their command, and intimated that he was fent by his Emperour to give them knowledge have perfected of the true God, Father, Sonne, and Holy Ghoft, and what they should observe for their saluation; and that that God and his Vicars left on earth(for he alcended to Heauen their toremayne in wied the Cuso glorie) had given those Provinces to the Emperour to take charge thereof, who had fent him to ceams against instruct them in the Christian Faith, and to bring them vinder his obedience : and caused his those of Quite, Committion to bee read and interpreted to them. They all acknowledged the Emperour for and laftly to Commilion to bee read and interpreted to them. I ney all acknowledged the Emperous total to their supreme Lord, and next under him their Lord Atabasipa, and in signe thereof litted up the Spenish (each of them twice) the Royall Banner. All this act was entred into writing with testimonies, subjection. Af-

and great Feafts were made by them. At this time the Gouernour ceased the partition of the Gold and Silver amongst the Spaniards, and Acadelina gaue the Gold of the Fitths Royal to the Treasurer of his Maiesty, which was thing but saicarried to Xanca where the Gouernour intended to plant a Colonie of Spaniards, having intelligence of the good Countrey thereabouts. He provided him of Indians for carriages, and fent a Captaine with ten Horsemen to inhabit Saint Michaels till ships came, and after that to returne ing aims by to Xanxa. He heard that some of Atabalipas Captaines had flaine Gariticus his Brother, which any way to egrieued much both the Gouernour and the present Atabalipa. He as he marched heard of divers recethes spanish 40 which were vp in Armes against him, fine leagues from Xanxa, whereupon he put Chilachachima Second shain chaines, by whose meanes the report was that they had done it. They went and adiouned ring. themselves to Quizquiz. When he came to Xauxa, none of his Spaniards were willing to abide Garitto flaine: there because the Countrey was in Armes, yet he left a Colony of eighty men with Officers. About this time died Atabalipa of lickneffe, of poylon given by Chilichachima, as was reported, who fought to have the rule remaine in Quite, and not in Cufce. The Governour bad them pro- the first, auidea Successor. Calichuchima would have Aticee Sonne of Atabilipa, but others and the Gouer- saint cuice: nour liked better of a Brother of Atabalipa (Sonne of Guanacapa.) He came to a Towne where lo airer his he found much Siluer in great sheets of twentie foot long and one broad, a finger thicke. They doubt, it was received intelligence of a skirmish with the enemy by another band of Spaniards, in which eighteene horses were hurt and one slaine; in another the Spaniards had the victory. The Governour nued against 50 caused Chilichuchima to be burned, who refuted to become a Christian, and called upon Pachaca- the Izem there mac. After this he marched to Casco, which hee entred on Friday the fifteenth of November feeling to ad-

1533. And the next day made that Sonne of Gusynacapae their Lord, being the right heire, and aboue Cufce.& commanded the Cacikes to obey him. Incontinently the New Cacite (or Inca) gave order to affemble forces against Quizquiz; in tabalipato the foure dayes fine thousand were comne together well armed, with whom the Gouerneur tent a Sourcegnite.

Captaine with fiftie Florie, remayning himfelfe for the guard of the Citie. Thefe having done fomewhat against the enemy, were forced to returne by the ill mountanous palages. The Cacique having faited three dayes, and performed and received the Rites of validlage (before mentio-63 med in his Fredereffor)at the Gouernours request levied greater forces, fo that above five and twen. Third sharing tie thousand went with the Spaniards, which made a Brilge of three hundred and fixtie focte of gold and long, broad enough for two Horlemen to paffe abreaft, and paffed to Bileas. Some of them went to the fuccour of Xanna which had obtayned good fuccesse against their enemies.

The Governour after this caused all the Gold to bee melted by experienced Indians, which a- ingold, ter which they

Acath & mcB

mounted to 580200. Pezos and vowards of good Gold. The Emperours fifth was 116460. Pe zos and vpwards. The Silver was meked, and weighed 215000. Markes, of which 170000 and vpwards was good, in Vessels and Barres, the rest alayed with other Metals. The fifth wasdeducted thence for his Maieftie. Amongst other things there were sheepe of fine Gold very great and ten or twelue Statues of women in their iuft bigneffe and proportion, artificially composed of fine Gold. They performed like veneration to them as if they had beene aline, clothing. adoring, giuing them to eate and talking with them. There were others of Siluer in the fame thature. All this Treasure was shared betwint those of Cusco and the Spaniards of Xanna.

In March 1534, the Gouernor affembled all the Spaniards, and made a folemne act of the form-Cule a Spanifib dation of a Towne and possession taken in the midst of the chiefe street, by the name of the noble and great Citie of Cusco: bounds were set out for a Church, and priviled ges allotted to such as within three yeeres should come thither to dwell. About twelve thousand married Indians were defigned to the Prouince of Collao, to his Maiefties Mynes of Gold in those parts. After this he departed with the Cacique towards Xanxa. There he had newes of two hundred and fiftie comme from Parama to Saint Michaels, feuenty of them horlemen, and of Almarador

ardsenter Peru.

landing with foure hundred men, and one hundred and fiftie horfemen, Hauing ouerthrowne his enemies, he tooke order for founding a Church in Xanxa, and fent some Spaniards with an Army of Indians to pursue the enemies. There is a Mountayne of Snow which continueth from Caramalea to X inxa, where Snow lyeth all the yeere. The people are more civill and better Souldiers. On the other fide the Mountayne (Eastward) they are Sauge people feeding on fruites, having fmall flore of Maiz. All their Tribute was Feathers. From Xauxa to Cufco the Countrey enlargeth it selfe from the Sea. Collao is a plaine Countrey and cold, and hath many Rivers where gold Country de- is taken. The Mountaynes continue from Tumbez to Xanxa, and thence to Cufes, if the way bee not made by hands, footmen could not passe, much lesse horiemen : and they have many houses c Immaionare, full of Braffe to worke evp the same. All the rough Mountaynes are wrought like flaires dof ftone. There are some places where foure or fine mens heights, the way is wrought and made up with stone worke; in others it is cut out of the stone. There are places of entertainment ine-uery Countrey, and by the way one within two or three leagues of another, made for the Lords which visit the Countrey : and every twenty leagues principall Provinciall Cities where the tributes of smaller places are kept. All those great Townes have store-houles full of the Countrey to Commodities. There are store of cattle and pastures with their Pastors. The Citie of Cufco might be worthy the fight if it were in Spaine, full of great mens houles,

Description of all Lords and Caciques, having houses there. The most of those houses are of stone, and some are Cufco, asit was halfe of ftone : the ftreets are ftraight in right croffes, and narrow ; in the midft runneth a Conthe most pare çarro. The Fortresse duit of water inclosed with stone on each side of which a horseman may passe and no more. The Citie is situate on the top of a Hill, and many houses are built on the side of it, and others below on the Plaine. The Market place is iquare, paued with small stones. About it are source houles of Lords of Hone painted and wrought; the best of which was Guainacabas: the gate is of white and red Marble, and of other colours, and hath faire Terrasses. On the sides of the City ranne two Rivers, w. ichrife a league higher, ouer which are Bridges. Vpon a Hill hard and roughis 40 a very faire Fortreffe of earth and itone, with great windowes towards the City. Withinit are many Roomes, and one principall Towre in the midft of foure or five circuits e one higher then another; the Lodgings within are small, the stone very fairely wrought and so close loyned that there is no shew of morter, and as smooth as planed boords. It hath to many Roomes and Towres that a man is not able to view them all in a day. Many Spaniards which have beene in Lumbardie and other strange Kingdomes, say that they have never seene such a building as this Fortresle, nor Cattle more strong. There may abide within five thousand Spaniards. It cannot be undermined being feated on a Rocke. On the City fide which is a ragged Hill, is but one wall, on the other fide three, one higher then another, the inmost being lighest. The goodliest spectacle are these encompassing circuits, being of stones so great, that no man would imagine them layd 50 there by the hands of men , as great as pieces of stonie Mountaynes and Rockes; some being of the height of thirty f spannes, and and as much in length, and none is so little but it is more 1050. Acolla faith he then three Cart-lodes. The Spaniards preferre them before the buildings of Hercules or of the Romanes. They are reverfed & that they cannot be battered in plano, but in the flipping h turnagaines which goe outwards, made of the felfe-same stone. Betwixt wall and wall is earth laid to broad that three Carts may goe abreaft. They are made like three fteps, the fecond beginning on the height of the first, and the third on that of the second. All this Fortresse was a h Sguincio de :- Store-house of Armes, Clubs, Launces, Bowes, Arrowes, Axes, Shields, Cotton Mandilions quilted, and other armes and garments for Souldiers, gathered from all parts of the Empire, colours of divers forts and Metals. From this Fortreife may bee feene many houses. In the Val-60 which is compassed about with Hils are about 100000. houses; many of them houses of pleafure of the Sourreignes Lords and Caciques, others are Store-houses full of Wooll, Armes, Metrals, Clothes and fuch things as the Countrey yeeldeth; there are Horles where the Tributes are kept, and there is one, where are about 100000, dried Birds, of whole Feathers they make

f Seefun. pag. mea.ured 38. foot long, g Voltati.

earments. And there are many houses for that purpose. There are Shields, Targets, Plates of Braile to couer houles, and incredible flore of prouitions for Warre. Euery Sourceigne Lord deceased hath his owne house of these goods and Tributes which they had in their life (for by their Law the Successor may not inheret it) their Gold, Silver, and Clothesapart. They worthip the Sunne and have made him many Temples, and of all things they offer somewhat to the Sunne. Two Spannards were sent to Colao, and were forty dayes in the journey. They say it is well peopled, mountaynous, and out of measure cold : fo subject, that having many cattle, no man dares kill any without licente, though neuer fo great. There is a great Lake (Titicaca) in the midft of the Province, in which are two Ilands, in one of which is a Temple of the Sun in great to veneration, where they offer Gold and Silver and other things. There are about fixe hundred Isdians which serue there, and a thousand women. The Mynes of Gold are beyond this place, some of ten some twenty, and that of Guarracabo is forty fathome deepe, darke and narrow, in which one alone at once, entreth, none following till he be comne forth. Other Mynes they pursue no further then a mans height, that he may reach the earth to another : which made fome fay that all the fields were Gold Mynes. Guainacapa is honoured as if hes were aline, and his bodie is brought forth into the ffreet with Musicke and Dances, and there are fome day and night attending him to chase away the flyes. The Lords that come to the Citie, goe first and salute him, and then the King. To these Fearlts 100000, soules affembled. Had it not beene for the quarrels betwixt those of Quite and those of Cuses, the Spaniards could not have entred into Cuses, nor have Note this 20 it, And the Mountaynes are such that ten men may defend ten thousand. Many Horses fell downe and brake their neckes. The Spaniards themselves marvell at what they have done, and how they are still alive. It hath false out well that this Sonne of Guainacaba was made their Lord, for whose love other Lords have giuen their obedience to the Emperour. He is very friendly to the Christians. July 15. 1534. in Xanxa Subscribed Francisco Picarre, &c. The end of the senenth Books. VOY-

OYAGES LAND-TRAVELS IN FLORIDA,

VIRGINIA, AND OTHER PARTS OF THE

NORTHERNE AMERICA FRENCH Plantings, Spanish Supplantings; English VI R-

GINIAN Colonies, and to the Ilands Azores.

THE EIGHTH BOOKE.

C'H A P. L

30 A Relation of A L V AR O N V N E z called Capo di Vaua, *concerning that which bappened to the Fleet in India, whereof PAMPHILO.

NARVAEZ Was Gouernour, from the yeare 1527. Intill the yeere 1 $ 3 6. Who returned onto Small with three of bis companions only: translated out of RAMV-SIO, and abbreniated.

Ramu(vel 1

Their Fleet; and admirable and unheard of tempest: their entrance into Florida : the Lakes, trouble some passages, incounters, disastrous successe, building Boats for returne.

H E fixteenth day of June, in the yeare 1527, the Gouernour The Gouernoon Pamphilo di Narnaez departed from the hauen of Saint Lucar of the Fleete. of Barrameda, with power and commandement from your Maiestie to conquer and gouerne the Provinces, which lye from the River of Palmes vnto the Cape of Florida, all in the firme land. And the Fleete which the Gouernour brought with him The officers owere fiue Ships, wherein fix hundred men went. The Officers, uer the Flecte. because I am to make parti ular mention of them in this Booke, were thete: Capo de Vana Treasurer, Agozino Pronoss Marti-all, Alonso Enriquez Auditor, and Alonso de Solie Factor, and an, Atonjo Emeriqueo Auditoi, and Atonjo ac odit Pattor, and overfeer for his Maiestie. And besides, there was for Commitary, a Frier of the order of Saint Francis, called Frier Giomanni, Ichn Gottierrez, and with him foure other Friers of the fame Order. 60 We arrived first at the lland of San Dominica, where we stayed but force five dayes, to pro-

uide our felres of certaine necessary things, and principally of Hories. There we left more then S. Dominue.

an hundred and forty of our men, which would stay by promise and agreement which they of an hundred and forty or our men, which would not yet of the Village made with them. Departing thence, we arrived at Saint lage or Giacomo, which is The hance of an haven in the lland of Cuba, and reposing our iclues there certaine dayes, the Captaine furnish ed himselfe with men, munition, and horses. It happed in that place, that a Gentleman, called

Anhauen cal.

The Trinitie. Governour to give him certaine victuall, which he had in the faid towne of the Trinitie, which is an buildred leagues off from the faid port of Saint Iago. Whereupon the Governour departed with all the Fleete, towards that towne. But arriving halfe the way at an hauen which they call the Caue of Santa Cruz, it feemed good vnto the Gouernor to abide there, and fend one Shin onely to receive those vietuals, and so he appointed one Captaine Pantoxa to goe thither with or Saint (183 his phip, and that for the greater fecurity, I also should goe with him, and he remained still there with the toure Ships : we having now gotten another in the Iland of Saint Domenica. Being arrived with our five Ships at the haven of the Trimitie, the Captaine Pantoxa went with Valanez. Porcalle to receive the victuals at the towne, which was one league diffant from the hauen. One houre after I was landed, the Sea began to be outragious, and the Northwinde was fo ftrong, Vafques Parcalle, neete vnto the towne of the Trimtie, which is in the fame Hand, offered the or to upeff, no that the Boates durit not goe aland, nor could they with the Shippes in any fort put to the Prefages.

table both at contrary fide; the winds being in the prowe, whereupon with very great trausale, with Sta and Land. two contrary feafons, and with much raine they continued all that day, and the Sunday The night approaching, the Sea and tempest began so much to increase, that it no leffe tormented those on the land then them at Sea; tor all the houses fell downe, and all the Churcies, and wee were entorced to goe feuen or eight men embracing one another arms in arme together, to be able to relift the winde, that it might not carry vs away, and to avoide the ruine of the houles, flying vnto the Forrest, the trees gave vs no leffe cause of feare, then the houses had given vs : because they falling held vs in continual feare, the that they would kill vs. In this tempest and danger wee passed all the night, without finding any part or place, where for one halfe houre onely wee might fland fecure : but principally, the midnight before wee heard noyles and great crying, and the found of Belies, Flutes, and Drummes, and other inftruments, which continued vntill the more ning, that the tempest ceased. In those Countries so fearefull a thing had never beene seene. whereof I caufed a teltimoniall and true certificate to be made, which I have fent vnto your

the tempest.

On Munday morning we went downe to the hauen, and found not the Ships there, but faw fome of their furniture in the water; whereby we knew that they were cast away. And so we purpoied to goe along the coast, searching if we might finde any thing, but finding nothing, 30 we determined to fearch by the Mountaines, and having gone about a quarter of a league of from the water fide, wee found the Boate of a Ship fet vpon certaine trees; and further beyond, ten leagues along the coast they found two perions of my Ship, and certaine couerings and rootes of houses. And those two men were to actually transfigured and changed with weatherbeating, both of the shore, and of the Sea, that they could not know who they were, we found also a Friers habit, and a Conerlet torne in peeces, and found no other person or thing any more. Threefcore men were loft in those two Ships, and twenty horses, and those that remained aline were thirty persons onely, who the same day we arrived in that haven, went aland together with the Captaine Pantage. Wee remained in such manner for certaine dayes, with much trouble and great necessitie, because the sustenance and prouision of that people, was all an loft, and destroyed, with certaine wilde Beatls, and the Countrey remained in such fort that it moved great compassion in the beholders, the trees being falne, the mountaines burned, and remaining without leaves, or graffe, and so we passed untill the fift day of November, that the Gouernour of our Fleete came thither to vs, with his other foure Ships, who also themselves had palled great dangers and torments, and were efcaped, because in good time they had retired themselves vato some place of satety.

Fifth of No-

The men which he had brought with him, and those that he found there, were so much affright ted, and terrified with the loffes and dangers past, that they resolved to imbarke themselves no more in the winter, and befought the Gouernour that he would fuffer them to repose and relt themselues in those places; he perceiung their mindes, and the defire of the inhabitants, did so, 50 and gaue me the charge of the Ships, and the men, which should goe with me to winter at the The baisen of hauen of Xaqua, which is twelve leagues diffant from that place, and to going thither, we stated Sagua, or Xa jua. vntill the twentieth of February following. At this time the Gouernour came thirther vnto vs. with a Brigantine which he had gotten at the Trinitie, and brought with him a Pilot, called Mirnelo, who (as they faid) was a man very well practifed, and an excellent Pilot for all the coast of the North. Befides that, the Gouernour lets on the coaft of the Liffart Captaine Aluaro della Querda, with a Ship which the Gouernour had procured there, and lett forty men with him, and twelve other with the horse. Two dayes after the Gouernour came vnto vs, wee imbarked our felues, and were (in the whole) foure hundred men, and fourescore horses in foure Ships, and one Brigantine. The Pi- 60 lot which we had newly taken, brought the Ships through the quicke fands, which they call Canerres, to that the day following we found our felues on dry land, and so remained fine dayes, the keele of the Ships oftentimes friking voon the ground. At the end of those fine dayes, 2 ftorme from the South brought fo much water vpon the fands, that wee might come out, although not without much danger. Departing thence, we arrived at Gnanignanico, where another tempelt affailed vs fo fiercely, that we frood in great danger to be lost: at the head of the Gumigianico. currents we had another, where we staid three dayes. And these being ouerpasted, we went acurrents we nau another, which and with a contrary winde, we went till wee came within The Cape of hour the Cape of Saint Interny, and with a contrary winde, bour the Cape of the Hanana, and flanding the day following to put in there, a Southerne gale S. Anthony. of winde tooke vs, which droue vs farre from the land, so that wee crossed ouer by the coast of The Hamens. Florida, and arrived the twelfth of Aprill, at the land of Martes; fo coafting the way of Florida, Martes. voonholy Thursday in the same coast, we ancored in the mouth of an open roade, at the head whereof we faw certaine houses, and habitations of the Indians.

10 The fame day Alonfo Euriquez the Auditor went out of the Ship, and landed upon an Iland which is in the same open roade, and called to those Indians, who came and abode with vs a good space, and by way of ransome gaue him fish, and certaine peeces of Deeres flesh. The day following, which was good Friday, the Gouernour imbarked himfelfe with as many men as the Boates could carry, and we went to the Villages or houses of the Indiant, which wee had seene. which we found all emptie and defolate, because that night the people were gone in their Canoes. One of thole houles was very great, and able to containe more then three hundred perfons, the other were much leffer, and there we found a little Bell of Gold within the Nets. The Great boufes fons, the other were much letter, and there we round a next day, the Gouernour advanced the Enfigne for your Maielty, and tooke possession of the keepers. Village in your royall name, and presented the Commissions and was received, and obayed as Golden Rell. 40 Gouernout, according to your Maiefties appointment. And so in like manner, we presented our The fift to me other prouitoes vnto him, which he accepted, and obeyed according to the contents thereof, and taken in Floris prefently caused the rest of the men to be shipped, and the horses, which were not about two da, in the Emand fortie, because the other, through the many tempests, and beating of the Sea, and length of perors name, time, were dead. And these sew that remained, were so weakeand wearied, as at that time we could doe little feruice. The day following, the Indians of those places came vnto vs, and although they spoke vnto vs, yet notwithstanding we understood them not.

The Governour commanded that the Brigantine should goe coasting the way of Florida, and fearch for the hauen, which the Pilot Marnelo faid he knew, but was now aftonished, and knew not in what part we were, nor where the hauen was; and the Brigantine was appointed, that if

30 they found not the hauen, to croffe ouer to the Hamana, and finde the Ship wherein Alsiare della Querda was, and having taken in some victuall, to returne to finde it. The Brigantine being deing departed, we returned to enter into the Village of the same people where we had bin before, with fome other more, and we coafted the gulfe which wee had found, and having gone about foure leagues, we tooke foure Indiani, and shewed them Maiz, because vntill that day wee had not yet feene any token thereof: they faid, they would bring vs where it grew, and so they brought vs to their Village, which was not farre from thence, at the head of the gulfe, and there they shewed valuted Marz, which was not yet ripe to be gathered. There wee found many chelts of the Merchants of Castie, and in every one of them was the body of a dead man, all which were coursed with Deeres skins painted. The Commissary thought, that it was a kinde 40 of Idolatry, so he burned the chefts with all the bodies. We also found peeces of webs of cloath, and Pennacchi, which they had gotten out of None Hift aniela, and certaine * mosters of Gold. Whereupon we demanded of those Indians by signes, from whence they had such things. They Samples by fignes, shewed vs: that very farre from thence there was a Prouince, called Apalachen, where- The Prouince in there was great quantity of Gold. Departing from thence, wee went further, carrying for apalache. guides those foure Indians which we had first taken, and so ten or twelve leagues off from that place, wee found another people of fifteene houses, where was a goodly Plaine sowed with Maiz, which now was ready to be gathered, and we found some also dry. There we abode two

May the first, the Gouernour caused two pound of Biscuit, and halfe a pound of Porke to be 30 giuen to euery one of them who were to goe with vs, and fo we departed, to enter within the land. The fumme of all them who went, was three hundred men in all, among whom was the Commissary Frier lobn Scinarez, and another Frier, called Frier lobn de Palis, and three Clarkes, and the Officers. Forty of vs were on horsebacke, and so with that provision which wee had brought, wee went fifteene dayes without finding any other things to eate, except Dates, like those of Andaluzia. In all this time we found not any Indian, nor faw any house, nor place inhabited : and in the end we found a River, which wee passed with much danger and trouble, by fwimming, and vpon rafts, and staied a day to passe ouer it, because it ranne with much sury. Having passed to the other side of the River, two hundred Indians came against vs, and the Gouernour went before, and after he had spoken to them by signes, they made much signes againe 60 vnto vs. that we should in one our selves with them, taking fine or fixe, who brought vs vnto their houles which were about halfe a league off, and there wee found great quantity of Maiz, which flaod now ready to be gathered. After some fearch of the Countrey to the Sea, wee departed from that place, alwayes (as we went) inquiring for that Prouince, which (the Indians faid) was called Apalachen, and brought for guides, them that we had taken, and fo went forward

· Casique gni-

untill the feuenteenth of lune, and found no Indians that durft abide our comming. There, ay Ca. eer 1 Lord 2- signe came vnto vs, whom an Indian carried vpon his necke, and hee was couered with a Deeres skinne painted, and brought with him many people, who went before him playing vpon certaine Fintes made of canes, and so came wnto the Gouernour, and abode with him an houre, and we ganehim to vinderstand (by fignes) how that we went to Apalachen, and by those fignes which he made vs, it feemed he ment to fignifie that hee was an enemy to them of Apalachen. and would side vs against them. We gave him Crownes, Bels, and such other things, and he gave the Gonernour the skin which he wore voon him, and fo turned backe againe, and we followed presently after him. That evening we came vnto a River, which was very deepe and very broad. and ran very furiously, and not presuming to passe ouer it vpon rafts, we made a Canos, and staied one whole day to passe ouer it : so that if the Indians would have injured vs, they might eafily have disturbed our passage, and yet although they holped with best they could, wee had Strong fream, much trouble. One of our Horiemen, called lobu Velasquez, a native of Cuellar, because he would not flay, tooke the River with his Horse, and the current of the River being very strong . cast him from his Horfe, who catching hold on the raines of the bridle, drowned himielte, together with the Horse. And those Indians of that Lord, called Dulcancellin, found the Horse, and told ve where we should finde him in the Riuer below : and so they went to search for him, whose death King or Gazigue much discontented vs. because vntill that time there was not one man of our company wanting. The Horse gaue many their suppers that night. And so having passed that River, the day following we came vnto the people of that Lord, who fent vs fome of their Maiz. The next day we departed, the Indians being fled. The Gouernour left by the way an ambufcado of certaine Horiemen, which as those Indians passed by, issued out vpon them, and tooke three or foure. who before lerued vs for guides, and they brought vs through a very troublesome Countrey to trauaile, and maruelous to behold, where were huge Mountaines, and very high Trees, whereof fo many were fallen to the ground, that they intangled and stopped the way, in such fort that we could not palle without going farre about, to our great trouble; and of those trees that were fallen, the greater part were clett from one end to the other, through the thunderbolts that fall

Toubleforse

Countrey.

Trees clefe wich thunder-Apalasben.

there, great tempests being alwayes in that place : with this trouble wee marched untill the fix and twentieth day of lune, at which day we came within the fight of Apalashen before they of the Towne perceived vs. We rendered great thankes vnto God, feeing our felues fo neere vn- 20 to that place, and supposing that to be true which had been spoken, and hoping we should there end our great travailes which wee had passed, as well for the long and cuill journey, as for the great famine which we had fuftained. Because, although we fometimes found Maiz, vet for the most part we went fix or eight leagues without finding any. And there were many amongstvs, that through hunger and wearinesse had wounded their shoulders with continual wearing of their armes, besides the other calamities they daily incountered.

- The Governour commanded me to take with me nine horse, and fiftie foote, and enter the towne, which the Controler and I did, and found none but little children, and women, because at that time the men were not there, but going a little way from those places, the Indians came, and began to fight, and floot at vs. and flow the Controllers horse; but in the end they fled, and 40 left vs, There we found great quantity of Maiz which flood ready to be gathered, and had fufficient, of which was Jay, remaining. We found there many skinnes of wilde beafts taken by hunting, and some garments of thred little and nought worth, wherewith the women couer some parts of their person. They had many Mils to grinde Maiz. Among these people there were forty little houses, low built, and in close places, for feare of the great tempetts to which that Countrey continually is accustomed. The houses are made of straw of stubble, and compassed about with Mountaynes pefts in thofe standing thicke together, and great Trees, and many Seas of water, where so many and so great Trees are false, that they trouble every thing, and cause that no man is able to travell there without great incumberance.

The land from the place where we di barked vnto this people of Apalachen, for the most part is plaine, and the foyle confifteth of hard and folid fand, and throughout all the fame many great Trees, and famous Mountaines are found, where Nut trees are, and Labrani, and other, which they call Laguidambares: there are also Cedars, Sauine-trees, Holme-trees, Pines, Okes, and low Palme-trees like those of Cafile. Throughout all that Country there are many great and little Lakes, and fome are very trouble fome to paffe, at well for the great depth thereof, as also by reafon of the many trees, which are fallen there. The ground or bottome of them is fand : and thole Lakes which we found in the Prouince of Apalachen, are much greater then all the other which we had found untill then. There are many fields of their Maiz in this Province; and the houles are scattered through the Plaine, like those of Gerbe. The bealts which we saw there are Deere 60 of three forts, Conies, Hares, Beares, and Lions, and other, among which we faw one, that carrieth her young in a bagge, which thee hath in her belly, where thee carrieth them all the time that they are little, vntill they be able to goe, and feeke their meate themselves. And if by chance yong in abag, the young fand feeking food without the damme, and people come vpon them, fhee flyeth not before the have gathered them into her bagge. The Countrey is very cold there; and there are many good pastures for flockes.

CHAP. I.S. 1. Moleflations by Indians in Apalachen, Aute, Florida.

There are also many lotts of Fowle, Godings in great abundance; Geele, Duckes, Hetons, Fowles, Black-birds, and others of diners forts, and there we law many Falcoms, Ger-falcons, Sparrows hawkes, and many other force of Birds. Two dayes after we came to Apalachen, the Indians that were fled returned vnto vs in peace, demanding their children, and we gaue them all, except one Cazique of theirs; whom the Gonernour retayned, which was the occasion to cause them to depart offended; who the day sollowing returned as enemies, and affailed vs with fuch tury and fuddenneffe, that they came to To let fire to the house where we were : but io soone as wee came forth, they fled and retired them. felues vnto the Lakes, which were very neere thereunto. Whereupon by realon of them, and the Come which was very thicke there, we could not doe them any hurt, face that we killed one man only. The day following, other Indians of another people, which was on the other fide, came to vs and affailed vs after the fame manner , that the other had done before , and fled likewise : and one of them also was slaine. We abode there fine and twentie dayes, in the which we caused three to enter within the Land, and found it very poorely peopled, and hard trauelling, in respect of the troublesome passages, Mountaynes and Lakes which are there. Wee demanded of the Cazique whom wee had retayned, and of the other Indians whom wee had brought with vs, who were borderers and enemies to them of Apalachen, the qualitie and condition of that 20 Countrey, of the people, the victuall, and other things about it, who all plainly answered vs, that the greatest people of all that Countrey, were they of Apalachen, and that further beyond it was without people, and very poore, that all that Countrey, and theirs were ill peopled, and that the Inhabitants were much dispersed, and that going further forth, exceeding great Lakes are found, Mountaynesstanding thicke together, and mighty Defarts, and without Inhabitants. Wee asked them of the Countrey which lay toward the South, what people and fuffenance it had, who answered vs, that going from thence towards the Sea nine dayes journey, were a people called Aste, and that the Indians of that place had much Maiz, and that there were small Pulle, which are like to our Ciches and Gourds, and that being so neere to the Scaffsh was there to be found : and that they were their friends.

30 Seeing the pourty of the Countrey, we agreed to depart from them, and goe to ferke out the Sea, and that people of Ame, whereof they told vs. And so at the end of five and twenty dayes after we came thither, we departed. The first day we passed those Lakes and troubletome passages, without feeing any Indian. But the second day they came vpon vs , at a Lake which was very ill to paffe: lo that the water tooke vs vp to the breaft, and many Trees were falhe there, fo that we being in the middelt thereof, the Indians affayled vs, they being hid behind the trees that we might not fee them : and others were voon the trees that were falne, and beganne to shoote at vs in such lore, that they wounded many men and horses, and tooke the guide from vs which we had brought, they suddenly cast themselves into the Lakes and wounded fifteene men and horses. The Gouernour seeing this, commanded them on horsebacke to dismount, and as Indian Solution 40 faile them on foot, and fo they did, and the Auditor difmounted with them, and affayling them put them all to flight, so that they entred into a Lake, and thus wee gained the passage of them. In that skirmish tome of our men (whose good armes they carried prevayled not) remayned Strong arwounded: and some of them swore, that they saw two Okes, each of them as great as a mans legge, that through from fide to fide with the Arrowes of the Indians. Which therefore is not a thing that wee should wonder at, seeing the force wherewith they deliuer them, and I my sette haue seene an Arrow at the foot of an Elme, which entred an handfull in.

As many Indians as we faw in Florida, vntill wee came to that place, are all Archers, tall of flature, and goe naked, and feeme to them that fee them afarre off mighty Giants. They are maruelloufly well fet, pleafant, and of much firength and agilitie. The Bowes they vie are as thicke Men of tall &m asa mans arme, of eleuen or twelue spannes long, and they shoot two hundred paces off, and so rure, good 50 straight and levell, that they never shoote and misse. Having got over that passage, about one archers.

league from thence, we came to another Lake of the fame fort, faue that it was halfe a league long, which was much worfer then the former. This we quietly passed, and without disturbance of the Indians: because they having spent all the munition of their Arrowes, in that first affault, it remayned not in their power to be able to affault vs afresh. The next day following going ouer another fuch pollage, I who went in the Vantgard descryed the Sauage people, and gaue intelligence to the Gouernour who came in the Rereward, and so going well ordered and prouided, they could not offend vs, and as loone as we were come forth into the Plaine, they came alwayes following vs. Whereupon turning about and dividing our felues into two parts, we flue two of 60 them. Auellaneda turning about ranne to helpe his boy, the Indians smote him with an Arrow on the tide of the Cuiras, and the flroke was such, that the whole Arrow almost went through behind the head, so that he suddenly dyed, and we carried him dead vnto Ame. We came to Ante, the ninth day after our departure from Apalachen: and found all the people of that place fled, having burned their houles. There we found much Maiz and Gourdes, and certaine Pulle which fiiiii 3

The River · Madelma.

were then readie to be gathered. So we reported our felues two dayes there, and after the Gonernour prayed me, that I would goe to discouer the Sea, seeing the Indians said, it was so necreand we alto had discourred it as we went, by a very great River, which wee found by the way : and called it the River of Madalena. I was lent to discover the Sea. The day following we departed from Aute, and marched all that day vntill wee came where I had beene before : the way was very troublefome, because the Hories were neither able to carrie them that were feeble, nor knew we what remedy to take, because they were enery day worse then other. Having proqued many remedies, we all agreed in one sudgement, to put a very hard thing in execution, and that was to make Boats for ya to goe from thence. It feemed a thing impossible to all, because some of vs knew not how to make them, and wee had neither Iron Tooles, nor Forge, nor Ockam, to Pirch, nor Ropes, nor finally, any thing of to many, which were needfall in fach an exercife : and about all we had not proution of victuall for to long time while they should be made. The day following it pleased God, that one of our men came, who said, that hee would make certains Pipes of wood, and that with the skinnes of wild bealts, certaine Bellowes should bee made to blow, And finding vs at a time, wherein what thing foener he would, which had the leaft colour. or shadow of remedie, seemed sufficient; we said, that he should make them, and so we agreed. that of the Stirrops, Spurres and Croffd-howes, and other things of Iron which were among ve. Navles, Sawes and Hatchets should be made; and other Tooles of Iron, seeing they were so need. full. And we tooke for remedie, to have fome food while this should be put in execution, that four entries should be made into Ante, with all the Horse, and others that could goe thither and that every third day one Horfe fleuld be killed, to be divided among them that wrought in the making of the Boates, and them that were ficke. The entries were made with as many men and horses, as was possible, who brought thence about source hundred Staras of Maiz, although not without controuerfie and contention, with those Indians. We caused many Palmitialio to be gathered, that with the woolley part and barke thereof, twifting and drawing them in length of September next fine Boates were finished, of two and twenty Cubits spiece, and we stopped

And we vied to great deligence therein, that beginning the fourth of August, the twentieth

Ockam of

Hard thifr.

the chinkes, and calking with Ockam of the Palmiti; and pitched them with a certaine Gumme. which a Greeian called Don Theodoro, brought from certaine Pine-trees, and with the same barke of the Paimiti, and of the traines and haire of Hories we made cordage and tackling . and made favles of our fhires, and of the Sauine trees which were there, we made fuch Oares as we thought necessary; and such was that Countrey, whereinto our sinnes conducted vs , that no stones were found there, to ballast the Boates, nor faw wee any throughout all that Countrey. Wee likewise flayed the whole legges of horses, and sewed the skinne together, to make bottles to carrie water.

we might be able to vie them in Head of Ockam for the Boats.

No ftones.

In this means time, tome of our men went to gather Tamarinds in the Strond of the Sea, where the Indian at two feuerall times wherein they incountred them, flue ten Christians, fo necreto our Tents, that we faw them, and could not helpe them, and found them that through from fide Strong fhot. to fide, with Arrowes, fo that although our men had excellent Armour, they were not able to refift their strokes, those Indians shooting with fuch dexteritie and force, as aforesaid. And our Pilots faid and fwore, that from the flat shoare which we called by the name of the Crosse, vnto this place, we frad gone about two hundred and fourescore leagues, little more or lesse, and in all that Milerable fire- Countrey we faw no Mountaines, nor had any notice by any meanes, that there were any, and before that we imbarked, besides those which the Indians had slaine, there were more then forty other men dead through ficknesse and famine.

colic of the Speniards in this Voyage.

The two and twentieth day of September, they ceased to eate horses, so that only one remayned, and on that day wee imbarked in this order. In the Governours Boate went nine and fortie men, and in the other which hee gaue to the Auditour and Commissary, went as many more. The third, he gaue to Captaine Alonzo del Castiglio, and Andrea Durante, with eight and forty men, and another he gaue vnto two other Captaines, the one called Telles, and the other Pigualofa, with feuen and forty men, and the fift he gaue to the Controller and mee, with nine and forcy men. And after the victuals and furniture, and other things were shipped, they arose no more then a fourth part about the water, and beside this we were so streighted, that we could not guide nor turne in the Boats. Necessitie was so powerfull, that it made vs adventure to goe in this manner, and commit our felues vnto fo dangerous a Sea, without having any one amone vs. who knew the art of Nauigation.

Spiaggia de

That flat shoare from whence we departed, is called the shoare of the Horses, and we went seuen dayes through those gulies with the water vp to the girdle, without feeing any figne of the Coait; and at the end of those seuen dayes, we arrived at an Iland which standeth neere vnto the Land. My Boat went before, and we saw fine Canowes of Indians comming, who forlooke 60 them all, and left them in our hands feeing vs come towards them. Our other Boates went before, and lighted upon certane houses in the same Iland, where they found many of their Egges and Thorn-back were dry, and greatly releeved vs in the necessitie wherein we were.

After this, we went further, and two leagues from thence we palled a Strait which that Iland maketh with the Land, and called it the Strait of Saint Michael, because we passed it woon that The Strait of maketh whether care, out of that Strait, we arrived at the Coast, wherewith the fine Ca- Saint Michael nowes which I had taken from the Indians, we removed fome things out of our Boars, making them fast and joyning them to ours, so that they arose two handfuls about water, and therewithall we turned to goe along the Coat by the way of the River of Palmes, thirst and famine al- R. of Palmes. wayes increasing : because the victuals were very scant, and almost at an end, and we wanted water, because the bottles which we had made of the skinnes of horses, became suddenly purified and mustic, and were good for nothing, and many times wee entred into certaine gulfes and flat

shoares, which went farre within the Land, and found them all shallow and dangerous. And so 10 we went thirty dayes, and fometimes found some Indian fishers , a poore and milerable people : and at the end of thele therry dayes, when our necessitie for want of water, was extreame, 20ing to the Coast, one night we perceived a Canow comming, and feeing her wee expected that the would have arrived; but although we called voto her the would not come nor behold vs, and becaufe it was night we followed her not, but held on our courle. When day began to appeared we faw a fmall lland, and went thither to fee if wee would find any water there, but wee labous red in vaine because there was none. While wee staved there, a mightie tempest atose voon vs. whereupon we abode there fixe dayes, not daring to put out to Sea againe, and hauing paffed fue dayes without drinking, our thirst was so great, that we were forced to drinke the Sca-water, and some dranke so largely that fine of our men dyed suddenly. We went out the same way,

20 which we had seene the Canow goe, the night before we departed thence. This day we saw our Miserable felues many times drowned, and io cast away, that there was none of vs, who did not assure him. felfe of death. But it pleased our Lord God, who in the greatest necessities wieth to shew his fanour, that about Sunne fer we weathered a point which the Land maketh, where wee found it very calme and quiet. Heere many Canowes came towards vs, and the Indians that were in them, spake vnto vs, and without wondring at vs returned. They were a people of a great bodie and well fet, and carried neither Bowes nor Arrowes, Some of vs followed them vnto their houses, which stood neere vnto the water side, and leaped aland, and before the entrance of the houses, we found many pots of water, and great quantitle of fish, and the Lord of that Countrey offered it all wno the Gouernour, and taking him by the hand, brought him to his houfe (their houses are of Mats very well made.) And after we entred into the house of their Cazaque or

Lord, he gaue vs much fish, and we gaue them bread of Corne which we brought, and they ear it in our presence, and demanded more, which we gate them, and the Gouernour gave the Casiane many small trifles, and abiding with him in his house, about halfe an houre within night, the Indians affaulted vs, and the rest of our men, who road very ill, beeing cast vpon that Coast, they affaulted alfo the honie of the Casique where the Governour was, and with a ftone imote him on the face : and tooke the Cazique. But he having his men to neere escaped away, and left a Mantle of his of the skinnes of the Martinet Sables, which in my judgement are the best of all Rich Furres & the World, and have a fcent whereunto the fcent of-Ambergrife, and Muske is not compara- fweete Mariole ble : and the scene thereof was smelt very farre off. We saw also other but none like vnto that. Zibelline.

Now feeing the Gouernour wounded, we fet him aboord, and caused him to bring with him the greater part of the men vnto the Boats : and fifty of our men only remayned on land, to fight with the ladians, who that night affaulted vs three times, and with fo great violence, that every time they made ve retyrea ftones caft, fo that there was not one of our men, that was not

After this we returned to imbarke our felues, and fayled three dayes: and having taken a little water, as much as the few vefiels we had, were able to carrie, wee returned to fall into the same necessitie wherein we were first. And going on our Voyage, we entred into a Strait, where abiding we law a Canow of the Indians comming, and as we called vnto them, they came, and the Governour to whose Boat they were necrest, demanded water of them, who offered it him 50 if he would give them veffels wherein to carrie it: fo a Greeke Christian, called Theodoro, of whom mention is made before, faid that he would goe with them. And although the Gouernour, and many other laboured to diffwade him, yet he would needs goe thither, and carried a Negro with him, and the Indians left for hoftages two of their men.

Those Indians returned in the Euening, and brought vs our vessels without water, but brought not our two Christians againe: and those two men of theirs, who remayned for pledges, as soone as they spake voto them, would have call themselves into the water, but our men who had them in the Boat held them, and so the other Indians fled and left vs much confounded and forrowful, for the two (bristians which we had loft.

The morning following, many other Canoas of the Indians came vnto vs, demanding their two 60 companions which they left vs for hostages. The Governour answered, that he would give them vnto them, fo that they would restore vs our two Christians. Five, or fixe Lords came with those people, and it feemed to vs, that they were of a very good disposition, and of greater authority, and retinue, then all the reft wee had found hitherto, although they were not of fo tall a fta- Desciption of ture as the other before mentioned. They wore their haire loofe, and very long, and were co- their indiana.

1300

Current.

uered with mantles of Martinets, of the same fort whereof we spake before, and some of them were made of a very itrange fashion, having certaine laces of the worke of Lions skinings, which feemed very faire. They prayed vs, that we would goe with them, and they would give vs one two Christians, and water, and many other things: and many Canoas came continually voon vs, endeauouring to take the mouth of that passage, and so therefore, because the place was very dangerous, we went out to Sea, where we stayed with them vntill noone, But, not being wile ling to reftore our Christians, and therefore we also would not restore their two hostages, they began to cast stones at vs with slings: making shew also that they would shoot at vs, although we law not about three or foure Bowes among them. And while wee continued thus: a fresh gale of winde beganne to blowe, and they went their way. So, we fayled all that day vntill the Io euening, at what time my Boat that went before, discouered a point which the Land made, and at the other end I faw a River : then I anchored at a fmall Iland, which maketh that point to flay for the other Boats. The Gouernour would not come neere it, but put into a flat shoare vesy neere thereunto, where many small Ilands were, and there wee all met together, and tooke fresh water within the Sea, because the River ranne into the Sea continually, and with great violence. And that wee might bee able to bake a little Maiz which wee brought, because for two dayes before, we had eaten it raw, we went aland on that Iland, but finding no wood there, we agreed to goe vnto the River, which was behind the Point one league from thence. And as wee went, the current of the River was fo great, that by no meanes it suffered vs to arrive, but droue vs backe from the Land.

ð. I I.

Mifery pur fues them at Sea, and betrayes them to the Indians: thetr miserable lines and death.

Reke fayled foure dayes, every one eating halfe a handfull of raw Maiz a day by ratement. At the end of these foure dayes, a tempest tooke vs, which made vs recouer the Boat of Captaine Telles, and through the great mercy which God shewed to some of vs, 30 we were not wholly drowned. And being Winter, and exceeding cold, and so many

dayes wherein we had fustained hunger, with many blowes which wee received from the Sea. the day following the men began very much to faint, in such manner, that when the Sunne went downe, all those that were in my Boar, were fallen one vpon the other, so neere vnto death, that few of them had any fense, and among all them there were not five that could fland on their feete, and when night came there remained no more but the Master and my telfe that could mannage the Boat, and two houres within night the Master said vnto mee, that I should take charge of my Boat, because he was in such case, that he held it for certainty, that hee should die that night. And fo I tooke the rudder, and midnight being past, I went to see if the Master were dead, who faid vnto me, that suddenly he was better, and that hee would guide the Boat vntill 40 day. Then furely I found my felfe in such state, that much more willingly I would have receiued death, then fee fo many men before me in that manner wherein they were : and after the Master tooke charge of the Boat I rested my selfe a little, but very vnquietly, because at that time nothing was further from me then sleepe. And about the morning me thought that I heard the noise and roaring of the Sea, because being a very lowe Coast it raged much, whereupon when I heard this, I called to the Master, who answered me, that he supposed we were now neere vnto the Land; and founding, we found our felues in feuen fathome, and he thought it fit, that we should abide at Sea vntill the day appeared. And so I tooke an Oare and rowed to the Lands fide, which we found one league diffant, and put the stearne to the Sea. And being neere to the Land, a wane tooke vs, which can the Boat backe againe into the Sea as farre as a man might 50 well fling a stone, and with the great blowe which it gaue, almost all the men who remained there as dead, received their fenfes againe, and feeing vs fo neere vnto the Land, beganne to arife and goe on their hands and feete. And having landed, wee made fire in certaine trenches, and boyled some of the Maiz which wee had brought, and found raine-water: and with the heate of the fire, the men beganne to recouer and take ftrength; and the day that we arrived there, was

After the men had eaten, I commanded Lopez de Ouiedo, who was the best able, and itrongest of all the reft, that he should goe close to any tree of them that were there at hand, and climing vp into one of them, he should discouer the Land where we were, and see if hee could have any knowledge thereof. He did fo, and faw that we were in an lland, and found certaine poore Cot. 60 tages of the Indians, which flood felitary, because those Indians were gone vnto the field. And so he tooke a pot, a young whelpe, and a little Thorn-backe, and returned vnto vs. About halfe an houre after, an hundred Indian Archers came fuddenly vpon vs. who though they were great, yet feare made them feeme to be Giants: and they flood round about vs , where the first chree were. It had beene a vaine thing amongst visto thinke that there were any to defend vs, because there were learce fixe that were able to nie from the ground. The Controller and I came towards them, and called voto them, and they came neere voto vs, and wee endeauoured the best we could, to secure them; to we gaue them Crownes and Bells, and every one of them gave mee an Arrow, which is a token of friendship, and they told vs by signes that they would returne water vs in the morning, and bring vs somewhat to eate, because at that time they had nothing.

The next morning at the breake of day, which was the houre whereof the Indians had (poken, they came vinto vs, and brought vs much fish, and certaine Roots which they eate, and are like vato Nuts, fome bigger, and some lesse, which they digge valer the water with much trou-10 ble. At the evening they returned againe, and brought vs more fish, and some of the same Roots, and brought also their wives and little children with them that they might see vs : and so they returned rich in Crownesand Bells which we gaue them, and the next day they returned to vi-fite vs with the same things, which they had done before. Then feeing we were now prouded of fish, of those roots, and water, and other things which we could get, we agreed to embarke our selues, and proceed on our Voyage: so wee digged the Boat out of the fand, where it was fast moored, and were constrained to strippe our selues naked, and indured great labour to launch her into the water. Being embarked, about two Crof-bow thors within the Sea, there came fuch a wave of water that it washed vs all, and being naked, and the cold extreme, wee let goe the Oares, and another blowe which the Sea gaue vs , ouer-

20 turned the Boat, whereupon the Controller and two other went out to escape by swimming: but the cleane contrary befell them, because the Boat strucke them under water, and drowned Three drowthem. That Coast being very faire, the Sea cast vs all aland on the same Coast, all tumbled in nedthe water, and halfe drowned, so that we lost not a man, but those three, whem the Boat Snote which water. Wee which remained aliue were all naked, having loft all that which wee had. which although it were but a little, yet was it much for vs at that time : and being then Nouember, and the cold very extreme, and being in such case, that a man might easily tell all our bones, we feemed to be the proper and true figure of Death. As for my felfe, I am well able to fay, that from the moneth of May pait, I had not eaten any other thing then parched Maiz, and fometimes I was in fo great necessitie, that I have eaten it raw, because although the Horses were 30 killed while they made the Boats, yet I could neuer eate them, and I did not eate fish ten times. I forake this, that every one might confider, how we could continue in that case, and about all, the North wind blew that day, to that we were neerer with death, then life. It pleafed God, that feeking the brands of the fire which we had made before wee embarked, wee found light there, and so making great fires, we stood crauing mercy from our Lord God, and pardon of our sinnes. with many ceares, enery one of vs griening not onely for himfelfe, but for all the reft, that hee faw in the fame state. At the fetting of the Sunne, the Indian supposing that we had not beene gone, came to finde vs, and brought vs somewhat to eate, but when they saw vs thus, in so differing an habite from the first, and in such strange manner, they were so afraid, that they turned backe againe: but I went towards them, and called them, who beheld mee with much feare. 40 Hereupon I gaue them to understand by fignes, that the Boat was cast away, and three men drowned, and there they themselves saw two dead, and the rest of vs that were now remayning were going the high way to death. The Indians feeing the misfortune which had befallen vs, and the lamentable case wherein we Humanitie of

were, with fo great calamitie and miferie, came among ft vs, and through great griefe and com- Sausges. paffion which they had of vs, beganne mightily to weepe and lament, and that from the heart, infomuch that they might be heard farre from thence, and they thus lamented more then halfe an houre. And furely, seeing these men so depriued of reason, and so cruell after the manner of brute beafts, so bewayled our miseries, it canted that in me, and all the rest of our men, the compattion and confideration of our miferies should be much more increased. The mournfull lamen-Tation being Iomewhat appealed, I demanded of the Christians, whether they thought it fit, that I should intreate those Indians to bring vs to their houses, whereunto some of them that were of Nona Spagna, answered me, that I should not speake a word thereof, because if they brought vs home to their houses, they would have facrificed vs to their Idols. Now feeing there was no other remedie, and that, what other way focuer, death was more certaine and more neere, I cared not for that which they faid, but prayed the Indians, that they would bring vs to their houfes, and they thewed vs, that it pleafed them very well, and that wee should tarrie a little, and they would doe as much as wee defired, prefently thirty of them laded themselves with wood, and went vnto their houses, which were farre from thence: and wee remained with the reft, vntill it was almost night, and then they tooke vs, and conducting vs, we went with much an-60 guish and heatinesse vinto their hou es. And because they feared lest through the extreme coldneffe of the way any of vs should die, or swound and faint, they had prounded, that by the way foure or five great fires should bee made, fome small space distant each from other, and at every one of them they warmed vs, and when they faw that we had taken a little strength and heate, they brought vs to another, with fo great care, that they did not fo much as fuffer vs to fet our feete on the ground, and after this manner we were brought vnto their houses: where we found that they had prouided an house for vs, & many fires therein, and about one house after we were come thither, they beganne to dance and reioyce, which continued all the night. Although mongst vs there was neither ioy nor sleepe, expecting when they would have facrificed vs. In the morning they returned to give vs fith, and rootes, and vfed vs fo well, that wee fomewhat affured our (elues, and loft some part of the feare of facrificing.

In those dayes wherein wee abode there, I faw a small Net, with one of those Indians, and knew that it was not any of them which wee gaue them, and demanding whence they had it. they answered me by fignes, that other men, such as we were, gaue it them, who abode behind that place. I feeing this, fent two Christians, and two Indians, to shew them those men, and be- 10 ing gone, they met with them very neere, who came to feeke vs out, because the Indians of those places had told them of vs. These men were Captaine Andrea Dorante, and Alonso del Cafiolio. with all the men of their Boat. And being come vnto vs, they were afraid to behold vs in that manner wherein we were, and were very forrowfull that they had not any thing to give vs. bea cause they had no other garments, then those which they wore. And they abode there with vs. and told vs, how on the fift day of that fame moneth, their Boat had croffed ouer, one league and an halfe from thence, and that they had escaped without losing any thing.

Wee all agreed together, to trimme that Boat of theirs, and that all fuch as had ftrengh, and abilitie to doe it, should goe therein, and that the rest should remaine there vntill they recovered: and that when they were able, they should goe along the Coast, and waite there till God should an conduct them with the rest of vs vnto a Land of the Christians. And as we determined, so wee did, and before we lanched the Boat into the water, Tamera an Horseman of our companie died: and the Boat which we thought should carrievs, she also made her end, and was not able to vohold her felfe, but was fuddenly drowned. Whereupon being in that manner aforefaid, and naked, and the weather so vnseasonable to trauell, and passe ouer Rivers and Gulfes by swimming, and having no victuall, or any fustenance, nor meanes to carrie them, we determined to doe that which necessitie and force compelled vs vnto, that is to say, to winter there. And wee likewise agreed, that foure of our luftieft and flrongest men should goe to Pannee, supposing it neere voto that place. And that if it should please our Lord God, that they arrived there, they should give intelligence that we were there, and tell them of our necessitie and miseries. They who went 20 were very great swimmers, the one was called Alnaro Ferrante, a Portugall, who was a Carpenter, and a Mariner, the second was called Mendos, and the third Figeros a native of Toledo, and the fourth wasborne in Zaffra, and they carried an Indian with them of the Iland of Ania.

These foure Christians being departed, within few dayes after there came such unseasonable

weather of cold and tempelts, that the Indian could not finde the roots, and out of the channels where they were wont to fifth, they digged no fruit at all, and things falling out fo vnhap-pily, many people began to die: and five Christians who were in Xamo, ypon that Coast, came to fuch excremitie, that they eate one another, vntill there remained but one onely, because there was none to eate him. Their names are thefe Siera, Diego Lopez, Corral , Palatio, Gonzalo Ruis. eare one anne The Indians were fo altered through this accident, and tooke fo great an offence, that without 40 ther, for hundoubt, if they had knowne it in the beginning, they would have killed them all, so that all wee had beene in very great danger. Finally, in a small time, of fourescore men (which wee were in all) there remained onely fifteene. After this mortalitie, a certaine infirmitie of the stomacke happened to the Indians, through the which halfe of them died, and they beleeved that wee neffe and morwere the men that killed them: and holding it for an affured truth, they contended among themselves to kill all those few of vethat were remaining: and now comming to put it in execution, an Indian which I had, faid vnto them, that they should not believe that we were those that killed them; for if we had such power, we would have procured, that so many men of our owne should not have died, which they had seene dead, without any abilitie of oursto remedie and helpe them, and that now wee were very few remaining, whereof none had done 50 them any prejudice or harme : wherefore it were better that they fuffer vs to line. Thus it pleafed our Lord God, that the rest followed his counsell and judgement, and so ceased from that pur-Hand Malhado.

pose. Wee called this Iland the Iland of Malhade. The people which wee found there, are of a great stature, and well set, and have no other weapons but Bowes and Arrowes, with the which they are exceeding readie and quicke. The Pierced paps, men have one of their paps pierced from the one fide to the other, and there are some who have them both pierced, and in the hole which they make, they carrie a Cane acrosse, of the length of two spannes and an halfe and two fingers thicke. They likewise have the nether lippe bored, and within the same they carrie a piece of a thin Cane, about halfe a finger thicke. The women indure much drudgerie and labour. The habitation which they make in that Iland, is from Octo- 60 ber vntill the end of Februarie, and their food is the rootes aforefaid, digged under water in Nouember and December. They have Weares, but have no fish but at this time, and before that they eate roots. At the end of Februarie they goe into other Parts to feeke food : because the roots beginne then to growe, and are not very good. This Nation , about all other parts of the world, lose their children, and viethem beit. And when it happeneth that any one of their worth, some dath of the father, mother, and kindred, with all the people lament him, and the mour- Mouraing for children dieth, the father, mother, and kindred, with all the people lament him, and the mourning and lamentation, continueth one whole yeere, so that every day before the Sunne attieth, children, the parents beginne first to lament, and after them all the people, and they doe the same at noon, and in the morning : and the yeere being ended, they accomplish their Funerals, and honoutable rites of Buriall, which they performe vnto the dead; and then they wash themselves. and thit all the apparell which they wore. They bewayle all their dead in this manner, except the aged, whom they alterne not, for, fay they, that they have now paffed their time; and are Age dieffecno more good tor any thing, but occupie the earth, and take away the maintenance from Infants medwhom they burne, and while the fire flameth they stand all dancing with great joy, and make burned.

to and little children. They vie to bury the dead, vileffe they be fuch as are Phylicians among them. Phylicians powder of the bones : and when the yeere is past, wherein they performe the honourable rites, vnto their dead, they all tumble, and wallow vpon the earth, and give that powder of the bones to the kinsfolke, to drinke in water. Euery one haue their proper and peculiar wives. The Phyficians are they that have most libertie, who may keepe two or three wives, and among them there is great friendship and conformitie. When any marrieth his daughter, hee that taketh her, bringeth vnto the wite, whatfocuer he taketh by hunting or fishing, even vnto the day wherein he is esponfed unto her, who carrieth it unto the houle of the father, without daring to take or eate any thing thereof: and afterward they bring food to the house of the father-in-law for 30 him to cate, and in all this time, neither father-in-law nor mother-in-law enter into their house, nor are they to enter into their house, nor the houses of their kindred. And if by chance they meete each other in the way, they goe a Crol-bow shot off one from the other, and so long time as they thus goe farre off, they hang downe their heads, and cast their eies on the ground; for they hold it a wicked and an euill thing to be feene, and to be spoken vnto. The women haue libertie to conuerse with the fathers-in-law, and other kinsfolke ; and they of that Hand have Filinicand this custome more then fiftie leagues within the Land. They have another custome, and that is this, that when any of their brethren or children die, for three moneths they prouide nothing to eate for them of the house where they died, but let them die through hunger, if the kinsfolke and neighbours prouide them not fomewhat to eate. 20 Whereupon, at the time that we were there, many people dying, there was very great famine. In the most part of the houses, because they strictly observe their eustomes and ceremonies : and they who prouded food for them, it being a very hard time, could finde but a little. And voon this occation, those Indians that had mee went out of the Hand, and in their Canoas passed ouer vnto the firme Land, vnto certaine flat shoares, where they had many Oysters : and for three moneths in the years they eate no other thing, and drinke very bad water. They have great fearcicle of wood, and great multitudes of Flies: their houses are made of mats spread wpon the fh lls or Oyiters, and ouer them they sleepe voon the hides of beafts, which yet they have not but by a chance. And so we continued vntill the middle of Aprill, that wee went to the Sea-

coalt, where wee cate Mulberries all that moneth, wherein they end their sports, and felti-40 uall iollitie.

In that Iland whereof I have spoken, they would make vs Physicians, without examining They are made vs, or demanding the titles of our profession, and because they heale the infirmitie with blowing Physicians. wpon the difeated , and cure them with that , and with their hands : they would that wee also should doe the like, and serue them in any thing whatsoeuer. But wee laughed thereat, saying it was a left and mockery, and that weeknew not how to heale, whereupon they tooke away our food, vntill we did that which they faid. And feeing our vnbeliefe, an Indian faid vnto me, that I knew not what I faid, because stones and herbes that growe in the fields have vertue, and that he with an hot itone, laying it voon the stomacke, cured the paine; and that wee who are men, mult of a certaintie have greater vertue, then all other things of the world. In the end, feeing Learned argus 50 our selues in so great necessitie we were constrained to doe it, yet not hoping to helpe any at all : ment, the manner and meanes which they observe in curing is this, that seeing themselves sicke they fend for the Physitian, to whom (after they are cured) they give all that they have; and besides procure other things from their kindred to give them. The cure which the Phylitians doe vnto them, is to cut certaine gashes where the disease or griefe is, and sucke it round about. They seare Manner of it also with fire, which among them is held a verie profitable thing, and I have proved it and it curing. fucceeded weil. After this, blowing in the place where the griefe is, they suppose the disease thereby to be removed. The meanes whereby we cured them, was to bleffe them and blow vpon them, and fay a Pater noster and an Ano May, and pray the best we could voto our Lord God, that he would give them their health, and put it into their hearts to vie vs well. It pleased his

60 mercy that all they for whom he praied, as soone as wee had bleffed and hallowed them, taid vnto the rest that they were found and well : and for this they vied vs verie curteously and left eating themielues to give it vnto vs , and gave vs skins and other trifling things. The famine was to exceeding great in that place, that many times I continued three dayes withou. eating any thing at all , and to did they alto , infomuch as I thought it impefible to bee gallantry. The Indians

Indian fick.

poore life.

able to line : although afterward. I found my felfe in fatre greater famine and necessitie, as I shall bereafter fpeake.

The Indiane who had Alonfo del Caftiolio, and Andrea Dorante and the reft that remayned line : being of another Language, and other parentage, passed ouer to another part of the firme Land, to eate Oviters where they abode vntill the first day of Aprill, and presently after they returned voto an Iland neere voto it about two leagues, for that it yeelded more water, and the Hand is halfea league ouer and five in length. All the people of that Countrey goe naked, and the women only have some parts of their bodie couered with a certaine kind of Cotton which they gather from certains trees, and the Damfels couer themselues with the skinnes of wild beaffe. The people differ much one from another in their Garments. There is not any Lord or Catione to among them, and all they who are of one Family and Hocke goe together. Two forts of Language ges dwell there, one of them that are called Capaques , and the other Han : they have a custome. that if at any time they fee fuch as they know, they fland halfe an houre lamenting, before they freake ; and after that, he that is vifited arifeth first and giveth voto the other whatforver hee possesseth, and he receiveth it : and a little after he goeth away with that Garment, and sometimes after they have received it, they depart without speaking a word.

Lamentable falurations.

> After Dorante and Castiglio returned to the Hand, they gathered together all the Christians. who were fomewhat difperfed, and found them fourteene in all I (as I faid) abode on the other fide in the mayne Land, whither my Indians had brought me, and where a great fich nelle tooke me. Now when the Christians knew that, they gave the Mantle of Martinets (which weehad 20 taken from the Cazique as aforefaid) vnto an Indian that he might bring them where I was, to fee me; and fo twelve of them came, because the other two were so weake, that they feared to bring them with them. And when they were come to the firme Land, they found another of our men, called France sco del Leon, All these thirteene went along the Coast, and as soone as the Indians who kept me were gone, they aduifed mee, and told mee that I eronimo a Alaniz, and Lope & Oniedo, were yet remayning in that Iland. My infirmitie hindered mee that I could not tollow them, and to I faw them not otherwise, and I was of necessitie to flaw with those same Indians of the Hand more then a yeere. But by reafon of the great travell and paines whereunto they put me, as also their euill ysage of me, I determined to flye from thence, and passe ouer vnto them, who abide in the Mountaines and firme Land, whom they call the Indians of Corn. 30 60, because I could not indure the life, which I led with the other. For among many other painfull labours, I was compelled to digge Roots under the water, and among the Canes where they grew under the ground. And herewith I had my fingers to spoyled, that a straw that should have touched me, would baue drawne bloud; and the Cares being full of folinters tare mee in divers parts, among which I was to goe with the Garment aforefaid, which I wore. Whereupon I endequared to goe from thence vnto those other, and with them I continued somewhat better. And because I made my selfe a Merchant, I was carefull to performe that office with the best knowledge I had. And for this cause they gave mee food, and vied mee well, and prayed mee to goe from place to place for fuch things as they needed, because in respect of the Warres which they continually make among them felues, there is neither trauelling, nor much trading among 40 them : fo that now with my trafficke and Merchandile, I went throughout the whole Countrie as farre as I would, and travelled along the Coaft, fortie or office leagues. The principall trafficke I had, were pieces of shels of the Sea, and their hides, and shels wherewith they knit a certaine fruit like vnto Beech maft, with the which they prouide for their dancings and festivall sports: and this is the greatest thing of price among them, and crownes of the Sea, and such other like things. And this is that which I carried within Land, I afterward carried hides in exc. ange, and red Ocre with the which they anoint and die their faces, and their haire: I also carried flint flores to make Arrow heads and Glue, and stiffe Canes to make Arrowes : and certaine flockes which they make of Decres haire to died, that it remayneth coloured. And this office greatly analed me, because I had libertie to goe whither I would, and was not bound to doe any thing, for I was 10 not a flaue, and whitherfoeuer I went they vied mee well, and gaue mee fomewhat to eate in respect of my Marchandiza, but that which most imported mee, was, that going thus I scarched, and faw how I might goe further; and among them I was very well knowne. And fuch as knew mee not delired my company, and procured meanes to know mee for the fame which I had among them. I continued about fix yeeres with them in that Countrie alone, and naked as they all goe.

Queuenes and

I got Lope de Onieda to travell with me to feeke out the Christians : but hearing by the Indians that only three were left of our company, he left me : and I remained alone with those Indians, who were called Quenenes, and they with whom Lope went, were called Dragnanes. Two daies after Lope de Ouiedo was gone, the Indians who kept Alonfo del Caffiglio, and Andrea Dorante 60 came vnto the place, as those other Indians had foretold vs to cate of certaine Nuts, wherewith they maintaine themselves, grinding certaine graines with them two monethes in the yeere, without eating any other thing; although they have them not every yeere, because some yeeres they grow, and some not. They are of the bignesse of those of Galiera, and the trees are very great, and are there in great number. Being now neere vnto the place where they lodged, Andrea Dorante came forth to fee who it was, because the Indians had now told him that a (briftian was come. And as foone as he faw me, he remained much aftonished, because they supposed I had beene long tince dead, for lo the Indiani told them. Wee gave God heartie thankes to fee one another, and that day was one of them, wherein wee had the greatest joy and pleasure

And after comming where Castiglio was, they asked mee whether I would goe, I answered, that my purpole was to palle into the Land of the Christians, and that I went feeking and fearching how I might doe it. Andrea Dorante answered, that long fince hee intreated Castiglio and to Effeusmico, that we might go further, but they durft not venter to do it, because they could not wimme, and greatly feared the Rivers and Gulfes which they were to passe over, there being many in those Countries. Wherefore feeing it had pleased our Lord God to preserve mee among to many dangers and difeates, and in the end to bring mee into their company, they determined to flie, and that I should carrie them ouer the Rivers and Gulfes which wee found, And they aduettized mee, that by no meanes, I should let the Indians know that I would goe further, because they would presently kill me, and that for this cause I was of necessitie to stay with them fixe monethes, which was the time in the which those Indians went into another Countrie to cate Tune.

Thefe Time are certaine Fruits of the bignefie of an Egge, red and blacke, and of a very good Time, fruits of 20 tafte. They eate them three monethes in the yeere, wherein they eate no other thing, and be- India. cause at the time when they gathered them, other Indians beyond would come with Bowes to contract and barter with them, we (when they returned) might escape from our Indians, and goe with them. With this determination I remained there, and yeelded my felfe a flaue vnto an Indian, with whom Derante abode. These Indians are called Mariane, and Caffiglio remained with other of their Neighbours, called Isuales. And whole we continued there, they reported vnto mee, that after they were come Isuales.

out of the Hand of Malbado voon the Sea Coast, they found the Boat wherein the Auditor and the Friers croffed ouer, and that pairing thote Rivers which are foure, and very great : the many currents tooke the Boat wherewith they went to Sea, and foure of them were drowned, the rest 30 with much labour passed the Gulfe : and that fifteene leagues surther they found another, and as fooneas they met together there, two of their companions died in the time that they had trauelled fixtie leagues, and that all the rest were yet at the point of death, and that all that journie they had eaten nothing but Creui'es and Herbs of the wall, and comming to this last Gulfe, they faid, that they found Indians who flood eating of Mulberies, who when they faw the Chris fines they went vnto the other end, and so they standing still and deutifing meanes to passe the Gulfe, an Indian and a Christian came vnto them, and being come, they knew it was Figheroa, one of the foure we had fent before from the Hand of Mathado, who recounted vnto them in what manner he and his companions came to that place where two of them and one Indian died all through cold and famine, because they were come thither in the hardest time of the yeere: 40 and that the Indians had taken Figheros himfelfe and Mondes , which Mondes fled afterwards, travelling the best hee could towards Pannes; and that the Indians followed after him and flue him. And that abiding thus with those Indians, hee underflood that with the Marianes there was a Christian, who had passed to the other side, and he found him with them whom they call Queuenes. Which Christian was Gernaudo d' Esquinel, a Native of Badaiez, who came in the company of the Commiffary, and that from Efguines, he widerflood what end the Gouernous had, together with the Auditor and the reft : telling them how the Auditor and the Friers had lanched their Boat into the Rivers, and comming along the Coalt, the Governour landed his people, and went with his Boat untill they came unto that great Gulfe, where he turned to take in his men, and paffe ouer to the other fide, and returned for the Auditor and the Friers, and all the orft. And he declared, that being thus imbarked, the Gouernour revoked the authoritie of his Lieutenant, which the Auditor had, and gaue that charge vnto a Captaine that went with him, called Pantoffa, And that the Gouernor stayed that night in his Boat, & would not come on Land, and the Matter abode with him, and one Page who was not well, and they had neither water nor any thing to eate in the Boat : fo about midnight fo hard a gale of winde from the North tooke them, that it droue the Boat into the Sea before any one faw it, for he had nothing to releeue him but one fint stone, and they knew not that he had any other thing besides. And when the men who remained on the land faw this, they went along the Coast, and finding the water so rough, they made floats with much trouble and paines, and to paffed ouer vnto the other fide. And going further they came to the point of an Hill at the water fide, and found Indians there, who 60 when they faw them comming put their things into their Canowes, and passed over to the other fide of the Coast. So the Christians feeing what the time was being in November, abode in that Mountaine becaute they found water, wood, and certaine Creuifes there, where through cold and famine, by little and little, they beganne to die. And beside this, Pantoffa who remained Lieutenant, vied them very ill, and not being able to indure it, the Sergeant Maior Brother of

The Somiards

A crue'l cu-

flome of he

Indians, who

while they

vie to kill their

fleep, and cast

children (as

foone as they

the dogges to eate them, becau'e they would not

marrie them

to their ene-

mics not ro

zhe:rkindred.

P enutious

therbeaftly

mine which

Valanez Porealle, who came in the fleete from Cuba, Mafter of the Campe, revolted from Pantell 4, and fmote him with a piece of wood, with the which blow hee died, and fuch as died became the mortels of the other, and the last that died, was the Sergeant Major, and Efaune did the like, and eating him, maintained himfelfe vntill the first of March, that an Indian one of them who fled from thence came to fee if they were all dead, and after brought Efquinel away from thence with him, who being in Subjection to this Indian Figheroa spake with him, and understood all this of him which wee have before declared, and prayed him to come with him. that they might goe together towards Panico : but Efquinel would not doe it, faying, that her underflood by Friers that Pamico was behind them, and to he remained there, and Figheros went to the Coast where he vied to abide.

All this Figheron reported vnto vs, by the relation which Efquinel made vnto him, and fo from hand to hand it came vnto me. Whereby hee might fee and know the end which all that fleete had, and the particular mitchances which happened to euerie one of the reft. And hee further faid, that if the Christians at any time should goe through those parts, it might bee, that they thould fee Elquinel, b. caute hee knew that hee was fled from that Indian with whom hee abode, vnto the other which are called Marianes, who were their Neighbours. And to having ended his Dilcourfe, he and Afteriano, were about to goe vnto the other Indians that were further beyond, but those Indians who kept them perceiving them, went forth and came to give them many Baltinadoes and spoiled Asturane, and wounded him on the arme with an Arrow, but yet in the end they fled, and the other Christians remained : and procured thole Indians to take them an for flaues, although abiding with them and feruing them, they were as early intreated as ever any flaues were or other men of the World. Because of fixe which they were, not being contented continually to buffet, and cudgell them, and placke off their beards with the skinge, only for their prittime and recreation and only for going from one house to another, they killed three, who are those of whom I spoke before, to wit, Diego Dorante, Valdenieso, and Diego de Heina: and the other three that remained, expected that they also should make the like end, and not being able to indure that life, Andrea Dorantes fled to the Marianes, who were they with whom Esquinel abode, and they themselves reported that they had kep: Esquinel there, who afterward would have fled, because a woman had dreamed that hee should kill a childe of hers; the Indians porfued him and flue him; and they afterward shewed Andrea Dorante his Sword, 30 Crowne, Booke, and other things which he had,

They have this custome also even to kill the same male children while they sleepe, and when the female children are borne, they leave them for the Dogs to eate, and cast them away in those places. And the reason why they doe it is this, because they say that all they of the Country male children are their enemies, and make very great warres with them. Wherefore if by chance they should marrie their Daughters, their enemies should be the more increated, who would subject them, and hold them all in captinitie. And for this cause, they would rather kill them, then have any borne of themselves to become their enemies. Wee demanded of them why they married them not among themiclues, who answered, that it was a beastly thing to marrie them voto their kinare botne) to dred, and that it was much better to kill them, then guie them for wives vnto their kinsfolke 40 and enemies. And they obserue this custome, and other of their Neighbours also called laguanes, and no other of that Countrie, but they observe the same. And when they take wives, they get the women of their enemies, and the price which they pay is the best Bow that they can get, with two Arrowes. And if peraduenture they have not a Bow, they give a Net of the widenelle of a mans arme, and as much more in length. Dorante abode with them, and not long after fled from them. Caftiglio and Effenamico came into the firme Land to the laquanes. All they are Archers, and well ter, although they be not fo great as the other which we left behind, and have all their paps and their lips pierced like them. Their food principally are roots of two or three forts, which they feeke throughout the whole Countrie, which are very hard and puffe up fuch as eat them. They flay two dayes to roaft them, and many of them are very bitter, and withall they 50 dig them with much paines, but the famine in those Countries is so great, that they cannot live The Indians in without them 1 and they goe two or three leagues to feeke them. They fometimes kill any wil e this Prounce beast whatsoever, and at certaine times take fish, but this is so little, and their hunger to great, Vipers, and o. that they eat Frogs, Ants Egs, Wormes, Lizards, Salamanders, Serpents and Vipers, which with their ftinging kill men : they also eat earth, wood, and what souer they can get the dung of wild things, by reabeaits, and other things which I leave to report, and I certainly believe, that if there were flones in that Country they would eat them. They keep the sharpe bones of fishes and Serpents, which continually is they eat to grind them all afterwards, and so eate that powder. The men load not themselves nor carrie bardens, but the old men and women do all this, who are least efteemed among them, they beare no fuch loue to their children as the other doe, whereof I have spoken before. There are fome among them , who wie that finne which is against nature. Their women are very fufficient, and able to indure labour, for of the foure and twentie houres of the day and night, they have but fixe houres of rest, and all the greater part of the night they spend in heating their Ouens, to dry those Rootes which they eate. And when the day beginneth to appeare, they beginne to draw water, and carrie wood unto their houses, and give order for other things which they want, nion they want. The greater part of them are great Theenes, because although among them they are well di- Theenes. uided, yet if the Father or the Sonne turne but wheir heads about, the one taketh from the other whathouer he canget. They are great and monthrous Liers and great Drunkards, and for that purpole they drink: a certaine kind of drinke. They are fo well vied to runne, that without repurpose ties, or thanding still at all, they runne from Morning vntill the Euening following Indians which a Deere, and in this manner they kill many, following them untill they tire them, and some- runne a whole a Deere, and in the Their houles are of Mats fet vpon foure Arches, and they take them vp dayto take a times take them aline. Their houles are of Mats fet vpon foure Arches, and they take them vp dayto take a deep times take them aline. They four archive a like they aline to be the sale of the times take them affice. There daies to feeke food. They fow nothing at all to be able to ring him with haue fruit thereof, and are a very pleasant and cheerefull people, and not with standing the great running, est-hunger they indure, they cease not to dance and sport themselves.

CHAP.I.S.2. Nimble Hunters. Troublesome flies. Intendment of flight crossed. #512

The best time which they haue is when they care Tune, because then they have no hunger, himaline in and pale all that time in dancing, and eate day and night all the time they have them. They the chair. wring them, open them, and fet them to dry, and beeing thus dried they hang them up in Gar-lines. lands like figges, and keepe them to eate by the way, when they returne thence: they also dry Dogs fife. their Pils and make powder of them. Many times while we were with them, it is tell out, that Tamestime, we continued four daies without eating any thing, because it was not there to be had; to make vs merrie they told vs, that wee should shortly haue Tune, and should eate many of them and 20 drinke their juice, and fill our bellies very well, and that wee should be verie cheereful and contented, and without any hunger. And when they told vs this, it was full or fixe monethes to the time of Tune.

And when the time came, wee came to eate Tune, and by the way wee found many flies of three lorts, very milchieuous and noisome, and all the rest of the Summer they put wato much Fliestroubletrouble. And to defend vs from them we made fires of rotten and moult wood, that it might not some, burne but make a smoake, but this defence put vs to another trouble, for all the night wee did nothing elfe but complaine of the smoake which came into our eyes, and also of the great heate Noiseme rewhich the much fire gaue vs , and wee went out to fleepe by the fide thereof, and if at any time medic. we could fleepe, they remembred vs with their baltinadoes to returne and make the fires barne. 30 They who dwell further within the Land, vie a remedie for these flies, as intollerable as this and worfe, that is to fay, they goe with fire-brands in their hands burning the Fields and the Woods and the world and wherefoeuer they meete with them, to make the flies to flie away ; and fo also they vie to digue wnder the earth for Lizards, and other fuch like things to eate them, they vie aliotodall Deere; compating them with many fires. Which they also doe to take away food from the beatls, that they might be constrained to goe from thence to find it, where they would have them. For they neuer tettle themselues to dwell, but where wood and water are, and sometimes they load themfelues all with this prouision, and goe to feeke Deere, which (most commonly) abide where Deere mant there is neither water nor wood : and the day they came thither they killed Deere, and some o- dry placesto ther hunting game fuch as they could get, and confumed all the water and wood in preparing awaid Hung-40 them to be eaten, and in the fires which they made to hunt the flies, and tarried till the next day to take some thing to carrie with them by the way. When they depart they goe so miserably vexed with flyes, that they seeme to have the disease of Lazarus, and in this manner they expell hunger two or three times in the yeere with fo great paines as hath beene faid : and because I have proved it. I date affirme, that there is no travell in the World found like vnto this.

They found Oxen there and I faw them three times, and eate of them : and (as I thinke, they Oxen of that are of the bignesse of those of Spaine. They have little hornes bee the Moresche cattle, and very Countrie. long haire, and some of them are ash-colour, and others blacke, and in my judgement they have better haire and much thicker then those of our Countries. Of those which are not great, they 50 make Garments to couer them, and of the greater they make shooes and Targets and these came from the North further through the Land vnto the Coast of Florida, and extend themselves farre within the Land more then foure hundred leagues. And in all this way, through the Vallies by which they come, the people that dwell there, come downe and eat of them, and fend great ftore of hides into the Countrie. When the fixe moneths were ended, wherein I abode with the Christians, hoping to put the determination made betweene vs in execution, the Indians went to eate Tune, which might bee fome thirtie leagues from thence, and being now readie to flie from them, the Indians with whom we abode, fell at variance among themselves about a woman, and bestetted and beate her, and broke her head : and for the great hatred and anger they conceived, they tooke their houses, and 60 every one went vnto their place. Whereupon it was necessarie, that all the Christians who were there, should separate themselves with them, so that by no meanes wee could meet together againe untill the next weere : and in this time I passed much miserie, as well for the great famine I indured, as for the cuill viage, and had entertainment those Indians gave mee which was such, that I was faine to flie three times from those Masters that kept me, who all came diligently to Kkkkkk 2

feeke me that they might kill me, but it pleased our Lord God, not to suffer them to find mee. and to preferue me from their hands through his infinite mercie.

As soone as the time of Tane returned, wee Christians found our selves together agains in the fame place where we were before, and having now joyned together to flie from thence, and anpointed the day, that very felfe fame day the Indians separated vs, and every one went vnto their place, fo I faid vito the (bristians, that I would expect them at the Tune, vitill the Moone were full, and that day when I find this voto them, was the first of September, and the prime of the Aloone. And further I affored them, that if they came not within that time, I would go thence alone and leave them. And fo we separated our schoes, and every man went with their Indians. and I flaved with mine vntill the thirteenth of the Moone; and my determination was to flie to thence vnto the other Indians, when the Moone should be full. On the thirteenth of the faid moneth. Andrea Dorante and Estenamico came vnto me and told me, that they had left Castielio with other Indians, whom they call Canagadi, who dwelt neere thereabout, and that they had paffed many mileries, and had loft their way. And that the day before our Indians removued from their place, and were gone towards the place where Caffielio abode to joyne themselves with them who kept him, and make themselves friends having beene enemies and at warres, even vn. till that day: and in this manner allo we recourred Caffiglio. In all the time that wee eate the Tome wee were thirstie and for remedie wee dranke the juice thereof, which wee powred in a trench which we made in the Earth, and when it was full, we dranke thereof vntill we were a tisfied: it is sweet and pleasant, and of the colour of new wine boyled, and this they doe became there are no other veffels there wherein to put it. There are many forts of Tune, among which fome are verie good, although all feemed good vinto me, and hunger gaue mee no time to bee able ches. For although they have Rivers there, neuertheleffe, because they never have any certaine and fetled place of abode, they have no particular water knowne to them, or appointed place where to take it. Throughout the whole Countrie there are many great and goodly fences, and of excellent patture for flockes and herds of cattle, and it would be a very fruitfull Countrie if it were manured, and inhabited by a people which had reason and knowledge. We saw no Mountaines in all that Countrie all the time we flayed there. Those Indians told vs , that furtherbeyond there were another people, called Cameni, who live toward the Coast, who had slaine all the men which came in the Boat of Piguelofa and Telliz, and that they were all so weakeand ficke, that although they killed them, they did not any way defend themfelues, and to they made an end of them all, and they shewed vs their Garments and Wespons, and that the Barke remayned there on the other fide. This is the fift Boat which made up the account, because wee What became have alreadie faid, that the Sea carried away the Boat of the Governour, and that of the Andtour and the Friers was seene cast athwart the Coast, and Efquinel declared the end of them. The two wherein Caftiglio, my felfe, and Dorante went, we have alreadic faid, that they were

The greatest part of all this Nation drinke raine water, gathered together in certaine Tren-

ò. III.

Their flight from the Indians to others, wonderfull cures, backe and belly cares: their trauells thorow the Country, and hungry adventures. Divers peoples and their customes.

drowned at the Hand of Mathado.

Fter we were removed from the place, about two daies journey from them, wee recommended our felues vnto our Lord God, and went flying thence, hoping that although 30 the time of the yeere were now late, and the Tune ended, yet with the fruits that remained in the fields, wee should be able to trauell a great part of the Countrie. And io going that first day with much feare that the Indians would have tollowed vs, wee faw certains Imoakes, and going towards them after the evening we faw an Indian, who when hee faw vs fled without tarrying for vs. Whereupon we prefently fent the Negro vuto him, who when he faw him alone stated for him. The Negro faid voto him, that we came to feeke out those people that made those smoakes, so he answered, that their horses were neere that place, and that hee would guide vs thither, and to we followed him and hee went running to give notice of our comming-And about fun-fet we faw the houses, and about two crosse-bow shoots before weecame thither, we found foure Indians who stated for vs and courteously entertained vs. Wee told them in the language of the Mariames that we came to feeke them, who feemed to be glad of our company, and to they brought vs to their houses, and placed Dorante and the Negro in the house of a Phifittan, and me and Cafinglio, with certaine others. These people have another language, and are called Ausuares, and are they who yied to bring the Bowes vnto those our first matters, and to contract with them: and although they be of another nation and language, yet they understand the language of them with whom we first abode; and they themselves also that selfe same day came into that place with their houses. The people presently offered vs much Tune, because they knew vs both that we had healed them. The verie fame night that we came thither certaine Indians came into Castiglio, and told him that they had veriegreat paine in their heads, intreating him that he would heale them : and after he had bleffed them and recommended them vnto God, in the verie same instant they faid that they were well, and that the paine was gone. So they went into their houses and brought Curre very vs much Tune, and a piece of flesh of a wilde beast, which we knew not what it was. This being wonderfull. 10' published among them, many other diseased people came that night that he should heale them, yet true. and euerie one of them brought a piece of Venison, and they brought so many that we knew not Beato (which where to put them. We yeelded great thankes vnto God, who to continually euerie day increa- trauelled tourfed his mercie and his grace towards vs. Thus when the cures were ended, they began to dance the ludies with and fing their rimes, and make their sports vitill the next day at the rifing of the Sunne, and this the Spaniards feltiuall iollitie continued three daies by reason of our comming thither. Afterward wee asked from 1541.) them of the Countrie beyond, and of the people and victualls that are found there, and they an faith that of its fwered vs. that throughout all that Countrie there was much Twee, but that they were now ended and that we should find no people, because after they had gathered the Tune, eueric one company sears returned to their houses, and that it was a verie cold Countrie, and verie few skinnes were by tenreturned,

Seeing this, and confidering that the Winter, and cold time of the yeere was come we agreed to winter with them. And at the end of fine daies, after we came thither they departed thence, by breathing and went to leeke other Tune, where other people were of other Nations and divers languages: on hem curee and having "ravelled five daies tourney with much hunger, because neither Time, nor other fruits the fickerailed are foun! by the way , wee came to a River and fet up our houses there, and after went to seeke certaine fruits of a tree like vnto a fig tree, and there being no high way in all those places, I flaied longer then the rest in finding them, and so they returned to their houses, and I remained alone, and comming to seeke our men that night I had almost lost my selfe: and it pleased God that I pardon me, with found a tree vnder the which there was a fire, and at that fire I pafed the cold of that night. In esfire beleeve ao the morning I loaded my felfe with wood, and taking two fire brands I returned to feeke them. and went in this manner five daies, alwaies with my fire and burden of wood, because if my fire should have beene extinguished in places where there had been no wood (as in many places there is none) I was to kindle other fire brands and not to remaine without fire, because I had no other remedie against the cold, being as naked as ever I was borne. And in the night I had this reme- Ben. 1. 2. 2. 13. die, that I went to any small plat of ground befer with trees neere vnto the River, and there a- I permit one hode before the Sun went downe and made a trench in the ground and put much wood therein, ons, more tor which they vie to doe of certaine trees, whereof in those places there is great anundance, and knowledge of put many shokes together of such as were falne and drie, and about that trench I made foure fiers the Countrey, a croffe, and thought to come from time to time to renew the fiers, and had made certaine bun-then for credit 40 dels of itraw, whereof in those places there is much, and therewith I couered me in that trench, and in this manner defended my selie from the cold of the nights: and on a certaine night and which you shall the fire lite on the straw which covered mee while I was sleeping in the trench. So the fire befind in Ca/as of gan to burne verie fiercely, and although with much furiel leaped out, yet the token of the dan- another nager which I had passed remained in my haire. In all this time I eate not one morfell nor found ture. These any thing to eate, and going thus fcorched and finged much bloud iffued from my feet, and God vied great mercie towardes mee that in all this time the North winde blew not, for otherwise to connert the there had beene no remedie but I must needs haue died. At the end of my fine daies I came to a peorle to God, River fide where I found my Indians, who together with my Christians held me for dead, and al. and therefore River lide where I found my Indians, who together with my Corifficant new for dead, and are not like to wates thought that some viper had itting me. And when they found me they greatly rejoyced to have any difee me, but principally the Christians, who faid vnto me, that vntill that time they had travelled uine begin-50 with much hunger, and for that cause they came not to seeke mee, and that night they gave mee ning, but re of the Tune which they had. The day following we departed thence, and went vnto the place either sally where much Time was, wherewith we all fatisfied the great hunger which we had, and we Chriflians gave many thankes vnto our Lord God, who left vs not without remedie.

The next day many Indians came to vs in the morning, and brought five ficke men with them, the Father of who were lame and verie ill, and they came to feeke Caffiglio that he might healethem, and eue- falhood. And ry one of them that were difeased gaue him their Bowes and Arrowes, which he received, and at why may they ry one of them that were difeated gaue him their Bowes and Arrowes, which is the letting of the Sun he bleffed them, and recommended them vnro God, and wee all belong he to the Deuill. him with the best denotion we could that he would give them health, seeing wee saw there was either a lies it 60 no other remedie but to doe the best we could that those people might helpe vs, that so we might never done or willish Arts to maintaine rapine and superstition, which are here mentioned the eff. As thereof ? Acosa tells of a great miracle-Worker in the Ladies, a vicious man, and hanged for knaueries. This Comet-Head the Author is also by Schmidd before, recorded for a bad man in his acts stehe Ruce of Plate, I will conclude with S. Aug de vnit, Esc. e. 16. Removement ils, vet figments mendation; hominum vel pertenta fallacium fpiricuum &c. Kkkkkk :

dead men. &c. Bur. faith hec. that they billed

1516 Indians cured by Christians. Dead raifed. Diabolical Superstition, LIB, VIII

be able to get out of that miferable life ; and his infinite goodnesse dealt so mercifully with ve that when the morning came they all arole as found and strong, as if they had never had any difeafe. This caused them much to wonder, and likewise to render infinite thankes vnto cor Lord, and that we more entirely acknowledged his great goodnesse, and had assured hope that he would deliner vs. and conduct vs vnto the place where we might better ferue him. And for my felie. I can boldly speake, that I alwaies had an affured trust in his mercie, that hee would raise me from that captiuitie, and to I alwaies faid to my companions. When the Indians were gone. and carried away their ficke men healed, wee went thence, where the other abode eating Time. and these are called Cacalenches and Maticones, who are of another language, and together with them were other called Coaiss and Sufolas , and on the other fide others called Ataiss, and they to maintaine warres with the Sufolas, and they shot every day amongst them : and because in those places they talked of nothing elfe but of miracles which our Lord God wrought by our meaner they came from many parts to feeke vs that we might heale them, and at the end of two daies wherein we stated there, certaine Indians of Sufolas came vnto vs and intreated Castiglio that hee would goe to cure one that was wounded and other ficke men, faying, that among them there wisone who was readie to die. Castiglio was a verie fearefull Physitian, especially when the cures were grieuous and dangerous, and beleeued that his finnes would have caused that all the cures should not succeed well. The Indians faid vnto mee, that I should goe to heale them, hecause they wished mee well, and remembred that I had sometimes healed them where the nots grew, and that for the fame they had given me nuts and hides : and this was when I cameto 10 iowne my felfe with the Christians; wherefore I agreed to goe with them, and Dorante and Effe.

And when we were come neere vnto the Cottages which they have, I saw the sicke man whom we went to cure, who was now dead, and about him stood many people lamenting, and his house plucked downe, which among them is a signe that the master thereof is dead. So when I came I found his eyes distorted, and that he had no pulle, and had all the tokens of a dead man, and as it feemed to mee it was fo, and Dorante affirmed the same vnto me. I tooke vo the matt which he had vpon him to couer him, and the best I could I prayed vnto the Lord, that he would give mee grace to give health vnto that ficke men, and to all the rest that had need thereof. And after I had bleffed him and blowne vpon him many times, they brought me his Bow and gaze it youto me, and a cheft of Time; and brought me to cure many other who were ill at ease with gold. dinesse, and gave me two other chests of Tune, which I gave voto our Indians which came with vs, and having done this wee returned vnto our lodgings; and our Indians to whom I gauethe Tame remained there, and at night returned to their houses also, and faid, that hee who was then dead whom I had cured in their presence, arose vp and was well, and walked, and eate, and spoke with them; and so all the rest which I cured remained found without any seuer, and very cheerges opinion be full. This caused very great admiration and seare, and throughout that whole Countrey they speake of nothing elfe. All they to whom this report went came to seeke vs, that we might healt them and bleffe their children: and when the Indians who abode in the company of our men, who that they killed were the Catalenebi were to go thence, they gaue ve all the Tune that they had for their journey, so without leaving any for themselves, and gave vs fire-stones of an handfull and an halfe in length with the which they cut, and among them they are held in great estimation. They intreated vs that we would remember them, and pray vnto God that they might alwaies be in health, and we promifed them to doe it, and with this they went away the most contented men in the world, having given vs all the best of that which they had. So we staied with those Indians Anamares eight moneths, and this account we made by the Moone. In all this time many people came to feeke vs and faid certainly that wee were the children of the Sunne. Dorante and the Negro vntill then had not healed any, but through the great importunitie of fo many people which flocked treether from all parts we became all Phylitians, although for the affurance to undertake every cure I was most noted amongst them all, and we never undertooke to cure any who told vs 50 not that hee was found and well: And they had so great confidence in vs, that they thought they could not be healed but by our hands, and they beleeved that as long as wee flaied with them not one of them could die.

or formit of the Indians.

A dead man

not rather to he embraced the liuing; as

this author alfo

reports of his

in the end of this booke.

Children of the Sunne.

All become

Physicians.

Catalenches

Sufales and

Indians

MATICAREL.

Carios.

Diabolicall

They, and those who are further behind them, declared a very strange matter vnto vs, and by the fignes which they made it appeared that it fell out fifteene or fixteene yeeres fince; and this An euill thing it is, they fay, that a man went about that Countrey (which they call an Enill thing) which was of a little bodie and had a beard, although they could never cleerely fee his countenance. And when he came to any house all their haire, who were within stood vpright and they trembled, and prefently at the doore of the house appeared a flaming fire-brand, and then that man entred into the house and tooke from them what soeuer he would, and gaue them three great cuts vpon 60 the Hanke with a fire-frone very sharpe, as broad as a mans hand, and two handfulls long, and put his hand upon those gathes and drew out their bowells, and cut them about an handfull, and that piece which he cut he put upon the coales to broile : and prefently gaue them three other cuts in one arme, and then smote them where he had lanced them, and disloynted their arme and a little after returned to let it agains and put his hand upon their wounds, and they fay that they became foddenly whole. And that many times while they danced that Emili thing appeared among them, lometimes in the habite of a woman , and at another time like a man. And lometimes he tooke away an house or a cottage, and tooke it vp on high, and a little after fell downe againe together with it and gaue a great blow. Moreover they told vs that they give him meat, but he neuer eateth; and that they asked him whence he came, and in what part his house was slo he shewed them a cleft of the earth , and faid that his house was wnder that. At these things which they told vs we laughed exceedingly, and made a left thereof : who feeing wee beleeved it not they brought vs many of them whom that man had taken, and we faw the fignes of the cuts IO which he had given them in the places which they had told vs. Wherefore wee faid vnto them that he was a wicked man, and after the best manner we could we gave them to understand, that if they would beleeue in our Lord God, and become Christians as we were, they should not need to feare him, and that he durit not come to doe those things vato them : and that they should hold it for a certaintie, that while wee staied in that Countrie hee durit not appeare there, with this they remained verie well contented.

CHAP.I. S.3. Indians Slaves to Satan. Leather babit. Shawing of skins good food, 1517

Thete Indians told ws that they had feene Anstariano and Figheron, with others who abode on the coall beyond, whom we called those of the Fig-trees. All this Nation knew not the times by the Sunne nor Moone, nor keepe any account of the moneths or the yeere : but know the difference of the times according as the fruits come to be ripe, and by the mouing of the fiftes and Their compa-20 appearing of the Stars, wherein they are verie wife and well experienced. With them we were taxion of times alwaies well intreated, although we were faine to dig that which we had to eate with our owne hands, and carrie our burdens of water and wood. Their houses and sustenance are such as the other have behinde them, although they have much greater hunger, because they have neither Maiz, mast, nor Nuts. We went alwayes in leather like them, and in the night wee courred our selves with Decreskins. Of eight moneths which we stated with them, in fix of them we indured much hunger, because the fish was not yet found. And at the end of that time the Tune began now to grow ripe, and before thole Indians perceived vs wee went further vnto the other, called Maticones.

They were one dayes journey from thence, whither I and the Negro came, and at the end of 30 three dayes I tent the Negro to bring Dorante and Castiglio, and when they came wee departed all together, with those Indians, who went to eate certaine small fruites of certaine trees, wherewith they maintaine themielues ten or twelue dayes, vatill the Time come. And there other Indians joyne with them, called Arbadaes, and among them we found many ficke, weake, and fwollen, info much as we greatly maruelled thereat. And the Indians with whom wee came, returned againe the same way, and we laid we would remaine with those other, for the which they fignified that they were greatly displeased, and so we abode in the field with them. neere wnto those hortes. And when they law vs, they withdrew themlelues, and after they had reasoned a little, every one of them tooke one of vs by the hand, and brought vs to their houses. With Hungers perthem we indured greater hunger then with the other, so that in the whole day we eate but two ambulation.

40 handfuls of those fruits which were greene, and had so much juice, that they burned our mouthes; and therebeing great fearcitie of water, they caused much thirst to them that eate them. And the famine being fo great, wee were faine to buy two Hogges of them, and in exchange thereof, wee gaue certaine Nettes, and other things, and one skinne wherewith I co-

I have already faid, that throughout all that Countrey we went maked, and not being accustomed vato it before, we changed our skins twice in the yeare, after the manner of Serpents. And Apparell, the Sunne and the weather cauted many great fores to arile vpon the brefts & shoulders of some ofvs, which put vs to great paine, in respect of the burdens which wee carried, that were very heavie, and made the cords to flick in our armes. And the earth was fo rough and lagged, that ma-50 ny times when we gathered wood, when we had made an end of digging, the blound ran down from many parts of our bodies, by reason of the thornes and briers wherewith wee met, which tore vs whereforuer they touched vs. On a time I happened to feeke wood, and after it had drawne much bloud from me, I could not carrie it on my shoulder, nor traile it along the ground; when I found my felfe in this torment, I had no other remedy nor comfort, but to thinke on the paffion of our Lord Iefus Chrift, and of the bloud which he fhed for me, and confider how much greater the torment might be , which hee fuffered through the crowne of thornes, then that which I indured. I contracted with those Indians, making Combes, Bowes, Arrowes, and Nets for them. Wee also made Mats, which are things whereof they have very great neede, and although they know how to make them, they will make none for feeking foode to eate the meane while, for when they fet themselves to worke, they sustaine very great hunger. At other times they made me shaue skins, and make them thin, and the greatest prosperity that I had among them, was the day when they gaue mee any hide to shaue, because I shaued it much, and eate those shauings, and that sufficed me for two or three dayes; yet it hapned, both with these and the other whom we lett behinde, that when they gave vs a prece of flesh, wee eate it raw,

Famines Dif-

for if wee had boiled it . the first of them that came would have taken it, and eate it. wherefore wer thought it had not beene well done to put it to that danger; and befides. wee were none of them that would bethinke our sclues whether wee should rather eate it sed

This was the life we led with these Indians, and that little sustenance which we had we one it by small trifles which we made with our hands. After we had eaten these Dogs, supposing that we had fome little itrength to be able to goe further, we recommended our felues vnto our Lord God, that he would guide vs, and freed our felues from those Indians, who brought vs vnto other of their language, who dwelt neere thereunto; and fo as we went it rained all that day, and befide that, we loft the way, and were to flay at a very great Mountaine, where wee gathered to many leaves of Tune, and bakd them that night in an Ouen which we had made, and put fo much fire to them, that in the morning they were ready to be eaten, and after wee had eaten them, we recommended our felues vnto God, and went from thence, and found the way which we had loft. And having passed the Mountaine, we found other houses of the Indians, and being come thither, we faw two women and certaine little children that went on that Mountaine. who feeing vs were afraid, and fled to call their Indians, who went through the Mountaine, And being come, they staid to behold vs behinde certaine trees, fo wee called vntothem, who ranne with much feare, and after we had spoken vnto them, they told we that they had indured great famine, and that neere vnto that place many of their houses stood, and said, that they would bring vs thither : and so that night we came where fiftie houses were, and they were all amazed to behold vs. and stood assonished through exceeding seare; and after they were somewhat comforted, they came neere vnto vs, and laid their hands vpon our faces and bodies, and after put them your their owne faces and bodies. So we flaied that night, and when the morning came, they brought the difeated that were among them vnto vs. intreating vs that wee would bl. fie them, and gave vs fuch as they had to eate, which were the leaves of Twee and greene Time rofted or dry, and for the good intercamment they gave vs, and because they parted with that little which they had willingly, and were contented to be without meate themselves to give it vnto vs, we abode with them certaine dayes. And while we thus flaied, other Indians, of them that were farre beyond, came thither, and when they would be gone, weefaid to the former Indians, that we would goe with the other, which much displeased them, and so we left them 30 forrowing for our departure, at they which they conceined great difpleafure.

Sine Cerere & libera friges iucket lithe age of twilet yeares,

From the Hand of Malbado, all the Indians which we faw in that Countrey, Obferue this for a common custome, that if they perceive their women to be great with childe, they lye not with them, vitill two years be paffed, after the children be borne, to the which they gitt The Indians let fucke, vntill they be of the age of twelve years, that they are now of understanding to provide foode for themselves. We demanded of them, for what reason they did thus nourish them, who answered vs, that they did it for the great famine which was in that Countrey : where, as wee our felues faw, they were faine to continue fometimes three or foure daves without eating, and therefore they let them facke, that in that time they might not dye through hunger, and it notwithstanding some should escape, they would become too delicate, and of little strength. If by 40 chance it happen that any among them be ficke, they let them dye in those fields, if he be not a childe, and all the reft that cannot goe with them remaine there, but for a childe, or a brother of theirs, they lay them upon their neckerand fo they carry them.

They have all this custome to be seperated from their wives, when there is no agreement betweene them, and the both they and the may marry againe with whom they pleate. And this is viual among the yonger fort; but fuch as have children neuer forfake their wives. And when they contend with other people, or be at variance one with another, they buffet and brate each Outer with cude Is vntill they be very weary, and then they part, and lometimes the women part them, going betweene them, because the men come not in to part them : and what choller or passion somer they have, they fight not together with their Bowes and Arrowes. And after 50 they have purferted and cudgelled each other, the braule being ended, they take their houses and women, and goe to live in the fields, seperated from the reft, vntill their anger and choller be past : and when they are now pacified, it is not needefull that others interpose themselves to make peace and friendship, because in this manner they make it themselves. And if they who be at variance have no wives, they goe to other of their neighbours, who although they were their enemies, receive them courteously, and doe them much flattering kindnesse, and give them fuch as they have, fo that when their choller is pait, they returne rich vnto their people. They are all warlike people, and vie as great fubrilty to defend them from their enemies, as they would Vicot Hories, doe, if they had bin brought up in lialy, and incontinuall warre. The hories are they that onely ouercome the m, and which the Indians generally feare. They who are to fight with them, must be 60 very wary that they know not that they be faint or cowardly, and while the battaile continueth, they are to vie them the worst they can. For if they perceive them to be timerous or cowards, it is a people that very well knoweth the time to avenge themselves, and to take courage and strength from the feare of their enemies. When they are shot in the warres, and have spent

No deadly

CHAP. I.S.3. Sundry Nations of Malhada, New manner of brewing. Arrowes, they returne euery one their way, without any pursuit of the enemy, although the one part be few, and the other many, and this is their cultome. They goe many times away thot cleane through with Arrowes, and dye not, if they touch not the bowels or heart, nay, they quickely heale them. They ice and heare, and haue the sharpest sences, I thinke, of any men in Quickesenses. the world. They are very well able to endure hunger, thirst, and cold, as they who are more aca minted there with then any other.

In the lland of Malbada there are two languages; the one called Causques, and the other Han. Names of the In the firme land, afront that Iland, are others called Carruce, who take their name from the Nitions of In the firme land, atront that Hand, are others called Latrico, who take their hand a those parts.

Mountaines where they line. Further, vpon the Sea coast are others, called Deguenes, and a Me'tada.

10 front them, are others called Mendica. Farther upon the coast are the Queuenes, and afront Canones. these within the firme land are the Marsanes, and going further vpon the coast are other, called Garnes. Gusticones, and afront those within the firme land the legunzes, at the end of them are other, cal- Dequenes. led Ataus, and behinde them other called Acubadaos, and of these there are many along this Mandica. bankefurther. Other called Quioles, liue on the coaft, and afront them within the firme land are the Augustes, and with their the Malsacones vnite themselves, and the Cultalentebes, and other Gannes. called Sufolm, and other called Comos, and further upon the coalt abide the Cumoles, and on the 1192222. fame coalt beyond are others, whom we called them of the Figures. All these Nations have ha- Assist, and bitations, and people, and divers languages. Among them there is one language, in the which, deubedas. bitations, and people, and divers languages. Among them tuere is one language, in the which, when they lay vato men, looke there, they lay arraes, and to the Dogs, they lay Xo. and in all Ausumes, and 20 that Countrey they make themselves drunke with a certaine smoake, and give what sources they Mailacons.

Like wife they drinke another thing which they take from the leaves of trees, like voto the Sufalus Comoto Mulberry trees, and boile it in certaine veffels on the fire, and after they have boyled it, they fill comoits, the veffels with water, and fokeepe it over the fire, and when it hath beene twice boiled, they poure it out into certaine veilels, and coole it with halfe a goord, and when it gathereth much fome, they drinke it as hot as they are able to fuffer it, and while they put it out of the veffell, and vntill they drinke it, they stand crying, who will drinke. And when the women perceive these exclamations, they presently settle themselves, not daring once to move, although they finde that they are very well belousd. And if by chance any of them moue, they accompt her

30 shamelesse, and cudgell her, and with much choller and anger cast away the water or drinke which they have made: and if they have drunke it, they womit it out againe, which they doe very easily. The reason of this their custome, they say is this, that if when they will drinke of that water, the women moue themselves from the place where they heare that voyce, some bad thing might be put into that drinke, which entring into the body, in fhort space would cause them to dye. And all the time, that that water is boyled, the veffell must be well closed and flut, and if peraduenture it flould stand vincouered, and any woman should come and passe by, they cast it away and drinke no more of it. It is of the colour of Sastron, and they drinke it three dayes without eating, and every day they drinke one * amphora, and an halfe. And when the *A veffell conwomen haue their naturall purgation, they prouide no meate but for themselves, because no o-40 ther person will eate of that which she carrieth. In the time that I continued among them, I saw gathous.

a most brutish and beastly custome, to wit, a man who was married to another, and their be cer- Sodomy. taine effeminate and impotent men, who goe cloathed and attired like women, and performe the office of a woman; they carry no Bowes, but beare very great and waightie burdens : and among them we faw many such effemmate persons, as I haue faid, and they are of greater lims and taller then the other men.

After we departed from them whom wee left lamenting, wee were with the other at their houses, and were very well intertained of them, who brought vs their children that wee should touch their hands, and fo they gave vs much Meale of Mefquiquez. These Mefquiquez are certaine Fruits, which when they are on the Tree are very bitter, and are of the same fort that the fruite of Indian

Garate are, and they eate them with the earth, and with it they are very fweet and good to eat. The manner how they prepare them is this; they make a Trench in the Earth of what depth they please, and after they have cast the truit into this Trench they bruize and breake them very well, with a piece of wood as great as a mans legge, and three Cubits long, and after they are mingled with the earth of the Trench, they take other that are fitted, and put them into the faid Trench, and returne to bruize them a little more, and after put them into a veffell like vnto a basket, and cast to much water thereon, as is sufficient to couer it, that the water may rise to the top, and hee that hath bruized them, tafteth them in his mouth, and if hee thinke they be not iweet and pleatant, he demandeth earth and mingleth it therewith. And this he doth vntill he find it sweet, and so afterward they prepare themselves to sit round, and every one putteth in his

60 hand, and taketh as much as he can, and the feeds or kernels of those Fruits, and so the huskes they cast upon certaine hides, and he that hath brussed them gathereth them together, and returneth afterward to put them all in a basket, and cafteth water vpon them, as at the first, and to they returne to wring out the myce and water to long as it will drop. And likewise they returne to put the feedes and huskes whon the hide, and fo in this manner they doe three or foure

1520

The Tempin

Brailians vie

times for everie bruifing : and they that are found at this banquet, which because it is veriegreat. remaine with their bellies much puffed vp through the earth and water which they drinke; and of this the Indians made vs many great featls, and vied much dancing and iollitie among themsclues, for fo long time as we stated there. And when we slept in the night, fixe men watched with great diligence and care, at the doore of the cottage where we abode, not ceasing to come in voto some of vs till the Sunne arose.

And when we would depart from them, certaine women of other people who lived further beyond came thither, and being informed by them where their houses were, wee departed to. wards those parts, although they earnestly entreated vs that we would not depart for that day. because those houses were very farre from thence, and that there was no way to goe thither, and to that the women who came were weary; but refting themselves vnto the next day, they would afterwards goe with vs, and conduct vs thither. But we dispatched our selues thence, and went away ; and a little after those women who came thicher with certaine others of the former Indians, came after vs : but there being no beaten way nor path, we prefently loft our felues, and fo went foure leagues, at the end whereof we came to drinke at a water, where wee found the women that followed vs, who told vs what great paines and travaile they had taken to finde vs. Departing thence, and bringing those women tor our guides, wee passed a River somewhat late. and the water tooke vs vp to the breft, and might be as broad as that of Simill, and it ranne very Brongly. And at the fetting of the Sunne we came to an hundred houses of the Indians, who before we came, went all forth to receive vs with fo vehement shouting and loud exclamation, 10 that it was a fearefull thing, and gaue great blowes with their hands upon their thighes, and fuch Marakas or Rieles, and brought hollow guards with stones within them, which is the instrument of their greatest iolhave like con- little & loort, and never vie them but for their dancings, and for medicine; and none dare to take them in his hand but they. And they fay that these guords have vertue and come from heaven, because they grow not in those Countries, nor doe they know from whence they come, valelle the Rivers bring them when they overflow. And the feare and confusion of them was so great, that friging to come neerest vinto vs and touch vs, they so thrunged vs, that it was a wonder that they had not killed vs : and not fuffering vs to fet our feete on the ground, they carried vs

> make their festivall sports any more with vs for that night. They palled all that night, among themselves, in sports and dancing, and the day following, at a good houre, they brought vs before all the people of that place, that we might touch and blelle them, as we had done to the rest with whom we abode. And after this, they gave many arrowes to the women of another people, who were come with them. The next day we departed thence, and all that people went with vs. And when we came to the other Indians, we were very well entertained, as of the other; and they gaue vs fuch as they had, and Deere which they had kile led that day. Among their Indians we law a new custome, to wir, that they who were first with vs, tooke the Bowes & Arrowes, Shooes and Crownes (if they had any) from them who came to vs to be healed, and after they had thus taken them away from them, they brought them before 40 vs, that we should heale them, and being healed, that we should have them, to they departed vevnto their houses, and bare vs so aboue ground, and the presse of people so thrunged vs, that we entred into the houses which they had prepared for vs, and would not content that they should rie well contented, and faid that they were whole.

After this, we departed from them, and went vnto other, of whom we were verie courteoutly received, and they brought vs their difeafed persons, who when we had bleffed them, faid they were cured, and he that was not whole, beleeved that we could cure him, & for that which others told them whom we had healed, they made fuch great sport and dancing, that they suffered vs not to sleepe. Departing from them, we went where many other houses were, and where another new custome began, to wit, that entertaining every one of vs very well, they who came with vs, tooke all their substance from them, and rifled their houses, without leaving them any kinde of thing, which displeated vs verie much, feeing them fo ill vied who fo curreoutly received vs, 50 and also fraring that least this might be the occasion of some alteration, or offence among them. But not being able to remedy the fame, and chastise those that did it, wee were then to surfer it, vntill we faw we had more authoritie among them. And fo, even they themselves who lost their wealth, feeing we were displeased, comforted vs, faying, that we should not conceine any displeasure thereat, considering they were so well contented that they had seene vs, and that they had bestowed their substance very well, and would hereafter be paid of others who were ex-

Blinde and fouint-tyed people.

The next day they brought all their people before vs, the greatest part whereof are squinteyed, and other of the same people are blinde, whereat we greatly maruelled : they are well set, and of good behaulour, and whiter then all the rest that we had seene untill then. There we be- 60 gan to fee Mountaines, which feemed to extend themselves towards the Sea, from the North, and by the relation which the Indians made, I suppose they are fifteene leagues from the Sea, We departed thence with thole Indians towards the Mountaines, whereof I now spake. And they brought vs where some of their kindred were, for they would not bring vs but to their kinsfolk, because they were vowilling that their enemies should receive so great a benefit, as they thought it was to leevs. And when wee were come thither, they that came with vs spoiled the other. who knowing the custome had hid certainethings before we came thither. And after they had received vs with much joy and gladnesse; they tooke out that which they had hidden, and prefented it vitto vs, and they were Crownes, Magra, and certaine small plates of Silver, We, according to our custome, gaue them all presently to the Indians that came with vs, and having given vs that which they had, they began their dancing and festivall iollitie, and sent to call other people neere thereabouts, that they might come to fee vs, who came all about the eurning, and brought vs Garlands, Bowes, and other triffing things, which for the most part we disuded ato mong those other Indians. And the day following, we being desirous to depart, they would all bring vs to their friends, who remained on the top of the Mountaines, faying that there are many houses and people, that they would give vs many things: but because it was out of our way we would not goe thither, and therefore tooke our journey through the plaine neere vnto the Mountaines, which we supposed should not be very farrefrom the coast. All those people are very poore and miferable, wherefore we held it better to croffe ouer the land, because the people that dwelt further into the Country were better conditioned, and would views better, and we were certainely perswaded, that we should finde a more populous Countrey, and of better fustenance. And lattly, we therefore did it, because croffing ouer the land, we saw more particularities, so that if it should please our Lord God to bring some of vs out of that Countrey, an and to conduct vs into the land of the Christians, wee might be able to make relation and report

The Indians seeing that we were determined to goe whither they would not, told vs. that there was neither people nor Time, nor any other thing to eate, and therefore praied vs that we would flay there for that day, and so we did. Then they fent two Indians to discouer the people that way which we purpoted to goe, and the next day we departed, carrying many of them with vs, and the women went laden with water, and our authoritie was fo great among them, that none durft prefume to drinke without our leaue. Two of their Phificians gaue vs two Gourds, and from that time we afterward began to carry Gourds with ve, joyning this ceremony to our authority, which among them is very great. They who accompanied vs, rifled the 40 houses: but the houses being many, and they but few, they could not carry all away, but should have bin forced to have loft the halfe, and so we went thence through many Mountaines; entring within the land more then fittie leagues, at the end whereof we found fortie houses, and among other things which they gaue vs, Andrea Derante had a thicke and great Bill of cop- Copper Bell per, with a visage ingrauen in it, which they seemed greatly to esteeme, saying that they had ingrauen. gotten it of their other neighbours : who being demanded whence they had it, they faid, that they brought it from the Northward, and that it was much worth, and greatly effeemed there. Whereupon we knew, that from what place soeuer it came, the art of casting and melting of mettals must needes be there. And hereupon we departed the day following, and croffed ouer a Mountaine of fix leagues; and the itones which were there, were of the scumme of Iron, so and late in the evening we came to many houses, seated on the fide of a most pleasant River, and the Lords of the same came into the middle of the high way to receive vs with their clildren in their armes, and gaue vs many small plates of Silver, and Antimonie made in powder, Plates of Plates wherewith they annoint their faces, and gaue vs many garlands, and many mantles of the hides of Kine, and laded all them that came with vs with such as they had: they care Tame, and

They told vs, that in the place where the Bell was made, were many plates of that mettall under ground, and that that Bell among them was a thing greatly effeemed, and that houses were built there, and wee supposed that it was the South Sea, for we alwayes knew that that Sea was alwayes richer then that of the North. So we departed from them, and went South Sea through fo many forts of Nations, and divers languages, that the memory of man is not able to 50 reckon them, and one people alwayes spoyled the other, and so both they that lost, and they who gained remained well contented. Through those Valleyes where we palled, every one of them carried a flicke or cudgell of three handfuls long, and they went all in troopes, and if any Hare arofe, whereof there are many in that Countrey, they turned her fuddenly, and so many Pletfanthurcudgels fell upon her, that it was a maruellous matter to behold, and in this manner they made ung. her goe from one to another, fo that in my judgement it was the goodlieft hunting that could be imagined, because fometimes they came even into their hands. And when wee ferled our felues at night, we had fo many of them that were given vs, that every one of vs carried eight or ten, and fuch as carried Bowes, appeared not among vs, but went apart through the Mountaines to to feeke deere, and when they came in the evening, they brought five, or fix for every one of vs, and many Fowles, and Quailes, and other hunting game; and finally, what focuer all these people tooke, they presented before vs , not daring to touch or take thereof for themselves, although they should dye for hunger (because they accustomed so to doe, since they came with vs) vn. lefe they had first bleffed the same. The women carried many Mats, with the which they made

1522

Superflicious fanctitying

When that was done, wee commanded them to bake those Deere and Hares, and whatsoener else they had taken; which is very quickly done in certaine ouens which they make for the same purpole. Then we first tooke a little of every thing, and gave the rest to the principall and chiefa men of the people to divide it among them all ; and when every one had received his part, they came vnto vs that we should blow vpon it and blesse it, for otherwise they durst not presume to eate thereof. And many times we brought with vs three or foure thousand perions; whereupon it was a great trouble to vs to blow vpon and bleffe the meate and drinke of every one of them : and for every other thing of theirs which they would doe they came to vs to aske leave ; whereby it may be confidered how great the incumbrance and trouble was which wee endured. The women brought before vs the Tune, Frogs, Wormes, and whatfoeuer elie they could get ; because although they should bee readie to die through hunger, they would not have eaten any thing which they had not received from our hands. And to going with them wee passed over a great River which came from the North parts, and having travelled over certaine Plaines of thirtie leagues, wee found many people who came very farre off to receive vs , and came forth anto the way whether wee were to paffe, and received vs after the fame manner that the other From thence forward they observed another manner of receiving vs, as touching saccage and fooling. For they that came forth into the high-way to bring vs any thing, were not spoiled of in them who came with vs ; but after we were entred into their houses, they of their owne accord offered vs whattoeuer they had and the houles also. Wee gaue all vnto the chiefe and principall. to the intent that they should disude it among them; and alwaies they who remained to spoiled followed vs , whereby the number of people greatly encreased through defire to bee satisfied of their loffes. And they faid vnto the relt that they should beware how they hide any thing . because it could not be but we should know it, and cause them all suddenly to die. The teare and frighting wherein they put them were to great, that the first dates they abode with vs they stood alwaies trembling, not preluming to speake, nor to lift vp their eyes to heaven. They guided vs aboue eightie leagues through a defert Countrey, and very rough mountaines which were fo dry, that there was no hunting game there whereby to fulfame our great hunger. In the to end having passed over a very great River, where the water tooke vo to the breit, many of those who came with vs began to lament, through the exceeding great hunger and travell which they had endured through those mountaines, which were extreame rough and troubletome to refle. The same people brought vs vnto certaine plaines, and at the end of those mountaines much people came farre off to receive vs, as the former had done, and gave fo many garments afterward to them that were with vs , that because they could not carry them they left the halfe behinde them; fo that we told those Indians that brought them, that they should take them againe that they might not be lost: who answered, that they would not doe it for any thing, because it was not their custome after they had once given a thing, to returne afterward to take it agains and

Many gar-Foolish libera

A riner.

Women-

fo they suffered them to be loft. Then we told them that we would goe toward the place where the Sunne went downe, who faid that in those places the people were verie farre off. But wee commanded them to lend to understand that wee were comming, yet they excused themselves the best they could; saying, that they were their enemies, and that they were viwilling we should goe thither; but not daring to doe contrarie to our will, they fent two women thither, whom both the one and the other their enemies kept prisoners. And they fent these, because the women may well negotiate with the men even in the warres : and we followed them, and rested our selves in a place where wee determined to expect them, but they flaied fine daies before they returned, and the Induar faid that they should find no people. Wee told them that they should bring vs toward the North, whereupon they gave vs the lame aniwere, that is to fay, that in those places there were no peo- 10 ple but farre off, and that there was nothing there to eate nor water to bee found; yet notwithitanding all this we continued obstinate, and faid, that we would goe thither, although they alwaies excused themselves the best they could and for this cause wee were angrie, to that one night I arose and went out to sleepe in the open fields apart from them, but they came presently where I was, and neuer flept all that night with much feare, and speaking vnto me they taid that if we would not continue any longer angrie, they would bring vs whether we purposed to goe, although they were certainly affured to die by the way. Neuertheleffe wee alwaies fained that we were yet angrie, and because their feare was not removed, a verie strange accident happened, that is to fay, that on the verie same day many of them became sicke, and the day following eight of them died. Whereupon through all the Countrey where it was knowne, they were 10 60 afraid of vsthat when they faw vs they feemed even todie as it were for feare. So they be fought vs that wee would not continue angrie any longer, and that wee would not caule any more of them to die, certainly perfwading themselves that wee killed them onely with our will and defire. We prayed our Lord God that hee would relieue vs, and so all those that were ficke began to recouer: at which time wee faw a verie maruellous thing, to wir, that the fathers, brethren. and wines of them that died were exceedingly griened to fee them fo ficke, but after they were No lamenting dead they showed not any signe or token of sorrow, nor did wee see them lament nor speake one for the dead to the other, nor make any other figne, nor durst they come neere vnto them vntill we commanded them to burie them : And for the space of fifteene daies and more that we abode with them. we neuer faw one ipeake to the other, nor any of their little children either laughed or cried, and if any of them lamented they carried them verie farre from thence : and with verie sharpe teeth they gashed and cut them from the shoulders to the legs : so feeing their crueltie and being angrie thereat. I demanded why they did it, they answered me, that they did it to chastife them for la-10 menting before me. Al their fears which they have of vs, they yet put into the heads of those who came lately to know vs. because they should give vs whatsoever they have, for they know that we tooke nothing for our felues, but gaue euerie thing to them. This was the most obedient people, and best conditioned that we found in all that Countrie, and commonly they are well dispofed. Those that were ficke, being recovered and restored vnto health, and wee having continued there three daies, the women that we had fent came vnto vs, and faid, that they had found verie few people, because they were gone to the kine, which was now their time. Then we commanded them that were weake to remaine behinde, and those that were well to come with vs : and that two daies journey from thence those two women should goe with two of our men, to cause the people to come forth to the highwaies to receive vs. And so the morning follow-20 ing all those that were the luttieft departed with vs, and after three daies journey wee fetled our felues, and the day following Alonfo del Castiglio and Estenanicco the Negro, together with those two women for their guides ; and that who was their prisoner brought them vnto a River which ranne within a mountaine where a people abode, among whom their father was ; and these were the first houses that wee saw, which had the forme and manner of Houses artis-

There Castiglio and Estenanices arrived, and after they had spoken with those Indians, at the end of three dayes Castiglio returned to the place where they left vs, and brought fine or fixe of those Indians, and faid, That hee had found houses of people and of artificiall 20 building, and that the people eate pulle and gourds, and that hee had feene Maiz there.

There wee abode one day, and the next wee departed, they bringing vs with them to other built houses, where wee did eate of the same food that they eate. And after from thenceforth there was another custome, that they who knew of our comming came not forth into the high-way to meete vs as the other did; but wee found them in their houses, and they did nothing elle for vs. And they were all fitting, and all held their faces towards Other grange the wall, hanging downe their heads with their haire over their eyes, and all their clothes behaviour, were hanged vpaloft in the middle of the house, and from thence forward they began to give vs many mantles of hides, and they had not any thing which they gave vs not. It is a Nation of thebest and goodliest proportion of bodie that euer wee saw there, and of a more Goodly peclively spirit and agilitie, and that vinderstood vs better, and answered vs to what soener wee demanded them , and wee call them , The people of the Kine , because the greater part of the Kine which dye in those Countries is neere thereabouts, and vp that River more then fiftie leagues, they goe killing many. These people goe all naked, after the manner of those whom wee found first. The women goe couered with certaine Deere skinnes; and fo doe some few men also, and particularly the aged, who are not serusceable for the warrese It is a verie populous Countrey; and being demanded why it did not fowe Maiz, they faid, They did it because they would not leese that which they should sowe for two yeeres since their water failed, and the feafons was fo dry, that they all loft the Maiz that they had fowed, and that they could not by any meanes be affured to fowe, vnleffe first it had rained very much; and they prayed vs to fpeake vnto the Heauens that they might fend downe raine : they

50 boyle pulse in this manner. They fill a great pot halfe full with water, and put many of those flones in the fire, which will quickely burne, and when they feeth them on fire they take them vp with certaine tongs of Wood, and cast them into that water in the gourd vntill they make it boyle with that fire of those flones; and when they perceive that the water boyleth , they put in that which they have to boyle , and all this time they doe nothing elie but take out one stone and put in another fired redde hot to make the water

Kkkkkk

d. IIII.

cially built.

CHAP.I.S.4. People of little understanding. Great feare of the Christians.

They come to the South Sea, and travell through a plentifull Countrey, till they meet with Spaniards ; whose crueltie and manner of connerting Sanages is related.

d. IIII.

They come to the South Sea.

Barren Coun-

E went Westward on our journy, & crossed over all the land vntil we came forthat the South Sea, and the feare wherein they had put vs of the great famine which we were to paffe(as furely we paffed it for feuenteen daies rogether, as they had told vs) was not able to divert vs from our intended purpole. Throughout all that Country vp the Riner, they gaue vs many Mantles of the hides of Kine, and wee did not eate of those their fruites.

but our fultenance was every day a piece of the fat of Deere, of the bigneffe of a mans hand. which for this necessitie wee prounded alwaies to haue in a readinesse, and so wee passed all those fenenteene daies iourney, and at the end of them wee croffed ouer the River, and tranel. led other seuenteene daies more to the West, through certaine plaines and verie great mountaines which are found there : and there wee met with a people; who the third part of the veere eate no other thing faue the powder of ftraw, and because wee paffed that way at that featon of the yeere wee also were constrained to eate it, vntill having finished those daies iourney wee found fetted houfes, where there was great quantitie of Maiz, and of that and Maale they gaue vs enough, and Gourds, and Pulie, and Mantles of Bombafin Cot. 20 ton, withall which we laded them whom wee had hyred there, who returned the most contented men in the world. Wee yeelded many thankes vnto God who had brought vs thither. where we found tuch plentie of fustenance.

Among these houses they had some that were of earth , and all the rest were of mats waies found fetled houses and much sustenance of Maiz and Pulse; and they game vs many Deeres skinnes and Mantles of Bombafin Cotten, better then those of New Spaine; and gaue vs also many Garlands, and certaine Corall which grow in the South Sea, and focuer they had, and vnto Dorante they gave Emeralds made into Arrow heads, and with those Arrowes they make their sports and festivall iollitie, seeming to mee very good. I demanded of them whence they had them, who told me that they brought them from certaine very high mountaines, which lye towards the North, and that they got them by exchange and barter for quills and Parrats feathers, and there were many people there and very great houfes. Among them wee faw the women more honourably and honeftly vied, then in any other part of India which wee had feene. They weare certaine smockes of Bombasin Cotton which reach to the knee and ouer them : foft fleeues of certaine folds or plaits of Deere skinnes without haire which touch the ground, and they perfume them with certaine roots which should touch and blesse them, and they were so importunate herein that they put vs to much make them very fine, and so they vie them very well : they are open before and tied toge- 40 ther with filken strings. They goe shod with shooes. All this Nation came vinto vs, that we

many Turkie stones which come from toward the North. And finally they gave vs what- 20

liue on the powder of graw.

People which

A plentifull Countrey with and from thence wee passed more then an hundred leagues into the Countrey, and also houses and corne.

Corall and Turkeffes. Emeralds.

Defire of the

Conceit that trom heauen.

Many lingua-

trouble; because the sicke and the whole would all goe from ys blessed : and it often happened that of the women that came with vs ; some were delivered, and as soone as the children were borne they brought them vnto vs, that wee should touch and blesse them. They accompanied vs vntill they left vs with another Nation, and among all these people they held it for a certaintie that wee came from Heauen : because all the things which they have not, and know not whence they come : they fay , that they descend from Heauen. For so long time as wee went with them, wee trauelled all the day without eating vntill night, and wee eate to little that they were aftonied to fee it. They neuer knew vs wearie, and furely wee 50 were so accustomed to trauell that we were neuer weary. We had great authoritie among them, and they held a reuerent opinion of vs, and to preferue the the same wee seldome spake vnto them. The Negrowas the man that alwaies spoke and informed himselfe of the way that wee would goe by the direction of the people that were there, and touching every other thing which we defired to know. We passed through divers languages, and our Lord God favoured vs withall, for they alwaies understood vs and we understood them, and if we demanded any thing of them by fignes they answered vs as if they should have spoken our language and wee theirs. For although we, understood fix languages, we could not thereby prevaile with all, because wee found more then a thousand differences of language. Throughout all these Countries they who have warre among themselues, became suddenly friends that they might come vato vs and receive vs, 60 and bring vs whatfoever they had. Dorante had fixe hundred Deeres hearts given him, whereupon we called it the people of Hearts. Through this Countrey, entrie is made into many Provinces which thand upon the South Sea, and if they that defire to goe thither enter not from hence, they are loft, because the Coast hath no Maiz, to that they are faine to eate the powder of beetes, straw, and fish, which they take in the Sea with floates, because they have no Canowes, nor any Boat. The women cover their prinities with herbs and straw : they are a people of little understanding and miserable; We supposed that neere vnto the Coast by the way of those people which way wee went, it is more then a thousand leagues of a populous Countrey, and that they have much prouision wherein they A thousand live, for they fowe Pulie and Maiz three times in the yeere. We faw three forts of Deere there, leagues of a one as great as the biggeft fleeres of Castiglia. The houses of all those people for habitation are populous cottages. They have poylon of a certaine kind of tree of the bignesse of an apple trees and they doe no more but gather, the fruit and anoint the Arrow therewith, and if they have no fruit they Great Deerc. to breake of a bough, and with a certaine milkie juyce which it hath they doe the fame. There are many of these trees that are so poysonous, that if the leaves thereof be bruised and cast into any Poisonous are standing poole and not running water, all the Deere and whatsoever other beath that drinketh thereof fuddenly burit afunder. Wee abode three daies with these people, and about one daies journy from thence there was another people, where such showres of raine came powring downe woon vs, that by reason the River which was there was so growne we could not passe it, and so we continued there fifteene daies.

In this meane time, Castielio law the buckle of a Spanish girdle about an Indians necke, and an Iron key fewed together with it, which he tooke from him : then we demanded what that thing was, and they aniwered, that it came from heaven; and questioning further with them who 20 brought tliem, they answered, that certaine men brought them which had beards like vinto vs. who came from heaven; and comming to that river with Horses, brought Lances and Swords, Newes of and two of them passed ouer with their Lances. Afterward, as sunningly as we could, we asked Spaniardi, them what became of those men, so they answered vs, that they went to the Sea. Wee went through many Countries, and found them all dispeopled and not inhabited, for the countrie people went their way flying through the mountaines, not daring to keepe their houses nor labour for feare of the Christians. It greatly discontented vs, seeing the Countrie verie fruitfull and exceeding pleasant and full of water and goodly rivers, and to see them afterward so solitarie and Speniards. fcorched, and the people so feeble and weake fled away and all hid, and because they sowed not in so great famine, they maintained themselves onely with the barkes of trees and roots. Wee 30 had our part of this famine in all this journey, because they could not fo well prouide for vs being fo enally hired, that it feemed they would all die. They brought vs couerings and beades, which they had hid for feare of the Christians, and gave them vnto vs. and declared how at other times the Christians had entred and passed through that Countrie, and had destroied and burned the people, and carried halfe the men away, and all the women and little children, and that such as were able to efeape out of their hands fled away. Wee feeing them fo affrighted that they could not be fecured to fettle them felues in any place, and that they neither would nor could fowe nor labour and manure the Countrie; nay, they rather determined to fuffer themselves to die which feemed better vnto them, then to expect to bee so ill intreated with so great crueltie as they had beene untill that time : and they feemed to bee greatly pleased with vs. Notwithstanding wee 40 feared that being come vnto them who were vpon the Frontiers, and in warre with the Christians least they would vie vs cruelly, and make vs pay for that which the Christians had done vnto them. But God being pleased to conduct vs where they were, they began to feare and reverence vs. as the former had done and fomewhat more, whereat we did not a little maruell. Whereby Gentlenesse it may cleerely appeare, that to allure this Nation to become Christians, and make them obedi- fiver then ent to the Imperial Maieftie, they ought to be gently and curreoufly vied, and this is the onely crueltie. and most certaine way of all other. They brought vs to a people that abode on the top of a mountaine, where they were faine to climbe up by reason of the exceeding roughnesse of those places. where we found many people gathered together for feare of the Christians. These people receiued vs with great good will and kindnesse, and gaue vs whatsoeuer they had, and aboue two

50 thousand burdens of Maiz, which wee gave vnto those miserable and samished people who followed vs and conducted vs thicker : and the day following wee dispatched foure Medengers through the Countrie, as we yied to dor, to the intent that they should assemble and gather together as many people as they could, vinto one people which abode three daies journey off from thence; and having done this, wee departed with all the people that were there, and alwaies found the trackes and tokens where the Christians had lodged, and about midday wee found our Messengers, who told vs that they could not meet with any people, because they were all gone and fled, and hidden in the mountaines, leaft the Christians thould either kill them or make them flaues. And that the night before they had feene the Christians ; they themselves standing behinde certaine trees to behold what they did, and they faw that they led certaine Indians

60 in a Chaine tied.

From this place, which is called the River of Petman, voto the River where Diego di Guzman P. Petwan. arrived, where we understood of the Christians, may be some four effort leagues and from thence where the waters flaied vs, twelue leagues: and from thence to them whom we called the people of the Harts, fine leagues : and from thence to the South Sea, were twelve leagues. Through- De Cart.

Show's of

1526

out all that Country whereforeer wee found mountaines, wee faw great show and tokens of Gold, Iron, Antimony, and Copper, and other mettalls. In those places where the setled house are, in James it is very hor. From thence towards the South of the vnpeopled Country, vnto the North Sea, it is a very naughtie Countrey and poore, where wee endured incredible famine, and they who inhabit there are a most cruell people, and of a very enill nature and behaviour. The Lidians that have fettled houles, and the rest also make no account of Gold, nor of Silver, nor know for what purpose it may ferue.

He feetle th

I tooke the Negro and eleven Indians with mee , and following the Christians by the tracke which they found, I went to three places where they had lodged, and the first day I trawilled ten leagues, and in the morning following found foure Christian Horle-men, who wonde- to red much to fee me fo strangely attired, and in the company of the Indians, and when they faw me they made a stand, and beheld me a good space, so much astonished that they dust not speake to me nor aske mee any queltion. Wherefore I spake vnto them, intreating them to bring me where there Captaine was; and to we went about halfe a league where Diego de Alcarac abode. who was their Captaine, and after I had ipoken vnto him, he told me that hee was in verie will cafe be saufe he had beene there many daies and could not take any Indian, and that he had not amy prouision to depart, because they began to be in great necessitie and famine there. I told him that Dorante and Castielio were temaining behinde, who abode ten leagues from thence, with many people who had conducted vs : Whereupon he presently sent three Horse-men, and fiftie Isdians of those they brought, and the Negro returned with them to guide them; but I remained to there, and requested him to make me a testimonial of the yeere, moneth, and day that I came into that place, and so he did. From this Riner, vnto the people of the Christians called Saint Mi. chael, which pertaineth to the jurisdiction of that Prounce, which they call Nona Galitia, are After fixe daies were past Andrea Dorante, and Arlonzo del Cafesglio came vnto vs., with those who came for them, and brought about fixe hundred persons with them , which were of them whom the Christians had caused to climbe into the mountaines, and hide themselves in the Countrey; and they, who wntill then were come with vs brought them, and accompanied with the trey; and trey, who would then we come we are sounded from an account with the Christians, and they had dispatched away all the other people which they had brought thitter, and came where I was. Alerase intreated me that I would fend to call the people who abode at 30 the Ruser fides, and had fled into the mountaines, and that they should command them to bring them victualls although it were not needfull, because of their owne accord they brought vsa much as they could, and so we presently sent our Messengers to call them : whereupon fix hundred persons came who brought we all the Maiz they had, and they brought it in certaine pipkins couered with clay, wherein they had hid it winder ground, and they brought vs whatforuer they had b-fides: but wee would not takeany thing faue victualls to eate, but gave all the rest to the Christians to be duided among them. And after this we had much controuerfie with them; becaste they would have made those Indians slaves whom wee brought with vs : And through this displeature and disdaine at our departure, we left many Twelf Bowes which we brought, and many Budgets and Arrowes, and among them fue of Emerands, which we eremembred not and to fo we lost them. We gaue the Christians many Mantles of the hides of Kine, and other things which we brought, and much adoe with the Indians to cause them to returne to their houses, and to secure them and make them sowether Maiz. They were not willing to goe but with ys, votill they left vs with other Indians as the custome was : for otherwise if they returned without being lest with others, they feared leaft they should die, and comming with vs they feared not the Christians nor their Lances. This thing greatly displeased the Christians, who caused an Interpreser to speake vinto them in their owne language, and tell them that wee were the very lame men, who for a long time had beene terrified and loft, and were a people of meane condition and of small force, and that they were Lords of the Countrey whom they were to serue. But the I do us made lettle no no account of all this, for that among themselves they said one to ano-19 ther tout the Christians lied, because we came from the place where the Sunne rifeth, and the other Circlisms from the place where the Sunne went downe and that wee healed the ficke, they killed the a that were found; and that wee went naked and without garments; they clothed on har backe and with Lances, and that wee had not any couetous or infatiable defires: fo that whatto uer was given vs, wee prefently gaue it vnto others and had nothing our felues ; and Cre Christians intend nothing elie, but to rob and steale whatsoever they find and give nothing to any : and after this manner those Indians gave their judgement of vs, centuring allow actions cleane contrary to that which the Christians doe. And thus they answered the Christians in their language, and did the like to others in a language which was among them which we understood, and choice that we were call Primbairin; which wee had found yield for about the space of foure 62 hundred leagues of the Countrey where we traudled, fo that we found no other language for the space of four hundred leagues and more. Finally, it was not possible for vs to make those sudsess ischeeue that we were any of thole other Christians; yet with much adoe, and through our perfivation we made them returns vnto their houles, commanding them to rest satisfied, and bring

Fertile Countrey. Great proffers: Hell threatned. CHAP. 1.5.4.

backe their people to lowe and till the ground, which because it was so desolate, became now full of woods, albeit of it owne nature lurely, it were the best Country and more fertile and ahundant then any in all those Indies: for they sowe three times in the yeare, and have many fruites, and many goodly Rivers, and other very good waters. There are many fignes, and great tokens of Mines of Gold and Silver. The people are very well conditioned, and serve the Chris fliant, that are their friends, with a very good will : they are much better disposed then the people of Mexico ; and finally, it wanteth nothing to make it an absolute Countrey. The Indians heing di patched, they told vs, that they would doe as much as they had commanded and bring backe their people, if the Christians would suffer them to continue: whereupon I said and certo tainely affirmed, that if they did it not, the Christians should be much to blame. And after wee had fent them away, the Constians fent vs with an Aleado, named Zebrero, and with him three other Christians, whereby it appearets how much the imaginations of men were deceived, in that we went to fecke liberty among the Confident; and when wee had thought to have found it, the oute contrary befell vs, and by seperating vs from the conversation of the Indiant, they brought vs through desolate Mountaines, because we should not see what they did, nor their will yigge; for they had determined to goe to affault the Indians, whom wee fent away fecured Sauage infide and in peace; and fo they did as they imagined; they brought vs two dayes through those Moun- Iny o' Chiffe caines, without water, and without any beaten way or path, monuch as we thought we should be were the large burtle for thirst whereast from of our mendial demandment within the charge to the control of the control of the charge burtle for thirst whereast from of our mendial demandment within the charge to the charge burtle to the charge burtle to the charge to the have burit for thirit, whereof feuen of our men died, & many friends which the Christians brought Sauages.

30 with them, could not cometall the next day at noone, where we found water : and we transiled with them about fine and twenty leagues, at the end whereof, we came vnto a people of the /mdiant, which were in peace, and there the Alcado, who brought vs, left vs, and went three leagues further to a people called Caliazzan, where Melchier Diaz, the Sergeant Major, and Captaine of that Prounce abode. As ioone as he knew of our comming, hee prefently came the fame night to finde vs out, and lamented much with vs, highly praising our Lord God, for his exceeding mercy cowards vs, and spake vnto vs, and vied vs very well, and in the behalfe of the Gouernour Numer de Gueman, and himielte, offered vs whatfoeuer hee had or could procure. and began to speake much of the cuill viage wherewith Alexae and the rest had vied vs, for that we held it for cereame, that if hee had bin there, that which was done vnto vs had not 30 bin done, and that night being pasted, we departed for Anhacan, and the Sergeant Major intrea-

sed we earneftly to fray there, and that wee might doe great feruite vinto our Lord God, and to wour Maieflieibecaufe the Countrie was desolate, without manuring, and altogether defroyed, and the Indians went and hid chemielues, dying through the Mountaines, vn willing to come and flay with their people, and that we should fend to call them, and command them in the name of our Lord God, and of your Maiesty, to come and inhabit the Plain, and till the Countrie. But this feemed a troubletome matter vnto vs to put it in execution, because wee had not any of our Indiwas, or those wine were wont to accompany vs, to helpe and further vs in fuch like offices. Notwithfranding we thoughe good to proue two of our Indians which we had prisoners there, who were of the fame Country, and were found with the Christian's when we first came among them,

40 and faw the people that accompanied vs, & vnJeritood by them the great authority & dominion which we had had throughout all those Countries, & the miraculous things which we had done in healing the difeafed, and many other things, and with thefe we fent others of the fame people which were also with them, to call the Indians that abode in the Mountains, & those of the river Parachan, where we had found the Christians, And we willed them to tell them, that they should come vnto vs. because we would speake with them; and so secure them that went, and the other who should come, we gaue them a great gourd, of those which we caried in our hands, which was a principall token and speciall argument of great state, and with this they went and travailed seuen daies, and in the end came and brought with them three Lords of those who had fled into the Mountaines, who were accompanied with fitteene men, who brought vs Crownes, Turkies, and plumes of Feathers; and the melfengers told vs; that they had not found them of the River

50 from whence we came, because the Christians had caused them to flye into the Mountaines : So Melchior Diaz willed the Interpreter to fpeake vnto thole Indians in our behalte, and fay vnto them, that we were come from God, who abideth in heamen, and had tranailed through the world nine Monnet of yeares, faying voto all shem that we found; that they should beleeve in God, and ferue him, because he is Spouther action Lord of all the things in the world, and that he gineth a reward and paiment unto the good, and perpetual dins. pumisment of hell fire vinto the wicked : and that when the dood men dy e, he taketh them up into beauen, where afterwards they sall wener dye any more, nor suffer hunger or cold, by endare any other necessisie; but findle there greater glory then can be imagined. And they who will not beleene nor obay him, shall be throwne downe under the earth in the company of Dinels, into an exceeding huge fire which never

6 hall have end; but continually and eternally torment them. And besides that, if they will become Christians, wad ferme Gidufter the manner that we will tell them, the Christians shall hold them for breibres, and who them very well; and that we would command that they should not doe them any burt, nor take their Countrie from them, but become their good friends. And if they would not doe it, the Christians should effethem very cruelly, and carry them for slaves into farre and remote Countries. To this L11111 2

Ingratefull

. THE BIG.

they answered the Interpreter, that they would become very good Christians, and serue God. And demanding of them, whom they adored, and to whom they facrificed, and of whom they asked water for their feede time, and health and fafety for themselues; they answered, the they praied voto a man which is in heauen, and being demanded how they called him, they faid Aguar; and they believed that he created all the world, and the things therein. Then wee questioned them further, whence they knew that, who answered, that their Parents told them fo, and that of a long time they understood it, and knew that he fent water, and all other good things. So wee caused the Interpreter to tell them, that hee whom they called Aguar, we called God, and that they also should call him so, and serue him, and adore him, as we had appointed, and they should finde it very good for them. They answered, that they understood all ve- in ry well, and that they would doe fo; wherefore wee commanded them to descend from the Mountaines, and that they should live secure and in peace, and dwell in the Country, and build their houses, and among them make a house for God, and fet a Croffe at the entry thereof like vnto that which we had there : and when the Christians should come, they should goe to meete them with the Croffe, without Bowes and weapons, and conduct them to their houses, and give them such as they had to eate, and so they would not doe them any harme, but would become their friends: and the Captaine gave them some of the Mantles, and yied them very well. So they departed, carrying with them the two Indians, which before were prifoners, whom we had fent as Meffengers, and all this was done in the prefence of the Secretary of the Gouernour, and many other witnesses. Now when the Indians were returned, all 20 the rest of that Province, who were friends vnto the Christians, came to see vs. and brought vs Crownes and Feathers, and wee commanded them to make Churches, and fet Croffes there, because vitill then they had not made them, and wee made them bring the children of the principall Seigniory to Baptile them : whereupon the Captaine prefently made a vowe and promife vnto God, neither to make nor causeany entry to be made vpon them, nor take slaves or people in those Countries, which we had secured, and that he would observe this, vntill your Maiefty or the Gouernour Nunez di Guzman, or the Viceroy in his name, should provide better for the feruice of our Lord God, and of your Maiefty.

Christianity shall not be so difficult a matter to bring in, because two thousand leagues which we traugaled by land and Sea, and other ten moneths, after we came out of captuitie, we traugiled w: thout ftay, and neuer found Sacrifices nor Idolatry. In this time, we croffed ouer from one Sea to another, and by the notice, which through much diligence wee procured to have, from the one coast to the other, wee suppose it to be about two hundred leagues broad and more, and wee understand that on the coast of the South Sea are Pearles and great riches, and that all the best and richest are necrethere abouts. We abode in the towne of Saint Michael, vntill the fifteenth of the moneth of May, and the occasion why we staied there so long was this, because from thence vnto the Citie of Compostella, where the Gouernour Namez de Guzman made hisrefidence, it was 100.leagues distance; and the Country was not inhabited & enemy, and it was fit, that other people hould go with ve to conduct vs, among whom there were forty horiemen, who accompanied vs about fortie leagues, and from thence forward, fix Christians came with vs, who 40 brought five hundred Indian flaves, and being come to Compostella, the Governour Nunez receined vs very curteoufly, and gaue vs fuch as he had to cloath vs, which apparell for many dayes, I was not able to carry, and wee could not sleepe but on the ground. And so after tenne or He alfo de cri- twelue dayes wee departed for Mexico, and came thither on Saint lanes his euen, where the Viceroy and the Marquelle of the Valley kindely intreated vs , and gaue vs apparell and whattoeuer they had.

To the Reader.

Aptaine Soto was the some of a Squire of Xerez of Badaioz. Hee went into the Spanish Indies when Peter Arias of Auila was Gonernour of the West Indies: And there be was without any thing else of his owne, sane his Sword and Target: and for his good qualities and valour, Peter Arias made him Captaine of a troope of hor semen, and by his commandment he went with Fernando Pizarto to the conquest of Peru : where (as many persons of credit reported, which were there present) as well at the taking of Atabalipa, Lord of Petu, at at the affault of the Citie of Cuico, and in all other places where they found resistance, where some the was present, be surpassed all other Captaines and principal persons. For which cause, besides his part of the treasure of Atabalipa, he bad a good share : whereby in time hee Booke: which gashered an hundred and fourescore thousand Duckets together, with that which fell to his part; which 60 being no part be brought into Spaine : whereof the Emperour borrowed a certaine part, which he repaired againe with of Florida dif- 60000. Rials of Plate in the rent of the Silkes of Granada, and all the reft was delivered him in the Concourty, I have tractation boufe of Stuil. From Stuil be went to the Court, and in the Court, there accompanied him John Danusco of Siuil, and Lewis Moscoso D'aluarado, Nunno de Touar, and John Rodriguez Lobillo.

200, leagues betwixt the coast of the South Seas.

He could not weare apparell for many daics the ground. beth his voiage to Spaine,

Except John Danusco, all the rest came with him from Peru; and enery one of them brought sourceene or Except John Danulco, at the rest came with own strong returning the energy one of toem or rengest source teem or None of those of fifteen thousand Duckets: all of them went well and costs, apparelled. And although Sotto of his owne men prospeced men prospeced Present town and therall, get because that was the first time that he was to shew himselfe in the Court, be which were mainre was not and went accompanied with those which I have named, and with his servants, and many guilty of Acad Bent franchly, and went accompanied with those which were Pent Francis, and and the married with Donna Habella de Bouadille, daughter of Peter Arias belija or Ausather which reforted unto him. He married men Donna Inquesia at Bouautte, mangiors of the file of C. ba, and halpas death:
of Auila, Earle of Punno en Roitto. The Emperour made him the Gonernour of the Isle of C. ba, and halpas death:
but by civil of Aulia, Larie of Luthus of Florida; with a title of Marquesse of certaine part of the lands that bee wars or otherproma conquer.

The History partly for better knowledge of ibose parts of the world and partly for the profit of Virmend Andio to ginian adventurers, and a sewerers, I have here publified for briefer then the author on Portuguic and it happened to out of him Master Hakluyt) had done; and added this to that of Neruaz. Cabeza de Vaca the Anther of that at this time had come to the Court to beg the conquest of Florida : but feeing Don Ferdi- Cabezade Vaca nando de Soto bad gotten it already for his outbes fake, be faid, he might tell nothing of that which they was the Gouernanco de Jou una gusen mour of the R. would know. Soto made him great offers : and being agreed to goe with him, because he would not give uer of Place. him moves to pay for a Ship, which be had bought, they brake off, and be went for Gonernour to the Rsnim money to pay for mount, and the spindola, and Baltalar de Gallegos went with Soto. Thefe with Sete into mer of the same and enroled, which Soto lived and accepted of, and did accompany him into Flo- Florida. The rida; which were in all fix hundred men. He had aiready hough seven Shipa, and had all necessary pro- in his large stomisson abourd them. ston about them. In the yeare of our Lord 1538, in the moneth of Aprill, the Adelantado delinered his Shippes to the sign containing Captaines which were to goe in them. They arrived at Saint lago in Cuba on Whisfunday. The Citie he had tooo. of 1200 hath eightie houles which are great and well contrined. The most part have the wals made of men with him. boords, and are covered with thatch; it hath some bowses builded with lime and stone, and covered with tiles. It hath great Orchards and many trees in them, differing from those of Spaine: there be Figge. Great Figs. trees which beare Figges as big as ones fift, je low within, and of small tafte; and other trees which beare fruite which they call Aranes, in making and bigneffe the to a small Pineapple : it is a fruit very sweete Anance. fruite which they call Ananes, in making and vigneise the to a small true apple : us a new very sweets Great Pine-in taste: the shell being taken away, the hernell is like a pooce of fresh cheefe. In the granges abroad in apples. the Countrie there or other great Pincaples, which grow on low trees, and ore just to "Alestree: they are of a very good finell and exceeding good safes. Other trees doe beave a frame, which they call 30 Mameis of the bigueffe of Peachet. Thu the Islanders doe hold for the best fruit of the country. There Mameis, an is another fruit which they call Guayabas like Filberds, as bigge as figges. There are other trees as excellentimite birb as a faurline, basing one onely flock without any bourge, and the leases as long as a salting dort:

Gusyabas,

and the fruit is of the birnelle and fullion of a Cucumber, one bunch bearest tracts or their, and as they ripen the tree bendeth downwards with them: they are called in this Countrie Plantanes, and are of a Plantanes. good tafte, and ripen after they be gathered, but these are the better which ripen upon the tree it selfe: they beare fruit but once, and the tree being cut downe, there spring up others out of the but, which beare fruit the next yeare. There is another fruit, whereby many people are sustained, and chiefty the sames, which are called Batatas. These grow now in the Isls of Terzera, belonging to the Kingdome of Portugall, Batatas, or and they grow within the earth, and are like a fruit called lname, they have almost the taste of a Chest- Poracos. 40 nut. The Bread of this countrie is also made of rootes which are like the Batatas. And the flocke whereon those rootes doe grow is like an Elder tree : they make their ground in little billocks, and in each of them The Castani they thrust foure or fine ftakes; and they gather the rootes a yeare and an halfe after they fet them. If any toot, one, thinking it is a Batata or Potato root, chauce to eate of it nener fo little, be is in great danger of death; which was seene by experience in a Soldier, which as some as he had caten a very little of one of those roots be died quickly. They prace the fe voots and frampe them, and founds them on a thing like a prefer the imperious that commends from shorm is of an emit front. The Bread is of little taite and leff fulfiance. Of the fruits of Spaine there are Figs and Oranges, & they beare fruit all the yeare because the foile is very ranke and Horics. fruitfull. In this Countrie are many good Horfes, and there is greene graffe all the yeare. There be many wilde Oxen and Hogs, whereby the people of the Island is well furnished with flesh : Without the townes a-

50 broad in the Countrie are many fruits. And it bappeneth sometimes that a Christian goeth ont of the way and is lost fifteene or twenty daies, because of the many paths in the thicke grows that crosse to or fro made by the Oxen: and being thus loft they fuit aine themselnes with fruits and palmitos: for there be many great groues of Palme trees through all the Island; they yeelde no other fruite that is of any profit. The like of Cuba is 300 leagues long from the East to the West, and is in some places 30 in others 40 leagues from The length North to South. It hath fix towns of Christians : to wit, S. Iago, Baracoa, Bayamo, Puerto de Princi- or Cuba. pes, S. Espirito, and Hauana. Enery one bath betweene thirty and forty housholds, except S. Iago and Hauana, which have about fixtie or eightie houses. They have Churches in each of them, and a Chaplen which confesset bem and faith Masse. In S. 1290 is a Monasterie of Franciscan Friers : it hathbut few Friers, and is well provided of almes, because the Commerce is rich : The Church of S. Iago hash bonest renemen, 60 and there is a Curat and Probends and many Priests, as the Church of that Citie, which is the chiefe of all the Island. There is in this Countrie much Gold, and few saues to get it: For many have made away themselves , because of the Christians evill Viage of them in the Mmes . A Steward of Valques A wittie stra-Porcallo, which was an inhibitour in that Island, understanding that his slaues would make away themfelues, flated for them with a cudgell in his hand at the place where they were to meete, and told them, that they could weither doe nor thinke any thing, that bee did not know before, and that bee came thither to kill him felf: with them, to the end, that if he had ved them hadly in this World, hee might ve them. worfe in the World to come: And this was a meane that they changed their purpofe, and turned home a. gaine to doe that which be commanded them.

This Preface is contained more at large in the fixe first Chapters of

CHAP. IIa

FERDINANDO de SOTO his Voyage to Florida and Discouerie of the Regions in that Consinent: with the I rauels of the Spaniards foure yeeres together therein, and the accidents which befell them: poritten by a Portugall of the Company, and bere contracted.

SOTOS entrance into Florida, taking of IOHN ORTIZ one of Naruaz his company, comming to Paracoffy, and divers other Caciques, with accidents

N Sunday the eighteenth of May, in the yeere of our Lord 1539. the Adelantado or President departed from Hanana in Cuba with his fleet, which werenine veffels, fine great shippes, two Carauels, and two Brigantines : They sayled seuen

Pasca de Spirito Santo (which we call Whitfon Sunday) they faw the Land of 30 a dayes with a profeerous wind. The five and twentieth day of May, the day de

Floride : and because of the shoalds, they came to an anchor a league from the Trea Garcilaffe de la Veza hath writ en a fto y of chis youage. He faith Sate had with him 950. fouldiers, had enterrais ned for the conquest of Florida, and This Aurhor hath but 600.

> The Towns lu:.c.

Towne of

Villa

shoare. On Friday the thirtieth of May they landed in Floreda, two leagues from a Towne of an Indian Lord, called Vena, They fet on Land two hundred and thirteene Horfes, which they Dendes Mari-ners, which he brought with them, to vnburden the ships, that they might draw the lesse water. He landed all his men, and only the Seamen remained in the things, which in eight daies, going vo with the tide euerie day a little, brought them vp voto the Towne. Affoone as the people were come on shore, he pitched his Campe on the Sea fide, hard you the Bay which went vp vnto the Towne. And pretently the Captaine Generall Vafques Percallo with other leuen Horlemen foraged the Countrie halte a league round about, and found fixe Indians, which refifted him with their Arrowes, from Saint La- which are the weapons which they vie to fight with all : The Horiemen killed two of them, 40 and the other foure escaped; because the Countries cumbersome with Woods and Bogs, where the Horses stacke fast, and fell with their Riders, because they were weake with travelling spon the Sea. The same night following the Gouernour with an hundred men in the Brigantines came vpto the lighted vpon a Towne, which he found without people, because, that assoone as the Christians had light of Land, they were descried, and law along the Coast many smokes, which the Indians had made to give advice the one to the other. The next day Luys de Mofcofo, Master of the Campe fet the men in order, the Horsemen in three Squadrons, the Vantgard, the Batalian, and the R-reward : and so they marched that day, and the day following, compassing great Creekes which came out of the Bay : They came to the Towne of Vena, where the Gouernout was, on Sunday the first of June, being Trinitie Sunday. The Towne was of seuen or eight houses. The 50 Lords house frood neere the shoare vpon a very high Mount, made by hand for strength. At another end of the Towne flood the Church, and on the top of it flood a towle made of wood with gilded ries. Here we found some Pearles of small value, spoiled with the fire, which the Indians doe pierce and ftring them like Beads, and weare them about their neckes and hand-wrifts, and they efteeme them very much. The houses were made of Timber, and covered with Palme

From the Towns of Voica the Gouernour fent Alcalde Maior Baltafar de Gallegor with fortie Horièmen and eightie Footmen into the Countrie to fee if they could take any Indoes: and the Captaine lobn Rodriguez Lobillo another way with fiftie Fuotmen. lobn Rodriguez Lobillo returned to the Campe with fixe men wounded, whereof one died, and brought the toure ladae 60 women, which Baltafur Gallegos had taken in the Cabbins or Cottages. Two Iraques from the Towne; comming into the plaine field, he espied ten or eleven Indians, among whom was a Chris Bian, which was naked and foorched with the Sunne, and had his armies razad after the manner of the Indians, and differed nothing at all from them. And alloone as the Horsemen law them they ranne toward them. The Indians fled, and some of them hid themselves in a Wood, and they overtooke two or three of them which were wounded and the Christian seeing an Horseman runne vpon him with his Lance, began to crie out, Sirs, I am a Christian, slay here not, northe lindians, for they have faved my life. And straight way hee called them, and putchem out offeare, and they came forth of the Wood vnto them. The Horsemen tooke both the Christian and the Indians up behind them; and toward night came into the Campe with much ioy; which thing being knowne by the Gouernour, and them that remained in the Campe, they were re-This Christians name was John Ortiz, and hee was borne in Smill, of Worthipfull Parentage. Inha Ortiz, and

10 He was twelve yeares in the hands of the Indians, He came into this Countrie with Pamphilade, ued 12 years, Hewas twelue yeeres in the hands or the smanns The terms into this Countries with a mong the Names and returned in the ships to the lland of Cube, where the Wife of the Governoor Pam-Plantages of the Narnace, was and by his commandement with twentie or thirtie other in a Brigandine, Veita and Mareturned backe againe to Florida: and comming to the Port in the fight of the Fowne, on the shoare they faw a Cane sticking in the ground, and riven at the top, and a Letter in it cand they. Nature, beleeued that the Gouernour had left it there to give advertitement of himfelfe when hee refolued to goe up into the Land : and they demanded it of four eor flue Indians, which walked along the Sea shoare : and they bal them by signes to come on shoare for it : which against the will of the rest lobs Ortic and another did. And associated were on the Land, from the houfes of the Towne issued a great number of Indians, which compassed them about, and tooke them

20 in a place where they could not flee; and the other which fought to defend himselfe, they prefently killed upon the place and tooke lobn Ortiz aline, and carried him to Veine their Lord. And those of the Brigandine fought not to land, but pur themselves to Sea, and returned to the the lland of Cuba. Vesta commanded to bind lohn Orriz hand and foot vpon foure stakes aloft vpon a rafe, and to make a fire vnder him, that there he might bee burned : But a daughter of his defired him that he would not put him to death, alleaging, that one only Christian could do him neither hurt nor good, telling him, that it was more for his honour to keepe him as a Captine. And Ucus granted her request, and commanded him to bee cured of his wounds : and affoone as he was whole, he gaue him the charge of the keeping of the Temple : because that by night the Wolves did carrie away the dead corples out of the fame : who commended himselfe to God and

30 tooke you him the charge of his Temple. One night the Wolues gate from him the corples of a little child, the Sonne of a principall Indian; and going after them he threw a Dart avone of the Wolves, and strooke him that carried away the corps, who feeling himselfe wounded, left it, and fell downe dead neere the place; and hee not woting what he had done, because it was night, went backe agains to the Temple : the morning being come, and finding not the bodie of the childe, he was very lad. Alloone as Vous knew thereof, he resoluted to put him to death; and fent by the tract, which hee faid the Wolues went, and found the bodie of the childe, and the Wolfe dead a little beyond; whereat Voita was much contented with the Christian; and with the watch which heekept in the Temple, and from thence forward effeemed him much. Three yeeres after he fell into his hands, there came another Lord called Mocogo, whodwelleth two

49 daies journey from the Port, and burned his Towne. Vens fled to another Towne that he had in journie from another Sea Port. Thus Iohn Ortizloft his office and fauour that he had with him. These people Vina being worth ppers of the Deuill, are wont to offer vp vnto him the lines and bloud of their Indian or of any other people they can come by: and they report, that when hee will have them Humane Sadoe that Sacrifice vnto him, he speaketh with them, and telleth them that hee is athirst, and crifice. willerh them to facrifice vnto him. Iohn Ortiz had noticeby the Damofell that had deliuered him from the fire, how her father was determined to facrifice him the day following, who willed him to flee to Mocogo : for the knew that he would vie him well : for the heard fay, that he had asked for him, and faid he would be glad to fee him: and because he knew not the way, she went with him halte a league out of the Towne by night, and fet him in the way, and returned be-

50 cause the would not be discourred. Iohn Ortiz travelled all that night, and by the morning came A Rivers vnto a River, which is in the Territorie of Mococo. Three or foure Indians carried the newes to their Lord : who came forth a quarter of a league from the Towne to receive him; and was very glad of him. He caused him presently to sweare according to the custome of the Christians, that he would not runne away from him to any other Lord : and promited him to entreate him very well; and that if at any time there came any Christians into that Countrie, he would freely let him goe, and give him lease to goe to them : and likewife tooke his oath to performe the fame according to the Indian custome. He dwelt with Mossco nine yeeres, with small hope of seeing any Christians. Alloone as our Gouernour arrived in Florida, it was knowne to Mococo, and Braightway he fignified to lobn Ortiz, that Christians were lodged in the Towne of Veita. And

60 Mosogo gaue him ten or eleven principal Indians to heate him company and as they went to the P. rt where the Gouernour was, they met with Baltafar de Gallegos, as I have declared before. Affoone as hee was come to the Campe, the Gouernour commanded to give him a fute of appatell, and very good Armour, and a faire Horie; and enquired of him, whether hee had notice of any Countrie where there was any Gold or Siluer ! He answered, No, because hee neuer went ten leagues compasse from the place where he dwelt : But that thirty leagues from thence dwele an Indian Lord, which was called Parocoffi, to whom Mosogo and Voica, with all the rest of the Goaft payed Tribute, and that he peraduenture might have notice of some good Countrie: and that his Land was better then that of the Sea-coalt, and more fruitfull and plentifull of Maiz Whereof the Governour received great contentment; and faid that hee defired no more then to find victuals, that he might goe into maine Land, for the Land of Florida, was fo large, that in one place or other there could not choose but bee some Countrie. The Carique Morogo came to the Port to vifit the Gou mour.

Para:071 30. leagues from Parte de Stirito Santo.

Paracoli.

Cale.

The Gouernour answered him, That although in freeing and sending him the Christian, he had - professed his honour and promise, yet he thanked him, and held it in such esteeme, as it had no Id comparison; and that he would alwayes hold him as his Brother, and would fauour him in all things to the vtmost of his power. Then he commanded a shirt to be given him, and other things wherewith the Cacique being very well contented, to his leave of him, and departed to his

- was owne Towne. From the Port de Spirito Santo where the Gouernour lay, he fent the Alcalde Maior Baltalas de Gallego: with fittle Horlemen, and thirtie or fortie Footmen to the Prouince of Paracoff, to view the disposition of the Countrie, and informe himselfe of the Land farther inward . and to fend him word of fuch things as he found. Likewise he sent his ships backe to the Hand of Cs. ba, that they might returne within a certaine time with victuals. Vasques Porcallo de Fisnerea. which went with the Gouernour as Captaine Generall; (whose principall intent was to fend flaues from Flarida, to the Iland of Cuba, where he had his goods and Mynes) having made some In-rodes, and freing no Indians were to be got, because of the great Bogges and thicke Woods that were in the Countrie, confidering the disposition of the same, determined to returne to Caba, And shough there was some difference betweene him and the Gouernour, whereupon they neither deals nor connerfed together with good countenance, yet notwithstanding with louise words hee asked him leave and departed from him. Baltafar de Gallegos came to the Paracolli: There came to him thirty Indians from the Cacique, and faid, that their Lord was ill at eafe, and therefore could not come, but that they came on his behalfe to fee what he demanded. Hee asked them if they knew or had notice of any rich Country where there was Gold or Silver. They told them they slid : and that toward the West, there was a Prouince which was called Cale; and that others that inhabited other Countries had warre with the people of that Countrie, where the most part of the yeere was Summer, and that there was much Gold : and that when those their enemies came to make warre with them of Cale, these Inhabitants of Cale did weare hat of Gold, in manner of Head-pieces. Baltafar de Gallegos, feeing that the Cacique came not, thinking all that they faid was fained, with intent that in the meane time they might fet themfelues in laftetie, fearing, that if he did let them goe, they would returne no more, commanded the thirtie Indians to be chained, and fent word to the Gouernour by eight Horsemen what had paffed whereof the Gouernour with all that were with him, at the Port de Spirato Santo received great comfort, supposing that that which the Indians reported, might be true. Hee left Captains Calderan at the Port, with thirtie Horfemen and feuentie Footmen , with prouision for two go weeres, and himselfe with all the rest marched into the mayne Land, and came to the Paracossi, at whole Towne Batafar de Gallegos was : and from thence with all his men tookethe way to Cale. He passed by a little Towne called Acela, and came to another called Tocaste : and from thence he went before with thirtie Horsemen, and fiftie Footmen toward Cale. And passing by a Towne, whence the people were fled, they faw Indians a little from thence in a Lake; to whom the Interpretor spake. They came vnto them and gaue them an Indian for a guide : and hee came to a River with a great current, and vpon a Tree, which was in the midft of it, was Aiwift Riuer. made a Bridge, whereon the men pailed : the Hories fwamme over by a Hawfer, that they were pulled by from the otherfide: for one which they droue in at the first without it, was drowned, From thence the Gouernour sent two Hossemen to his people that were behind, to make halle 50 after him; because the way grew long, and their victuals short. He came to Cale, and found the Towns without people. He tooks three Indians which were Spies, and tarried these for his people that came after, which were fore vexed with hunger and euill wayes, because the Countrie was very barren of Maiz, low, and full of water, bogs, and thicke woods; and the victuals, which they brought with them from the Port de Spirito Santo, were fpent. Wheretoeuer any Towne was found, there were some Beets, and he that came first gathered them, and sodden with water and falt, did eate them without any other thing; and fuch as could not get them, gather red the stalkes of Maiz and eate them, which because they were young had no Maiz in them. When they came to the River which the Governour had passed, they tound Palmitos vpon low Palme-trees like those of Andaluzia. There they met with the two Horsemen which the Go- 62 uernour fent vnto them, and they brought newes that in (ale there was plentie of Maiz; at which newes they all reioyced. Affoone as they came to Cale, the Governour commanded them to gather all the Maiz that was ripe in the field, which was furicient for three moneths. At the gathering of it the Indians killed three Christians, and one of them which were taken told the Governour, that within feuen dayes journey, there was a very great Province, and plentifull of Maiz, which was called Apalache. And prefently hee departed from Cale with fiftie Horsemen, and fixtie Footmen. He left the Master of the Campe Luys de Moscoso with all the rest of the people there, with charge that he should not depart thence untill he had word from him. And because hitherto none had gotten any slaves, the bread that every one was to eate, hee was faine himfelfe to beate in a Morter made in a piece of Timber with a Pettle, and some of them Trauelling did fift the flowre through their fhirts of Mayle. They baked their bread vpon certaine Tile- Souldiers fhifts shares which they fet ouer the fire. It is so troublesome to grinde their Maiz, that there were for bread. many that would rather not eat it, then grind it: and did eate the Maiz parched and fodden.

The eleuenth day of August 1539, the Gouernour departed from Cale; hee lodged in a little The elementh day of August 1539, the Course and Charles and the third day at Vinama, and Trava.

Townecalled Tiara, and the next day in another called Posano, and the third day at Vinama, and came to another Towne, which they named the Towne of Eaill peace; because an Indian came in Polano. came to another Towne, which they named the Towne of Lanu peace, level of the Cacique, and that he with his people would ferue the Gouernour, The Towne of and that if he would let free eight and twentie persons, men and women, which his men had tathe night before, he would command provision to be brought him, and would give him a guide to infructhim in his way : The Gouernour commanded them to befet at libertie, and to keepe him in fafegard. The next day in the morning there came many Indians, and fet themselves round about the Towne neere to a Wood. The Indian wisted them to carrie him neere them : and that he would speake vnto them, and affure them, and that they would doe what soeuer he comman-ao ded them. And when he faw himfelte neere vnto them he brake from them, and ranne away fo (wiftly from the Christians, that there was none that could overtake him, and all of them fled into the Woods. The Gouernour commanded to loofe a Greyhound, which was alreadie fleshed Greyhound on them, which passing by many other Indians, caught the counterfeit Cacique, which had ef- catchesh the capel from the Christians, and held him till they came to take him. From thence the Gouer-fugitive. nour lodged at a Towne called Cholupaha: and because it had flore of Marz in it, they named it Cholupaha. Villa forta. Beyond the fame there was a River, on which he made a Bridge of Timber, and tra- A River. uelled two daies through a defert. The feuenteenth of August, he came to Caliquen, where hee Caliquen. was informed of the Province of Apalache: They told him that Pamphilo de Narnaez had beene there, and that there he tooke shipping, because he could find no way to goe forward: That there 30 was none other Towne at all; but that on both fides was all water. The whole company were verie fad for these newes; and counselled the Gouernour to goe backe to the Port de Spirite San-

to and to abandon the Countrie of Florida, left he should perith as Warnaez had done : declaring. that if he went forward, he could not returne backe when he would, and that the Indians would gather vp that small quantitie of Maiz which was left. Whereunto the Gouernour answered, that he would not goe backe, till he had feene with his eies that which they reported : faying, that he could not beleeve it, and that wee should be put out of doubt before it were long, And he fent to Luys de Moscoso to come presently from Calo, and that hee tarried for him heere. Luys de Mofcofo and many others thought, that from Apalache they should returne backe; and in Calo they buried their Iron Tooles, and divers other things. They came to Calignen with great trouao ble; because the Countrie, which the Gouernour had passed by, was spoiled and destitue of Maiz.

After all the people were come together, he commanded a Bridge to bee made over a River that passed neere the Towne. Hee departed from Calignen the tenth of September, and carried the A River. Cacique with him. After hee had trauelled three dayes, there came Indians peaceably, to visit their Lord, and enery day met vs on the way playing vpon Flutes: which is a token that they yle, that men may know that they come in peace. They faid, that in our way before was there a Cacique, whose name was Vzachil, a Kinsman of the Cacique of Caliquen their Lord , wayting for him with many prefents, and they defired the Gouernour that hee would loofe the Cacique. But hee would not , fearing that they would rife , and would not give him any Guides, and fene them away from day to day with good wordes. 50 He travelled fine daies, passed by some small Townes, came to a Towne called Napetnea, the fif- Some small teenth day of September. There were thirtie or fortie Indians flaine. The reft fled to two very Townes.

great Lakes, that were somewhat distant the one from the other: There they were swimming, Mapetucaand the Christians round about them. The Calienermen and Croffe-bowmen shot at them from the banke; but the diffance being great, and shooting afarre off, they did them no hurt. The Gouernour commanded that the tame night they should compasse one of the Lakes, because they were fo great, that there were not men enow to compaffe them both : beeing belet, affoone as night that in, the Indians, with determination to runne away, came I wiraming very foftly to the banke; and to hide them blues, they pur a water Lilly leafe on their heads. The Horfemen affoone as they perceived it to ftirre, ranne into the water to the Horses breafts, and the Indians fled a-

6) gaine into the Lake. So this night passed without any rest on both sides. Iohn Orriz perswaded them, that feeing they could not escape, they should yeeld themselves to the Governour : which they did, enforced thereunto by the coldnesse of the water; and one by one, hee first whom the cold did first ocercome, cried to lobn Ortiz, desiring that they would not kill him, for he came to put himfelfe into the hands of the Gouernour. By the morning watch they made an end of yeel-

Indian Subtlety,

Totale.

Another

Towner

A Lake.

Caie.

A new Conipiracie,

ding themselves : only twelve principall men, being more honourable and valorous then the reft refolved rather to die then to come into his hands. And the Indians of Faracoffi, which were now loofed out of chaines, went fwimming to them, and pulled them out by the haire of their heads, and they were all put inchaines, and the next day were divided among the Christians for their feruice. Being thus in captilitie, they determined to rebell; and gaue in charge to an Indian, which was Interpretor, and held to bee valuant, that affoone as the Gouernour did come to speake with him, hee should cast his hands about his necke, and choake him. Who, when he faw opportunitie, laid hands on the Gouernor, and before he cast his hands about his nocke, he gave him fuch a blow on the notirils, that he made them guth out with bloud, and presently all the rest did rise. He that could get any weapons at hand or the 1 andle wher withhe Io did grind the Maiz, fought to kill his Mafter, or the first hee met before him : a..d hee that could get a Lance or Sword at hand, bestirred himselse in such fort with it, as though he had vsed it all his life time. One Indian in the Ma ket place enclosed betweene fifteene or twentie Footmen. made away like a Bull with a Sword in his hand, till certaine Halbardiers of the Gouernor came. which killed him. Another gat vp with a Lance to a loft made of Canes, which they build to keepe their Maizin, which they call a Barbacea, and there he made fuch a noy fe, as though tenne men had beene there defending the doore : they flue him with a partifan. The Indians were in all about two hundred men. They were all fubdued. And some of the youngest the Gouernour gaue to them which had good chaines, and were carefull to looke to them that they gat not away. All the test becom named to be put to death, being tyed to a stake in the midst of the Market place: 10 and the Lidians of the Paracoffi did shoot them to death.

Two bundred Ingiam tag.n.

A Ruer.

Haralant a great Towns. VruchiL. * Aboboras.

The Gove nour departed from Naprines the three and twentieth of September : hee lodged by a React, where two Indians brought him a Bucke from the Cacique of Vzachil. The next day he pailed by a great To was called Hapalaya; and lodged at Vzachil, and found no people in it, because they durit not tarrie for the notice the Indians had of the flaughter of Napetuca. Hee found in that Towns great store of Maiz. French Beanes and * Pompions, which is their food, and that wherewich the Christians there tuftained themselves. The Maiz is like course Millet. and the Pumpions are better and more fauourie then thole of Spaine, From thence the Governour fear two Captaines each a fundry way to feeke the Indians. They tooke an hundred men and women; of which aswell there as in other places where they made any inrodes, the Captain 30 chose one or two for the Gouernour, and divided the rest to himselse, and those that went with him. They led thefe Indians in chaines with Iron collars about their neckes; and they ferued to carrie their fluffe, and to grind their Maiz wand for other feruices that fuch Captines could doe. Sometimes it happened that going for wood or Maiz with them, they killed the Christian that led them, and ranne away with the chaine : orhers filed their chaines by night with a piece of ftone, wherewith they cut them, and vie it in flead of Iron. Those that were perceiued paid for themselves, and for the rest, because they should not dare to doe the like another time. The women and young boyes, when they were once an hundred leagues from their Countrie, and had forgotten things, they let goe loofe, and so they terued; and in a very short space they vaderflood the Language of the Christians. From Vzachil the Gouernour departed toward Apalach, 10 and in two dayes sourney, he came to a Towne called Axille, and from thence forward the Indians were careleffe, because they had as yet no notice of the Christians. The next day in the morning, the first of October, he departed from thence, and commanded a Bridge to be made our a

A Riner. Directure.

Axille.

Olieberas. Ann. 14 . 17 6 14-or the body The Sea.

River which he was to paffe. The Gouernour passed upon Wednesday, which was Saint Francis his day, and lodged at a Towns which was called Vitachneo, fubicat to Apalache: he found it burning; for the Indians had fet it on fire. From thence forward the Countrie was much inhabited, and had great flore of Maiz. He pissed by many Granges like Hamlets. On Sunday the fine and twentieth of October, he came to a Towne, which is called Uzela, and vpon Tuelday to Anaica Apalace, where the Lord of all that Countrie and Prouince was refident : in which Towne the Campenalter, whose office it is to quarter out and lodge men, did lodge all the company round about within a league and halte a league of it. There were other Townes, where was great store of Maiz, Pompions, French Beanes, and Plummes of the Countrie, which are better then thele of Spans, and they grow in the fields without plantin. The victuals that were thought necessary to passe the Winter, were gathered from thele Townes to Anaica Apalache. The Governour was intotmed, that the Sea was ten leagues from thence. He presently sent a Captaine thither with Horiemen and Footmen: And lixe leagues on the way he found a Towne, which was named Ochete, and to came to the Sea, and found a great tree felled, and cut it into peeces, with takes let up like mangers, and law the skuls of horfes. He returned with this newes. And that was held for certains, which was reported of Pamphilo de Narwaez, that there he had builded the barkes where with he went out of the land of Florida, and was cast away at Sea. Presently the Governour fent Iohn Danufco with thirty horiemen to the port de Spiritu Santo, where Calderan was, with order shat they should abandon the port, and all of them come to Apalache. He departed on Saturday the feuenteenth of Nouember. In Ozachil and other towner that flood in the way hee found great store of people already carelesse. He would take none of the Indians for not hindring himselfe, because it behooved him to give them no leasure to gather themselves together; Hee passed through the Townes by night, and rested without the Townes three or some houres. In The Port de ten daies he came to the Port de Spirito Sauto. Hee carried with him twenty Indian women, Spiritus and which he tooke in Tears, and Potano, neere wnto Cale, and fent them to Donna Ifabella, in the two nie from Afa-Carauchs, which he fent from the Port de Spirito Santo to Cuba. And he carried all the footemen labe. in the Brigandines, and coatting along the shoare, came to Apalache. And Calderan with the horsemen, and some crossebow-men on foote went by land; and in some places the Indians set vpon him, and wounded fome of his men. As foone as he came to Apalache, prefently the Go-to uernour fent fawed plankes and spikes to the Sea side, wherewith was made a Piragna or Barke, wherein were embarked thirty men well armed, which went out of the Bay to the Sea, looking for the Brigandines. Sometimes they fought with the Indians, which passed along the harbour in their Canoes. Vpon Saturday, the twenty nine of Nouember, there came an Indian through the Watch undiscouered, and fee the Towns on fire, and with the great winds that blew two parts of it were confumed in ashort time. On Sunday the twenty eight of December came lobn Dannico with the Brigandines. The Gouernor fent Francisco Maldonado, a Captain offootmen, with fiftie men to discouer the coast Westward, &to seeke some Port, because he had determined to goe by land, &difcouer that part. That day there went out eight horiemen by commandement of the Gouernour into the field, two leagues about the Towne to feeke Indians : for they were 20 now so emboldened, that within two croffebow shot of the campe, they came & slew men. They found two men and a woman gathering French Beanes: the men, though they might have fled, ver because they would not leave the woman, which was one of their wives, they resolved to die fighting : and before they were flaine, they wounded three horfes, whereof one died within a few daies after. Calderan going with his men by the Sea-coast, from a wood that was neere the place, the Indians (et upon him, and made him forfake his way, and many of them that went with him forfooke fome neceffary victuals, which they carried with them. Three or foure dayes after the limited time given by the Governor to Maldonado for his going and comming, being already determined and resolued, if within eight dayes he did not come, to tarry no longer for him, hee came, and brought an Indian from a Province, which was called Ochus, fixty leagues Westward Ochus sixtie 30 from Apalache, where he had found a good Port of good depth and defense against weather. And leagues West because the Gouernor hoped to finde a good Countrie forward, he was very well contented. And he fent Maldonado for victuals to Hanana, with order, that hee would tarrie for him at the Port of Ochm, which he had discoursed, for he would goe seeke it by land : and if he should chance to flay, and not come thither that fummer, that then he should returne to Hanana, & should come againe the next summer after, and tarry for him at that Port: for he said he would doe none other thing but goe to feeke Ochus. Francisco Maldonado departed, and in his place for Captaine of the Chap. 11. footemen remained lobn de Guzman. Of those Indians which were taken in Napetuca, the treasurer Ishn Gartan had a wong man, which faid, that he was not of that Countrie, but of another far off toward the Sunriving, and that it was long fince he had travelled to fee Countries; and that his 40 Countrie was called Tapaba, and that a woman did gouerne it: and that the Towne where shee was refident was of a wonderfull bignesse, and that many Lords round about were tributaries to her ; and some gaue her clothes, and others Gold in abundance : and he told, how it was taken out of the Mines, and was moulten & refined, as if he had feene it done, or the Diuell had taught Abundance of it him. So that all those which knew any thing concerning the same, said that it was impossible Gold. to give fo good a relation, without having feene it: And all of them, as if they had feene it, by the fignes that he gaue, beleeved all that he faid to be true.

On Wednesday the third of March, of the yeere 1540, the Gouernour departed from . naire Apalache to feeke Tupaha. He commanded his men to goe prouided with Maiz for fixtie leavies of defert. The horizmen carried their Maiz on their horfes, and the footemen at their fides : because the Indians that were for service, with their miserable life that they lead that win- Death of Is-50 ter, being naked and in chaines, died for the most pare. Within foure dayes iourney they came diassifiauer. to a great River : and they made a piragua or ferrie boate, and because of the great current, they made a cable with chaines, which they fastened on both sides of the River; and the ferrie boate went along by it, and the horfes fwam over, being drawne with capftans. Having paffed the River, in a day and a halfe they came to a Towne called Capachiqui. Vpon Friday, the eleventh of March, they found Indians in armes. The next day five Christians went to feeke morters, which the Indians have to beate their Maiz, and they went to certaine houses on the backe-fide of the Campe environed with a wood; and within the wood were many Indians which came to fpie vs; of the which came other fine and fet vpon vs. One of the Christi-

60 ans came running away, giving an alarme vnto the Campe: Those which were most ready anfwered the alarme. They found one Christian dead, and three fore wounded. The Indians fled vnto a lake adjoyning neere a very thicke wood, where the horses could not enter. The Gouera nour departed from Capachiani, and passed through a detert. On Wednesday the twenty one of the moneth he came to a Towne called Tealli : And from thence forward there was a diffe-Mmmmmm lours.

A graffe like

Achefe.

rence in the houses. For those which were behinde vs were thatched with straw, and those of Toalli were covered with reedes, in manner of tiles. These houses are very clenly. Some of them had wals daubed with clay, which shewed like a mudwall. In all the cold Countries the Indiana have every one a house for the winter daubed with clay within & without, and the doores is ve. ry little; they flut it by night, and make fire within, to that they are in it as warme as in a flone: and fo it continueth all night that they neede not cloathes; and besides these, they have others for Summer; and their kitchins neere them, where they make fire and bake their bread; and they have barbacoas wherein they keepe their Maiz; which is an houle fet up in the aire upon four fiakes, boorded about like a chamber, and the floore of it is of cane hurdles. The difference which Lords or principall mens houses have from the rest, besides they be greater, is, that they have to great galleries in their fronts, & under them feates made of canes in manner of benches and round about them they have many lotts, wherein they lay vp that which the Indians doe give them for tribute, which is Maiz Deeres skins, and mantles of the Countrie, which are like blankets: they make them of the inner rinde of the barkes of trees & some of a kinde of grasse like voto nettles. which being beaten, is like vnto flaxe. The women couer themselves with these Mantles; they put one about them from the waste downeward; and another ouer their shoulder, with their right arme out, like vnto the Egyptians. The men weare but one Mantle vpon their shoulders after the same manner; and haue their secrets hid with a Deeres skin, made like a linnen breech. which was wont to be vied in Spains. The skins are well corried, and they give them whatcolour they lift, so perfect, that if it be red, it feemeth a very fine cloath in graine, and the blacke is 16 Excellent comost fine : and of the lameleather they make shooes; and they dye their Mantles in the same colours. The Gouernor departed from Toalis the foure and twentieth of March : he came on Thurfday at evening to a small River, where a bridge was made whereon the people passed, and Bent Fernandez a Portugall fell off from it, and was drowned. As soone as the Governour had passed A fmall River the River, a little diffance thence he found a Towne called Achefe. The Indians had notice of the Christians; they leaped into a River: some men and women were taken; among which was one that understood the youth which guided the Gouernour to Tapaba : whereby that which he had reported was more confirmed. For they had pasted through Countries of divers languages, and fome which he understood not. The Gouernour fent by one of the Indians that were taken to call the Cacique, which was on the other fide of the River. He came. The Governour told him that he was the Soune of the Sunne, and came from those parts where hee dwele, and travelled through that Countrie, and fought the greatest Lord, and richest Province that was in it. The Co-Sato pretends sique told him, that farther forward dwelt a great Lord, and that his dominion was called Ocen. so be the Son He gaue him a guide and an Interpreter for that Province. The Governour commanded his Isof the Sunne. dians to be fet free, and trauelled through his Countrie vp a Ruer very well inhabited. Hee de-Mannerof Spa. parted from his Towne the first of Aprill; and left a very high crosse of Wood set up in the midwell inhabited. niands praying. dest of the market place : and because the time gaue no more leasure, hee declared to him onely, that that croffe was a memoriali of the fame, whereon Chrift, which was God and man, and created the heavens and the earth, fuffered for our salvation : therefore he exhorted them that they (hould reuerence it : and they made shew as though they would doe so. The fourth of A-40 prill they passed by a Town called Altamaca, and the tenth of the moneth he came to Ocate. The Cacique fent him two thousand Indians with a present, to wit, many Conies, & Partridges, bread of Maiz, two Hens, and many Dogs: which among the Christians were effected as if they had beene fat Wethers, because of the great want of fielh meate and Salt, and hereof in many place, and many times was great neede; and they were so scarie, that if a man fell sicke, there was nothing to cherrish him withall; and with a fickneffe, that in another place easily might have been remedied, he confumed away till nothing but skinne and bones were left : and they died of pure weakenerie, some of them saying, If I had a slice of meate, or a few cornes of Salt, I should not dis. And because they were thus scanted of fielh, when fix hundred men that went with Sois, came to any Towns, and found thirty or forty Dogs, he that could get one and kill it, thought him-

Ocute. Conics, Partei ges, Hens, Dogges

Atemaca-

to carrie burdens : he palled through a Towne, the Lord whereof was name i Cofaqui, and came to a Prouince of an Indian Lord, called Patofa. This Countrie, from the first peaceable Cacique, voto the Province of Patofa, which were fiftie leagues, is a fat Countrie, Beautifull, and very fruitfull, and very well watered, and full of good Rivers. And from thence to the Port de Spirito Santo, where we first arrived in the land of Florida (which may be 350. leagues, little more or leffe) is a barren land, and the molt of it 60 groups of wilde Pine-trees, low and full of lakes, and in some places very high and thicke groups, whither the Indians that were in armes fled, so that no man could finde them, neither could any telfe no small man : and he that killed it, and gaue not his Captaine one quarter, if he knewit, he frowned on him, and made him feele it, in the watches, or in any other matter of labour that was offered, wherein he might doe him a displeasure. On Monday, the twelch of Aprill, the Gouernour departed from Oeme: The Cacique gave him two hundred Tamenes, to wit, Indians

In the Towne of Parofa, the youth which the Gouernour carried with him for an Interpte

tour and a guide, began to fome at the mouth, and tumble on the ground, as one possessed with the Divell: They faid a Golpell over him; and the fit left him. And he faid, that foure daies journie from thence toward the Sunne riling, was the Province that hee spake of. The Indians of Patofa faid, that toward that part they knew no habitation; but that toward the Northwest. they knew a Prouince which was called Coco, a very plentifull Countrie, which had very great Townes in it. The Cacique told the Governour, that if he would goe thither, he would give him guides and Indians for burdens; and if he would goe whither the youth foake of, that hee would likewife give him those that he needed: and so with louing words and offers of courtesse, they tooke their leaves the one of the other. He gave him feven hundred Indians to beare burdens. He tooke Maiz for foure dayes journie. He trauelled fix daies by a path which grew narrow more and more, till it was loft altogether: He went where the youth did lead him, and passe two Rivers Rivers. which were waded : each of them was two croflebowshot ouer : the water came to the farrops. and had so great a current, that it was needefull for the horsemen to stand one before another. that the footemen might passe aboue them leaning vnto them. He came to another River of a greater current and largeneffe, which was passed with more trouble, because the horses did swim. Another great at the comming out about a lances length. Having passed this River, the Governour came to a ter River. groue of Pinetrees, and threatned the youth, and made as though hee would have cast him to the does because he had told him a lye, saving it was but foure daies journie, and they had travelled nine every day feven or eight leagues, and the men by this time were growne wearie and weake. and the horses leane through the great scanting of the Maiz. The youth faid, that he knew not where he was. It faued him that hee was not cast to the dogs, that there was neuer another whom Ishn Ortiz did understand. The Gouernour with them two, and with some horsemen and footemen, leaving the Campe in a grove of Pinetrees, travelled that day five or fix leagues to feeke a way, and returned at night very comfortleffe, and without finding any figne of way or towne. The next day, the Gouernour fent other foure with as many horsemen that could fwim, to paffe the Ofe and Rivers which they should finde, and they had choise horses the best that were in the Campe. The Captaines were Baltafar de Galleges, which went vp the River; and lobn Danufco, downe the River : Alfonfo Romo, and Iohn Rodriguez Lobillo went into the inward parts of the land. The Gouernour brought with him into Florida thirteene Sowes. The great in-30 and had by this time three hundred Swine: Hee commanded enery man should have halfe a create of swine bound of Hogs flash energy day; and this he did three or foure dayes after the Maiz was spens.

With this small quantitie of flesh, and some sodden hearbes, with much trouble the people were fullained. John Danufco came on Sunday late in the evening, and brought newes that hee had founda little Towne twelve or thirteene leagues from thence; he brought a Woman and a Boy that he had tooke there. With his comming and with those newes, the Governour and all the rest were so glad, that they seemed at that instant to have returned from death to life. Vpon Monday, the twenty fix of Aprill, the Gouernour departed to goe to the Towne, which was called Aymay; and the Christians named it the Towns of Relufe. He left where the Campe had lien at the toote of a Pinetree a letter buried, and letters carued in the barke of the Pine, the 40 contents whereof was this: Digge here at the foot of this Pine and you shall finde a letter, And this he did, because when the Captaines came, which were fent to feeke some habitation, they might fee the letter, and know what was become of the Gouernour, and which way hee was gone. There was no other way to the Towne, but the markes that Iohn Dannico left made vpon the trees. The Gouernour with some of them that had the best horses came to it on the Monday : And all the rest inforcing themselves the best they could, some of them lodged within two leagues of the Towne, some within three and foure, every one as he was able to goe, and his strength served him. There was found in the Towne a storehouse full of the slowre of parched Maiz; and fome Maiz, which was distributed by allowance, Here were foure Indians taken, and none of them would confesse any other thing, but that they knew of none other habitation. The Gouernor commanded one of them to be burned; and prefently another confessed, that two daies An Indian big

50 iournie from thence, there was a Prouince that was called Cutifa-Chiqui. V pon Wednesday came ned for his the Captaines Baltafar de Gallegos, Alfonfo Romo, and John Rodriguez Lobillo: for they had found the letter, and followed the way which the Gouernour had taken toward the towne. As soone as they came, he departed toward Cetifa-Chiqui. In the way three Indians were taken, which faid, that the Lady of that Countrie had notice already of the Christians, and stated for them in a Towns of hers.

Within a little while the Lady came out of the Towne in a Chaire, whereon certaine of the principall Indians brought her to the River. She entred into a Barge which had the Scerne tilted ouer, and on the floore her mat ready laied with two custions vpon it one vpon another, where (0 the far her downe; and with her came her principall Indians in other Barges, which did wait vpon her. She went to the place where the Gouernour was. She prefented vnto him great flore of A great concloathes of the Countrie, which the brought in other Canoes; to wit, Mantles and Skins; and donof Pearles tooke from her owne necke a great cordon of Pearles, and cast it about the necke of the Gouernour; entertaining him with very gracious speeches and courtesie, and commanded Canoes to

Mmmmmm 2

Cofaqui. Patofa.

An excellent fitte leagues. Barren CounThey paffe the Riuer.

Walnut trees. Mulbery trees for filke. The Sea two dayes journ.c Man-les of the backes of trees. Mantles of Feathers. Pearles found in graues,

Three hundred nintic two pounds of Pearles found.

This Towne was but two daicaionenie from the hanen of Santa Helena. In the yeers and a halfe, > chiaha two lue daies iournie from Santa He lena: and Coffe feuen daies iournic from chiaha: at which towns of Cofte, they had an Oxe hide.Chap. 16.

and hath goodly Medows by the Ruers. Their woods are thin, & full of Walnut trees & Mulberry trees. They (a.d the Sea was two daies journy from thence. Within a league & halfe about this Towne were great Townes dispeopled, and overgrown with grasse; which shewed that they had been long without inhabitants. The Indians faid, that two yeers before there was a Plague in that Countrie, and that they removed to other Townes. There was in their store-houses great quantity of Clothes, Mantles of yarne made of the barkes of trees, and others made of Feathers, white. greene, red, and yellow, very fine after their vie, and profitable for winter. There were also many Deeres skins, with many compartiments traced in them, and some of them made into hofe. Io flockings, and shoors. And the Lady perceiving that the Christians esteemed the Pearles, aduifed the Gouernour to fend to fearch certaine graves that were in that Towne, and that he should finde many : and that if he would fend to the dispeopled Townes, he might loade all his Horses. They fought the groues of that Towne, and there round foureteene rooues of Pearles, and little Babies and Birds made of them. The people were browne, well made, and well proportioned. and more civill then any others that were seene in all the Countrie of Florida, and all of them went sho and cloathed. The youth told the Gouernour, that he began now to enter into the land which he spake of: and some credit was given him that it was so, because hee vinderstood the language of the Indians: and he requested that he might be Christened, for he faid he defired to become a Christian: He was Christened, and named Peter; and the Gouernour commanded 30 him to be looled from a chaine, in which vitill that time he had gone. This Countrie, as the Indians reported, had beene much inhabited, and had the fame of a good Countrie. And as it feemeth, the youth which was the Gouernours guide, had heard of it, and that which hee knew by herelay, he affirmed that he had seene, and augmented at his pleasure. In this Towne was found a Dagger and Beades, that had belonged to Christians. The Indians reported, that Christians ans had beene in the hauen, which was two dayes fournie from this Towne, many yeares agoe. He that came thither was the Gouernour, the Licenciate Lucas Vufquez da Ayllon, which went Itis in 33,deg. to conquer this Countrie, and at his comming to the Port hee died; and there was a dissilion, quarrel; and flaughters betweene some principall men which went with him, for the mincipall government: And without knowing any thing of the Countrie, they returned home to Hif- 20 pariola. All the Company thought it good to inhabit that Countrie, because it was in a tempesate climate : And that if it were inhabited, all the Ships of New Spaine, of Peru, Santa Martha, and Tierra firme, in their returne tor Spane, might well touch there: because it was in their way; and because it was a good Countrie, and fixed ht to raise commoditie. The Governour, fince his intent was to feeke another treafure, like that of Atabalipa Lord of Peru, was not contrated with a good Countrie, nor with Pearles, though many of them were worth their weight in Gold. And if the Countrie had beene divided among the Christians, those which the Indians had fished for afterward, would have beene of more value : for those which they had, because they burned them in the fire, did leele their colour. The Gouernour answered them, that viged him to inhabit, Trac in all the Countrie, there were not victuals to furfaine his men one moneth; and that it was needefull to refort to the Port of Ocm, where Maldanado was to ftay for them : and that if no richer Countrie were found, they might returne agains to that when locuer they would; and in the meane time the Indians would fow their fields, and it would be better furnished with Maiz. He inquired of the Indians, whether they had notice of any great Lord farther into the land. They told him, that twelve daies journey from thence, there was a Prouince called Chiaba, fubiect to the Lord of Coga. Prefently the Governour determined to feeke that land. And being a sterne man, and of few words, though he was glad to fift and know the opinion of all men, yet after he had deliuered his owne, hee would not be contraried, and ale wayes did what liked himselfe, and so all men did condescend vnto his will.

He Gouernour departed from Cuisfa Chiqui the third day of May. And because the Indiens had revolted, and the will of the Ladie was perceived, that if thre could, thee would depart without giuing any Guides or men for burdens, for the wrongs which the Christians had done to the Indians: (for there neuer want fome among many of a bate 63 fort, that for a little gaine doe put themselves and others in danger of vndoing.) The Governour commanded her to be kept in fafegard, and carried with him, not with fo good viage as fine deferued for the good will the shewed. And he carried her on foot with his bond-women to looke vnto her. In all the Townes where the Gouernour pasted, the Lady commanded the Indians to come and carrie the burdens from one Towne to another. Wee passed through her Countriean hundred leagues, in which, as wee faw, thee was much obeyed. For the Indians did all that thee commanded them with great efficacie and diligence. In Seven dayes space the Governour came Chalaque seven to a Province called Chalaque, the poorest Countrie of Maiz that was feene in Florida. The In. dayes journie diens fed voon Roots and Herbes which they feeke in the fields, and voon wilde beatts, which they kill with their Bowes and Arrowes : and it is a very gentle people, All of them goe naked, and are very leane. There was a Lord, which for a great Prefent, brought the Gouernour two Deeres skinnes : and there were in that . Countrie many wilde Hens. In one Towne they made 700, Hens. him a Present of seven hundred Hens, and so in other Townes they sent him those which they to had or could get. From this Prouince to another, which is called Xualla, hee spent five dayes :

д. I I. Sotos fursher Disconeries in Florida and manifold various Aduen-sures sill bee came so Tulla.

CHAP. 2. 3. Indians food. A Ladies deceit, Medowet foune with Maiz.

here he found very little Maiz; and for this cause, though the people were weared, and the horses very weake, hee stayed no more but two dayes. From Ocute to Cutifa-chiqui may bet dayesoff. Some bundred and thirtie leagues, whereor eightie are Wilderneffe. From Cutifa-chiqui to Xualla, two hundred and fiftie, and it is an Hilly Countrie. The Gouernour departed from Xualla toward Guarule : he passed very rough and high hils. In that rourney, the Lady of Cuifa-chiani (whom the Gouernour carried with him, asis aforefaid, with purpofe to carrie her to Guarule, Rolleh and because her Territorie reached thither) going on a day with the bond-women which lead her, high his

went out of the way, and entred into a Wood, laying, thee went to eafe her felfe, and fo fiee deceiued them, and hid her felte in the Wood; and though they fought her they could not find her. 30 She carried away with her a little cheft made of Canes in manner of a Coffer, which they call Peraca, full of vabored Pearles. Some which could judge of them, faid, that they were of great value. An Indian woman tint waited on her did carrie them. The Gouernour not to discontent her altogether, left them with her, making account that in Guazule he would aske them of her, when he gaue her leave to returne : which Coffer flice carried away . and went to Zualla with three flaues which fled from the Campe, and one Horseman which remained behind, who falling ficke of an Ague went out of the way, and was loft. This man, whose name was Alimanos, dealt with the flaves to change their euili purpofe, and returne with him to the Christians : which two of them did; and Almamos and they ouertooke the Governour fiftie leagues from thence in a Province called Chiaba; and reported how the Lady remayned in Xualla with a flave of Andrew 30 de Vasconcellos which would not come backe with them, and that of a certaintie they lived as man and wife together, and meant togoe both to Caufa-chiqui. Within fine dayes the Gouer- Guand fine nour came to Guarule. The Indians there gave him a Present of three hundred Dogges, because dayes off. they faw the Christians efteeme them, and fought them to feed on them : for among them they are not eaten. In Guanule, and all that way, was very little Mair. The Gouernour fent from thencean Indian with a meffage to the Cacique of Chiahn, to defat him to gather some Maiz thither, that he might reft a few dayes in (biaha. The Gonernour departed from Guanule, and canalogue two in two dayes fourney came to a Towne called Canafagua. There met him on the way twentie dayes fourney in two dayes fourney came to a lowne called Canajagan. I have like the many and those very good, off. from Cutifa-chiqui thither, and fo forward in other Prouinces, and also Nuts and Plums. And Mulberie rees no the trees grow in the fields without planting or dreffing them, and are as bigge and as ranke, as to make filke. though they grew in Gardens digged and watered. From the time that the Gouernour departed from Canalagna, he journed fine dayes through a Defert; and two leagues before he came to Chiaba, there met him fitteene Indians loaden with Maiz, which the Cacique had fent; and they told him on his behalfe, that he waited his comming with twentie Barnes full of it; and farther. that himfelfe, his Countrie, and fabiects, and all things else were at his service. On the fift day of Iune, the Gouernour entred into Chiaba: The Cacique voided his owne houles, in which hee lodged, and received him with much ioy.

There was in this Towne much Butter in Gourds melted like Oyle: they faid it was the fat The fat of of Beares. There was found also great store of Oyle of Walnuts , which was cleere as Butter, Beares. 50 and of a good taste, and a pot full of Honie of Bees, which neither before nor afterward was Oyle of Walfeene in all the Countrie. The Towne was in an Iland betweene two armes of a River, and was hope of Bees. feated nigh one of them. The River duideth it felfe into those two branches two Crosse-bow fliaba seated shotaboue the Towne, and meeteth againe a league beneath the same. The plaine betweene in an Iland. both the branches is fometimes one Croffe-bow shot, sometimes two Croffe-bow shot over. The branches are very broad, and both of them may be waded ouer. There were all along them very good Medowes, and many fields fowne with Maiz. And because the Indians stayed in their Towne, the Governour only lodged in the houles of the Cacique, and his people in the fields; where there was ever a tree, every one tooke one for himselfe. Thus the Campe lam separated one from another, and out of order. The Governour winked at it , because the Indians were in 60 peace, and because it was very hot, and the people should have suffered great extremitie, if it had not beene fo. The hories came thither fo weake, that for feebleneffe, they were not able to carry their Masters : because that from Cutifa-chiqui, they alwayes travelled with very little Provender, and were hanger-statued and tired ever tince they came from the Defert of Ocate. And be- The Defert of saufe the most of them were not in case to vie in battell, though need should require, they fent Ocute, chap. 8. Mmmmm 3

Thirtie dayor

Mines of Cop-

per and Gold

in Chifca 10-

Hatchets of

Copper hol-

ward the

North.

them to feed in the night a quarter of a league from the Campe. The Christians were therein great danger, because that it ac this time the Indians had fet voon them, they had beene in emil case to have defended themselves. The Governour rested there thirtie dayes, in which time, becaute the Countrie was very fruitfull, the horses grew far, A Cacique of a Prouincecalled Caste came to this Towne to wist the Gouernous. After he had offered himselfe, and paffed with him fome words of tendring his feruice and courtefie; the Gouernor asking him whether he had notice of any rich Countrie! he laid, yea 2:00 wit, that toward the North, there was a Pronince named Chiferand that there was a melting of Copper, and of another metal of the fame colour, faire that it was finer, and of a far more perfect colour, and far better to the fight; and that they wied it not fo much, because it was forter. And the selfe fame thing was told the Gouernour in Course 49 chiqui; where we law some little Harchers of Copper, which were faid to have a mixture of Gold But in that part the Countrie was not wel peopled, and they faid there were Mountaines. which the horfes could not patie; and for that cause, the Gouernour would not goe from Catifachique directly thither : And he made account, that travelling through a peopled Countrie, when his men and horses should bee in better plight , and hee were better certified of the truth of the and One Chiffais direct thing, he would return toward it, by Mountaines, and a better inhabited Countrie, whereby he ly North rom might haue better paffage. He fent two Christians from Chiaba, with certain Indians which knew the Countrie of Chifea, and the language thereof to view it, and to make report of that which they should find; where he told them that he would tarrie for them.

In feuen dayes he came to Coste. The second of July he commanded his Campe to be pitched him, there went from the Campe certaine Footmen to the Towne to feeke some Maiz, and not

which is with in two daies of Sans Helesa.
Two Christians two Crosse-bow shor from the Towne : and with eight men of his guard he went where hee fent from Chia found the Cacique, which to his thinking received him with great love. As he was talking with bato leeke Chifca. Coffe feuen dayes from Chiaha,chap.14.

A wife Stra-

contented with it, they ranfacked and fearched the houses, and took what they found. With this despite the Indians began to rife and to take their armes : and some of them with cudgels in their hands, ranne woon fine or fixe Christians, which had done them wrong, and beat them at their pleafure. The Governour feeing them all in an vprore, and himfelte among them with fo few Christians, to escape their hands vied a stratagem, farre against his owne disposition, being, as he was, very franke and open : and though it grieued him very much that any Indian should bee so bold, as with reason, or without reason to del pife the Christians, he tooke vp a cudgell, and tooke # their parts against his owne men ; which was a meanes to quiet them : And prefently hee tent word by a man very secretly to the Campe, that some armed men should come toward the place. where he was; and he tooke the Cacique by the hand, ving very milde words vnto him, and with some principall Indians that did accompany him, he drew them out of the Towne into plaine way, and vnto the fighe of the Campe, whicher by little and little with good differtion the Christians began to come and to gather about them. Thus the Governour led the Canque, and his chiefe men vntill he entred with them into the Campe : and neere vnto his Tent, het commanded them to be put in safe custodie; and told them , that they should not depart without giuing him a guide and Indians for burthens, and till certaine ficke Christians were come, which he had commanded to come down the River in Canoes from Chiaba; and those allo which he had fent to the Prouince of Chifea: (for they were not returned; and he feared that the Indians had flaine the one, and the other.) Within three dayes after, thole which were fent to Chifca re-Those which turned, and made report, that the Indians had carried them through a Countrie fo poore of Maiz, feeke chifeare- and to rough, and ouer fo high Mountaynes, that it was impossible for the Armie to travell that way; and that feeing the way grew very long, and that they lingred much, they confulted to returne from a little poore Towne, where they faw nothing that was of any profit, and brought an Oxehide, which the Indians gave them, as thin as a calues skin, and the haire like a foft wool, betweene the course and fine wooll of sheepe. The Cacique gaue a guide, and men forburdens, and departed with the Governours leave. The Governour departed from Coste the ninth of luly, and lodged at a Towne called Tals. The Cacique commanded prouision necessary for two dayes, while the Gouernour was there, were fent to

High Mouneaines. A little poore Towne. An Oxe Hide with hairelike wooll.cap.ais. fairh foe Tali, one day from Coffe. Many Townes of cogs. Coja. Iuly 26.

Many great Townes. Many Plum-... ees of diuers

and round about him many Indians playing vpon Flutes, and finging. There was in the Barnes, and in the fields great store of Maiz and French Beanes: The Countrie was greatly inhabited with many great Townes, and many sowne fields, which reached from the one to the other. It was pleasant, fat, full of good Meadowes vpon Rivers. There were in the fields many Plum-trees, as well of fuch as grow in Spame, as of the Countrig: and to be brought thither; and at the time of his departure, he gave him foure women and two men, which he had need of to beare burthens. The Gouernour travelled fixe dayes through many Townes lubiect to the Cacique of Coca : and as he entred into his Countrie many Indians came vnto him every day from the Cacique, and met him on the way with meffages, one going, and another comming. He came to Coca vpon Friday, the fixe and twentieth of July. The Cati-que came forth to receive him, two Croffe-bow fhot from the Towne in a chaire, which his print-cipall mengarried on their shoulders, fitting upon a cushion, and couered with a garment of Mar-

terns, of the falhion and bignetle of a womans Huke: hee had on his head a Diadem of feathers,

CHAP. 2.S. 2. The Gouernors departure from Coca. Women given for carriages. 1541

wild tall Vines, that runne wp the trees; and befides thefe, there were other low Vines with bigge and sweet Grapes; bartor want of digging and dreffing, they had great kernels in them. Two fores of bigge and inter Grapes, but the Casiques, because they should not absent the mielius, Note. and carried them with him, till he came out of their Countries: because that carrying them along with him, he looked to find people in the Townes, and they gaue him guides, and men to carrie burdens; and before hee went out of their Countries, hee gaue them license to returne to their houses, and to their Porters likewise, affoone as hee came to any other Lordshippe, where they gave him others. The man of Coca feeing their Lord detained, tooke it in euill part, and revolted, and hid themselves in the Woods, a well those of the Towne of the Caeigue, as those 10 of the other Townes of his principall fubiects. The Gouernour fent out foure Captaines, every one his way to feeke them. They tooke many men and women, which were put into chaines: They beeing the hart which they received, and how little they gained in absenting themselves, came againe, promiting to doe whatfoener they were commanded.

The Gouernor relted in Cope fine and twentie dayes, He departed from thence the twentieth 20. of August. of August to fecke a Province called Tafcaines: he carried with him the Cacique of Coca. Hee or August toreen at towns called Tallimachase, the people were fled : hee lodged halfe a great Towns. league far ther neere a Brooke. The next day he came to a Towne called Trana, fubiect to Coca. Tima He stayed there sixe daves because of a River that passed by it, which at that time was very high; Agreet River. and alloone as the River furfered him to paffe, he fet forward, and lodged at a Towne named VI. Villahais.

20 libabali. There came to him on the way, on the Caciques behalfe of that Prouince, ten or twelve principall tadiens to offer him his feruice; all of them had their plumes of feathers, and Bowes and Arrowes. The Gouernour comming to the Towne with twelve Hortemen, and tome Footmen of his Guard, leauing his people a Croffe-bow shot from the Towne, entred into it, hee found all the Indians with their weapons : and as farre as he could gheffe, they feemed to have fome euill meaning. It was knowne afterward, that they were determined to take the Cacique of Cosa from the Gouernour, if he had requested it. The Gouernour commanded all his people villabels well to enter the Towne, which was walled about, and neere vnto it passed a small River. The wall, led about. aswell of that, as of others, which afterward wee faw, was of great posts thrust deepe into the ground and very rough, and many long railes as bigge as ones armes laid acroffe betweene them, and the wall was about the height of a Lance, and it was daubed within and without with clay, and had loope-holes. On the other fide of the River was a Towne, where at that present the Cacique was. The Gouernourient to call him, and he came prefently. After he had passed with the Gouernour fome words of offering his services, he gave him such men for his carriages as he necded, and thirtie women for flaues. In that place was a Christian loft, called Mangano, borne in Salamanca, of noble Parentage, which went aftray to feeke for Grapes, whereof there is great flore, and those very good.

The day that the Governour departed from thence, he lodged at a Towne fubicet to the Lord 80 de Gregor of Vllibabali: and the next day hee came to another Towne called Toaf. The Indians gave the Ta-A. Gouernour thirtie women, and fuch men for his carriages as hee needed. He trauelled ordinarily 49 fine or fixe leagues a day when he transled through peopled Countries : and going through De- Hee transled ferts, he marched as fail as he could, to either the want of Maiz. From Toafs, patting through order at the co fome Townes fubicat to a Casique, which was Lord of a Prouince called Tallife, he travelled fine or a leagues dayes: He came to Tallife the eighteenth of September: The Towne was great, and fittuated rallife a great neere vnto a maine River. On the other fide of the River were other Townes, and many fields Towne. fowne with Maiz, On both fides it was a very plentifull Countrie, and had ftore of Maiz: they Septem. 18. hadvoided the Towne. The Gouernour commanded to call the Cacique; who came, and be. A mine timer tweene them passed some words of loue and offer of his seruices, and he presented vnto him fortie Indians. There came to the Gouernour in this Towne a principall Indian in the behalfe of the Cacique of Tascaluca.

After hee had refled there twenty dayes, hee departed thence toward Tafealuea. That day when he went from Tabife, he lodged at a great Towne called Calife. And the next day passed Calife a great by another, and came to a small Towne of Tascalaca; and the next day hee camped in a Wood Towne. two leagues from the Towne where the Cacique refided, and was at that time. And he fent the Mafter of the Campe, Lays de Moscoso, with fifteene Horsemen, to let him knowe how he was comming. The Cacique was in his Lodgings under a Canopie : and without doores, right against his Lodgings, in an high place, they ipread a Mat for him, and two Cushions one vponanother, where he fate him downe, and his Indians placed themselves round about him, somewhat diffant from him, to that they made a place, and a voide roome where hee fate : and his chiefelt men were necreft to him, and one with a shadow of Deeres skinne, which kept the Sunne from him,

60 being round, and of the hignesse of a Target, quartered with blacke and white, having a rundell in the middeit : aferre off it feemed to be of Taffara, because the colours were very perfect. It was fet on a small staffe stretched wide out. This was the deute which he carried in his warres. He was a man of a very tall stature, of great limmes, and spare and well proportioned, and was much feared of his neighbours and fubiects. Hee was Lord of many Territories and much people:

In his countenance he was grave. After the Matter of the Campe had spoken with him, he and thole that went with him courfed their Hories, pranting them to and fro, and now and then toward the place where the Cacique was, who with much granitie and diffimulation now and then lifted up his eyes, and beheld them as it were with diffaine. At the Gouernours comming the made no offer at all to rile. The Gouernour tooke him by the hand, and both of them fate down together on a feate which was under the Cloth of Estate.

Canoas demanded of the Indians, Fine Christians flaine. LIB.VIII

When he departed from thence, he determined to carrie him along with him for some causes. and at two dayes fourney he came to a Towne called Piache, by which there paffed a great River. A great River. The Governour demanded Canoas of the Indians: they faid, they had them not, but that they would make Rafts of canes and drie timber, on which hee might paffe well enough; And they made them with all diligence and speed, and they gouerned them; and because the water went very flowe, the Gouernour and his people passed very well.

Virginia.

From the Port de Spirito Santo to Apalache, which is about an hundred leagues, the Gouer-Sois traucis, nour went from East to Welt: and from Apalache to Cutifa-chiqui, which are foure hundred whereby it ap- and thirtie leagues, from the South-west to the North-east: and from Cuifa-chiqui to Xualla. perfeth that her iourneved which are about two hundred and fiftie leagues, from the South to the North: and from Xnalle not farre from to Tascaluca, which are two hundred and fittie leagues more, an hundred and ninety of them he travelled from East to West, to wit, to the Province of Coca: and the other fixtie from Coca to Tascaluca, from the North to the South.

Hanne passed the River of Piache, a Christian went from his companie from thence to setke a woman-flaue that was runne away from him, and the Indians either tooke him captine, or flue him. The Gouernour viged the Cacique that he should give account of him, and threatned him. that if he were not found, he would never let him loofe, The Cacique fent an Indian from thence to Mauilla, whither they were travelling, which was a Towne of a principall Indian and his fubiect, faying, that he fent him to aduite them to make ready victuals, and men for carriages. But (as afterward appeared) he fent him to affemble all the men of warre thither, that hee had in his Countrie. The Gouernour trauelled three dayes, and the third day he paffed all day thorow a peopled Countrie: and he came to Manilla vpon Monday the eighteenth of October. 18.0f October. He went before the Campe with fifteene Horlemen and thirtie Footmen. And from the Town came a Christian, whom he had tent to the principall man, three or foure dayes before because m he thould not abient himfelfe, and also to learne in what fort the Indians were : who told him, that he thought they were in an euill purpose: for while he was there, there came many people Manilla walled into the Towne, and many weapons, and that they made great hafte to fortifie the wall. Lags de Molcolo told the Governour, that it would bee good to lodge in the field, feeing the Indian were of such disposition : and he answered, that he would lodge in the Towne, for he was wesry of lodging in the field. When he came neere vnto the Towne, the Cacique came forth to receine him with many Indians playing vpon Flutes and finging : and after hee had offered him-Three mantles felfe, he presented him with three mantles of Marterns. The Governour, with both the Cariques, and feuen or eight men of his guard, and three or foure Horsemen, which alighted to accompanie him, entred into the Towne, and fate him downe under a Cloth of Estate. The Cacique of Ta. 43 fealuca requested him, that he would let him remaine in that Towne, and trouble him no more with travelling: and feeing he would not give him leave, in his talke hee changed his purpok, and diffemblingly fained that hee would speake with some principall Indians, and role vp from the place where he fate with the Gouernour, and entred into a house, where many Indians were with their Bowes and Arrowes. The Gouernour when he faw he returned not, called him, and he answered, that he would not come out from thence, neither would hee goe any further then that Towne, and that if he would goe his way in peace, hee should presently depart, and should not feeke to carrie him perforce out of his Countrie and Territorie.

A gowne of

Baltafar de Gallegor, which stood by, tooke hold of a Gowne of Marterns which hee had on; and he cast it over his head, and left it in his hands: and because all of them immediatly began 50 to stirre, Baltafar de Gallegos gaue him such a wound with his Coutilas, that hee opened him downe the backe, and prefently all the Indians with a great crie came out of the houses shooting their Arrowes. The Gouernour confidering, that it he taried there, he could not cicape, and it he commanded his men to come in , which were without the Towne, the Indians within the houles might kill their Horles, and doe much hurt, ranne out of the Towne, and before he came out, he fell twice or thrice, and those that were with him did helpe him vp againe; and hee and thele that were with him were fore wounded : and in a moment there were fine Christians slaine in the Towne. The Gouernour came running out of the Towne , crying out , that every man thould stand further off, because from the wall they did them much hurt. The Indians feeing that the Christians retired, and some of them, or the most part, more then an ordinarie pace, shot 60 with great boldnesse at them, and strooke downe such as they could ouertake. The Indians which the Christians did leade with them in chaines, had laid down their butthens neere vnto the wall: and alloone as the Governour and his men were retired, the men of Maxilla laid them on the Indians backes againe, and tooke them into the Towne, and loofed them prefently from their chaines, and gaue them Bowes and Arrowes to fight withall. Thus they possessed themselves of all the Clothes and Pearles, and all that the Chriftians had, which their flaues carried. And All the clothes because the Indians had been calwairs praceable untill wee came to this place, some of our men and Pearles of becaule the swarpons in their fardels and remained vnarmed. And from others that had entred the had their weapons in their fardels and remained vnarmed. Towne with the Gouernour they had taken Swords and Holbards, and fought with them. When the Gourmour was gotten into the field, he called for an Horfe, and with some that accompanied him, he returned and the two or three Indians: All the reft retired themselves to the Towne, and that with their Bowes from the wall. And those which presumed of their nimbleneffe, fallied forth to fight a itones cast from the wall : And when the Christians charged them, to they retired themselves at their leasure into the Towne, At the time that the broyle beganne, there were in the Towne a Firer, and a Prieft, and a fernant of the Gouernour, with a womanflase: and they had no time to come out of the Towne: and they tooke an house, and so remained in the Towne. The Indians become Mafters of the place, they shut the doore with a field gate: and among them was one Sword which the Gouernours feruant had, and with it he lie himfelfe behind the doore, thrusting at the Indians which fought to come into them : and the Frier and the Prieft ftood on the other file, each of them with a barre in their hands to beate him downe that first came in. The Indians feeing they could not get in by the doore, beganne to vicouer the houle top. By this time, all the Horfemen and Footmen which were behind, were come to Manila.

As some as the battell and the rereward were come to Manilla, the Gouernor commanded all A consultation thole that were best armed to alight, and made foure equadrons of Footmen. The Indians leeing of the Indians those that were best armed to alight, and made foure iquations of production in the Amana to the same how he was letting his men in order concluded with the Cacique that hee should goe his way, their Cacique. faying vnto him, as after it was knowne by certaine women that were taken there, that he was but one man, and could fight but for one man, and that they had there among them many principall Indians, very valiant and expert in feates of Armes, that any one of them was able to order the people there. The Gouernour was informed how there went men out of the Towne, and he commanded the Horfemen to befet it , and fent in every squadron of Footmen one Souldier with a fire-brand to fet fire on the houles, that the Indian; might have no defenfe : all his men being fet in order, he commanded an Harquebuse to be shot off. The figne being given, the foure 30 fquadrons, every one by it felte with great fury, gave the onfet, and with great hurt on both fides they entred the Towne. The Prier and the Prieft, and those that were with them in the house were faued, which cost the lives of two men of account, and valiant, which came thither to fuccour them. The Indians fought with fuch courage, that many times they draue our men out of the Towne. The fight laited to long, that for wearinesse and great thirst many of the Christians went to a Poole that was neere the wall, to drinke, which was all stained with the bloud of the dead, and then came againe to fight, The Gouernour feeing this, entred among the Rootmen into the Towne on horiebake, with certaine that accompanied him, and was a meane that the Christians came to fet fire on the houses, and brake and overcame the Indians, who running out of the Towne from the Footmen, the Horsemen without draue in at the gates againe, 40 where being without all hope of life, they fought valiantly, and after the Christians came among them to handy blowes, feeing themfelues in great diffresse without any succour, many of them fled into the burning houses, where one vpon another they were smothered and burne in the fire.

The whole number of the Indians that died in this Towne, were two thousand and five hundred, Thedeath of little more or leffe. Ot the Christians there died eighteene; of which one was Don Carlos, bro- 2500, Indiante ther in law to the Gouernour, and a Nephew of his, and one Iohn de Gamez, and Men Rodriguez Portugals, and loba Vazquez de Villarons de Barca Rota, all men of honour, and of much valour : the reit were Footmen. Belides those that were flaine, there were an hundred and fiftie wounded with feuen hundred wounds of their Arrowes : and it pleafed God that of very dangerous wounds they were quickly healed. Moreouer, there were twelue Horles flaine, and feuenty hurt, 30 All the Clothes which the Christians carried with them to clothe themselves withall , and the ornaments to fay Maffe, and the Pearles, were all burnt there: and the Christians did fet them on fire themselves; because they held for a greater inconvenience, the hurt which the Indians might doe them from those houses, where they had gathered all those goods together, then the loffe of them. Here the Gouernour understood, that Francisco Maldonado waited for him at the Port of Ochufe, and that it was fixe dayes journey from thence; and he dealt with John Orsiz to keepe The Port of it tecret, because her had not accomplished that which hee determined to doe; and because the Ochuse 6, dayes Pearles were burnt there, which he meant to have fent to Cuba for a flew, that the people hea- journey from ring the newes, might be defirous to come to that Countrie.

From the time that the Gouernour entred into Floreda, untill his departure from Manilla, 60 there died an hundred and two Christians, some of ticknesse, and others which the Indians slue. He stayed in Manilla, because of the wounded men, eight and twentie dayes; all which time he lay in the side. It was a well inhabited and a fat Countrie, there were some great and walled wall down. Townes: and many houses scattered all about the fields, to wit, a Cros-bow shot or two, the 18 o Nou.mone from the other. Vpon Sanday, the eighteenth of Nouember, when the hurt men were ber, knowne to be healed, the Gouernour departed from Manilla. Euery one furnished himselfe with

Maiz for two dayes, and they travelled fine dayes through a Defart: they came to a Province called Pafallara, vnto a Towne, named Taliepatana: and from thence they went to another, calleague up the River. In the morning there entred into it thirtie men well armed. The Indiane perceiped what was attempted, and those which were necrest, came to defend the passage. They

to the shoare, they fled away into the Groues of Canes. The Christians mounted on Horsebacke.

and went up the River to make good the paffage, whereby the Governour and his companie passed the River. There were along the River some Townes well stored with Maiz, and French Beanes, From thence to Chicaga the Gouernour travelled five dayes through a Defart. He came to a River, where on the other fide were Indians, to defend the passage. He made another Barge in two dayes: and when it was finished, the Gouernour fent an Indian to request the Carigue to accept of his friendship, and peaceably to expect his comming : whom the Indians that were on the other fide the River flue before his face, and prefently making a great shout went their refifted what they could, till the Christians came neere them; and feeing that the Barge came to led Cabulto: necre vnto it ranne a great River. The Indians on the other fide cried out, threatto make a Barge within the Towne, because the Indians should not perceive it : it was finished in foure dayes, and being ended, hee commanded it to bee carried one night ypon fleds halfe a Cananava'es.

Some Towns. A River.

December 17, way, Hauing paffed the River, the next day, being the feuenteenth of December, the Gours

Snowe and Conies.

A walled Towne.

nour came to (bicaca, a small Towne of twentie houses. And after they were come to Chicaca, 20 they were much troubled with cold, because it was now Winter, and it snowed, while mest of them were lodged in the field, before they had time to make themselves houses. This Countrie was very well peopled, and the houles scattered like those of Manilla, fat and plentifull of Maiz. and the most part of it was fielding : they gathered as much as sufficed to passe the Winter. Some Indians were taken, among which was one whom the Cacique efteemed greatly. The Gouernour fent an Indian to fignific to the Cacique, that hee defired to fee him and to have his friendthip. The Cacique came vnto him, to offer him his person, Countrie and Subjects, and told him, that he would cause two other Cacagnes to come to him in peace; who within few dayes after came with him, and with their Indians: The one was called Alimanu, the other Nicala, They gaue a present vinto the Gouernous of an hundred and fiftie Conies, and of the Countrie gar- 30 ments, to wit, of Mantles of skinnes. The Cacique of Chica ca came to visite him many times: and fometimes the Governour fent to call him, and fent him an Horfe to see and come. He complained vnto him, that a Subject of his was rifen against him, and deprived him of tribute, requesting his aide against him, for he means to seeke him in his Countrie, and to punish him ac-An Indian fira- cording to his defert. Which was nothing elfe but a fained plot. For they determined , as foone as the Gouernour was gone with him, and the Campe was divided into two parts, the one part of them to fet vpon the Gouernour, and the other vpon them that remained in Chicaga. Hee went to the Towne where he vied to keepe his residence, and brought with him two hundred Indians with their Bowes and Arrowes. The Gouernour tooke thirtie Horsemen, and eighte Footmen, and they went to Saquechuma (for fo was the Province called of that Chiefe man, 40 which he faid had rebelled.) They found a walled Towne, without any men; and those which went with the Cacique fet fire on the houses, to diffemble their treason. But by reason of the great care and heedfulnesse that was as well in the Gouernours people which hee carried with him, as of those which remained in Chieaca, they durft not affault them at that time. The Gopernour inuited the Cacique, and certaine principall Indians, and gaue them Hogs flesh to eate. And though they did not commonly vie it, yet they were to greedy of it, that every night there came Indians to certaine houses a Crof bow shot from the Campe, where the Hogs lay, and killed, and carried away as many as they could. And three Indians were taken in the manner. Two of them the Gouernour commanded to be shot to death with Arrowes; and to cut off the hands of the other; and he fent him so handled to the Cacique. Who made as though it grieved him 10 that they had offended the Gouernour, and that he was glad that he had executed that punishment on them. He lay in a plaine Countrie halfe a league from the place, where the Christians lodged. Foure Horiemen went a stragling thither, to wit, Francisco Oforio, and a firmant of the Marqueffe of Afterga, called Reynofo, and two feruants of the Gouernour, the one his Page cale led Ribera, and the other Fuentes his Chamberlaine: and these had taken from the Indians forme Mantles, wherewith they were offended, and forfooke their houses. The Gouernour knew of it, and commanded them to be apprehended; and condemned to death Francisco Oforio, and the Chamberlaine as principals, and all of them to loffe of goods. The Friers and Priefts and other principall persons were earnest with him to pardon Francisco Osorio his life, and to moderate his lentence, which he would not grant for any of them. While he was ready to command them 60 to be drawne to the Market place to cut off their heads, there came certaine Indians from the Cacique, to complaine of them. Iohn Ortiz, at the request of Baltafar de Galleges and other perfons, changed their words, and told the Gouernour, that the Cacique faid, heehad notice how his Lordship held those Christians in prison for his sake, and that they were in no fault, neither had they done him any wrong, and that if hee would doe him any fauour, hee should fee them free, And he told the Indians; that the Governour faid, he had them in prilon, and that he would punish them in such fort, that they should be an example to others. Hereupon the Gouernour commanded the prisoners to be loosed. As soone as March was come, he determined to depart from Chicaes, and demanded of the Cacique two hundred men for carriages. Hee fent him anfwere, that he would speake with his principall men. Vpon Tuesday the eighth of March, the March, 1541 Governour went to the Towne where he was, to aske him for the men : he told him, he would fend the next day. As foone as the Gouernour was come to Chicaga, he told Lurs de Mojes lo the Camp-mafter, that hee milliked the Indians, and that hee should keepe a strong warch that 10 night, which he remembred but a little, The Indians came at the fecond watch in foure fourdrons, every one by it felte, and as toone as they were deferied, they founded a Drum, and gave the affault with a great crie, and with fo great celeritie, that prefently they entred with the foots, that were formewhat diffant from the Campe. And when they were perceived of them Chiene from which were in the Towne, halfe the houses were on fire, which they had kindled. That night his his his he three Horsemen chanced to be scouts, two of them were of bife callings and the worst men in all the Campe, and the other, which was a Nephew of the Gouernour, which vntill then was held for a tall man, shewed himselfe there as great a coward, as any of them : for all of them ranneaway. And the Indians without any relitance came and let the Towne on fire; and taried behind the doores for the Christians, which ranne out of the houses, not having any leafure to 20 arme themselves; and as they ranne hither and thither amazed with the noise, and blinde, with the Imoke and flume of the fire, they knew not which way they went, neither could they light vpon their weapons, nor fad lie their Horfes, neither faw they the Indians that thot ar them. Many of the Horfes were burned in the Stables, and those which could breake their hal eregat loofe. The diforder and flight was fuch, that every man fled which way he could, without irauing any to relift the Indians. But God (which chafftieth his according to his pleaf re , and in the greatest necessities and dangers sustaineth them with his hand) so blinded the Indians, that they faw not what they had done, and thought that the Horses which ranne look, were men on Horsebacke, that gathered themselves together to fet spon them. The Governour onely rode on Horsebacke, and with him a Souldier called Tapia, and fer voon the Indians, and firiking the 30 first he met with his Lance, the Saddle foll with him, which with haste was cuill girde i, and to hee fell from his Horse. And all the people that were on foot were fled to a Wood out of the Towne, and there affembled themselves together. And because it was night, and that the Indiese thought the Horfes were men on horsebacke which came to fer woon them, as I faid before, they fled a and one onely remay ned dead, and that was hee whom the Governour flue with his Lance. The Towne lay all burnt to albes. There died in this hurliburlie eleven Christsans, and fiftie Horfes; and there remay ned an hundred Hogges, and foure hundred were burned. It any The increase perchance had faued any clothes from the fire of Manilla, here they were burned, and many were of Hogs. clad in skinnes, for they had no leafure to take their Coates. They indured much cold in this place, and the chiefest remedie were great fires. They spent all night in turnings without sleepe: 40 for if they warmed one fide, they freezed on the other. Some invented the weaving of certaine Mats of drie Iuie, and did weare one beneath, and another aboue : many laughed at this denice, whom afterward necessatie inforced to doe the like. The Christians were so fooyled, and in such want of Saddles and weapons which were burned, that if the Indians had come the fecond night, they had ouercome them with little labour. They removed thence to the Towne where The Towne the Cacique was wont to lie, because it was in the champaine Countrie. Within eight dayes at- where the Cac ter, there were many Lances and Saddles made. There were Ash-trees in those parts, whereof cique lay.

Vpon Wednesday the 15.0f March, 1541. after the Governout had lodged eight dayes in a Plaine, halfe a league from the place which he had wintered in, after he had let vp a forge, and 50 tempered the Swords which in Chicaga were burned, and made many Targets, Saidles, and Lances, on Tuefday night, at the morning watch, many fudians came to affault the Campe in three fquadrons, every one by themselves: Those which watched gave the alarme. The Governour with great speed set his men in order three squadrons, and leaving some to defend the Campe, went out to entounter them. The Indians were ouercome and put to flight. The ground was champaine and fit for the Christians to take the advantage of them; and it was now breake of day. But there happened a diforder, whereby there were not past thirtie or fortie Indians fline: and this it was: that a Frier cried out in the Campe without any infl occasion, To the Campe, To the Campe: Whereupon the Governour and all the rest repaired thicher, and the Indians had time to faire themselves. There were some taken, by whom the Governour informed himselte

they made as good Lances as in Bifcay.

60 of the Couatrie, through which he was to palle. The flue and twentieth of Aprill, hee departed Aprill 27. from Chicaga, and lodged at a small Towne called Alimanu. They had very little Maiz, and Alimana. they were to passe a Defart of seuen dayes journey. The next day, the Gouernour sent three Captaines every one his way with Horiemen and Footmen to feeke provision to paffe the Defart. And John Danules the Auditor went with fifseene Horlemen, and fortie Footmen that way that the Gouernour was to goe, and found a strong Fort made, where the Indians staved for him, and many of them walked on the top of it with their weapons, having their bodies. B'acke, white, thighes and armes okered and died with blacke, white, yellow and red, ilriped like vnto panes. fo that they shewed as though they went in hose and doublets; and some of them had Plumes. and others had hornes on their heads, and their faces blacke, and their eyes done round about with itreakes of red, to teeme more herce.

1.d colours.

Iohn Danusco sent three horsemen to advertise the Governour hereof. He came presently for his intent was to drive them from thence, faying, that if he did it not, they would be embold. ned to charge him another time, when they might doe him more harme. Hee made the horfemen to alight, and fet his men in foure Equadrons : The figne being given, they fet vp the Is- Is dians, which made refiftance till the Christians came neere the Fort, and assoone as they faw they could not defend themselues, by a place where a Brooke passed neere the Fort, they ran away. and from the otherfide they fhot fome Arrowes : and because at that instant wee knew no ford for the horfes to passe, they had time enough to get out of our danger. Three Indians were flaine there, and many Christians were hure, whereof within few dayes, there died fifteene

A Defert of feuen dayes. A Towns of

The Gouernour was inforced to depart presently toward Quizquiz, He trauelled seuen daves through a Defeit of many Marishes and thicke Woods : but it might all bee trauelled on horsebacke, except some Lakes which they swamme ouer. Hee came to a Towne of the Prouince of Quizquiz without being descried, and tooke all the people in it before they came out of their an There came to the Campe fixe principal Indiane, and faid, they came to fee what people they were, and that long agoe, they had beene informed by their fore-fathers. That a white people should subdue them and that therefore they would returne to their Cacique, and bid him come prefently to obey and ierue the Gouernour : and after they had prefented him with fixe or feuen ges, and good fituation of ground to incampe in. Prelently he removued himfelfe thisher. They made houfes, and pitched their Campe in a plaine field a Croffe bow fhot from the River. And thither was gathered all the Maiz of the Townes, which they had lately passed. They began presently to cut and hew downe Timber, and to saw plankes for Barges. The Indianscame presently downe the River : they leaped on shoare, and declared to the Gouernour, That they were fubiects of a great Lord, whose name was Aquixo, who was Lord of many Townes, and gouerned many people on the other fide of the River, and came to tell him on his behalfe, that the next day he with all his men would come to fee, what it would pleafe him to command him.

The next day with speed, the Cacique came with two hundred Canoes full of Indians with their with shields in their hands, wherewith they detended the Rowers on both sides, and the men of Warre flood from the head to the sterne, with their Bowes and Arrowes in their hands. The

Canoe wherein the Cacique was, had a Tiltouer the fterne, and hee fate vnder the Tilt; and fo

w-re other Canoes of the principall Indians. And from under the Tilt where the chiefe man fat, he gouerned and commanded the other people. All loyned together, and came within a flones

Bowes and Arrowes, painted, and with great plumes of white feathers, and many other colours, 40

Duiz Just. An old Prophelie.

skins and Mantles which they brought, they tooke their leave of him, and returned with the other, which waited for them by the Brookes fide. The Casique neuer came againe nor fent other message. And because in the Towne where the Gouernour lodged, there was small store of Maiz, Ano ber he removed to another halfe a league from Rio Grande, where they found plentie of Maiz: And Towne. Ri G ande.or he went to fee the River, and found, that neere wnto it was great store of Timber to make Bar- 30 Re- de E piritu Santo ot Prunes.

Lord on the Weft fide of Rio Grande. 200, Canoes,

Goodly great Foure Barges

cast of the shoare. From thence the Cacque faid to the Governour, which walked along the Riuers fide with others that wayted on him, that he was come thither to vifit, to honor, and to obey him; because he knew he was the greatest and mightiest Lord on the Earth; therefore hee would fee what he would command him to doe. The Gouernour yeelded him thankes, and requested him to come on thoure, that they might the better communicate together. And with-19 out any answere to that point, bee feat him three Canoes, wherein was great store of filh and loaues, made of the substance of Prunes like vnto Brickes. After hee had received all, hee thankellhim, and prayed him againeto come on shoare. And because the Caciques purpose was, to fee if with diffimulation he might doe some hurt, when they faw that the Gouernour and his men were in readinesse, they beganne to goe from the shoare : and with a great cry, the Crossebowmen which were ready, that at them, and flue fine or tixe of them. They retired with great order: none did leave his Oare, though the next to him were flaine, and shielding themiclues, they went farther off. Afterward they came many times and landed : and when any of vs came toward them, they fled vnto their Canoes, which were very pleafant to behold: for they were very great and well made, and had their Tuts, Plumes, Pauefes, and Flagges, and with the mul- 60 titude of people that were in them, they feemed to be a faire Armie of Gallies. In thirtie dayes space, while the Gouernour remayned there, they made foure Barges. Assoone as those that They palle o palled first, were on Land on the other fide, the Barges returned to the place where the Gount uer Rie Grande. nour was : and within two houres after Sunne riling , all the people were ouer. The River was almost halfe a league broad. It a man stood shill on the other side, it could not bee differned, whether hee were a man or no. The River was of great depth, and of a firong current: the water was alwayes muddie : there came downe the River continually many trees and timher, which the force of the water and fireame brought downe. There was great flore of fifth in it or fundry forts, and most of it differing from the Iresh water fish of Spaine, as hereafter shall Having passed Ro Grande, the Governour travelled a league and an halfe and came to a great

Towne of Aquixo, which was dispeopled before hee came thither. They estied thirtie Indiana comming ouera plaine, which the Cacque fent to discouer the Christians determination : and to alloone as they had fight of them, they tooke themselves to flight. The Horsemen pursued them, and flue tenne, and tooke fifteene. And because the Towne, whither the Gouetnour went, was neere vnto the River, hee fent a Captaine, with as many men as hee thought fufficient to carrie the Barges vp the Riuer. And because in his travelling by land, many times hee went farre from the Ruer to compasse the creekes that came from it, the Indians tooke occasion to fer voon them of the Barges, and put them in great danger, because that by reason of the great current, they durit not leave the shoare, and from the banke they shot at them. Assone as the Guernour was come to the Towne, hee prefently fent Croffe-bowmen downe the River, which came to refeue them : and vpon the comming of the Barges to the Towne, hee commanded them to be broken, and to faue the Iron for others, when it should be needfull. He lay there 30 one night, and the day following, he fet forward to feeke a Province, called Pacaba: which he was informed to bee neere vnto Chifes, where the Indians told him there was gold. Hee paffed Pacaba neers through great Townes of Aguixo, which were all abandoned for feare of the Christians. Hee vino Chica. understood by certaine Indians that were taken, that three dayes journie from thence dwelt a Gress townes, great Cacique, whose name was Casqui. He came to a small River, where a Bridge was made. by which they paffed : that day ti'l Sun-fet, they went all in water, which in fome places came to the wafte, and in forme to the knees. When they faw themselues on dry land, they were very glad, because they feared they should wander vp and downe as forlorne men all night in the water. At noone they came to the first Towne of Cajque : they found the Indians careleffe, be- The first rowne caufe they had no knowledge of them. There were many men and women taken, and store of ot cape.

20 goods, as Mantles and skinnes, as well in the first Towne, as in another, which stood in a held halfe a league from thence in fight of it; whither the Horsemen ranne. This Countrie is higher, drier, and more champaine, then any part bordering neere the River, that vntill then they halleene. There were in the fields many Walnut-trees, bearing foft shelled Walnuts, in fashion Walnut trees like builets, an lin the houses they found many of them, which the Indians had laid up in store. with lost their The trees diff red in nothing elle from those of Spaine, nor from those which we had seene before. but onely that they have a fraller leafe. There were many Mulberie trees and Plum trees, which bare red Plums like those of Spaine, and other g'ay, fomewhat differing, but farre better. And Many Molbes bare red Plums like those of Spaine, and other gray, tomewhat differing, but large better. And the trees are all the trees are all the trees are all the trees are all the years to truitfull, as if they were planted in Orchards : and the Woods Plant trees, were very thinne. The Gouernour truelled two dayes through the Countrie of Cafqui, before 40 he came to the Towne where the Cacique was; and the most of the way was alway by Cham-

paine ground, which was tull of great Townes, fo that from one Towne, you might fee two or Many great three. Hee fent an Indian to certifie the Cacique, that hee was comming to the place where hee Towner. was, with intent to procure his friendihip, and to hold him as his brother. Whereunto hee antweeted. That he should be welcome, and that he would receive him with speciall good will, and accomplish all that are Lord hip would command him. He fent him a Present vpon the way; to wit, skinnes, Mantles, and fish : And after these complements , the Gouernour found all the Townes as he palled, inhabited with people, which peaceably attended his comming, and offered him skinnes, Mantles, and fish. The Cacique accompanied with many Indians came out of the Towne, and stayed halfe a league on the way to receive the Gouernour.

Within a while after both of them vied words of great offers and courtelie the one to the other, and the Cacique requested him to lodge in his houses. The Governour, to preserve the peace the better, excused himselfe, faying, that hee would lodge in the fields. And because it was very hot, they camped neere certaine trees a quarter of a league from the Towne. The Ca- The chiefe eique went to his Towne, and came againe with many Indians finging. Afloone as they came to the Gourmour, all of them profrated themselves vpon the ground. Among these came two Indians that were blind. The Cacique made a speech : that seeing the Governour was the Sonne of the Sunne, and a great Lord, he belought him to doe him the fauour to give fight to those two blind men. The blind men role vp presently, and very earnestly requested the same of the Gouernour. He answered, That in the high Heanens was bee that had power to give them health, and Spanish Indian 60 what some they could aske of him; whose sermant he was: And that this Lord made the Heavens and Preaching. the Earth, and man after his owne likenesse, and that bee suffered upon the Crosse to saue Mankind, and rose againe the third day, and that he died as he was man, and as touching his Dininite, he was, and is immortall; and that he of cended into Heaven, where hee flandeth with his armes open to receive all Such as turne unto him : and straight way hee commanded him to make a very high Groffe of wood,

longing to

which was let up in the highest place of the Towne; declaring unto him, that the Christians worthweed the same in resemblance and memorie of that whereon Christ suffered. The Gouernour and his men kneeled downe before it, and the Indians did the like. The Governour willed him, that from thenceforth he should worship the same, and should aske whatsoever they stood in need of . of the Lord that he told him was in Heauen. Then he asked him how farre it was from thence to Pacaba: He faid, one dayes journie, and that at the end of his Countrie, there was a Lakelike a Brooke which falleth into Rio Grande, and that hee would fend men before to make a Bridge whereby hee might passe. The same day that the Governour departed thence, hee lodged at a Towne belonging to Cafqui: and the next day he pailed in light of other Townes, and came to A Townebethe Lake, which was halfe a Croffe-bow shot oner, of a great depth and current. At the time of to Cofqui. his comming, the Indians had made an end of the Bridge, which was made of timber, laid one tree after another : and on one fide it had a course of stakes higher then the Bridge, for them that passed to take hold on. The Cacique of Casqui came to the Gouernour, and brought his people with him. The Governour fent word by an Indian to Cacique of Pacaha, that though he were enemie to the Cacique of Cafqui, and though he were there, yet hee would doe him no diferace nor hurt, if hee would attend him peaceably, and imbrace his friendship; but rather wouldincreate him as a Brother. The Indian, which the Gouernour fent, came againe, and faid, that the Cacique made none account of that which he told him, but fled with all his men out at the other file of the Towne. Prefently the Gouernour entred, and ranne before with the Horsemen, that way, by which the Indians fled; and at another Towne diffant a quarter of a league from thence, an they tooke many Indians : and alloone as the Horiemen had taken them, they delivered them to the Indians of Calqui, whom, because they were their enemies, with much circums pection and rejoycing, they brought to the Towne where the Christians were : and the greatest griefe they had, was this, that they could not get leave to kill them. There were found in the Towne many Mantles, and Deere skinnes, Lions skinnes, and Beares skinnes, and many Cats skinnes. Many came fo farre poorely apparelled, and there they clothed them telue : of the Mantles, they made them Coates and Callocks, and iome made Gownes, and lined them with Cats skinnes; and likewife their Caffocks. Of the Decresskinnes, some made them also Ierkins. Shirts, Hose and Shooes: and of the Beare skinnes, they made them very good Clokes: for no water could

Voon Wednesday the nineteenth of June, the Gouernour entred into Pacaba: He lodged in the Towne, where the Cacique vied to refide, which was very great, walled, and befet with Towres, and many loope-holes were in the Towres and Wall. And in the Towne was great flore of old Maiz, and great quantitie of new in the fields. Within a league and halfe a league were great Townes all walled. Where the Governour was lodged, was a great Lake, that came neere voto the wall; and itentred into a ditch that went round about the Towne, wanting but a little to environ it round. From the Lake to the great River was made a weare by the which the fish came into it; which the Cacique kept for his recreation and sport ; with Nets that were

was no want perceived. There was also great flore of fish in many other Lakes that were thereabout, but it was foft, and not fo good as that which came from the River, and the most of it was different from the fresh water fith of Spaine. There was a fish which they called Bagres: the third part of it was head, and it had on both fides the gils, and along the fides great prickes like found in the Towne, they tooke as much as they would : and tooke they never fo much . there 40

Targets of raw pierce them. There were Targets of raw Oxe Hides found there; with which Hides they ar- 30 Ove hides Pacaha, a verie great Towne belet with Great walled Townes.

Nets found.

The divers

teeth beneath and aboue.

Oxen toward the North of Pacaba. This is like Quinera, toward the South.

very sharpe Aules : those of this kind that were in the Lakes were as bigge as Pikes : and in the River, there were some of an hundred, and of an hundred and fiftie pounds weight, and many of them were taken with the hooke. There was another fish like Barbels; and another like Breames, headed like a delicate fish, called in Spaine Besugo, betweene red and grey. This was thereof most esteeme, There was another fish called a Pele fish : it had a fnowt of a Cubit long, and at the end of the upper lip it was made like a Peele. There was another fifth like a Westerne Shad : And all 50 of them had scales, except the Bagres, and the Pele fish. There was another fish, which somtimes the Indians brought vs, of the bigneffe of an Hogge, they call it the Pereo fish : it had rowes of From thence he fen: thirtie Horsemen, and fiftie Footmen to the Province of Caluça, tofee Gold & Cop- if from thence he might travell to Chifca, where the Indians faid, there was a worke of Gold and Copper, They trauelled feuen dayes journie through a Defert, and returned very wearie, eating greene Plums and stalkes of Maiz, which they found in a poore Towne of fixe or feuen A pooretowne houles. From thence forward toward the North, the Indians faid, That the Countrie was very Great flore of ill inhabited, because it was very cold : And that there were fuch flore of Oxen, that they could keepe no Corne for them : and that the Indians hued vpon their flesh. The Governour 60 feeing, that to ward that part the Countrie was so poore of Maiz, that in it they could not bee fulfaine!, demanded of the Indians, which way it was most inhabited : and they faid, they had notice of a great Protince, and a very plentifull Countrie, which was called Quigante, and it was the Towne, where the Carque vied to keepe his Refidencie : on the way hee fent him 2 Prefent The grant of many Manties and Skinnes, and not daring to flay for him in the Towne, hee absented him - I owne feet felfe. The Towne was the greatest that was seene in Florida. They tooke many men and women. Now seeing the hurt which they fustained for their Rebellion, they came to see what the Governour would command them, and pasted to and from any rimes, and brought Prefents of Cloth and Fish. The Cacique and his two wines were in the Cloth lodging of the Gouernour loofe, and the Halbardiers of his Guard did keepe them. The Gouernour asked them which way the Countrie was most inhabited? They said, that toward the 10 South downe the River were great Townes and Casiques, which commanded great Countries, and much people : And that toward the North-weit , there was a Prouince neere to certaine Coffee neere Mountaines that was called Coliggs. The Governour and all the rest thought good to goe first to to certains

Colleges: faying, that peraduenture the Mountaines would make some difference of toile, and Mountaines that beyond them there might be some Gold or Silver: As for Quigante, Casqui, and Pacaba, they were plaine Countries, fat grounds, and full of good Medowes on the Rivers, where the Indians fowed large fields of Maiz. From Tascainea to Rio grande, or the great River, is about three hundred leagues: it is a very low Countrie, and hath many Lakes. From Pacaba to Qmgente may bee an hundred leagues. The Gouernour left the Casigne of Quigante in his owne Towne : And an Indian, which was his Guide, led him through great Woods without any way 30 feven dayes journie through a Defert, where at every lodging, they lodged in Lakes and Pooles in very thould water : there was such flore of fifth, that they killed them with cudgels; and the A new was to Indians which they carried in chains, with the mud troubled the waters, and the fifth being therewith, as it were, altonied, came to the top of the water, and they tooke as much as they listed. The Indians of Colleges had no knowledge of the Christians, and when they came so neere the Colleges. Towne, that the Indians faw them, they fled vp a River, which passed neere the Towne, and A River.

Some leaped into it; but the Christians went on both fides of the River, and tooke them. There were many men and women taken, and the Cacique with them. And by his commandement within three dayes came many Indians with a Prefent of Mantles and Decres skinnes, and two Oxe hides: And they reported, that flue or fixe leagues from thence toward the North, there Two oxe hides were many of these Oxen, and that because the Countrie was cold, it was cuill inhabited : That Store of oxen the best Countrie which they knew; the most plentifull, and most inhabited, was a Province toward the called Cayar, lying toward the South. From Sugnate to Coligea may be fortie leagues. It was a North fat foile and fo plentifull of Maiz, that they caft out the old, to bring in the new. There was alfo great plentie of French Beanes and Pompions. The French Beanes were greater , and better then thote of Spaine, and likewife the Pompions, and being roafted, they have almost the taste of Cheffinuts. The Cacagae of Coligon gave a Guide to Cayas, and flayed behind in his owne Towne, We travelled five dayes, and came to the Province of Palifema. The house of the Caci- The Province que was found courred with Deeres skins of divers colours and workes drawine in them, and with of Patiferna. the fame in manner of Carpers was the ground of the house covered. The Carigne left it so, that 40 the Gouernour might lodge in it, in token that hee fought peace and his friendship. But hee durst not tarrie his comming. The Gouernour, feeing he had absented himselfe, sent a Captaine with Horsemen and Footmen to seeke him : Hefound much people, but by reason of the roughneffe of the Country, he tooke none faue a few women and children. The Towne was little and feattering, and had very little Maiz. For which cause the Gouernour speedily departed from thence. He came to another Towne called Tatalicoya, he carried with him the Caeigne thereof, Tatalicoy

the Province of Caya, because they had informed him that it was well inhabited : He threatned the Cacique, charging him to tell him where he was ; and he and other Indians which were taken to neere about that place, affirmed that this was the Towne of Cayde, and the belt that was in that Country, and that though the houses were distant the one from the other, yet the ground that was inhabited was great, and that there was great store of people, and many fields of Maiz. This Towne was called Tonco : he pitched his Campe in the best part of it neere vnto a Ruer. Tonico.

The same day that the Gouernour came thither, he went a league farther with certaine Horsemen, and without finding any, he found many skinnes in a pathway, which the Carigne had left there , that they might bee found, in token of peace. For fo is the cultome in that

The Gouernour rested a moneth in the Province of Cayas. In which time the horses fattened and thrined more, then in other places in a longer time, with the great plentie of Maiz and the 60 leanes thereof, which I thinke was the best that hath beene seene, and they dranke of a Lake of very hot water, and somewhat brackish, and they dranke so much, that it swelled in their bellies A Lake of hot when they brought them from the Watering. Untill that time the Christians wanted Salt, and and fomewhat when they brought them from the watering. Vitill that time the Coristians wanted Sair, and there they made good flore, which they carried along with them. The Indians doe carrie it to oscient the store of Sair. ther places to exchange it for Skins and Mantles. They make it along the River, which when made at Conac Nonnan 2 which guided him to Cayas. From Tatalicoya are foure dayes journie to Cayas. When he came to Cares, and faw the Towne feattered; he thought they had told him a lye, and that it was not cares

I 549 The Governour tooke his journie toward Quigante. The fourth day of August, hee came to Quigante.

it abbeth, leaveth it you the vpper part of the fand. And because they cannot make it, without much find mingled with it, they throw it into certaine baskets which they have forther purpole, broad at the mouth, and narrow at the bottome, and fet it in the Aire vpon a barre, and throw water into it, and fet a small Veilell under it, wherein it falleth : Beeing itrained and fer to boyle youn the fire, when the water's fodden away, the Sale remayneth in the bottome of the Pan. On both files of the River the Countrie was full of fowne fields , and there was flore of Alaiz.

Many Oxe hides with wool on them, se folkas. theeps wool, Gemara Hiller. Gener, 649, 145. Many Oxen toward the North. The great eloquence of the Immediately the Gouernour with certaine Horsemen and fifty Footmen, departed toward Tulls, hee found the Towne abandoned : for the Indians durit not tarrie his comming. The Cacrome came, and eightie Indians with him. He brought a Preient of many Oxe hides: which, to because the Countrie was cold, were very profitable, and served for Couerlets, because they were very foft, and woolled like sheepe. Not farre from thencee toward the North were many Oxen. The Christians law them not, nor came into the Countrie where they were, because those parts were exill inhabited, and had small store of Maiz where they were bred. The Cacique of Talle made an Oration to the Gouernour, wherein he excused himselfe, and offered him his Country, Subjects, and person. Aswell this Cacique as the others, and all those which came to the Gouernour on their behalfe, deliuered their meffage or speech in so good order, that no Oratour could veter the fame more eloquently.

His departure to Autiamque, ORTIZ his death and disasters following: SOTO takes thought and dieth. Moscosco succeedeth. They leave Florida, and arrive at Panuco.

A winter of

He Governour informed himselfe of all the Countrie round abour; and vnderstood, that toward the West was a Sattered dwelling, and that toward the South-east were great to Townes, especially in a Prouince called Austanague, ten daies south-east which might be about eightie leagues; and that it was a plentifull Countrey of Maiz. And because Winter came on, and that they could not trauell two or three moneths in the yeere for cold, waters, and frow ; and fearing, that if they should flay fo long in the scattered dwelling, they could not be fusteined ; and also because the Indians faid , that neere to Aurianque was a great water, and according to their relation, the Gouernour thought it was some arme of the Sea: And because hee now defired to send newes of himselfe to Casta, that some supply of men and horses might be ient vnto him : (for it was about three yeeres, fince Donna Ifabella, which was in Hawand, or any other person in Christendome had heard of him, and by this time hee had lost two hundred and fifcie men, and one hundred and fiftie horses) he determined to winter in Autiam- 40 que, and the next Spring, to goe to the Sea Coaft, and to make two Brigantines, and fend one of them to Cuba, and the other to Nuena Effauna, that that which went in fafetie, might give newes of him: Hoping with the goods which he had in Caba, to furnish himselfe againe, and to attempt the Discouerie and conquest toward the West: for he had not yet come where Cabeca de Vaca had beene. Thus having ient away the two Caciques of Cayas and Tulla, hee tooks his journie toward Antiamque: He trauciled fine dayes over very rough Mountaines, and came to dayer tournie a Towne called Quipana, where no Indians could bee taken for the roughnesse of the Countrie: and the Towne being betweene Hils, there was an ambuli laid, wherewith they tooke two Indians; which told them, that Autianque was fixe dayes journie from thence, and that there was another Province toward the South eight dayes journie off, plentifull of Maiz, and very well 50 peopled, which was called Guahate. But because Autianque was neerer, and the most of the

Duipana, fine from Tulla.

Guahate.

Cateneja.

Autiamane fixe dayesiournie and came no more, nor any other message from the Casique. The next day the Christians went to the Towne, which was without people : they tooke as much Maiz as they needed. That day they lodged in a Wood, and the next day they came to Antiamque. They found much Maiz 60 laid vp in flore, and Franch Beanes, and Walnuts and Prunes, great flore of all forts. They tooke fome Indians which were gathering together the stuffe which their wives had hidden. This was a Champaine Countrie, and well inhabited. The Governor lodged in the best part of the Towne, and commanded prefently to make a fence of timber round about the Campe diffant from the hou-

Indians agreed of it, the Governor made his journie that way. In three dayes are came to a tooke the Indians carelelle, he tooke many men and women prisoners. Within two dayes after the Gouernour came to another Towne called Catamaya, and lodged in the fields of the

Towne. Two Indians, came with a falle meflage from the Cacique to know his determination. He had them tell their Lord, that hee should come and speake with him. The Indians returned

Towne called Anaixi. He sent a Captaine before with thirtie Horsemen, and fiftie Footmen, and tes, that the Indians might not hure them without by fire. And meaturing the ground by paces, he appointed every one his part to doe according to the number of Indians which he had: prefently the timber was brought by them; and in three dayes there was an inclosure made of very high and thicke posts thrust into the ground, and many rayles hid acrosse. Hard by this Towne pasted a River, that came out of the Province of Cayon; and above and beneath it was ve. A River, ry well peopled. They stayed in Auttanque three moneths with great plentie of Maiz, French Three months Beanes, Walnuts, Prunes, and Conies: which vntill that time they knew not how to catch, abode in A-And in Autiamque the Indians taught them how to take them : which was; with great fpringes, tiamore, which lifted up their feet from the ground: And the fnare was made with a ftrong string, where-10 unto was faitned a knot of a cane, which ranne close about the necke of the Conie, because they should not snaw the string. They tooke many in the fields of Maiz, especially when it freezed or fnowed. The Christians stayed there one whole moneth so inclosed with snowe, that they Frost and snow went not out of the Towne: and when they wanted fire-wood, the Governour with his Hori- A moneth of men going and comming many times to the Wood, which was two Cref-bow flot from the faow. Towne, made a path-way, whereby the Pootmen went for wood. In this meane space, some Indians which went loofe, killed many Conies with their Giues, and with their Arrowes. Thefe Conies were of two forts, some were like those of Spains, and the other of the same colour and Conies of two fashion, and as bigge as great Hares, longer, and having greater loines. Vpon Monday the fixt of March, 1542, the Gouernour departed from Antiamque to feeke March 6. 20 Niles, which the Indians faid was neere the Great Riner, with determination to come to the Sea. 1542. and procure some succour of Men and Horses: for he had now but three hundred Men of warre, and fortie Horses, and some of them lame, which did nothing but helpe to make up the number : and for want of Iron, they had gone aboue a yeere vnshod : and because they were wied to it in the plaine Countrie, it did them no great harme. John Ortiz died in Antiamque; which The death of grieued the Gouernour very much: because that without an Interpreter he feared to enter farre the great mile into the Land, where hee might bee loft : whereby it often happened, that the way that they of him, being went one day, and sometimes two or three dayes, they turned backe, and went aftray through their Interprethe wood here and there. The Gouernour pent ten dayes in trauelling from Autiamque to a ter. Prouince called Ayays; and came to a Towne that flood neere the River that paffeth by Cayas Ayays.

A River,

30 and Autiamque. There her commanded a Barge to bee made, wherewith hee paffed the River. When he had passed the River, there fell out such weather, that foure dayes he could not travell for Snow. As ioone as it gaue over fnowing, he went three dayes sourney through a Wildernesse, Great snow as and a Countrie so lowe, and so full of Lakes and euill wayes, that he travelled one time a whole bout the twenday in water, fometimes knee deepe, fometimes to the ftirrup, and fometimes they fwamme. He came to a Towne called Tutelpinco, abandoned, and without Maiz: there passed by it a Lake, Tutelpinco. that entred into the River, which carried a great streame and force of water.

The Gouernour went a whole day along the Lake feeking passage, and could finde none, nor any way that did paffe to the other fide. Comming agains at night to the Towns he found two peaceable Indians, which shewed him the passage, and which way hee was to goe. There they 40 made of canes, and of the timber of houses thatched with canes, rafts wherewith they palled Rifts wherethe Lake. They trauelled three dayes, and came to a Towns of the Ferritorie of Nilos, called with they par-Tiante. There they tooke thirtie Indians, and among them two principall men of this Towne. The Gouernour fent a Captaine with Horsemen and Footmen before to Niles, because the In- Tiante. dians, might have no time to carrie away the provision. They passed through 3.or 4. great Towns; 3. or 4. great and in the Towne where the Cacique was refident, which was two leagues from the place where Towness the Gouernour remained, they found many Indian; with their Bowes and Arrowes, in manner as though they would have stayed to fight, which did compasse the Towne; and as soone as they faw the Christians come neere them without mifdoubting them . they fet the Caciques house on fire, and fled ouer a Lake that paffed neere the Towne, through which the Horses could not paffe.

The next day being Wednelday the nine and twentieth of March, the Gouernour came to March age Nilco: he lodged with all his men in the Caciques Towne, which flood in a plaine field, which Nilco. was inhabited for the space of a quarter of a league : and within a league and halte a league were other very great Townes, wherein was great store of Maiz, of French Beanes, of Walnuts, and Very great Prunes. This was the best inhabited Countrie, that was seene in Florida, and had most store of The best Maiz, except Coca, and Apalache. There came to the Campe an Indian accompanied with o- Countrie of thers, and in the Caciques name gaue the Governous a Mantle of Marterns skinnes, and a Cor- Florida. don of Pearles. The Gouernour gaue him a few small Margarites, which are certaine Beades Marterns much esteemed in Peru, and other things, wherewith he was very well contented. He promised A cordon of to returne within two dayes, but never came againe; but on the contrary the Indians came by Pearles, night in Canoas, and carried away all the Maiz they could, and made them Cabins on the other

This River which passed by Nilco, was that which passed by Cayas and Autiamoue, and felt A River faling into Rio grande, or the Great River, which paffed by Pachaba and Aquixo, neere voto the Prouince of Gnachoya. Within few dayes the Governour determined to goe to Gnachoya, to learne Nnnnnn 3

Guschora

there whether the Sea were neere, or whether there were any habitation neere, where he mishe relieus his companie, while the Brigantines were making, which he meant to lend to the Land of the Christians. He came to Guacheya vpon Sunday the seuenteenth of Aprill; hee lodged in the Towns of the Cacique, which was inclosed about, and feated a Crof-bow shot distant from the River. Here the River is called Tamalifen; and in Nilco, Tapatu; and in Coga, Mico; and in Foure names the Port or Mouth, Ri. of Kie grande.

The Cacique of Guachers brought with him many Indians with great flore of Fish, Dogges. Deeres skinnes, and Mantles. Hee asked him whether he had any notice of the Sea. Hee aniwered, no, nor of any Townes downe the River on that fide. The Governour thought that the Cacique lyed vnto him, to rid him out of his owne Townes, and fent lohn Danufco with eight Horsemen downe the River, to see what habitation there was, and to informe himselfe, if there were any notice of the Sea. He trauelled eight dayes, and at his returne he faid, that in all that time he was not able to goe aboue fourteene or fifteene leagues, because of the great creekes that came out of the River, and groves of Canes, and thicke Woods that were along the bankes of the River, and that he had found no habitation. The Governour fell into great dumpes, to The Gournor fee how hard it was to get to the Sea : and worfe, because his Men and Horfes enery day diminifalleth ficke of fhed, being without fuccour to fuffaine themfelues in the Countrie : and with that thought hes fell ficke. But before he tooke his bed, he fent an Indian to the Cacique of Quigalta, to tell him. that he was the Child of the Sunne, and that all the way that he came all men obeyed and ferued him, that he requested him to accept of his friendship, and come vnto him; for he would be very glad to fee him: and in figne of loue and obedience to bring fomething with him of that which in his Councrie was most esteemed. The Cacique answered by the same Indian :

A most winte cique of Qui-

That whereas he faid, that he was the Childe of the Sunne, if he would drie up the Riner hee would beleene bim : and touching the rest, that he was wont to visit none : but rather that all those of whom fuer of the Ca- bee had notice did vifit him, ferned, obeyed and paid him tributes willingly or perforce: therefore if hee defired to fee him, it were best be should come thither: that if he came in peace, hee would receive him with speciall goodwill; and if in warre, in like manner be would attend him in the Towne where he was, and that for him or any other he would not forinke one foote backe.

By that time the Indian returned with this antiwere, the Gonernour had betaken himselfe to bed, being suill handled with Feuers, and was much aggricued, that hee was not in case to passe 30 presently the River, and to seek him, to see if he could abate that pride of his, considering the Riuer went now very strongly in those parts; for it was neere halfe a league broad, and 16.fathoms deepe, & very furious, and ran with a great current; and on both fides were many Indians, and his power was not now fo great, but that he had need to helpe himielfe rather by flights then force,

The Gouernour felt in himselfe that the houre approached, wherein he was to leave this prefent life, and called for the Kings Officers, Captaines and principall persons. Hee named Lags de Moscoso de Aluarado his Captaine generall. And presently he was sworne by all that were present, and elected for Gouernour. The next day, being the one and twentieth of May, 1542. Don Ferdinando departed out of this life, the valorous, virtuous, and valiant Captaine, Don Fernando de Soto, Gode Sato, the ar. uernour of Caba, and Adelantado of Florida: whom fortune advanced, as it vieth to doe others, 49 that he might have the higher fall. Hee departed in such a place, and at such a time, as in his fickneffe he had but little comfort : and the danger wherein all his people were of perifing in that Countrie, which appeared before their eyes, was cause sufficient, why every one of them had neede of comfort, and why they did not visite nor accompanie him as they ought to have done. Lugs de Moscoso determined to conceale his death from the Indians, because Ferdinando de Soto had made them beleeue, That the Christians were immortall; and also because they tooke him to be hardy, wife, and valiant: and if they should knowe that hee was dead, they would be bold to fet voon the Christians, though they lived peaceably by them. In regard of their difpolition, and because they were nothing constant, and believed all that was told them, the Adelantado made them beleeve, that he knew some things that passed in secret among themselves, 50 without their knowledge, how, or in what manner he came by them ; and that the figure which appeared in a Glasse, which he shewed them, did tell him whatsoeuer they practited and went about: and therefore neither in word nor deed durst they attempt any thing that might be pre-

A wittie ftratagem.

> As foone as he was dead, Luys de Moscoso commanded to put him secretly in an house, where he remayned three dayes: and remoung him from thence, commanded him to be buried in the night at one of the gates of the Towne within the wall. And as the Indians had feene him fick, and miffed him, fo did they suspect what might be. And passing by the place where he was buried, feeing, the earth moued, they looked and spake one to another. Lays de Moscoso vnderstanding of it, commanded him to be taken up by night, and to east a great deale of fand into the 60 Mantles, wherein he was winded vp, wherein he was carried in a Canoa, and throwne into the midft of the River. The Cacique of Guachoya inquired of him, demanding what was become of his brother and Lord, the Gouernor: Luys de Moscoso told him, that he was gone to Heauen, as many other timeshe did: Ind because he was to stay there certaine dayes, he had left him in his place.

The Cacique thought with himfelfe that he was dead; and commanded two young and well proportioned Indians to be brought thither; and faid, that the vic of that Countrie was, when any This is also the Lord died, to kill Indians, to waite voon him, and ferue him by the way: and for that purpose custome of the by his commandement were those come thither : and prayed Lays de Moscoso to command them to be beheaded, that they might attend and ferue his Lord and brother. Luns de Moscoso told him, that the Gouernour was not dead, but gone to Heauen, and that of his owne Christian Souldiers, he had taken fuch as he needed to ferue him, and prayed him to command those Indians to be looted, and not to vie any such bad custome from thenceforth : straightway he commanded them to be loofed, and to get them home to their houses. And one of them would not goe; to faying, that he would not ferue him, that without defert had judged him to death, but that hee would ferue him as long as he lived, which had faued his life.

All were of opinion, that it was best to goe by land toward the West, because Mueus Espan- Their generals was that way; holding the Voyage by Sea more dangerous, and of greater hazard, because wanted by land they could make no ship of any strength to abide a storme, neither had they Master, nor Pilot, Westward. Compas, nor Chart, neither knew they how farre the Sea was off, nor had any notice of it; nor whether the River did make any great turning into the Land, or had any great fall from the Rockes, where all of them might be cast away. And some which had seene the Sea-chart, did finde, that from the place where they were, by the Sea-coast to Nuena Espanna, might be foure hundred leagues little more or leffe; and faid, that though they went somewhat about by Land 30 in feeking a peopled Countrie, if some great Wilderneffe which they could not paffe did not hinder them, by fpending that Summer in travell, finding provision to passe the Winter in some peopled Countrie, that the next Summer after they might come to fome Christian Land, and that it might fortune in their trauell by Land, to finde some rich Countrie, where they might doe themiclues good. The Gouernour, although he defired to get out of Florida in shorter time. feeing the inconveniences they layed before him, in travelling by Sea, determined to follow that which feemed good to them all. On Monday the fifth of Iune, he departed from Guachoya. The Cacique gaue him a Guide to Iune 9. Chaquate, and stayed at home in his owne Towne. They passed through a Province called Ca- catalle. talie : and having passed a Wildernesse of fixe dayes Journey, the twentieth day of the moneth 30 he came to Chaguate. There he was informed of the habitation that was toward the West. They Chaguate. told him, that three dayes lourney from thence was a Province called Agnacay. The Governour came to this Towne on Wednesday, the fourth of July. He found the Towne without people, Aguacay and lodged in it; he ftayed there about a day; during which, he made some roades, and tooke many menand women. There they had knowledge of the South Sea. The next day he came to a small Towne called Pate. The fourth day after his departure from Pate. Aguacay be came to the first habitation of a Prouince called Amage. There an Indian was ta- Amage. ken, which faid that from thence to Nagnatex, was a day and a halfes fourney; which they trauelled, finding all the way inhabited places. Hauing passed the peopled Countrie of Amaje, on Saturday the twentieth of July they pitched their Campe at noone between Amaye and Nagua-40 tex. The next day he came to the habitation of Naguatex, which was very feattering. Within Noguetex. foure dayes he departed thence, and comming to the River, hee could not passe, because it was The River growne very bigge; which feemed to him a thing of admiration, being at that time that it was, fable in August and fince it had not rained a moneth before. The Indians faid, that it increased many times after at Naguatax. that manner without rayning in all the Countrie. It was supposed, that it might bee the tide Coniccures that came into it. It was learned that the floud came alway from aboue, and that the Indians of of a Sea to the

all the Countrie had no knowledge of the Sea. Hee departed from Nagnater, and within three dayes lourney came to a Towne of foure or fine houses, which belonged to the Cacique of that Province, which is called Niffone: it was Niffone euill inhabited, and had little Maiz. Two dayes journey forward the Guides which guided the 50 Gouernour, if they were to goe Westward, guided him to the Bast, and somtimes went up and downe through very great Woods out of the way. The Gouernour commanded them to be hanged upon a tree : and a woman that they tooke in Niffoone guided him, and went backe againe to feeke the way. In two dayes he came to another miferable Towne, called Lacana: an Lacana Indian was taken in that place, and faid, that the Countrie of Nondacao was a Countrie of great Nandacae habitation, and the houses scattering the one from the other, as they vie to be in Mountaines, and had great flore of Maiz. The Cacique came with his men weeping, like them of Naguatex : for this is their vie, in token of obedience : he made him a present of much fish, and offered to doe what he would command him.

The Gouernour departed from Nondacao toward Soacatina, and in fine dayes journey came to 60 a Province called Aays. That day that the Governour departed from thence, the Indian that Aqua guided him faid, that in Nondacao he had heard fay, that the Indians of Soacatino had feene other Christians, whereof they were all glad; thinking it might be true, and that they might have entred into those parts by Nueua Espanna; and that if it were so, it was in their owne hands to goe out of Florida, if they found nothing of profit: for they feared they should lose themselves

Knowledge of

Twenty daies the South.

Guafce : here they found fome Turkie ftones,& mantles of Cotten

The River of Daycee: which feemeth to be Rio del oro.

No trauelling by land without an Inter-Dreter.

Gold, Silver and precious ftones in Flo-

Turkie stones and Mantles of Cotten wooll found in Gualco. 150 leagues betweene the River of Daycae, and Rio grande. The beginning of December. Raine with Northren winde excee.

ding cold.

in some wildernesse. This Indian led him two dayes out of the way. The Governour comman ded to torture him. He faid, that the Cacique of Nondacao, his Lord, commanded him to guide them fo, because they were his enemies, and that he was to doe as his Lord commanded him. The Gouernour commanded him to be cast to the dogs: and another guided him to Soacatine, while ther he came the day following. It was a very poore Country ; there was great want of Maiz in that place. He asked the Indians whether they knew of any other Christians. They faid, that a little from thence toward the South they heard they were. He trauelled twentie dayes through a Country euill inhabited, where they fuffered great featsitie and trouble. For that little Mair which the Indians had, they had hidden and buried in the woods, where the Christians, after they were well wearied with trauell, at the end of their journey went to feeke by digging what they Io should eate. At last, comming to a Prouince that was called Guasco, they found Maiz, where with they loaded their horfes, and the Indians that they had.

The Indians told them there, that ten daies journie from thence toward the West, was a River called Darcas: whither they went fometimes a hunting and killing of Deere: and that they had feene people on the other fide, but knew not what habitation was there. There the Christians tooke such Maiz as they found and could carry, and going ten daies journie through a wildernelle, they came to the River which the Indians had told them of. Ten horsemen which the Gouernour had fent before, passed oner the same, and went in a way that led to the River, and lighted upon a company of Indians that dwelt in very little cabins; who, as foone as they faw them. tooke themselves to flight, leaving that which they had; all which was nothing but mi- 20 ferie and pouertie. The Countrie was to poore, that among them all there was not found halfe a pecke of Maiz. The horfemen tooke too Indians, and returned with them to the Ruer, where the Gouernour staied for them. He sought to learne of them what habitation was toward the West. There was none in the Campe that could understand their language. The Gouernour affembled the Captaines and principall persons, to determine with their aduice what they should doe. And the most part said, that they thought it best to returne backe to Rio grande, or the great River of Guachera; because that id Nilce and thereabout was store of Maiz; saying, that they would make Pinnaces that winter, and the next Summer passe downe the River to the Seaward in them, and comming to the Sea they would goe along the coast to Nuena Espanna. For though it seemed a doubtfull thing and difficult, by that which they had already alleadged, yet it was the last remedy they had. For by land they could not goe for want of an Interpreter. And they held that the Countrie beyond the River of Dayaco, where they were, was that which Cabeca de Vaca mentioned in his relation that he passed of the Indians, which lined like the Alarbes, banno no settled place, and fed upon Tunas and roptes of the fields; and wilde beafts that they killed. Which if it were fo, if they should enter into it and finde no victuals to passe the winter, they could not choose but perish. For they were entred already into the beginning of October : and if they flaied any longer, they were not able to returne for raine and inowes, nor to fuffaine themselves in so poore a Countrie. The Governour (that defired long to see himselfe in a place where her might fleene his full fleene, rather then to conquer and governe a Countrie where fo many troubles prefented themselves) presently returned backe that same way that he came.

When that which was determined was published to the Campe, there were many that were greatly grieved at it: for they held the Sea voyage as doubtfull for the enil meanes they had, and as great danger as the trauelling by land : and they hoped to finde fome rich Countrey before they came to the land of the Christians, by that which Cabeca de Vaca had told the Emperour: and that was this; That after he had found cloathes made of Cotten wooll, hee faw Gold and Silver, and stones of great value. And they had not yet come where hee had beene. For vntill that place he alwayes trauclled by the Sea coaft : and they trauelled farre within the land; and that going toward the West, of necessitie they should come where he had beene. For he taid, That in a certaine place he trauelled many dayes, and entred into the land toward the North. And in Guafco they had already found fome Turkie flones, and Mantles of Cotten wooll; which the 50 Indians fignified by fignes that they had from the West: and that holding that course they should draw neere to the land of the Christians. From Daycao, where now they were to Rio grando, or the great River, was one hundred and fiftie leagues : which voto that place they had gone Westward. They departed from Nilco in the beginning of December; and all that way, and before from Chilano, they endured much trouble; for they passed through many waters, and many times it rained with a Northren winde, and was exceeding colde, so that they were in open field with water ouer and underneath them: and when at the end of their dayes journey they found dry ground to rest upon, they gave great thankes to God. With this trouble almost all the Indians that served them died. And after they were in Mineya, many Christians also died : and the most part were ticke of great and dangerous difeases, which had a spice of the lethargie.

As soone as they came to Minoya, the Gouernour commanded them to gather all the chaines together, which enery one had to lead Indians in; and to gather all the Iron which they had for their prouision, and all the rest that was in the Campe : and to set up a forge to make mailes, and commanded them to cut downe timber for the Brigandines. And a Portugal of Couta, who having bin a prisoner in Fet, had learned to saw timber with a long Saw, which for such purpoles they had carried with them, did teach others, which helped them to faw timber. And a Enquenisen poles they had carried with them, and the without him they had never come out of the herbe like Genoms, whosh is produced another that could make Ships but he) with foure or fine other Flaxe of the Riffaine Carpenters, which hewed his plankes and other timbers, made the Brigandines: And Countrie. ryo calkers, the one of Genna, the other of Sardinia did calke them with the tow of an hearbe The mighty like Hempe, whereof before I haue made mention, which there is named Enequen. And because increasing of the Hempe, warred before I have liked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it, they calked them with the flixe of the Countrie, and with the Man-there was not enough of it. tles, which they rauelled for that purpose. A Cooper made for every Brigandine two halfe hogs space, towit, 10 heads, which the Mariners call quarterers, because foure of them hold a Pipe of water. In the all March and moneth of March, when it had not rained a moneth before, the River grew fo big, that it came Aprillto Nilco, which was nine leagues off : and on the other fide, the Indians faid, that it reached other The grandconto Niles, which was nine leagues on; and on the other nue, the amount into the reached other nine leagues into the land. In the towns where the Christians were, which was formwhat high Indians spainfi ground, where they could best goe, the water reached to the stirrops. They made certaine rates the Coristinas. of timber, and laid many boughes vpon them, whereon they fer their horses, and in the houses Note well. they did the like. But feeing that nothing preuailed, they went up to the lofts : and if they went Thirty Indians out of the houles, it was in Canoes, or on horfeback in those places where the ground was highout of the houles, it was in Canoes, or on horieoack in those places where the ground was inguieft. So they were two moneths, 2 deould doe nothing, during which time the River decreated have their not. The Indians ceased not to come vitto the Brigantines as they were wont, and came in Carricht hands 20 noes. At this time the Governour feared they would fet voon him. He commanded his men to cut off. rake an Indian fecretly of those that came to the Towne, and stay him till the rest were gone : The River inrate an instant secretly of contention came of the above, and tay mind in the few were gone and they tooke one. The Governour commanded him to be put to torture, to make him confells and they tooke one. The Governour commanded him to be put to torture, to make him confells and they tooke one. The Governour confells have the Confedence of Miles whether the Indians did practife any treason or no. Hee confessed that the Caciques of Nilco, whethe snows Gustboya, and Taguanate, and others, which in all were about twenty Caciques, with a great doe melt in number of people, determined to come vpon him; and that three dayes before, they would fend March &April, agreat prefeut of fish to colour their great treaton and malice, and on the very day they would A miraculous fend some Indians before with another present. And these with those which were our slaues, They faile which were of their confpirate alfo, thould fet the houses on fire, and first of all possesse them downe the felues of the lances which flood at the doores of the houles; and the Caciques with all their men Graude from 30 (hould be neere the Towne in ambush in the wood, and when they faw the fire kindled, should Mineya 17. should be neere the 1 owne in amount in the word, and when they law this life to be kept in a daiesbefore come, and make an end of the conquelt. The Gouernour commanded the Indian to be kept in a they came to chaine, and the felfe same day that he spake of, there came thirty ludians with fish. Hee commanded their right hands to be cut off, and Ihne them fo backe to the Cacique of Guacheya, whose thereof. This men they were. He fent him word, that he and the reit should come when they would, for he Author acdeired flotting more, and that he should know; that they taught not any thing which he knew countrib but deired flothing more, and that he hould know, that they taught not any tang winter he know 300 left, but not before they thought of it. Hereupon they all were put in a very great feare: And the Ca- 700al, 6 recks eign; of Nilco and Tagnamate came to excuse themselves; and a few dayes after came he of Gua. oneth 700, saychora. The Brigandin a being finished in the moneth of June, the Indians having told vs, That ing, that he ear the Reservence aled but once a yeare, when the Snowes did melt, in the time wherein I mentio- ned with him the Rustramereased but office a years, which is subject as the first and a long time, it pleases from catagogo and, it had already increased, being now in Summer, and having not rained a long time, it pleases the eaddeth, fed God that the flood came vp to the Towneto feeke the Brigandines, from whence they carried them by water to the River. Which if they had gone by land, had beene in danger of break- de Leen, the first ing and splitting their keeles, and to be all vidone; because that for want of Iron, the spikes discourrer of were flort, and the plankes and timber were very weake. They shipped two and twenty of Florida, loft were short, and the plankes and timber were very weakt. They imple a work and twelfed the himselse and the belt Horses that were in the Campe, the rest they made dried shell of; and dressed the somen. Lucas Hogges which they had in like manner, They departed from Mmoya the second day of Vasqueswas al-

There went from Minoya three hundred twenty and two Spaniards in feuen Brigandines, with about well made, faue that the plankes were thin, because the nailes were short, and were not pitched, nor had any decks to keepe the water from comming in. In flead of deckes they laid plankes, went with 400 So whereon the Marriners might run to trim their failes, and the people might refresh themselves Spaniards, of aboue and below. They failed downe the River feventeene dayes; which may be two hundred which nor aand fiftie leagnes journey, little more or leffe : and neere vnto the Sea the River is divided into boue foure efand fiftie leagnes sourney, little more of felle: and neere visit of the Sea the Richer's Schilder into caped, &c. Don-two armes; each of them is a league and a halfe broad. By the way the Indians fet on them: mailiabella Sotos flew fome, and wounded many.

gricuous Moskitoes.

The eighteenth of July, they went forth to Sea with faire and prosperous weather for their with criefe. So voyage. They failed with a reatonable good winde that day and the night following, and the fatallhith Flonext day till euening long, alwaies in fresh water, whereat they wondred much; for they were rida beene to next day till eneming long, alwaies in trelli water, whereat they wondled meets, not they be spaint, that (I very farge from land. But the force of the current of the River is 6 great, and the coast there is hope) Diriginia. :60 fo shallow and gentle, that the fresh water entreth farre into the Sea.

may haue he They indured an intolerable storme first, and after that the torment of an infinite iwarme of greater downer

Moskitos which fell upon them, which as soone as they had stung the flesh, it so infected it, as for her English They failed 17. daies down the River, which is about $52. leagues. Fresh water almost two daies filling in the Sea. As written

though

A cum of the Sealike Pitch called Copec.

1556

Another deep

They arrined Septemo, to. 311 Christians arrived at Par deg:cesanda

h dre on the Well lide of Fl rida. Ocute. Curifachiqui. Xuala. Chichs Coro. and Talife Tofcalues. Rio Grande.

Aquixo. Coligon. shough they had been even mous. For the fayles which were white feemed blacke with them Those which rowed, valeffe others kept them away, were not able to rowe. Having paffed the feate and danger of the storme, beholding the deformities of their faces, and the blowes which they gave themselves to drive them away, one of them hughed at another. They met all together in the creeke, where the two Brigandines were, which outwent their fellowes. There was found a skumme, which they call Copee, which the Sea casteth up, and it is like Pitch, wherewith in some places, where Pitch is wanting, they pitch their ships: there they pitched their Brigandines. They reited two dayes, and then eftiones proceeded on their Voyage. They failed two dayes more, and landed in a Bay or arme of the Sea, where they stayed two dayes.

From the time that they put out of Rio Grande, to the Sea, at their departure from Florida, 10 in the River of vatill they arrived in the River of Panaco, were two and fiftie dayes. They came into the River Pance, 1543. of Panuco the tenth of September, 1543. There arrived there of those that came out of Plorida.

three hundred and eleuen Christians.

From the Port de Spiritu Santo, where they landed when they entred into Florida . to the Province of Ocute, which may be foure hundred leagues, little more or leffe, is a very plaine Port de Spiritu Countrie, and hath many Lakes and thicke Woods, and in some places they are of wilde Pine. Santoisin 29. trees; and is a weakefoyle: There is in it neither Mountaine not Hill. The Countrie of Ochte is more fac and fruitfull; it hath thinner Woods, and very goodly Medowes upon the Rivers. From Ocute to Cutsfachiqui may be an hundred and thirty leagues : eightie leagues thereof are Defart, and have many Groves of wilde Pine-trees. Through the Wilderneffe great Rivers doe 24 palle. From Cutifachiqui to Xuala, may bee two hundred and fity leagues : it is all an hilly Countrie, Cuifachiqui and Xuala stand both in plaine ground, high, and have goodly Medowes on the Rivers. From thence forward to Chiaba, Cogs, and Talife, is plaine ground, drie and fat. and very plentifull of Maiz. From Xuala to Tafcaluga may be two hundred and fifty leagues. From Tascaluca to Rio Grande, or the Great River, may be three hundred leagues : the Countrie is lowe, and tall of Lakes. From Rio Grande forward, the Countrie is higher and more champaine, and best peopled of all the Land of Florida. And along the River from Agains to Pacaha, and Coligon, are an hundred and fifty leagues: the Countrie is plaine, and the woods thinne. and in some places champaine, very fruitfull and pleasant. From Coligon to Autiamque are two hundred and fifty leagues of hilly Countrie. From Antiamque to Aguacay, may bee two hundred and thirtie leagues of plaine ground. From Aguacay to the River of Daycao an hundred and twentie leagues, all hilly Countrie.

From the Port de Spiritu Sante Vnto Agalache, they travelled from East to West, and North west. From Cutifachiqui to Xuala from South to North. From Xuala to Coca from East to West. From Coca to Tafcalaga, and to Rio Grande, as farre as the Prounce of Quizquiz and Amire from East to West. From Aguixo to Pacaba to the North. From Pacaba to Tulla from East to West : and from Talle to Autiamque from North to South, to the Prounce of Guachoga and

Daycao, &c.

This Relation of the discouery of Florida was printed in the house of Andrew de Burgos, Printer and Geneleman of the house of my Lord Cardinall the Infant. It was finished the tenth of 40 February, in the years one thousand five hundred fiftie and seven, in the Noble and most loyall Citie of Enera.

CHAP. III.

Divers expeditions from Mexico and other parts of New Spaine and New Biskay, especially so the more Northerly parts of America, by divers Spaniards in a bundred yeares space.

Q. I.
The Relation of NVNNO di GVSMAN written to CHARLES the fift Emperour; translated out of R A M V SI O S third Tome, and abridged.

Croiles ere-

Writ fom Mechacen to your Maiestie (after I had written from Mexico) that I went thence with one hundred and fiftie horfemen, and as many footemen well armed, and with twelve small Peeces of artillery, and 7. or 8000. Indians our 60 friends, and all neceffaries for the discouery and conquest of the Countrey from the Terlichichimechi which continue with New Spaine. I arrived at the River of the purification of Saint Mary, to called, for palling it on that day. And because that Countrey was of the enemies, I determined to plant there three great Croffes, which I had carried with me, well wrought and of good proportion, which after Maffe faid in Procession with Trumpets, the Captaines and I carried on our shoulders, and planted one on the River, and the fecund before a Church of the Purification, then begun to be builded, and the third before the way which I was to passe, "to the which Crosses with all denotion wee after made due prayer. "Alle quari, to This cone, the standerds of the Crosse began to be directed in the land of those infidels, which had or at the not beene done lince the Christians entred those parts. Incontinently some people met vs in which, peace, yeel ling themselues and promiting seruice. Meane while the Church was finished and walled about, that fireene or twenty horfemen might lodge within. There Maffe was faid, and a Sermon was preached; after which certaine ordinances were red for good orders to be kept in To the Armie. After this, on the feuenth of February possession was taken in your Maiesties name of that New Difcouerie, and on the foureteenth was made the request which is accustomed to

In regard of acculations made against Caconci Lord of Machuacan for rebellion and conspira- csconci Lord cie to have flaine vs. I marched against him and found the information true, besides other inormities in facrificing Indians and Christians, as he had vied to doe before he was a Christian, whereupon I condemned him to the fire, as may be feene in the processe made against him. Having executed this man and pacified the Countrie, I left a Spaniard in a fortreffe there built by the Indians, and trauelled fix daies in a Countrie not inhabited, three of them downe the River, leauing at every lodging place a Crosle. On the fixt day we came to the Province (minao, full of cuinao. 20 good Townes and abounding in victuals. The people had at first armed themselves for relistance. but when I fent Baring against them, they were all fled to the Mountaines. The light horse tooke some of the slowest not without making some defence. I fent them word not to be afraid, but to returne to their houses and give their obedience, which they refusing, I marched against them with three squadrons, and sent the Ouerfeer on one part, and Captaine Ognate on the other, and I was at their backes. The Ouerfeer found none but women and children. Ognate incountred with about one hundred men with their Bowes and Arrowes wounded fleightly two horses and three men, but many of them were slaine, others taken with women and children about five hundred, which I caused to be kept together, lest the Indiant should facrifice them after their wont. The Cacique was fied to the next Prouince, 10 called Cuinaquiro, of another figniorie and language. Because hee came not at my sending, I Cuinquiro. went to feeke him. Entring that Prouince where were many Townes, and great store of Wretchedhold

Maiz and Fruites, wee found many people dead, facrificed, which had out of the for- pitality. mer Prouince retired thither for feare of vs, with many peeces of flesh which they vse to cate. I fent many prisoners to their friends to let them see that I came not to flav them. The language of this people none of ours could understand. The Ouerseer encountred three hundred armed with Bowes and Arrowes, which the day before had killed foure of our Indians: they fet vpon ours finging, and killed a Horse, but having lost one hundred of their company, the rest escaped. I found my men cutting the Horie in preces, that the enemies might fee no figne of him, whereby they might know that a Horfe 40 could dye. I fent the Campe Mafter to discouer the foord : three Indians fet on him , one Courseious of which had a two hand fword of wood, which gaue him two blowes, but the Indian was Indian. slaine. I moued forwards, and discouered many inhabited places. Another skirmish happened with the Indians wherein aboue one hundred of them were flaine. All the Countrie is full of Maiz, Kidney-beanes, Hens, Parrats, Palmitos: there growes much Cotten, and some shewes appeared of Gold and Siluer found with some of the inhabitants.

I procured the Cacique to come to me with all his principal men, whom I entertained with Spanishpreach-

much kindnesse, and made a speech to them, giving them to vinderstand what God was, and the ing to convers Pope, and what they ought to doe to be faued : and how the King of Castile was the Minister of God in Infidels. earth, and Lord of all those parts subject to him; and that to me in his royall name they were to reelde obedience and service; and that they should abstaine from sacreficing & adoration to Idels and Divels, which

5) they had butberto done, because God alone was to be worshipped, feared and served, and after him they ought to ferme and obey on earth the King of Castile. The Cacique answered that till that houre hee Indian simplihad never knowne any thing of that which I had spoken, nor had ever heard of any but me that citie, which I declared; but that he now conceived great pleasure to have vinderstood it, and that from benceforth he would hold for God the King of Castile, and would worship him. I answered that hee ought not so to doe, for the King of Castile was a mortall man as we our selves are, but that hee was Lord and Sourraigne ouer vs all, and given to vs of God to rule and governe vs, and we were to ferue and obey him. And God aboue, which created heaven and earth, and all things visible and inuitible, is he which ought to be worthipped, feared, and ferued about all things, for a much (O as he giveth vs, and of his hands we hold the life and being which we have, and he is able to take it from vs at his pleafure. In this manner he stood adusted of that which he ought to doe, although their wit and capacitie be very small, and their will much disagreeing, by reason of their ancient custome of seruing the Duell. But feeing all things must have a beginning and labour, and herein especially the grace of God is necessary and the holy Ghost to be intused; it is to be believed and hoped of his infinite gentlenesseand mercy, that having directed your Maiestie to discouer this place and conqueit, in vertue thereof and good fortune, after that of God, all things shall be done profineroully, and he will fuffer to give to this Nation knowledge of the truth. And if it be not fortist denly done, yet the way shall be opened, and the Countrie connersed in, and in abited of Chris frant, which adore and laud his holy Name, where before, the Deuill was adored with fo many adolatries ; and the Baners of his most holy Crosle shall be fixed in all those Countries, that when he shall fend his Grace, those Nations may be prepared to receive it. I gaue to that Cacique all the people which I had taken, and they beganne to reinhabite their houses ; and after a most fumptious Croffe placed there, and possession of those Prounces taken in your Maiesties name, to I departed by the way of another Province called Cwifes, fituate on the other fide of a great Rie per iffing out of a great Lake, After a battell with this People, wherein we prevailed by our Artillerie, the Cacique fent a Melfenger to me, by whom I fent him word, that we came thirher to have them our triends, and to take p flession of that Countrie, in the name of the Kine of Caffele, Having obtayned provisions, and passing further, in an Iland in the River happened hard skirmish, in which divers were burt, many of theirs flame and taken, and the rest fled. The last which was taken, and which fought most couragiously, was a man in habite of a woman. Solomite pro- which confessed, that from a childe he had gotten his living by that filthinesse, for which I caufed him to be burned.

1557

Returning to the Campe, I caused the principall Lords of the Countrie to come to me, and pa-20

cified them, giving them Lithes, reftor ng the prifoners, and bidding them returne to their ha-

Cuileo.

bitations : gruing them to understand on behalfe of the King of Caffile, That he was Lord and the Minister of God in Earth, in which God, the King and all men of the world are to believe, to adore. feare and ferne bim as God alone, maker and Creator of all things e and on Earth to be vallals, and to obey the commandements of the King of Caltile, as his Minister: and to mee in his Royall name, and that they should not worship Idols, nor eate mans stable. They answered me, that so they would doe, and their facrificing to ldols hitherto grew from hence, that they knew not what God was; and because the Deutil commanded them to observe those formes, and defired fielh and bloud of them, giving them to understand, that he was the Lord of all the world, whereupon for feare they had committed this errour, which hencetorth they would ceafe to doe. Great are the finnes a of all men buing, teeing God permits to great abominations to bee committed against his die Nore well this uine Maieitie, and that luch a multitude of toules are loft, and remaine blinde as brute beafts, and worle : for they follow their naturall course, which these have lost : although some me anely publifu the warre which is made upon them to be unjust, but also seeke to disturbe it, teing the mill worthic and holy worke, and of most merit, (with the punishing of that Nation) that nothing can be die in the fernice of God greater, how scener it be done by the hands of great sinners, and effectially by mile who am the greatest of all, fixee that nothing is hidden from his beate, and as the merciful and quere all good. I hope in his infinite clemency that he will receive my meane defire, and small paine and labout, worthie, holy, in diministion of my sinnes : and will permet by his infinite bountie and grace, and because your Maieste dith all for the feruice of God which it doth, whole charge it is to quide the enterprise in such manner, 49

that the beginning be with manifesting his Name, where before, that of the Encinie was serued wholly, and adored. Bee it knowne to your Maiestie, that where some I come, I give all the people to under-flandwhat God is, and who your Maieflie ss. The Towne about this place or ford of the River is

Departing toward the Prouince of Tonola, I fent the Querfeer to the Prouince of Cuy-waccare, on the other fide of the River. The Seniory of that Province (for they had no particular Lord) fent Meffengers that they expected mee in peace, and would give mee what I would how locuer Cosula, Cointla, and Cumaccaro, the three neighbour Prounces were fooles, called Guanzebi, where a Croffe was planted.

Preaching by the Sword a mericorious fatisfactory worke.

Diginitie.

Guarrebi. Tonela a free State.

Cuinaccara. Coinla, and Coincla.

and refolued upon warre, These fought with vs to valiantly, that some one Indian would turne his head against a Light-horfeman, and taking his Lance with one hand, with the other would 50 lay on him with a club which they vie; others would lay hold on the Bridles, and those which haue beene in New Spaine, and other parts, teffine that more couragious Indians have not beene feene. They vie Bowes, Arrowes, Clubs, and two-hand Swords of wood, a Sling, and fome Targets. The most of them feare the Horses, holding opinion that they would eate them, and a thoufind of them have beene afraid of three Horsemen; yet neuerthelesse some are thus hare dy. The Countrie is temperate, they are great Sacrificers, have Silver, and some Gold: but l made thew not to care for it, and faid I had no need of Gold, but that they should ferue, and not facrifice as before. In the place of the victorie was erected a faire Church called. The mittorie of the Croffe, and a Croffe of fixtie foot long there crected. Zapatula received me in peace, Axi mocuntly people fled vet fent flore of victuals, as did also Intallan.

Zapatula. Aximecuntla. witie but in name and

Our Indians in our march had flaine and facrificed certaine women and children, the fignes Indian Christiawhereof I tound, it being a thing impossible to remedie, notwithstanding all the punishment inflicted, how focuer forme lay, they are good Christians. And let your Majeltie beleeve, that they doe at this pretent time as they did before, but fecretly. And for this, and for other just caules which I have written to your Maiethe, there ought not fo much libertie be given them, nor more then that which is accustomed to their state and lining; for to doe otherwise, is to give occasion to them to be bad, and especially this People is of such nature, that they must be very much holden under, and made to teare, that they may be good Christans.

CHAP.3. S.1. Embaffadors with offers of peace. Croffes eretted

From Xalpa three Emballadors came to me, with offer of peace, subiection, and certaine Sil- feare. uer plates, and an Idoil made of Cotton, and full of bloud, and a Raior of itone in the midft. Xalpa wherewith they facrificed, which was burned in their fight, to their great amazement, who thought it would have destroyed all. Against Mandie Thursday a Church was erected of reeds in a day, and deuout Procellion was then made of more then thirtie Dilciplinants. On Eafter Tuef. Bloudy Proto day I departed thence to Tepano, thence by Mount Amee to Teulinebano, a strong place, being Teulinebano all of stone cut round, where every Lord of the Prounce ought to have a house wherein to iacrifice: there had beenea great idoll of Gold, destroyed in other warres. The Palaces were of ftone engraven, some pieces of eighteene spannes, with great Statues of men, with other things like those of Mexico. The Courts of the Palaces were spacious, and faire, with Fountaines of good water. Thence I fent Captaine Verdugo to Xaltenango, thorow a Valley of fixe leagues, but the people were fled to the Mountaines. A Croffe was planted, and Masse said for the service of Xaltenango. God, there where the Deuill had fo long beene ferued, and had received to many Sacrifices, I divided the Armie, one part to goe to Mechacan (another Province , not that of New Mechacan on Spaine) neere to the South Sea I marched with the other to Guatatlan, and there planted a 20 Croffe on a Hill, and thence to Tetulan, accompanied with the Caciques of the Countrie: thence to Xalifeo. Heere the way was so bad that in fitteene dayes I rode not three, and many Xalifeo. I fent to the principall Lords of Xalifeo, to whom I made the request accustomed. They were all retired to the Mountaines. Finding my felfe neere the Sea, I tooke poffelion thereof for your Maiestie. At Topique two of the Lords of Xalifeo came to me in peace, and to yeeld obedience, as three other Townes had done neere the Sea, where are faid to bee Mines of Gold. There I made Officers in your Maiesties name, as being a new D. scouerie and Conquest separate from New Spane, that there might be some to receive your Maiesties fiths. Two Croffes were ere-Sted in Xalifes and two in Tepeque, a place well watered, and very fertile. In marching from 30 thence a great and dangerous battell was given vs by the Indians wherein we obtained victorie. They wounded fiftie Horfes, of which onely fixe died (one Horfe I affure your Maieftie, is worth about fourt hundred Pezos) divers of the principall Commanders were wounded also. The next day I made a Procession with a Te Denn. Thence I passed the great River of the Trimitie, to come to Omiclan, the chiefe of that Prounce. The Countrie is very hot, and the River full of Crocodiles, and there are many venomous Scorpions. Here was erected one Church, and two Croffes. Aztatlas is three dayes journey hence where they prepare to give mee battell. From thence ten dayes further I shall goe to finde the Amazons, which some tay dwell in the S.a., some in Amazonian an arme of the Sea, and that they are rich, and accounted of the people for Goddeffes, and whit- Dreames. ter then other women. They vie Bowes, Arrowes and Targets: baue many and great Towness had thought but for prolimitie, here to have added Aluarados Conquests the other way from Mexico. Pet. Aluarados two of whole Letters are extant in Ramulio. The later of them is dated from the Citie of Saint Litters to Cold lago, which hee founded. Hee writes that bee was well entertained in Guatimala, and puffed alongit tefs which had with diners fortunes, four ebundred leagues from Mexico conquering; and let your Loraffin beleene this Discourse mee, this Countrie is better inhabited and peopled then all that which your Lordbip bath bitherto and Conguest. gonerned. In this Prounce I have found a Vulcan, the most dreadfull thing that ever was scene: Two worst ter-30 which casteth forth stones as great as a house, burning in light stames, which falling, breake in pieces, and coner all that fiery Mountaine. Threescore leagues before wee saw another Vulcan , which sends forth a fearefull smeake, ascending up to Heauen, and the body of the smeake encompasset baife a league. None drinke of the streames which runne downe from it, for the Brimstone sent. And effecially there comes thence one principal River, very faire, but so bot, that certaine of my companie were not able to passe it, which were to make out-roades into certaine places; and searching a Ford, found another cold River running into it, and where they met together, the Ford was temperate and passable. I befeech your Lordship to grant mee the fanour to bee Gonernour of this Citie, &c. From Saint 1220, Inly 28. 1524.

40 at a certaine time admit them to accompanie them, which bring up the males, as these the female iffue, &c. From Omitlan a Prouince of Mecnacan of the greater Spaine, on the eighth of Iuly, 1530.

Christians for

The Voyages of Frier MARCO de Nica, Don FR. VASQUEZ de Coronado, Don Anto Nio de Espeio, and divers into New Mexico, and the adjorning Coasts and Lands.

Las Ganara. bit.cen 6.212.

Toppa.

BHere arolesome strife betwixt Don Antonio de Mendoza Vice-toy of New Spaine, and Cortes, each striuing to exceed the other in New Discoueries, and complaining of each Cortes, each ftruing to exceed the other to that end into Spaine, Mendoza heaother to the Emperour. Whiles Cortex went to that end into Spaine, Mendoza heaother to the Emperour. ring formewhat by Dorantez, one of Narusez his companions in the former inland Discouries in from Florida, tent both Friet Marco de Niça, with Steph. a Negro of Dorantez, and afterwards Captaine Francis Valquez de Coronado, by Land as likewife Ferdinando Alarchon by Sea. Cortez alfo fent Francis Ollow with a Fleet of three ships for discoverie of the same Sea, commonly called the South Sea. The Voyages Ramufio hath published at large in Italian, and Matter Hablers out of him in Enelish. I'shall borow leave to collect out of them and Gomara, and F. Iuan Gonaler de Mendoza, and others, some breefe heads of things agreeing to our purpose for the berter knowledge of the Northerne America.

Francis Valquez de Coron ado Gouernour of Nueva Galicia, Anno 1539. Writes, that hee arrined in the Province of Topira, where the Indians were fled into the Mountaines for feare of the Christians. They have froutes of stone, store of Gold, Emeralds, and other Iewels; have strong to armour of Silver fashioned in shapes of beasts, worship herbs and birds, and sing songs to them. Neere thereto is another Pronince where the people goe naked. Their Priests which they call Chichimechas keepe in the woods without houses, and eate things given of almes by the people. Both men and women goe naked; the men tye their prime member to the knee; they have Temples couered with itraw, the windowes full of dead mens skulls. They have in a ditch before the Temple the figure of a Serpent of divers metals, with his tayle in his mouth. One every yeere is acrificed by lot, crowned with flowers and layd in that ditch, and fire put to him ; which his death he takes patiently, and the yeere following is worshipped with hymnes, and after that his head is fet vp with the reft. They facrifice their prisoners burning them in another dirch without fuch ceremonies.

Impious pie-

kinde of Vni-Expedition of Don Francisco Vafquez. Ill wayes. Sheepe 25 big as Hories, with huge hornes.

Indian embroi-* I have a Map made in Mexi-60, 1585. which placeth Citala in 30.and an halfe, and de-Scribeum New Mexico, on Rio del Natte about 50. Townes with Spanish names , franding neere each other. from 32. to 33. and a little

Frier Marco de Niça went from Saint Michael in Culiacan, two hundred leagues from Mexir. monost no co, with Stephen the Negro, and other Indians, and came to Petatian, and thence paffed a Defar foure dayes, and came to certaine Indians, which made much of him, fought to touch his garments and called him Hagota, that is, A man comme from Heanen. Thence he travelled to Vacupa, fortie leagues from the Sea (of California) and thence to Cenola, which in thirty dayes journey : he learned that the people by the Sea have flore of Pearles, and Targets of Kow-hides. By the way An voknowne he had understanding of the Kingdomes of Totonteac and Acm. They shewed him an hide balte as big againe as the hide of an Oxe, and faid, it was the skinne of a beast which had but one home vpon his fore-head, bending toward his breast, and that out of the same goeth a point forward with which he breakes any thing that he runneth against. The colour of the hide was as 40 of a Goat-skinne, the haire a finger thicke. He paffed thorow two Defarts. The men of Canala flie Stepben the Negro. Frier Marke went within light of it, and fayth it is a faire Citie feated at the foot of a Hill. V pon this newes Captaine Vafquez aforefaid in Aprill, 1540. travelled with 400. Horlemen, and a great Armie of Spaniards and others, many of which died of famine both Indians and Horses. The wayes were so rough, that the Sheepe and Lambes which they carried for their prouision lost their hooses. The fixe and twentieth of May hee arrived in the Valley of Coracones, fine dayes journey from the Westerne Sea, and thence hee went to Chichileate, and with much fearlitie to Cenola, which is the name of a Prouince in which are feuen Cities neere together: their houses are of stone source or fine stories high; they wie Ladders in stead of staires, and have Cellers under the ground made for Winter in manner of Stoues. The feuen Cities are 10 but small Townes with in foure leagues together. In one were two hundred houses compassed with walls, and some three hundred other vnwalled. They goe for the most part naked, vie painted Mantles, seeme not witty enough to build such houses; have good quantitie of Turquesles, some Emeralds also and Granates; great Gunee Corkes; and feason (in Summer) as in Mexico; many bealts, as Tigres, Beares, Lions, Porkespicks, and certaine Sheepe as big as Horses, with very great hornes and little tayles. I have feene their hornes fo great that it is a wonder. I have feene the heads of wilde Goats, pawes of Beares and skinnes of wilde Boares. There is game of Deere, Ounces, and very great Stags, Hares, Conies. He sent the Vice-roy an embroideredgament of Needle-worke wrought by those Indians, and clothes painted by them with the pictures of the beafts of the Countrey. It is very cold in Winter, although it be in 37, de-62 grees and a halfe. The snow continueth feven moneths, in so much that the people vie surred Mantles, and other winter prouisions. The Souldiers seeing little here to bee had, were effended more. But the Prouince of with the Friers which had commended Sinols, and loth to returne emptie to Mexico, they procionis he maceeded to Acuco, and Cardense with his troope of Horse went thence to the Sea, Vasquez with keth to be ano-

the rest to Tiquez, on the banke of a great River. There they had newes of Axa and Quinira. They heard or a bearded rich King also called Tatareax, whom they would visit; they burnt a Towne, and lost thirtie Horses in their way, and spent 45. dayes in siege of a Towne, which dranke fnowe in itead of water and burned their goods to preuent the Spanish spoyle, then iffuorange into the force with their wives and children, few escaping: and divers Spaniards also were flaine, and 80, wounded, belides Horfes. They burnt the Towne and marched to Cienie, horfe and men pailing ouer the River vpon the Ice being in 37. degrees ; and foure leagues from thence met Strange Kine. with a new kind of Kine wilde and fierce, of which they flue 80, the first day for their prouifion. From Cicnic they went to Quinira neere 300. leagues, thorow woodleffe Plaines, making to heapes of Oxe-dung for way-markes against their returne. All that Plaine is as full of bunch-backed Kine as Serena in Spaine of Sheeps, and no other people but the Herd-men. It hailed Great baile. one day stones as big as Oranges . At length they came to Quintra and there found King Ta- Melangok, tarrex, a hoary man, naked and with a braffe lewell at his necke; whereat not a little vexed to fee themselves gulled with reports of riches, and the Crosse worshipped, and Queene of Heaven, of which they law no figure, they returned to Mexico, and there arrived in March, 1542. Vafquez fell from his Horse in Tiguez, and withall out of his wits.

and remouals.

Quarita is in 40. degrees temperate, well watered, and hath store of fruits. They are appa- Quinira descrirelled with Oxe hides, and Deeres skinne. They faw thips on the coaft with Alcatrazes of Gold bed out of Geand Silver in their Prowes, which they effected to bee of China, making fignes that they had Ships frene. an fayled thirtie dayes. Some Friers returned to Quinira, and were flaine. As for those bunchbacked Kine, they are the food of the Natiues, which drinke the bloud hot, and eate the fat, and often rauine the fleth raw. They wander in companies, as the Alarbes (and Tartars) following the pastures according to the sersons. That which they eate not raw, they rost, or warme rather at a fice of Oxe-dung, and holding the fielh with his teeth, cut it with Rafors of ftone. Thefe The bunch-Oxen are or the bigneffe of our Bulls, but their hornes leffe, with a great bunch on their fore- backed Oxen thoulders, and more haire on their fore-parts then behind, which is like wooll; a mane like a Herfes on their backe bone, and long haire from the knees downward, with flore of long haire at the chinne and throat, a long flocke also at the end of the males tailes. The Horses fled from them, of which they flue iome, being enraged. They are meat, drinke, shooes, houses, fire, velac fels, and their Mafters whole lubitance. Other creatures as big as Horles the Spaniards for their homes of fines fine wooll called Sheepe; one of their hornes ordinarily weighed fiftie pounds. There are also pounds. great Dogs which will fight with a Bull, able to carrie liftie pounds weight in their huntings Great Dogs a

No 1581. Frier Augustine Ruiz, with two other Friers, and eight Souldiers transled Ruiz his Voy-A Non 1581. Kriet or nungine ame, white the frame of the Mines of Saint Barbara to Les Tigues, two hundred and fifty leagues Northwards, age to Tigues. where, vpon occasion of one of the Friers being flaine, the Souldiers returned. The two Friers Ande Efrie 211 a Meffizo Itayed. Whereupon the Franciscans carefull of their two Brethren, procured An- his New Menttonio de Efteio, a rich Mexican, with Frier Bernardine Beltran, and others, licensed to follow him to fet routh on the faid Disconerie, in November, An. 1582. with an hundred and fifteene Horles, and store of prouisions. Hee passed the Conches, and the Passaguates, and Tobefos, and Immanos, (finding many Silver Mines in the way) and then came to people, which for want of Language they could not name, and heard by one of the Conches, of a great Lake, and Townes neere it. with houses of three or foure stories, but went not thither. Fifteene dayes they travelled thorow Woods of Pine-trees, and two thotow Woods of Poplars and Walnuts, fill keeping by the River of the North, as they called it, till they came to a Countrie which they called New Mexico. They came to ten Townes fituate on both fides the River, which vied them kindly. Their houses are of foure stories, well built, with Stones for Winter: their apparel of Cotton, and Deeres skinnes: both men and women ware Boots and Shooes with foles of Neats leather. Each house had an Oratorie for the Deuill, where they set him meate, for whose ease (as they se (av) they erect Chappels also in the high-way. Thence they came to Tiguas in which were fixteene Townes: in Poals they had flaine the two Friers, and now therefore fled to the Moun- Friers flaine. taines. They four d many Hennes in the Countrey, and many metals. Hearing that there were Hennes many rich Townes Eastwards, they trau-lied two dayes, and found eleuen Townes, and (as they thought) fortie thousand people. There are fignes of rich Mines. They heard of a Prouince

Quires, fixe leagues higher up the River, which they visited, and found five Townes. They faw Quires. there a Pie in a Cage, and certaine tirafuls or fhadowes, fuch as they vie in China, in which were Painted Vonthere a Pie in a Cage, and certaine titalois or shadowes, such as they vie in Long, in which were painted the Sonne, Moone and Statres. They found themselves in 37, degrees and a halfe. Four Note then etc. teene leagues more to the North, they came to the Cunames, which had hue Townes; the grea- neffe of Virgi-60 teft was Cia, with eight Market places, the houses plaistered and painted with divers colours, mis. the people many and more civil then any they had feene.

They travelled thence North-weltward to a Countrie which had seven great Townes, and in them thirtie thousand soules, Fifteene leagues further Westward they came to Acoma, a Acoma Towns of fixe thousand persons, seated on a Rocke fifty paces high, without any passage to it but by staires hewen in the Rocke; all their water was kept in Citternes. They travelled hence foure and twentie leagues Westward to Zuny or Cibola, where Vasquez had beene, and erceted Croffes, still standing. Three Indians of his Armie were still abue here, which told Effeio, of a great Lake fixtie dayes journey thence, vpon the bankes whereof were many Townes which had flore of Gold. Whereupon, the reft returning, hee with nine companions determined to goe thither, and came to a populous Prouince, called Mobotze, and being well entertained hee perswaded the Indians to build a Fort, to secure them from the Horses, which hee said would otherwife eate them; which they did. Here he left some of his companie, and went to discourse certaine rich Mines, whereof he had heard, fine and fortie leagues Westward, which hee found rich of Silver. He had further intelligence also of that great Lake, and having travelled twelve leagues to Habstes and Tames, populous Provinces, being so few, they returned in July, 1,83, by another way, downer a Rivercalled, De las Vaccas, or Of Kine, an hundred and twenty leagues, fill meeting with store of those cattell, and thence to [mehos, and so to the Valley of Saint Rartholmew in New Bilcate Bartholmen Cane writtrom Mexico, in May, 1590, that Redrige del Rio, Gouernour of New Cons Letter is Bifcay was fent by the Vice-roy with five hundred Spaniards to the conquest of Cibola. TOw for Cortex his three thips, they fet forth from Acapulco, the eighth of July, 1229, and

0 000000 2

Sheepe with ges had in Frebulbers wowase.

in Maft. Hakl. Francis de Ul-Las Voyage in the South Sea. California, F. Alerchous

layled along it the coast Northwards to Cape Roxo, (as they filled it, and so to the River of Saint Croffes, which coaft fome thought to bee part of the Continent, others to bee but broken 20 Lands or Ilands : and fayled fo farre in the tame, that I am loth to follow them, the particulars being both in Ramufio, and Matter Hakluys. Fernando Alarchon, Anno 1 540. was fent by Mendoza the Vice-roy, with two thips, who fayth, hee went to the bottome of the Bay (of Calie forma) and fayled up the River farre into the Countrie. I remit the defirous Reader to the Authours aforefaid. To mee, Ullas the Marquelles Generall feemes to make California nothing but Jlands, and to have fayled within a great way, and after out of them : this other amulous Difcouerer would feeme to finde it a Bay, and therefore goe'h vp the River; later Maps make it an Iland, as wee haue faid; a Letter 1:95. from Los Angelos, calleth them Ilands, and fayth, they are rich, and that the Vice-roy fent to conquer them. But I am Sea-ficke, and therefore returne to our Land-discouerers. In which wee haue a lesuite first, to entertaine you, and after 30 that, a Letter of Liter Newes of Onnates Discoueries in thole Northerne parts of America, All which may be of vie one day, when our Virginian Plantation (which blufheth to fee fo little done after eighteene yeeres continued habitation, with fo much coft, and fo many lives and livelihoods spent thereon) shall lift up her head with more viue alacritie, and shake her glorious lockes, and difparkle her triumphant lookes, thorow the inland Countries to the Westerne Ocean. And indeed for Virginias Take wee have to long held you in Spamib discourses, of whose Acts this Chapter had beene the laft, but that the leaven which leaveneth in fo great part the Spanish lumpe may be knowne, to awaken English vigilance to prevent it in themselves (they had a faire caucat 1588.) and to avoide the like with others, I shall adde to these their Discoveries a Spanilo Tra-

the particular relations of which you have had already, and yeeld you the totall jumme for a ueller, Frier, Bishop, to discouer their Discouerers ; which shall cast vp the American parcels, 49

conclusion to our Spanish-Indian Peregrinations.

S. III. Extracts out of certaine Letters of Father MARTIN PEREZ of the Societie of Iclus, from the new Misson of the Province of Cinoloa to the Fathers of Mexico, dated in the moneth of December, 1591. With a Letter added, written 1605. of later Ince my last Letters, dated the fixth of Iuly, among the Tamtecar, on which day wee Disconeries.

July 6. 1590.

Shepheards houses , Townes of Spaniards, and certaine Signiories, helping our neighbours by our accultomed duties, so that wee were alwaies full of businesse. Wee passed over in eight dayes the rough and hard and painefull Mountaine Tepefnan, feeing no liuing creature, fiue certaine Fowles. The caule whereof is, the force of certaine Muskitos, which trouble Horses, whereof is exceeding abundance in all the Mountaine, which were most notione to our Hories. 60 There met vs certaine Cuimechs, which are warlike Indians, which offered vs bountifully fuch as they had, without doing vs any harme. There are almost an infinite number of these, which wander difperfed up and downe, doing nothing else but hunt and teeke their food. And it was told vs, that three thouland of them were affembled in a part of the hill, which belought the came into this Prouince of Cmolos, being guided by the Governour Rodergo del Ris, we passed and travelled through divers Cattles, Countrie Villages, Mines of Metall, Gouernour, that he would cause them to be taught and instructed in the Christian Faith. Their Minifter, which was but onely one, came to visite vs. There met vs also a certaine Spanish Captaine, which had the gouernment of fix Castles or Countrie Villages in a part of the Mountime, who knowing well enough what the focietie ment by these missions, wrote voto the father Vilitor, requelting him to grant him one of the Fathers, by whose travell twenty thousand foules might be instructed, which he would recommend vnto him.

These and other Villages we pasted by not without griefe, because it was resolved already among vs, that we should stay in no other place, but in this Prouince. A few dayes before our comming thither we wrote to fix or legen Spaniards, which dwell there without any Prieft. to and heard Malle onely once a yeare, to wit, when any Priest, dwelling thirtie or forty leagues off, came vito them, to confesseand absolue them being penient; who being accompanied off, came vinto them, to conteste and absolute them being pentient; who being accompanied. The towneof with most of the chiefe Indians, met vs with exceeding great toy and gladnesse, about twenty leasues diffant from their dwellings, and accompanied vs vnto the second River of this Prouince, wherein the towns of Saint Philip and Iacob standeth. This Piouince is from Mexico at the second Riboue three hundred leagues, and is extended towards the North. On the right hand it hath the uer of Ginolea; Mountaines of the Tepesuanes, on the left hand the Mediterrane Sea, or the Gulfe of California: Kisbut 190. on another part is thretcheth euen to Cibola and California, which are Provinces toward the kazues indeed West, very great and well inhabited. On one side, which regardeth the North, new Mexico is but two dayes journey distant from the vetermost River of this Province (as we were enformed but two dayes fourney diffant from the ettermore killer or this Frontine (as we were enrormed) often writing to by the Gouernour) which is fo famous and renowned, and fo full of Pagan luperfittion, whereof of the writing of the Mexico.

They measure and divide the Province of Cinaloa with eight great Rivers which runne through the same. The reason of that diussion is this, because all the Castels and Villages of the inhabitants are fetled neere the bankes and brinkes of the Rivers, which are replenished with filh, and which in short space doe fall into the Mediterrane Sea, or Gulfe of California. The foyle is apt for tillage and fruitfull, and bringeth forth fuch things as are fowne in it. The ayre is cleere and wholefome. The Pefants and husband men reape twice 2 yeare, and among other things, store of Beanes, Gourds, Maz, and fuch kinde of Pulfe, whereof wee and they eate to plentifully, that there is no speech of the rising of the price 30 of things, or of Famine; may rather a great part of the old crop peritheth oftentimes, and they call away then old Maiz, to make roome for the new. They have great flore of Cotten Gotten woolk Wooll, whereof they make excellent cloathes, wherewith they are apparelled. Their apparell is a peece of cloath tyed upon their shoulders, wherewith as with a cloak they couer their whole Their apparel; body, after the manner of the Mexicans.

True it is, that though they be all workemen, yet for the most part of the yeare they are not couered, but goe naked ; yet all of them weare a broad girdle of the faid Cotten cloath cunningly and artificially wrought, with figures of divers colours in the same, which the thels of Cockles and Oyfters toyned artificially with bones doe make. Moreover, they thrust many threds through their eares, whereon they hang earerings; for which purpose 40 they bore the eares of their children as foone as they be borne in many places, and hang earerings, round Stones, and Corall in them, so that each eare is laden with fiftie of these Ornaments at least, for which cause they alwayes sleepe not lying on their sides, but with their face vpward. The women are decently courted from their waste downeward, being all the rest naked. The men as well as the women weare long haire ; the women haue it Their beire hanging downe their shoulders, the men often bound up and tyed in diners knots: they thrust Corals in it, adorned with divers feathers and cockle shels, which adde a certaine beautie and ornament to the head. They weare many round Beades of divers colours about their neckes. They are of great stature, and higher then the Spaniards by a hand- Their great full, fo that as wee fate vpright vpon our horfes, without standing on tiptoe, they Stature.

50 easily could embrace vs. They are valiant and strong, which the warres which they Their valous, had with the Spaniards doe easily thew, wherein though they fuftained no small damages, yet were they not unrenenged, nor without the bload of their aduerfaries. When they would fight resolutely for their vetermost libertie, they denounced and appointed the day of battell. Their weapons are Bowes and poyloned Arrowes, and a kinde of clubbe of Their weapor, hard wood, wherewith they neede not to litrike twice to braine a man. They vie also tertaine short iauelins made of red wood, so hard and sharpe, that they are not inferiour to our armed speares. And as fearefull and terrible as they be to their enemies, to quet and peaceable are they among themselves and their neighbours, and you shall teldome finde a quarrellour or contentious perion. The Spaniards after certaine conflicts at length made friendship

60 with them, leaving their Countrie to them; but thole eight Spaniards, whom I mentio- Eight Spaniards ned before, line quietly among them : and though they be called Lords, yet are they huing in Cirocontented with fuch things as the Indians give them, offering no violence nor moleftation less

Vpon our comming into these Countries, the Indians flirred up with the fame of new men 0000003

Cuirechi wax-

p:ll.

Franciscans.

till they were friendly difmiffed by vs : neither neglected they the opportunitie offred voon the first occasion, to shew how greatly they affected the Christian religion; for assoone as we entred Resdineffero into the first Villages of this Prouince, the day following there affembled a great number of old hearethe Cof- and wong folkes to be baptized, which was a great comfore vnto vs; we christened full fourefcore boyes and girles; we raifed the mindes of the rest with good hopes, that assome as they Fours hundred were instructed with necessary doctrine, they should be partakers of the same Sacrament. Wee found foure hundred Christians, which having bin baptized by the Franciscane Fathers. Which came into these parts twelue yeares past, when at length they were slaine by the Inhabitants 10 were left destitute of a teacher; neither can all of them be instructed by vs, vnlesse some helpe be fent vs; for belides that the people are many, they also differ in language and tongues. al-

came by rlockes vinto our lodging, and witheffed their love, with exceeding great fignification

of good will, with falutation and words, which yet we understood not, staying so long with vs

(flune :here) twelue veares before. Difference of though there be two chiefe and most generall. We learne two tongues with great celeritie, which albeit they be not fo vulgar and general!

language. yet are they more necessary : and we have profited so much in three moneths, that wee could easily understand the Indians when they spake. Wherefore wee began to instuct in the Cate-

Inft:uction in the Catechilm And why doe

chilme, and with godly speeches to exhort the Nation, to keepe them within the compasse of their duetie, and to deliuer them of all feare : when they fee that they receive of vs the femice and formes of praying to God, not in a strange but in their owne language; the which together with the Catechifme they learne with great care and shortnesse of time. And now wee have 10 Christened about fixteene hundred, as well those of years as boyes; besides those source hunyou teach Bable in aft ange yeares neglected, had scarsely any shew of Christendone, but were married with Pagans after their Countrey fashion. From many of them we tooke away their Concubines, because such is the cultome of this Nation, that they take as many as they are able to keepe. Many of them we likewife married. There are also many more which defire to be baptized, but since the people be exceeding ma-

praying ? Sigreene hundred newly Christined. Concubines.

ny, and the workemen but two onely, we are not able to fuffaine the labour. The last of Nonember I visited the people of this tract or River, and in the space of twelve or thirteene miles, there are foure thousand Indians at the least, which vie Bowes and Arrowes, besides # women and children. Among these are certaine of bad name and fame, which have familiari'v and acquaintance with the Diuell, with whom they commit abominable and very horti-

Familiarity with the Divel ble finnes.

240, children Christened.

Many of them fled into the Mountaines, that their children might not be Christened, because the Diuell had reported abroad, that all they should die that were Baprized. Notwithstanding in feuen or eight dayes we Christened two hundred and fortie children. Necessitie enforced meto leave them, and to goe to another place, to helpe our neighbours : yet I am greatly denrous to returne moued with a certaine pitie, because I fee this people so strongly possessed by the Divell being viterly ignorant of the faith.

Thirreene Churches in

There are now thirteene Churches in these three Rivers, besides those which are erected by 4 little and little, neither have we any more holy Vestments for them, then those which we carry about with vs, and one other furniture of an Altar, which belongeth to the Spaniards : we have neuera Bell in any of these Churches. We furnished an Alter with one Croffe and certaine paper Images, which were brought hither from Culhnacan, because we want other furniture, which we lookefrom your Renerencies, and it will be very profitable, fince this Nation is so delighted Cullyuscan. Petat'an in 25. degrees and a The Christianity there

with outward ornaments. We celebrated the dedication of a Church at Petatlan, on the day of the conception of the Vira gin, the Mother of God. In the same I set up a certaine small Image consecrated to the conception of the bleffed Virgin: We went on Procession, wherein the Boyes sang the 72 Deum landamu in the volgar language: I added a Prayer, and then red Masse, because the singers are yet igno. rant of Song, and can ling nothing elie but Amen, with a rude and votuned voyce. Many of the Pagans were present, which were inuited to this holy day from other places, and were almost amazed beholding these first beginnings, wishing that the like solemnitie might be kept in their Villages. As farre as hitherto we are able to gather, the Indians the inhabitants of these and the neighbour Pagan Castles, where there is greater ftore of people, and lesse divertitie of languages, are quicke and prompe, tractable, and of easier conversion, then any that I have hitherto feene or knowne. I could with that I might fometime line prinately with my felfe, but fach is the concourle of commers, that they loue me not thus quiet, and though I be filent, yet they minister divers speeches, inquiring of our things, and rehearing their owne, and come to vs in the night to prayer. They are ingenious and docile, although they have no teacher, by whole 60 instruction this force of nature should be exercised. They have in Cattles and Countrey villages, in houses toyned neere the one to the other, and builded of chalke and timber, which they adore with Mats and couerings of reedes. In the marriages which they make, when they take many wines, it feemeth not inconvenient or indecent vnto them, to take their fifter, mother, or daughter, because they thinke that this maketh much for domesticall peace, and that thereby all emulation may be avoided. And though maketh much for doubt they have exceeding great regard of confanguinitie. They marriages. loue their children most tenderly for a certaine time, and teach them nothing else but such things as they know themselves, and never beate them nor chastite them for any thing, and so The badeduthey live like beafts. They marrie them at their time; and this is the forme of their marriage; cation of their they live like healts. They marrie them at their time; and this is the forme of their marriage; children.

Their houses

The Parents of each partie meete together, and after conferences had between them, they dance forme of Maraccording to their Countrie custome, and giving hands returne home; if the Bridegroome or riages. Bride be voler age, they stay certaine moneths and sometime a yeare, neuer seeing one the other: afterward at time convenient the Father of the spouse glueth an house to his daughter and son in law, with furniture thereto belonging.

They also make the Bridegroome a Knight, if he be of a worthy familie, with divers rites, Their forms whereof these be the chiefest ceremonies: They deliuer him a Bowe, and instruct him how to of making wie his new weapons; and to shew a signe of his industrie and abilitie, he is turned out to some Knights. yong Lyon or wilde heaft, which when he hath killed, he is advanced to some honour and dignitie, whereby he excelleth others which are not Knights. Among the things belonging to policie, this is one which they doe obserue; that they adopt other mens children for their owne; Adoption, but this adoption into another familie hath very feuere and dangerous ceremonies. for they thrust a sticke into their mouthes into the bottome of their throates, wherewith they are almost 20 choaked; if it fall out well, they vomit vp all the meate in their flomacke, and fo they paffe ouer into the right of another man. Whatfoeuer time remaineth from labour and trauaile they Their quierfrend in a play, which is like to Dice, but confifteth of diversignes. They play with exceeding play. great moderation and patience of minde, being most cunning in this kinde of sport, no oath is heard among them, nor any contentions or brabling word, though they loofe their apparell and all that they have, and goe home naked, as sometime it falleth out.

When they be ficke, if the difeafe be fore and dangerous, they digge a place for their buriall, Their burials. and so metimes it standeth fine or fixe dayes open, which custome was very profitable to a certaine woman; for when I came into a certaine Village, and faw the ground digged very deeply, 20 knowing what the matter was, I came vnto her lying on her Couch and ficke, and hauing instructed her in the Catechisme which I had written in the vulgar Tongue, in the principles of Christian Religion, I baptifed her, but the recoursed. Now the cause why they open the places of their burials is this, That prefently they may couer the bodie or aftes of him that is dead (for fomtimes they burne the bodies with all the house and household staffe.) They sprinkle the Sepulchre with a certaine dust, whereof they make a drinke, and bring meate with them, and after they have wept over the Grave, they make themselves drunke, the Kinsfolke of the dead making a Fealt for them that doe a fift them. And thefe be their Funerals.

The Vicar of the Church of Culiacan, which is fortie two leagues from Cinoloa, where the foresaid Fat iers line, in his Lecters fent to a certaine friend writeth after this manner : In Cina-60 the Fathers labour painfully in the Lord in converting the Indians with the Fath fo fruitfully and happily, that we all hold it for a Miracle. Neither can it be believed, both with what celeritie they have learned and speak the tongue of that Countrie, and with what facilitie and contentment. The Inhabitants come to bee baptized, and defire to bee inftructed in the Articles of our faith. Doubtleffe it is the worke of God; wherefore the Dinine Maieffie doth fauour and promote the fame.

A Letter written from Valladolid by LVDOVICVS TRIBALDVS To-LETVS to Master RICHARD HAKLVYT, translated out of Latine, touching IVAN de ONATE his Discoueries in new Mexico, five hundred leagues to the North from the old Mexico.

WHen you shall see the English returned home out of our Spaine, and can finde no Letters sent unto you from us, perhaps, and that worthily you will accuse us of breach of our friendship, and also as little mindfull of our promise. Yet we as free from this fault salute you most willingly. For it is not long lince we arrived here, that is to lay in this Court, a little after the departure of your Countrimen into England. Yet we made our iournie by Sea and by Land indifferent pleasantly and according to our defire. After we had rested our felues a small while, we defired nothing more then to visit An-60 drew Garfia Celpedes, a man for many respects linked unto us in most straight bands of friendship. He greatly resoyced of your good will toward him: And shewed me a certaine briefe yet very perspicuous Their busials, Relation of things atchiened by Don Ivan de Onate, among the Indians of New Mexico.

For therein is written, that he departed from old Mexico in the yeere 1 coo. with an Armie and carriages of fine thousand men, in which number boyes, women, youngmen and Souldiers 5000, lenti 199

Don Iven de Onate bis Erit

conleanues

are included. He carried also great store of victuals with him, slockes of Sheepe and Goates. Herds of Oxen and all things necessarie for life, also Horses and Armour, and other things which in these kind of Expeditions ought to be prouided. Therefore having travelled through diners Countries fine hundred leagues, hee found divers Nations by the way, noble for their builded Townes and reatonable civill manners. All which he received into the friendship of the King of Spaine, and they openly testified the same by publike instruments, and giving of their faith. And when with his company he came vinto a Towne very strong by situation of the place, built voon a most high and mightie Rocke, and was freely received by the Inhabitants, giving their right hands to each other, they courteoully supplied them with all things necessarie for their reliefe. and promised within a while after that they would furnish them with more, fufficient to make 10 a very long journie. When Onate had waited for this thing, at the day appointed hee ient his taken. Acoma is in 22. de-rees, and Treacherous

Another grearer Citie. Cibela is in 33. dearces. The Towne of Saint John. Sundry Mynes of gold and filuer newly found.

A fecond Difcontric 1602. The most famous River of Rie mas que ocho lezuas de The Lake of Conicas.

Auia unalaznua o lazo nuy euade. Anten. de Espeio. Afaireand goodly Citie.

Westerne coast Cape California, which ic feemes at this Nephew by his lifter with a few Souldiers, who entring the Towne, came into the Market place. where almost all the multitude of the Townesmen were assembled together. Now while hee with his company was busie in buying of things, suddenly the Traitours from all parts rushed yoon him and his fellowes vnawares, and by most wicked treason cut off the Captaines head and fixe others: the rest being wounded hardly escaped by flight from fo great a multitude thataffaulted them, yet some of the enemies were flaine and thrust through. When speedily the same hereof came to Onate, taking with him a choice number of Souldiers, in a great turie he came vn. to the Towne, befiged it, and after a long fight by maine force he tooke the lame, flue most part. tooke the self, burnt the Towne and razed it to the ground, that no tokens might remaine of fo an great a wickednesse committed against him. The Townes name was Acoma: and none of our two third parts men was flaine in the fiege thereof. After this he eafily proceeded forward on his journie as he did before, till he came to a mightie

A mighty city. great Citie the inforced this City with the villages adiopning to sweare obedience to the King of Spaine, not altogether vinwilling, yet feared by the example and ruine of the towne that was defroyed. From hence he came to a greater Citie, which likewise after hee had obtained it by great friendship he fent certain men from thence to search out the oxen of Cibola, long since known by the report of one, (to wit of Valquez de Coronado) whether they were fuch indeed or no. Who when they had found a great multitude of these oxen, and would compasse them about, and force them into certaine inclosures or toiles, their enterprize prevailed but a little : they are so wild and to fo fwift. Yet after they had killed many of them, bringing ftore of them with them, as though they had bin Deere, returning to their company and General, to the great admiration of all men, they declared the wildnesse and innumerable number of these Oxen.

A freeward employing of themselves to keepe those things which they had gotten, they builded a Towne, which they called Saint Johns Towne, and entring into very great friendship with the people which they had lately discouered, after they had found certaine very rich Mynesof mous niner or the North dif- gold and filter, being laden with store of other riches, they determined to line pleasantly and couered. date- quietly, and to end their trauels, with fingular profit of the Inhabitants in the Christian Religinie de E filo uno on , and abitaring of their Idols, which in former time they worthipped most religiously.

At length within these two yeares, leaving his fellowes there, Onate undertooke a new Dif- 40 uerie toward that most famous River of the North, which at length he discovered, being everywhere courteously entertained by the Inhabitants. At last he came to the Lake whereof long fince, have gone many reports. This is the Lake of Conibas, on the brinke whereof hee beheld a farre off a Citie feuen leagues long, and aboue two leagues broad. The houses of this Citie were separated the one from the other, and trimly and artificially builded, adorned with many trees and most goodly Gardens; and often divided with streames running betweene them. Yet none of the Inhabitants did appeare. Therefore being not furnished with a sufficient Armie, he kept his Souldiers about him in a throng place, yet he fent certaine Horsemen into the Towne to view it: who after they had ridden by a certaine space through certaine exceeding faire streets of the Citie, and could fee none of the Citizens, at length came to an exceeding great Market place, 50 which was filled with an exceeding great company of men, fortified with Rampiers and other fortifications in manner of a Fortrelle. Therefore perceiuing themselves to be vnequall to so infinite a number, they retired backe to their fellowes without attempting any thing, and so returned home to their owne houses vinder the conduct of Onate, defferring the affaulting of so great a Towne vntill a more convenient time: and now they keepe those places diligently, which they of America dif- haue alreadie found, and doing violence to none of the Inhabitants, they live in all happinelle courted neere and profperitie.

Moreover, other newes is brought from New Spaine, to wit, that by the commandement of the Vice-roy, the Coaits of the South Sea toward Cape Mendocino are diffouered, and that extimewas more ceeding faire and large Hauens are found neere the California, which hithertono man knew, and 60 that Cailles are there to be builded and fortified, fit to withfrand the force of the enemie : which coursed to be liaw printed with the precise longitudes and latitudes, annexed wato them.

There is no newes come of the Voyage to the Iland lately found out toward Nowa Guives. If Brigs his Mag. any newes come, I will carefully adversife you thereof.

It remaineth, that I speake somewhat of the instruction which I promised you and now send with you to wit, that the lame was fent to the West Indies, and that according to the precepts therein contained, all things are observed very exactly, and written to the Councell of the Indes: and that Cespeder our triend having diligently read over these Writings, hath written an excellent Volume; but he hath not obtained leave to publish the same : for they will not have all these things particularly to come to light.

And thele be the things which I now thought good to write vnto you, my Haklayt, meaning to have written more, if there had beene any fresher things to have written of. Neither have & yet fought out all thole that might informe me of these new Discourries : for I could not yet doe to it by reason of the shortnesse of the time. I hope hereafter I shall have leisure : and I know you will commend mee for my friendship towards you. Farewell from Valladolid the Nones of

TO THE READER.

Fter fo many other Spanish Descourses and Descourses, I have added for a Spanish farewell this A of Birtincho new de las Calas a zealous Dominican Frier, after made Bishop of Chiapa, tonching the exceller committed by some Spaniards in the Continent and llands of America, from their first 20 Disconcrietill the years 1542 in which this was written; the rather beere annexed, as our conclusion of Spanish Relations. The occasion (it seemeth) was his godly zeale of connersing soules to lefus Christ from the power of E:hnike darkneffe, which was hindered by a worfe darkneffe in those which professed them [lues children of Light, and had the name and Sacraments of Christians. For it beeing then the custome, as von baue scene in Soto, and others before, to get so much of the American Regions in Partition, Commendim or a Comm fion from the King (then Charles the fifth Emperour) to discouer and pacifie, as their ftele bath it, that is, as the Popes Bull preferibeth, to bring into Spanish fibrection, and to conurt to the Christian Faith, fo much as their Commission limited, paying the fifth part of what-Somer they got to the Crowne; they abusing the Emperours lensite, and concealing their out-rages, proceeded in connerting, as that word is derined from convertere, not from convertere, and in such course 30 as this Author expresses, if he and other Dimines which made complaint thereof to the Emperous bea to be credited. Neither is it incredible for the maine part of the Historie (we fee their owne lournals infinnate as much in milder and closer termes flow some former his zeale flings forth fiery tearmes, and paints out their Acts in the blackest inke, and most Hoperbolicall Phrases. The Isue was the alteration of gonerament in the Indies, by the gentleneffe of the Kings of Spaine, which freed them from flauerie, and tooke better order both for their bothly and frimmall effate , at before wee that read in Herers. And if any shinke that I publish this in difference of that Nation; I answere. Entry Nation (We see it at bome) hath many enillmen, many Deuill men, Agame, I a be whether the Authour (himfelfe a Spaniard and Dinine) intended not the honour and good of his Countrie thereby : which alfowas effected, enil manners producing good Lames. And indeed it is as much bonour to this Bishop and the Bishop of Mexico, with 40 other Spaniards that flowed their zeale of reformation berein, at alfo to the Kings of Spaine which have effected it; as the doing it is fo ame to other Spaniards, and the generalitie here touched. The like abuses of Sauages in Bratili, you have feene by Portugals, complained of by lefuites, sup 1.7.c.2. For my part I bounner vertue in a Spaniard, in a Frier, in a lesuite : and have in all this voluminous storie not beene more carefull to flow the enil acts of Spaniards, Portugals, Dutch in quarrels twist them and vs, then to make knowne what soener good in any of them, when occasion was offered. And so farre am I from delighting to thrust my finger in fores (which yet I doe on necessitie , even with the English also) that I have left out many many innectines and bitter Epithetes of this Author, abridging him after my wont, and lopping of such superfluities, which rather were the fruit of his zeale, then the slowre of his History. I could atto have added the names of those which be here calleth Tyrants , the Captaines in those Expedi-50 tions: but he spared them, as then lining, and in Herera before you have them, which yet is angry with Ramusio for that wherein this storie doth excuse him, the concealment of their names being best commendation of fuch men. In shele prunings and comission of some things (in their owne places, before related) abone a third part is left out, and yet more then enough left to teffifie that Many heart ginen ouer to sometonsnelle or other vice, is a bottomielle Hell, wicked and deceitfull about all : who can fearch it?

The colours which the Spaniards pretended for such executions, were the Man-entings, Sodomies, Idolatries and other vices of Americans, perhaps made worfe in the telling, and certainly with worfe vices in this fore punished by unsuffest Instice in respect of the Spaniards, whose unsuffice is neverthelesse most inst in regard of God, which knoweth how to punish sinne by sinne, by Sinners. This Bookers extant in Spanish, Latine, Dutch, and in English also printed 1 , 82, when as peace was yet between England and 60 Spaine, which English Copie I baue followed.

The Prologue of the Bishop Frier BARTHOLOMBW delas CASAS or CASAVS, to the most high and mightie Prince, Our Lord Don PHILLP Prince of Spaine.

Of high and mightie Lord, as God by his Providence hath for the guiding and commoditie of mankind in this World, in Realmes and Prounces, appointed Kines to be as Fathers, and as Homer nameth them Shepherds, and so confequently the most noble and principall members of Common-weales: fo can we not justly doubt by reason of the good wils that Kings and Princes have to minister Justice, but that if there be any things a- to mile, either any violences or injuries committed, he only cause that they are not redressed, is, for that Princes have no notice of the same. For certainly if they kne w of them, they would imploy all diligence and indeuour in the remedie thereof. Whereof it feemeth that mention is mide in the holy Scripture, in the Pronerbs of Solamon, where it is faid, Rex qui fedet in folio In. deci diffipat omne malum intutu fue. For it is fufficien ly to be prefupposed even of the kindly and naturall vertue of a King, that the only notice that hee taketh of any mischiefe tormenting his Kingdome, is sufficient to procure him, if it bee possible, to roote out the same as beeing a thing that he cannot tollerate even one only moment of time.

Confidering therefore with my felfe most mightie Lord the great mischiefes, damages and loffes (the like whereof it is not to be thought, were ever committed by Mankind) of fologe and 20 great Kingdomes, or to speake more truely, of this so new World of the Indies, which God and holy Church have committed and commended vnto the King of Cashile, to the end they might gouerne, connert, and procure their prosperitie as well temporally as spiritually. I therefore (I fay) being a man of experience, and fiftie y eres of age or more, confidering thefe cuits, as having feene them committed, at my being in those Countries : Also that your Highnesse lauing information of some notable particularities, might bee mooued most earnestly to defire his Maiestie. not to grant or permit to thole Tyrants fuen conquetts as they have found out , and which they doe to name, (whereunto if they might bee fuff, red they would returne) feeing that of themfelues, and being made against this Indian, peaceable, lowly and milde Nation which offendeth none, they be wicked, tyrannous, and by all Lawes either Naturall, Humane or Duine, veterly ! condemned, detefted and accuried : I thought it belt, least my felfe might become also guiltie, by concealing the loffe of an infinite number both of fouls & bodies which are fo committed, to cause a few of their dealings which of late I had feleded from among infinite others, and that might truly be reported to be printed, to the end your Highnesse might with more ease peruse and read them ouer, Alfo whereas your Highnesse Master the Archbishop of Toless, when hee was Bishop of Carebagenarequired them at my hands, and then prefented them to your Highnesse: penduenture by reason of such great Voyages as your Highnesse tooke voon you, both by Sea and by Land for matters of Estate wherein you have beene builed, it may bee you have not peruled, the ther have forgotten them, and in the meane time the rash and disordinate defire of those which thinke it nothing to doe wrong, to fined fuch abundance of mans bloud, to make defolate there is to large Countries of their naturall Inhabitants and Owners, by flaying infinite persons, either to purloine (uch incredible treatures, do daily augment, their Tyrants proceeding vnder alcounterfeit titles and colours in their inftant and importunate fute, namely, to have the faid Conquells permitted and granted vnto them : Which in truth cannot bee granted without transgreging the Law both of Nature and of God, and so contequently not without incurring mortall finne, worthy most terrible and everlasting torments: I thought it expedient to doe your Highnesse ferunce in this briefe Summarie of a most large Historie, that might and oughe to bee written of fuch flaughters and spoiles as they have made and perpetrated. Which I beteech your Highnesse to receive and reade over, with that Royall clemencie and courcefie, wherewith you wie to accept and perufe the workes of fuch your feruants, as no other defire, but faithfully to employ them-90 felues to the common commoditie, and to procure the prosperitie of the Royall Estate.

This Summarie being perused, and the vildnesse of the iniquitie committed against these poore innocent people, in that they are fline and hewed in pieces without defert, only through the auarice ambition of those that pretend to the doing of such execrable deeds, being considered. It may please your Highnesse to desire, and effectually to perswade his Maiestie todenicany whosoeuer shall demand or require so hurtfull and dete fable enterprises : yea, euen to burie any fuch fuite or petition in the infernall pet of perpetuall filence, thereby flewing fuch terrour and dillike as hereafter no man may bee fobold, as once to name or fpeake thereof. And this (most mightie Lord) is very expedient and necessarie, to the end God may prosper, preserve and make the estate of the Royall Crowne of Castile for ever to flourish both spiritually and temporally. 60 CHAP. IIIL

A briefe Narration of the destruction of the Indies by the Spaniards : written by a Frier BART. de las CASAS a Spaniard, and Bishop of Chiapa in America.

He Indies were discourred the yeere 1492. and inhabited by the Spanish the yeere next after enfuing : fo as it is about fortie nine yeeres fithence that the Spaniards Jome of them went into those parts. And the first Land that they entred to inhanext after enfuing: fo as it is about fortie mine years interectual inhabitions of them went into those parts. And the first Land that they entred to inhabite, was thig great and most fertilelle of Hispaniola, which containeth six humbire, was thig great and most fertilelle of Hispaniola, which containeth six humbire, was the great and infinite lles round about, and dred leagues in compasse. There are other great and infinite lles round about, and in the Confines on all fides: which we have feene the most peopled, and the fullest of their owne native people; as any other Countrie in the World may be. The firme Land lying off from this lland two hundred and fiftie leagues, and somewhat ouer at the most, containeth in length on the Sea Coast more then ten chousand leagues : which are alreadie discouered, and daily be discouered more and more, all full of people, as an Emmote hill of Emmots. Infomuch, as by that which fince, vnto the yeere the fortieth and one hath been discouered : It seemeth that God hath beliowed in that same Countrie, the gulfe or the greatest portion of Mankind.

God created all these innumerable multitudes in every fort, very simple, without subtletie, or craft, without malice, very obedient, and very faithfull to their naturall Liege Lords. and to the Spaniards whom they serve, very humble, very patient, very desirous of peace making, and pracefull, without brawles and strugglings, without quarrels, without strife, without rancour or hatred, by no meanes defirous of reuengement.

They are also people very gentle, and very tender, and of an easie complexion, and which can sustaine no travell, and doe die very soone of any disease whatseever, in such fort as the very children of Princes and Noblemen brought vp amongst vs, in all commodities, ease, and delicatenelle, are not more foft then those of that Countrie : yea, although they bee the children of Labourers. They are also very poor folks, which possess from they are also very poor folks, which possess from the problem of the poor folks which possess from the poor folks and the poor folks which possess from the poor folks and the poor folks which possess from the poor folks and the poor folks which possess from the poor folks and the poor folks which possess from the poor to have much worldly goods, and therefore neither are they proud, ambitious, nor couetous. Their dier is fuch (as it leemeth) that of the holy Fathers in the Defert hath not bin more scarces Intercate the cast recommendation of the many control of the many that the many of the common fireight, nor left daintie, nor left improuss. Their apparelling is commonly to goe naked all fast their tham each parts alone courted. And when they be clothed, at the most, in is but a of a Mantle of Bombacie of an ell and a halfe, or two ells of linnen fquare. Their lodging is voon a Mat, and those which have the best : sleepe as it were voon a Net fastened at the foure corners, which they call in the Language of the Ile of Hiff aniela, Hamafas. They have their vnderitanding very pure and quicke, being teachable and capeable of all good Learning , very ant to receive our holy Catholike Faith, and to be instructed in good and vertuous manners, having leffe incumberances and disturbances to the attaining thereunto, then all the folfe of the world besides, and are so enslamed, ardent, and importune to know and understand the matters of the faith after they have but begunne once to tafte them, as likewife the exercise of the Sacraments of the Church, and the diuine Service : that in truth, the religious men have need of a fingular patience to support them. And to make an end , I have heard many Spaniards many times hold faw in them. Vndoubtedly there folkes should bee the happiest in the World, if onely they knew God. Vpon these Lambes so meeke, so qualified and endued of their Maker and Creator, as hath bin faid, entred the Spanif incontinent as they knew them, as, Wolues, as Lions, and as Tigres most cruell of long time familhed : and have not done in those quarters these fortie yeeres past, nei-

this as affured, and that which they could not denie, concerning the good nature which they

So ther yet doe at this prefent, ought elle faue teare them in pieces, kill them, martyr them, afflict them, tormene them, and destroy them by strange forts of cruelties neuer neither seene, nor read, nor heard of the like (of the which fome fhall be fet downe hereafter) fo far forth that of about three Millions of foules that were in the Ile of Hilpansola, and that we have feene, there are not now two hundred natives of the Countrey. The Ile of Cubs, the which is in length as farreas Three Millions from Valledolid vitill Rome, is at this day as it were all waste. Saint Johns Ile, and that of Iamayor, both of them very great, very fertill, and very faire are defolate. Likewife the Iles of ed hath but Lucayos, neere to the leof Hipanisla, and of the North fide wnto that of Cubs, in number being 160000. aboue threefcorellands, together with those which they call the Iles of Geante, one with another, great and little, whereof the very worst is fertiler then the Kings Garden at Simil, and the 60 Countrie the healthsomest in the World : there were in these same Iles more then fine hundred thouland foules, and at this day there is not one only creature. For they have beene all of them 500000 loft in flaine, after that they had drawne them out from thence to labour in their Minerals in the lie of the Lunger. Hispaniola, where there were no more left of the Natives of that Iland. A ship riding for the space of three yeeres betwire all these llands, to the end, after the inning of this kind of Vintage, to gleane and call the remainder of these folke (for there was a good Christian mound with pittie and compagion, to convert and win vato Chaift fuch as might be found) there were not found but eleven persons which I faw: other Iles more then thirty, neere to the Ile of Saint Jobn have likewise bin dispeopled and marred. All these lies contains about two thouland leagues of land, and are all dispeopled and laid waste.

I 569

CHAP. 4. Bart. delas Cafas bis Booke of Cruelties done in the Indies

As touching the maine firme land, we are certaine that our Spaniards, by their cruelties and curfed doings have dispeopled and made desolate more then ten Realmes greater then all Spaine. comprising also there with Aragon & Portugall, and twife as much or more land then there is from Senil to lerufalem, which are about a thouland leagues : which Realmes as yet vntochis prefer day remaine in a wildernesse and veter desolation, having bin before time as well peopled as the possible. We are able to yeelde a good and certaine accompt, that there is within the bace of the laid fortie yeares, by those said tyrannies and divellish doings of the Spanards, doen for water 12.0115 miles infly and tyrannously more then twelve Milions of foules, men, women, and children. And I doe verily believe, and thinke not to militake therein, that there are dead more then fifteene Millions of foules.

The cause why the Spanish have destroyed such an infinite of soules, hath beene onely, that they have held it for their last scope and marke to get Gold, and to enrich themselves in a short time. and to mount at one leape to very high estates, in no wife agreeable to their persons : or to fav in a word, the cause hereof hath beene their avarice and ambition. And by this meanes have died fo many Millions without faith and without Sacraments.

of the Ile of Hispaniola.

In the He Hisbaniola, which was the first (as we have faid) where the Spaniards arrived began the great flaughters and ipoyles of people: the Spaniards having begun to take their wives and children of the Indies, for to serue their turne and to vie them ill, and having begun to eate their victuals, gotten by their sweate and trauell; not contenting themselves with that which the Indians your them of their owne good will, every one after their abilitie, the which is algates very small, forasmuch as they are accustomed to have no more store then they have ordinarily neede of, and that fuch as they get with little trauell ; And that which might fuffice for three housholds, reckoning ten persons for each houshold for a moneths space, one Spanard would eat 10

Now after fundry other forces, violences, and torments, which they wrought against them: the Indians began to perceive that those were not men discended from heaven. Some of them therefore hid their victuals, others hid their wines and children, some others fied into the Montaines, to separate themselves a farre off from a Nation of to hard natured and ghastly conunfation. The Spaniards buffered them with their fifts and bastonades : pressing also to lay hands upon the Lords of the Townes. And these cases ended in so great an hazard and desperateness that a Spanife Captaine durit adventure to ravilh forcibly the wife of the greatest King and Lord of this Ile. Since which time the Indians began to fearth meanes to cast the Spaniards out of go their lands, and fet themselves in armes: but what kinde of armes? very feeble and weake to withfland or relitt, and of leffe defence. The Spaniards with their Horles, their Speares and Lances, began to commit murders, and firange cruelcies : they entred into Townes, Borowes, and Villages, sparing neither children nor old men, neither women with childe, neither them that lay In, but that they ripped their bellies, and cut them in peeces, as if they had beene opening of Lambes shut vp in their fold. They laid wagers with such as with one thrust of a fword would paunch or bowell a man in the middeft, or with one blow of a fword would most readily, and most deliverly cut off his head, or that would best pierce his entrals at one siroike. They tooke the little foules by the heeles, ramping them from the mothers dugges, and crushed their heads against the clifts. Others they cast into the Rivers laughing and mocking, and when so they tumbled into the water, they faid, now thift for thy felfe fuch a ones corpes. They put of thers, together with their mothers, and all that they met, to the edge of the fword. They made certaine Gibbets long and low, in fuch fort, that the feete of the hanged on, touched in a manner the ground, every one enough for thirteene, in honour and worship of our Sautour and his twelve Apostles (as they yied to speake) and setting to fire, burned them all quicke that were fastened. Vnto all others, whom they vied to take and referve alme, cutting off their two hands as neere as might be, and fo letting them hang, they faid; Get you with thefe Letters, to carry tydings to those which are fled by the Mountaines. They murdered commonly the Lords and Nobility on this fashion: They made certaine grates of pearches laid on pickforkes, and made a little fire underneath, to the intent, that by little and little yelling and despairing in thefe tor- 62 ments, they might give vp the Ghoit.

One time I law foure or fine of the principall Lords toafted and broyled upon these gredie tons. Also I thinke that there were two or three of these greditons, garnished with the like furniture, and for that they cryed out pittioufly, which thing troubled the Captaine that he could not then fleepe: he commanded to ftrangle them. The Sergeant, which was worfe then the Hang manchas burned them (I know his marke and friende in Simil) would not have them firangled, but himselfe putting Ballets in their mouthes, to the end that they should not cry, but to Dogges. the fire, vntill they were foftly roafted after his defire. I have feene all the aforefaid things and others joinite. And foraf nuch, as all the people which sould flee, hid themselves in the Mountaines, and mounted on the tops of them, fled from the men to without all manhood, emptie of all pitic, behaving them as faunge beafts, the slaughterers and deadly enemies of mankinde : they caught their Hounds, herce Dogs, to teare them in peeces at the first view, and in the foace that one may fay a Credo, affailed and devogred an Indian seif it had beene a Swine. These Dogees to wrought great deft uctions and flughters. And fortimuch as fometimes, although feldome, when the Indians put to death some Spanisords upon good right and Law of the Enficer they make a Lawe betweene them, that for one Spanisord they had to flay an hundred Indians.

There were in this Ile Hiftaniola, fine great principall Realmes, and fine very mighty Kings, The Realmes vinto whom almost all other Lords obayed, which were without number. There were affecer- which were in taine Lords of other feuerall Provinces, which did not acknowledge for fourraigne any of thefe Kings : One Realme was named Magua, which is as much to lay, as the Kingdome of the plaine. This Plaine is one of the most famous and most admirable things of all that is in the world. For it contained fourescore leagues of ground, from the South Sea vnco the North sea, having in breadth fine leagues, and eight voto ten.

20 It hach on one fide and other exceeding high Mountaines. There entrethinto it about thirty thousand Rusers and Lakes, of the which twelve areas great as Ebro, and Duero, and Guadalque- Great Rivers mir. And all the Ruers which iffue out of a Mountaine which is towards the West, in number a- in Spaine. bout file and twenty thousand, are very rich of Gold. In the which Mountaine or Mountaines, rich in Gold. is contained the Province of Cibas, from whence the Mines of Cibas take their names, and from Cibas whence commeth the same exquisite Gold and fine of foure and twenty Karrets, which is so renowned in these parts. The King & Lord of this Realme was called Gnavionex, which had vinder him his Vallals & Lieges fo great and mighty, that every one of them was able to fet forth threefcore thousand men of armes for the service of the King Guerionex. Of the which Lords I have known forme certain. This Guarionex was very obedient and vertuous, naturally defirous of peace. and well affectioned to the denotion of the Kings of Caffele, and his people gaue by his commandement every housekeeper a certaine kinde of Drumfull of Gold : but afterwards being not able so fill the Dum, cut it off by the middeft, and gave the halfe thereof full. For the Indians of that He had little or none indultrie or practife to gather or draw Gold out of the Mines. The Cacione presented vnto the King of Castile his service, in causing to be manured all the lands from the I-Tabella, where the Spanib first lited, vnto the Towne of Saint Domingo, which are fiftie leagues large, on condition that he should exact of them no Gold : for hee faid (and hee faid the truth) that his Subjects had not the skill to draw it out. As for the manuring which he faid he would procure to be done : I know that he could have done it very eafily, and with great readineffe, and that it would have beene worth vnto the King every yeere more then three Millions of Caltil-Ans, befides that it would have caufed, that at this houre there had bin above fiftie Cities greater

The paiment that they made to this good King and Lord, fo gracious and fo redoubted, was to dishonour him in the person of his wife, an euil (briffian, a Captaine raushing her. This King could have artended the time and opportunitie to avenge himfelfe in levying fome armie; but he adusted to withdraw himfelfe rather, and onely to hide him out of the way, thus being banished from his Realme and state, into a Prouince of the Cignaios, where there was a great Lord his vaffall. After that the Spaniards were ware of his absence, and he could no longer hide himselfe: they make warre against the Lord which had given him enterrainment, and make great flaughters through the Countrey as they goe, till in the end they found and tooke him, thrusting him loden with chaines and irons into a Ship, to carry him to Caffile : which Ship was loft upon the The greatest 50 Sea, and there were with him drowned many Spaniards, and a great quantity of Gold, among & peece or Gold the which also was the great wedge of Gold, like vnto a great loafe, weying three thousand which ever fix hundreth Castillans. Thus it pleased God to wreake vengeance of matters so lewel and maillest. fo enormous.

The other Realme was called of Marien , where is at this day the Port at one of the bounds Maries of the plaine, towards the North : and it is farre greater then the Realme of Portugall, and much fertiler, worthy to be inhabited, having great Mountaines, and Mines of Gold, and Copper very rich. The King was called Gnacanagari, which had under him many great Lords, of the which I have known and feene fundry. In this Kings Countrey arrived first the old Admirall, 6) when he discourred the Indies, whom at that time that he discourred the Ile, the faid Guacanagari received fo graciously, bountifully, and curteously with all the Spaniards who were with him, in giving him all entertainement and fuccour, for at the very instant was the Shiplost (which the Admirall was carried in) that hee could not have bin better made off in his owne Countrie of his owne Father. This did I understand of the Admirals owne mouth: This King

Tortures,

Ambition.

Crueliy.

Pppppp

dyed, in flying the flaughters and cruelties of the Spaniards through the Mountaines, being defiroyed and deprived of his efface. And all the other Lords his tubic ets dyed in the tyrannie and fernitude that shall be declared hereafter.

The third Realme and dominion was Magnand, a Countrie also admirable, very healthfulk and very fertile, where the best Sugar of the He at this day is made.

The King of this Countrie was named Caemabo, who furpated all the others in firength and flate, in granitie, and in the ceremonies of his feruice. The Spaniards tooke this King with great fubrilitie and malice, even as he was in his owne house, doubting of mothing. They conveied him afterwards into a Ship to carry him to Castile; but as there attended them fix other Ships in the port, all ready to hose vp faile : behold how God by his just judgement, would declare, that it. Io with other things, was an exceeding great iniquitie and vniult, by fending the fame night a tempeft, which finke and drenched that Natie with the Spaniards that were within. There died al-To with them the faid Caonabe, charged with bolts and itons.

The Prince had three or foure brothers valiant men, and couragious like himfelfe, who confu dering the imprisonment of their Lord & brother so against all equitie, together with the waste and flaughters which the Spaniards made in other Realmes, and specially after that they had heard that the King their brother was dead, they put themselves in armes to encounter the Spaniards, and to auringe the wrong; who on the other fide meeting with them on horsebacke; fo they rage in discomstures and massacres, that the one moytie of this Realme hath beene thereby

defolate and displopled.

The fourth Realme is the fame which is named of Xaragua. This Realme was as it werethe centre or middle point, or to speake of, as the Court of this lile, the diamond over all the other Realmes in language and polified speech, in policie and good manners, the best composed and ordered. For as much as there were many noble Lords and Gentlemen, the people also being the best made and most beautifull. The King had to name Bebecho, which had a fifter called Anacas-Ma. These two, the brother and fifter, had done great services to the Kings of Cafile, and great good turnes to the Spaniards, delivering them from fundry dangers of death.

After the deccase of Bebechio, Anacaona remained fole Souerzigne of the Realme. At a time came into this Realme the Gouernour of this He with threefcore Horfes, and more then three hundreth footemen (the horsemen alone had beene enough to spoyle and ouernane not this to He alone, but all the firme land withall :) And to him came, being called, more then three hundred Lords under affurance, of whom the chiefest, he fraudulently caused to be conueyed into a house of thatch, and commanded to set to fire. Now on this wife were these Lords burned all aliue: all the reit of the Lords, with other folke infinite, were imitten to death with their Speares and Swords. But the Soueraigne Lady Anacaona, to doe her honour. they hanged. It happened that certaine Spaniards, either of pittie or of couetoufneffe, having taken and detained certaine yong striplings to make them their Pages; because they would not haue them flaine, and fetting them behinde them on their horse backes; another Spaniard came behinde, which habbed them through with a speare. If so be any childe or boy tombled downe to the ground, another Spaniard came and cut off his legges. Some certaine of thele Indians which 40 could escape this crueltie so vnnaturall, passed ouer vnto a little He neere vnto the other, within an eight leagues. The Gouernour condemned all those which had pailed the water, to become flaves ; because they had fled from their butcherie. The fifth Realme was called Higney, ouer the which raigned an ancient Queene named Higmanama, whom the Spaniards hanged vp. The people were infinite whom I faw burnt ahue, and rent in peeces, and tormented diverfly and Itrangely, and whom I faw made flaves, even fo many as they tooke aline. And now for as much as there are so many particularities in these Mallacres and destruction of those peoples, that they cannot conveniently be comprised in writing (yea I doe verily beleeue, that of a number of things to be ipoken of, there cannot be disciphered of a thousand parts one :) I will onely in that which concerneth the warres about 90 mentioned, conclude, auerre, and iustifie in conscience, and as before God, that of all others, which I ouerpaffe to speake of, or shall be able to speake of, the Indians never gave no more occasion or cause, then might a convent of good religious persons well ordered, why they should be robbed and flaine, and why those that escaped the death, should be retained in a perpetual captiuitie and bondage. I affirme yet moreouer, for ought that I can belieue or consecture, that, during all the time that all this huge number of theie Illanders haue beene murdered and made away veterly, they never committed against the Spaniards any one mortall offence, punishable by the law of man. And concerning offences, of the which the punishment is releved vnto God, as are defire of reuengement, harred and rancour, which these people might beareagainst enemies to capitall as were the Spaniards, that very tew perfons have beene attached with the 60 blemish, and lesse violent and forcible did I finde them, by the good experience I had of them, then children of tenne or twelue yeares of age. And I know for certaine and infallible, that the Indians had euermore most just cause of warre against the Spaniards; but the Spaniards never had any just cause of warre against the Indians, but they were all diabolicall and most varighteous more then can be spoken of any tyrane that is on the whole earth. And I affirme the felre same for all their other acts and geits by them done throughout all the Indies.

The warres atchieued, and all the men done to death thereby, referued commonly the yong folke, women, and children (the which they departed among them, in giving to one thirtie, to another fortie, and to another an hundreth, or two hundreth, according as every one had the fauour of the head tyrant, whom they called the Gouernour) they gaue them to the Spaniards woon that condition and colour, that they would teach them the Catholike faith, they themfelues who tooke voon them this charge of foules, commonly all idiots, or vtterly ignorant pertons, barbarous men, extreamely couetous and vicious.

Now the carke and care that their had of them, was to fend the men vnto the Mines, to make them dreine them out Gold, which is an intollerable trauell; and the women they beltowed into the Countrie to their Farmes, to manore and till the ground, which is a fore trauell, even for the very men, the ableft and mightieft. They gave to eate neither to one nor other, nought faue graffes and fuch like things of no substance; in such fort as the milke of the breatts of the wines new delinered of their childebirth dried vp; and thus dried vp in a small feason, all the little creatures their yong children. Further, by realon of the separation and not cohabiting of the men with their wives, the generation ceased betweene them. The men died with toyle and fa- Gens fine genfmine in the Minerals: these the women died of the same in the fields. By these meanes were con- ratione series fumed and brought to their ends so huge a number of the folke of this Island. By the like might

10 be abolished and exterpate all the inhabitants of the world. As touching loding, they laid vpou them fourescore or an hundreth pounds waight, which they should carrie an hundreth or two hundreth leagues : The Spanish also causing themselves to be carried in Lycers upon mens armes, or beds made by the Indiana, in fashion of Nets. For they ferned their turnes with them to transport their carriages and baggage as beaits, whereby they had upon their backes and shoulders, whalles and gals as poore galled beafts. Also as touching whippings, baltonading, buffeting, blowes with the fift, curling, and a thousand other kindes of torments, which they practifed open them during the time that they tramiled, of a truth, they cannot be recounted in a long leaton, nor written in a great deale of paper, and they should be euen to affright men withall.

It is to be noted, that the destruction of these Iles and lands, began after the decease of the most gracious Queene, dame Ifabel, which was the yeare one thousand fine hundred and foure. For before there were laid wait in this Ile, but certaine Prouinces by vniust warre, and that not wholly altogether, & these for the more part, or in a manner all were conceiled from the knowledge of the Queene (vnto who it may please God to give his holy glory) forasmuch as she had a great delire, and a zeale admirable, that those people might be saued and prosper, as we do know good examples, the which we have seene with our eyes, and felt with our bands. Further note here, that in what part of the Indies the Spanish have come, they have evermore exercised against the Indians, these innocent peoples, the cruelties aforesaid, and oppressions abominable, and inuented day by day new torments, huger and monstrouser, becomming every day more cruell, 40 wherefore God also gave them over to fall headlong downe with a more extreame downfall into a reprobate fenie.

Of the two Iles Saint Iohn, and Iamayca.

THE Spanish passed over the Ile of Saint lobn, and to the end of Iamaica which were like Gaza dens for Bees) 1500, letting before them the same end which they had in the Ile Hispaniola, and committing the robberies and crimes aforefaid, adioyning thereunto many great and notable cruelties killing burning rofting and cafting them to the Dogs : furthermore, after wards oppreffing, and vexing them in their Minerals and other travell, vnto the rooting out of those poore in- 600000. of a 50 nocents which were in thefe two Iles, by supputation fix hundred thousand soules ; yea I beleeue Million in S. that they were more then a Million, although there be not at this day in either Ile two hundred Ishnand Ispersons, and all perished without faith and without Sacraments.

of the Ile of Cuba.

TN the yeare 1711, they passed to the sle of Cuba(where were great Provinces, and great musti-Ltudes of people) they both began and concluded with them after the failtion afore spoken, yea worfe and farre more cruelly. There came to piffe in this Iland matters worth the noting: A Ca-60 cique, named Hathury, which had conneied himfelte from the He Hift aniola to Cuba, with many of his people, to avoide the calamities & practifes to vnnaturall of the Spanish: when as certain Indians had told him tidings that the Spaniards were comming towards Cuba, he affembled his men, Dances mide and befpake them : Now you know that the Spaniards are commaing on this fide, and yee know to Gold. allo by experience, how they have entreated such, and such, and the people of Hayti (meaning thereby Hift aniola) hither they come to doe the like here. Wot yee why they doe it? they and fwered, no, voleffe it be that they are by nature voide of humanitie. He replied: They do it noe onely for that : but because they have a God whom they honour, and doe demand very much and to the end to have from vs as well as others to honour him withall, they doe their vttermost to fabdue vs. He had then by him a little Cheft full of Gold and Iewels, and faid, Behold here the God of the Spaniards, let vs doe to him, if it lo feeme you good, Areres (which are wind. leffes and dances) thus doing, we shall please him, and he will command the Spaniards that they shall doe vs no harme: They answered all with a loud voyce: Well faid Sir, well faid. Thus then they denced before it, vntill they were weary, then quoth the Lord Hathney, Take wee heede how ever the world goe, if we keepe him, to the end that he be taken away from vs, in the end to they will kill vs; wherefore let vs caft him into the River; whereunto they all agreed, and fo they cait it into a great Riuer there.

Pppppp2

His choife to

and why.

This Lord and Cacique went alwayes flying the Spanish, incontinent as they were arrived at the Jie of Cuba, as he which knew them but too well, and defended himselfe when he met them. In the end he was taken, and onely for because that hee fled from a Nati a so vinust and cruell. and that he defended himselfe from such as would kill him, and oppresse him even voto the death, with all his folke, he was burned aliue. Now as he was fafined to the stake, a religious man of Saint Francis order, a deuou: person, spake to him somewhat of God and of our Faith. which things this faid Lord had neuer heard of, yet might be fufficient for the time which the butchers gaue him, that if he would beleeve those things which were spoken to him, hee should 20 goe to heaven, where is glory and reft everlathing, that if he did not believe, hee should goe to hell, there to be tormented perpetually. The Lord after having a little pauled to thinke of the matter, demanded of the Religious man, whether that the Spaniards went to heaven; who an-Iwered, yea; fuch of them that were good. The Cacique antwered agains immediately without any further deliberation, that he would not got to heaven, but that he would goe to hell, to the any turener democration, that he would not got to nearest, but that he would got to nest, tother end, not to come in the place where fuch popel flouid be, and to the end not to fee a Nation for cruell. Loe here the prairie, and honour which God and our faith have received of the Spanieris.

which have gone to the Indies. One time the Indians came to meete vs, and to receive vs with victuals, and delicate cherre. and with all entertainment ten leagues of a great Citie, and being come at the place, they prefen- # ted vs with a great quantity of fish, and of bread, and other meate, together with all that they could doe for vs to the vttermoft. See incontinent the Divell, which put himfelfe into the Speniards, to put them all to the edge of the tword in my prefence, without any cause whatsour. more then three thousand soules, which were set before vs, men, women, and children. Isaw there fo great cruelties, that neuer any man liuing either have or shall fee the like.

3000.Saine.

Another time, but a few dayes after the premises. I sent mellengers vnto all the Lords of the Province of Hanana, affuring them, that they should not neede to feare (for they had heard of my credit) and that without withdrawing themselves, they should come to receive vs, and that there should be done vnto them no displeasure : for all the Countrie was afraid, by reason of the mischiefesand murderings passed, and this did I by the aduice of the Captaine himselfe. After 40 that we were come into the Prouince, one and twenty Lords and Caciques came to receive vs, whom the Captaine apprehended incontinently, breaking the lafe conduct which I had made them, and intending the day next following to burne them aline, faying that it was expedient so to doe, for that otherwise those Lords one day, would doe vs a shrewd turne. I found my felfe in a great deale of trouble to faue them from the fire; howbeit in the end they escaped. After that the Indians of this lland were thus brought into bondage and calamitie, like vnto those of the lie of Hispanola, and that they faw that they died and perished all without reme-frying-pan in-

there hung themselues more then two hundred Indians: and in this fashion died an infinite There was in this He an officer of the Kings, to whom they gaue for his share three hundred Indians, of whom at the end of three moneths there died by him in the trauell of the Mines, two hundred and fixty: in such for, that there remained now but thirty, which was the tenth part. Afterwards they gave him as many more, and more, and those also hee made haucke of in like manner, and still as many as they gaue him, so many he slew, vntill he died himselfe, and that the dy : some of them began to flye into the Mountaines, others quite desperate hanged themselves, and there hung together husbands with their wives, hanging with them their little children. And through the crucitie of one only Spaniard, which was a great tyrant, and one whom I know, 10

Divell carried him away. In three or foure moneths (my selfe being present) there died more then fixe thousand children, by reason that they had plucked away from them their fathers and mothers, which they 60 fent into the Mines, I beheld also other things frightfull. Shortly after they resolved to climbe after those which were in the Mountaines, where they wrought also ghastly slaughters, and those laid waste all this lie; which we beheld not long after, and it is great pitie to see it so dispeopled and defolate as it is.

of Terra Firma, or the firme land.

TN the yeere 1514, there landed in the Maine a mischieuous Gouernour, Heenot onely wasted or diffeopled the Sea Coast, but sacked also great Realmes and Countries, making hauncks by flaving and murdering of peoples, infinite to be numbred, and fending them to Hell. He ouerranne and harried molt of the places in the Land, from Darien vpward, vnto the Realme and Provinces of Nicaragna within being, which are more then fine hundred leagues of the bett, and most fertile ground in the whole World, where there were a good number of great Lords, with to a number of Townes, Boronghes, and Villages, and store of gold in more abundance then was to be found on the earth vatili that prefent.

This Governour with his men, found out new forts of cruelties and torments, to cause them to discouer and give him gold. There was a Captaine of his, which slue in one walke and course which was made by his commandement, to rob and roote out more then fortie thousand soules. putting them to the edge of the Sword, burning them, and giving them to the Dogges, and tormenting them diversly : which also a Religious man of the Order of Saint Francis, who went with him, beheld with his eies, and had to name Frier Francis of Saint Romane.

The most pernicious blindnesse, which hath alwaies possessed those who have governed the Indians, in stead of the care which they should have for the conversion and saluation came to that paffe, as to command orders to ber fet do wne vnto the Indians to receive the faith, and render themselves vnto the obedience of the King of Castile, or otherwise to bid them battle with fire and Sword, and to flay them or make them flaues : he commanded (or peraduenture the theeues, whom he dispatched to doe the execution, did it of their heads) when they were purposed to goe a rouing and robbing of any place, where they knew that there was any gold, the Indians being in their Townes and dwelling houses, without mistrusting any thing the wicked Spaniards would goe after the guize of Theeues, vnto within halte a league neere fome Towne, Borough, or Village, and there by themselves alone, and by night make a reading, publication, or Proclamation of the faid Ordinances, faying thus, O jes, Caciques and Indians of this firme Land of fuch God and Kine a place : Be it knowne voto you, that there is one God, one Pope, one King of Caltile, which is Lord of abuled.

30 thoje Lands : make your appearance, all delay fet aside, berote dee him bomage, &c. Which if you hall not accomplife: Be it knowne unto you, that we will make warre upon you, and we will kill you, and make you flauer. Hereupon at the fourth watch in the morning, the poore Innocents, fleeping yet with their wives and children : these Tyrants set vpon the place, calting fire on the houses which commonly were thatched, and so burne vp all quicke men, women and children, more suddenly then that they could of a great many be perceived. They maffacred at the inftant those that seemed them good, and those whom they tooke priloners, they caused them cruelly to die vpon the Racke, to make them to tell in what places there were any more Gold then they found with them : and others which remained alive, they made them flaves, marking them with a hot Iron. fo after the fire being out and quenched, they goe feeke the gold in their houses. This is then the 40 deportment in thele affaires of this person, with all the bond of his vngodly Christians, which he trained from the fourteenth yeere, vnto the one and twentie, or two and twentieth yeere, fending in these Exploits fixe or moe of his Seruants or Souldiers, by whom he received as many shares, ouer and besides his Captaines Generals part, which hee leuied of all the Gold, of all the Pearles, and of all the Iewels which shey tooks of those whom they made their slaves. The iclie-fame did the Kings Officers, euerie one fending forch as many fernants as he could.

The Bilhop also, which was the chiefe in the Realme, he fent his fervants to have his share in the bootie: They spoiled more gold within the time, and in this Realme, as farre forth as I am able to reckon, then would amount to a Million of Ducates, yea, I beleeve, that I make my reckoning with the least. Yet will it be found, that of all this great theeuing, they never fent to 50 the King ought faue three thousand Castillans, having thereabout killed and destroyed aboue eight hundred thousand soules. The other Tyrant Gouernours which succeeded after, vnto the yeere thirtie and three, flue or at least wife confented, for all those which remained to flay them in that tyrannicall flauerie.

Amongst an infinite fort of mischiefes, which this Gouernour did, nor consented vnto the doing during the time of his government, this was one: To wit, that a Cache or Lord giving him, either of his good will, or which is rather to be thought for feare, the weight of nine thouland Ducates : the Spaniards not content withall, tooke the faid Lord, and tied him to a stake, setting him on the earth, his feet stretched up, against the which they fet fire to cause him to give them some more gold. The Lord fent to his house, whence there were brought, yet moreoner three 60 thousand Cashillans. They goe afresh to give him new torments. And when the Lord gave them no more, either because he had it not, or because he would give them no more, they bent his free against che fire, vitall that the verie marrow sprang out, and trilled downe the soles of his feete : to as hee therewith died. They have oftentimes exercised these kinde of torments towards the Lords, to make them gine them gold, wherewith they have also flaine them.

Prpppp 3

Another

Another time, a certaine companie of Spaniards, ving their thefts and robberies, came to: Mountaine, where were affembled and hid a number of people, having thunned those men to pernicious and horrible; whom incontinent entring vpon, they tooke about three or fourescore. as well women as maids having killed as many as they could kill. The morrow after, there affembled a great companie of Indians, to pursue the Spaniards, warring against them for the great defire they had to recouer their wives and daughters.

The Spaniards perceiving the Indians to approach so neere vpon them, would not so forme their prey, but Rabd their Swords thorow the bellies of the wives and wenches, leaning but one alone aline of all the fourescore. The Indians felt their hearts to burst for sorrow and griefe which they suffered, yelling out in cries and speaking such words: O wicked men, O yee the cruell to Spaniards: doe yee kill Las Iras: They terme Iras in that Countrie the women : as if they would fav. to kill women, those be acts of abominable men, and cruell as beafts.

There was about ten or fifteene leagues from loanams, a great Lord named Paris, which was very rich of gold : The Spaniards went thither, whom this Lord received as if they had beene his owne brethren, and made a Present voto the Captaine of fiftie thousand Castillans of his owne voluntarie accord. It feemed vnto the Captaine and the other Spaniards, that he which gaue fuch a great fumme of his owne will, should have a great treasure, which should be the end and easing of their trauels. They pretend in words to depart ; but they returne at the fourth watch of the morning, fetting youn the Towne which miltrufted nothing fet it on fire, whereby was burnt and flaine a great number of people, and by this meanes they brought away in the spoile fiftie, or an threefcore thousand Castillans moe. The Casike or Lord escaped without being slaine or taken, and leuied incontinent as many of his as he could. And at the end of three or foure daies ourraketh the Spaniards which had taken from him an hundred and thirtie, or fortie thousand Castillans, and fet upon them valuanly, killing fiftie Spaniards, and recouring all the gold which they had taken from him. The others taued themselves by running away, being well charged with blowes and wounded. Not long after, divers of the Spanife returne against the faid Cacite, and discomfite him with an infinite number of his people. Those which were not slaine, they put them to the ordinarie bondage : in fuch fort, as that there is not at this day, neither tracke nor token, that there hath beene living there either people, or fo much as one man alone borne of woman within thirtie leagues of the Land, which was before notably peopled and gouerned by 30 divers Lords. There is no reckoning able to be made of the murders which this Caitiffe with his companie committed in these Realmes which he so dispeopled.

of the Province of Nicaragua.

The yeare 1922, or twentie three, this Tyrant went farther into the Land: to bring vader his yoke the most fertile Prouince of Nicaragna, and so in thither he entred in an euill houre. There is no man which is able worthily and fufficiently to fpeake of the fertilitie, healthiomeneile, prosperitie, and frequencie, of those Nations that there were.

He fent fiftie Horiemen, and caused to flay all the people of this Province, (which is greater 40 then the Countie of Roffillon) with the Sword : in such fort, as that hee left aline, nor man, nor woman, nor old, nor young, for the least cause in the World : as if they came not incontinent at his command : or if they did not bring him fo many load of Maiz, which fignifieth in that Countrie bread Corne : or if they did not bring him fo many Indians to ferue him and others of his company: for the Countrie lay levell, as was faid, and no creature could escape his horses and deuillish rage. He sent Spaniards to make out rodes, that is to say, to go a theruing into other Prouinces : and gaue leave to those Rouers, to carrie with them as many Indians of this peaceable people as they lifted, and that they should serue them, whom they put to the chaine, to theend they should not give over the burdens of three or fourescore pounds weight, wherewith they loaded them, whereof it came to passe oftentimes that of foure thouland Indians, there returned 10 not home to their houses fix alive : but even fell downe starke dead in the high way : and when any were so wearie that they could march no forther for the weight of their burdens, or that fome of them fell ficke, or fainted for hunger or thirst, because it should not need to stand so long as to valocke the chaine, and to make the speedier dispatch, hee cut off the head from the shoulders, and to the head tumbled downe one way, and the bodie another. Now confider with your felues, what the other poore foules might thinke the whiles.

He was the cause that the Indians sowed not their grounds one whole yeeres continuance. So as now, when they wanted bread, the Spaniards tooke away from the Indians their Maiz, which they had in flore for proution, to nourish them and their children : whereby there died of famine more then twentie or thirtie thousand soules. And it came to passe, that a woman false mad with 60 the famine flue her Sonne to eate him.

They have discomfited and oppressed in this Province a great number of people, and hastened their death in causing them to beare boords and timber vnto the Hauen thirty leagues diffeace, so make thips with : and fent them to go leeke Honie and Wax amiddeft the Mountaines, where the Tigres denoured them : Yea they have laden women with childe, and women new delinered or lying in, with burdens enough for beafts.

The greatest plague which hath most dispeopled this Prouince, hath beene the licence which the Gourmour gaue to the Spaniards, to demand or exact of the Caciche and Lords of the countrie flaues. They did give them every foure or five moneths, or as oftentimes as every one could obtaine licence of the Gouernour fitte flues : with threatnings, that if they gave them not. Tribute flues, they would burne them aliue, or cause them to be eaten with Dogges. Now ordinarily the Indians doe not keepe flaues, and it is much if one Cacike doc keepe two, three or foure: Wherefore to ferue this turne, they went to their fubicets, and tooke first all the Orphelins, and afterto wards they exacted of him that had two children one, and of him that had three, two: and in this manner was the Cacicke faine to furnith thill to the number that the Tyrant imposed, with the great weeping and crying of the people; for they are people that doe loue (as it feemeth) tenderly their children. And for because that this was done continually, they dispeopled from the yeere 22. vnto the yeere 23. all this Realme. For there went for fixe or feuen yeeres foace. fine or fixe ships at a time, carryi g forth great numbers of those Indians, for to fell them for flaues at loanama and Peru: where they all died not long after. For it is a thing proued and experimented a thousand times, that when the Indians are transported from their naturall Countrey, they foone end their hues : befides that these give them not their sustenance, neither yet diminish they of their toile, as neither doe they buy them, for ought else but to toile. They have 30 by this manner of doing drawneout of this Prouince of the Indies, whom they have made flaves. being as free borne as I am, more then five hundred thousand soules, And by the Dewillish warres 500000. Tailore being as free borne as I am, more then hue hundred thousand sources. And by the Delinium water transported. which the Spanish have made on them, and the hideous thrashome that they have laid vpon 50000. Same them, they have broughe to their deaths, other fiftie or threefcore thouland perfons, and do yet daily make hauocke of them at this present. All these slaughters have beene accomplished within the space of fourteene yeeres. There may be left at this day in all this Provinces of Nicaragua. the number of about foure or fine thousand persons, which they also cause to die as yet every day.

of New Spaine.

peopled in the World, as I have alreadie faid.

N the yeere 1 < 17. was New Spaine discourred : at the Discourrie whereof were committed great diforders and flaughters of the Indians, by those which had the doing of that Exploite. The verre 1418, there went Spanish Christians (as they terme themselves) to rob and slay, not- In the somes withstanding that they said they went to people the Countrie. Sithence that yeere, 1918. vn. discourse of to this present yeere 1542, the vniust dealings, the violencie, and the Tyrannies which the Spa. Herez, you miards have wrought against the Indians, are mounted to the highest degree of extremitie : those may find the felfe-same Spaniards, having thorowly lost the feare of God, and of the King, and forgotten these first sizes themselues. For the discomfitures, cruelties, slaughters, spoiles, the destructions of Cities, pillages, ters, or as this ao violences, and Tyrannies which they have made in fo many Realmes, and to great have been fuch Author reckoand so horrible, that all the things which we have spoken of, are nothing in comparison of those neth, supplanand so horrible, that all the things which we have spoken or, are nothing in companion of those sers, which have beene done and executed from the yeere 1518. vnto the yeere 1542, and as yet at rather depopu-through bondages and oppretious ordinarily and personall, having beene the Countrey the most

this time, this moneth current of September, are in doing and committing the most gateuousest, and the most abominablest of all: in such fort that the rule which weef set downe before is veriplewhole Profied: That is, That from the beginning they have alwaies proceeded from entil to worse, and have gone ba-yand themselves in the most greatest disorders and dentilish doings. In such wise, as that since the first entring into New Spaine, which was on the eight day of but was lother

Aprill, in the eighteenth yeere vnto the thirtieth yeere, which make twelne yeeres complete: doe more then the flaughters and the destructions have never ceasifed, which the bloudie and cruell bands of the the Author Spaniar de haue continually executed in foure hundred and fiftie leagues of Land or thereabout in haddonether spaniar as naue continuary executed in route numbered and intereseagues of Land of theretaeout in whiles many of compaffe, round about Maxico, and the Neighbour Regions round about, fuch as the which them lived: might containe foure or fine great Realmes, as great and a great deale farre fertiler then is Spaine. yea his mest All this Countrie was more peopled with Inhabitants, then Toledo, and Simil, and Vallodelid, and paffi nate and Sanagoce, with Barcelona. For that there hath not beene commonly in those Cities, nor neuer bitter innecwere such a world of people, when they have beene peopled with the most, as there was then in time I have tathe faid Country, which container hin the whole compaile more then 1800, leagues:during the time of the about mentioned twelue yeares, the Spaniards have flaine and done to death in the Storie, therein faid 450, leagues of Land what men, what women, what young and little children, more then also mollifyfoure Millions of foules, with the dint of the Sword and Speare, and by fire, during (I fav) the ing many 60 Conquests (as they call them.) Neither yet doe I here comprize those, whom they have flaine, and doe flay as yet euery day, in the aforefaid flauerie and oppression ordinarie. Among to other Murders and Mattacres they committed this one which I am now to speake Of New Spains of, in a great Citie more then of a thirtie thoufind houlholds, which is called Cholula: that is, in particular, that comming before them the Lords of the Countrie and places neere adioyning, and first and gings in the Citie, in the houses and place of the Lord, or other principall Lords of the Citie:

Binces. I could

the Spaniards aduited with themselves to make a massacre, or a chastile (as they speake) to the end, to raile and plant a dread of their cruelties in euery corner of all that Countrie.

cherie, to the end, that those poore and innocent Lambes should tremble for feare which they

Now this bath beene alwaies their cultomary manner of doing, in every the Regions which they have entred into, to execute incontinent upon their first arrivall, some notable cruell but-

Of the Province and Realme of Guatimala.

O fooner arrived hee into this faid Realme: but that hee beganne with great flaughter of to the Inhabitants. This notwithstanding the chiefe Lord came to receive him, being carried in a Lighter, with Trumpets and Tabours, reloycings, and difports, accompanied with a great number of the Lords of the Circe of Uhlaran, head Citie of the whole Realme, doing them also fertice with all they had, but specially in giving them food abundantly, and whatsoever they demanded befides. The Spanish lodged this night without the Citie, foratmuch as the fame feemed vnto them firong, and there might be thereby danger,

This Captaine called to him the next morrow the chiefe Lord, with other great Lords, who being come as meske theepe, he apprehended them all, and commanded them to give him certaine lummes of gold. They answering that they had none, forasmuch as the Countrie yeelded none : he commandeth incontinent to burne them aline, without having committed any crime

20 whatsoeuer, and without any other forme of Processe or sentence.

As the Lords of all these Prounces perceived, that they had burned their sourcespee Lords. onely because they gaue them no Gold, they fied all to the Mountaines, commanding their Subices to goe to the Spaniards, and to ferue them as their Lords, but that they should not discount them, nor give them intelligence where they were. With this, loe all the people of the Countrey, presenting them, and protesting to be theirs, and to serue them as their Lords: The Captains made answere that he would not accept of them, but that he would kill them if they told not where were their Lords. The Indians answered, they could not tell ought: but as touching themselves they were content, that they should employ them to their service, with their wives and children : and that they should vie their houses, and that there they might kill, or doe what-30 foeuer them pleated.

It is a wonderfull thing, that the Spaniards went to their Villages and Burrowes, and finding there thefe filly people at their worke, with their wines and children, neither middoubting any thing, they pierced them with their Boars-speares, and hackled them to pieces. They came to one Burrow great and mighty, which held it felle more affired then any other, because of their innocency: whom the Spanib laid defolate in a manner all whole, in the space of two houres. putting to the edge of the fword, children, with women, and aged persons, and all these which could not escape by fleeing.

The Indians aduited be weene them to digge certaine ditches in the middelt of the wayes, to make their Horses tumble into, and piercing their bellies with Pikes sharp led and brent at one 40 end, there bestowed of purpose, and courred over so orderly with greene turfe, that it seemed

there was no fuch matter. There fell in Horses once or twice: for the Spaniards afterwards could beware of them. But now to avenge them, they made a Law, that as many Indians as might bee taken alive, should be flung into the fame pits. Hereupon they cast in women with child, and women new deliuesed of child-birth, and old folke as many as they could come by, entill that the ditches were filled vp. It was a lamentable thing to behold the women with their children flabbed with thefe pickes. All besides, they sue with thrust of Speares, and edge of Sword. They cast of them alfo to fielh fraunching Dogs, which tare them and devoured them. They brent a Lord at a great fire of quicke flames: faying, they would herein doe him honour. And they perfifted in 50 thefe butcheries fo vnnaturall, about feuen yeeres, from the yeere 24. vntill the yeere 21.

The Indians which escaped, with all other of the Countrie seeing all the milehietes of the Spanifb, began to affemble, and put themselves in Armes: whereupon the Spaniards worke great discomfitures and saughters , returning to Guatimala, where they builded a Citie, the which Guatimala de-God of a just judgement hath reversed with three overwhelmings falling all three together: the frequed with one was with water, the other with earth, and the third with stones, of the bignesse of ten or twentie Oxen. By fuch like meanes all the Lords, and the men that were able to beare Armes being flaine: those which remayned, were reduced into the Diabolicall seruntude aforesaid, being made tributary flaues or villaines regardant, but giving for their tribute fonnes and daugha ters, for they will have none other kinde of bond-men. And so the Spaniards sending whole

60 thips laden with them to Pers, to lell them, with their other flaughters, have deftroyed and laid defart an whole Realme, of an hundred leagues square, or aboue, a Countrie the most blessefull, and peopled the most that might be in the world. For the Tyrant himselfe wrote hereof, that it was more peopled then Mexico; and herein he faid the truth. He hath done to death , with Foureor five his conforts and confreres, more then foure or five millions of foules in fifteene or fixteene yeeres millions fluxe

CHAP. 4. Bart, de las Casas bis Booke of Cruelties done in the Indies.

should have of them: in this wife they fent first to summon all the Lords and Noblemen of the Cisie, and of all the places subject vnto the same Citie: who so some as they came to speake with the Captaine of the Spaniards, were incontinent apprehended before that any body might perceive the matter, to be able thereupon to beare tidings thereof vnto others. Then were demanded of them five or fixe thousand Indians, to carry the lodings and carriages of the Spaniards: which Indians came forthwith, and were bestowed into the bale Courts of the Houses. It was a pitifull case to see these poore folke, what time they made them ready to beare the carriages of the Spaniard. They come all naked, only their fecret parts coursed, having every one you their shoulder a Net with a small deale of victuall : they bow themsclues every one, and hold their backes cowreddownelike a fort of the Lambes, prefenting themselves to the Swords: and thus being all affembled in the base Court, together with others, one part of the Spanish all armed befrowe themselves at the gates to hemme them in, whiles the rest put these poore Sheepe to the edge of the Sword and the Speares, in such fort, that there could not escape away one asking them mercy and the fauing of their liues : they found in them no pitie nor compassion any whit at all, but were all he wed in pieces. All the Lords which were about and vinderneath, were all bound, the Captaine commanding them to be brent quicke being bound vnto stakes pitched into the ground. Howbeit one Lord, which might be peraduenture the principall and King of the Countrie faued himfelfe, and caft himfelie with thirtie or fortie other men into a Temple thereby, which was as good vnto them 20

onely person, but that he was cruelly put to death: fauing that after a two or three dayes you might have feene come forth fundry all couered with bloud which had hid and faued themselves under the dead bodies of their fellowes, and now prefenting themielues before the Spaniards, as a Fort, which they call in their Language, Qeme: and there he defended himselfe a good part of the day. But the Spaniards, whose hands nothing can escape specially armed for the warre, cast fire po the Temple, and burned all those which were within.

From Cholula they went to Mexico. The King Motensuma fent to meet them a thousand of presents, and Lords, and people, making ioy and mirth by the way.

After great and abhominable tyrannies committed in the Citie of Mexico, and in other Cities, before related, and the Country, ten, fifteene, and twenty leagues compasse of Mexico: this tyrannie and pestilence advanced it selfe forward, to waste also, infect, and lay desolate the Pronince of Panace. It was a thing to be wondred at of the world, of people that there were, and the spoyles and flaughters there done. Afterward they wasted also after the selfe manner, all the Province of 40 Tritepeke, and the Province of Ipelingo, and the Province of Column: each Province contayning more ground then the Realme of Leon and Castile.

This Captaine tyrant, with this gorgeous and pretended title, dispatched two other Captaines, as very tyrants and farre more cruell, and leffe pitifull then himfelfe, into great Realmes most flourishing, and most sertile, and full of people, to wit, the Realme of Guatimala, which lieth to the Seaward on the South fide, and the same of Naco, and Honduras, otherwise called Guaymura, which coafteth on the Sea on the North lide, confronting and confining the one with the other, three hundred leagues distance from Mexico. He sent the one by Land, and the other by Sea: both the one and the other carried with them a many of troopes to ferue on horsebacke

He which went by Sea, committed exceeding pillings, cruelties, and diforders amongst the people on the Sea-coatt.

The Provinces and Realmes of Naco and Honduras, which refembled a Paradife of pleasures: and were more peopled, frequented, and inhabited, then any Countrey in the world: now of late, wee comming along thereby, have feene them fo dispeopled and destroyed, that who to should fee them, his heart would cleave for forrow, ware hee never so flinty. They have flaine within these eleuen yeeres, more then two millions of soules , having not left in more then an hundred leagues of the Countrey square, but two thousand persons, whom they slav as yet daily in the faid ordinary bondage.

The great tyrant and Captaine, which went to Guatimala (48 hath beene faid, exceeded all) 60 from the Provinces neere to Mexico, (according ashimfelfe wrote in a Letter to the principali Tyrant which had fent him) diffant from the Realme of Guatimals foure hundred leagues (keeping the way by him traced) as he went, flue, robbed, burned and deftroyed all the Country;

The Mexicani

cruclties are

and therefore

here omitted.

whereforeuer he became, under the shadow of title about mentioned, faying; that they should

Shambles of

giuen for a

mans fleib.

This Tyrant had a cuftome, when as he went to make warre vpon any Citie or Prouince: to carrie thither of the Indians already vnder-yoaked, as many as hee could, to make warre vpon the other Indians: and as he gaue vnto a ten or twentie thouland men which hee led along no fuftenance, he allowed them to eate the Indians which they tooke: And so by this meanes hee had in his Campe an ordinary shambles of mans field, where in his presence they killed and rofted children. They killed men onely to have off from them their hands and their feete, which parts they held to be the daintiest morriels.

parts they held to be the daintert mosters.

He was the death of an infinite fort of the Indians in making of flips, the which hee transported after this rate great itore of Artilerie, which heeloded upon the shoulders of these poore to folke going naked: whereby I have seene very many fall down in the high way, by reason of their great burdens. He washed whole houldeds, by taking from the men their wires and daughters: the which afterwards he disperied in gitts to his Mariners and Souldiers to please them withall, who led them along with them in their Nauies. Hee stuffed all the ships with Indians, where they died for thirst and hunger. He made two Nauies, either of a great number of ships, with the which he consumed as with fire and lightning stashing from Heaven all those peoples.

Of new Spaine, and Panuco, and Xalisco.

A Feet the exceeding cruelties and flaughters aforefaid, and the others which I haue omitted, which haue beene executed in the Provinces of New Spains and Passuse: there came to Passuse a nother Tyrant, cruell and volbrideled, in the yetere 1 * 25. Who in committing very many cruelties, and in branding many for flaues, after the manner aforefaid, which were all free, and in fending very many thus laden to Cooks, and Hispanica, where they might best make metchandife of them, he atchieuced the delotation of this Province.

And it hath come to palle in his time, that there hath beene given for one Mare, eight hundred Indians ioules partakers of reason. And this man from this roome was promoted to be Prefident of Mexica, and of all the Province of New Spaine, and there were promoted with him other Tyrants, to the offices of Auditorships: in the which dignities they let forward also this to Countrie into so extreme a desolation, that if God had not kept them by meanes of the resistance of the religious men of Saint Francie Order, and if that there had not been prouded with all speed a Court of Audience, and the Kings Counsell in those parts friend to all verus, they had layd waite all New Spaine, as they have done the Block Niphanola. There was a man, amongst those of the companie of this Captaine, who to the end to encloke a Garden of his, with a wall: kept in his workes eight thousand Indians, without paying them ought, nor giving them to eate, in manner, hat they died, falling downe suddenly, and hee neuer tooke the more thought for the matter.

After that the chiefe Captaine which I spake of, had finished the laying waste of Panues, and that hee understood the newes of the comming of the Kings Court of Audience: hee addied as with himselfe to proceed farther into the innermost parts of the Realme, to fearch where hee might tyrannize at his eafe, and drew by force out of the Pronince of Maxice, fifteen or twentie thousand men, to the end, that they should carrie the loades and carriages of the Spaniards, which went with him, of whom there never returned against two hundred, the others being dead on the high-waves.

He came at the Prouince of Mechnacham, which is distant from Mexico fortie leagues, a Region as bliffefull and full of Inhabitants, as is that of Mexico. The King and Lord of the Countrey went to receive him with an infinite companie of people, which did vnto them a thousand feruices and curtefies. He apprehended him by and by, for that he had the bruit to be very rich of Gold and filuer : and to the end, that he should give him great treasures , he beganne to give 50 him the terments, and put him in a paire of flockes by the feet, his body firetched out, and his hands bound to a stake, he maketh a stashing fire against his feet, and there a boy with a basting fprinkle loked in Oyle in his hand, flood and bafted them a little and a little, to the end to well roft the skinne. There was in one fide of him a cruell man, the which with a Crof-bow bent, aymed right at his heart, on the other fide another which held a Dog fnarling, and leaping up as to runne vpon him, which in leffe then the time of a Credo, had beene able to have torne him in pieces: and thus they tormented him, to the end hee fliould discouer the treasures which they defired, vntill fuch time as a religious man of Saint Francis Order tooke him away from them, notwithstanding that hee died of the same torments. They tormented and slue of this fashion very many of the Lords and Cacikes in these Provinces: to the end that they should give them 60 Gold and Silver

At the tame time a certaine tyrant found, that certaine Indian; had hid their Idols, as their which had neuer beene better influefted by the Spannards of any better God, bee apprehended and detayned priloners the Lords, with I like time a state they would give them their Idols,

CHAP. 4. Bart, de las Calas his Booke of Cruelties done in the Indies, fuppoing all this while they had beene of Gold or of Sidier! how beit they were not fo, wherefore he chattiled them cruelly and vniufly. But to the end he would not remay ne full trace of his fore he chattiled them cruelly and vniufly. But to the end he would not remay ne full trace of his forethe chattiled them cruelly and vniufly and they redeemed them for foch Gold and Silver as they could find, to the end; to working them fore Gold, as they had beene wont to doe aforetime.

This great Captaine paffed farther from Machinabans to the Province of Xalifar, the which Xalifar.

This great Captaine passed farther from Mechiaebam to the Province of Lauge, ene which was all whole most that of the pole, and most happie. Provit is one of the most fertilest and most admirable 'Construe of the Indian, which had Burrowes contayning in a manner scene leagues. As he entred this Countrey, the Lord with the Inhabitaints, according as all the Indians are accused to the Countre of the Mechanist and the Indians are accused to the Countre of the Indians are accused to the Indians and Indians are accused to the Indians are accused to the Indians and being not able to beate their owne children because of tracell and hunger, were taine to cast them from them in the wayes, whereof there died and formation are the Indians and the Indians and the Indians are accused to tracell and hunger, were taine to cast them from them in the wayes, whereof there died an infinite.

An euill Christian taking by force a young Damsell-to abuse her, the mother withstood him?

An euill Christian taking by force a young Damsell-to abuse her, the mother withstood him?

and as shee would have taken her away, the Spaniard drawing his Dagger or Rapier, cut off her hand, and slue the young girle with slashes of his weapons: because shee would not consent to his appetite.

Among t many other things, he cauled vniuftly to be marked for fluers, four ethors and and flue.

Among t many other things, he cauled vniuftly to be marked for fluers, form of a yeere and a halfe old, bundred loules as free as they, men, women, and sucking babes, from of a yeere and a halfe old, vnto three or four eyeeres olds which notwiths drain align fluer or the mixed the mixed of other things that have not been elect downe in writing crise them with an infairte number of other things that have not been elect downe in writing.

ceine them with an innure number or other uning a nan had nothing them aline; and ca-His Scewards flue very many of the Indians, hanging them and burning them aline; and cafling fome vato the Dogs, cutting off their feet, hands, head and tongue, they being in peace; onely to bring them into a learc, to the end they should lerue him

Teis faid of him, that he hath deftroyed and burned in this Realme of Xalifos, eight littindeed 800. Towned 30 Burrowes, which was the cause that the Indians being fallen desperace, and teeing those which destroyed. 30 Burrowes, which was the cause that the Indians being the Melbert, and went into the Mountaines, shiping certaine Spaniands: howbest by good sight. And afterwards because of the wickednessand outrages of other tyrants now being, which passed by that way to destroy other Prominets (that which they call discovering) many of the Indians insembled, fortifying themateluse you certains Rockes. Vpon the which Rotkesthaspunish him made, and yet at this present, and after hoc make so many cruelicies, that they almost made an end of laying desolate all this great Country, slaying an infinite number of people.

of the Realme of Yucatan.

"He yeare one thousand fine hundred twenty and fix, was deputed oner the Realme of Tucatan another caitiffe Gouernour, and that through the lies and falle reports which himfelfe had made vnto the King : in like manner as the other tyrants vntill this prefent, to the end there might be committed vnto them offices and charges, by meanes whereof they might rob at their pleasures. This Realme of Tucatan was full of inhabitants; for that it was a Countrie in euery respect wholesome, and abounding in plentie of victuals, and of fruites more then Mexico; and fingularly exceeded for the abundance of Honie and Waxe there to be found, more then in any quarter of the Indier, which hath beene feene vnto this prefent. It containeth about three hundred leagues compaffe. The people of that Countrie were the most notable of all the In-50 dier, as well in confideration of their policie and prudencie, as for the vprightnesse of their life, verily worthy the training of the knowledge of God : amongit whom there might have beene builded great Cities by the Spanish, in which they might have lived as in an earthly Paradile, if to be they had not made themselves voworthy, because of their exceeding couetousnesse, hard hartednesse, and heinous offences: as also vinworthy they were of other moe blessings a great many, which God had fet open in thele Indies. This tyrant began with three hundred men to make warrevpon these poore innocent people, which were in their houses without hurting any hody : where he flew and ranfacked infinite numbers. Aud for because the Countrey yeeldeth no Gold, for if it had yeelded any, he would have confurmed those fame Indians, in making them to toyle in the Mines; to the end he might make Gold of the bodies and foiles of those for whom 60 Ielus Christ suffered death, he generally made slaues of all those whom he slew not, and returned the Ships that were come thither, vpon the blowing abroad and noyle of the felling of flaues, full of people bartered for Wine, Oyle, Vinegar, powdred Bacons flesh, Garments, Horses, and that that every man had neede of, according to the Captains estimate and judgement. He would let choose amongst an hundred or fittle yong Damosels, bartering some one of the fairest, and of the best complexion, for a Caske of Wine, Oyle, Vineger, or for Porke powdred. And in like manner be would let choose out a young hantome Stripling among it two or three hundred for the foretaid Merchandize. And it bath becare feene, that a youth feeming to bee the Sonne of fome Prince, hath beene hartered for a Cheefe, and an hundred persons for an Horse. Hee comnued in these doings from the yeere twentie fixe, vatill the yeere chirtie three,

CHAP. 4. Bart. de las Casas his Booke of Cruelties done in the Indias

As these Samuards, want with their mad Dogges a foraging by the tracke, and hunting our the Indian men and women : An Indian woman being ficke, and feeing the could not afcape there Dogges, that they fhould not rent her as they did others sibee tooke a chard and hanged her felfa at a beame, having faltened at her foot a child the had of a weere old, and the had no honer done behold thefe Curres, which come and dispatch this infant, howbert that before it died, a Reliant

gious man a Frier baptized it.

When the Spanilb parted out of this Realme, one among to thers faid to a Sonne of a Lord of forms Citie or Province, that he should goe with him : the Boy answered, and faid, he would not for lake his Countrie, The Spannard replied : Goe with me, or elfe I will ent off thine earer. The young Indian perfitted in his hift taying, that he would not forfake his Countrie. The Spansard drawing out his Dagger, cut oil fait one, and then his other eare. The youngman abiding by it fall that he would not leave his Countrie : he mangled off also his Note, with the vppermoft of his line: making no more forepulcatie of the mater, then if he had given him but a philip. This damage ble wetch magnified himselfe, and vaunted him of his doings villanously vinto a reverend Religious person, saying : that hee tooke as much paines as her could, to beget the Indian women in wa great numbers with child, to the end, he might receive the more money for them in felling them great with childe for flaues.

In this Realme, or in one of the Prouinces of New Spaine, a certaine Spaniard went one day with his Dogges on hunting of Venison, or ele Conies, and not finding game, hee minded his Dogges that they should bee hungrie, and tooke a little tweet Babie which hee bereaued the mother of, and cutting off from him the armes and the legges, chopped them in small gobbets, giuing to every Dogge his Liverie or part thereof, by and by after these morfels thus dispatched be caft also the rest of the bodie or the carkasse to all the kenell together.

Being now departed the Realme all the Devillish Tyrants, blinded with the concruspeffeof the riches of Pers, that reverend Father, Frier lames, with foure other Religious of Saint Franch cis, was moved in spirit to goe into this Realme to pacific them, and for to preach to them, and to winne vnto lefus Christ those which might bee remayning of the Butcheries and Tyrannos Murders, which the Spanish had beene per petrating feuen continuall yeeres. And I below that thefe fame were thole Religious perions, the which in the yeere thirtie foure, certaine le diens of the Province of Mexico, leading before them Meffengers in their behalfe, requested them that they would come into their Countrie, to give them knowledge of that one only God, who is God, and very Lord of all the wolld: according in the end to admit them with condition, that they should enter thems lues alone, and not the Spaniards with them, that which the Religious promifed them. For it was permitted them, yea commanded them fo to doe, by the Vice-toy of New Spaine, and that there should bee no kind of diff leafure bee done vnto them by the Spaine miards. The Religious men preached voto them the Got pell of Christ, as they are accustomed to doe, and as had beene the holy intention of the Kings of Caffile, that should have beene done. Howbeit, that the Spaniards in all the feuen yeares i pace past, had neuer given them any fuch notice of the truth of the Golpell, or so much as that there was any other King fauing himselie, that fo tyrannized over them, and destroyed them. By these meanes of the Religious, after the end of fortie dayes that they had preached vnto them, the Lords of the Countrie brought vnto them, and put into their hands their Idols, to the end that they should burne them. Afterallo they brought vnto them their young children, that they flould catechife them, whom they lout as the Apple of their eye. They made for them also Churches, and Temples, and houses. Moreouer, some other Proninces sent, and insited them, to the end that they might come to them al- 50 fo, to preach, and give them the vnderstanding of God, and of him whom they faid to beethe great King of Castule. And being perswaded and induced by the Religious, and did a thing which neuer yet before hath beene done in the lades. Twelve or fifteene Lords, which had very many fubiccts and great dominion, affembling enery one for his owne part his people, and taking their aduste and confent, of their owne voluntarie motion, yeelded themselves to the subjection, and tobe under the domination of the Kings of Caftile: admitting the Emperour as King of Spaint, for their Liege Souereigne. Whereof also they made certaine Instruments , by them configned, which I keepe in my charge, together with the Testimonies thereunto of the said Religious.

The Indians being thus onward in the way of the faith, with the great toy, and good hore of 60 the Religious Brethren, that they should be able to winne vnto Iesus Christ all the people of the Realme that were the refidue, being but a small number of the flaughters, and wicked wars Falfed : There entred at a certaine Coaft, eighteene Spaniards Tyrants on horiebacke, and twelve on foor, driving with them great loades of Idols, which they had taken in the other Prounces of the Indians. The Captaine of those thirtie Spaniards called vnto him a Lord of the Countrie therabouts as they were entred, and commandeth him to take those Idols, and to differte them throughout all his Countrie, felling every Idoll for an Indian man, or an Indian woman, to make flaurs of them, with threatning them, that if he did not doe it, he would bid them battaile. That faid Lord being forced by feare, distributed those Idols throughout all the Countrie, and commanded all his fubicets, that they should take them to adore them, and that they should returne in exchange of that ware Indies and Indiffes tomake flaues of. The Indians beeing affraid. those which had two chldren, gaue him one, and hee that had three gaue him two. This was the end of this Sacrilegious Trafficke : and thus was this Lord or Cacique, faine to content thele 10 Spaniards : I hay not Christians.

One of their abominable Chafferers, named lobu Garcia, being ficke, and neere his death, had under his bed to packs of Idols, and commanded his Indif Maid that ferued him, to looke to it that the made not away his Idols, that there were for Murlimens, for they were good ftuffe; and that making vent of them, thee thould not take leffe then a flaue a piece for one of them with another : and in fine, with this his Testament and last Will thus denised, the Catiffe died.

The Indians perceiuing that, that which the Religious had promifed them, was as good as nothing : namely, that the Spaniards should not enter those Prouinces : and seeing the Spaniards which had laded thither Idols from other places, there to make vent of them, they having put all their Idols afore into the hands of the Friars, to the end they should bee burned, and to the end 20 the true God should be by them adored, all the Country was in a mutinie, and a rage against the Religious Friars, and the Indians comming vnto them, fay : Why bane you led unto us, in promifing us by deceits that there should not enter any Spaniards into these Countries? And why hame you burns our gods, feeing the Spaniards doe bring viother Gods from other Nations? Were not our Gods as good, as the Gods of other Proninces ? The Friars pacified them in the best manner that they could not knowing what to answere them : and went to seeke out those thirty Spaniards, to whom they declared the cuill which they had done, praying them to get them thence : which the Spaniards would not doe, but faid to the Indians, that those Religious men had caused them to come thither themselves of their owne accord, which was rightly an extreme malicious nesses. In the end the Indians deliberated to kill the Religious men: By occasion whereof, the Friers fled away 30 in a night, having advertilement of the cale by some of the Indians.

Of the Progince of Saint Marcha.

He Province of Saint Martha, was a Countrie where the Spaniards gathered Gold in all I plentie: the Land being with the Regions adiacene very rich, and the people industrious to draw out the Gold. Wherefore alto infinite Tyrants have made thither continually with their thips, ouer-running, and ranging along the Country, killing and spoyling those the Inhabitants. and ramping from them that gold that they had, with speedie returne ever to their thips, which went and came oftentimes. And so wrought they in those Provinces great wasts and slaughan ters, and cruelties horrible, and that most commonly on the Sea-coast, and certaine leagues within the Country. At what time there went Span b Tyrants to inhabite there. And for as much as the Country was exceeding rich as hath beene faid, there ever fucceeded Captaines one in anothers roome, every one more cruell then other : in fuch fore that it fremed that every one inforced himselfe, for the masterie in doing of euils. The yeere 1529, there went a great Tyrant, very resolute, with great troupes; but without any feare of God, or compassion of the nature of man, who wrought such waites and slaughters to great, that he exceeded all others that had gone before him, himfelfe robbing for the space of sixe or seven yeeres that he lived, great Treafures : after being deceased without confession, and fled from the place of his residence ; there succeeded him other murdering Tyrants and Theeues, which made an end of the rest of the people : that from the yeere 1 , 29. vnto this day, they have reduced into a Wilderneffe in those same go quarters more then 400. leagues of Land, which was no leffe peopled then the other Countries which we have spoken of,

Verily if I had to make a bed-roll of the Vngraciousnesses, of the Slaughters, of the Desolations, of the Iniquities, of the Violencies, of the Massacres, and other great Infolencies which the Spaniards have done, and committed in those Provinces of Saint Marsha, against God, the King, and against those innocent Nations : I should write an Historie very ample. But that may bedone if God spare me lite, hereafter in his good time tonely I will fet downe a few words of that which was written in a Letter by a Bishop of this Prounce, to the King our Souereigne : and the Letter beareth date the twentieth of May, 1541. The which Bishop amongst other

61 Words Speaketh thus : I fay , facred Maustie, that the way to redresse this Countrie, is that his Ma- Bishop of S. sestie deliner benout of the power of Stepfathers, and give unto her an hulb and which may intreate her Mathas Letas is reason, and ascording as spee deserveth: otherwise, I am surchereaster as the Tyrants which now tot to Charles base the government, doe torment and tormorle ber, he will soone take an end, Oc. And a little below the fith. be faith : Whereby, your Missite Shall know electely, how those which gonerne in those quarters due de-

(erue to be dismounted, and deposed from their gonernment, to the end, that the Common-weales may be relieued. That if that be not done, in mine aduise, they can never be cured of their diseases. His Matestie Ball understand moreover, that in those Regions, there are not any Christians but Denils , that there are no Sernants of God and the King, but Trastors to the flate, and their King. And in trush the greatest incumbrance that I find in reducing the Indians, that are in warre, and to set them at peace. too greatest incummerance tout t peace to the knowledge of our faith, is unnaturall and cruell entreath. which they that are in peace receive of the Spanish, being so deeply altered, and launced, that they have mothing in more hatred and borror, then the name of Christians, the which in all these Countries ther call in their Language, Yares, that is to fay, Deuils. For the afts which they committed here, are neither of Christians, nor of men which have the vie of reason: but of Deuils, Whereof it commethes 19 passe, that the Indies which dae see these behaviours to be generally so farre oftranged from all humanite, paye, som soe structure, as ned in the heads as in the members: they esteeme, that the Christians do bald these things for a Law, and that their God, and their King are the Authors thereof. And to endemour to per (wade them otherwise, were to endeasour in vaine, and to minister unto them the more ample matter, to deride and forme lesiss Christ and his Law. The Indians that are in war, feeing the intreatie wied toward the Indians that are in peace: would choose rather to die once for all, then to endure sundrie deaths, beeing under the command of the Spanish. I know this by experience, most vittorions

Cetar, Or.

He calleth the Indians in warre, those which faued themselves by flying into the Mountaines to from the fluighters of the mischieuous Spaniards. And hee calleth the Indians in peace, those to which after having loft an infinite of their people, by the Maffacres , have beene thralled into the Tyrannicall and horrible seruitude aforesaid, and whereof in the end they haue beene fined out, desolated, and slaine, as appeareth by that which hath beene faid by the Bishoppe, which notwithstanding speaketh but little, in comparison of that which they have fuffered.

The Indians in that Countrie have accustomed to say, if when they are travelled and driven wo the Mountaines loden, they happen to fall downe, and to faint for feeblenesse, and for paine: for at that time they lay on voon them blowes with their feet and with their flaues, and they breake their teeth with the pummels of their Swords, to make them rife, and march on without taking of breath, with these words; Out open thee, what a Villaine are thou? they (Ifay) the Indians, for their parts are wont to fay, I can no more: kill me here right. I doe defire to die heere : and this they say with great fighes, and being scarce able to speake, for having ther heart drawne together, declaring a great anguish and dolour.

of the Province of Carthagene.

His Province of Carthagene, is situate under, and a fiftie leagues distant from the same of Saint Martha, towards the West, confining with the Projince of Cen, vnto the Gulph of Araba: which are a hundred leagues all along the Sea-side, and is a great Countrie within Land towards the South. Their Prouinces ince the yeere 1498. or ninetic nine, vis.) till now have beene euil entreated , martyred , massacred , desolated like vnto that of Saint Martha.

of the Coast of Pearles, and of Paria, and of the Ile of the Trinitie.

Rom the Coaft of Paris, vnto the Gulfe of Parisfacia, without forth, which are two hundred leagues: the Spanish have wrought great and strange destructions, rioting you that people, and taking aline as many as they could, to the end they might fell them for flaves: and oftentimes making them prifoners against the affortance and the promile of friendship made vn-to them. It cannot be well told, nor particularly exprest, the stundie kindes and greinous vexations, wrongs, hurts, and spoiles, which those people, indured at the Spaniards hands, from the yeere 1510. vntill this present. I will onely rehearse two or three acts, by the which it may be judged of the rest, innumerable and excessive, and worthy all torments and fire.

In the Ile of the Trinute, which is farre greater and more fertile then the Ile of Sicile, and ioyneth with the firme Land of the Coast of Paria, and where the people are the best disposed, and most enclined to vertue in their kind, of all the Indians, as they went, there a Captaine Rouer in the yere, 13 to accompanied with fixtie or feuentic other pette Theuses well appointed they published among the Indians by Proclamations, and other publishe Summons, that they should come and dwell and line with them in that Ile. The Indians received them as their owner bowels and babes : and as well the Lords as Subiects ferued them with exceeding readingle, 42 bringing them to eate from day to day, as much as might fuffice to feed, as many moe people. For this is the liberalitie of all these Indians of the new World, to bestow on the Spaniar droi all that they have in great abundance.

The Spanish build a great house of Timber in the which the Indians should dwell alrogether.

for the Spanish would have it so, that there should bee one only house for all, and no more to compaffe that, which they had alreadie premeditate to doe, and did it. When they laid the Thatch you the binding stages or sparres, and had alreadie couered to the height of two mens length, to the end that those that were within might not see those that were without, vnder colour to halten forward the worke, that it might bee the fooner dispatched, they fet a great number of people within, the Spaniards deciding themselves, the one part of them being beflowed without, compatting the house round about with their weapons, because of those that might get forth, the other part of them presse into the house : Thus laving hands on their Swords, they beganne to threaten the Indians naked as they were, to kill them if they did to firre, and then bound them. And those which fled they hewed them in pieces : Howbeit some of the Indians which fled, both of the hurt and not hurt, with others that had not come within the house, tooke their Bowes and Arrowes and assembled themselves in another house, about an hundred or two hundred persons : And as they kept the gate, the Spaniards fet fire on the house. and burned them aliue. After with their purchale, which might bee of an hundred or fourescore persons of them which they had bound they get them to the Ile of Saint Ishn, where they fold the one moitie, and thence to the Ile of Hispaniola: where they fold the other moitie. As Freprehended the Captaine for this notable Treason, at the same time, and at the samelle of Saint lobn, he made an answere: Sir, quiet your selfe for that matter. So have they commanded me to doe, and given me instruction which fent me : that if I could not take them by warre, 20 I should take them under countenance and colour of peace. And in truth the Captaine told mee that in all his life, he neuer had found Father nor Mother, but in this Ile of Trimite, in respect of the friendly cour elies the Indians had shewed him.

At another time, the Religious Friars of Saint Dominickes Order, beeing determined to goe preach, they received them as Angels comne from Heaven; and heard with great affection, attention, and willingn-fle fuch words as the Religious at that time were able to give them to vnderstand, more by lignes then otherwise, for they knew not the tongue. It came to passe that there arrived there another thip, after that the thip in which the Religious men came was departed thence, and the Spanish in this Veffell, keeping their Deuillish cultome, by suttletie without the knowlede of the Religious, carried away the Lord of the Countrie called Alfonfo: were it 30 that Friars had given him this name, or else others. For the Indians love and defire to beare the name of the Christians, defiring incontinent that it may be given them even before they know any thing, that they may be baptized. They induced fraudulently this Don Alfon fo to come aboord their ship with the Ladie his wife, and other persons, making semblance to goe about to feath them. In the end there entred seventeene persons, together with the Lord and his Ladie: the Lord truiting that the Religious persons being entred into his Countrie, would keepe the Spaniards from doing any wrong : for otherwise hee would never have put himselfe in the hands of the Spanish. The Indians therefore thus being in the ship, the traiterous Spaniards hoised failes, and away they went to Hilbaniela with them, there felling them for flaues. All the Countrie feeing that their Lord and Ladie were carried away, they runne to the Religious men, purpo-40 fing to kill them. The poore men appealed the Indians in the best manner they could, saying that they would write to them at Hilp aniels by the first ship that went and would take such care and order in the matter, that their Souereigne should bee restored them againe with those that were in his company. God fent immediately a ship thither, and they wrote to the Spanish Relia gious men that were in the Ile of Hispaniola. They cry out, and call Heauen and Earth witnesse had promifed the Iudians of the Countrie, that their Lord Don Alfonso, with others should come home with the rest within foure moneths, seeing that they came not neither in foure 50 nor eight made themselues readie to the death, and to give their life, which they had gaged before they came out of Spaine, if neede should bee, and in that fore the Indians tooke vengeance on them in killing them infilly, notwithstanding that they were innocent: Spanish Friera for because that they thought, that the Religious men had beene the occasion of this killed for o-

against them, both first, and fundrie times after: But the Iudges of the audience, would neuer

give them audience to doe them Iuftice, for because themselves had part in the bootie of the In. dians, which the Tyrants had to against all right and reason taken. The two Religious men, which Treaton. Another time, by reason of the great Tyrannies and execrable acts of the curied ones, bearing the name of Christians, the Indians flue other two Religious men of Saint Dominickes Order, and one of Saint Francis. Whereof I can be a good witnesse for that I escaped at the time miraculously from the same death, of the which it should be a hard matter to intreat, and would be to amaze men, by reason of the grieuousnesse and horriblenesse of the case. Wherefore I will 60 not lay it abroad (for being too tesious) vitill his time, and at the day of judgement it shall bee more euident, when God thall take vengeance of the Theeueries so horrible and to abominable as are done by those which beare the name of Christians against the Indians.

Another time in those Provinces at the Cape of the Codera, (as they call it) there was a Towns, the Lord whereof was named Higneroto a name either proper to the person, or it may Qqqqqq 2 be common to the Lords of the place. This Lord was so bounteous, and his people so vertices and feruiceable, that as many Spaniards as came thither by fhip, they found there good entertainment, meate, lodging, all cheering, and refreshing. This faid Lord had also delivered many from death of those which were fled thither out of other Prouinces, where they had rioted and tyrannized, and come thither ficke, and halre dead for hunger, whom they refreshed, and afterward fent them away fate, to the Ile of Pearles, where there were Spansards, and might have flaine them if he had would, without that euer any should have knowne it. And shortly to fav the Spanish did call the Subjects of Higurrote, the House and Harbour of every body. A Catiffe Tyrant adulted himselfe to out-rage that people also, when as they thought themselves fure enough : and getting him to a ship, he had there innited a great number of people to come a la boord her as they were accultomed to doe, and to trust the Spanards. A great number of people being entred into her, men, women, and children, hee hoyled failes, and went to the Ile of Saint Jahn, where he fold them all for flaues. I came at the fame instant to the Ile of Saine John, and I faw the Tyrant, and understood what he had done. He had destroyed all that Townthin; whereby he did great harme to all other his fellow Tyrants, wonted to rob, and roue all along those Coasts, intomuch as they had in abomination this act to hideous, being bereft thereby of their Harbour, and house of retire, as ordinary and familiar viito them as it had beene their owne home and house.

Two Millions of foliacin-

They have fingled out at times from all this Coaft, the which was very well peopled, vnto the Iles of Saint John and Hispaniola, aboue two Millions of foules, feifed vpon by their purchases in 20 threning and robbing : which also every one of them they have flaine not long after, by thrufling them into the Minerals and other tormoiles, bendes the great numbers there were therealreadie before time, as we have abouefaid. It is a tried case, that they never convey away their shippings of Indians so robbed and purchafed as I have laid, but that they cast the third part into the Sea, besides those which they slay, fage at Sea,

when they will fort them to themselves for their chaffer. The cause is, that when as they will by all meanes attaine to the end which they have proposed to themselves: they have need of a great number of people, for to draw a great deale of money, according to the quantitie of the flanes; and they prepare but a very small deale of sustenance and water, to serue but a few perfons ; to the end that those Tyrants whom they cal Purneyours of the Prips should not spend them 30 much. And there is but even fearfe enough, faue to ferue the Spaniards turne which goe a roung and robbing : and there is alwaies wanting for the poore Indians. Wherefore also they die for hunger and thirst : and then there is none other remedie but to east them ouer the boord into the Sea. And verily a man among them did tell me, that from the Ile of Lucasos, where had been wrought great flaughters in this manner, vnto the I fle of Hilpaniola, which are fixtie or feuentie leagues there trended a ship all alongst, without that it had enther Compasse or Mariners Card being guided onely by the tracke of dead Indians carkasses floating upon the Seas, of them which had bin cast in. And after they be landed in the Ile, whither they bring them to make sale of them it is to make a heart to yearne of whofosuer, have he never fo lit le compation to behold them naked and familhed, fall downe and faint for hunger and thirst, women, and aged men, and 40

Manner of tharing.

> Afterwards they soone after separate them, as it were Lambes, the fathers from the children, and the wives from the husbands, in making troupes of them of ten or twentie persons, and so cast lots on them, to the end, thole Purneyours should take their share, which are those who doe rigge and furnish two or three ships for the Nauie of those Tyrants, seasing upon all they come by, and pulling the poore men out of their owne housen. And looke when the lot falleth upon the flocke where there were among them any old or ficke person, the Tyrant to whom the same the north white the Denil take the old Graybeard, why does thou give him mee, to the end I should goe burie him? And this sicke Rasad, what have I to doe that hee should fall out to my let: 10 (0)

the end, I (bould be his Physician to cure him? The tyrannie which the Spanish exercise ouer the Indians, to fish for Pearles, is one of the cruelleft things that is in the World. There is no hell in this life, nor other desperate state in this Pearle-fifting. World, that may be compared vnto it: although that the Trade of Gold finding, be in his kind, very grieuous, and very milerable. They let them into the Sea, three, foure, or fine fathome forth downeright under water, from the morning vatill Sun-fet, where they are continually flitting without flint, to plucke Oyfters, in the which are engendred the Pearles. They lurge vp aboue the waters, with a Net full of Oysters to take breath : where standeth readic a Specific Tormentor, in a little Cocke Boate, or a Brigantine, and if the poore wretches flay neuer johttle while to rest themselves t they all to be buffer them with their fists, and draw them by the haire into the water to returne to their fifthing. Their fullenance is fifth, and the fame very fifther the fame very fifth for the fame very fifth for the fame very fifth for the fame very fifther and the fame very fifther an which containeth the Pearles, and the bread Cacabi, or some Maiz, which are the kinds of bread of that Countrie : the one of very slender nourishment, the other is not easie to bee made into bread, of the which also, they neuer gue them their belly full. The beds that they lodge them in a nights, is to fet them by the heeles, their bodies recovling on the cold ground, in a paire of flockes for feare of running away. Sometimes they are drowned in the Sea, and at their fifthing and travell picking of Pearles, and never rife vp againe about the water; because the * Bunches * Sharker and whirlepooles doe kill them and eate them.

It is impossible, that men should be able to live any long season wnder the water without taking breath, the continual cold piercing them, and to they die commonly, parbraking of bloud at the mouth, and of the bloudy fluxe, caufed by the cold. Their haires, which by nature are cole blacke, alter and become after a branded ruffet, like to the haires of the Sea-welues. The Salta peter breaketh out of their fhoulders, in fuch fort, that they feeme to bee a kinde of monfters in the thane of men, or elfe fome other kinde of men. They dispatched in ridding about this in-10 fapportable travell, or rather to speake rightly, this devilish torment, all the Lucatan Indiani which were in the les, having favoured this gaines, and every Indian was worth white them a fittie, or an hundred Cattillans. They made an open Marc of them, notwithflanding it were inhibited them, by the Magistrate otherwise vimercifull : for the Lucagens were good swime more. They also, about their things have flaine a number of the people of other Provinces.

of the River Yuia pari.

Here runneth through the Province of Paris, a River named Tais Pari, more then two hundred leagues within land from the head. Thereentred the fame River, an volucky tyrant, & 20 orest many leagues voward, in the years 1 529, with four hundred men, or more a which there wrought great flaughters, burning alive, and putting to the edge of the tword, an infinite fort of Indians, which were in their lands and houses, doing hurt to no creature, and therefore secures and miftrulting nothing.

In the end hee died an evill death, and his Nauie was disparaged : albeit that other tyrants there were which succeeded him in his mischieuousnesses and tyrannies; and wer at this day this ther they goe, destroying, and flaying, and plunging into Hell the toules for whom the Sonne of God fhed his bloud.

Of the Realme of Venefuela.

He yeere 1 c26, the King our Soueraigne, being induced by finisher informations and per-I (wations damageable to the State, as the Spaniards have alwaies pained themfelues to conseale from his Maiette the damages and di honours which Gol and the foules of men, and his State doeth receive in the Indies: granted and committed a great R. alme, greater then all Spaine (Venefuela, with the government and entire jurifdiction) vnto certaine Dutch Merchants, with certaine capitulations and conventions accorded betweene them.

Thefefame entring the Countrey with three hundred men : they found the people very amiable, and meeke as Lambes, as they are all in those parts of the Indies, vntill the Spanish doe outrage them. These set upon them without comparison a great deale more cruelly, hen any of the other tyrants, of the which wee have spoken before: shewing themselves more vanaturall and fierce, then raging Tigres, or Wolues, or ramping Lions. There have layd defolate and deffroyed more then foure hundred leagues of most terrile land, and therein of Prounces exceeding and wonderfull, faire Valleyes to the breadth of forty leagues, and Bournes very great, full of people and of Gold. They hau: flaine, and wholly discomfitted great and divers Nations, fo farre forth as to abolish the Languages wonted to bee spoken, not leaving alive that could skill of them: valeffe some one or other, who had hid themselves in the caues and bowels of the earth, ficeing the dint of the (word, fo raging and plaguing. They have flaine destroyed, and tent to Hell by divers and strange manners of cruelties and vagodlinesies, more (I suppose) then foure or fine millions of foules : and yet at this prefent they ceaffe not to doe the tame by in- Foure or fine 50 finite outrages, spoyles and slaughters, which they have committed, and doe commit daily vnto in Venetuela.

Tuey tooke the Lord Soueraigne of all the Province, without all cause, onely to bereaue him of his Gold, giving him also the torture: which Lord vinbound himselfe, and eleaped from them into the Mountaines, wherefore also the Subjects rose, and were in a mutinie, hiding themselves vpon the Mountaines, amongst the hedges and bushes. The Spaniards make after to chafe them, and having found them, commit cruell maffacres, and as many as they take aline, they fell them in port fale for flaues. In Jiuers Prouinces, yea in all where they became before that they tooke the Soueraigne Lord, the Indians went to receive them with longs, and dances, and with prefents of Gold in great quantitie. The payment made them, was, to bee put to the edge of the o fword, and hewen in pieces. One time, as they went to receiue the Spanifo in the fashion aboutfaid : the Dutch Captaine tyrant caufed to bee put in a thatched house a great number of people, and hakled in pieces. And being on high, neere the top of the house, certaine beames, which divers had got voon, avoyding the bloudy hands and swords of those people (O mercileffe beaits) the deutlish man, fent to put to fire, whereby as many as there were, were burned aline. By this meanes the Countrie remayned very defart, the people fleeing into the Mountaines, where they hoped to faue themfelues.

Qqqqqq 3

They came into another great Province, in the confines of the Province and Realme of Saint Martha, where they found the Indians peaceable in their Burroughs, and in their houses, doing their bulinelle: they continued a long time with them, eating their ftore, and the Indians ferued them, as if they had to receive of them their life and fafeguard, supporting their continual oppreffions, and vivall outragiousnelles, which are intolerable : besides that one Spanis glutton, eateth more in one day, then would suffice an whole houshold of more then ten Indians. They gave them at that time, a great quantitie of Gold, of their owne good-will, over and befides, other feruices innumerable, which they did voto them. At the end as thefe tyrants would in depart the place, they aduised to pay them for their lodging, in this manner.

The Almaine tyrant Gouernour, commanded to take fuch Indians as they could, with their wives and children, and that they should shut them vp within an inclosure, lettingthem know. that who so would come forth, and be let goe free, that he should redeeme himselte at the pleafure of the vniuft Gouernour: in giving fo much Gold for himfelfe, fo much for his wife, and to much for every poll of his children. And yet to prefle them the more, he commanded to give them nothing to eate, witill fuch time as they had performed the quantitie of Gold inflicted them for their ranfome. Many fent to their houses for Gold, and bought out themselves as they were able, and those same were deliuered, and went abroad about their businesse to get their liuing. The tyrant fent certaine Spanish thieues and robbers, to goe take them against he second 20 time, after they had beene redeemed. They are carried to the percloie, and there wrung with hunger and thirth, to the end, that they should yet once againe pay for their freedome, And there were many among it them, which were taken and rantomed two or three fundry times. Others which had not to give, for because they had all they had, hee let them within the toyle die for hunger. And in this manner hath beene destroyed a Province very rich of people and gold, the which hath a Vale or Bourne of fourtie leagues, where hath beene brent a Burrough of the receit of a thouland housholds.

This Tyrant resolued with himselfe to pierce farther into the Countrey, with a great defire to discouer on that side, that Hill of Pers. By occasion of which accursed Voyage both hee and others carried forth with them, Indians infinite, loden with two or three quintals 30 weight, and being enchained. If any were weake and weary, fainting for hunger, or travelling, they cut incontinent his head off euen with the collar of the chaine that yoked them: because they should not need to vnhamper the others that went with the same collars about their neckes, and fo tumbled the head on the one fide, and the body on the other. And the lode of him that had so fayled was distributed and bestowed upon others. To tell of the Prounces, which hee hath layed defart, and the Townes and places which hee hath brent, for all the houles are thatched, and to number the Nations which hee hath slaine, and the cruelties, and murders particular, which hee had committed by the way, it would bee a thing fearfe credible: howbeit very true and wonderfull. In this same very course and steppes marched sithence the other tyrants, who came from the faid Venefuela, and others of the Province of Saint Marha, 40 with the felfe fame holy intention to discouer the same sacred golden Palace of Perw: and found the whole Countrie in length more then two hundred leagues fo burned, dispeopled, and spoyled, having beene before most notably peopled, and most fertile, as hath beene faid, that themfelues as very tyrants and fauage beafts as they were, wondered and itood aftonished to see the trackes of the destructions so lamentable, wheresoeuer he had passed.

All these things have beene given in eurolence with the depositions of many witnesses the Attorney of the Councell of the Indies, and the euidences are kept amongst the Records of the fame Councell: and yet have they never burnt alive, any of those execrable tyrants. Those Prouinces of Venesucla with the others which they have laid waste, and dispeopled more then fourchundred leagues forthright, as hath beene faid, is a region the most blissefull, and the richest 30 of Gold, and was the best peopled of any in the world : in such fort, that they have diffurned from the Kings Coffers, and occasioned the lose in this Realme of about two millions of sent, within feuenteene yeeres fithence by past, that these enemies of God and the King have begunne to deltroy it : neither is there any hope that ever those losses will be repaired.

These seuenteene yeeres they have lent by Sea a great number of ships loden and stuffed with Indians, to make file of them as flaues at Saint Marsha, at the lles of Hiff aniola, and of Iamanes, and at Saint lebus Ile, moe then one million: and doe fend daily, as now this yeere 1542, the Court of the Audience Royall not withfranding established, for, and at Hiff aniela, right well iesing all this, and diffimuling to fee it, yea, fauouring and fupporting all the matter: as likewife they have had their eyes blinded at all the other tyrannies and ranlackings infinite, which have 60 beene done in all this coaft of the Firme land which are about four hundred leagues, the which hausbeene and now are under their ium diction, like unto Venefuela, and Saint Marsha: all which the faid Court might very well have empeached and remedied.

CHAP. 4. Bart. de las Casas his Booke of Cruelties done in the Indies.

Of the Proninces of the firme land, or quarter that is called Florida.

TNto these Provinces went three tyrants at three divers times fince the yeere 1510. or 1511. Lift there. Atthere to put in vre the acts which others, and two of them from among themselves have com- ter firm Lucas I there to put in vie the acts which others, and two of them to dish degrees, in no respect conmitted in other perions, higher then their ments in the Common-wealth could conceine, with Pampbilo de the bloud and destruction or their neighbours: and they are dead all three of an euill death, and Normace, with their houses likewile have beene destroyed with them, the which they had builded in times past. 400. And their nomes income mankind, as I can be a fufficient witheffe of all three, and their memory is hairthly Ferding with the bloud of mankind, as I can be a fufficient witheffe of all three, and their memory is nasido de soio now abolished from of the face of the earth, as if they had neuer beene in this world.

The fourth tyrant, that came last in the yeere 1538, cunningly adulted, and being fully fur- fome fay, and nished; it is three yeeressince there is no tidings concerning him. Sure he is one of the notori- they which is, oufest and beit experimented amongst them that have done the most hurts, mischieues, and de-leift, 600 enfructions in my Realmes with their conforts: wherefore I beleeue that God hath given him tied Florida, like end vnto the others.

of the River of La Plata, that is to fay, Of Silver.

20 C Ithence the yeere, one thousand five hundred, and two or three and twenty : certaine Cap-Draines made three or foure Voyages vp the River of Plata, where there are great Provinces Secheforein and Realmes, and Nations well ordered and endued with understanding. In generall wee vn- schmidtle derftood, that they have made there great butcheries and inuafions: but like as this Countey is farre discoasted from the Indies most samous, so we are not able, to quote the notablest points in particular.

Of the mighty Realmes, and large Provinces of Peru.

TN the years 1521, went another great tyrant with certaineother conforts, to the Realmes of 1 Pers, where entring with the fame title and intention, and with the fame proceedings as all the rest before gone, for a smuch as he was one of them, which had of long time been exercised in all kindes of cruelties and murders, which had beene wrought in the firme land, fithence the yeere 1510. hee tooke encouragement to accrue in cruelties, murders, and robberies: being 2 man without loyaltie and truth, laying wife Cities and Countries, bringing them to nought, and etterly undoing them by flaying the Inhabitairts, and being the cause of all the euils, which enfued in that Countrie.

He flue and laid waste at his first arrurall with a mischiese certaine boroughes, from whom he pillaged a great quantitie of Gold. In an Iland neere to the fame Prouinces, named Pagna, well peopled and plealant, the Lord thereof with his people received them as it had beene Angels 40 from heaven: and ix moneths after, when as the Spanish had eaten vp all their provision: They discouered also vnto them the corne which they kept vnder ground, for themselues, their wives. and their children, against a dry time and barren : making them offer of all, with trees plentitult to spend and eate at their pleasure. The recompence in the end which they made them, was to put to the edge of the Sword and Lance, a great quantitie of those people. And those whom they could take aliue, they made flives : with other cruelties great and notable which they committed, dispeopled as it were all that Ile.

From thence they make to the Prouince of Tumbala, which is in the firme land, where they flay and destroy as many as they could come by. And because all the people were fled as affrighted by their horrible acts, they faid that they made an infurrection, and rebelled against the King of Spaine. This tyrant had this policie, and kept this order of proceeding, that vnto all to those whom he tooke, or voto others which presented him with Gold and Silver, or other things which they had : he commanded them to bring more, vntill fuch time as he perceived that either they had no more, or that they brought him no more. And then he would fay, that he accepted them for the vaffals and lieges of the King of Spaine, and made much of them : and would cause it to be proclaimed at found of two Trumpets, that from thenceforth they would take them no more, and that they would doe them no manner harme at all: fetting it downe for good ande lawfull, all whatioeuer he had robbed from them.

A few dayes after the King and Emperour of those Realmes, named Atabaliba, came accompanied with a number of naked people, bearing their ridiculous armour, not knowing neither 63 how Swords did carue, nor Speares did pierce, nor Horles did run, nor who or what were the Spaniards. Hee commeth to the place where they were, laying: Where are these Spaniards? Let them come, I will not stirre a foote, till they satisfie me for my Subjects whom they have flaine, and my boroughs which they have dispeopled, and for my wealth, which they have bereaued me.

Iuan Ponce de men were all vou baue betore. Ot Soto An. 1542, when

The Spaniards fet against him, and flew an infinite fort of his people: they tooke him also in person, who came carried in a Litter borne vpon mens shoulders. They treate with him, to the Fifteene Milli- end that he should ransome himselfe. The King offereth to performe foure millions of Castillane. and performeth fifteene, they promife to release him: notwithstanding in the end, keeping nor Atsballpas ran- faith nor truth (as they neuer kept any in the Indies, vnto the Indians) they laid to his charge altogether vntruely, that by his commandement the people affembled. The King answered, that in all the Countrie there moved not a leafe of a tree, without his good will : that if there affem. bled any people, they were to beleeue that it was by his commandement, and as touching himfelfethat he was prisoner, and they might slay him.

All this notwithstanding, they condemned him to be burnt aline : but at the request of some 10 certaine, the Captaine caused him to be strangled; and being strangled, hee was burned. This King yn lerstanding his sentence, faid : Wherefore will you burne we? What trespaffe baue I done pee? Did not you promise me to set me at libertie, if I gave you the Gold? And have I not perfor. med more then I promised? Seeing you needes will have it so, send me to your King of Spaine: fpeaking other things, to the great confusion and detestation of the great wrongfulnesse that the Spaniards vied, whom in the end they burned. Here let be confidered the right and title of this warfare, the imprisonment of this Prince, the sentence, and the execution of his death, and the conficience, whereby they possesse great treasures, as indeede they have robbed in those Realmes from this King and other feuerall Lords infinite.

As touching the innumerable cruelcies, and notable, for the mischiefes and enormities withall 20 committed in the rooting out of those peoples by them, who call themselves Christians: I will here rehearfe some certaine, the which a Frier of Saint Francis order saw at the beginning, and the same certified voder his name and signe: sending them into all those quarters, and amongst others into this Realme of Castile, whereof Iretaine a Copie in my keeping, in the which it is

Teftimony of Frier Marke touching Pi-2079 and the

" A people of those parte,

mer Ilands.

I Frier Marke, of the order of Saint Francis, commissivic oner the other Friers of the same Order in the Proninces of Peru, and who was one of the first religious men, which entred into the faid Proninces with the Spaniards : doe fay, bearing true testimonie of certaine things, the which I have seene with mine Spaniorasmuch eyes in that Countrie, namely, concerning the entreatie and conquests made oner the natural inhabitants first entred Per of the Countrie: first of all I am an ere witneffe, and have certaine knowledge, that those Indians of Peru, W are a people the most kinde bearted that hath beene feene among all the Indians, being courteous in conmer fation, and friendly unto the Spaniards. And I fam them gine to the Spanish in abundance, Gold. Silver, precious stones, and all that was asked them, and that they had, doing them all kinde of services lawfull. And the Indians nener yeelded forth to warre, but kept them in peace fo long time, as they game them not occasion, by their enill entreating of them and their cruelties, but contrarinife receined them with all amitie and honour in their boroughes, in giving them to ease, and as many flaves manual and womenkinde, as they demanded for their fernice.

Item, I am witnesse, that wethout that the Indians gaue occasion : the Spanish as foone as they were entred the land, after that the great Cacique Atabalipa, had given to the Spanish more then two miltions of Gold, and had put into their power the whole Countrie without relistance, incomment they bur 40 ned the faid Atabalipa, which was Lord of the whole Countrie. And after him they burnt his captains generall Cochilimaca, who had come to the Governour in peace with other Lords. In the like manner also a few dayes after they burned a great Lord named Chamba, of the Promince of Quito, without any fault at all, and without having given the least occasion that might be. In like manner they burned oninstin Schappera Lord of the Canaries". Also they burnt the feete of Aluis a great Lord among fi all those which were in Quito, and caused him to endure sundry other torments, to make him tell where was the Gold of Acabalina : of the which treasure, as it appeared, be knew nothing.

good warriors, Alfo they burnt in Quito Colopanga, who was Gouernour of all the Provinces of Quito, which upon not of the Can the request to him first made by Sebastian of Bernalcalar, Captaine under the Conernour, was come to them in peace: and onely because he gave them not Gold so much as he demanded of him, they harned him 10 with very many other Caciques and principall Lords. And for ought that I can under fland, the intent of the Spaniards was, that there hould not be left aline one Lord in the whole Countrey.

Item, I certifie, that the Spaniards caused to assemble a great number of Indians, and locked them up in three great boufes, as many as could be pored in, and festing to fire, they burned them all, mubout that they had done the least thing that might be, or had given to the Spanish the least occasion theres · what soener. And it came to passe, that a Priest, who is named Ocanna, drew a yone Boy out of the fire, in the which he burned, which perceising, another Spaniard tooke from out of his hands the Boy and flung him into the middest of the flames, where he was refolked into ashes together with others. The which Spaniard returning the same day to the Campe, fell downe dead suddenly, and mine admict was, be

Item, I affirme, to have feene with mine owne eyes, that the Spanish have cut the bands, the nofer, and the eares of the Indians, and of their women, without any other cause or surpose, saue onely that so is came into their fantasie, and that in so many places and quarters, that it foodld be too tedious to the bearfe. And I have feene, that the Spanish have made their Mastives runne upon the Indians to rest them in pieces. And moreover, I have seene by them burnt so many houses, and whole boroughes, or townhips, that I am not able to tell the number. Also it is true, that they violently plucked the little infants fron the Mothers dagges, and taking them by the armes, did throw them from them as farre as they could: Together with other enormities and cruelties will bout any canfe which gave me aftonifiment to behold them, and would be to long to rehearfe them.

Item, I saw when they sent for the Caciques and other principall Indians, to come see them in place. and assurance to them made, promising them safe conduit : and incontinent as they were arrived, they burned them. They burned two whiles I was present the one in Andon, and the other in Tumbala; and I could never prevaile with them to have them delivered from burning, preached I unto them never fo much. And in God and my conscience, for ought that ever I could perceine, the Indians of Peru, never lift themselves up, nor never rebelled for any other cause, but for the entil entreating of the other side. as is manifelt onto enery one, and for infl canfe : the Spaniarus destroying them tyrannoully against all reafon and suffice, with all their Countrie, working upon them fo many outrages, that they were determined to die, rather then to fuffer much another time. Item, Ifar, that by the report of the Indians themfelmes, there is yet more Gold bidden then is come to light, the which because of the wninstices and cruelties of the Spaniards, they would not discouer, neither ener will discouer, so long as they stall be so enill entreated, but will choose rather to dye with their fellowes. Wherein God our Lord bath beene bighly trespassed against, and the Kings Maiestie enill served, baning beene defrauded in that, that his bigbnesse hath I it (uch a Countrie, as hath beene able to yeelde suftenance to all Caltile : for the recourse of which Coun-

20 tre, it willbe a matter of great difficultie, dispence, and charges. All these hitherto are the formall words of the faid religious person : the which are also rati- Bishop of Mexfied by the Bishop of Mexico, which witnesseth that the reverend Father hath to his know- itos tift mony. ledgeaffirmedall the about faid. It is here to be confidered, that the good Father faith, that he faw those things. For tha , that he hath beene fittie or an hundred leagues vp into the Countrie. for the space of nine or ten yeares, and at the very beginning, when there were not as yet but very few of the Spaniards : but at the ringing of the Gold, there were quickely gathered and Booked thicher foure or hue thousand, which shed themselves forth over many great Realmes and Prounces, more then five hundred or fixe hundred leagues, the which Countrey hath beene throughly destroyed, they executing still the selfe same practites, and others more bar-

an barous and cruell. Of a veritie, from that day vinto this prefent, there hath beene destroyed and brought to desolation moe foules then he hath counted ; and they have with leffe reverence of God or the King. and with leffe pittie then before, abolished a great part of the linage of mankinde. They have flaine voto this day in these same Realmes (and yet daily they doe flay them) moe then foure FoureMillions Millions of foules. Certaine dayes pailed, they pricked in shooting with darts of reedes to death flaine in Pers, a mightie Queene, wife of Eling, who is yet King of that Realme, whom the Spaniards by laying &c. hands upon him compelled to rebell, and in rebellion he perfifteth. They tooke the Queene his wife, and to as hath beene faid, flue her against all reason and justice, being great with childe as the was, as it was faid onely to vexe her husband withall.

of the new Realme of Granado.

VII lin the yeare 1539; there tooke their flight together fundry tyrants, flocking from Venesuela, from Saint Mariba, and from Caribagene, to search for the Perous: and there were also others which came downe from Pers it felfe to affay , to make a glade farther into the Countrie: And they found from beyond Saint Marthas and Carthagene three hundred leagues vo into the Countrie, fertile lands, and admirable Prounces, full of infinite people, kinde hearted like the rest, and very rich, as well of Gold as of precious stones, which they call Emeralds. Vnto the which Provinces they gave the name of New Granado: for because that the tyrant which came first into this Countrey, was a Granadan, borne in our Countrey. A Gouer-50 nour, for as much as he which robbed and flew in the new Realme of Granado, would not admit him for confort with him to rob and flay as did he : he procured an enquirie, and thereby euidence came in against him with fundry witnesses vpon the fact of his slaughters, diforders, and murders which he had done, and doth as yet vnto this day, the processe of which enquirie, together with the euidences was read, and is kept in the Records of the Countell of the Indies.

The witnesses doe depose in the same enquirie, that the said whole Realme was in peace, the Indians teruing the Spaniards, giving them to eate of their labour, and labouring continually, and manuring the ground, and bringing them much Gold and precious flones, fuch as are Emeralds, 60 and all that which they could or had: the Townes, and the Lordings, and the people being diitributed among it the Spaniards every one his share : which is all that they studie for, for that, that it is their meane way to attaine to their last end and scope, to wit, Gold. And all being subdued to their tyrannie and accultomed bondage, the tyrant the principall Captaine which commanded ouer that Countrey, tooke the Lord and King of the Countrey, and detained him pri-foner fix or feuen moneths, exacting of him Gold and Emeralds without cause or reason at all. The faid King, who was named Bogata, for feare which they put him in , faid that hee would give them an house full of Gold : noping that he should escape out of the hands of him which tormented him. And he fent Indians which should bring him Gold, and by times one after and ther, they brought in a great quantitie of Gold and precious stones. But because the King did not give an whole house rull of Gold, the Spaniards bid kill him; fithence that he did not accomplish that which he had promised.

1593

Barr, de las Casas bis Booke of cruelties done in the Indies. LIB.VIII

King Buzata tentenced . executed.

The tyrant commanding that this King should be arraigned before himselfe: They sommon and accuse in this order the greatest King of all that Countrie, and the tyrant giueth sentence. condemning him to be racked and tormented, if he doe not furnish forth the house full of Gold. In They give him the torture and the strapado with cords; they fling burning fewet vpon his naked belly ; they lay on bolts vpon his feete, which were faftened to one stake, and gird his necke fait vnto another stake, two men holding both his hands, and so they set fire vnto his feete : and the tyrant comming vp and downe now and then, willeth him to have his death giuen him by little and little, if he made not ready the Gold. Thus they dispatched and did to death that Noble Lord in those torments, during the execution whereof, God manifelted by a figne, that those cruelties displeased him, in confurning with fire all the towne where they were committed. All the Spaniards to the end to follow their good Captaine, and having none other thing to doe, but to backle in peeces those poore innocents doe the like, tormenting with divers and fauge torments every Indian, both Cacique or Lord of every people or peoples, with all their 10 flockes, that were committed to their charges: those faid Lords with all their subiects ferning them, and giving them Gold and Emeraulds as many as they could, and as much as they had: Tormenting them onely to the end they should give them more Gold, and rich Minerals: thus they broyled and dispatched all the Lords of that Countrie.

For the great seare of the notorious cruelties that one of the pettie tyrants did vnto the Indians, there transported immielfe voto the Mountaines, in flying so great crueltie, a great Lord name! Daytama, with many of his people. For this they hold for their last remedy and refuge, if it might have prevailed them ought; and this the Spaniards call infurtection and rebellion. Which the Captaine head tyrant having knowledge of, he fendeth supplie of Souldiers vnto the faid cruell man (for whole cruelties fake, the Indians that were peaceable, and had endured to great tyrannies and mischiefes, were now gone into the Mountaines) to the end he should purfire them. Who, because it sufficeth not to hide them in the entrals of the earth, finding there a great multitude of people, flue and dispatched them, aboue fine hundred soules, what men, what women, for they received none to mercy. Also the witnesses depose, that the said Lord Datama, before that the Spaniards put him to death, came to the cruell man, and brought him foure or five thousand Castillans, the which notwithstanding he was murdered as as Another time many Indians being come to serue the Spaniards, and seruing them with humilitie and simplicitie, as they are accultomed to doe, reputing them selves affored : behold the Captaine of the towne where they ferued, who commeth by night, commanding that those Indian 40 should be put to the edge of the sword, when they had supped, and whiles that they were a fleepe, taking their rest after the toyle which they fustained the day time. And this he did, for that it feemed him necessary to doe this massacre, to the end to engrave an awe of himself in the hearts of all the peoples of that Countrie.

Another time the Captaine commanded to take an oathe of the Spaniards, to wit, how many every one had in his feruice of the Caciques, and principall Lords, and Indians of the meaner fort; that incontinent they should be brought to the most open place of the Citie, where he commanded that they should be beheaded : thus were there at that time put to death foure or five hundred foules. Moreoverthese witnesses depose concerning another of the pettie tyrants, that he had exer- 10 cifed great cruelties in flaying, and chopping off the hands and nofes of many persons, aswell men as women, and deftroying very much people. Another time the Captaine sent the selfe same cruell man with certaine Spaniards into the Province of Bogata, to be informed by the inhabitants what Lord it was, that was successour vnto the chiefe Lord , whom hee had made to die that cruell death in those torments spoken of before : Who running along the Countrie throughout many places, tooke as many Indians as he could come by, And for that he could not learne of them, what he was that succeeded that Lord, he mangled off some hands, he bid cast others, men and women vnto hungrie Mastines, who rend them in peeces. And in this manner have beene delitroyed very many Indians, and Indeffes. One time, at the fourth watch of the night, he went to ouerrun Caciques or Gouernours of the land, with many of the Indians, which were in peace, 60 and held themselves affured (for he had given them his faith, and allurance that they should receiue no harme nor damage) vpon credit whereof, they were come forth of their holes in the Mountaines, where they had beene hil, to people Plaine, in the which food their Citie: thus being common without suspition, and trusting the affurance made, he tooke a great number, as well men as women, and commanded to hold out their hands ftretched against the ground, and himfelfe with a woodknife cut off their hands, telling them that he did on them this chastisement, for that they would not confesse where their new Lord was, which had succeeded in the charge of government of the Realme.

Another time for that the Indians gaue him not a coffer full of Gold, that this cruell Captaine required them: he fent men to warre vpon them: who cut off the hands and nofes of men and women without number. They cast others before their dogs being hunger bitten, and wied to the feare of feeding on flesh, the which dispatched and denoured;

Another time the Indians of that Realme perceiving that the Spaniards had burnt three or 19 foure of their principall Lords, they fled for feare vp into a Mountaine, from whence they might defend themfelues against their enemies so estranged from all humanitie. There were of them by the restimonie of the witnesses foure or fine Indians. This about faid Captaine sent a great and notable tyrant, which exceeded farre most of those to whom he had given the charge to ransacke and waste, together with a certaine number of Spaniards, to the end that they should chastile the Indian rebels : as they would feeme to make them for that they were fled from a peftilence and flaughter fo intollerable. Well, so it is that the Spanife by force prevailed to get up to the Mountaine: for the Indians were naked without weapons. And the Spaniards cryed peace vnto the Indians; aftering them, that they would doe them no harme : and that they of their parts should not warre any longer. Streight way as the Indians frinted from their owne defence, the vile cru-20 ell man fent to the Spaniards to take the forts of the Mountaine, and when they should get them to enclose within them the Indians. They fet then like vnto Tygers and Lyons, voon these lambes so meeke, and put them to the edge of the sword, so long that they were faine to breath and rest themselves. And after having rested a certaine season, the Captaine commanded that they fhould kill and cast downe from the Mountaine, which was very high, the refidue that were aliue; which was done. And these witnesses fay, that they saw as it were a could of Indians call downe from the Mountaine, to the number by estimation of seven hundred men together, where they fell battered to peeces.

And to atchieue all his great crueltie, they fearched all the Indians that were hid among ft the bulbes : and he commanded to cut off their heads, at blockes ends; and fo they flue them and cafe 30 them downe the Mountaines: yet could not be content himselfe with those faid things so cruell, but that he woold make himfelfea little better knowne, augmenting his horrible finnes, when as he commanded that all the Indians men and women, which some private persons had taken aline (for every one in those massacres is accustomed to cull out some one or other mankinde and womankinde, to the end to become his feruants) should be put into a strawen house, saving and referring those, which seemed necessary to be employed in their service, and that there should be put to fire thus were there burned fortie or fiftie. Hee caused the reft to be flong to the carrion dogs, which rend them in peeces, and denoured them.

Another time the selfe same tyrant went to a Citie called Cotta, and tooke there a number of Indians, and caused to be difmembred by his dogges, a fifteene or twenty Lords of the principall. 40 and cut the hands of a great multitude of men and women : which faid hands he hanged one by another on a pole, to the end the other Indians might fee that which hee had done vnto them. There were to hanged one by another threescore and ten paire of hands. Hee flifed off besides from many women and children their notes.

No creature living and reasonable, is able to decipher the mischieses and creel dealing of this fellow, enemy of God. For they are without number, neuer otherwise heard of, nor seene: those, I meane, which hee hath done in the land of Guarimala, and all about where he hath

The witnesses say for a surcharge, that the cruell dealings and slaughters which have beene committed, and are yet in the faid Realme of new Grenado, by the Captaines themselues in gerof fon, and by their confents given vnto all the other tyrants, wasters, and weeders of the nature of man, which were in his company, and the which hath laid all the Countrie wilde and waste, are fuch and fo excessive, that it his Maiestie doe not take some order therein in some time (albeit that the llaughter and discomfirure of the Indians is done onely to bereaue: nem of their Gold, the which they have none of, for they have furrendred all that which they had) they will in a short time make an end of them so in such fort, that there will be no mor Indians to inhabit the land, but that it will remaine in a wildernesse without being manured.

There are other great Prouinces, which bound vpon the faid Realme a new Grenado, which they call Popayin and Cali, and three or foure others, which contains more then fine hundred leagues of ground, which they have destroyed and desolated in the same manner, as they have 60 done others, robbing and flaying with torments, and the enormities afore spoken of. For the land is very fertile, and those that come from thence now daily, doe report, that it is a ruefull thing to lee so many goodly Townes burned and laid desolat, as they might behold passing vp and downe that way : fo as there, where there was work to be in one towne a thousand or two thousand households, they have not found fiftie, and the rest veterly ransacked and dispeopled.

And in some quarters they have found two or three hundred leagues of Land dispeopled and burned, and great Cities deliroyed. And finally, by that , that fithence into the Realmes of Peru. of the Province fide of Quito, are entred farre into the Countrey fore and fell tyrants, as farre as to the faid Realme of Grenado, and of Popayan, and of Cali, by the coast of Caribagene, and Arabe, and other accurled tyrants of Carthagene have gone to affault Quite, and moreover, afterwarde of the Rivers fide of Saint lobn, which is on the South fide, all the which have met to joyne hands together in this exploit: they have rooted out and dispeopled about fixe hundred leagues of land, with the loffe of an infinite of foules , doing ftill the felfe fame to the poore wretches that remaine behinde, howfoeuer innocent they appeare to be.

After the ends of the flaughters and maffacres of the warres, they bring the people into the horrible bondage about laid, and give them to the commandement of Deuils, to one an hundred Indians, to another three hundred. The commander Deuill commandeth, that there come before him an hundred Indians, which incontinent prefent themselves like Lambes. He causing forey or fifty amongst them to have their heads cut off: fayth vnto the other there prefent, I will ferue you of the fame fauce, if you doe not me good feruice, or if fo be, that you goe out of my fight without my leave. That for the honour of God, all they that have read this piece of worke. or shall give it a reading, consider now, whether this act, so hideous, fell and vnnaturall, doe not exceed all cruelty and in: quitie, that may bee imagined, and whether the Spaniards have any wrong offered them when a man calleth them Diuels, and whether were better, to give the Indians to keepe to the Deuils in Hell, or the Spaniards which are at the Indies.

After this I will rehearse another deuilish part, the which I cannot tell whether it beelesse 20 cruell and voide of manhood, then are those of fauage beatts: that is, that the Spanish which are in the Indies, dee keepe certaine Dogs most raging, taught and trained wholly to the purpofe, to kill and rend in pieces the Indians. That let all those that are true Christians, yea, and also those which are not fo, behold, if ever there were the like thing in the whole world : that is, to feed thole Dogs, they leade about with them wherefoeuer they goe a great number of Indians in chaines, as if they were Hogs, and kill them, making a shambles of mans flesh. And the one of them will say to another, Lend mee a quarter of a villaine, to give my Dogs some meate, untill I kill one next, altogether as if one thould borrowe a quarter of an Hogge or Mutton. There be others which goe forth a hunting in the morning with their curres, the which being re- to turned to cate, if another aske him : How have yee fped to day ! they answere, Very well: for I have killed with my Dogs to day, fifteene or twenty Villacoes. All these diabolicall doings, with others like haue beene proued in the fuits of Law, that the tyrants haue had one of them against another. Is there any case more ougly or vnnaturali?

I will here now deport me of this discourse, vitill such time, that there come other newers things, in vngraciouinesse more notorious and remarkable (if it so bee, that there can bee any more grieuous) or vntill fuch time as we may returne thither to behold them our felues anew, as we behold them for the space of two and forty yeeres continually with mine owne eyes : proteffing in a good confcience before God, that I doe beleeve, and I hold it for certaine, that the damages and loffes are fo great, with the deftractions and ouerthrowes of Cities, maffacres and 4 murders, with the cruelties horrible and ougly, with the rauins, iniquities and robbities, all the which things have beene executed amongst those people, and are yet daily committed in those quarters: that in all the things, which I have spoken and deciphered, as I was able the neerest to the truth: I have not faid one of a thousand, of that which has h beene done, and is daily a doing at this prefent, bee it that you confider the qualitie, or bee it, that yee confider the quantitie.

And to the end that all Christians have the greater compassion of those poore innocents, and that they complaine with me the more their perdition and deltruction, and that they detell the greedinelle, lottinelle, and felnelle of the Spamib: that all doe hold it for a moit vincoubte veri-What conner- tie, with all that hath berne abouefaid, that fithence the first Discouerie of the Indies until now, 15 fions & know- the Indias, neuer did harme vnto the Spanif in any place whereforeuer, vntill fuch time, that ledge of God they first rescued wrongs and injuries, being robbed and betrayed: but indeed did repute them to be immortal, supposing them to be descended from Heauen, and they received them for such, untill fuch time a that they gave it forth manifestly to be knowne by their doings, what they were, and whereto hey tended.

I will adioune hereunto this, that from the beginning unto this houre, the Spaniards have lad no more care to procure hat vnto those people should be preached the Faith of lefus Christ, then as if they had beene Curredogs, or other beaths: but in lieu thereof, which is much worldthey have forbidden by expressen eanes the religious men to doe it, for because that that seemed vnto them an higherance likely to be, to the getting of their Gold, and there riches which their 60 avarice foregiutted in. And at the day there is no more knowledge of God throughout the Indies, to wit, whether he be of timber, of the aire, or the earth, then there was an hundred yeeres agoe, excepting New Spaine, whither the religious men haue gone, which is but a little corner of the Indies : and to are they perished, and doe perish all with Faith, and without Sacraments.

I brother Bartholomen de las Cafas or Cafass, religious of the Order of Saint Dominicke, which by the mercy of God am come into this Court of Spaine, to fue that the Hell might bee withdrawen from the Indies, and that these innumerable soules, redeemed by the bloud of Iesus Christ. fhould not perifh for euermore without remedie, but they might know their Creator and be faned: also for the care and compassion that I have of my Countrey, which is Castile, to the end that God destroy it not for the great sinnes thereof, committed against the Faith and his honour, and against our neighbours: for certaine mens fakes notably zealous of the slory of God. touched with compassion of the afflictions and calamities of others, followers of this Court: howbeit, that I was purposed to doe it, but I could not fo foone have done it, because of my con-10 tinual occupations, I atchieued this Treatife and Summarie at Valencia, the eight of December, reas the force being mounted to the highest type of extremitie, and all the violences, tyrannies , deiolations , anguishes , and calamities abouesaid , spred ouer all the Indies , where there are Spaniards, although they be more cruell in one part then they be in another, and more fatage

Mexico and her confines are leffe euill intreated. In truth, there they cannot execute their outrages openly, for that there and not elfewhere, there is some forme of inflice, as slender as it is. For because that there also they kill them with deuilish tributes : I am in good hope, that the Emperour and King of Spaine, our liege Soueraigne Lord, Don Charles the fift of that name, who beginneth to have vinderstanding of the mitchiefes and treasons that there have beene and 20 are committed against those poore people, against the will of God, and his owne, (for they have alwaies cunningly concealed the truth from him) will roote out those cuils, and take some order for this new world that God hath given him, as vnto one that loueth and doeth iustice; whose honour and prosperous estate Imperiall, God almightie vouchsafe to blesse with long life, for the benefit of his whole vniuerfall Church, and to the faluation of his owne Royall foule. Amen.

After having couched in writing the premifies, I vnderstood of certaine Lawes and Ordinances, which his Maiestie hath made about this time at Barcellone, Anno 1 142, in the moneth of November, and the yeere following at Madrill: by the which Ordinances, there is order fet downe, as the case them seemeth to require : to the end, to cut off the mischieses and fins which are committed against God and our neighbours, tending to the veter ruine and perdition of this 30 new world, His Maiestie hath made these Lawes, after having holden many assemblies of persons of authoritie, of learning and confeience, and after hauing had disputations & conferences in Valladelid : and finally with the affent and adulte of all those others which have given their adulte in writing, and have beene found neerest approaching vnto the Law of Iefus Christ, and withall free from the corruption and foyle of the treasures tobbed from the Indians: the which treasures have foyled the hands, and much more the foules of many, overwhom those treasures and avarice have got the mafterie, and where hence hath proceeded the blinding, which hath caufed for to marre all without remorfe. These Lawes being published, the creatures of those tyrants, who then were at the Court, drew out fundry copies thereof (for it grieued them at the hearts : for that it feemed them that thereby there was a doore flut vp vnto them against their rauine and 40 extortion afore rehearded) and dispersed them into divers quarters of the Indies. Those which had the charge to robbe, root out, and confume by their tyrannies, (euen as they had never kept any good order but rather disorder, such as Lucifer himselfe might have held) as they read those copies before the new Judges might come to execute their charge, knowing it (as it is faid, and that very credible) by those who vntill this time have suported and maintayned their crimes and outrages, to be likely that fuch execution should be vied of those Lawes: they ranne into a mutinie in such wife, as that when the good Iudges were come to doe their duties, they aduised with themselves (as those which had lost the feare and love of God) to cast off also all shame, and obedience which they owe to the King, and so tooke vnto them the name of name of open and arrant traitors, behaving themselves as most cruell and gracelesse tyrants: and principally, 50 in the Realme of Pern, where presently this yeere 1443. are committed acts to horrible and frightfull, as never were the like, neither in the Indies, nor in all the world belides, not onely against the Indians, the which all or in a manner all are slaine, all those Regions being dispeopled: but also betwixt themselves by a just judgement of God, who hath permitted that they should be the Butchers one of an other of them. By meanes of the Support of this rebellion, none of the Samiardia all the other parts of this new World would obey those Lawes: But under colour of making supplication to his Maiesty to the contrary, they have made an insurrection as well as the others. For that it irketh them to leave their estates and goods which they have vsurped, and to vibinde the bands of the Indians, whom they detaine in a perpetuall captinitie. And there where they 60 ceale to kill with the fword, readily and at the inftant, they kill them a little and a little, by perfonall flaueries, and unjust charges and incolerable. That which the King could not hitherunto let: for because that they all, great and little, roue and robbe, some more, some lesse: some ouertly, and some couertly, and under the pretence of seruing the King: dishonour God, and robbe the King.

Part of a Letter written by one which faw things

Ee gave licence to put them to the Chaine, and in bondage: That which they did: and the Cap.

Laine led after him three or foure drones of these persons enchanned: and in this doing, he procu. red not that the Country hould bee inhabited and peopled (as had beene convenient should have done) but robbing from the Indians all their victuals they had, the inhornes of the Country were reduced to (nch an extremutie, that there were found great numbers dead of famine in the high-wayes. And the fach an extremitie, that there were journing to.

Lidian's commine and coing to and fro the coast, laden with the carriage of the Spaniards, bee was the Te monland death by thefe meaner of about ten thoufand. For not one that arrived at the very coast escaped death : by reason of the excessive beate of the Countrey.

After this, following the same tract and way, by the which Iohn of Ampulia was gone, bee sent the Indians which be had purchased in Quito, a day before him, to the end they should discourt the bourges of the Indians, and should pillage them, that when be came with bu mayne be might finde bu bootie ready. And those Indians were his owne mates : of the which such a one had two hundred, such a one three bundred, and fuch a one a bundred; according to the bag gage that enery one of them bad: which Indians came to jeeld themfelues to their Masters with all that they had robbed.

After that the faid Captaine was returned from the coast, bee determined to depart from Ouito. and to goe feeke the Captaine Iohn de Ampudia, leaning thereto mee then two hundred of Footmen and Horsemen, among st whom were a great many Inhabitants of the Citie of Quito. Unto those Inhabit. tants the Captaine cane licence to carrie with them the Cacikes, that were escheated them in sharing. with as many Indians as they would. That which they did: and Alfonio Sanches Nuita carried forth with him bis Cacike, with moe then an hundred Indians besides: and in like manner Peter Cibo, and bis Coulin: and they led out more then an hundred and fifty with their wines: and fundry also feed out their children, because that in a manner enery one died for hunger. Also Moran Inhabitant of Popayan, carried out moe then two bundred persons. And the like did all the rest, Crizens and Souldiers, enery one after his abilitie: the Souldiers crawing that they might have licence ginen them to captine these Indians men and women, which they carried forth: the which was granted them untill the death of the Said captines, and shofe deceased, to take as many more.

When they departed out of the Pronince of Quito, they carried out moe then fixe thousand Indians, men and women, and of all those there never returned home into their Countrie twenty persons. For they died all through the great and excessive travell, which they made them indure in those broyling Comm true contrary to their nature. It happened at that time, that one Altonfo Sanches, whom the fuld Captaine fent for Chieftaine ouer a certaine number of men into a Pronince there, met with a good company of women, and young boyes laden with villuals : who flaved waiting for them without moning from the place to give them of that which they had, and having fo done, the Captaine commanded that they fould be put to the Sharpe of the Sword. It came to passe also, that at the time that the faud Captaine came into the Province of Lili, to a Towne called Palo, neere vuto the great Riner, where bee found the Captaine Iohn de Ampudia, 30 which was gone before to discouer, and pacific the Countrie : the faid Ampidia kept a Citie by him promided of a Garrison, in the name of his Maiestie, and of the Marques Francis of Pizatto: and had fet over them for Governours ordinary, one Petre Solano of Quennoues, and eight Connfellours, and all the rest of the Countrie was in peace, and shared out amongst them. And as bee knew that the faid Captaine was in the faid Riner, bee came to fee him, with a great number of the Inhabisants of the Countrie, and peacefull Indians, laden with victuals and fruits. Shorely after also all the neighbour Indians came to fee him, bringing him food. There were the Indians of Xamundi, and of Palo, and of Soliman, and of Bolo. Now because that they brought no Mahis which he would have, he sent a great number of Spaniards with their Indians, to goe fourch for Mahis: commanding them to bring some where sever they found so any. So went they to Bolo, and to Palo, and found the Indians men and women in their houles in peace and the faid Spaniards with those that were with them, tooke them, and robbed their Mahu then Gold, and Conerings, and all that they had, and bound many.

Wherefore, they seeing that the Captaine kept no Faith with them: all the Countrie arose and revolted from the Spanish, whereof ensued great damage, and God and the Kings Maiestic offended: and by this meanes the Country remayned dispeopled: for that the Olomas and the Manipos their enemiet, which are Mountaine people, and warlike, descended daily to take and rubbe them, when they perceived the Citie and places of their abode left defisiute. And amongst them bee who was the firinger, aid Crucil famine, eate up his fellow, for all died for famine. This done, the Captaine came to the Citie of Ampulia, where he was received for Generall. From this place they goe to a Citie called Tukilicui, from whence the Ca-60 cike of the place reelded forth incontinent in peace, a number of Indians going before him. The Captaine demanded Gold of him and of his Indians. The Cacike told him that hee had but a small deale, and that which he had fould be green him: and immediatly all beganne to give him all that they had. Whereupon the faid Captaine game unto energ of them a ticket, with the name of the faid Indian, for a testimoniail that he had given him Gold: assirming that hee which should have never a ticket, should be cast to the Dogges to bee denomed, because be gave bum no Gold. Wherenpon the Indians for feare that they were put in, gane him all the Gold that they were able : and those which had none fied into the Mountaines and other Townes, for feare to bee flame. By reason whereof perished a great number of the natine Inhabitants of the Countries. And Shortly after, the fuel Captaine commanded the Cacke to fend two Indians to another (stre named Dagna, to will them that they foodid come in peace, and bring bim Gold in abundance. And somming to another Citie, bee fent that night many Spaniards to take the Indians, and namely of Tulilicui. So atthey brought the next morrow abone an bundred per fons : and all those which could be are burdens, they tooke them for themselves, and for their To Souldiers, and put them to the chaine, whereof they died all. And the faid Captaine game the little children unto the faud Cacike Tutilicus, that bee fould este them: and in truth, the skinnes of those chile

dren are kept in the house of the land Cacike Tulilicui full of albes: and so departed hee from thence without an Interpreter, and went towards the Prominces of Caltile, where bee soyned himselfe unto the Captaine Iohn de Ampudia, who had fent him to discouer another way, doing both of them great outrages, and much mischiefe unto the Inhabitants of the Countrie where they became. And the faid Iohn de Ampudia came to a Citie, the Cacike and Lord whereof called Bicacur, had caused to make certaine Duches to defend himselfe, and there fell into the same two Horses, the one of Antonie Rodondos, the other of Marc Marqueis. That of Marcos Marquis died, the other not. For which cause the faid Ampudia commanded to take all the Indians men and women that might be - and thereupon take and 20 layed together more then an hundred persons, whom they cast aline into those Ditches and sine them.

and brent withall more then an hundred boufes in the faid Citie. And in that manner met in a great Citie, where without summoning (the Indians being at peace, and without any spokesman to goe betweene them) they flue with their Speares a great number of them, making on them mortall warre. And as it is faid soone after they were met, the faid Ampudia told the Captaine what he bad done in Bitaco, and bow he cast formany into the Ditches: and the faid Captaine enswered, that it was well done, and that he for his part had done as much at the River Bamba, when hee entred the same, which is in the Prounce of Quito, and that be had flung into the Ditches moe then two hundred persons; and there they flared warring on all the Countrie. Soone after he entred into the Pronince of Bitu, or Anzerma: in making cruell warre with fire and blond till they came as farre as onto the Salt-boules. And from 30 thence be fem Francis Garcia before him to pillage, who made cruell warre on the natural Inhabitants of the Countrie as he had done before bins. The Indians came was him two and two, making fignes, that they demanded peace on the behalfe of the whole Countrie: alledging that they would affoord him, all that he could reasonably demand, were it Gold, or Women, or Victuals, onely that they would not kell them, as indeed it was a troth. For themfetues afterwards confessed it to bee fo. But the faid Francis Garcia bid them get them packing : telling them moreaner, that they were a fort of drunkards and that beeunderstood them not, and foretwined bee to the place where the faid Captaine was, and they made a complet, to overrunne all the Pronince, making critell warre on all the Countrie, in spoiling, robbing and flaying all: and with the Souldiers, which bec brought with him, drew thence mee then two thousand faules, and all those died in the chaine. Before departing the place which bee had peopled, they 40 flue more then fine bundred per fous. And fo returned to the Pronince of Calili. And by the way if any lade or Indesie, were weary, in such fart, that they could not passe any further, they did incontinently bead them, paring it off from the shoulders even with the chaine, to the end not to take the paines none; occus were, puring a vij ji om socjammers which went the same way should not make mise to bee sicke, and by this meanes died they all: and in the high-wayes were left all those people which hee made his purchase of out of Quito, and of Patto, and of Quilla Cangua, and of Paxa, and of Popayan, and of Lili, and of Cali, and of Anzerma, and a great unmber of people died. Alfo immedeatly upon their resurne to the great Citie, they entred into it, flaying all that they could: taking in that day moe then three bundred per fons, &c.

Mong divers the remedies by Friar De las Cafae Bishop of the Royal Towns called Chiapa, 50 A propounded in the assemblie of fundry Prelates named Parsons, by his Malesties commandement gathered together in the Towne of Valladolid, the yeere of our Lord 1542, for order and reformation to be observed in the Indies: the eighth in order was this ensuing, which consistents vpon twentie reasons and motions.

The eight Remedie, is among all other principall and most in force, as without which all the rest are to no porpose, for that they all have relation thereunto, as every motion to his proper end, in whatfoeuer toucheth or is of any importance vnto your Maiestie, which no man can expresse: in as much as thereupon dependeth at the leaft the whole loffe or preferuation of the Indies. And the remedie that I speake of is this, that your Maiestie die determine ; decree , command ; and 60 folemnely in your fourraigne Courts ordaine by pragmaticall Sactions and Royall Statutes, that all the Indies as well already jubdued, as hereatter to be fubdued, may be inferted, reduced, and incorporate into the Royall Crowne of Castile and Lean, to be holden in chiefe of your Maiette as free lubiects and vaffals, as they are. Likewife that they be not given in commendant unto the Spaniards: but that it fland as an inuiolable conflictation, determination and Royall Law, that they never, neither at this time, neither hereafter in time to come, may bee alienated or taken from the faid Royall Crowne, neither that they be given, commanded, demiled in fee farme, by depost, commandement or alienation, either under any other title or manner whatsoeuer, and be difmembred from the Royall Crowne, for any whattoeuer the feruice or defert of any, either vp. on any necessitie that may happen, or for any cause or colour whatsoever that may be pretended. For the inviolable observation, or establishment of which Law, your Maiestie shall formally fweare by your Faith and on your Word and Royall Crowne, and by all other facred things. whereby Christian Princes doe visually fweare, that at no time neither your felfe, neither your fuccessours in these ten Dominions, or in the Indies, so farre as in you shall he, shall remoke the fame : and you shall further let do wne in expresse words in your Royall Will and Testament that Io this decree be euer kept, maintayned, and vpholden: also that to farre as in your felfe or in them shall be, they shall confirme and continue the same. And for proofe of the necessitie hereof there bee twenty reasons to be alledged : out of which twenty we have drawne and put in writing to many as may feeme to ferue to our purpofe.

Freeza out of the fecond reafon.

The Spaniards through their great avarice and couetouineffe to get, doe not permit anv re. ligious persons to enter into their Townes and Holds which they possesse, alledging that they receive double losse by them. One and the principall is, that religious persons doe keepe the Is. dies occupied when they gather them together to their Sermons, fo as in the meane time their worke is omitted, while the Indians being idle, labour not ; yea, it hath fo fallen out that the Indians being in the Church at the Sermon, the Spaniard comming in, in the face of al the people, 20 hath taken fifty, or an hundred, or so many as he hath needed to carrie his baggage and stuffe, and fuch as would not goe, he hath loden with thripes, fourning them forth with his feet, thereby, to the great griefe both of the Indians, and of the religious perfons troubling and molesting all that were prefent. &c.

Out of the third reafon.

The Spaniards are charged to inftruct the Indians in our holy Catholike Faith: whereupon on a time when we examined Iohn Colmeners of Saint Mariba, a fantasticall, ignorant, and foolish man, who had gotten a great Towns in commendam, and had a charge of foules, he could not tell how to bleffe himfelfe; and asking him what doctrine he taught the Indians committed to his charge, he faid, he gave them to the Deuill : also that it was enough for him to say, Per figning fastiin Cruces. How can the Spaniards that travell to the Indies, how noble or valuant forur they be, have any care of the soules, when the most of them are ignorant of their Creede and ten Commandements, and knowe nor the matters percayning to their owne faluation, neither doe travell to the Indies for any other purpose but to satisfie their owne defires and couetous affections, being for the most part vicious , corrupt, vinhonest, and disordinate persons: fo as her that would weigh them in an equalibaliance, and compare them with the Indians, should find the Indians without comparison, more vertuous and holy then them. For the Indians what infidels focuer they be, doe neuertheleffe keepe them to one and their owne wife, as nature and neceffitie teacheth, and yet we see some Spaniard have fourteene or more, which Gods Commandements doe forbid. The Indians devoure no mans goods, they doe no man wrong : they doe not vexe, trouble, or flay any, where themselves doe see the Spaniards commit all finnes, iniquities, 40 and treacheries, that man can commit against all equitie and instice. To be briefe, the Indians doe not believe any thing, but doe mocke at all that is shewed them of God, being in truth fully rooted in this opinion of our God, that he is the worft, and most valuat, and the most wicked of all Gods, because he hath such servants: also concerning your Maiestie, they thinks you the most vniust and cruell of all Kings, because you doe both fend thither and keepe here such evill Subiects, furpofing that your Maiestie doth feed vpon humane fiesh and bloud. .

Out of the

The Spaniards having authoritie to command, or particular interest in the Indies, cannot by fourth reason. reason of their great conetousnesse abstaine from afflicting, troubling, disquieting, vexing, or oppreffing the Indians, taking away their goods, lands, wives, or children, and ving among them many other kindes of iniquitie, for the which they can have no redreffe, fanction, or warrant at 50 your Maiefties chiefe Iuftice, because the Spaniards doe make them afraide : vea sometimes doe kill them; left they should complaine. They doe night and day mourne after their Gods, thisking them to be better then ours at whom they fulfame fuch harmes, while contrariwise of their owne they reape there so many commodities: and there is nothing that troubleth them so much as the Christians.

Out of the fifth reasons

Wee can show to your Maiestie ; that the Spaniards have within eight and thirty or firty yeers flaine of suff accompt, about twelve millions of your Subjects: I will not fay how mightily this world of people might have multiplied. This Countrey being the fertilest, whether for cattell, or mankinde, that is in the world t the foyle being for the most part, more temperate and fauoitrable to humane generation. All thefe innumerable persons, and all these 60 people have the Spaniards flaine, to the end to heare fway, governe, and command over the relt: and when in visual warres they have flame them; then doe they vie the rell, who justly have withflood them, in drawing Gold and Silver, yoking them together like healts, to make them carrie their burdens.

What plague of petitience, or mortalitie could there have fallen from heaven that had beene able to contime or make waite aboue 2500. leagues of flat Country, replenished with people, and would not have left either travailer or inhabitant ?

The Spaniards onely for their temporall commoditie, have blemished the Indies with the Out of the preatest infamie, that any man even among the most horrible and villanous persons in the world, fixth reason. could be charged withall, and whereby they have fought to take them out of the degree of mankinde : namely that they were all polluted with the abominable finne against nature : which is a wretched and falle flander. For mall the great Hes, Hifpaniola, Saint John, Cuba, and Lamaica: Also in the fixtie lles of Lucayos, which were inhabited with an infinite number of people, the fame was neuer thought vpon; in some other part there is a voice of a few: for whole lakes neuerthelesse all that world is not to be condemned. We may say as much of the eating of mans flesh, which likewise those places that I have named are free of; although that in other places thy doe it indeede. They be also charged with their Idolatrie. The Spaniards have portrosely and effectually hindered the teaching of the Law of God and Iefus Christ: with all other vertues among the Indians, and driven away the Religious persons out of Townes and Fortresles, least they should see and disclose their tyrannies ; yea, they have by their suill example, infected and correspeed the Indies, teaching them many odious behaviours and vices, which before they knew not, as blasp'eming the name of Ielus Christ, practifing of vsurie, lying, and many other abhominations wholly repugnant to their nature.

inations wholly repugnant to their nature.

The Spaniards doe sucke from the Indians the whole substance of their bodies, because they penthreason, hate nothing else in their houses. They make them spit bloud: They exhibite them to all dangers: They lay youn them fundry and intollerable trauziles: and more then all this, They loade them with torments, beatings, and forrowings: To be briefe, they spoile and consume a thoufand manner of waves.

Befiles all that the Indians doe indure in feruing and pleasing the Speniards, there is yet a Out of the butcher or cruell hangman, to keepe them in awe appointed in every Towne and place, and is eight reason. tearmed Estanciers or Calpifque: who hath authoritie to lay his clawes voon them, and to make them labour, and doe what the Lord Commander or chiefe thiefe will. So as if in hell there were no other torment, yet were this incomparable. This hangman whippeth them, he ladeth them 30 with ftripes, he batteth them with scalding grease, he afflicteth them with continual coments and travels, hee forceth and defloureth their daughters and wives, dishonouring and abosing them : he deuoureth their Hens, which are their greatest treasure, not because themselves doe eate them, but that of them they offer presents and service to their greatest Lord and chiefe tyrant : he vexeth them with innumerable other torments and griefes : and leaft they should complaine of fo many injuries and miferies, this tyrant putteth them in feare, faying ; that hee will accuse them, and say that he see them commit Idolatry. To be briefe, they must please and content about twenty difordinate and vnreasonable persons; so as they have foure Lords and Mafters. Your Maiestie, their Cacique, him that hath them in commendam, and the Estanciero of whom I laft spake, which Eftancure is to them more grieuous to beare then a quintall of lead, a-40 mong which we may also in truth adde all the Mochaches and Moores, that doe serue the Commander and Mafter, for they all doe moleit, oppresse, and rob these poore people.

It is greatly to be teared, least God will lay Spaine desolate, even for those horrible sinnes that Out of the this Nation hath committed in the Indies, whereof we doe enidently behold the fourge, and all tenth reasons the world doth fee and confesse that already it hangeth ouer our heads, wherewith God doth afflict and thew that he is highly offended in those parts through the great deftruction and waste of those Nations, in that of so great treasures have bin transported out of the Indies into Spaine (the like quantitie of Gold and Silver, neither King Salomon, neither any other worldly Prince euer had, law, or heard of) there is none left, belides that of that that was here before the Indies Note. were discovered, there is now none to be found, no neuer a whit. Hereof it commeth that things are thrife dearer then they were, the poore that have want doe fuffer great miferies : and your

Maiestie cannot dispatch matters of great importance. So long as Lares bare fway and ruled, that was nine yeares, there was no more care of teaching Out of the eleor bringing the Indians to faluation, neither was there any more labor employed, or once thought venthreafon, of to that purpose, then if they had beene Trees, Stones, Dogs, or Cats. He wasted great townes and fortrelles, he gaue to one Spaniard a hundred Indians, to another fiftie, to another more or leffe, as every man was in liking or favour, and as it pleafed him to grant. He gave children, and old men, women with childe, and in childebed, men of countenance and commons, the naturall Lords of the Townes and Countries, he parted them among those to whom hee wished most wealth and commoditie, ving in his Letters of command this speech following : To you such a 60 man, are ginen fo many Indians with their Cacique, them tou fe in their Mines and affaires. So as all, great and small, young and old, that could stand on their feete, men, women with childe, or in childebed, one or other, trauailed and wrought fo long as they had any breath in their bodies. He gaue leaue to take away married men, and to make them draw Gold, tenne, twenty, thirtie, tortie, or eightie leagues, or farther. The women remained in farme houses and granges, in great labours. So that the man and wife should not see one another in eight or ten moneths or a whole years. And at their meeting they were fo worne with labour and hunger, that they had no minde of cohabitation, whereby their generation ceased, and their poore children peruhed. because the mothers through hunger and trauaile had no milke wherewith to nourish them: This was a cause that in the sle of Cuba, one of vs being there, there perished in the space of three moneths for hunger 7000, shildren, tome desperate women strangled and killed their owne children, others finding themselues with childe, did eate certaine hearbes thereby to loose their fruit, so that the men died in the Mines, the women perished in the farme houses, their whole generation in a shore space decayed, and all the Countrey lay desolate. The said Gouernour, to the end without release to keepe them in continual labour, still gaue them away, and yetbe- 10 fides their great labors he suffered them rigorously, and very austerely to be misuted. For the Soa. miards that had them in command, appointed certaine hangmen over them, fome in the Mines. whom they tearmed Miniers, others in the Farmes, that were called Eftanciers : vnnaturall and pittileffe persons that beate them with staues and cords, boxing them, pricking them with needles, and full calling them dogges: neither did they ever flew any figne of humanity or clemensie, but all their dealings did confift of extreame severitie, riot, and bitternesse.

Retter 3

The Gouernour had also in the Spanish Townes and Forts, certaine of the most honorable and principall persons about him, whom he called Visitors, vnto whom also besides their other ordinary portions that he had given them, he gave in respect of their offices one hundred Indians to ferue them. These in the Townes were the greatest executioners, as being more cruell then the 20 reft, before whom Athnaziles del camoo brought all fuch as had bin taken in this chafe. The accufer, he that had them in command, was present, and accused them, saying : Thu Indian. or those Indians are dogs, and will doe no fernice, but doe daily run to the Mountaines, there to become lotterers and vagabonds: and therefore required that they might be punished. Then the Visitor with his owne hands bound them to a Pale, and taking a pitched cord, in the Gallies called an Eele, which is as it were an iron rod, gaue them so many itripes, and beate them so cruelly, that the bloud running downe divers p.rts of their bodies, they were left for dead, God is witnesse of the cruck-ties committed among those lambs.

Throughout the yeare they never knew holiday, neither might be suffered from labour little or much. Befides that during all this toyle, they never had fufficient food, no not of Cacabi. Some $ there were that through niggardineffe wanting meate to give them, would fend them two or three dayes abroad into the helds and Mountaines, to feede where they might fatisfie themselves with such fruite as hang on the trees, and then you the force of that which they brought in their guts, would force them to labour two or three dayes more without gining them any one morfell to eate. The Gouernour commanded they should be paid their day wages and expenses for any labour or feruice that they should doe to the Spaniard, and their wages was three Llankes every two dayes, which in the yeare amounted to halfe a Caffelin. Thus grew they into fickeneffe through long and grieuous trausiles, and that was foone caught among them. When the Spaniards perceived the sickenesse increase, so as there was no profit or service to be looked for at their hands, then would they fend them home to their houses, giving them to spend in some 49 thirty, forty, or eightie leagues trauaile, some halte dozon of Radish or Refortes , that is a kinde of nauet roote, and a little Cacabi, wherewith the poore men travailed not farre before they should desperately dye, some went two or three leagues, some ten or twenty, so desirons to ger to their owne home, there to finish their hellish life that they suffered , that they even fell downe dead by the wayes; fo as many times we found some dead, others at deaths doore, others groning and pittifully to their powers pronouncing this word, bunger, bunger. Then the Gouernour feeing that the Spaniard had in this wife flame halfe or two third parts of thele Indians, whom hee had given them in command, he came a fresh to draw new lots, and make a new distribution of Indians: still supplying the number of his first gift, and this did hee almost

Pedrarias entred into the firme land, as a Wolfe that had long beene statued doth into a flocke of quiet and innocent Sheepe and Lambs: and as Gods wrath and fourge, committing infinite flughters, robberies, oppressions and cruelties, together with those Spaniards whom he had leuis ed, and laid waite to many Townes and Villages, which before had bin replenished with people, as it were Ant hils, as the like was neuer seene, heard of, or written by any that in our dates have deale in Histories. He robbed his Maiette & Subiects with those whom he tooke with him, and the harme that he did amounted to aboue foure, yea fix Millions of Gold: hee laid aboue fortic leagues of land delart, namely from Darien, where he first arrived, vnto the Province of Nicaraga, one of the fruitfulleft, richeft and best inhabited lands in the world. From this curfed wretch sprang first the pestilence of giving the Indians in command, which afterward hath infected all 62 thole Indies where any Spaniards doe inhabit, and by wi om all these Nations are consumed; so that from him & his commands have proceeded the certaine waste and desolation that your Maiestie haue fullamed in these so great lands and dominions, since the years to04-

When we shall say that the Spaniards have wasted your Maieties, and laid you desolate soun

King lomes bigger then Spaine, you must conceine that we have seene them wonderfully peopled; and now there is no body left, because the Spaniards have slaine all the natural inhabitants by meanes aforeigned and that of the Townes and Houses there remainesh onely the bare wals ; even as it Spains were all dispeopled, and that all the people being dead, there remained onely the wals of Cicies, Townes and Caftels.

Your Maiestie have not out of all the Indies one marvedy of certaine perpetuall and fet rent, Our of the but the whole reuenewes are as leaves and thraw gathered upon the earth, which being once gathered vp doe grow no more : euen fo is all the rent that your Maiestie hath in the Indies, vaine and of as small continuance as a blast of winde, and that proceedeth onely of that the Spaniards 10 have had the Indians in their power; and as they doe daily flay and roft the Shhabirants, so must be necessarily ensue that your Maiesties rights and rents doe wast and diminish.

The Kingdome of Spaine is in great danger to be lost, robbed, oppressed and made desolate by forraigne Nations, namely by the Turkes and Moores, because that God who is the most just. true, and foueraigne King ouer all the world, is wroth for the great finnes and offences that the Spaniards have committed throughout the Indies. But had chosen Spaine as his minister and infrument, to illuminate and bring them to his knowledge, and as it had bin for a worldly recomnence, belides the eternall reward, had granted her to great naturall riches, and discoursed for her fuch and to great fruitfull and pleafant lands,&c.

In as much as our life is short, I doe take God to witnesse with all the Hierarchies and thrones 20 of Angels, all the Saints of the heavenly court, and all the men in the world; yea, even those that shall hereafter be borne, of the certificate that here I doe exhibite: also of this the discharge of my conscience, namely that if his Maiestie granteth to the Spaniards the aforesaid divellish and tyrannous partition, not with Handing what loeuer lawes or flatutes shall be deuised, yet will the Indies in figre space be laid desarcand inspeopled, even as the Ile of Hispaniola is at this present, which otherwise would be most fruitfull and fertile; together with other the lles & lands aboue 2000 leagues about, besides Hispaniola it selfe and other lands both farre and neere. And for those finnes, as the holy Scripture doth very well informe, God will horribly chaftize, and peraduenture wholly fubuert and roote out all Spains. Anno 1542.

The summe of the disputation betweene Fryer BARTHOLOMEVY de las CASAS or CASAVS, and Doctor SEPVLVEDA.

Octor Sepulueda, the Emperours chronographer, having information, and being perfwa? Deed by certaine of thole Spaniards, who were most guiltie in the slaughters and wastes committed among the Indian people, wrote a Booke in Lavine, in forme of a Dialogue very eloquently, and furnished with all flowers, and precepts of Rhetoricke, as indeede the man is very learned and excellent in the faid tongue : which Booke confifted vpon two principall conclusions; 40 the one, That the Spaniards warres against the Indians, were as concerning the cause and equitie that moved them thereto, very just: also, that generally the like warremay and ought to be continued. His other conclusion, that the Indians are bound to submit themselves to the Spaniards, gouernment, as the foolish to the wife : if they will not yeelde, then that the Spaniards may (as he affirmeth) warre vpon them. These are the two causes of the losse and destruction of so infinite numbers of people : also that aboue 2000, leagues of the maine land, are by fundry new kindes of Spanish cruelties and inhumaine dealings bin left desolate in the llands : namely by Conqueits and Commands as hee now nameth those which were wont to be called

The faid Doctor Sepulueds coloureth his Treatile, under the pretence of publishing the title 50 which the Kings of Castile and Leon doe challenge in the government and vinuerfall loveraign; is of this Indian world; fo feeking to cloake that doctrine which he endeuouteth to difperfe and featter as well in these lands, as also through the Kingdomes of the Indians. This Booke he exhibited to the royall Councell of the Indies, very earnestly and importunately lying upon them for licence to print it, which they fundry times denied him in respect of the offence, dangers, and manifest detriment, that it feemed to bring to the Common-wealth.

The Doctor feeing that here he could not publish his Booke, for that the Counfell of the Inder would not suffer it, he dealt so farre with his friends that followed the Emperours Court, that they got him a Patent, whereby his Maiestie directed him to the royall Counseil of Castile, who knew nothing of the Indian affaires : vpon the comming of these Letters the Court and 60 Cou sell being at Aranda in Duero, the yeare 1547. Fryer Baribolomen de las Casas or Casain, Buhop of the royall towne of Chiapa, by hap arrived there, comming from the Indians, and hauing intelligence of Doctor Sepulneda his drifts and deuiles, had notice also of the Contents of his whole Booke; but understanding the Authors permitions blindenesse, as also the irrecoverable loffes that might enfue upon the printing of this Booke, with might and maine with flood it, difcouering diffeomering and reuealing the poyfon wherewith it abounded, and whereto it pretended.

The Lords of the Royall Countaile of Castile, as wife and just Judges, determined therefore to fend the faid Booke to the Vuiverfities of Salamanca and Alcala, the matter being for the most part therein Theologically handled, with commandement to examine it, and if it might be printed, to figne it : which Vniuerfities after many exact and diligent disputations , concluded that it might not be printed, as contayning corrupt doctrine.

The Doctor not so satisfied, but complaining of the Vniuersities aforesaid, determined, notwithflanding to many denials and repulles at both the Royall Countailes, to fend his Treatife to his friends at Rome, to the end there to print it, having first transformed it into a certaine Appe logie written to the Bilhop of Segonia, because the same Bilhop having peruled the Treatie and Bocke aforefaid, had brotherly and charitably as his friend by Letters reprooued and counfailed him. The Emperous vinderstanding of the Impression of the said Booke and Apologie, did immediately dispatch his Letters Patents, for the calling in and suppression of the same, commanding likewise to gather in againe all Copies thereof throughout Cafile. For the faid Doctone had published also in the Castilian Language a certaine abitract of the said Booke , thereby to make it more common to all the Land : and to the end . To that the Commons , and fuch as you derstood no Latine, might have some vie thereof, as being a matter agreeable and toothiomer fuch as coneted great riches, and fought wayes to clime to other estates, then either themselves. or their Predeceffors could neuer attaine voto without great coft, labour, and cares, and often times with the loffe and destruction of divers.

Which when the Bishop of Chiapa understood, hee determined also to write an Apologie in 20 the vulgar tongue, against the faid Doctors summarie in defence of the Indies, therein impuening and undermining his foundations, and answering all reasons, or whatsoeuer the Doctor could alleage for himselfe, therein displaying and setting before the peoples face the dangers, incomenieners and harmes in the faid doctrine contained.

Thus as many things pailed on both fides, his Maiestie in the yeere 1550, called to Valadelid. an Affembly of learned men, as well Dinines as Lawyers, who beging joyned with the Royall counfaile of the Indies should argue, and among them conclude, whether it were lawfull without breach of Iustice, to leuie warres, commonly tearmed conquests, against the Inhabitants of those Countries, without any new offence by them committed, their infidelity excepted, Dector Sepulneda was furnmened to come and fay what he could, and being entred the Comfaile Chamber, did at the first Seision veter his whole minde. Then was the faid Bishop likewist called, who for the space of fine dayes, continually did reade his Apologie : but being somewhat long, the Diuines and Lawyers there affembled, befought the Learned and Reverend Father Deminicke Soto his Maiesties Contesor, and a Dominican Friar, who was there present . to reduce it into a Summary, and to make so many Copies as there were Lords, that is fourteene, to the end they all having fludied voon the matter, might afterward in the feare of God fay this

The faid Reu-rend Father and Master Soco, set downe in the faid Summary, the Doctors resfons, with the Bishops aniweres to the same. Then had the Doctour at his request a Copie deli-m uered him to answere : out of which Summarie he gathered twelue against himselfe, whereto he madetwelue answeres, against which answeres the Bishop framed twelue Replyes.

Doctor Sepulueda his Prologue to the Lords of the Affembly, beganne thus. Most worthy and Noble Lords, fith your Lordships and Graces have as Judges for the space of five or fixe dayes heard the Lord Bishop of Chiapa reade that Booke, whereinto he hath many yeeres laboured to gather all the reasons that either himselfe, or others could invent to prove the conquest of the Indies to be vniust, as seeking first to subdue barbarous Nations before we preach the Gospell vnto them, which have beene the viual course correspondent to the grant made by Pope Alexander the fixt, which all Kings and Nations have hitherto taken and observed: it is meete, and I doe so defire you, that I who take vpon me to defend the grant and authority of the Apostolike Sea, together 50 with the equitie and honour of our Kings and Nation, &c.

Out of which Replies, here followeth the Abstract of two that fland vs insteed. The report is vntrue that the Indians did yeerely facrifice in New Spaine twenty thousand persons : either one hundred or fiftie. For had that beene fo, we could not now have found there fo much people; and therefore the Tyrants have invented it, thereby to excuse and instific their Tyrannies : allo to detaine fo many of the Indians as escaped the oppression and desolation of the first Vintage, in bondage and tyrannie. But we may more truely fay, that the Spaniards during their abode in the Indses, have yeerely facrificed to their fo deerely beloued and reverend Goddelle Concronfinelle more people, then the Indians have done in a hundred yeeres. This doe the Heavens, the Earth, the Elements, and the Starres both testific and bewaile: the Tyranes, yea. the very Ministers of 60 these mischiefes cannot deny it. For it is evident how greatly these Countries at our first entrie fwarmed with people, as also how wee have now laid it waste, and dispeopled the same: wee might euen blufh for shame, that having given over all feare of God, wee will yet nevertheleste fecke to colour and excuse these our so execrable demeanours : considering that only for getting

Note, the Popes Bull is pretended: which, and our answere to it,

CHAP. S. Many Soules destroyed, Pellar eretted. Two Serpents.

wealth and riches, we have in fortie fine or fortie eight yeeres, wasted and confirmed more Land then all Ewope, yea and part of Asia, doe in length and breath containe, robbing and viurping voon that with all cruekite, wrong, and tyranne, which we have feene well inhabited with huwhen the warm with the same been flaine and deftroyed twentie "Millions of foules. lions deftroid

In the twelfib and last Reply as felloweth, The Spaniards have not entred into India for any de-In the twelfto and last Kepty as passwers, a ne openiarian induction content and procure the fact of the fire to exalt Gols honour, or for zeale to Christian Religion, either to favour, and procure the lion, which is faluation of their Neighbours, no, neither for their Princes feruice, whereof they doe fo vainely tobevnder brigge : but Couctoufieffe bath brought them, and Ambition hath allured them so the perpetu- flood of foms all dominion over the Indies, which they as Tyrants and Devils, doe court to bee parted among greater part, an dominion one and the planty and flatly, doe feeke no other but to expell and drue the Kings of not of all the to them; and to fpeake planty and flatly, doe feeke no other but to expell and drue the Kings of Indies, Yea, Caffel out of all that World, and them felius feizing thereupon, by Trannie to viurpe and take only in New ypon them all Royall Source entie.

Spaine, Handuvas. Guatimala.

Vonefuels, Peru, and the Coast of Peris, he reckoneth about 20. Millons: befides three Millions in Hispaniels, halfe a Million in the Venjung rers, and the Control in lamane, and Saint logar llands: 80000 in Tora Firms, in Nicarque, $5,0000, that I men-Lacques, 000000 or tauta multitudes in Caba, Thrace, Florida, Kairje, Tutaten, Saint Martha, Carbatena, New Granado ; River of tion not the innumerable multitudes in Caba, Thrace, Florida, Kairje, Tutaten, Saint Martha, Carbatena, New Granado ; River of

CHAP. V.

Notes of Voyages and Plantations of the French in the Northerne America : both in Florida and Canada.

F the French Plantation in that part of Brafill by Villagaynon, which therefore Frier Themet called France Antarctike, you haue feene alreadie in Leriau. Besides the Erench baue almost from the first beginnings of the Spanish Plantation, with the Eroseb haue almost from the first organization of the Department of the Eroseb haue almost those Coasis, and taken many Spanish prifes: The Freekb as our of Out-method warte haunted those Coasis, and stelled some Indication for a time in the liberor ob-Northerne parts of the New World, and the soul, and the second

John Verranan a Florenine was ient Anno 1524. by King Francis thefirst, and Madame Regent his Mother, who is faid to have discourred from the eight and twentieth to the fittieth degree; (all which and much more had long before beene discouerd by Sir Sebastian Cabor for the Sir Seb, Cabor. King of England, who was the first that iet foote on the American Continent in behalfe of any Chriftian Prince Anne 1496, or 45 others 1497, and therefore the French reckoning talleth flort, fome of which Nation woon Verasimes Discouery challenge I know not what right to all that Coult, and make their New France neere as great as all Europe. To leave that, we are to do them Historical right in relating their actions in those parts. The Rives and Customes of Florida are related at large by Rene Laudenniere, by Master Haklays translated, and in his Workes published. Laudonniere was fent by that famous Admirall Chaffillon with John Ribalt, Anno 1562: who ar- Cap. Ribalt. 40 rived at Cape François in Florida in thirtie degrees and there erected a Pillar with the French Armess The Raier they called the River of May, having entred it on May day. In the Woods they found great store of red and white Mulberie Trees, and on their tops an infinite number of Silk wormes, Eight other Rivers they diffcoursed to which they gave the names of Some, Som. Silk-wormes me, Lope; Cherente, Garonne, Gironde, Belle, Grande, and after that Belle a Voire, and Port Royal: Pore Royal: In this last they anchored; the River at the mouth is three French leagues broad : hee sayled up 32 degrees. many leagues, and ereceted another like Pillar of flone. Ribat having built a Fort and furnished it wicht prouitions, called it Charles Bort, and left a Golome there vider Captaine Albers. Thefe found great kindnelle with their Indian Neighbourry till differeion happened amongst them. felues, the Captaine for a small fault hanging a Souldier and exercising feweritie surer the reff, Mutinie, Capt 50 which thereupon in a mutinie flue him, and having cholen a new Captaine, they built a Paintaffe Albert flaine. and furnished it as well as they could to returne for France, but surprized in the way wath calmes, and expence of their prouition, they first did eare their shooes and Buffe lerkins, and yet continuing tassified, they killed one of their fellowes called La Chere, and made cheere of him, and after met with an English Barke which releesed them, and fetting fomeon Land, brought the rest to Queene Elizabeth. The caule of their not relecting according to promife was the Civil warres, which beeing compounded the Admirall procured the King to tend three Ships to Blorida under the command of the Author Rene Landonniere, which fet faile in Aprill 1964. Howencon hore at Dominica, The fecond in which lland his men killed two Serpents nine foote long; and as bigge statements logge, The Golonie. 60 two and twentieth of Iune, they landed in Floridation leagues about Cape Prangos; and afterin the River of May, where the Indians very joyently welcommed them, and yelle None Piller Stone Piller rected by Ribalt was crowned with bayes and baskers of Mill or Marziet at the foot, and they worthipp d. killed the lame with great reverence. One of Paraconff (or the King) his Sound preferred the , Captain with a wedge of filier. With another Parcenffy they law one old Fretier with the west toge, yeeres old. The Vaffals are petty N'e-T. TREES, OF Lords of Vil·lages.

but living, and of his loines fixe generations descended, all present, so that the Sonne of the ele-Men nigh 300, deft was supposed two hundred and fiftie yeeres old. They planted themselves on this River of May, and there built a Fort which they called Carolina of their King Charles. Landonniere fent Outron his Lieutenant to fearch out the people called Thimages, whence that filler wedge had comne, and there heard of a great King Olata Ouae Utina, to whom fortie Kings were valide. Seturiona was laid to have thirtie, and to be enemie to Vina.

A tearefull lightning happened which burned fine hundred acres of ground, and all the fowler after which followed fuch a hear, that as many fish were dead therewith at the mouth of the River, as would have laden fiftie Carts, and of their putrifaction gricuous difeafes. The Sanger had thought the French had done it with their Ordnance. He got fome prisoners of Vimas lib. la iects which Saturiona had taken and fent them to him, fome of his men affifting Vina in his warres against Poranou one of his enemies, and returning with some quantitie of Silver Whiles things continued in good termes with the Sanages Mutinies and Conspiracies fell out among it the French, fome confpring to kill the Captaine, others running away with the Barke one of which robbed by Sca, and after was driven by famine to leeke to the Spaniardeat Hanne and when two other Barkes were a building, a third Contpiracie feized on the Captaine, detain ned him Pritoner, and forced him to subscribe their passe with these two Barkes. Away they wene and the next duifion was among the hem felues, one Barke departing from the others, One of them after divers Piracies came backe, and the chiefe mutinies were executed. Francis less the one of the other Barke was he which after brought the Spaniards thither to deftroy them. The

Mutinies.

a. o hau luch a cuft...m:

Indians vie to keepe in the Woods Ianuarie, Februarie, and March, and line on what they take in huncing; fo that the French neither receiving their expected reliefe from France, nor from the Sanages which had no Corne, having before fold them what they had, fuffered grieuous famine: they relolued to build a vestell able to carrie them into France, the Sanages making aduntages of their necessities (according to the wonted perindiousnesse of those wilde people) whereupon they tooke King Vima Pritoner with his Sonne to get food for his ranfome. The famine was fo Civell famine. Tharpe that it made the bones to grow thorow the skinne, and when the Maiz by the and of May came to some ripenesse, food it selfe ouercame their weake stomacks. Some reliefe they had by Sit lobn Hawkens who came thicher with foure thips, guided by a man of Deepe which had been ! there in Ribalts Voyage, who also offered to transport hum, and fet them all on land in France. This he refuted, but made good aduantage hereof with the Sanages, telling them that this was his brother which brought him great reliefe and plentie, whereupon all fought his friendfhip, His men at last generally fearing to continue in that milery, wanting both apparell and victuall, and meanes to returne, to wrought with him, that not daring to give the Silver, and fuch things ashe had gotten in the Countrie (which might bring an English Plantation into thole parts) he bought a thip of Sir lohn Hawkins, who parely feld and parely gaue them provisions also of apparell and victuall for their returne; and as Landonniere acknowledgeth like a charitable man, faued

I we has preas kindnifle.

Third Flor dan Voyage by C.

Gold Mynes

Maffacre. Cap. Dome!T Geargnes: :0

Three Forts Spinish.

Whiles thus they were preparing to fet faile. Captaine Ribals came into the River with feven 40 faile foure greater and three leffe (whom the Admirall had fent, hearing that Landomiere lorded and domineered in cyrannicall and infolent manner) and was folemnely welcommed in the end of August 1 964. A while after, when as the Indians had filled Captaine Ribalt with golden hopes of the Myries at Apalatei, fome proofes whereof were found to be perfect gold, fixe great flips of Spaniards same into the River on the fourth of September, and madefaire thew to the French, which trulted them neuer the more, but let flip their Anchors and fled; being no way matchable but in swiftnesse of faile, whereby they escaped the pursuite of the Spaniards, and observed their courie fending word thereof to Captaine Ribalt. The High Admirall Chaftillon also had in his the French and last Letters written to Ribale, that he had intelligence out of Spaine, of Don Pedro Melender plantin Floris his Expedition to Florida, suft before his comming from France, Captaine Ribals embarkes him- 50 leite the eighbor September, pretending to goe feeke the Spaniards, which foone after came to Leke the French at their Fott, guided by Francis lean, before a Mutiner . now allo a Traytour, who showed the Captaine to the Spaniards. Notwithstanding their affault, Laudonniere made an elcape with some others over the Marishes into the ships, and so returned first into England. and after into France. Captaine Ribalt was surprized with a Tempest which wracked him vpon the Coath, and all his thips were cathaway, himfelte hardly escaping drowning, but not escaping the more then Rockie Spaniards which madacred him and all his companie.

This butcherie was revenged in a fourth Floridan Voyage made from France , by Captaine Gaurgues, Lanua 1567, who borrowed and fold to fet fortnehree thips, and entring the River Taseanecourn (which site French called Seine) he made league with eight Sausee Kings, which had 60 beene much stupighted by the Spaniards, and were growne as infrightfull to them. The Spaniards were accounted foure fundred iftong, and had divided themfelies into three Forts vpon the Riwer of allage the greatest begun by the French; two smaller neerer the Rivers mouth to fortine each thereof with swelue hundred Souldiers in them well prouded for Munition.

In Aprill 1568, he tooke their two Forts and flue all the Spaniards, the vindicative Sanages giung him vehement and eager affiftance, especially Oloscara, Nephew to Sasmiona. As they went to the Fort, he faid, that he should die there, and therefore delired Gonrewes to give that to his wife which he would have given himfelfe, that it might bee buried with himfor his better. Why the Sassa his wire which he would have Soules departed. This Fort was taken, the Spaniards fome flame, goods interred others taken, and hanged on the fame trees on which the French hung; flue of which on of the fe with them. Spaniards confessed he had hanged, and now acknowledged the Dinine Instice. In steed of the Writings which Melendes had hanged over them, I doe not this as to Frenchmen but as to Lutherans; Courgues let vp another, I doe not this as to Spaniards or Mariners, but as to Trainers, Robbers Infl requirall, n and Muriberers. The Fores he razed, not having men to keepe them, and in June following arrived in Rockel. Comming to the King with expectation of reward, the Spanift King had to poffessed him, that he was faine to hide himselfe. This Dominicke de Gourenes had beene an old Souldier, once imprisoned, and of a Captaine made a Gally-flaue by the Spaniards, and grew for his feruice in reputation with the Queene of England : he died Anno 1582. And thus much of the French Voyages in Florida, for Voginias like worthy to be knowne of the English. Now for their more Northerne Voyages and Plantations. Mafter Haklurt hath published the Voyages of laques Cartier, who in Aprill 1534. departed from Saint Malo with two ships, and in May arrived at Newfoundland. On the one and twentieth of May they came to the lland of Birds a league about, to full of Birds as if they were towel ace and there, and a hundred times as many houering about it, some as bigge as layes, blacke and white liand or Finds with beakes like Crowes, lying alway on the Sea; their wings not bigger then halic ones hand, in 49 degr. is which makes that they cannot flee high. In lesse then halfe an houre they filled two Boats with 40, minutes, them. These they named Aparatz; another lesse Port, which put them elues under the wings of others greater, they called Godeta, a third, bigger and white, byting like Dogges they called Margauls. Though the lland be fourteene leagues from the Continent, Beares come thither to Margauls feed on those Birds. One white one as bigge as a Kow they killed in her swimming, and found forme cobe her good meate. Three such Bird Hands they also discourred the fine and twentieth of June, which Pergrant. they called the lands of Marganix. There also they found Morfes, Beares and Wolues, But thele Northerne Coasts are better knowne to our Countrymen : then that I should mention his 30 French names, which from Cabets time almost forty yeeres before had beene knowne to the English. The next yeere Cartier fet forth with three ships to Saint Lawrence his Bay, and so to the Riuer of Hochelaga. They went to Canada, and to the Towne of Hochelaga. They faw the great and fwitt fall of the River, and were told of three more therein. The Scorbute that Winter killed fine and twentie of their men in their Fort: the rest recoursed by the vie the fap and leaves of a tree called Hameda, which was thought to be Saffafras. These reports of Canada, Saguenas, and Hochelaga, caused King Francis to fend him againe, Anno 1540. purpoting also to tend lobn Francis de la Roche, Lord of Robewall to be his Lieutenant in the Countries of Canada, Sagnena, L. of Rebene? and Hochelaga. Hee went Anno 1942, his chiefe Pilot was lohn Alphonso of Xantongne, whose 85 Notes, as also the Relation of that Voyage with three shippes, and two hundred persons, men, women and children, Matter Hablust hath recorded. He built a Fort and wintered there: and then returned. These were the French beginnings, who have continued their Trading in those parts by yeerly Voyages to that Coast to these times, for fishing, and sometimes for Beauers skinnes and other Commodities. One Sanales is faid to have made two and forty Voyages to those parts. Sanaless 42. Marke Lescarbos hath published a large Booke called Nona Francia, and additions thereto, part Voya, esto of which we have here for better intelligence of those parts, added with Champleins Discourries. Newfounding.

CHAP. VI.

The Voyage of SAMVEL CHAMPLAINE of Brouage, made unto Canada in the yeere 1603. dedicated to CHARLES de Montmorencie, erc. High Admirall of France.

Edeparted from Honflew, the fifteenth day of March 1603. This day we put in- Their Voyago to the Roade of New Haum, because the winde was contrary. The Sinday fol. to Tadaular, lowing being the fixteenth of the faid moneth, we feet faile to proceed on our Voy. 680.71. age. The seventeenth day following, we had fight of lersey and Tarnsey, which are Hes between the Coaft of Normandie and England. The eighteenth of the laid moneth, wee discryed the Coast of Britame. The nineteemth, at seven of the clocke at night, we made account that we were thwart of Ulhent. The one and twentieth, at feuen of clocke in the morning, we met with lenen ships of Hollanders, which to our judgement came from the

Indies. On Eafter day, the thirtieth of the faid moneth, wee were encountred with a great forme, which feemed rather to be thunder then winde, which lafted the space of seventeene dayes, but not to great as it was the two first dayes; and during the faid time we rather lost way then gained.

The fix eenth day of Aprill the forme began to cease, and the Sea became more calme then before, to the contentment of all the Company; in such fort as continuing our faid course you till the cighteenth of the fail moneth, we met with a very high Mountaine of Ice. The morrow A hanks of lee after we differied a banke of Ice, which continued aboue eight leagues in length, with an infinite A lanke of the number of other smaller peeces of Ice, which hindred our passage. And by the judgement of our iong in 45,de- Pilot, the faid flakes or Ice were one hundred or one hundred & twenty leagues from the Coun- Io erces and two try of Canada; and we werein45, degrees and two third parts; & we found passage in 44, deg. The second of May, at eleven of clocke of the day, we came voon The Banke in 44. degrees one third and deer, one part. The fixt of the faid moneth, we came to neere the land that we heard the Seabeate against the shore, but we could not descrie the same through the thicknesse of the fogge, whereunte there coasts are subject; which was the cause that we put farther certaine leagues into the Sea. fubicato fogs vntill the next day in the morning, when we descried land, the weather being very cleere, which was the Cape of Saint Marie. The twelfth day following we were ouertaken with a great flaw of winde, which lafted two dayes. The fifteenth of the faid moneth, wee descried the Isles of The Isles of S. Saint Peter. The fewenteenth following we met with a banke of Ice neere Cape de Raie, fixe leagues in length, which caufed vs to ftrike faile all the night, to avoide the danger we might in- 20 Abrake of Lee curre. The next day we fet faile, and deforted Capette Raie, and the Illes of Saint Paul, and Cape 6.ha; ues long de Saint Laurence, which is on the South fide. And from the faid Cape of Saint Laurence vnto Cape de S. Leu. Cape de Raie, is eighteene leagues, which is the breadth of the entrance of the great Gulfe of Canada.

The lame day, about ten of the clocke in the morning, we met with another Hand of Ice, which was about eight leagues long. The twentieth of the faid moneth, we discried an Ille, Antiand of lee which containeth fome five and twenty or thirty leagues in length, which is called the life of Assumption, which is the entrance of the River of Canada. The next day we descried Gachepe which is a very high land, and began to enter into the faid River of Canuda, ranging the South coast vnto the River of Mantanne, which is from the faid Gachepe fixtie five leagues; from the 19 faid River of Mantanne we failed as farre as the Pike, which is twenty leagues, which is on the South fide alfo: from the faid Pike we failed ouer the River vnto the port of Tadoufac, which is fifteene leagues. All these Countries are very high, and barren, yeelding no commoditie. The foure and twentieth of the faid moneth we cast anker before Tadonfae, and the fix and twentieth Gachere cooleg we entred into the faid Port, which is made like to a creeke in the entrance of the River of Saquenay, where there is a very frange current and tide, for the swiftnesse and depth thereof. where

The description formetimes strong windes do blow, because of the cold which they bring with them; it is thought on of the hat the faid River is five and forty or fiftie leagues vnto the first fall, and it commeth from the The Ruer of North North-west. The faid Port of Tadonjac is little, wherein there cannot ride aboue tenor Sagenaf falic h twelve Ships : but there is water enough toward the East, toward the opening of the faid River 40 of Sagenar along by a little hill, which is almost cut off from the maine by the Sea: The rest of the Countrie are very high Mountaines, whereon there is little mould, but rockes and fands full of woods of Pines, Cypresses, Fir-trees, Burch , and some other forts of trees of small price. There is a little Poole neere vnto the faid Port, enclosed with Mountaines couered with woods. At the entrance of the faid Port there are two points, the one on the Welt fide running a league into the Sea, which is called Saint Matthewes point; and the other on the South-east fide, containing a quarter of a league, which is called the point of all the Dinels. The South and South thence to the South-east, and South South-west windes doe strike into the faid hauen. But from Saint Mat-Sca shoare of themes Point, to the said Point of all the Dinels, is very neere a league : Both these Points are dry Canadais about at a low water.

which entring into the Sea, hath 100 miles, and up to the fals (which Voyage followeth) continue th a marucilous breadth, so that it may be for greatnesse reputed greater then any other River in our world, or in the Northerne parts of the New :full also of Lakes and Hands for greater magnificence,

"He feuen and twentieth day we fought the Sauages at the Point of Saint Matthew, which I is a league from Tadoufac, with the two Sauages whom Monfieur du Pour brought with frofts & wars. him, to make report of that which they had seene in France, and of the good entertainement which the King had given them. As foone as we were landed we went to the Caban of their great Sagamo, which is called Anadabijou, where we found him with some eightie or a hundred of his companions, which were making Tabagie, that is to fay, a Feath. Hee received vs very 60 well, according to the cultome of the Countrey, and made vatir downe by him, and all the Sanages fat along one by another on both fides of the faid Cabine. One of the Sauages which we had brought with vs began to make his Oration, of the good entertainement which the king had given them, and of the good viege that they had received in France, and that they might affire

the world to which they willied more good, then to the French. In fine, hee game them all to there is one which deuideth to every man his part in the fame diffies, wherein they feede very filthily, for when their hands be fattie, they rub them on their haire, or elfe on the haire of their dogs, whereof they have flore to hunt with, Before their meate was fodden, one of them role vp, and took a dog, & danced about the faid Kettels from the one end of the Cabin to theother: when he came before the great Segeme, he cast his dog perforce vpon the ground, and then all of them with one voice, cried, ho, ho, which being done he went and far him downe in his place; then immediately another role vp and did the like, and fo they continued untill the meate was fodden. When they had ended their Feaft, they began to dance, taking the heads of their enemies in their hands, which hanged voon the wall behinde them; and in figne of toy there is one or two 30 which fing, moderating their volce by the meature of their hands, which they beate voon their knees, then they reft fometimes, and cry, ho, he, ho; and begin againe to dance, & blow like a man 40 in the forefaid haven of Tadonfae, where our Ship was jat the break of day their faid great Sagamo came out of his Cabine, going round about all the other Cabins, and cried with a loud voice that they should dislodge to goe to Talenfac, where their good friends were. Immediately every man in a trice tooke down his cabin, and the faid grand Captain, fift began to take his cance, & carried it to the Sea, where he embarked his wife and children, & flore of furs, and in like manner did well neere two hundred canowes, which goe firangely; for though our Shallop was well manned,

Theheriumaka

CHAP.6. Faire Caftles. Manner of Dancing, Point of Saint Mathew. themselves that his said Maiestie wished them well, and defired to people their Countrey, and to make peace with their enemies (which are the Irecon) or to fend them forces to vanguish them.

He alio reckoned up the faire Castels, Palaces, Houses, and people which they had seene, and our manner of liuing. He was heard with to great filence, as more cannot be vettered. Now when nemies to de he had ended his Oration, the faid grand Sagamo Anadabijon, hauing heard him attentiuely nadabijon. he had ended his Oration, the faid grand Sagamo Anadabijon, hauing heard him attentiuely nadabijon. he folker Tobacco, and gaue to the faid Monfieur das Pons Granse of Saint Male, and to mee, and to certaine other Sagamor which were by him : after he had taken store of Tobacco, he becan to make his Oracion to alt, speaking diffinctly, resting sometimes a little, and then speaking againe, faying, that doubtletle they ought to be very glad to have his Maieltie for their great The Oration in friend: they answered all with one voyce, ho, ho, ho, which is to say, yea, yea, yea, He proceeding forward in his speech , faid, That he was very well content that his faid Malestie should people their Countrey, and make warre against their enemies, and that there was no Nation in understand what good and prefit they might receive of his faid Maiestie. When hee had ended his forech, we went out of his Cabine, and they began to make their Tabagie or Feaft, which they make with the fielh of Originac, which is like an Oxe, of Beares, of Seales, and Beuers, Orienac a which are the most ordinary victuals which they have, & with great store of wilde Fowle. They Beaft like as had eight or ten Kettelsfull of meate in the middelt of the faid Cabine, and they were fet one Oxe. from another some fix paces, and each one wpon a severall fire. The men fat on both sides the 20 houle (as I faid before) with his difh made of the barke of a tree: and when the meate is fodden.

that is out of breath. They made this triumph for a victory which they had gotten of the Irectio, A victorie se of whom they had flaine some hundred, whose heads they cut off, which they had with them for ten of the Irithe ceremony. They were three Nations when they went to war; the Effectioning, Algorinequins, con and Mountainers, to the number of a thousand, when they went to war against the freeze whom Affected they encountred at the mouth of the River of the laid Irocois, and flew an hundred of them. The war which they make is altogether by furprifes, for otherwise they would be out of hatt; othey The Riner of feare the faid Irocois very much, which are in greater number then the faid Mountainers, Efteche- the waste mins and Algormequins. The twenty eight day of the faid moneth, they encamped themselves The Ireen at yet they went more fwift then we. There are but two that row, the man and the wife. Their Ca- Two hundred nowes are some eight or nine pales long, and a pace, or a pace & a halfe broad in the middeft, and Canowes, grow sharper & sharper toward both the ends. They are very subject to ouerturning, if one know not how to guide themsfor they are made of the barke of a Birch tree, ffrengthned within with little circles of wood well & handsomely framed, and are so light, that one man will carry one of them eafily and enery Canowe is able to carry the weight of a Pipe; when they would passe our any land to goe to fome River where they have busines, they carry them with them. Their Cabins are low, made like Tents, couered with the faid barke of a tree, and they leave in the roofe about a Their Cabins foot spacevncoueted, wherby the light commeth in; and they make many fires right in the midit madel ketcate of their Cabin, where they are fometimes ten housholds together. They he vpon skins one by an- and couered other, and their dogs with them. They were about a thouland persons, men, women and children, with the barles The place of the point of S. Matthew, where they were first lodged, is very pleasant; they were at of trees. thebottome of a little hill, which was ful of Fir & Cypreffe trees: vpon this point there is a little Cypreffe trees level plot, which discovereth far off, & vpon the top of the faid hill, there is a Plain, a league long, 60 and halfe a league broad, couered with trees; the foile is very landy, and is good pasture; all the rest is nothing but Mountains of very bad rocks: the Sea beateth round about the faid hil, which is dry for a large halfe league at a low water.

THe ninth day of June the Sauages began to make mersie together, and to make their feaft, as bumors, jamin I Thate faid before, and to dance for the aforefaid victory which they had obtained against fuperfittion & chest

The Ranke in

1606

S. alarie.

aboue eight leagues long. The lie of Af-Sumption. Gachepe. The River Mantinne. The Pike. Tadousac, from into Camada. Thit of Sagebars Mapes. preffed to enter on the North fide of Canada about fixtic miles. The great Sagamo their

The Deccis. Two Sauages brought out of France. Anadabijan, Sauages which we brought with vs.

their enemies. After they had made good cheere, the Algonmegnins, one of the three Nations.

went cut of their Cabins, and retired themselves apart into a punishe place, and caused all their women and girles to fit downe in rapkes one by the other, and flood themselves behinde, then finging all in one time, as I have faid before. And fuddenly all the women and maidens began to tinging all in one time, as a have had before. And judgenly at the women and majoran began of act of their Mantles of skins, and Hippyred themfollows flates naked, flowing their principles of cord act the heir set the hire of the Porke-pike.

Books-pike.

The principles of the Porke-pike of the Mantles of the principles of the Porke-pike.

The principles of the Porke-pike of the Porke-pi coured treatment was the second to they age at the teep, not reason of which then erfoone beginning against on ing, they let all their Manuelsay they did before. They goe to their manner not out of one place within they dance, and make certaine gestures and motions of the body, but lifting vp one foote and then another, Hamping vpon the ground. While they were dancing of Befour the Se-tion of the Seand wights, perweight and fail to the Mountainers and Exchanging and May 2. Sometimes he role and made a "peech and fail to the Mountainers and Exchangings by the how we reinjoye for the victory which we have obtained of our enemies ye must doe the like, that we may be contented: then they all together cred, ho, ho, to. Affoone as hee was returned to his place, the ereat Sagamo, and all his companions calf off their Mantels, being flarke naked faue their printties, which were courted with a little skin, and tooke each of them what they thought good, as Marachias, Hatchets, Swords, Kettels, Far, Flesh of the Orignac, Seales, in briefe, euery one 20 had a prefent, which they gave the Algoumequine. After all thefe ceremonies the dance ceased, and the faid Algoumequins both men and women carried away their prefents to their lodgings. They chole out allo two men of each Nation of the best disposition, which they caused to run, and he which was the fwiftelt in running had a prefent,

All their people are of a very cheerefull complexion, they laugh for the most part, henertheleffechey are formewhat melancholly. They speake very diffinedly, as though they would make themselves well understood, and they stay quickely bethinking themselves a great while, and then they begin their speech againe : they often vie this fathion in the middelf of their Orations in countaile, where there are none but the principals, which are the ancients : the women and children are not prefent. All these people sometimes endure so great excremity, that they are al- 30 most confirmed to eate one another, through the great colds and mowes; for the Beats and These Sauages Fowles whereof they fuie, retire themselves into more hot chimates. I thinke if any would teach them how to flue, and to learne to till the ground, and other things, they would elearne very well; of I dilare you that many of them are of good indgement, and aniwere very well to the purpole to any thing that a man full demand of them. They have one naughty qualitie in them,

Their had quare which is, that they are given to revenge, and great lyars, a people to whom you must not give which is, that they are good and flanding on your owne guard. They promise much and per-too much credit, but with reason, and slanding on your owne guard. They promise much and per-forme little. They are for the most part a propie that have no Law, as same as I could see and enforme my selfe of the said great Gagame, who told me, that they constantly believe, that there is one God, which hath made all things: And then I faid vnto him, fince they beleeve in one 40 God onely, How is it that he sent them into this workl, and from whence came they? he answered me, that after God had made all things, he tooke a number of Arrowes, and thucke them in the Sauages. the ground, from whence men and women grew, which have multiplied in the world vntill this prejent, and had their original on this felhion. I replied vnto him, that this which hee faid was ralle; but that indeed there was one God onely, which had created all things in the earth, and in the heavens : leeing all thele things to perfect, without any body to governe this world beneath, he tooke of the flime of the earth, & thereof made Adem our first Father As Adam fipt, God tooke a rib of the fide of Adam, & thereof made Ene, whom he game him for his companion; and that this was the truth that they and we had our original after this mariner, and not of Arrowes as they beleeved. He faid nothing voto me, faue, that he beleeved rather that which I faid, 10 then that which he told me. I asked him also, whether he beleeved not that there was any other but one God onely, He told me, that their beliefe was, That there was one God, one Sonne, one Mother, and the Sunne, which were foure; yet that God was about them all; but that the Son They beleene was good and the Sunne in the firmament, because of the good that they received of them; but one God, one Son one Mothat the Mother was naught, and did eate them, and that the Father was not very good. I ther, and the shewed him his errour according to our faith, wherein he gaue mee some small credit. Idemanded of him, whether they had not freme nor heard fay of their ancellors, that God came into the world. He told me, that he had neuer feene him, but that in old time there were five men which went toward the Sunne ferting, which met with God, who asked them, Whither goe ye They faid, we goe to feeke our liuing : God answered them, you shall finde it here. They went far- 60 ther, without regarding what God had faid unto them : which tooke a flone, and touched wo of them with it, which were turned into a stone: And hee said againe vnto the other three, Whither goe yee? and they answered as at the first : and God fail to them againe, Goeno further, you shall finde it here. And feeing that nothing came wnto them, they went farther: and God tooks two states, and touched the two first therewith, which were turned ther: and God asked him again, whither go-into flaves; and the fits flaved and would goe no turther: And God asked him again, whither goeft thou! I goe to feeke my living : flay and thou shalt finde it. He stayed without going any further, and God giue him meate, and he did eaternereof; after lie had well fed, hee returned with other Sauages, and cold them all the former frome. He told them also, That another time there was a man which had itore of Tobacco (which is a kinde of hearbe, whereof they take the (moake.) And that God came to this man, and asked him where his Tobacco pine was? The man tooke his Tobacco pipe and gaue it to God, which took-Tobacco a great while a after hee had taken flore of Tobacco, God broke the faid pipe into many peeces : and the man asked him, why to half thou broken my pipe, and fieit that I have no more? And God tooke one which hee had, and gausit him, and tata vinto him; loe here I gue thee one, carry it to thy great Sagamo, and charge him to keepe it, and if he keepe it well he shall neuer want any thing, nor none of his companions. The faid man tooke the Tobacco pipe, and gaue it to his great Sagamo. which as long as he kept, the Sauages wanted nothing in the world. But after that the faid Sagame loit long as he kept, the Sauages winted nothing in the words. Surface that any sugarment of this Tobacco pips, which was the occasion of great famine, which cometimes they have among time increases. this 1 obacco pro- whither he beleeu: d all this? he faid yea, and that it was true. This I beleeue is more the Sac

the saufe wherefore they lay that God is not very good. But I replied and told him, that God unges. was wholly good; and that without doubt this was the Diuell that appeared to these men, and that if they would believe in God as we doe, they should not want any thing needefull. That 20 the Same which they beheld, the Moone and the Starres were created by this great God, which hath made heaven and earth, and they have no powerbut that which God hash given them. That we believe in this great God, who by his goo in fe hath tent vs his deare Sonne, which being conceived by the holy Ghoit, tooke humaine field in the Virginall wombe of the Virgin Marie, having bin thirty three yeares on the earth, working infinite miracles, raifing up the dead, healing the ficke, cafting out Dauels, giving fight to the blinde, teaching men the will of God his Father, to terue, honour, and worthip him, did thed his bloud, and fuffred death and paifion for vs, and for our tinnes, and redeemed mankinde, and being buried, he rote againe, he cefcended into hell, and ascended into heasen, where he fitteth at the right hand of God his Father. That this the beleefe of all the Christians, which beleeve in the Father, the Sonne, and he 30 holy Ghoft, which nevertheleffe are not three Gods, but one onely, and one onely God, and one Trinitie, in the which none is before or after the other, none greater or leffe then another. That the Virgin Mary the Mother of the Sonne of God, and all men and women which have fixed in this world, doing the commandements of God, and f. ffring martyrdome for his name lake, and by the permission of God haue wrought miracles, and are Saints in heaven in his Paradite, doe all pray this great divine Maiestie for vs, to pardon vs our faults and our finnes which we doe against his Law and his Commandements : and so by the prayers of the Saints in heaten, and by our prayers which we make to his divine Maiestie, he giveth that which we have neede of, and the Druell hatn no power ouer vs, and can doe vs no harme: That if they had this believe, they should be as we are, and that the Divell should be able to doe them no hurt, and should never wone 40 any thing necessary. Then the faid Sagamo told me, that he approued that which I faid. I asked him what ceremony they vied in praying to their God! He told me, that they vied none other ceremonies, but that every one praied in his heart as he thought good: This is the cause why I beleeue they have no law among them, neither doe they know how to worthip or pray to God, and line for the most part like brute beafts, and I thinke in short space they would be brong it to begood Christians, if their Countrie were planten, which they defire for the most part. They have among them certaine Sauages which they call Pilotona, which speak with with speak with the Divell, which telleth them what they muit doe, as well for the warre as for other things; and if he should command them to put any enterprise in execution, either to kill a French man, orany other of their Nation, they would immediately obey his commandement. Also they 50 beleeue that all the dreames which they dreame are true : and indeede there are many of them, which fay that they have feene and dreamed things which doe happen or shall happen. But to speake truely of these things, they are visions of the D well, which doth deceive and seduce them. Loe this is all their beliefe that I could learne of them, which is brutish and bestiall. All these people are well proportioned of their bodies, without any deformitie, they are well fet, and the They paint women are well shapen, fat and full, of a tawnie colour by abundance of a certaine painting with an Olius wherewith they rubbe themselves, which maketh them to be of an Oliue colour. They are colour. apparelled with skins, one part of their bodies is couered, and the other part vincouered; but in the winter they couer all, for they are clad with good Furres, namely with the skins of Originac, of skins. Otters, Beuers, Lea-boores, Stagges, and Deere, whereof they have store. In the winter when the Snowes are great, they make a kinde of racket which is twice or thrice as bigge as one of Adeliceto go ours in France, which they falten to their feete, and to goe on the Snow without linking; for on the fnow otherwise they could not hunt nor trauaile in many places. They have also a kinde of Marriage, with a Racket. Which is, that when a Milde is foureteene or fifteene yeares old , thee thall have many fernants The marriage and friends, and the may have carnall company with all thole which the liketh, then after five of the Savages.

Sausges which the Diuelia

or fix yeares, the may take which of them the will for her husband, and fo they thall live topether all their life time, except that after they have lived a certaine time together and have no children, the man may forfake her and take another wife, faying that his old wife is nothing worth, fo that the Maides are more free then the married Women. After they be married they be chaite, and their husbands for the most part are realous, which give presents to the Father or Parents of the Maide, which they have married: loe this is the ceremonie and fashion which they vie in their marriages.

Their buriels after the Tartars manner. They beleeue

Touching their burials, when a man or woman dieth, they make a pit, wherein they put all the goods which they have, as Kettels, Furres, Hatchets, Bowes and Arrowes, Apparell. and other things, and then they put the corps into the grave, and cover it with earth, and fet flore 10 of great peeces of wood over it, and one stake they fet vp on end, which they paint with red on the top. They believe the immortality of the Soule, and fay that when they be dead they soe into other Countries to reioyce with their parents and friends. ty of the foule.

He cleventh day of Iune, I went some twelve or fifteene leagues vp Saguenay, which is a faire River, and of incredible depth; for I beleeue, as farre as I could learne by conference whence it should come, that it is from a very high place, from whence there defcendeth a fall of water with great impetuolitie: but the water that proceedeth thereof is not able to make fuch a Ruer as this; which neuertheleffe holdeth not but from the faid course of water (where the which space are fortie five or fiftie leagues, and it is a good league and a halfe broad at the most, and a quarter of a league where it is narrowest, which causeth a great current of water. All the Countrie which I faw, was nothing but Mountaines, the most part of rockes couered with woods of Fir-trees, Cypreffes, and Birch-trees, the foyle very unpleasant, where I found not a league of plaine Countrey, neither on the one fide nor on the other. There are certaine hils of Sand and Illes in the faid River, which are very high aboue the water. In fine, they are very Defarts voide of Beafts and Birds; for Laffure you, as I went on hunting through places which feemed most pleasant voto mee, I found nothing at all, but small Birds which are like Nightingales, and Swallowes, which come thither in the Summer; for at other times I thinke there are none, because of the excessive cold which is there; this River com- 30 meth from the North-west. They reported vnto me, that having passed the first fall, from whence the currant of water commeth, they passe eight other fants or fals, and then they tra-

uaile one dayes journey without finding any, then they passe ten other sants, and come into a Lake, which they passe in two dayes (euery day they trausile at their ease, some twelve or fif-

French Ships bring to the faid Mountainers. The faid Sauages of the North fay, that they fee a by the North part between the lands; and in very deede it can be nothing elfe. This is that which

N Wednelday the eighteenthday of Iune, we departed from Tadou ac, to go to the Sault: we palled by an Ile, which is called the Ile da lieure, or the Ile of the Hare, which may be fome two leagues from the Land on the North fide, and fome feuen leagues from the faid Tadonfac, and fine leagues from the South Coast. From the Ile of the Hare we ranged the North Coast about halfe a league, vnto a point that runneth into the Sea, where a man must keepe farther off. 50

The faid point is within a league of the Ile, which is called the Ile da Condre, or the Ile of Filberds, which may be some two leagues in length: And from the said Ile to the Land on the North fide is a league. The faid He is somewhat even, and groweth sharpe toward both the ends; on the West end there are Medowes and Points of Rockes which stretch somewhat into the River. The faid He is somewhat pleasant, by reason of the Woods which enuiron the same. There is store of

Slate, and the foyle is formewhat gravelly : at the end whereof there is a Rocke which firetcheth

I have learned of the River of Saguenay.

first fall is) vnto the Port of Tadonfac, which is the mouth of the faid River of Saguenay. in 20

The River of Saguenay, & his originall. Ch47 4. A v.o.ent fall the immortali-

o. water.

A Mountainous Country.

The report of the beginning of the River of Saguenay. A Lake two daies iournie teene leagues :) at the end of the Lake there are people lodged : then they enter into three other Rivers, three or foure dayes in each of them; at the end of which Rivers there are two or long. Three other three kinde of Lakes, where the head of Saguenay beginneth : from the which head or Riuers. foring, vnto the faid Port of Tadonfac, is ten dayes journee with their Canowes. On the fide Two or three of the faid Rivers are many lodgingings, whither other Nacions come from the North, to trucke with the faid Mountainers, for skins of Beuers and Marterns, for other Merchandiles, which the Likes, where n the head of Saguenay be-Sea, which is falt. I hold, if this be fo, that it is some gulfe of this our Sea, which difgorgeth it selfe ginneth. That is, 120. leagu es. People of the North. A falt fea. Iourney to the fall and to certaine llands, arriual at Que bec. Chap.5. The Ifle of the Hare. The Ide of Filberds.

into the Sea about halfe a league. We passed to the North of the said Ile, which is distant from the He of the Hare twelue leagues. The Thursday following we departed from thence, and anchored at a dangerous nooke on the Northfile, where there be certaine Medowes, and a little Riuer, where the Sauager lodge 65 tomprimes. The field by weafful record the Co. 2 and 1 little Riuer, where the Sauager lodge 65 tometimes. The faid day wee ftill ranged the Coast on the North, vnto a place where weeput backeby reasons of the winds which were contrary vnto vs, where there were many Rockes and places very dangeous : here we stayed three dayes wayting for faire weather. All this Coatt is nothing but Mountaynes as well on the South fide as on the North, the most part like the Coast of the River of Saguenay. On Sunday the two and twentieth of the faid moneth wee departed to goe to the He of Orleans, in the way there are many Iles on the South shoare, which are low and concred with trees, shewing to be very pleasant, contayning (as I was able to judge) fome two leagues, and one league, and another halfe a league. About thele lles are nothing but Rocks and Flats, very dangerous to passe, and they are distant some two leagues from the mayne Land on the South.

CHAP. 6. Dangerous Rocks and Flats. Store of Vines. Saint Elov.

And from thence wee ranged the Ile of Orleans on the Southfide : It is a league from the The Ile of Or-North shoare, very pleasant and levell, contaying eight leagues in length. The Coast on the Leagues South shoare is low land, some two leagues into the Countrey : the faid lands begin to be low oto uer against the saidlle, which beginneth two leagues from the South Coast : to passe by the North fide is very dangerous for the bankes of Sand and Rockes, which are betweene the faid lle and the mayne Land, which is almost all dry at a low water. At the end of the faid Ile I saw a fall of water, which fell from a great Mountaine, of the faid River of Canada, and on the top of the faid Mountaine the ground is levell and pleasant to behold, although within the said Countries a man may fee high Mountaynes which may bee fome twenty, or five and twenty leagues wichin the Lands, which are neere the first Sante of Sagnenay. We anchored at Quebec, which Queben is a Strait of the faid River of Canada, which is some three hundred pales broad : there is at this Straic on the North fide a very high Mountayne, which falleth downe on both fides : all the reft is a leuell and goodly Countrey, where there are good grounds full of Trees, as Okes, Cypreffes, 30 Birches, Firre-trees and Afpes, and other Trees bearing fruit, and wild Vines: Sothat in mine opinion, if they were dreffed, they would be as good as ours. There are along the Coast of the Diamante. faid Quebec Diamants in the Rockes of Slate, which are better then thofeof Alonfon, From the faid Quebec to the Ile of Condre, or Filberds, are nine and twenty leagues.

N Munday the three and twentieth of the faid moneth, we departed from Quebec, where the River beguneth to grow broad fometimes one league, then a league and an halfe or Of the point two leagues at most. The Countrey groweth still fairer and fairer, and are all low grounds, of S. crair, of without Rockes, or very few. The North Coast is full of Rockes, and bankes of Sand Jonathan Rockes and Bankes of Sand Jonathan without Rockes, or very few. The North Coast is full of Rockes and bankes of Sand : you must Batilean, of the take the South fale, about some halfe league from the shore. There are certaine small Rivers which Rivers, Rocks, 30 are not nauigable, but only for the Canowes of the Sauges , wherein there be many fals. Wee les, Lands, anchored as high as Saint Croix, which is diffant from Quebee fifteene leagues. This is a low Trees, Fruits, point, which rifeth up on both fides. The Countrey is faire and leuell, and the foyles better then Countries, in any place that I have feene, with plenty of wood, but very few Firre-trees and Cyprelies, which are trong There are in these parts great store of Vines, Peares, imall Nuts, Cheries, Goode-beries, red and Quebes vino greene, and certaine imali Roots of the bignesse of a little Nut, refembling Musheroms in taste, The 3. Rivers. greene, and certaine small Roots of the bigness or a sittle runs, retembring remarked in talle, Chap 6.
Which are very good roaded and fod. All this soyle is blacke, without any Rockes, faue that Saint Orbix. there is great flore of Slate: The foyle is very fote, and if it were well manured it would yeeld 15, leagues. g eat increase. On the Northilde there is a River which is called Batifcan, which goeth farre in- Ground Nuts. to the Countrey, whereby fometimes the Algenmequins come downe : and another on the fame The Ruce Ed-40 fide three leagues from the faid Saint Croix, in the way from Quebec, which is, that where Iac- ifcan ques Quartier was in the beginning of the Discouery which he made hereof, and hee passed no farther. The faid River is pleafant, and goeth farre vp into the Countries. All this North Coaft is very leuell and delectable. On Tuesday the source and twentieth of the faid moneth, wee departed from the faid Saint Cross, where we stayed a tyde and an halfe, that we might passe the next day following by day light, because of the great number of Rockes which are thwart the River (a strange thing to behold) which is in a manner dry at a low water : But at halfe flood, a man may beginne to paffe fafely; yet you must take good heed, with the Lead alwayes in hand. The tyde floweth heere A goodly almost three fathomes and an halfe : the farther we went, the fairer was the Countrey. We went fome five leagues and an halfe, and anchored on the North fide. The Wednelday following wee

50 departed from the faid place, which is a flatter Countsey then that which we paffed before, full of great flore of Trees as that of Saint Croix. We passed hard by a little lie, which was full of An He full of Vines, and came to an Anchor on the South fide neere a little Hill: but beeing on the top thereof Vines.

There is at other little He three leagues from Saint Croix, toyning neere the South shore. Wee departed from the faid Hill the Thurlday following, and paffed by a little Ile, which is neere the Sixe forall North shoare, where I saw fixe small Rivers, whereof two are able to beare Boars farre vp, and Rivers. another is three hundred pases broad : there are certaine llands in the mouth of it; it goeth farre vp into the Countrey; it is the deepest of all the reit which are very pleasant to behold, the foyle 6) being full of Trees which are like to Walnut-trees, and have the same smell : but I saw no Fruit, which maketh me doubt : the Sanages told me that they beare Fruit like ours. In passing further we met an Ile, which is called Saint Eley, and another little Ile, which is hard by the North shoare : we passed betweene the faid He and the North shore, where betweene the one and the other are some hundred and fiftie paces. From the faid Ile we paged a league and be planted,

Another (mall

A herrer remperame. 15 leagues.

A great Lake. The head of Saguetay 106. leagues off.

into the Woods, the foile is good. The Friday following we departed from this Ile, coasting full the North file hard by the shoare, which is low and full of good Trees, and in great number as farre as the three Rivers, where it beginneth to have another temperature of the feafon . fomewhat differing from that of Saint Croix : because the Trees are there more forward then in any place that hitherto I had feene. From the three Rivers to Saint Croix are fifteene leagues. In this River are fixe Ilands, three of which are very small, and the others some five or sixe hundred in lland fi. to paces long, very pleasant and fertile, for the little quantitie of ground that they containe. There to is one lland in the middeft of the laid River, which looketh directly vpon the passage of the Ruer of Canada, and commandeth the other Ilands which lye further from the shoare, as well on the one fide as on the other, of foure or fine hundred paces : it rifeth on the South fide, and falleth fomewhat on the North fide. This in my judgement would be a very fit place to inhabit; and it might bee quickly fortified : for the situation is strong of it selfe,, and neere vnto a great Lake. which is about four leagues distant, which is almost inyned to the River of Saguenay, by the report of the Sauages, which travell almost an hundred leagues Northward, and passe many Saules. and then goe by Land some fine or fixe leagues, and enter into a Lake, whence the faid River of Saguener receiveth the best part of his Spring, and the faid Sauages come from the faid Lake to Tadoufac.

an halfe, on the South fide neere vnto a River, whereon Canowes might goe. All this Coaft on the North fide is very good, one may palle freely there, yet with the Lead in the hand, to avoid certaine points. All this Coast which we ranged is mouing Sand; but after you be entred a little

Moreover, the planting of The three Rivers would be a benefit for the liberty of certaine Nations, which dare not come that way for feare of the faid Irocois their enemies, which border vpon all the faid River of Canada. But this place being inhabited, we might make the Irocois and the other Sauages friends, or at least wife under the fauour of the faid Plantation, the faid Sauages might paffe freely without feare or danger : because the said place of The shree Riners is a passage. All the soyle which I saw on the North shoare is sandy. Wee went vp aboue a league A great course into the faid River, and could passe no further, by reason of the great current of water. We took a Boate to learch vp further, but we went not past a league, but we met a very Strait full of water, of some twelue paces, which caused vs that we could not passe no further. All the ground which I faw on the bankes of the faid River rifeth more and more, and is full of Firre-trees and 10 Cypresse Trees, and hath very few other Trees.

Great Lake di fcribed and River of the Irocois. Chap. 7. The Lake of Arzolefme.

15. leagues.

N the Saturday following, we departed from The three Rivers, and anchored at a Lake, which is four leagues distant. All this Countrey from The three Rivers to the entrance of the faid Lake is low ground, even with the water on the North fide; and on the South fide it is fomewhat higher. The faid Countrey is exceeding good, and the most pleasant that hitherto we had frene: the Woods are very thinne, so that a man may trauell easily through them. The next day being the nine and twentieth of Iune, we entred into the Lake, which is some fifteene leagues in length, and some seuen or eight leagues broad : At the entrance thereof on the South-A great River, fide within a league there is a River which is very great, and entreth into the Countrey some fix. 40 tie or eightie leagues, and continuing along the same Coast, there is another little River, which pierceth about two leagues into the Land, and commeth out of another small Lake, which may contains fome three or foure leagues. On the North fide where the Land sheweth very high, a man may fee some twentie leagues off; but by little and little the Mountaynes beginne to fall toward the West, as it were into a flat Countrey. The Sauages fay, that the greatest part of these Mountaynes are bad foyle. The faid Lake hath some three fathoms water whereas we passed, which was almost in the middest: the length lieth East and West, and the breadth from North to the South. I thinke it hath good fish in it, of fuch kinds as we have in our owne Countrey. Wee passed it the very same day, and anchored about two leagues within the great River which goeth vp to the Sault : In the mouth whereof 50 are thirtie imall Ilands, as farre as I could difcerne; some of them are of two leagues, others a league and an halfe, & fome leffe, which are full of Walnut-trees, which are not much different from ours; and I thinke their Walnuts are good when they bee ripe : I faw many of them under the Trees, which were of two forts, the one small, and the others as long as a mans Thumbe, Store of Vines, but they were rotten. There are also store of Vines vpon the bankes of the faid Hands. But when the waters be great, the most part of them is couered with water. And this Countrey is yet better then any other which I had feene before.

The last day of Iune wee departed from thence, and passed by the mouth of the River The River of of the Irocois; where the Saunger which came to make warre against them, were lodged Their manner and fortified. Their Fortresse was made with a number of posts tet very close one to ano. 62 ther, which is yield on the one fide on the banke of the great River of Canada, and the of fortification with Askes. other on the banke of the River of the Irecois : and their Boates were ranged the one by the other neere the shoare, that they might she away with speed, if by chance they should bee surginfed by the Irocois. For their Fort is couered with the barke of Okes, and ferneth them for nothing elic, but to have time to embarke themselves. We went up the River of the Irocois some fine or fixe leagues, and could passe no farther with our Pinnasse, by reason of the great course of water which descendeth, and also because we cannot goe on Land, and draw the Pinnasse for the multitude of Trees which are vpon the bankes.

CHAP. 6. Wholfome River. Many Iles and fruitfull trees. Low Land.

Seeing we could not passe any further, we tooke our Skiffe, to see whether the current were more gentle, but going vp fome two leagues, it was yet ftronger, and wee could goe no higher. Being able to doe no more we returned to our Pinnaffe. All this River is some three hundred or foure hundred paces broad, and very wholfome. Wee faw fine Ilands in it, diffant one from the other a quarter or halfe a league, or a league at the most : one of which is a league long, which is 10 the necreit to the mouth, and the others are very small. All these Countries are coursed with Fine I ands. Trees and low Lands, like those which I had seene before; but here are more Firres and Cypresfesthen in other places. Neuerthelese, the foile is good, although it bee somewhat sandy. This River runneth in a manner South-west. The Sanages lay, that some fifteene leagues from the place where we were vp the River, there is a Sault which falleth downe from a very fleepe place, where they carry their Canowes to paffe the same some quarter of a league, and come into a Lake; most Southat the mouth whereof, are three Hands, and being within the fame they meete with more Hes: weft. This Lake may containe some fortie or fiftie leagues in agth, and some fine and twentie leagues A Lake some in breadth, into which many Rivers fall, to the number of tea, which carrie Canowes very far fortie or fittee in oreauth, into wince many thead of this Lake, there is another fall, and they enter againe in-

20 to another Lake, which is a sgreat as the former, at the head whereof the Irocou are lodged. They of the Irocou. fay moreover, that there is a River, which runneth vnto the Coaft of Florida, whether it is from The goodnesse the faid laft Lake some hundred, or an hundred and fortie leagues. All the Countrey of the Iro- and shortwise the faid last Lake some hundred, or an numerous and roster traggers and the temperate, without much terrof the case is formewhat Mountaynous, yet notwithstanding exceeding good, temperate, without much Country of Winter, which is very short there.

Free our departure from the River of the Irosou, wee anchored three leagues beyond the Their arrival A fame, on the North fide. All this Countrie is a lowe Land, replenished with all forts of at the Sault or trees, which I have spoken of before. The first day of July we coasted the North fide, where the Fallof the Riwood is very thinne, and more thinne then wee had feene in any place before, and all good land uer of Canada, 30 for tillage, I went in a Canoa to the South shoare, where I saw a number of Iles, which have thereof. Cha. 8. many truitfull trees, as Vines, Wal-nurs, Hafel-nuts, and a kinde of fruit like Cheft-nuts, Che-Fruitfull Trees ries, Oskes, Aspe, Hoppes, Ashe, Beech, Cyprelles, very few Pines and Firre-trees. There are of many lores. alio other trees which I knew not, which are very pleafant. Weefound there flore of Strawberries, Rasp berries Good berries red, greene, and blue, with many small fruits, which growe there among great abundance of graffe. There are also many wilde beafts, as Orignas, Stagges, Orignas are be-Does, Buckes, Beares, Porkepickes, Conies, Foxes, Beaners, Otters, Muske-rats, and certaine for faid to bee other kindes of beafts which I doe not knowe, which are good to eate, and whereof the Sauages haps Buffes. line. Wee passed by an Ile, which is very pleasant, and containeth some source leagues in length, Listertor, that and halte a league in breadth. I faw toward the South two high Mountaines, which she wed Orignaes are 4º some twentie leagues within the Land. The Sanages told mee , that here beganne the first fall Edans. of the foresaid Ruer of the Irocou. The Wednesday following wee departed from this place, Apleasant Ile, and fayled fome five or fixe leagues. Wee faw many Ilands: the Land is there very lowe, and Many Ilands.

these les are couered with trees, as those of the River of the Irocais were, The day following, being the third of July, we ranne certaine leagues, and passed likewise by July ?. many other Ilands, which are excellent good and pleasant, through the great store of Medowes Many more which are thereabout, as well on the shoare of the maine Land, as of the other llands: and all the Woods are of very small growth, in comparison of those which wee had passed. At length We came this very day to the entrance of the Sault or Fall of the great River of Canada, with The entrance fauourable wind; and wee met with an Ile, which is almost in the middest of the said entrance, of the Sault or 50 which is a quarter of a league long, and passed on the South side of the said le, where there was not past three, foure or fine foot water, and sometimes a fathome or two, and straight on the Anile. fudden wee found agains not past three or foure foot. There are many Rockes, and small Hands, whereon there is no wood, and they are even with the water. From the beginning of the forefaid Ile, which is in the middeft of the faid entrance, the water beginneth to runne with a great force. Although we had the wind very good, yet wee could not with all our might make any rentol water, great way: neuertheleffe wee paffed the faid He which is at the entrance of the Sault or Fall. When wee perceived that wee could goe no further, wee came to an anchor on the North shoare ouer against a small Hand, which aboundeth for the most part with those kinde of fruits which I have spoken of before. Without all delay wee made ready our skiffe, which wee had made of 60 purpose to passe the said Sault: whereinto the said Monsteur de Pont and my selfe entred, with Monsteur du certaine Sauages, which we had brought with vs to flew vs the way. Departing from our Pin- Pont no Monnace, we were fearfe gone three hundred paces, but we were forced to come out, and caule certain four du Cham. Mariners to goe into the water to free our Skiffe. The Canoa of the Sauages paffed early. Wee Planefearch met with an infinite number of small Rockes, which were even with the water, on which wee the Sank, touched oftentimes.

the Irocois.

There

Two leagues. 30. ma! Ilands.

Wal nuts of Good Countrics.

Two crear Hands

There be two great Hands, one on the North fide, which containeth fome fifteene leagues in length, and almost as much in breadth, beginning some twelve leagues vp within the River of Canada, 2011g toward the River of the Irocom, and endeth beyond the Sault. The Hand which is on the South fide is some source leagues long, and some halfe league broad. There is also another lland, which is neere to that on the North fide, which may bee some halfe league long, and fome quarter broad: and another small Hand which is betweene that on the North fide, and another neerer to the South shoare, whereby wee passed the entrance of the Sault. This entrance being paffed, there is a kinde of Lake, wherein all thefe Ilands are, some fine leagues long and A kind of Lake almost as broad, wherein are many small Ilands which are Rockes. There is a Mountaine neere fom: s.leagues almost as proad, wherein sie than a the faid Sault which diffcouereth farre into the Countrie, and a little River which falleth from Io 3. of 4. Mount the faid Mountaine into the Lake. On the South fide are fome three or foure Mountaines, which freme to be about fifteene or fixteene leagues within the Land. There are also two Rivers ; one. which goe: h to the first Lake of the River of the Irocois, by which fometimes the Algounegains inuade them : and another which is necrevato the Sault, which runneth not faire into

LIBVIII.

South fide. Two Rivers.

The furie of the fall of w.cer. The Stult a league broad.

rer about the Ten Sauks m.r. Temperate certaine mi-A draught of the Sauages. The first rethe Head of the River. A Riuer runtric of the Al-> learnes. Another Lake of 4. lengues. Five other Saults. A Lake of 80. leagues long. Brack:fh water Ir feemeth hereby to srend Cash-60, leagues long, very brackith.

A Strait of 2.

geumequins.

A Like of 15.

At our comming neere to the faid Sault with our Skiffe and Canoa, I affure you, I neuer faw any threame of water to fall downe with fuch force as this doth; although it bee not very high, being not in some places past one or two fathoms, and at the most three: it falleth as it were steppe by steppe: and in enery place where it hath some small height, it maketh a strong boyline with the force and itrength of the running of the water. In the breadth of the faid Sault, an which may containe some league, there are many broad Rockes, and almost in the middest, there are very narrow and long Hands, where there is a Fail as well on the fide of the faid Hes which are toward the South, as on the North fide : where it is fo dangerous, that it is not polfible for any man to passe with any Boar, how small soener it be. We went on land through the Woods, to fee the end of this Sault : where, after wee had trauelled a league, weefaw no more The swift cur. Rockes nor Falls . but the water runneth there so swiftly as it is possible : and this current larent of the wa- feeth for three or foure leagues : fo that it is in vaine to imagine, that a man is able to paffe the faid Saults with any Boats. But he that would passe them, must fit himselfe with the Canoas of the Sauages, which one man may eafily carrie. For to carrie Boats is a thing which cannot be done in to fhort time as it should bee to bee able to returne into France, vnlesse a man would to winter there. And beside this first Sault, there are ten Saults more, the most part hard to passe. aire, and good So that it would be a matter of great paines and travell to bee able to fee and doe that by Boat which a man might promife himselfe, without great cost and charge, and also to bee in danger and states in the contravel in varie. But with the Canoas of the Sauges a man may travell freely and readily into all Countries, as well in the small asin the great Rivers: So that directing himselfe by the meanes of the faid Sauages and their Canoas, a man may fee all that is to be feene, good and bad, within the force of a yeere or two. That little way which wee trauelled by Land on the fide of the faid Sault, is a very thinne Wood, through which men with their Armes may march eafily, without any trouble; the aire is there more gentle and temperate, and the foyle better then in portor the place that I had seene, where is store of such wood and fruits, as are in all other places be- 40 fore mentioned : and it is in the latitude of 45, degrees and certaine minutes.

When we taw that we could doe no more, we returned to our Pinnace ; where we examined the Sauages which we had with vs, of the end of the River, which I caused them to draw with into the Coun. their hand, and from what pare the Head thereof came. They told vs, that beyond the first Suit that we had feene, they travelled fome ten or fifteene leagues with their Canoas in the Riuer, where there is a River which tunneth to the dwelling of the Algoumequins, which are some fixty leagues distant from the great River; and then they passed five Saults, which may containe from the first to the last eight leagues, whereof there are two where they carrie their Canoas to palle them : euery Sault may containe halfe a quarter or a quarter of a league at the most. And then they come into a Lake, which may be fifteene or fixteene leagues long. From thence they 50 enter againe into a River which may be a league broad, and travell tome two leagues in the fame; and then they enter into another Lake some foure or fine leagues long : comming to the end thereof, they passe fine other Saults, distant from the first to the last some fine and twenty or thirty leagues; whereof there are three where they carrie their Canoas to palle them, and thorow the other two they doe but draw them in the water, because the current is not there so ftrong, nor fo bad, as in the others. None of all these Saults is so hard to passe, as that which we faw. Then they come into a Lake, which may containe forme eighty leagues in length, in which Another Lake are many Ilands, and at the end of the lime the water is brackish, and the Winter gentle. At the end of the faid Lake they passe a Sault which is somewhat high, where little water descendeth : there they carrie their Canoas by land about a quarter of a league to paffe this Sault. From 60 thence they enter into another Lake, which may be some fixty leagues long, and that the water thereof is very brackish: at the end thereof they come vnto a Strait which is two leagues leagues broad. Another migo broad, and it goeth farre into the Countrie. They told vs, that they themfelues had pasted no farther; and that they had not feene the end of a Lake, which is within fifteene or fixteene leagues of the farthest place where themselves had beene, nor that they which told them of it. had knowne any man that had feene the end thereof, because it is so great that they would not hizard themselues to sayle farre into the same, for feare lest some storme or gust of winde should hizara themiciaes to 17. They fay that in the Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the Summer the Sunne doth fet to the North of the Sunne doth fet to the Sunne doth fet to the North of the Sunne doth fet to and in the Winter it feeteth as it were in the middeft thereof: That the water is there excee- femation of a falt, to wit, asialt as the Sex water. I asked them whether from the last Lake which they had great Lake, frent, the water descended alwaies downe the Riter comming to Gafebepay? They told me, no; her faid, that from the third Lake onely it descended to Gaschepay: But that from the last Sault, water. which is fomewhat high, as I have faid, the water was almost still; and that the faid Lake

10 might take his course by other Rivers, which passe within the Lands, either to the South, or to Many Rivers the North, whereof there are many that runne there, the end whereof they fee not. Now, in running four the North, whereor there are many that runne there, the character what or they have not all Sault, and north, my judgement, if so many Rivers fall into this Lake, having so small a course at the faid Sault, Hadson River my rues seeds of necessitie fall out, that it must have his issue forth by some exceeding great River. may be one of But that which maketh me beleeue that there is no River by which this Lake doth iffue forth thefe. (considering the number of so many Rivers as fall into it) is this, that the Savages have not An exceeding feene any River, that runneth through the Countries, faue in the place where they were. Which great River. maketh me beleeue that this is the South Sea, being falt as they fay : Neuertheleffe we may not The fouth Sea. ome fo much credit thereunto, but that it must bee done with apparent reasons, although there be some small shew thereof. And this affuredly is all that hitherto I have seene and heard of the 20 Sauages, touching that which we demanded of them.

VV Ee departed from the faid Sault on Friday the fourth day of Iuly, and returned the Of Conda, and it men day to the River of the Irocois. On Sunday the fixth of Iuly wee departed from of the number thence, and anchored in the Lake. The Monday following wee anchored at the three Rivers. Lakes which it This day wee fayled fome foure leagues beyond the faid three Rivers. The Tuesday following passess by. we came to Quebec; and the next day wee were at the end of this Ile of Orleans, where the Satages came to vs, which were lodged in the maine Land on the North fide. Wee examined two July 4. or three Algoumiquins, to fee whether they would agree with those that wee had examined touching the end and the beginning of the faid River of Canada. They faid, as they had drawne Another reout the shape thereof , that having passed the Sault , which wee had seene , some two or three port of the ALleagues, there goeth a River into their dwelling, which is on the North fide. So going on for- gournequin Saward in the faid great River, they passe a Sault, where they carrie their Canoas, and they come uages.

to paffe fine other Saults, which may containe from the first to the last some nine or ten leagues, and that the faid Saults are not hard to paffe, and they doe but draw their Canoas in the most part of the faid Saults or Falls, faming at two, where they carrie them: from thence they enter into a River, which is as it were a kinde of Lake, which may containe some fixe or seven leagues: A River or and then they passe fine other Falls, where they draw their Canoas as in the first mentioned, fauing in two, where they carrie them as in the former: and that from the first to the last there are some twenty or fine and twenty leagues. Then they come into a Lake contaying some A Lake 150.

hundred and fifty leagues in length : and foure or fine leagues within the entrance of that Lake leagues long. there is a River which goeth to the Algormequins toward the North; and another River which A River on the goeth to the Irocois, whereby the said Algoumequins and Irocois make warre the one against the ing toward the other. Then comming to the end of the faid Lake, they meete with another Fall, where they carrie their Canoas. From thence they enter into another exceeding great Lake, which may A Riser on containe as much as the former: They have beene but a very little way in this last Lake, and the south fide. haue heard fay, that at the end of the faid Lake there is a Sea, the end whereof they haue not Anotherexfeene, neither have heard that any have feene it. But that where they have beene, the water is Lake. not falt, because they have not entred farre into it; and that the course of the water commeth A Sea, the end from the Sun-fetting toward the East; and they knowe not, whether beyond the Lake that whereof the

they have seene, there be any other course of water that goeth Westward. That the Sunne set- Sauages never teth on the right hand of this Lake: which is, according to my inagement, at the North-west, It seemed to little more or leffe; and that in the first great Lake the water freezeth not (which maketh mee lie fouthward. judge that the climate is there temperate) and that all the Territories of the Algoumequins are lowe grounds, furnished with small store of wood: And that the coast of the Irocois is Mountainous, neuertheleffe they are excellent good and fertile foyles, and better then they have feene any where elfe: That the faid Irocois relide some fifty or fixty leagues from the said great Lake. And this affuredly is all which they have told mee that they have feene: which differeth very little from the report of the first Sauages. This day wee came within some three leagues of the The Ile Coudres Ile of Condres or Filberds.

On Thursday the tenth of the said moneth, wee came within a league and an halfe of the Lieure or of Ile Du Lieure, or Of the Hare, on the North fide, where other Sauges came into our Pinnace, the Hare, among whom there was a young man , an Algonmequin, which had travelled much in the faid The thirdregreat Lake. Wee examined him very particularly, as wee had done the other Sauages. Hee told port made by vs, that having passed the faid Fall which wee had seene, within two or three leagues there is a agreat Travel lea ues long.

A very great Whole falt A great and maine Sea. A River which goeth to the Alcoumequias.

River, which goeth to the faid Alecumequins, where they be lodged; and that passing vo the orear River of Canada, there are five Falls, which may containe from the first to the last some eight or nine leagues, whereof there beethree where they carrie their Canoas, and two others wherein they draw them : that each of the faid Falls may be a quarter of a league long : then they come into a Like, which may containe some fitteene leagues. Then they palle fine other Falk, which may containe from the the first to the last some twenty or fine and twenty leagues; where there are not past two of the said Falls which they p. se with their Canoas, in the other three they doe An exceeding but draw them. From thence they en. or into an exceeding great Lake, which may containe great Like 300 fome three hundred leagues in length : when they are paffed some hundred leagues into the faid Lake, they meet with an Iland, which is very great; and beyond the faid Iland the water is In brickish: But when they have passed some hundred leagues farther, the water is yet falter: and Brocks flowater. comming to the end of the faid Lake, the water is wholly falt. Farther he faid, that there is a More brackith Fall that is a league broad, from whence an exceeding current of water descendeth into the faid Lake. That after a man is passed this Fall, no more land can be scene neither on the one side nor on the other, but fo great a Sca, that they never have feene the end thereof, nor have heard tell. that any other have icene the fame. That the Sunne fetteth on the right hand of the faid Lakes and that at the entrance thereof there is a River which goeth to the Algoumequins, and another River to the Irocois, whereby they warre the one against the other. That the Countrie of the Irocos is somewhat mountainous, yet very fertile, where there is store of Indian Wheat and other fruits, which they have not in their Countrie: That the Countrie of the Algoumequins 20 is lowe and fruitfull. I enquired of them, whether they had any knowledge of any Mines! They told ys, that there is a Nation which are called, the good Irocois, which come to exchange for merchanufes, which the French thips doe give to the Algournequins, which fay, that there is A Mine of fine toward the North a Mine of fine Copper, whereof they shewed vs certaine Bracelets, which they had received of the fand Good Irocous; and that if any of vs would goe thither, they would bring them to the place, which should bee appointed for that butinesse. And this is all which I could learne of the one and the other, differing but very little; faue that the fecond which were examined, faid, that they had not tafted of the falt water : for they had not beene so faire within the faid Lake, as the others : and they differ some small deale in the length of the way, the one fort making it more short, and the other more long. So that, according to their report, from 10 the Sault or Fall where wee were, is the space of some foure hundred leagues wnto the Salt Sea. which may be the South Sea, the Sunne fetting where they fay it doth. On Friday the tenth of the faid moneth we returned to Tadoufae, where our ship lay.

leagues from the first Sault to the South

Ccs.

Their Voyage from Tadoufac to the lle "ercee: of many forts of Mines.

Chap. 10. to Fadoufac. Armouchides The defetiption of the Port of Gache-

The Bay of aduenture.

The Bay of Heate.

The River of Mautanne Trearcand Mi-The Kiuer Sea A Mine of Copper.

Sioone as wee were come to Tadonfac, wee embarqued our felues againe to goe to Gachegag, A which is diltant from the faid Tadonfac about tome hundred leagues. The thirteenth day of the faid moneth we met with a companie of Sauges, which were lodged on the South fide, almost in the mid-way betweene Tadonfae and Gachepay. Their Sagamo or Captaine which led and Courries, them is called Armouebides, which is held to be one of the wifeft and most hardy among all the Sauages: Hee was going to Tadoufac to exchange Arrowes, and the flesh of Orignars, which 48 found foundry they have for Beauers and Marterns of the other Sauages, the Mountainers, Effechement, and Algoumequins.

The fifteenth day of the faid moneth we came to Gachepay, which is in a Bay, about a league from Gabers and a halfe on the North fide. The faid Bay containeth some feuen or eight leagues in length, and at the mouth thereof foure leagues in breadth. There is a Ruer which runneth fome thirty leagues vp into the Countrie: Then we faw another Bay, which is called the Bay des Mollus, or the Bay of Cods, which may be some three leagues long, and as much in bredth at the mouth, From thence we come to the He Percee, which is like a Rocke, very fleepe rifing on both fides, wherein there is a hole, through which Shalops and Boats may paffe at an high water : and at a lowe water one may goe from the maine Land to the faid lie , which is not pait foure or fine co hundred paces off. Moreouer, there is another Hand in a manner South-east from the He Perces about a league, which is called the Ile de Bonne-admenture, and it may bee some halfe a league The II. de Bos. long. All thefe places of Gachepay, the Bay of Cods, and the Ile Percee, are places where mey make dry and greene Fish. When you are peffed the Ile Percee, there is a Bay which is called they Bay of Heate, which runneth as it were Welt South-well, some foure and twenty leagues into the land, containing some fifteene leagues in breadth at the mouth thereof. The Sauages of Canada fay, that up the great River of Canada, about fome fixtie leagues, ranging the South coaft, there is a small River called Mantanne, which runneth some eighteene leagues vp into the Countreys and being at the head thereof, they carrie their Canowes about a league by land, and they come into the laid Bay of Heate, by which they goe fometimes to the Ifle Percee. Allo 60 they goe from the faid Bay to Tregate and M. Jamichy. Running along the faid coast we passe by many Ricers, and come to a place where there is a River which is called Souricona, where Monfieur Prenert was to difcourr a Mine of Copper. They goe with their Conowes up this River three or foure dayes, then they passe three or foure leagues by land, to the faid Mine, which is hard vpon the Sea thoate on the South ade. At the mouth of the faid River, there is an Inara vpou une sa moothe Sea; from the faid Illand vnto the Isle Percer, 18 fome fixtie or fe-Anlland. man 19115 and following the faid coast, which trendeth toward the East, 901 meete A Scar bementic response which is two leagues broad, and fine and twenty leagues long. On the Extitide of Cape arena with a service is called the like of Saint Learence, where Cape Breton is; and in this place a Na- and the maine tion of Sauages, called the Sauricais, doe winter.

Paffing the Strait of the lies of Saint Lawrence, and ranging the South-west Coast, you come to a Bay which is yneth hard vpouthe Myne of Copper. Pailing farther there is a River, which munch threaffere unfour elegues into the Country, which reacheth neere to the Lake of to the lessels, whereast the said Sauges of the South-west Confirmake warre whos therm, Ioward whereby the be an exceeding great benefit, if there might be found a parties on the Could of Floride Heefe to finage make the land great Lake, where the warner is tale; siwell for the Manigation of Thips, which libored not the sasta. bet librecht to lo munty penils anthey are in Canada, se for the (hortning of the way about titree hundred leagues. And at is mad certaine, the there are Rivers on the Goaff of Florida, which are not yet dricourned, which reeroe up arros to Gountries, where the folic is exceeding good and announter fertile, and very good Hauens. The Country and Coaft of Farida may had another temperature of the feat on, and may be amore tertile in abundance of fruites and other things, then that or Pregnate which I have feene : But at cannot have more even not better fayles, then those which we have feene.

The Sauages say, that in the fortistid great Bay of Here there is a River, which runneth vp A River.

A Lakt owners wo some twentie leagues into the Coun rey, at the head whereof there is a Lake, which may be to agree in about ewentue leagues in compaile, wherein is little flore of water, and the Summer it is dried compaile. 40, where n they find, about a foot and an halfe under the ground a kind-of Metall like A metall like to iduor, which i showed theme, and that in another place neers the laid Lake there is a Myne of Siner. Copper. And this is that which I learned of the foreignd Savages.

VV E departed from the the the gase the ninteenth day of the faid moneth to returne to Ta-Our enume from the little doubles. When we wook avenue three begues of Capelle Vifuse, or the Biffungs Cape, percet to Tawe were encountred wish a florme which lefted two dayes; which forced vs to put roomer with dayer, with 30 agreat creake, and to tlay for faire weather. The day following we departed, and were encountable description tred with another storme : Being tosh to par roome, and thinking to gaine way wee touched on of the ite the North shore the sight and twentieth day of Laty ithe creeke willich is very had, because of the edges of Rockes which lie share. This creeke isin gas degrees and certaine minutes; The next day we anchored neeres River, swhich is alled Sant Uffergenier River, where at a fall Sea is Byes, and, fore three fathomes water, and a fathome and an halfe at a low vaster; this River goods fare which is alled Sant Uffergenier River. into the Land. As facre as I could fee within the Land on the Baft fhoare, there is a fift of water which entreth into the faid River , and falleth fome fiftie or fixtie fathomes downe, from whence commeth the greatest part of the water which descended downe. At the mouth thereof there is a banke of Sand, whereon at the abbe is but halfe a fa home water. All the Coaft to- thouse. 40 ward the East is mousing Sanda there is a point somehalfe league from the faid Rinet, which The River of ftretcheth nalfea league into the See : and toward the Weft there is a small lland; this place is in Salm adapted stretcheth natical league into the net and toward the west there are a small than the passes of the fitted degrees. All chefe Countries are exceeding bad, full of First-trees. The Land here is some very bash what high, but notio high as that on the Southfide. Some three leagues beyond we paffed neere Countries. vnto another River, which feemed to be very great, yet barred for the most part with Rockes; Some eight leagues farther there are Pount which runneth a league and an halfe into the Sea, Apoint that where there is not paft a fathome and an halfe of water. When you are paffed this Point, there sunsoch iato is another about foure leagues off, where is water enough. All this Coast is low and tandie. Foure the fealeagues beyond this there is a creeke where a River entreth : many thips may paffe heare on the Agood Creek, Well fide : this is a low point, which runneth about a league into the Seasyou must runne along where many the Easterne shoare some three hundred paces to enter into the same. This is the best Hauen ships may rider

50 which is all along the North moare; but it is very dangerous in going thither, because of the flats and sholds of fand, which lye for the most part all along the theare, almost two leagues into the Sea. About fix leagues from thence, there is a Bay where there is an Isle of fand; all this Bay is A Bay. very shallow except on the East file, whereit hath about foure fathoms water : within the channell which entreth into the faid Bay, some foure leagues up, there is a faire creeke where a River ACreeke. entreth. All this coalt is low and sandie, there descende ha fall of water which is great. About fine leagues farther is a Point which ifretcheth about halfe a league into the Sea, where there is a creeke, and from the one point to the other are three leagues, but all are should, where is little water. About two leagues off, there is a strand where there is a good hauen, and a small River,

60 wherein are three Illands, and where Ships may harbour themselves from the weather. Three leagues beyond this, is a fandie point which remneth out about a league, at the end whereof there Two little for is a small I stee. Going forward to Lefquenius, you meete with two little low I slands, and a little Hands. rocke neere the thoare : thefe fand Hands are about halfe a league from Lafquenim, which is a ve- Lefquenim a ry bad Port, compassed with rockes, and dry at a low water, and you must setch about a little very bad Port,

Souricois-A great River weft coaff Great Rivers

A Mine of

Crecks, Potts

The River wh re he pales hill the whales. of Augus.

1618

point of a rocke to enter in, where one Ship onely can passe at a time. A little higher there is a River, which runnetha little way into the land. This is the place where the Basks kill she Whales: to fay the truth, the haven is starke naught. Wee came from thence to the forefaid ha-Our arrivall at uen of Tadon/ac, the third day of August. All thele Countries before mentioned are low toward Tedouf withe 30 the shoare, and within the land very high. They are neither so pleasant nor fruitfull as those on the South, although they be lower. And this for a certaintie is all which I have feene of this Mor-

Of the Atmanchiceis Sauages and of their monfirmus courfe of Mon-Gest de Present of Saint Male. touching the differencie of the South Well Coaft. Cb.12. nies which they viebefore they go to the

A Tour comming to Tadonfac, we found the Sanages which wee met in the River of the Ire-Acous, who met with three Canowes of the Iracon in the first Lake, which fought against tenne others of the Mountayners; and they brought the heads of the Iracese to Tadonfac, and monitories there was but one Mountayner wounded in the arms with the shot of an Arrow, who dreaming of fomething, all the other tenne must feeke to content him, thinking also that his wound thereby would mend if this Sange die, his Parents will reuenge his death, either vpon their Nation or voon others, or at least wife the Captaines must give Presents to the Parents of the dead, to content them; otherwise as I have said, they would be revenged: which is a great sault amone them. Before the faid Mountayners let forth to the Warre, they affembled all, with their richell apparell of Furres, Beauers, and other Skinnes adorned with Pater-notions and Chaines of divers colours, and affembled in a great publike place, where there was before them a Sagame whole name was Begenrat, which led them to the Warre, and they marched one behind another, with their Bowes and Arrowes, Mafes and Targets, wherewith they furnish themselues to fight and they went leaping one after another, in making many gettures of their bodies, they made many turnings like a Snaile : afterward they began to dance after their accustomed manner, as I have faid hetore : then they made their Peaft, and after they had ended it, the women ftripped themfelues itarke naked, being decked with their fairest Cordons, and went into their Canowes thus naked and there danced, and then they went into the water, and ftrooke at one another with their Oares, and beate water one upon another : yet they did no hurt, for they warded the blowes which they ftrooke one at the other. After they had ended all these Ceremonies, they retired themselves into their Cabines, and the Sameges went to warre against the Iracois. The fixt day of August we departed from Tadoufac, and the eighteenth of the faid moneth we

Their deparcure from Tadaylac Armon hiceis deformed Sa-

The Relation of the Copper Myne on the South Coaft.

Blacke painaing. An He wherein of Metall is is white being

> Other Mynes. The description of the place where the faid Myne arrived at the He Perces, where wee found Manfierer Premers of Saint Male; which came from the Mune, where he had beene with much trouble, for the feare which the Sauges had to meet with their enemies, which are the Armenebicon, which are Sauges very monftrous, for the shape that they have. For their head is little, and their body short, their armes small like a bone. and their thigh like; their legges great and long, which are all of one proportion, and when they fit your their heeles, their knees are higher by halfe a foot then their head, which is a ftranse thing, and they seeme to be out of the course of Nature. Neverthelesse, they be very valuant and resolute, and are planted in the best Countries of all the South Coast : And the Souriesis do greatly feare them. But by the incouragement which the faid Monfieur de Preners gaue them, hee At brought them to the faid Myne, to which the Sanages guided him. It is a very high Mountaine, riling fomewhat ouer the Sca, which gliftereth very much against the Sunne, and there is great ftore of Verde-greafe islaing out of the faid Myne of Copper. He faith, that at the foot of the faid Mountayne, at a low water there were many morfels of Copper, as was otherwise declared Another Mine vnto vs, which fall downe from the top of the Mountaine, Palling three or four leagues further toward the South, there is another Myne, and a imall River which runneth a little way vp into the Land, running toward the South, where there is a Mountaine, which is of a blacke painting, wherewith the Sausges paint themselues : Some fixe leagues beyond the second Myne, toward the Sea, about a league from the South Coast, there is an Ile, wherein is found another kind of Metall, which is like a darke browne : if you cut it , it is white, which they vied in old time 50 for their Arrowes and Kniues, and did beate it with flones. Which maketh me beleeue that it is not Tinne, nor Lead, being so hard as it is; and having shewed them filter, they faid that the Myne of that He was like vnto it, which they found in the earth, about a foot or two deepe. The faid Monfieur Preners gave the Sanages Wedges and Cizers, and other things necessarie to draw out the faid Myne; which they have promifed to doe, and to bring the same the next years, and give it the faid Monfieur Presert. They fay also that within some hundred or one hundred and twentie leagues there are other Mynes, but that they dare not goe thither unleffe they have Frenchmen with them to make warre vpon their enemies, which have the faid Mynes in their possession. The faid place where the Myne is, standeth in 44. degrees and some few minutes, neere the South Coast within fine or fixe leagues : it is a kind of Bay, which is certaine leagues 62 broad at the mouth thereof, and somewhat more in length, where are three Rivers, which fall into the great Bay neere unto the He of Saint lobe, which is thirtie or five and thirtie leagues long, and is fixe leagues diftant from the South thoare. There is also another little River, which falleth almost in the mid way of that whereby Monfieur Preners returned , and there are as it were two kind of Lakes in the faid River. Furthermore, there is yet another small River which

CHAP.7. Oze and Sands. The great Sagamo Anadabijou. La Cadia.

goeth toward the Mountaine of the painting. All thefe Rivers fall into the faid Bay on the South-east part, neere about the faid lie which the Sauager lay there is of this white Metall. On A good Hauen the North fide of the fard Bay are the Mynes of Copper, where there is a good Hauen for fhips, at the Copper and a small Hand at the mouth of the Hauens the ground is Oze and Sand, where a man may run his ship on shoare. From the said Myne to the beginning of the mouth of the said Rivers is some fixtie or eightie leagues by Land. But by the Sea Coaff, according to my judgement, from the pallage of the He of Saint Laurence and the Firme Land, it cannot be past fifte or fixtie leagues to the faid Myne. All this Countrey is exceeding faire and flat, wherein are all fores of trees, which wee law as wee went to the first Sault up the great River of Canada, very small store of To Firre-trees and Cyprestes. And this of a truth is as much as Hearned and heard of the faid Mon-

The Efore we departed from Tadonfac, to returne into France, one of the Sagamoz of the Moun- Their returns. Brayners named Bechourat, gaue his Sonne to Monfieur du Pont to carrie him into France, Chap.13. and he was much recommended vinto him by the Great Sagamo Anadabijon, praying him to vie him well, and to let him fee that, which the other two Sanages had feene which we had brought backe againe. We prayed them to give vs a woman of the Process, whom they would have eaten: whom they gave voto vs, and we brought her home with the forelaid Sanage. Monsteur de Prenert in like manner brought home foute Sanages, one man which is of the South Coalt, one 30 Woman and two children of the Canadians.

The foure and twentieth of August, we departed from Gachepay, the ship of the said Monfieur Presert and ours. The second of September, we counted that wee were as farre as Cape Cone Rail. Rafe. The fift day of the faid moneth we entred vpon the Banke, whereon they vie to file. The Tac Banke. fixteenth, we were come into the Sounding, which may be fome fittle leagues distant from the inte founding, Ulbant. The twentieth of the laid moneth we arrived in New Hauen by the grace of God to all Vibant. our contentments, with a continuall fauourable wind.

CHAP. VIL

The Patent of the French King to Monsieur de Monts for the inhabiting of the Countries of La Cadia Canada, and other places in New France.

Enry by the grace of God King of France and Nauatte. To our deare and well beloned the Lord of Mouts, one of the ordinarie Gontlemen of our Chamber, greeting. As our greatest care and labour is, and hath alwayes beene, fince our comming to this Crowne, maintaine and conferue it in the ancient dignitie, greatnesse and splendour thereof, to ex-tend and amplise, as much as lawfully may bee done, the bounds and limits of the same. We being, of a long time, informed of the fituation and condition of the Lands and Territories of La Cadia, moued abone all things, with a singular zeale, and demont and constant resolution. which we have taken, with the helpe and affiftance of God, Author, Distributour, and Protectour of all Kingdomes and Estates, to can etbe people, which doe inhabit the Country, men (at this prefent time) Barbarous, Atheists, without Faith, or Religion, to be connerted to Christianitie, and to the Beliefe and Profession of our Faith and Religion: and to draw them from the ignorance and unbeliefe wherein they are, Hauing also of a long time knowne by the Relation of the Sea Captaines, Pilots, Merchants and others, who of long time have haunted, frequented and trafficked with the people that are found in the Said places, how fruitfull, commodious and profitable may be unto us, to our Estates and Subjects, the 50 Dwelling, Possession, and Habitation of those Countries, for the great and apparent profit which may be drawne by the greater frequentation and habitude which may bee had with the people that are found there, and the Trafficke and Commerce which may be, by that meanes Safely treated and negotiated. We then for the fecauses fully trusting on your great wisdome, and in the knowledge and experience that you bane of the qualitie, condition and situation of the faid Countrie of La Cadia : for diners and fundry Nanigations, Voyages and Frequentaions that you have made into those parts, and others reere and bordering upon it: Affuring our selves that this our resolution and intention, being committed unto you. you will attentinely, diligently, and no leff-conragiously and valorously execute and bring to such perfection as we defire : Hane expresty appointed and established you, and by these Presents, signed with our owne hands, doe commit ordaine, make, constitute and establish you, our Lieutenant Generall, for to represent 60 our person, in the Countries, Territories, Coasts and Co fines of La Cidia To begin from the 40. degree unto the 46. And in the seme distance, or part of it, as farre as may bee done, to establish, extend and make to be newne our N me, Might and Authoritie. And under the same to subject, submit and bring to obedience all the people of the faul Land and the Borderers thereof: And by the meanes thereof. and all lamfull wayes, to call, make, in fruit, prouoke and incite them to the knowledge of God, and to the light of the Faith and Christian Religion, to establish it there: And in the exercise and profession of the same, keepe and conferne the said people, and all other Inhabitants in the said places, and there to command in peace, refe and tranquillise, as well by Sea as by Land : to ordaine, decide, and canfe to bee executed all that which you hall indee fit and necessarie to be done, for to maintaine, keepe and conferme the field places under our Power and Authoritie, by the formes, wayes and meanes prescribed by our Lawes And for to have there a care of the same with you, to appoint, establish, and constitute all Officers, as well in the affaires of Warre, as for Instice and Policie, for the first time, and from thence forward to name and present them unto us: for to be disposed by us, and to give Letters, Titles, and such Promises as shall be necestarie, &c.

1621

Ginen at Fountain-Bleau the eight day of Nonember : in the yeere our Lord 1603. And of our 10 Resone the fifteenth. Signed Henry : and underneath by the King, Potier; And fealed upon finale labell with yellow Waxe.

The Voyage of Monsieur de Monts into New France, written by MARKE LESCARBOT.

The reft of

nifoes, &c.

And let not

Englishmen.

roome for feare want of habitations;

thefe being

other fearle

many interruptions, and more frequenof Trade with

Sauages then otherwife, I

haue omated

many digiel-

Sour and dif-

the Authour;

most ample Worke. His

Map but for coft. I would

haue here added. I haue

diuers by me which I take more exact, [ am fure with many many

particulers wanting in courles of

ged by the French in way

worthy the

A Onfieur de Monts having made the Commissions and Prohibitions before said . to Mbee proclaimed thorow the Realme of France, and especially thorow the Ports and maritine Townes thereof, caused two shippes to bee rigged and furnished, the one 20 thi Patentis under the conduct of Captaine Timothy of New-banen , the other of Captaine Morell of here for bre-Honfleur. In the first, hee shipped himielte, with good number of men of account, as uitie omitted : well Gentlemen as others. And for as much as Monfieur de Pourrencoure was, and had beene of with the Proa long time, delirous to tee thote Countries of New France, and there to finde out and choose fome it place to retire himfelfe into, with his Family, Wife and Children, not meaning to be the last trust should follow and participate in the glorie of so faire and generous an enterprize, would needs goe thither, and shipped himselfe with the said Monsieur de Monts, carrying with tions or Sauste him some quantitie of Armours and Munitions of Warre; and so weighed Anchors from Newbauen the feuenth day of March 1604. But being departed fomewhat too foone, before the Win- 20 ter had yet left off her frozen Weed, they found thore of Icie bankes, against the which they wery thin, the were in danger to strike, and so to be cast away.

The Voyage was long by reason of contrarie winds, which seldome hapneth to them that set out in March for the New-found lands, which are ordinarily carried with an East or Northerne ing, or planta- winde, fit to goe to these Lands. And having taken their course to the South of the lle of tion, having to Sand or Sablon, or Sand, for to shunne the faid Ives, they almost fell from Caribdae into Sey las, going to strike towards the faid He, during the thicke mists that are frequent in that Sea. In the end, the fixt of May they came to a certaine Port, where they found Captaine Roffignol of New-bauen, who did trucke for skinnes with the Sauages, contrary to the Kings Inhibitions, which was the cause that his ship was confitcated. This Port was called Le Port du Roffignol, ha- 10 uing (in this his hard fortune) this onely good, that a good and fit Harborough or Port, in thole

Coaits beareth his name. From thence coasting and discouring the Lands, they arrived at another Port, very faire, which they named Le Port de Moutton, by reason that a Mutton or Weather having leaped 0. uer-board and drowned himselfe came aboard againe, and was taken and eaten as good prize. Neere the faid Montton Port there is a place so replenished with Rabbets and Conies, that they almost did eate nothing elfe. During that time Monfieur Champlem was fent with a shallop to feeke farther off a fitter place to retire themselves, at which Exploit he carried so long, that deonly for knowliberating upon the returne, they thought to leave him behind: for there was no more victuals: ledge of those parts, prefenand they ferued them felues with that, that was found in the faid Roffignols thip, without which so sing the briefe they had beene forced to returne into France, and to to breake a faire enterprize at the very birth fumme of his and beginning thereof; or to starue, having ended the hunting of Conies, which could not still

All New France in the end being contained in two ships, they weighed Anchors from Port de Mostton, for to imploy their time, and to discouer Lands as much as might before Winter. Wee came to Cape de Sable, or the Sandie Cape; and from thence we failed to the Bay of Saint Marie, where our men lay at Anchor fireene dayes, while It the Lands and passages as well by Sea as by River might be descried and knowne. This Bay is a very faire place to inhabit, because that one is readily carried thither without doubling. There are Mynes of Iron and Siluer; but in no great abundance, according to the triall made thereof in France. A Priest losing his way in the Woods 60 was milling fixteene dayes. Whereupon a Protestant was charged to have killed him be-both his Mappe and Discourse show that the French discoursed not so neers Virginia, as Hudsons River; and that the French P'antations bute beene more Northerly farre, then our Northerne Vinginia, and to the Southerne, not a thadow in comra fracefe ft. and numbers.

cause they quarrelled sometimes for matters of Religion. Finally, they sounded a Trumpet thorow the Forreit, they shot off the Canon diners times, but in vaine: for the roaring of the Sea, stronger then all that, did expell backe the found of the faid Canons and Trumnets. Two, three and foure dayes palled he appeareth not. In the meane-while the time haftens to depart, so having tarried so long that hee was then held for dead, they weighed Anchors to goe further, and to fee the depth of a Bay that hath some fortie leagues length. and fourteene (yea eighteene) of breadth , which was named La Baye Francoife, or the Langue Fran-

CHAP.7. Bay fortic leagues in length. Spaniards exceeding cruelties.

In this Bay is the passage to come into a Port, whereinto our men entred, and made some 10 abode, during the which they had the pleasure to hunt an Ellan, or Stagge, that croffed a great Lake of the Sea, which maketh this Port, and did swimme but easily. This Port is ennironed with Mountaines on the North fide : Towards the South bee small Hills, which (with the faid Mountaines) doe powre out a thousand Brookes, which make that place pleasanter then any other place in the World : there are very faire talles of waters, fit to make Milles of all forts. At the East is a River betweene the faid Mountaines and Hilles, in the shippes may faile fifteene leagues and more, and in all this diffance is nothing of both fides the River but faire Medowes, which River was named L' Equille, because that the first fish taken therein was an Equille. But the laid Port, for the beautie thereof was called Port Royall. Monfieur The River of de Pontrincourt having found this place to bee to his liking demanded it, with the Lands L'Equille.

20 thereunto adjoyning, of Monsieur de Monts: to whom the King had by Commission, before inferted, granted the distribution of the Lands of New France from the fortieth degree to the fixe and fortieth. Which place was granted to the laid Monstear de Poutrincourt , who fince hath had Letters of confirmation for the same of his Maiestie, intending to resire himselfe this ther with his Family, and there to establish the Christian and French Name, as much as his power shall stretch, and God grant him the meanes to accomplish it. The Port contayneth eight leagues of circuit, besides the River of L' Equille. There is within it two Iles very faire and pleasant: the one at the mouth of the faid River, which I deeme to bee of the greatneffe of the Citie of Beauvais: The other at the fide of the mouth of another River, as broad as the Riter of Oife, or Mane, entring within the faid Port: The faid lie beeing almost of the greatnesse of the other: and they both are wooddie. In this Port, and right ouer against the former Ile, wee dwelt three yeeres after this Voyage. We will speake thereof more at large From Port Royall they failed to the Copper Myne, whereof wee have spoken before else- A Copper with the itone, very faire and very pure, such as is that which is called Rozette Copper. Many In the as and with the itone, very faire and very pure, fuch as is that which is called Roberts Copper Myne there the Copper Myne there is the fecond might bea Golden Myne : which is very probable. For if those excrements that Nature expelleth forth be fo pure, namely, small pieces that are found vpon the granell at the foote of the whole Volume Rocke, when it is low water, there is no doubt that the Metall which is in the bowels of the untranslated. 40 earth is much more perect, but this is a Worke that requireth time. The first myning and working is to have Bread, Wine and Cattle, as we have faid else-where. Our felicitie confisteth not in Mynes, specially of Gold and Silver, the which serne for nothing in the tillage of the ground, on, nor to Handicrafts vie. Contrariwise, the abundance of them is but a charge and burthen, that keepeth man in perpetuall verquiet, and the more he hath thereof, the leffe rest enjoyeth he, and his life leffer affured vnto him. Before the Voyages of Peron great riches might have beene fet vp in a small place, in stead Note. This that in this our age by the abundance of Gold and filter the fame is come at no value nor effeeme. French Author One hath need of huge Chefts and Coffers to put in that , which a small Budget might haue was a Romifb contained. One might have travelled with a Purfe in ones fleeue, and now a Cloke-bagge and a which yet 50 Horie must expressly be had for that purpose. Wee may suffly curse the houre that greedie Aua- fpeakes thus rice did carrie the Spaniard into the West, for the wofull events that have ensued thereof. For freely of the when I consider that by his greedinesse he hath kindled and maintayned the Warre thorow all Seasiards. Christendome, and his onely studie hath beene how to destroy his Neighbours (and not the Turke) I cannot thinke that any other but the Deuill hath beene the Authour of their Voyages. And let not the pretence of Religion be alleaged vnto mee : for (as wee haue faid elicwhere) they have killed all the of-fpring of the Countrey with the most inhumane torments that the Deuili hath beene able to excogitate. And by their cruelties have rendred the Name of God odious, and a name of offence to those poore people, and have continually and daily blafphemed him in the midft of the Gentiles as the Prophet reprocheth to the people Efty saveris. 60 of Ifract. Winesse him that had rather bee damned, then goe to the Paradise of the Spa-Hallmer, fee

Among these Copper Rockes there is found sometimes small Rockes covered with Diamonds fixed to them. I will not after them for tine, but that is very pleating to the fight. There are also certaine shiring blue itones, which are of no lesse value or worth than Turkie Stones. Turkie stones. Tttttt 2 where, It is a high Rocke betweene two Bayes of the Sea, wherein the Copper is contoyned Myae.

caule

Monsieur de Champdore our guide for the Nauigations in those Countries, hauing cut within a Rocke one of those stones, at his returne from New France hee brake it in two, and gave one part of it to Monsieur de Monts, the other to Monsieur de Poutrincourt, which they made tobe put in Gold, and were found worthy to be presented the one to the King by the faid Poutrincourt, the other to the Queene by the faid de Monts, and were very well accepted. I remember that a Goldsmith did offer fiteene Crownes to Monfieur de Pourrincours for that hee prefented to hie

New France, Bay of Saint Marie, Common place, LIB.VIII.

Vines.

The commogingbythe

This River is one of the faireft that may be feene, having store of Hands, and swarming with files. This last yeere 1608, thy laid Monsieur de Champdore, with one of the faid Monsieur de Monte his men, hath beene tome fiftie leagues vp the laid River : and doe witneffe that there is great quantitie of Vines along the shoare, but the Grapes are not so bigge as they be in the Countrie of the Armonchiquois: There are allo Onions, and many other forts of good hearbs. As for Great Grapes among the Aramong the Arof Cedar Trees. Concerning fishes the faid Champdore liath related vinto vs, that putting the Abundance of Kettle ouer fire, they had taken fish sufficient for their Dinner before that the water was hot. Moreover this River, firetching it felre tarre within the Lands of the Savages doth marvellously (horten the long travels by meanes thereof. For in fixe dayes they goe to Gafbepe , comming to the Bay of Gulte of Chaleur, or heate, when they are at the end of it, in carrying their Canowes fome few leagues. And by the fame River in eight dayes they go to Tadon fac by a branch of the firme which commeth from the North-well. In such fort that in Port Royall one may have within fifteene or eighteene dayes newes from the Frenchmen, dwelling in the great River of Canada. by these wayes: which could not be done in one moneth by Sea, nor without danger.

The He of S. Creix tw mie leagues from S. Johns Riner.

Leaving Saint Johns River, they came following the Coast twentie leagues from that place, to a great River (which is properly Sea) where they fortified themselves in a little Iland seated in the middest of this River, which the faid Champleine had beene to discouer and view. And seeing it throng by nature, and of easie defence and keeping, besides that the season beganne to slide away, and therefore it was behoouefull to prouide of lodging, without running any farther, they refolued to make their abode there.

As they began to vitit and fearch the Hand, Monfieur de Champdore (of whom we shall henceforth make mention, by reason he dwelt foure yeere in those parts, conducting the Voyages 20 made there) was fent backe to the Bay of Saint Mary, with a Mine-finder, that had beene car-Reminer othe ried thither for to get some Mynes of tiluer and Iron, which they did. And as they had croffed Bay of S.M. 77, the French Bay, they entred into the faid Bay of Saint Marie, by a narrow Straite or paffage, man was foul which is betweene the Land of Port Royall, and an Iland called the Long lle: where after some abode they going a fishing, Monsieur Anbri (the Priest before lost) perceined them, and beganne The Long le. with a feeble voice to call as loud as he could; and put his Handkercher, and his Haton a fiaues end, which made him better to be knowne. During thele fixteene daies hee fed himfelfe but by (I know not what) small fruits, like vnto Cheries, without kernell (yet not so delicate) which are fearfly found in those Woods. They gave him food by measure, and brought him backe againe to the company at the Hand of Saint Croix, whereof every one received an incredible ioy 40 and confolation.

Saint Croix,

The fruitfulneffe of the

The Iland in compatie.

Store of Mulcles.

Before we speake of the ships returne into France, it is meete to tell you how hard the lle of on of the fle of Saint Croix is to bee found out, to them that were never there. For there are fo many fles and great Bayes to goe by, before one be at it, that I wonder how ever one might pierce to farre for to finde it. There are three or foure Mountaines, imminent about the others, on the fides: But on the North fide, from whence the River runneth downe, there is but a sharpe pointed one, aboue two leagues diffant. The Woods of the maine Land are faire and admirable high and well growne, as in like manner is the graffe. There is right ouer against the Hand fresh water brooks, very pleasant and agreeable, where divers of Monsseur de Monts, his men did their bulinesse, and builded there certaine Cabanes. As for the nature of the ground it is most excellent and motta- 50 bundantly truitfull. For the faid Monfieur de Monts, having caused there some piece of ground to bee tilled, and the same sowed with Rie (for I have seene there no Wheate) hee was not able to tarrie for the maturitie thereof to reape it; and notwithflanding, the graine, fallen, hath growne and increased so wonderfully that two yeeres after we reaped and did gather of it as faire, b'gge and weightie, as in France, which the foile had broughe forth without any tillage : and yet at this prelant it doth continue still to multiply every yeere. The faid Hand containeth some halfe halie a league a league of circuit, and at the end of it on the Sea fide, there is a Mount or small Hill, which is (as it were) a little He seuered from the other, where Monsieur de Monts his Canon was placed : There is also a little Chappell built after the Sauage fashion. At the foot of which Chappell there is such store of Muscles as is wonderfull, which may bee gathered at law water, but they 60 are imall.

Now let vs prepare and hoife vp failes. Monfieur de Poutrincourt made the Vovage into thele parts with lome men of good fort, not to winter there, but as it were to feeke out his feate, and find out a Land that might like him. Which he having done, i ad no need to folourne there any longer. So then the ships being ready for the returne, he shipped himselfe, and those of his companie, in one of them.

Monstear du During the foresaid Nauigation, Monsseur du Monts his people did worke about the Fort; Pourimourt which he leated at the end of the Iland, opposite to the place where he had lodged his Cannon. into France, Which was wifely confidered, to the end to command the River vp and downe. But there was an The building Which was writely connected, to the end to command the court vp and downlessed the fact of the at the lie of incontenience, the fail Fort did lie towards the North, and without any shelter, but of the s. Cross. trees that were on the Ile shoare, which all about he commanded to be kept, and not cut downe.

The most vegent things being done, and hoary snowy Father being come, that is to say, Win-Three discomter, then they were forced to keepe within doores, and to live every one at his owne home: du-modities in to mag which time, our men had three special discommodities in this Iland, videlicet, want of S. Croix. wood, (for that which was in the faid lie was spent in buildings) lacke of fresh water, and the continuall watch made by night, fearing some surprise from the Sauages, that had lodged themfelues at the foot of the Lid Hand, or some other enemie. For the malediction and rage of ma- Wickednesse ny Christian is such, that one must take heed of them much more than of Infidels. At thing of anny christian which princethe me to locake: would to Godl were a locat in this reford, and that I had no could find. which grieueth me to ipeake: would to God I were a lyar in this respect, and that I had no caute to foeake it! When they had need of water or wood, they were constrained to crosse ouer the River, which is thrice as broad of every fide, as the River of Seine. It was a thing painfull The River of and tedious, in such fort, that it was needfull to keepe the Boat the whole day, before one Roan. might get those necessaries. In the meane while the cold and snowes came voon them, and the to Ice fo ftrong, that the Sider was frozen in the veffels, and every one his measure was given him Vaknown fickout by weight. As for Wine it was distributed but at certaine dayes of the weeke. Many idle nesses, vir. the fluggish companions dranke snow-water, not willing to take the paines to crosse the River. Scotbute or Briefly, the voknowne ficknesses like to those described voto vs by lames Quartur, in his Rela-Scuruse, the Briefly, the volknowne ficknesses like to those described vinto vs by sames Marter, in his Aciagreatest plague tion, affailed vs. For remedies there was none to bee found. In the meane while the poore ficke of Nauigations

of let, proceeding from a rotten flesh which grew and ouer-abounded within their mouthes; fications and of let, proceeding from a rotten field which grew and ouer-abounded within their mounts. Garifons be-and when one thought to root it out, it did growe againe in one nights space more abundantly fieged, where than before. As for the tree called Annedda, mentioned by the faid Quartier, the Sauages of their want of treffs 30 Lands knowe it not. So that it was most pitifull to behold every one, very few excepted, in diet and of bathis miferie, and the miferable ficke folkes to die, as it were full of life, without any possibilitie dily labour, or this miterie, and the miterable ficke roikes to die, as it were tuil or inc, without any pointonite who had to be fuccoured. There died of this fickenfect thirty fixe, and thirty fixe or forty more that were too much active fixed with it, recoured themselves by the helpe of the Spring, as soone as the comfortable thing, which is the control of the spring and the spring are sooned to the spring as soone as the comfortable thing, which is the spring and the spring are spring as the spring feason appeared. But the deadly season for that sicknesse is in the end of Ianuary, the moneths grosse aires in of February and March, wherein most commonly the ficke doe die, enery one at his turne, ac- the Countries cording to the time they have begunne to be ficke: in fuch fort, that he which beganne to be ill ourrgrowne cording to the time they have begunne to be inker: in multiport, that he which beganne to with wood, or in February and March, may escape, but he that shall ouer-haste himselfe, and betake him with manshes, with manshes, to his bed in December and Ianuary, he is in danger to die in February, March, or the beginning bogs and vn-

Monsieur de Poutrincours made a Negro to be opened, that died of that sicknesse in our Voy- ters are chiefe age, who was found to have the inward parts very found, except the stomacke, that had breederstherewrinkles, as though they were vicered.

As for the food, this fickneffe is caused by cold meates, without suyce, groffe and corrupted, and for the food they are the first support of the first support of the first support of the disease.

One must then take heed of falt meates, smoally, musty, raw, and of an entil fent, likewise of of this disease, dried fishes, as New-found-Land fish, and stinking Rayes : Briefly, from all melancholy meates, the chiefe which are of hard digefting, are easily corrupted, and breed a grosse and melancholy bloud. I points whereof which are of hard digetting, are easily corrupted, and breed a grote and metancholy bloud. I would not (for all that) bee fo forupulous as the Physicians, which doe put in number of groffer effect for and metancholy meates, Becues fielh, Beares, wilde Boares and Hogs flith (they might as well benefice our adde vnto them Beauers flesh, which notwithstanding wee have found very good) as they doe English Colo-50 among the files the Tons, Dolphins, and all those that carrie Lard: among the birds, the Hernes, nies in America.

Dieleg and Illander was birds for internal and account of the control of the contro Duckes, and all other water birds: for in being an ouer-curious observator of these things, one deubrinot mamight fal into the danger of staruing, and to die for hunger. They place yet among the meats that ny hundreds are to be shunned Bisket, Beanes and Pulse, the often ving of Milke, Cheese: the grosse and harth bise hereby Wine, and that which is too small, white Wine, and the vie of Vinegar: Beere which is not gerified. well fodden, nor well feummed, and that hath not Hoppes enough. Alto waters that runne thowell iodden, nor well fourmed, and that hath not Hopper enough. Also waters that runne those of the dead row rotten wood, and those of Likes and Bogges, ftill and corrupted waters, such as is much in and sicke. Holland and Frizeland, where is observed that they of Amsterdam are more subject to Palifes and Dangerous flifning of finews, then they or Roserdam, for the abouefaid caute of flill and thepy waters: which ment's, besides doe ingender Dropties, Dysenteries, Fluxes, quartaine Agues, and burning Feuers, swel- The opening belides doe ingender Drophes, Dytenteries, Fluxes, quartaine Agues, and beling trades, of a dead lings, vicers of the Lights, shortnesse of breath, ruptures of children, swelling in the veines, body. fores in the legges : finally, they wholly belong to the Jifeafe whereof we speake, being drawne What food by the Spleene, where they leave all their corruption.

Sometimes this fickneffe dothalto come by a vice which is even in waters of running Foun. Inddifea'e, taines, as if they be among, or neere Bogges, or if they issue from a muddy ground, or from a Badwaters. Tettet 3 creatures did languith, pining away by little and little, for want of fweet meates, as Milke or and new Planfpoon-meate for to furfaine their ftomackes which could not receive the hard meates, by reason tailons, Forti-

Plin.li.25.0.3.

Stomaccacè.

Scelatitie.

an herbe.

place that hath not the Sunnes aspect. So Plane reciteth that in the Voyage which the Prince Cafar Germanicus made into Germanie, hauing given order to his Armie to paffe the River of Rhome, to the end to get fill forward in the Countrie, he did fet his campe on the Sea Shoare, vnon the coast of Frizeland, in a place where was but one onely Fountaine of fresh water to bee found, which not withflanding was to pernicious, that all they that dranke of it loft their teeth in leffe than two yeeres space, and had their knees so weake and dissoynted, that they could not beare themfelues. Which is verily the ficknesse whereof wee speake, which the Physicians doe call Stomaccace, that is totay, Monthes fore ; and Scelotyrbe, which is as much to fay, as the shaking of thighs and legges. And it was not possible to finde any remedie, but by the meanes of an herbe called Britannica, or Scuruy griffe , which besides is very good for the sinewes, against Io Britannica, or the fores and accidents in the mouth: against the Squinancie, and against the biting of Ser-Scuruy graffe, pents. It hath long leaurs, drawing in colour a darke greene, and produceth a blacke roote. from which liquor is drawne, as well as from the leafe. Strabo fayth, that the like case hanpened to the Armie that Elim Gallim brought into Arabia, by the commission of Augustus the Emperour. And the like also chanced to King Saint Lewes his Armie in Egypt, as the Lord

Fountaine of fresh water. Woodden Pantophles or Pattins. LIB.VIII.

Strabo. Monfieur de The Gouitres of Saure What are is Winder.

Next to waters, the aire is also one of the Fathers and Ingenderers of this ficknesse, in boggy against health, and warrish places, and opposite to the South, which is most often ramy. But there is yet in New 20 France another bad qualitie of the aire, by reason of Lakes that be thicke there, and of the great rottennesse in the Woods, whose odour the bodies having drawne vp, during the rames of Autumne and Winter, early are ingendred the corruptions of the mouth, and iwelling in the legges before spoken, and a cold entreth vosensibly into it, which benummeth the limbes, shifneth the finewes, constraineth to creepe with crutches, and in the end, to keepe the bed. And for as much as the windes doe participate with the aire, yea are an aire running with a more vehement force than ordinary, and in this qualitie have great power over the health and ficknesses of men, This noisome qualitie of winde proceedeth (in my judgement) from the nature of the Countrie thorow which it paffeth , which (as wee haue faid) is full of Lakes, and those very great, which bee (as it were) flanding and flill waters. Whereto I adde the exhalation of the rottennesse of woods, that this winde bringeth, and that in so much greater quantitie, as the Northwest part is great, large and spacious.

de Ionuille reporteth Other effects of bad waters are feene neere vnto vs, to wit, in Sauor, where the women (more than men, because they are of a colder constitution) have commonly swellings in their throats, as bigge as Bottles.

Seafons.

The feafons are also to be marked in this difease, which I have not seene nor heard of, that it begins to worke, neither in the Spring time, Summer nor Autumne, vnleffe it be at the end of it, but it Winter. And the cause thereof is, that as the growing heate of the Spring maketh the humours closed up in the Winter to disperse themselves to the extremities of the body, and so cleareth it from melancholy, and from the notione humors that have beene gathered in Winter: fo the Autumne, as the Winter approacheth, draweth them inward, and doth nourish this melancholy and blacke humour, which doth abound specially in this season, and the Winter being come he weth forth his effects at the costs and gricte of the poore patients. I would adde willingly to all the aforeful causes the bad food of the Sea, which in a long Voi-

age brings much corruption in mans body. This ficknesse proceeding from an indigestion of sude, groffe, colland melancholy meates, which offend the flomacke, I thinke it good (fabmitting my telfe to better judgement and aduice) to accompany them with good fawces, be it of Butter, Badford and di commoditics of the Sea. Aduice for the ficknesses of New France.

Good Wine.

Herbes in the Spring time.

Stoues. Beddington in Survice at Sir

Oyle, or Fat, all well i piced, to correct as well the qualitie of the meate, as of the bodie inwardly waxen cold. Let this be faid for rude and groffe meates, as Beanes, Peafe, and fift: for he that shall care good Capons good Partridges, good Ducks, and good Rabets, may be affured of his health, or elfe his body is of a bad constitution. We have had some sick, that have(as it were) raised vp from death to life : for having eaten twice or thrice of a coolice made of a Cocke, good Wine taken according to the necessitie of nature, 15 a soueraigne preservative for all sicknesses, and particularly for this. The young buds of herbs in the Spring time be also very soueraigne. And as for that which concerneth the exteriour parts of the body, we have found great good in wearing woodden Pantaphles, or Patins with our shoots, for to avoide the moistnesse. The houles neede no opening nor windowes on the North-west side, being a winde very dangerous: but rather on the East fide, or the South. It is very good to have good bedding (and it was good for mee to have carried things necessary co this purpose) and about all to keepe himselfe neate. I would like well the vie of Stoues, such as they have in Germanie, by meanes whereof they feele no Winter, being at home, but as much as they please. Yea, they have of Gardins Such them in many places, in their Gardens, which doe so temper the coldnesse of Winter, that in Thaue feene at this rough and sharpe feason there one may fee Orange-trees, Lymmon-trees, Fig-trees, Pom- 60 granat-trees, and all fuch forts of trees, bring forth fruit as good as in Prouence.

The Sauages vie iweatings often, as it were every moneth, and by this meanes they preserve themselues, driving out by sweate all the cold and euill humours they might have gathered. of the Sausges But one fingular preservative against this perfidious ficknesse, which commeths of stealingly, and which having once lodged it felfe within vs, will not bee put out, is to follow the counfell of him that is wife amonit the wife, who having confidered all the afflictions that mangine to A mery bear him felieduring his life, hath found nothing better then to reiorce bimfelfe, and doe good, himselieduring his life, hath found nothing better then to reinjee himselfe, and dee good, and the green per creative take plassive in his owne worker. They that have done fo, in our companie, have found themselves against the well by it: contrariwile lome al waies grudging, repining, neuer content, idle, have beene found Scurus. out by the same disease. True it is, that for to enjoy mirch it is good to have the sweetnesse of fresh Eciel 3, 12,221 meares, Fleftes, Fiftes, Milke, Butter, Oyles, Fruits, and fuen like, which wee had not at will manes of (I meane the common fort : for alwairs some one, or other of the companie did furnish Menfieur de Poutrincourt, his Table with Wilde-fowle, Venison or fresh Fish) Andit wee had halfe to a dozen Kine, I beleeue that no body had died there. dozen mine, a believe the median for the accomplishment of mirth, and to the end one may Necessition of take pleafure on the worke of his hands is every one to have the honest companie of his law- houng women full wife: for without that, the cheere is neuer perfect; ones minde is alwaies upon that which into the Counone loues and defireth; there is still some forrow, the body becomes sull of ill humours, and so trey. the fickneffe doth breed. And for the last and soueraigne remedie, I send backe the Patient to the tree of life (for so one may well qualifie it) which lames Quartier doth call Anneda, yet vn- Tree of life. knowne in the coaft of Port Royall, vnletle it bee, peraduenture the Safafras, whereof there is Safafras. quantitie in certaine places. And it is an affured thing, that the faid tree is very excellent. But Monfier thems Monfieur Champlain, who is now in the great River of Canada, passing his Winter, in the this present on same part, where the said Quartier did winter, hath charge to finde it out, and to make proui- yecre 1609. in

1625

THe rough season being passed, Monsteur de Monts, weatied with his bad dwelling at Saint The discourse Croix, determined to leeke out another Port in a warmer Countrie, and more to the South: of new Lands And to that end made a Pinnace to bee armed and furnished with victuals, to follow the coast, by Monsteur de And to that end made a Pinnace to bee armed and furnined with victuals, to route with additional field and discourring new Countries, to seeke out some happier Port in a more temperate aire. Hee lous tales and made in this Yovage but about an hundred and twenty leagues, as wee will tell you now. From reports of the Saint Croix to fixty leagues forward, the coast lieth East and West: at the end of which fixty Riverand saileagues is a River, called by the Sauages Kumbeki. From which place to Malebarre it lieth ned Towneof 30 North and South, and there is yet from one to the other fixty leagues, in right line, not follow - Noremberg. North and South, and there is yet from one to the other many leagues, in right line, not ronow ing the Bayes. So farre firetcheth Monfisur de Monts his Voyage, wherein hee had for Pilot leagues from leagues from in his Veffell . Monsieur de Champdore. In all this Coast so farre as Kunbeki, there are ma- S. croix. ny places where shippes may bee harboured amongst the llands, but the people there is not so frequent as is beyond that : And there is no remarkable thing (at least that may bee seene in the outside of the Lands) but a River, whereof many have written fables one after another.

I will recite that which is in the last Booke, intituled, The uninerfall Historie of the West Indies, Printed at Donay the last yeere 1607. in the place where hee speaketh of Norombega: For in reporting this, I shall have also said that which the first have written, from whom they haue had it.

Moreouer, towards the North (layth the Authour, after bee had spoken of Virginia) is Norom- Fabulous sales bega, which is knowne well enough, by reason of a faire Towne, and a great River, though it is not of the River found from whence it bath his name: for the Barbarians doe call it Aguncia : At the mouth of Norombetta. this River there is an Iland very fit for fishing. The Region that goeth along the Sea, doth abound in filb, and towards New France there is great number of wilde heafts, and is very commodisms for hunting; the Inhabitant: doe line in the fame manner as they of New France.

If this beautifull Towne hath euer beene in nature, I would faine knowe who hath pulled it downe : For there is but Cabins heere and there made with pearkes , and couered with barkes of trees, or with skinnes, and both the River and the place inhabited is called Pempte- Pempteent goet, and not Agguncia. The River (fauing the tide) is fcarce as the River on that coaft, be-

50 cause there are not Lands sufficient to produce them, by reason of the great River of Canada, which runneth like this coast, and is not fourescore leagues distant from that place in croffing the Lands, which from elfe-where received many Rivers falling from thoir parts which are towards Norombega : At the entrie whereof, it is so farre from having but one 1land, that rather the number thereof is almost infinite, for as much as this River enlarging it selfe like the Greeke Lambda A, the mouth whereof is all full of Iles, whereof there is one of them lying very farre off (and the formost) in the Sea, which is high and markable about

But some will say that I equiuocate in the situation of Norombega, and that it is not placed Obication where I take it. To this I as I wer, that the Author, whole words I have a little before alleaged, is in Aniwer. 60 this my futicient warrant, who in his Geographicall Mappe, hath placed in the mouth of this River in the 44, degree, and his supposed Towne in the 45, wherein we differ but in one degree, which is a small matter. For the River that I meane is in the 45. degree, and as for any Towne, there is none. Now of necessity it must be this river, because that the same being passed, and that of Kinibete, (which is in the fame high) there is no other River forward, whereof account should be made, till one come to Virginia. I say furthermore, that seeing the Barbarians of Norombega doe Kinibeki.

The Bay of Marchin. The ground manured. Vines.

Malebarre.

Etechemins. The Armouchi-

of the Armou-

The arrivall of Monfieur du Point. 1605.

Trafficke with the Sauages. Benera Otters,

Hand Mils.

liue as they of new France, and have abundance of hunting, it must be, that their Province be sean our new France; for fiftie leagues farther to the South-well there is no great game, bethe woods are thinner there, and the Inhabitants fetled, and in greater number then in No.

The River of Norombega being passed, Monsieur de Monts went still coasting, vntill he came to Kinibeli, where a River is that may shorten the way to goe to the great River of Canada. There is a number of Sauages Cabined there, and the land beginneth there to be better peopled. From Kinibeki going farther, one findeth the Bay of Marchin, named by the Captaine his name that commandeth therein. This Marchin was killed the yeare that we parted from New France 10 1607. Farther is another Bay called Chonakoet, where (in regard of the former Countries) is a great number of people : for there they till the ground, and the region beginneth to be more temperate, and for proofe of this, there is in this land store of Vines, Yea, euen there be Ilands full of it (which be more fubicat to the injuries of the winde and cold) as we shall say hereafter. There is betweene Chonatoes and Malebarre many Bayes and Iles, and the Coast is fandy. with shallow ground, drawing neere to the faid Malebarre, fo that scarce one may land there

The people that be from Saint Johns River to Kinibeki (wherein are comprised the Rivers of Saint Croix and Norombega) are called Etechemins. And from Kinibeki as farre as Malebarre and and Armoneope farther, they are called Armonebiquois. They be traitors and theeues, and one had neede to take 20 heede of them. One of them from a man of Saint Males tooke a Kettell, and ran away speedi-The twiffmeffe ly with his bootie. The Malonin running after, was killed by this wicked people : and although the fame had not hapned, it was in vaine to pursue after this theefe ; for all these Armonchiquois are as fwift in running as Grayhounds; as we will yet further fay in speaking of the voiage that Monfieur de Pontrincourt made in the same Country, in the yeare 1606.

The Spring feafon being paffed in the Voyage of the Armonebiquois, Mounfieur du Pont, fur-

named Grane, dwelling at Honflenr, did arrive with a company of some forty men, for to ease the faid Monfieur de Monts and his troope, which was to the great toy of all, as one may well imagine : and Canon thots were free and plentifull at the comming, according to custome, and the found of Trumpets. The faid Monfieur de Pont, not knowing yet the frate of our French men, did 10 thinke to finde there an affured dwelling, and his lodgings ready : but confidering the accidents of the strange sicknesse, whereof we have spoken, he tooke advice to change place. Monsieur de Monts was very defirous that the new habitation had beene about 40. degrees, that is to fay 4. degrees farther then Saint Croix : but having viewed the Coast as farre as Malebarre, and with much paine, not finding what he defired, it was deliberated to goe and make their dwelling in Transmigrati. Port Royall, vntill meanes were had to make an ampler discouery. So every one began to packe on from S. Croix up his things: That which was built with infinite labour was pulled downe, except the Storehouse, which was too great and painefull to be transported, and in executing of this, many voyages are made. All being come to Port Royal they found out new labours: the abiding place is cholen right ouer against the Iland, that is at the comming in of the River L'Esquelle, in a place 40 where all is covered over, and full of woods as thicke as possibly may be. The Moneth of September did already begin to come, and care was to be taken for the valading of Monsieur du Pont his Ship, to make roome for them that should returne backe into France. Finally, there is worke enough for all. When the Ship was in a readinesse to put to failes, Monsieur de Monts hauing feene the beginning of the new habitation, shipped himselfe for his returne with them that would follow him. Notwithstanding many of good courage (forgetting the griefes and labours passed) did tarry behinde, amongst whom were Monsieur Champlaine and Monsieur Champdore, the one for Geographie, and the other for the conducting and guiding of the voiages that should be necessary to be made by Sea.

The Winter being come, the Sauages of the Countrey did affemble themselues, from farre to 50 Port Royall, for to trucke with the Frenchmen, for such things as they had, some bringing Beauers skins, and Otters (which are those whereof most account may be made in that place) and also Tabagua is a Ellans or Stagges, whereof good buffe be made: Others bringing flesh newly killed, wherewith fausgetearnes they made many good Tabagies, or feafts, living merrily as long as they had wherewithall. They neuer wanted any Bread, but Wine did not continue with them till the feafon was ended. For when we came thither the yeare following, they had beene about three Moneths without any Wine, and were very glad of our comming, for that made them to take agains the tafte of it.

The greatest paine they had, was to grinde the Corne to have Bread, which is very painfull with hand-mils, where all the firength of the body is requifite. This labour is fo great, that the 62 Sauages (although they be very poore) cannot beare it, and had rather to be without bread, then to take to much paines, as hath beene tried, offering them halfe of the grinding they should doe, but they choofed rather to have no corne. And I might well beleeve that the fame, with other things, hath beene great meanes to breede the ficknesse spoken of, in some of Monfieur du Pont his men : for there died fome halfe a dozen of them that winter. True it is, that I finde a The number defect in the buildings of our Frenchmen, which is, they had no ditches about them, whereby the of the deadwaters of the ground next to them did run vader their lower-most roomes, which was a great Fault in their waters of the ground next to them did the what their hower-more to their health. I adde besides the bad waters which they wied, that did not run from a quicke foring, but from the neerest brooke. The winter being passed, and the Sea naugable, Monsieur du Pont would needes atchieue the The surniture The winter being palied, and the Sea naugable, Moniteur an Pont Would needed attended the of Mouleur an enterprise begun the years before by Monsieur de Monts, and to goe seeke out a Port more Southerly, where the ayre might be more temperate, according as he had in charge of the faid Mon- the diffeourty fieur de Monts. He furnished then the Barke which remained with him to that effect. But be- of new lands. so ing fet out of the Port, and full ready, hoilted up failes for Malebarre, he was forced by contrary winde twice to pur backe againe, and at the third time the faid Barke strake against the rocks at the entry of the faid Port. In this diffrace of Neptune, the men were faued with the better part of prouision and merchandise; but as for the Barke it was rent in peeces. And by this mishap the Voyage was broken, and that which was so defired intermitted. For the habitation of Port Royall was not judged good. And notwithstanding it is, on the North and North-west sides, Gaples of dea well theltered with Mountaines, diffant fome one league, some halfe a league from the Port and lay in establish the River L'E [quelle. So we fee how that enterprises take not effect according to the delires of ing the dwelmen, and are accompanied with many perils. So that one must not wonder if the time be long ling place of in establishing of Colonies, specially in lands so remote, whose nature, and temperature of aire the strenchment an is not knowne, and where one must fell and out downe Forrests, and be constrained to take heed, not from the people we call Sauages, but from them that tearme themselues Christians, and vet haus but the name of it, curied and abhominable people, worse then Wolues, enemies to God

CHAP.7. An enterprise aschieued. The Bay of Hoate. Mists and Colds.

This attempt then being broken, Monfieur da Pont knew not what to doe, but to attend the fuccour and furply that Monfieur de Monts promifed parting from Port Royall, at his return into France, to fend him the yeare following. Yet for all events he built another Barke and a Shallop for to feeke French Ships in the places where they vie to dry fift, fuch as Campfean Port, Englib Port, Misamiches Port : the Bay of Chaleur (or Heat) the Bay of Mornes or Coddes, and others in great number, according as Monfieur de Monts had done the former yeare, to the end to 20 Ship himfelfe in them, and to returne into France, in case that no Shippe should come to suc-

Bout the time of the before mentioned Shipwracke, Monfieur de Monts being in France, The third vor-A knowing Monfieur de Pontrincourt his defire, he wrote voto him, and fent a man of purpole age made by to give him notice of the Voyage that was in hand. Which the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt ac. Monfieur de cepted of. He was no fooner come to Paris, but that he was forced to depart, not having scarle Postrinears. time to prouide for things necellary. And I having had that good hap to be acquainted with him fome yeares before, he asked me it I would take part in that bu'ineffe ?

Being come to Rochell, we found there Monfieur de Monts, and Monfieur de Pontrincourt, that were come in Poste, and our Ship called the Ionas, of the burthen of one hundred and firtie tuns, ready to passe out of the chaines of the Towne, to tarry for winde and tide. The tyde I fay, be- Rochel cause that a great Ship laden, cannot come to sea from Rochell, but in spring tydes, woon the new and full Moone, by reason that in the Towne roade there is no sufficient depth. I believe, that after fo many trials, none would have ventured to goe plant Colonies in those parts, that Countrey being fo ill spoken of, that every one did pittie vs, considering the accidents happened to The courage them that had beene there before. Notwithitanding Monfieur de Monts and his affectates, did of Monfieur de beare manfully this loffe.

The Saturday, Whitfon eue, the thirteenth of May, we weied our anckers, and failed in open Sea, fo that by little and little we loft the fight of the great Towers and Towne of Rochell, 13. of May then of the lles of Rez and Oleron, bidding France fare-well. It was a thing fearefull for them that were not yied to fuch a dance, to fee them carried ypon so moueable an element, and to be at every monent (as it were) within two fingers breadth to death. We had not long failed, but Meetings of that many did their endeuour to yeelde up the tribute to Neptune. In the meane while we went Ships, foll forward, for there was no more going backe, the planke being once taken up. The fixteenth of May we met with thirteene Holanders, going for Spaine, which did inquire of our voiage, and io held their course.

About the eighteenth day of Iune, we found the Sea-water, during three dayes space, very warme, and by the same warmth, our Wine also was warme in the bottome of our Ship, yet the ayre was not hotter then before. And the one and twentieth of the faid Moneth, quite contra- Great cold. 60 ty, we were two or three dayes to much compatted with Miftes and Coldes, that wee thought our felues to be in the moneth of lanuary, and the water of the Sea was extreame cold. Which continued with vs vntill we come upon the faid Banke, by reason of the faid Mists, which outwardly did procure this cold voto vs. When I locke out the cause of this Antiperistage, Lattribute cause of the L. it to the Ices of the North, which come floting downe vpon the Coast and Sea adioyning to ces of New.

Meaus and his

New-found-land, and Labrador, which we have faid elsewhere, is brought thither with the Sea. by her naturall motion, which is greater there, then elfewhere, because of the great space it bach to run, as in a gulie, in the depth of America, where the nature and lituation of the vinuerfall earth doth beare it eafily. Now these Ices (which sometimes are seene in bankes of ten leagues length, and as high as Mountaines and hils, and thrice as deepe in the waters) holding, as it were, an Empire in this Sea, drive out farre from them, that which is contrary to their coldnesse, and confequently doe binde and close on this fide, that small quantity of milde temperature that the Summer may bring to that part, where they come to feate and place themselves.

Before we come to the Banke, which is the great Banke where the fishing of greene Codneerethe great fishes is made (to are they called when they are not dry, for one must goe aland for the drying of 10 them) the Sea-faring-men, befides the computation they make of their courfe, have warnings when they come neere to it, by Birds, which are knowne : euen as one doth them of these our parts, returning backe into France, when one is within one hundred or one hundred and twenty quest, fisploies leagues neere it. The most frequent of these Birds, towards the said Bankes, be Godes, Fouquets, and other called Happe toyes. The Banke whereof we speake, are Mountaines grounded in the depth of the waters, which are railed up to thirty, fix and thirty, and forty lathams, neere to the upper face of the Sea. This Banke is holden to be of two hundred leagues in length, and is eighteene, twenty, and twenty foure leagues broad, which being paffed, there is no more bottome found out, then in these parts, vitill one come to the land. The Ships being there arrived, the failes are rowled vp, and there 20 filling is made for the greene-fish. There is farther off, other Bankes, as I have marked in the faid Map, woon the which good fifthing may be made : and many goe thither that know the places. When that we parced from Rochel, there was (as it were) a Forreit of Ships lying at Chef de Bois (whereof that place hath taken his name) which went all in a company to that Country, preuenting vs (in their going) but onely of two daies.

The fishing of

Haning seene and noted the Banke, we hoisted up failes and bare all night, keeping still our Coast to the West. But the dawne of day being come, which was Saint lohn Baptifts Eue, in Gods name we pulled downe the failes, passing that day a fishing of Cod-fish, with a thoufind mirths and contentments, by reason of fresh meates, whereof we had as much as we would, having long before wished for them. Monsieur de Pontrincourt, and a yong man of Retel named 30 Le Fleure, who by reason of the Sea-ficknesse were not come out from their beds nor Cabines. Hap-foyrs, why from the beginning of the Nauigation, came vpon the hatches that day, and had the pleasure not onely of fishing of Cod, but also of those Birds, that be called by the French Marriners Hapfoyes, that is to fay, Liuer-catchers, because of their greedinesse to denoure to liners of the Colfishes that are cast into the Sea, after their bellies be opened, whereof they are so couetous, that though they fee a great Powle ouer their heads, ready to firike them downe, yet they aduenture themselves to come neere to the Ship, to catch some of them, at what price soeuer. And they which were not occupied in filhing, did paffe their time in that sport. And so did they, by their diligence, that we tooke fome thirty of them.

In this filhing, we lometimes did take Sea-dogs, whole skins our Ioyners did keepe carefully 40 Sea dogsskins to smooth their worke withall. Item, fishes called by Frenchmen Merlus, which be better then Cod, and sometimes another kinde of fish, called Bars : which diversity did augment our delight. They which were not buse in taking neither Fishes nor Birds, did passe their time in gathering the hearts, guts, and other inward parts (most delicate) of the Cod-fish, which they did Excellent fawmince with lard and spices, and with those things did make as good Bolonia Sauliges, as any can figes made The weather in those Se 18 contrary then in ours.

The causes of M:ft, on the Weft Seas.

wards of Cod. be made in Paris, and we did ease of them with a very good stomacke. From the eighteenth of Iune untill we did arrive at Port Royal, we have found the weather quite otherwise to that we had before. For (as we have already faid) we had cold mists or fogs, before our comming to the Banke (where we came in faire sunshine) but the next day, we fell to the fogs againe, which (a farre off) we might perceive to come and wrap vs about, holding vs 30 continually priloners three whole dayes, for two dayes of faire weather that they permitted vs : which was alwayes accompanied with cold, by realon of the Summers absence. Yea euen divers we have frene our telues a whole fennight, continually in thicke fogges, twice without any thew of Sunne, but very little, as I will recite hereafter, And I will bring forth a reason for fach effects which feemeth vinto me probable. As wee fee the fire to draw the moistneile of a wet cloth, opposite vnto it; likewife the Sunne draweth moistnesse and vapours both from the Sea and from the land. But for the diffoling of them, there is here one vertue, and beyond those parts another, according to the accidents and circumstances that are found. In these our Countries it raileth vp vapours onely from the ground, and from our Rivers: which eartily vapours, grolle and waighty, and participating leffe of the moift elloment, doe cause vs a hot aire, and the 62 earth discharged of those vapours, becomes thereby more hot and parching. From thence it commeth, that the faid vapours, having the earth on the one pirt, and the Sunne on the other, which heateth them, they are easily diffolied, not remaining long in the ayre, voloffe it be in winter. when the earth is waxen cold, and the Sunne beyond the Equinoctial line, farre off from vi-

From the same reason proceedeth the cause why Mists and Fogs be not so frequent, nor so long in the French Seas, as the New-found-land, because that the Sunne, passing from his rising, about the grounds, this Sea, at the comming thereof, receiveth almost but earthly vapours, and by a long foace retaineth this vertue to diffolue very foone the exhalation it draweth to it felfe, But when is commeth to the middelt of the Ocean, and to the faid New-found-land, having elevated and affumed in fo long acourse a great abundance of vapours, from this moist wide Ocean, it doth not forafily diffolue them, as well because those vapours be cold of themselves, and of their nature, as because the element which is neerest under them, doth simpathize with them, and preferneth them, and the Suane beames being not holpen in the diffoluing of them, as they are voon the to earth. Which is even feene in the land of that Countrie, which (although it hath but small heate, by reason of the abundance of woods) notwithstanding it helpeth to disperse the Miss and Rogges, which be ordinarily there, in the morning, during Summer, but not as at Sea, for about eight a clocke in the morning they begin to vanish away, and serie as a dew to the round.

The eight and twentieth day of Inne, we found our felues vpon a small banke (other then the Land makes. great Banke whereof we have (poken) at forty fathams. From that time forward, we began to The discourt defry land-markes (it was New-found-land) by hearbes, mosses, showers, and peeces of wood, of s. Petersithat we alwaies met, abounding the more, by io much wee drew neere to it. The fourth day of lands. Lily, our tailers, which were appointed for the last quarter watch, descried in the morning, ve- Plaine disco-30 ry early, cuery one being yet in bed, the Iles of Saint Peter. And the Friday the feuenth of the Land. faid Moneth, we discourred, on the Larboord, a Coast of land, high raised vp. Euen our Dogs did thruit their nofes out of the Ship, better to draw and smell the sweet ayre of the land, not being able to containe them felues from witnessing, by their gestares, the loy they had of it. We dread within a league neere voto it, and (the failes being let downe) we fell a fishing of Cod, the fibure of the Binke beginning to faile, They which had before vs made voyages in thoseparts, did sudge vs to be at Cipe Breton. The night drawing on, we flood off to the Sea-ward : the Cap Breton did sudge vs to be at Cape Breton. The night drawing on, we flood off to the Sea-ward: the The Bay of next day following, being the eight of the faid moneth of Iuly, as we drew neere to the Bay of Campleau. Cama seam, came, about the evening, mitts, which did continue eight whole dayes, during the Eight daies. which we kept vs at Sea, hulling still, not being able to goe forward, being resisted by West and 30 South-well windes. During thele eight dayes, which were from one Saturday to another, God Gods favour (who hath alwayes guided these voyages, in the which not one man hath been lost by Sea) shewin dangers ed v: his speciall fauour, in sending vnto vs, among the thicke fogges, a clearing of the Sunne, which continued but halfe an houre : And then had we fight of the firme land, and knew that we were ready to be call away vpon the rockes, if wee had not speedily stood off to Sea-ward. Finally, vponSaturday, the fifteenth of July, about two a clocke in the afterdoone, the skie began to falute vs, as it were, with Cannon shots, shedding teares, as being forry to have kept vs Calm weather. fo long in paine. So that faire weather being come againe, we law comming ftraight to vs (we Morueilous obeing foure leagues off from the land) two Shallops with open failes, in a Sea yet wrathed. This dours comthing gaue vs much concent. But whill we followed on our sourie, there came from the land ming from the 40 odors vncomparable for sweetnesse, brought with a warme winde, so abundantly, that all the land. Orient parts could not procure greater abundance. We did stretch out our hands, as it were to take them, so palpable were they, which I have admired a thousand times since. Then the two Shallops did approach, the one manned with Sanages, who had a Stagge painted at their failes, The boording the other with Frenchmen of Saint Maloes, which made their fishing at the Port of Camfeau, but

mire, at the first fight, their faire shape, and forme of visage. One of them did excuse himselfe, for goody men. that he had not brought his faire beuer gowne, because the weather had beene foule. He had but one red peece of Frize vpon his backe, and Matachiaz about his necke, at his wrifts, about the Matachiaz be elbow, and at his girdle. We made them to cate and drinke. During that time they told vs all carkanets, nekthat had passed, a yeare before, at Port Regal whither we were bound. In the meane while they laces bracelets so of Saint Maloe came, and told vs as much as the Sanages had. Adding that the wednesday, when girdles. that we did thun the rockes, they had feene vs, and would have come to vs with the faid Saua- During the ges, but that they left off, by reason we put to the Sea : and moreover that it had beene alwayes milisar Sea, it faire weather on the land : which made vs much to maruell : but the caule thereof hath beene is faire weather shewed before. Thete Frenchmen of Saint Maloe were men that did deale for the affociates of on land.

Monfieur de Monts, and did complaine that the Baskes, or men of Saint lohn de Lu (against the

uers skins. They gaue vs fundry forts of their fifthes, as Bars, Marlis, and great Fletans. rs skins. They gaue visualty lorts of their filles as Bars, Marinis, and great rictans.

At the parting, fome number of ours went aland at the Port of Camplean, as well to fetch vs of fome or our 60 some wood and tresh water, whereof we had neede, as for to follow the Coast from that place company, soto Port Royall in a Shallop, for we did feare leaft Monfieur de Pont should be at our comming this ing aland. ther already gone from thence. The Sanages made offer to goe to him thorow the woods, with The Sanages do promife to be there within fix dayes, to aduercife him of our comming, to the end to cause his ways finall thay, for as much as word was left with him to depart, valelle hee were fuccoured within the time.

the Sanages were more diligent, for they arrived first. Having neuer feene any before, I did ad- The Sanages

King his Inhibitions) had trucked with the Sanages, and carried away about fix thousand Bea-

fixteenth day of that moneth, which he failed not to doe : notwithflanding our men defirous to fee the Land neerer, did ninder the fame which promifed vs to bring vnto vs the next day the faid wood and water, if wee would approch neere the Land, which wee did not, but followed Mifts. Calmes.

Port au Mou-

Tuefday the feuenteenth of July, wee were according to our accordinged manner, furnized with milts and contrarie wind. But the Thursday wee had calme weather, fo that whether it Port ou Roffe. Were milt or faire weather wee went nothing forward. After this calme wee had two daves of fogges. The Sunday the three and twentieth of the faid moneth, wee had knowledge of the Port Du Roffignoll, and the same day in the afternoone, the Sunne shining faire, we call Anchor at the mouth of Port du Mouton, and we were in danger to fall upon a should, being come to two to hargrower fathomes and a halfe depth. We went aland seventeene of vs in number, to fetch the wood and in the Landar water, whereof we had need. There we found the Cabins and Lodgings, yet whole and vabroken, that Monfieur de Monts made two yeeres before, who had foloutned there by the space of one moneth, as we have faid in his place. We faw there, being a fandy Land, store of Okes, bearing Acornes, Cypreffe trees, Firre-trees, Bay-trees, Muske-rofes, Goofe-berries, Purllen, Rafpics, Fernes, Lysmachia, (a kind of Sammonee) Calamus odoratus, Angelica, and other Simples, in the space of two houres that wee tarried there. Wee brought backe in our ship wilde Perze, which we found good. We had not the leiture to hunt after Rabets that be there in great numher not farre from the Port, but we returned abourd as foone as we had laden our felices with water and wood : and fo hoifed vp failes. Tuelday the flue and twentieth day we were about the Cap de Sable, in faire weather, and 20

Le cap de Sable. Long Iland. The Bay S. Mary. to Port Roral.

made a good journey, for about the evening we came to fight of Long Ile, and the Bay of Saint Marie, but becaute of the night we put back to the Seaward. And the next day we caft Auchor at the mouth of Port Royall, where wee could not enter by reason it was ebbing water, but we gaugtwo Canon shot from our ship to salute the faid Port, and to advertize the Frenchmen that we were there. Thursday the seuen and twentieth of July, we came in with the sloud, which was not without much difficultie, for that we had the wind contrarie, and gufts of wind from the Mountains, which made vs almost to strike vpon the Rockes. And in these troubles our ship bare still con-neffe of it, and the Mountaines and Hils that incironed it, and I wondred how fo faire a place did remayne defert, being all filled with Woods, feeing that fo many pine away in the World, which might make good of this Land, if onely they had a chiefe Governour to couduct them thither. We knew not vet, if Monsteur du Pont was gone or no, and therefore wee did expett that hee should send some men to meete vs ; but it was in vaine : for hee was gone from thence twelve dayes before. And whileft we did hull in the middeft of the Port Memberton, the grea-

What! You ftand here a dining (for it was about noone) and doe not fee a great flip that com- 40

meth here; and we know not what men they are: Suddenly these two men ranne vpon the Bulwarke, and with diligence made readie the Canons, which they furnished with Pellets and touch Powder. Memberton, without delay, came in a Canow made of Farkes of trees, with a Daughter of his, to view vs : And having found but friendship, and knowing vs to be Frenchmen, made no alarme. Notwithstanding one of the two Frenchmen left there, called La Taile, came to the shoare of the Port, his match on the cocke, to know what we were (though he knew it well enough, for we had the white Banner displayed at the top of the Mast) and on the sudden four evolley of Canons were that off, which made innumerable echoes: And from current, the Fort was falured with three Canon shots, and many Musket shots, at which time our Trumpe-uing God thankes, in feeing the Saurges Cabins, and walking thorow the Medowes. But I cannot but praile the gentle courage of thele two men, one of them I have alreadie named, the other is called Miquelet : which deferre well to be mentioned here, for having to freely exposed that lives in the conternation of the welfare of New France. For Monfieur du Port haung but one

Barke and a Shallop, to feeke out towards New-found-land, for French shippes, could not charge

himfelie with fo much furniture, Corne, Meate, and Merchandiles as were there : which he had bin forced to cast into the Sea(and which lead bin greatly to our prejudice, and wedid feare it very much) if thefe two men had not adventured themfelves to tarrie there, for the preferring of ter was not flacke of his dutie. Then we landed, viewed the houle, and we peffed that day ingi- 50

trarie, the Poope before, and sometimes turned round, not being able to do any other thing else. 20

Difficulties in comming in.

The beautie of Finally, being in the Port, it was vnto vs a thing maruellous to fee the faire diffance and large-

Sagames figni- tell Sagamos of the Souriquois (fo are the people called with whom we were) came to the French heth Capraine Fort, to them that were left there, being only two, crying as a mad man, faying in his Languages

Praises of the two Frenchmen Fort of Port Royall.

The tilling of the ground. The meeting du Pent.

those things, which they did with a willing and toyfull minde, The Friday, next day after our arrivell, Monfieur de Pourrincourt affected to this Enterprize 60 as for himfelfe, put part of his people to worke in the tillage and manuting of the ground, whilest the others were employed in making cleane of the Chambers, and enery one to make readie that which belonged to his Trade. In the means time those people of ours that had left ys at Campfeau, to come along the Coaft, met (as it were miraculoully) with Monfeur du Pont, among Hands, that bee in great number in those parts. The faid Monfieur de Pout, at this hanpic and fortunate meeting, returned backg so fee we in the Port Royall, and to ship himselfe in the longe, to returne into France. As this change was beneficiall vnto him, fo was it vnto vs . by the meaner of his hips that hee left with va. For without that, wee had beene in fuch extremitie that we had not beene able to goe nor come any where, our thip being once returned into France. Her arrived there, on Monday the last of luly, and tarried set in Port Roy all, vntill the eight and twenty of August. All this moneth we made merry.

At the very beginning, we were deficous to fee the Countrie up the River, where wee found Medowes, almost continuall about twelve leagues of ground, among which, brookes doe runne to without number, which come from the Hills and Mountaines adiopning. The Woods very shicke on the water shoates, and so thicke, that fometimes, one cannot goe thorow them. In the passage to come forth from the same Fort, for to gonto Sea , there is a Brooke, which talleth from the high Rockes downe, and in falling disperseth it selfe into a small raine, which is very delightfull in Summer, because that at the foote of the Rockethere are Caues, wherein one is courted, whilst that this raine falleth forpleafantly : And in the Cane (wherein the raine of this Brooke falleth) is made, as it were, a Rain-bowe, when the Sunne fhineth : which hath Theforme of a given me great cause of admiration.

Within fifteene leagues of our dwelling; the Countrey, thorow which the River L'Equille der a Cauc. paffeth, is all plaine and euen. I have feene in those parts many Countries , where the land is 20 all eyen, and the fairest of the world. But the perfection thereof is , that it is well watered. And for witnesse whereof, not onely in Port Royall, but also in all New France, the great River Greateste of Canada is proofe thereof, which at the end of foure hundred leagues is as broad as the greatell Rivers of the world, replenished with Iles and Rockes innumerable: taking her beginning leaves from from one of the Lakes which doe meete at the streame of her course (and so I thinke) so that it the mouth. hath two courses, the one from the East towards France: the other from the West towards It springs from the South Seas: which is admirable, but not without the like example found in our Europe, a Lake. For the River which commeth downe to Trent, and to Verone proceedeth from a Lake which produceth another River, whole course is bent opposite to the River of Line, which falleth into the River Danbe. So the Nile iffueth from a Lake that bringeth forth other Rivers, which dif-

30 charge themfeluesinto the great Ocean.

Let us returne to our tillages for to that must wee apply our selves : it is the first mine that Which is the must bee fought for, which is more worth than the treatures of Atabalina: And hee that hath first mine, Come, Wine, Cattell, Woollen and Linnen, Leather, Iron, and afterward Cod-fifh, he needeth nanther treatures, for the necessaries of life. Now all this is (or may be) in the Land by vs described: vpon which Monsteur de Pontrincoure having caused a second tillage to be made, in fifteene dayes after his arrivall thither, he fowed it with our French Corne, as well Wheat and Rie, as with Hempe, Flaxe, Turnen feed, Radice, Cabages, and other feeds: And the eight day following, he faw that his labour had not beene in vaine, but rather a faire hope, by the production that the ground had already made of the feedes which shee had received. Which being shewed 40 to Monkeur du Pont, was vnto him a faire subject to make his relation in France, as a thing altogether new there. The twentieth day of August was already come, when these faire shewes August 20. were made, and the time did admonish them that were to goe in the Voyage, to make ready. Whereunto they beganne to give order, fo that the five and twentieth day of the fame moneth, after many peales of Ordnance, they weighed anchor to come to the mouth of the Port, which is commonly the first dayes iourney.

Monsieur de Monts being desirous to reach as farre into the South as he could, and seeke out a Cause of the place very fit to inhabite, beyond Malebarre, had requested Monsieur de Poutrincourt to passe Yoyage made farther than yet he had done, and to seeke a convenient Port in good temperature of aire, making no greater account of Port Royall than of Saint Croix, in that which concerneth health. mouchiausis.

50 Whereunto the faid Monfieur de Pontrincourt being willing to condescend, would not tarrie for the Spring time, knowing he should have other employments to exercise himselfe withall. But feeing his fowings ended, and his field greene, refolued him felfe to make this Voyage and Dilcouerie before Winter. So then hee disposed all things to that end, and with his Barke anchored neere to the longs, to the end to get out in companie.

The eight and twentieth day of the faid moneth each of vs tooke his course, one one way, Parting from and the other another, diverfly to Gods keeping. As for Monsieur du Pont he purposed by the Port Royall. Way to fet vpon a Merchant of Roam, named Boyer, who (contrary to the Kings inhibitions) was in those parts to trucke with the Sauages, notwithstanding bee had beene deliucred out of prison in Rochell, by the consent of Monsieur de Pontrincourt, under promite hee should not goe thither; but the faid Boyer was already gone. And as for Monfieur de Pourrencourt, hee tooke his course for the Ile of Saint Croix, the Frenchmens first abode, having Monsieur de Champdore for Mafter and Guide of his Barque: but beeing hindered by the winde, and because his Barque did leake, hee was forced twice to put backe againe. In the end hee quite passed the Faire Ric Bay Françoife, and viewed the faid He, where hee found ripe Corne, of that which two yeeres found at

before S.Croix.

Vuuuuu

Their meaning is to plant beyond Malebarre to the louthward, A ditch profitibly made. What flore of workmen and lab pirers in Muffels Lobfters, Crabs.

> Good prouifign of wilde

What quantity of Bread and Wine.

* A kinde of Stag, or red Deere. The liberall nature of the Sausges. What carth is in the Medowes.

Ellans in the

not, if there bee any ground, there are Woods. Et vs returne to Monfieur de Posserincourt, whom we have left in the Ile Saint Croix. Having 50 made there a reuiew, and cherished the Savages that were there, hee went in the space of foure dayes to Pemptegoet, which is that place to famous vnder the name of Norombega. There needeth not fo long a time in comming thither, but hee tarried on the way to mend his Barke: for to that end he had brought with him a Smith and a Carpenter, and quantitie of boords. Hes crossed the Iles, which bee at the mouth of the River, and came to Kimbeki, where his Barke was in danger , by reason of the great streames that the nature of the place procureth there. This was the cause why hee made there no stay, but passed further to the Bay of Marchin, which is the name of a Captaine of the Sauages, who at the arrivall of the faid Monsterr de Poutrincourt, beganne to crie out aloud Ho He: whereunto the like answere was made vnto him. Hee replied, asking in his Language, What are yee? They answered him, Friends: And thereupon 60 Monsteur de Pourrincoure approaching, treated amitie with him, and presented him with Knines, Hatchete, and Matachiaz, that is to fay, Scarles, Karkenets and Bracelets made of Beades, or Quills made of white and blue Glaffe; whereof hee was very glad , as also for the confederacy Confederacy that the faid Monfieur de Pourincours made with him, knowing very well that the fame would before was fowed by Monfieur de Monts, which was faire, bigge, weighty, and well filled. Hee sent vnto vs some of that Corne to Port Rejall, where I was requested to stay, to looke to the house, and to keepe the rest of the companie there, in concord. Whereunto I did 20ree (though it was referred to my will) for the allurance that wee had among our felues, that the veere following wee should make our habitation in a warmer Countrie beyond Malebarre, and that wee should all goe in companie with them that should bee fent to vs out of France. In the meane while I employed my lelfe in dreffing the ground, to make inclosures and partitions of Gardens, for to fowe Corne and Kitchin herbes. Wee caused also a Ditch to bee made all about the Fort, which was very needfull to receive the waters and moiftneffe , that beforedid runne vnderneath among the rootes of trees, that had beene fallen downe: which peraduenture did make the place vnhealthfull. I will not fland in describing heere, what each of our other workmen and labourers did particularly make. It sufficeth, that wee had store of Ioyners, Carpenters, Maions, Stone-caruers, Lock-imithes, Taylors, Boord-fawyers, Mariners, &c. who did Their exercise exercise their Trades; which (in doing their duties). were very kindly vsed, for they were at and manner of their owne libertie for three houres labour a day. The ouerplus of the time they bestowed it. in going to gather Mussels, which are at lowe water in great quantitie before the Fort. or Lobfters, or Crabbes, which are in Port Royall, under the Rockes in great abundance, or Cockles. which are in every part in the oze, about the shoares of the faid Port: All that kinde of fish is taken without Net or Boat. Some there were that fometimes tooke wilde-fowle, but not being skilfull, they spoyled the game. And as for vs , our Table was furnished by one of 20 Monfieur de Monts men, who prouided for vs in fuch fort that wee wanted no fowle, bringing vito vs, fometimes halfe a dozen of birds, called by Frenchmen, Outards (a kinde of wilde Geefe) fometimes as many Mallards, or wilde Geefe, white and gray, very often two or three dozen of Larkes, and other kindes of birds. As for Bread, no body felt want thereof, and euery one had three quarts of pure and good Wine aday. Which hath continued with we as long as wee haue beene there, fauing that, when they, who came to fetch vs, in flead of bringing commodities vnto vs, helped vs to spend our owne. For our allowance, wee had Peale, Beanes; Rice, Prunes, Raifins, crie Codde, and falt Flesh, besides Oyle and Butter. But whensoeuer the Sauages, dwelling neere vs, had taken any quantitie of Sturgions, Salmons, or imall fiftes; Item, any Beuers, * Ellans, Carabous (or fallow Deere) they brought vnto vs halfe of it: and 30 that which remained they expoled it sometimes to sale publikely, and they that would have any thereof did trucke Bread for it. Wherein is to be noted a thing that now I remember. It is, that being necessary to cut turfes to couer the Piles of wood, heaped to make the faid Coales, there was found in the Medowes three foote deepe of earth, not earth, but graffe or herbes mingled with mudde, which have heaped themselues yeerely one vpon another from the beginning of the world, not having beene mooued. Neuerthelesse the greene thereof serueth for pasture to the Ellans, which wee have many times seene in our Medowes of those parts, in herds of three or source, great and small, fuffering themselues sometimes to bee approached, then they ranne to the Woods : But I may fay moreouer, that I have feene, in croffing two leagues of our faid Medowes, the fame to bee 43 all troden with trackes of Ellans, for I knowe not there any other cloven footed beafts. There was killed one of those beafts, not farre off from our Fort at a place where Monfieur de Monis having cauled the graffe to bee mowed two yeetes before, it was growne agains the fairest of the world. Some might matuell how those Medowes are made, seeing that all the ground in those places is couered with Woods. For Letisfaction whereof, let the curions Reader knowe, that in high Spring tides, specially in March and September, the floud couereth those shoares, which hindereth the trees there to take roote. But every where, where the water overfloweth

Pauty incourts discouery. Pemptegoet the true name of the fabulous Norombega. Kiniveki.

The Bay of

bee a great aide and support vnto him. Hee distributed to some men that were about him, amono a great number of people, the Presents that the faid Monsieur de Poutrincourt gaue him. to whom hee brought flore of Originac, or Ellans flesh (for the Baskes doe call a Stagge, or El. Originac or Ellan, Orignac) to refresh the companie with victuals. That done, they fer fayles towards Cho- lan: Champlein subset, where the River of Captaine Olmechin is, and where the yeere following was made the like Oxen. warre of the Souriquois and Etechemins, under the conduct of the Sagamos Memberton, which The Rings of I have described in Verses, which Verses I have inserted among the Muses of New France. At Olmechin. the entry of the Bay of the faid place of Chonakoet there is a great Hand, about halfe a league Port De Chonacompasse, wherein our men did first discouer any Vines (for although there bee some in Ansland of 10 the Lands neerer to Port Royall, notwithstanding there was yet no knowledge had of them) Vines which they found in great quantitie, having the trunke three and foure foote high, and as bigge as ones fift in the lower part, the Grapes faire and great, and fome as big as Plummes, or leffer : but as blacke , that they left a staine where their liquout was spilled : Those Grapes, I fav. lving ouer bushes and brambles that growe in the same Hand, where the trees are not so thicke as in other where, but are fixe or feuen rods distant assunder, which causeth the Grapes to be ripe the fooner; having befiles a ground very fit for the fame, gravelly and fandy. They tarried there but two houres : but they noted, that there were no Vines on the North fide, even as in the Ile Saint Croix are no Cedar trees, but on the West side,

From this Iland they went to the River of Olmechin, a Port of Chanakoet, where Marchin The River of 20 and the faid Olmechin brought to Monsieur de Poutrincours a prisoner of the Souriquois (and there-Olmechin. fore their enemy) which they game vinto him freely. Two houres after, there arrived two Sa- The galantuages, the one an Etelhemin, named Cheondun, Captaine of the River Saint lobn, called by the neffe of the Sauages Organdi: The other a Souriquois, named Messamoet, Captaine or Sagamos of the River of Port De la the Port De la Heue, where this priloner was taken. They had great store of Merchandises Heue. trucked with Frenchmen, which they were comming to veter, that is to fay, great, meane, and small Kettles, Hatchets, Kniues, Gownes, short Clokes, red Waste-coates, Bisket, and other thines: whereupon there arrived twelve or fifteene Boats, full of Savages of Olmechine fubie. The Savages Etion, being in very good order, all their faces painted, according to their wonted custome, when they will feeme faire, having their Bow and Arrow in hand, and the quiver, which they laved faces. 30 downe aboord. At that houre Messames beganne his Oration before the Sauages: shewing The Oration them, how that in times pait, they often had friendship together : and that they might easily of Meffamoti. ouercome their enemies, if they would have intelligence and ferue themselves with the amitie of the Frenchmen, whom they saw there present to knowe their Countrey, to the end to bring commodities vnto them hereafter, and to fuccour them with their forces, which forces he knew. and hee was the better able to make a demonstration thereof vote them, by so much that hee which spake, had before time beene in France, and dwelt there with Monsieur de Grandmont. Governour of Bayonne, Finally, his speech continued almost an houre with much vehemency and affection, with a gefture of body and armes, as is requifite in a good Oratour. And in the end Mellamost afhe did cast all his merchandises (which were worth about three hundred crownes, brought into festion to the 40 that Countrie) into Olmechin his Boat, as making him a prefent of that, in affurance of the love Frenchmen. hee would witnesse vnto him. That done the night hasted on, and every one retired himselfe. and liberality But Meffamoet was not pleased, for that Olmechin made not the like Oration vnto him, of Meffamoet, nor required his present: For the Sauages have that noble qualitie, that they give liberally, ca. The Sauages fling at the feet of him whom they will honour, the Prefent that they give him : But it is in be liberall. hope to receive some reciprocall kindnesse, which is a kinde of contract, which wee call, without name, I give thee, to the end thou shouldest give mee. And that is done thorow all the world. Therefore Meffamoet from that day had in minde to make warre to Olmechin. Notwithstan. A Corn-counding, the next day in the morning he and his people did returns with a Boate laden with that trie, Beance, Pumpions, and which they had, to wit, Corne, Tabacco, Beanes and Pumpions, which they diffributed here Grapes,

50 and there. Those two Captaines Olmechin and Marchin have fince beene killed in the warres. In whose stead was chosen by the Sauages, one named Bessabes, which since our returne hath Bessabes. beene killed by Englishmen: and in stead of him they have made a Captaine to come from with- Englishmen. in the Lands, named Asticou, a grave man, valiant and redoubted, which, in the twinkling of Asticou, an eye, will gather up a thousand Sauages together, which thing Olmechin and Marchin might alfodoe. For our Baikes being there, presently the Sea was seene all couered ouer with their Boates, laden with nimble and lufty men, holding themselues vp straight in them: which wee cannot doe without danger, those Boates being nothing else but trees hollowed. From thence Canoas, Monsieur de Poutrincourt following on his course, found a certaine Port very delightfull, which Avery good had not beene seene by Monsieur de Monts: And during the Voyage they saw store of smoke. Port. 60 and people on the sheare, which inuited vs to come aland : And seeing that no account was made of it, they followed the Barke along the fand, yea most often they did outgoe her, so swife. The existing of are they, having their Bowes in hand, and their Quiners vpon their backes, alwaies finging and the dim withdancing, not taking care with what they should live by the way.

Monsieur de Poutrincourt hauing landed in this Port, behold among a multitude of Sa-

uages a good number of Fifes, which did play with certaine long Pipes, made as it were with Canes of Reedes, painted ouer, but not with fuch an harmonie as our Shepheards might doe: And to flew the excellency of their arte, they whilled with their nofes in gambolling, accorand as this people did runne headlong, to come to the Birke, there was a Sunge which hurt ding to their fashion.

A Sausze wounded.

and mops a-

himselfe grieuously in the hecle against the edge of a Rocke, whereby hee was enforced to temayne in the place. Monsteur de Pourrincourt his Chirurgion, at that instant would apply to this burt that which was of his Arte, but they would no permit it, vntill they had first made their mouthes and mops about the wounded man. They then layed him downe on the ground, one of them holding his head on his lappe, and made many bawlings and tingings, whereunto to Their mouthes the wounded man answered but with a Ho, with a complayning voice, which having done they bout him that veelded him to the cure of the faid Chirurgion, and went their way, and the Patient alfoatier hee had beene dreffed: but two houres after he came againe, the most jocund in the world, hauing put about his head, the binding cloth, wherewith his heele was wrapped, for to leeme the The day following, our people entred farther into the Port, where being gone to see the Ca-

they brought more of them than one would, emulating one another; and for recompence of this their kindnesse, there was set on their foreheads a Fillet or Band, of paper, wet with spittle, of that we did make the Wine which wee did drinke. Wee would have made them to eate of that

Grape, but having taken it into their mouthes, they spitted it out, so ignorant is this people of the best thing that God hath given to Man, next to Bread. Yet notwithstanding they have no want of wit, and inight be brought to doe fome good things, if they were civilized, and had the vic of Handy-craus. But they are fubtile, the cuish, traiterous, and though they bee naked, yet

One cannot take heed of their fingers, for if one turne neuer to little his eyes afide, and that they man ed to trucke the Tabacco they had for our merchandifes.

was hurt.

bins of the Sauages, an old woman of an hundred or fixfore yeeres of age, came to caft at the The Prefents feete of Monstew de Poutrincourt, a loafe of bread, made with the Wheat called Mobis, then veof a Sauage ry faire Hemps of a long growth; Item, Beanes, and Grapes newly gathered, because they had igene Frenchmen eate of them at Chanakeer. Which the other Sauages feeing, that knew it not, 20 woman. Hempe very Beanes. Quantitie of The impacts which they were very proud. It was fixed them, in preffing the Grape into a Glaffe, that of fpie the or postunitie to fteale any Knife, Hatchet, or any thing clie, they will not miffe nor 10 fayle at it; and will put the theft betweene their buttockes, or will hide it within the land with their foot to current g v, that one shall not perceive it. Indeed I doe not wonder if a proture the dr. dr. ple poore and naked be t. ceuth , but when the heart is malicious, it is viexcufable. This people is fuch, that they wuit use hindled with terrour: for if through loue and gentleneffs one gue them too free access, they will practile some surprise, as it hath been known in divers occamouchiqueis. fions heretotore, and will yet here-after be feete. And without deterring any longer, the fecond Note how the day after our comming thither as they law our people buse awashing Linnen , they came some Armouchiquois must be deale fitty, one tollowing another, with Bowes, Arrowes and Quiners, intending to play some bid withall part, as it was consectured upon their man er of proceeding; but they were presented, some of our men going to meet them, with their Muskets and Matches at the cocke, which made some 40

This the only w y to ciulize them and hang out onto going to meet unit, which has been partied in, having put downe their weapons, came them, may ruth of them runne away, and the others being compaffed in, having put downe their weapons, came mem, nay nutt of commentary of the state of an Iland, where our men were, and making a friendly flew, determ and they to a Peninfule, or finally head of an Iland, where our men were, and making a friendly flew, dethroat, as in the Virginian maffacre ap. pear-th. Sufpicion for the comming of Glmechin.

The trouble of garments.

Corne fowed, planted.

and to plant Vines.

100. Boats of

As they were a deliberating to palla farther, Olmeebin came to the Barke to fee Monfieur de Postrincours, where haung carried certaine hours, either in talking or eating, hee faul, that the next day an hundred Boates should come, contayining every one sixe men; but the comming of fuch a number of men, being but troubleforce, Monfieur de Poutrincours would not tartie for them; but went away the same day to Malebare, not without much difficultie, by realm of 5 Peril of holds the great streames and shoulds that are there. So that the Barke having touched at three footst water onely, we thought to be cast away, and wee beganne to violate her, and put victuals into the Shalop, which was behind, for to faue vs on Land: but being no rull Sea, the Barke came affore within an houre, All this Sea is a Land operflowed, as that of Mount Saint Michaeli, a

The next day the Copraine of the faid place and Port, came into Monsseur de Pontrincourts Barke to feehim: weedid martiell to see him accompanied with Olmechin, feeing the way was manuellous long to come thither by Land, and much thorter by Sea. That gaue cause of had iuspicion, albeit hee had promifed his love to the Frenchmen. Notwithstanding they were gently received. And Monfieur de Poutrincourt gave to the laid Olmechin a complete garment, wherewith being clothed, hee viewed himfelfe in a Glasse, and did laugh to see himselfe in that order.

hee was returned vnto his Cabins, he distributed it to fundry of his men , to the end that one alone ffould not be overpeftered with it. Now during the time of the laid Monfieur de Pourin-

court was there, buy g in doubt whether Monstew de Monts would come to make an habitation on that Coast, as her wished it, her made there a piece of ground to be tilled, for to lowe Come

Bit a little while after, teching that the same hindred him, although it was in October, when 90

fanday ground, in which, all that resteth is a plaine slat Countrey as farre as the Mountaines. which are seene fifteene leagues off from that place. And I am of opinion, that as fatre as Virginia. Note. it is all alike. Moreouer, there is here great quantity of Grapes, as before, and a Country very Great antiquifull of people. Monfieur de Monts being come to Malebarre in an other trason of the yeare, ty of Grapes, eathered onely greene Grapes; which he made to be preserved, and brought some to the King. But it was our good hap to come thicher in October, for to fee the maturity thereof. I have here Hereubon before shewed the difficulty that is found in entering into Malebarre. This is the cause why chap.7. Manheur de Pontrincourt came not in with his Barke, but went thither with a Shallon onely.

which thirty or forty Sauages did helpe to draw in ; and when it was full tide (but the tide doth 10 not mount here but two tathams high, which is (eldome feene) he went out, and retired himselfe Two fathames into his faid Barke, to passe further in the morning, as soone as he should ordaine it.

He night beginning to glue place to the dawfing of the day, the failes are hoifed vp, but it was but a very perilous naugation. For with this small Vessell they were forced to coast Danger. the land, where they found no depth : going backe to Sea it was yet worle; in fuch wife that they did ftrike twice or thrice, being raifed vp againe onely by the waves, and the rudder was broken, which was a dreadfull thing. In this extremity they were confirmined to cast anker in the Sea, at two fathams deepe, and three leagues off from the land. Which being done, Daniel Hay (a man which taketh pleature in thewing forth his vertue in the perils of the Sea) was tent 20 towards the Coast to view it, and fee if there were any Port. And as he was neere land he faw a Sauage, which did dance, finging, 70, 70, 70, he called to him to come neerer, and by fignes ask- Oigoudi, or S. ed him if there were any place to retire Ships in, and where any fresh water was. The Sauge Iobni Riucr. bauing made figne there was, hee tooke him into his Shallop, and brought him to the Barke. Sauages of wherein was Chkondun Captaine of the River of Oigouds, otherwife Saint Johns River: who undryNavione being brought before this Sauage, he vnderstood him no more than did our owne people: true it one another, is, that hy fignes he comprehended better then they what he would fay. This Sauage shewed the places where no depth was, and where was any, and did fo well indenting and winding here and there, alway the led in hand, that in the end they came to the Port thewed by him, 20 where small depth is; wherein the Barke being arrived, diligence was vied to make a forge A force and for to mend her with her rudder, and an Ouen to bake Bread, because there was no more an ouen adde-

Bicket left.

Fifteene dayes were imployed in this worke, during the which Monfieur de Poutrincourt, ac. A croile fet ip cording to the laudable cultome of Christians, made a Croffe to be framed and fet vp vpon a greene Banke, as Monsieur de Monts had done two yeeres before at Kimbels and Malebarre. Now among these paineful exercises they gave not over making good cheere, with that which both the Sea and Land might furnish in that part. For in this Port is plenty of Fowle in taking of which many of our men applied themselves: specially the Sea Larkes are there in so great flights that Monsieur de Poutrincourt killed eight and twenty of them with one Caliuer shot. Abundance of As for fifthes, there be fuch abundance of Porpeles, and another kinde of fifth, called by Frenchmen Larkes & fifth & 40 Soufleurs, that is to fay, Blowers, that the Sea feemes to be all couered over with them. But they had not the things necessary for this kinde of fishing, they contented themselves then with shel-fish, as of Oyites, Skalops, Periwincles, whereof there was enough. The Sauages of the Shel-fish.

other fide did Bring fish, and Grapes within baskets made of rushes, for exchange with some of Grapes After certaine daves, the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt, seeing there great assembly of Sausges. came ashoare, and to give them some terrour, made to march before him one of his men, flourish- The trial of ing with two naked iwords. Whereat they much wondred, but yet much more when they faw French weathat our Muskets did pierce thicke peeces of wood, where their Arrowes could not fo much as pons before fcratch. And therefore they neuer affailed our men, as long as, they kept watch. And it had beene so good to found the Trumpet at every houres end, as Captaine lames Quartier did. For (as Mon- Good influence)

fewr de Pourrincourt doth often lay) One must never lay bast for theenes; meaning, that one must don. neuer give cause to any enemy to thinke that he may surprise you: But one must alwayes shew that he is mistrusted, and that you are not assessed, thiefely when one hath to doe with Saugees. which will never fet you him that resolutely expects them; for soone after they killed soure of Our men which were careleffe. They named this Port, Port Fortune.

Counfell being taken, it was refolued to returne into Port Royall: Monsieur de Pontrincourt befides all this, being yet in care for them whom he had left there, fo they came agains for the third time into Port Fortune, where no Sauage was feene. V pon the first winde, the faid Monsieur de Pontrinconre weighed anker for the returne, and being mindfull of the dangers passed he fai-60 led in open Sea : which shortned his course, but not without a great mischiefe of the rudder, Penila which was againe broken; in such fort, that being at the mercy of the waites, they arrived in the end, as well as they could a monght the Hands of Norombega, where they mended it. Monstenr The arrivall of de Pourincourt artiued in Port Royall the foureteenth day of November, where we received him Monteur de tide onely.

Resolution for Posts incorr.

The flate of C wor. How they foct their winter. Coales. The vie of the Compaffe in land voiages.

The inflitution of the Order Bontemps is as Pie-corner, or iuch a Cookeplace in London.

Store of Stur-

gions. Betore in chap.113. The viage of the Sauzges.

The Sausges haue care of the Frenchmen.

Bad winde.

The flate of Win or wea-

Snow is profi-

Frofts when they area

And as the skie is feldome covered with clouds towards New-found-lands in Winter time, fo are there morning frotts, which doe increase in the end of Ianuary, February, and in the begin-

The publike reloycing being finished, Monsieur de Pontrincourt had a care to see his corne, the greatest part whereof he had lowed two leagues off from our Port, by the River L'Esquelle; and the other part about our faid Pore : and found that which was first fowen very forward but not the laft, that had beene fowed the fixth and tenth dayes of Nouember, which notwithstanding did grow under the Snow, during Winter, as I have noted it in my fowings. It would be a tedious thing to particularife all that was done among it vs during Winter: as to tell how the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt caused many times coales to be made, the forge-coale being spent : That he caused waies to be made thorow the woods: That he went thorow the Forrests by the guide of the Compatie, and other things of fuch nature. But I will relate that, for to keepe vs merry on the Company, and victuals, there was an order established at the Table of the faid Monstear to de Poutrincourt, which was named L'ordre de bon temps, the order of good time (or the order of mirth) at first invented by Monsieur Champlein, wherein they (who were of the same table) were every one at his turne and day (which was in fifteene dayes once) Steward and Cater. Now his care was that we should have good and worshipfull fare, which was so well observed, that (although the Belly-gods of their parts doe often reproach vnto vs that we had not La Rue aux Ours of Paris with vs) we have ordinarily had there, as good cheere as we could have at La Rue CARGE BUT COSTS and Ours, and at farre leffer charges. For there was none, but (two dayes before his turne came) or Beare River. was carefull to goe ahuncing or hihing, and brought some daintie thing, belides that which was of our ordinary allowance. So well, that at breakfast we neuer wanted some modicom or other. of fish or fiesh; and at the repait of dinners or suppers, yet lesse; for it was the great banquet, 20 where the Gouernour of the feath, or Steward (whom the Sauages doe call Atollegi) nauing made the Cooke to make all things ready, did march with his Napkin on his shoulder, and his flaffe of office in his hand, with the colour of the order about his necke, which was worth ahous four crownes, and all of them of the order following him, bearing every one a dish. The like allo was at the bringing in of the Fruit, but not with fo great a traine. And at night after grace was faid, he refigned the Collar of the Order, with a cup of wine, to his fuccefour in that charge, and they dranke one to another. I have heretofore faul that we had abundance of Fowle, as Mallards, Outards, Geele gray and white, Partridges and other Birds: Item, of Ellans or Stage flesh, of Caribous or Deere, Beuers, Otters, Beares, Rabbets, Wilde-cats or Leopards, Nibsches, and fuch like, which the Sauages did take, wherewith we made as good diffes of meate, as in the 30 Cookes shops that be in La rue aux Ours, Beare streete, and greater store; for of all meates none is fo tender as Ellans flesh (whereof we made good pasties) nor so delicate as the Beauers-taile. Yea, we have had sometimes halfe a dolen Sturgions at one clap, which the Sauages did bring to vs, part whereof we did take, paying for it, and the rest was permitted them to sell publikely, and to trucke it for Bread, whereof our people had abundantly. And as for the ordinary meate brought out of France, that was distributed equally, as much to the least as to the biggest. And the like with Wine, as we have faid. In fuch actions we had alwayes twenty or thirty Sauages, men, women, girles and Boies, who beheld vs doing our offices. Bread was given them grate, as we doe here to the poore. But as for the Sagamos Memberton, and other Sagamos (when they came to vs) they fat at table eating and drinking as we did : and wee tooke pleafure in feeing 40 them, as contrariwise their absence was irkesome vnto vs; as it came to passe three or source times that all went away to the places where they knew that game and Venison was, and brought one of our men with them, who lived some six weekes as they did without Salt, without Bread and without Wine, lying on the ground ypon skins, and that in snowie weather. Moreover they had greater care of him (as also of others that have often gone with them) than of themfelues, faying, that if they should chance to dye, it would be laid to their charges to have

Such government as we have spoken of, did serve vs for preservatives against the Country dif-Preterration against Samy eafe. And yet foure of our died in February and March, of them who were of a freefull conditional state of the same state of the s on fluggish. And I remember I observed that all had their lodgings on the West side, and looking 30 towards the wide open Port, which is almost four leagues long, shaped ouale-wife, besides they

We had faire weather almost during all the Winter: for neither raines nor fogges are so frehad all of them ill bedding. quent there as here, whether it be at Sea or on the land : The reason is, because the Sun-beames, by the long distance, have not the force to raise vp vapours from the ground here, chiefely in a

Countrey all wooddy. But in Summer it doth, both from the Sea and the Land, when as their and Mills be force is augmented, and those vapors are dissoluted studently or slowly, according as one approachkarfem water eth to the Equinoftiall line. Rames being in those parts rare, in that sealon, the Sunne likewife shineth there very faire, after the fall of Snowes, which we have had feuen or eight times, but it is easily melted in open places, and the longest abiding have beene in February. Howiseuer it be, the Snow is very profitable for the fruits of the earth, to preferue them against the isoft, and to ferue them as a for-gowne.

CHAP. 7. Pleasant sport. Want of Garden Hearbes. Quantitie of Gumme.

ning of March, for vntill the very time of January, we kept vs still in our doublets: And I reming of Marien, as Anday, the foureteenth day of that moneth, in the afternoone, wee forted out felues finging in Municke vpon the River L'Efquelle, and in the same moneth wee went to fee our tenes two leagues off from our Fort, and did dine merrily in the Sun-shine : I would not for all Conformity Conference was a milde in these pares were like vnto this, For as that winter was as milde in these parts, of weather in thefe laft Winters of the yeares 1607, 1608. have beene the hardest that ever was seene; it hath East and West alfo beene alike in those Countries, in such fort, that many Sauages died through the rigour of the Fraces. also beene alike in those Countries, in such sort, that many saudges also through the The great weather, as in these our parts many poore people and trauellers have beene killed through the Frost 1607. Samehardneise of Winter weather. But I will say, that the yeare before we were in New France, to the Winter had not beene fo hard, as they which dwelt there before vs haue testified vnto me. Let this suffice for that which concerneth the winter feason. But I am not yet fully satisfied in Let this time to that which each the felfefame parallell the featon is in those parts of New Wherefore is France more flow by a moneth than in thefe parts, and the leaves appeare not vpon the trees but the feation late towards the end of the moneth of May: valeffe wee fay that the thickneffe of the wood and greatnesse of Forrests doe hinder the Sunne from warming of the ground; Item, that the Country where we were is iovning to the Sea, and thereby more fubicat to cold, And besides that, this land having never beene tilled is the more dampish, the trees and plants not being able easily to draw fap from their mother the earth. In recompence wherof the Winter there is also more flow.

as we have heretofore fpoken. 20 The cold being passed, about the end of March the best disposed amongst vs strided who should Dressing of best till the ground, and make Gardens, to sowe in them, and gather fruits thereof. Which was Gardens. to very good purpole, for wee found great discommodity in the Winter for want of Garden to very good purpole, for wee found great discommodity in the Winter for want of Cartering Good crop hearbes. When every one had done his towing, it was a marveilous pleasure in seeing them daily from the grow and fpring vp, and yet greater contentment to vie thereof io abundantly as wee did : io ground. that this beginning of good hope made vs almost to forget our native Countrie, and especially when the fish began to haunt fresh-water, and came abundantly into our brookes, in fuch innu. Abundance of merable quantity that we knew not what to doe with it.

Whilelt fome laboured on the ground, Monsteur de Poutrincourt made fome buildings to be The care of prepared, for to lodge them which he hoped should succeede vs. And considering how trouble- Monsieur de 30 fome the Hand-mill was, he caused a Water-mill tobe made, which caused the Sauages to ad- Pourrincourt in fome the Hand-mill was, he cauled a water-min robe made, which came not into the spirit of men from the prouising for mire much at it. For indeede it is an invention which came not into the spirit of men from the the that should first ages. After that, our workmen had much rest, for the most part of them did almost nothing. the that should first ages. But I may fay that this Mill, by the diligence of our Millers, did furnish vs with three times The building more Herrings then was needefull vnto vs for our fustenance. Monstenr de Pontrincourt made of a water-mile two Hogheads full of them to be falted, and one hoghead of Sardines, or Pilchers to bring into Abundance of France for a shew, which were left in our returne at Saint Maloes, to some Merchants.

Among all their things the faid Monsieur de Poutrincourt did not neglect to thinke on his returne. Which was the part of a wife man, for one must neuer put so much trust in mens promifes, but one must consider that very often many disafters doe happen to them in a small moan ment of time. And therefore, euen in the Moneth of Aprill, he made two Barkes to be prepared, a great one and a small one, to come to seeke out French-ships towards Campseau, or Newfound-land, if it should happen that no supply should come vnto vs. But the Carpentry-worke being finished, one onely inconvenience might hinder vs, that is, we had no Pitch to calke our Great ouct-Vessels, This (which was the chiefest thing) was forgotten at our departure from Rochel. In fight. this important necessitie, the said Monsieur de Pontrincoure adussed himselfe to gather in the Monsieur de woods quantity of the gumme issuing from Firre-trees. Which he did with much labour, go. Poutrincourt ing thither himselfe, moit often with a Boy or two: so that in the end hee got some hundred his inuentron. pounds weight of it. Now after these labours, it was not yet all, for it was needefull to melt and purifie the same, which was a necessary point and voknowne to our ship Master Monsieur de Champ-dore, and to his Marriners, for as much as that the Pitch we have, commeth from Nor-

50 moge, Suedland, and Danzick. Neuerthelesse the faid Monsieur de Pourrincoure found the meanes to draw out the quintessence of these Gummes and Firre-tree barkes : and caused quantity of Brickes to be made, with the which he made an open furnace, wherein he put a limbecke made with many kettles, joyned one in the other, which hee filled with those gummes and barkes: Then being well coursed, fire was put round about it, by whose violence the gumme enclosed within the lembecke melted, and dropped downe into a bason; but it was needefull to be very watchfull at it, by reason that if the fire had taken hold of the Gumme, all had beene loft. That was admirable, especially in a man that neuer faw any made. Whereof the Sauages being aftenied, did say in words borrowed from the Basques, Endis chaue Normandia, that is to say, that ges call all 60 the Normans know many things. Now they call all Frenchmen Normands, except the Baf. French men ques, because the most part of fishermen that goe afishing there, be of that Nation. This remedie No mands. came very fiely vnto vs, for those which came to feeke vs were fallen into the fame want that witten to

Newes out of

Monfuur de

Postrincours.

The focietie

and why.

Monsteur de

The Eaglib

10 Virginia

HITTING OUT

THE Sunne did but beginne to cheere the earth, and to behold his Miftris with an amorous alpect, when the Sayamor Memberton (after our Prayers solemnely made to God, and the their returne. break-falt driftibuted to the people, according to the custome) came to give vs advertisement that he had seene a sayle vpon the Lake, which came towards our Fort. At this joyfull new es every one went out to fee, but yet none was found that had fo good a fight as he, though he be aboue a 100. yeeres old; neuerthelesse we spied very soone what it was. It was onely a small Bark under the charge of a young man of Saint Maloes, named Chenalter, who beeing arrived at the Fort, deliuered his Letters to Monsieur de Poutrincourt, which were read publikely. They did The contents write vato him, that for to helpe to laue the charges of the Voyage, the thip (being yet the loof the Letters nat) should stay at Campfeau Port, there to fish for Cods, by reason that the Merchants affociate 10 with Monfeur de Monts, knew not that there was any fishing farther then that place: Notwirh. ftanding if it were necessary he should cause the ship to come to Port Royall. Moreover, that the societie was broken, because that contrary to the King his Edich, the Hollanders, conducted by of Monsteur de a traiterous Frenchman, called La lenness, had the yeere before taken up the Beuers and other Matts broken, Furres, of the great River of Canada. Notwithstanding, after that Monstean de Poutrincours. had a long while mused hereupon, he said, that although he should have no bodie to come with him. but onely his family, hee would not forfake the enterprize. It was great griefe vnto vs to abandon (without hope of returne) a Land that had produced vnto vs fo faire Corne, and fo many faire his retalution. adorned Gardens. All that could be done vntill that time, was to find out a place, fit to make a Nation going fetled dwelling, and a Land of good fertilitie. And that being done, it was great want of courage to giue ouer the enterprise, for another yeare being passed, the necessitie of maintayning an with a zealous habitation there, should be taken away, for the Land was sufficient to yeeld things necessarie tor intent to plant true religion & life. This was the cause of that griefe which pierced the hearts of them which were desirous to fo to increase fee the Christian Religion estabisshed in that Countrey. But on the contrary, Monsieur de Christs bleffed Monts, and his affociates, reaping no benefit, but loffe, and having no helpe from the King , it flock,no doubt wasa thing which they could not doe, but with much difficultie to maintayne an habitation in he will bee their leader.

Monsieur de Monts is enuied.

Robbing from

The Sauages

Salmons.

Affembly of Sauages a Filthy trading.

thoje parts. Now this enuie for the Trade of Beauers with the Sauages, found not onely place in the Hollanders hearts, but also in French Merchants, in such fort that the priviledge which had beene giuen to the faid Monfieur de Monts for ten yeeres was reuoked. The vnfatiable avanice of men 30 is a strange thing, which have no regard to that which is honest, so that they may rifle and catch by what meanes locuer. And thereupon I will fay moreouer, that there have beene fome of them that came to that Countrey to fetch vs home, that wickedly have prefumed so much as to strip the dead, and steale away the Beauers, which those poore people doe put, for their last benefit, you them whom they bury, as we will declare more at large in the Booke following. A thing that maketh the French name to be odious, and worthy ditdaine among them, which have no fuch fordid qualitie at all.

Fifteene dayes after, the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt fent a Barke to Campfeau, with part of our Workmen, for to beginne to pull downe the house. In the beginning of lune the Sauges, about foure hundred in number, went away from the dwelling that the Sagamos Memberson had 49 newly made, in forme of a Towne, compassed about with high pales, for to go to warres against the Armonebiquois, which was at Chonakoes some eightie leagues distant from Por: Royall, from whence they returned victorious.

Monsieur de Poutrincours being not willing to depart thence, vntill hee had seene the issue of his expectation, that is to fay, the ripenesse of his Corne, hee deliberated, after that the Sauges were gone to warres, to make Voyages along the Coast. And because Chandler was desirous to the Coalt of gather fome Beuers, he fent him in a small Barke to the River of Saint Isbn, called by the Sausges, Onigondi, and to the He Saint Croix: And he, the faud Monsteur de Poutrincourt, wentina inallop to the Copper Myne. I was of the laid Chenalier his Voyage : we croiled the French Bay to goe to the faid Riner, where, as ioone as wee arrived, halfe a dozen Salmons newly takin, 10 were brought to vs : we soiourned there foure dayes, during which, we went into the Cibins of Sagamos (bkondun, where we law some eightie, or a hundred Sauages, all naked except their privile members, which were a making Tabagy (that is to fay, a banquetting) with the meale that the faid Cheualier had trucked with them for their old skinnes full of Lice.

The Towne of Onigondi (to I call the dwelling of the faid Choudur) was a great inclosure vpon an Hill, compassed about with high and small Trees, tied one against another, and within it many Cabins, great and small, one of which was as great as a Market Hall, wherein many housholds retired themselves: And as for the same where they made their Tabagee, it was somwhat leffe. A good part of the haid Sauages wete of Gachepe, which is the beginning of the great Ruer of Canade; and they told ve, that they came from their dwelling thirter in fixe dayes, which 60 made me much to maruell, feeing the distance that there is by Sea, but they shorten very much their wayes, and make great Voyages by the meanes of Lakes and Rivers, at the end of which being come, in carrying their Canowes three or four leagues, they get to other Rivers that have a contrary courfe. All these Sauages were come thither to goe to the warres with Membersonagainst the Armonebiquois.

When we returned to our Barke, which was at the comming in of the Port, halfe a leasue off from thence, sheltered by a causis that the Sea hath made there, our men, and specially Capitaine Champdore, that conducted vs, were in doubt, lest some mischance should happen vnto vs. and baunge seene the Sauages in armes, thought it had beene to doe vs some mischiefe, which had beens very easie, for we were but two, and therefore they were very glad of our returne. After Thesubiltie which, the next day came the Wizard or South-fayer of that quarter, crying as a mad man to- of an Asimeia wards our Barke. Not knowing what he meant, hee was sent for in a Cock-boat, and came to or Sauge parley with vs, telling vs that the Armouchiqueis were within the Woods, which came to affaile Southfayer, Paney, and that they had killed some of their folkes that were a hunting: And therefore that we to should come aland to assist them. Having heard this discourse, which according to our judgement, tended to no good, we told him that our journies were limited, and our victuals alfo . and that it was behouefull for vs to be gone. Seeing himselfe denied, he said that before two yeeres were come about, they would either kill all the Normans, or that the Normans should kill them. We mocked him and told him that we would bring our Barke before their Fort to ranfack them all: but we did it not, for we went away that day: And having the wind contrarie, we sheltred our selves vnder a small lland, where we were two dayes : during which, some went a shooting at Mallard for prouision; others attended on the Cookerie: And Captaine Champdore and my felfe. went along the Rockes with Hammers and Chiffels, feeking it there were any Mynes. In doing whereof we found quantitie of Steele among the Rockes , which was fince molten by Monfieur

30 de Poutrincourt, who made wedges of it, and it was found very fine Sceele, whereof he caused a Knife to be made, that did cut as a Razor, which at our returne he shewed to the King,

From thence we went in three dayes to the Ile Saint Croix, being often contraried with the winds. And because we had a bad coniecture of the Sauages, which we did see in great number, at the River of Saint lobs, and that the troupe that was departed from Port Royal was yet at Menane, (an Ile betweene the faid Port Royall and Saint (row) which we would not truft, we Menane. kept good watch in the night time: At which time wee did often heare Seales woyces, which Good watch. were very like to the voice of Owles: A thing contrarie to the opinion of them that haue faid Seales voices, and written that fishes have no voice.

Being arrived at the Ile Saint Croix, we found there the buildings, left there all whole, faving The arrivall in Being arrived at the He Saint erox, we found there are buildings, lett there are whost saint the le of Saint 30 that the Store-house was vincouered of one fide. Wee found there yet Sacke in the bottome of a croix. Pipe, whereof we dranke, and it was not much the worfe. As for Gardens, wee found there The flate of Coale-worts, Sortell, Lettuces, which we vied for the Kitchin. Wee made there also good Pa- the fame, fties of Turtle Doues, which are very plentifull in the Woods, but the graffe is there so high that Turtles, one could not find them when they were killed and fallen in the ground. The Court was there, full of whole Caskes, which some ill disposed Mariners did burne for their pleasures, which thing when I saw, I did abhorre, and I did iudge, better then before, that the Sauages were (being lesse ciuilized) more humane and honeiter men, then many that beare the Name of Christians, having The Sausge civilized) more humane and honeiter men, then many that over the Name of Chintan statum of better na-during three yeeres, spared that place, wherein they had not taken so much as a piece of Wood, sure then manor Sale, which was there in great quantitie, as hard as a Rocke. Going from thence, we cast Anchor among a great number of confused Iles, where wee heard Anumber of fome Sauages, and wee did call to make them come to vs. They answered vs with the like call. Iles, Whereunto one of ours replied, Onen Kiran? that is to fay, What are yee? they would not difcouer them selues. But the next day Oagimons, the Sagamos of this River, came to vs, and wee knew it was he whom we heard. Hee did prepare to follow Memberton and his troupe to the warres, where he was grieuoully wounded, as I have faid in my Verses vpon this matter. This Osomont hath a Daughter about eleven yeeres old, who is very comely, which Monsieur de Poutrincourt desired to haue, and hath oftentimes demanded her of him to give her to the Queene, promiting him that he should never want Corne, nor any thing elfe, but he would never condist. The love of cend thereto. Being entred into our Barke he accompanied vs, vntill wee came to the broad Sea, where hee towards their Being entred into our Barke ne accompanied vs, vntill wee came to the broad Sea, where nee children.

put himfelfe in his shallop to returne backe; and for vs we bent our course for Port Royall, where Arrivall into we arrived before day, but we were before our Fort, init at the very point that faire Aurora be- Port Royall. gan to thew her reddie cheekes upon the top of our wooddie Hils; every bodie was yet afleepe, and there was but one that role vp, by the continuall barking of Dogges; but wee made the reft foone to awake, by Peales of Musket-shots and Trumpets found. Monsieur de Poutrincourt was but the day before, arrived from his Voyage to the Mynes, whither we have faid that hee was to goe, and the day before that, was the Barke arrived that had carried part of our Workmen to Campleau. So that all being affembled, there rested nothing more then to prepare things necesfary for our shipping. And in this butinesse our Water-Mill did vs very good feruice, for other- vice of a Vo wife there had beene no meanes to prepare Meale enough for the Vovage, but in the end wee tor mil had more then wee had need of, which was given to the Sauages, to the end to have vs in re-

Vpon the point that we should take our leane of Port Royall, Monsieur de Pontrincourt fent his. The defert of When the point that we thought take our leane or Port Mayan, always at Point at Point on of the Port men, one after another, to find out the ship at Camplean, which is a Port being between feven declarates faire Cod.

The Rain-bow appearing in the water.

Port Sauslet. 42. Vovages made in New-Fund-land. Good filling.

Exceeding faire Corne. Faire Wheate.

The Sauages returne from the warres. The Sautges teares at the going away of the Frenchmen. Meale left behinds. Monsieur de going away.

The departing from Now France.

Poutrincourt his

The fight of Harueft of New France, thewed to the

Being at Paris, the faid Monsieur de Poutrincourt presented to the King with the fruits of the Land from whence he came, and especially the Corne, Wheate, Ric, Barley and Oates, as being or eight Hands where ships may be sheltered from windes : and there is a Bay of aboue fifteene leagues depth, and fixe or feuen leagues broad. The faid place being diffant from Port Rorall aboue one hundred and fiftie leagues. For victuals, wee wanted for no fish, for in halfe an houres Abundance of fishing we might take Cod enough for to feed vs a fortnight, and of the fairest and fattest that e. uer I faw, being of the colour of Carpes; which I have never knowne nor noted, but in this part of the faid Cap de Sable; which after we had passed, the tide (which is swift in this place) brought Port dela Hene vs in fhort time as farre as to the Port De La Hene, thinking that wee were no further then the Port de Monton. There we tarried two dayes, and in the very same Port wee saw the Codsbite at the Hooke. We found there store of red Gooseberies, and a Marcassite of Copper Myne: we also made there some trucking with the Sauzees for skinnes.

From thence forward we had wind at will, and during that time it happened once, that being voon the hatches, I cried out to our Pilot Monsieur de Champdore, that we were readie to strike. thinking I had feene the bottome of the Sea; but I was deceived by the Rain-bow which did appeare with all his colours in the water, procured by the shadow, that our Boare-spright layle did make over the fame, being opposite to the Sunne, which assembling his beames, within the hollownesse of the same sayle, as it doth within the Cloudes, those beames were forced to make a reperberation in the water, and to thew forth this wonder. In the end wee arrived within foure leagues of Campleau, at a Port, where a good old man of Saint lohn de Lus, called Captaine Sauglet, received vs with all the kindnesse in the World. And for as much as this Port (which is little, but very faire) hath no name, I have qualified it in my Geographicall Mappe, with the 20 name of Saualet. This good honelf man told vs that the same Voyage was the two and fortieth Voyage that he had made into those parts, and neuerthelesse the New-found-land-men doe make but one in a yeere. He was maruelloufly pleated with his fifting; and told vs moreouer that hee tooke every day fiftie Crownes worth of fish, and that his Voyage would bee worth one thoufand pounds. He payed wages to fixteene men, and his veffell was of eightie tuns, which could carrie 100000 dry fishes.

Wee were foure dayes there, by reason of the contrary wind. Then came we to Camplean, where we tarried for the other Barke, which came two dayes after vs. And as for Monfieur de Postrincourt, as soone as he saw that the Corne might be reaped, he pulled vp some Rie, root and all, for to shew here the beautie, goodnesse and vnmeasurable height of the same. Hee also made 30 gleanes of the other forts of Seeds, as Wheat, Barley, Oates, Hempe, and others for the same purpofe, Delighting my selfe in this exercise, God hach ble Bed my poore labour, and I have had in my Garden as faire Wheate as any can be in France, whereof the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt gaue ynto mee a gleane, when hee came co the laid Port de Campseau. Hee was readie to depart from Port Royall, when Memberton and his company arr ued, victorious ouer the Armouchiquois. At the inflant request of the faid Memberisu he tarried yet one day. But it was pitious to fee at his depirting, those poore people weepe, who had beene alwayes kept in hope that some of ours should alwayes tarrie with them. In the end promile was made vito them, that the yeere following housholds and families should bee sent thither, wholly to inhabit their Land, and teach them Trades for to make them live as wee doe, which promise did somewhat comfort them. 49 There was left remayning ten Hogs-heads of Meale, which were given to them, with the Corne that we had fowed, and the possession of the Manour it they would vie it, which they have not done. For they cannot be constant in one place, and line as they doe. The eleventh of August the faid Monsieur de Poutrincourt departed, with eight in his compa-

nie, from the faid Port Royall, in a shallop to come to Campfean : A thing maruellously dangerous to croffe fo many Bayes and Seas in to small a veffell, laden with nine persons, with victuals necessarie for the Voyage, and reasonable great quantitie of other stuffe. Being arrived at the Port of Captaine Sanalet, he received them all as kindly as it was possible for him : And from thence they came to vs, to the faid Port of Campfeau, where we tarried yet eight dayes. The third day of September, we weighed Anchors, and with much adoe came wee from among the Rockes, 50 that be about the faid Campfean: Which our Mariners did with two shallops that did carrie their Anchors very farre into the Sea, for to vphold our ship, to the end she should not strike against the Rockes. Finally, being at Sea, one of the faid shallops was let goe, and the other was taken into the longs, which belides our lading, did carrie 100000, of fish, as well drie as greene. Wee had reasonable good wind untill we came neere to the Lands of Europe: But we were not overcloyed with good cheere, because that they who came to fetch vs, presuming we were dead did cramme themselves with our refreshing commodities. Our Workemen dranke no more Wine, after we had left Port Royall: And we had but small portion thereof, because that which did ouer abound with vs; was drunke merrily in the company of them that brought vs newes from France. The fixe and twentieth of September wee had fight of the Sorlingnes, which bee at the 62 Lan is end of Cornewall in England, and the eight and twentieth thinking to come to Saint Postrincourt had bred tenne Outards, taken from the fhell, which hee thought to bring all into France, but five of them were loft, and the other five he gave to the King , who delighted much in them 1 and they are at Fountaine Bellean; Vpon the faire shew of the fruites of the faid Coun- Outerds, of trey, the King did confirme to Mangenr de Monts the priviledge for the Trade of Beners with wild Grefe the Sauages, to the end to give him meanes to establish his Colonies in New France. And by this prefined to occasion he lent thither in March last, Families, there to beginne Christian and French Common. Privilege of wealths, which God vouchfafe to bleff: and increase. weatens, when God vouchate to overle and increase.

The faid finish being returned, we have had report by Monfeur de Champdore, and others, of need to Monthly the faid to the Countrie which we had left, and of the wonderfull beautie of the Countrie which we had left, and of the wonderfull beautie of the Countrie which we had left, and of the wonderfull beautie of the Countrie which we had left, and of the wonderfull beautie of the Countrie which we had left, and of the wonderfull beautie of the Countrie which we had left, and of the wonderfull beautie of the Countries which have for increased that it was increased their is an increased that it was increased the countries. Never from the Cardina, which have for increased that it was increased the countries.

the most precious thing that may be brought from what Countrey focuer. The faid Monsieur de ther fix or feuen barrels of the Corne that we had fowed and had yet one left, which he referred for the Frenchmen, whom he looked for, who arriging thee faluted with three Musket floors and fince our come Bonfires. When it was laid to his charge that he had raten our Pidgeons; which wee left there, shence. he fell a weeping, and embracing him that told it him, faid, that it was the Macharas, that is to It is very dam fay, the great Birds which are Eagles, which did eate many of them , while wee were there, gerous to Moreover, all great and small, did inquire how we did, naming every one by his owne name, teach the Sawhich is a witnesse of great loue. From Port Royall, the laid Champdore went as farce as Chanakouer, the beginning of the Ar-

mouchiquois Land, where hee pacified that Nation with the Erschemins, which was not done without folemnitie. For as hee had begun to speake of it, the Captaine, who is now insteed of Olmechin, named Aftikon, a grave man and of a goodly presence, how savage soever hee be , dea manded, that some one of the faid Etechemins should be sent to him, and that he would weat with The Saugage him, Oagmont, Sagamos of the River Saint Croix, was appointed for that purpose, and he would wisdomes not truft them, but vuller the affurance of the Frenchmen, he went thither. Some Prefents were made to Aitikon, who, upon the speech of peace, began to exhort his people and to shew them the causes that ought to induce them to hearken voto it. Whereunto they condifcended, making an exclamation at every Article that he propounded to them. Some five yeeres agoe Mouliest de Monte had likewise pacified those Nations, and had declared onto them, that he wouldbee enemie to the first of them that should begin the Warre, and would pursue him. But after his returns into France, they could not contains themselves in peace. And the Armenchiques did kill a Souriquois Sauage, called Panoniae, who went to them for to trucke Merchandize, which he tooke at the Store, house of the faid Monlieur de Monts. The Warrenbour mentioned happened by reason of this said murther, vnder the conduct of Saganos Minibezion: the said Warre was Manuer Charles made in the very fame place, where I now make mention, that Monfieur de Champdore did treate ples is now in the peace this yeere. Monlieur Champlein is in another place, to wit, in the great River of Canada, the River of neere the place where Captaine lames Quartier did winter, where hee hath fortified him felfe, Canada. having brought thither housholds, with Cattle and diversionts of fruit-trees. There is store of Fruit-trees. and Vines, and excellent Hempe, in the same place where he is, which the earth bringeth forth of it vines, gence of the faid (bamplem. As for Monsieur de Pontrincoure, his desire is immutable, in this resolution to inhabit and a- Monsieur de dorne his Pronince, to bring thither his family, and all forts of Trades necessary for the life of his resolution man. Which, with Gods helpe hee will continue to effect all this present yeere 1609. And, 1602. as long as hee hath vigour and thrength, will protecute the fame, to live there under the Kings obeviance.

The Author hath written another large Booke of the Rites of the Sanages of those parts, which I have omnted, partly because Champlein in the former Chapiter bath ginen us large inftructions of the same, and because in our Virginian, and New England, and New-tound-land, our men will relate the like; and because I seeke to bee short, howsoener my Subject causeth mee to bee voluminosu.

Benera confinstaces the wie

felfe. He is not a man to be idle, and we expect thortly newes of the whole Dircouerie of this Hempe. great and vncomparable River, and of the Countries which it washeth on both sides, by the dili-

CHAP. VIII.

Collections out of a French Booke, called Additions to Nova Francia: containing the Accidents there, from the yeere 1607. to 1611.

his tending of

Note the inrention of the French.

Keber 40. leag. about Saguenty

Onsieur de Monte hauing his priviledge prorogued for one yeare, with some affect. aces, tent vato his Gouernment three Ships, furnished with men and vienals. And foral much as Monfieur de Pourrencoure hath taken his part on the maine Sea. 10 and for the delige that Monfieur de Monts hath to pierce through the Land to the Welterne Sea poaff, to the end he should not be an hinderance visco him, and to be able thereby to reach our day, to China, he determined to fortifie himselfe in a place of the Riule of Canada; which the Sanages call Kebee, forme fortie leagues about the River of Sagnenay. There it is narrower, being no broader then a Canon will carry : and fo, by that reason, the place is commodious to command, through all that great River. Monfieur Champlein, else Kings Geographer, very skilfull in Sea matters, and who delighteth maruelloufly in these enterprises, tooks vpon him the charge of conducting, and gouerning this first Colonie. fent to Kebec. Where being arrived, it was needefull to make houses for him, and his compano: wherein there was no toyle wanting, fuch as we may imagine, as was the labour of Cap- 24 raide lacques Quartier, at his arrivall in the place of the faid Riner, where he wintered and fo Mensieur de Monss, in the Ile of Saint Croix; whereby did islue vnknowne sicknesses, which tooke away many men : for there was not found any Timber ready to be put in worke, nor any huldings to lodge the workemen in they were driven to fell downe the wood by the roote, to cleare the ground, and to lay the first foundations of a worke, which (with the beloe of God) shall he the fubicet of many wonders.

A confpiricy.

But as our Franchmen haue oftentimes bin found mutinous in fuch actions; fo there were some among these, which did confpire against the said Champlein their Captaine, having deliberated to put him to death, first by potton, afterwards by a traine of Gunpowder; and after, hauing piliered all, to come to Tadonfier, where Barker and Rechell Ships were, to make their returne in an item to these parts. But the Apothecary, of whom the poyson was demanded, disclosed the matter. Whereupon, Information being made, one of them was hanged, and some others con-Exemplary per demand to the Gallies, which were brought backe into France, in the Ship, wherein Monfess du Pone of Honficur was Commander.

nishment.

The naturall

The people being lodged stone store of Corne was fowed, and a number of Gardens were made, where the ground did reflore plentifully, the feedes received. This Land bringeth forth, naturally, Grapes in great quantity: the Walnut-trees are there in abundance, and Chefinuttrees allo, whole fruite is in the forme of an halfe moone; but the Walnuts are with many corners or edges, which be not divided. There is also great store of Pumpions, and very excellent Hempe, wherewith the Sauages make fifthing lines. The River there doth abound with as much 40 fift, as any other River in the world. It is thought, that Bevers, are not here fo good, as you the coast of the Etechemins and Souriquois; yet notwithstanding, I may say very well, that I have Blacke Fox: 4 feene skins from thence of blacke Foxes, which feeme to exceede Sables, or Marterns.

The winter being come, many of our Frenchmen, were found greatly afflicted with the fickes neffe, which is called the Scuruie, whereof I have spoken elsewhere, Some of them died thereof, for want of present remedy. As for the tree called Annedda, so much renowned by lacques Quartier, it is not now to be found. The faid Champlein made diligent fearch for the fame, and could have no newes thereof: and notwithflanding this dwelling is at Kebec, neighbouring on the place, where the faid Quartier did winter. Whereupon, I can thinke nothing elfe, but that the people of that time, have bin exterminated by the Iroqueis, or other their 50

The Spring time being come, Champlein having had a long time a minde to make new discoueries, was to choose, either to make his way to the Iroquou, or to goe beyond the fall of the great River, to discouer the great Lake, whereof men ion hath bin made heretofore. Notwithstanding, because the Southerly Countries are more pleasant, for their milde temperature; he resolued himselfe, the first yeare, to visite the Iroques. But the difficulty confisted in the going thither; for we are not able of our felues to make those Voyages, without the affiffance of the Sauages. These Countries are not the Plaines of Champaigne, nor of Vatan, nor the ingratefull wood of Limofin. All is there covered with woods, that seeme to threaten the clouds. And ac that time his company of men was but weake, as well by reason of the former mortality, as of 62 the infirmities of lickneffes, which were yet continuing. Notwithstanding, being a man, who is aftonished with nothing, and of a gentle conversation, knowing wisely how to acquaint, and accommodate himfelfe with thole people, after having promifed them, that when the land of the Iroquois, and other Countries should be discouered, the great French Sagamos (meaning

CHAP.8. River of the Irocois. Challenge to combat. Agreement with Captaines. 1643

our King) would give them great rewards : he invited them to goe to warre against the faid Iroquoz, promiting (for himfelfe) that he would take part with them. They (in whom the defire quant, promiting cot and who delight in nothing more then in warre) paffe their word vnto him, or reusing themselves about one hundred men, for that effect, with whom the faid Champlein venand arms timeles, accompanied with one man, and one of Monsieur de Monte his footemen. So they tures numeries, accompanies Barkes, and Canoes, along the great River, as faire as the Their Voiage bean their voyage in the Sauges Barkes, and Canoes, along the great River, as faire as the to the Irequest. entring into the River of the Iroquois : wherein being entred, within certaine dayes, they went yn ynto the Lake of the faid Iroqueis. But one may demand with what did fo many people line. in a Countrie where no Innes are? I wonder as much at that as others doe; for with them there to is not any meanes of living, but by hunting; and in that, they doe exercise themselves through the woods in their trauailes. Champlein and his men, were forced to hueafter their manner. For although they had made prouision of Bread, Wine, and Meate, out of the storehouse, the same Their arrival could not have lerved them, to make accompt of, Finally, being come into the faid Lake, they at the Lake were many dayes a croffing of it (for it is about fixtic leagues of length) without gluing know- which is fixtis ledge of their being there, and to the laid Champlein had time to view their Tillage, and the faire leagues long. llands, that ferue for an ornament to their great extension of water. These people are much like Faire llands in to the Armonchiquois, in their fashion of living. They sowe Indian Maiz and Beanes, and have the Lake. quantity of faire Grapes, whereof they make no vie: and very good rootes. Euery Family have and their exertheir ground round about their dwellings; Forts also, yet no Townes, made with buildings of cife. 20 three of foure flories high, fuch as they have in new Mexico (a Countrie fituated much farther Houses of

In the end, our men being discouered, the alarum was given among the Iroqueit, who affem- The alarum abled themselves. And as the Iroquois did approach, Champlein, who was armed with a Musket. mong the Irocharged with two bullets, would have fet himfelte forward to aime, to make at one of the forwarded of the Iroquois, who did braue it, challenging his enemies to the combat. But the Sa- The Prudence nages of Kebec told him in their language, no, doe not fo, for if they once difcouer you, not beof the Saugees. ing accustomed to see such folkes, they will forthwith runne away, and make no stand; so shall we loofe the glory which we expect of this charge; withdraw your felfe therefore behinde our formost ranke, and when we shall be neere, you shall advance your selfe, and shoote at those two 30 feathered fellowes, whom you fee the formost, in the middest of the troope; which was found good, and executed by the fail Champien, who with one flot laid tem both to the ground, as the lattitude do not be the state of the sta ne nautrement vino.

Mediorder, aftonished at fuch a noise, and death so vnexpected. Vpon this feare, the men of Kedisorder, aftonished at fuch a noise, and death so vnexpected. Vpon this feare, the men of Kefiftie of the fried of the heads they brought backe, to make therewith merry feafts, and dances, at their returne, according to their cultome. These things so passed, Champlein tooke againe his course towards ancient France, where he arrived in October 1609, having left the government of New France to a good reverent old man called Captaine Pierre. And for as much as the accidents of the former fickneffe, were feared to Gapt. Pierre. 40 come; the winter following, Captaine du Pons of Honfleure (a man very well worthy to hold Captalu Pogt.

ranke among the Heroes of the laid Prounce, for haung bin the first that came to the Fals of the great River, after lacques Quartier, having also wintered in Port Royall, and almost every yeare, made voyages to those parts, for the reliefe of them that were there) gaue aduse, that wood should be ready cut downe, for those that should tarry there all the winter, and thereby to free them from painfull toyles. That helpe hath bin of fuch force, that befides this, hauing their buildings made, they have left no infirmitie nor mortality. So he returned, and with him the faid None died, nor Champlein, and those that would returne.

In the meane while, preparations were made for another voyage, against the returne of the faid Champlein, to the end to profecute his discoueries, and confequently, to relieue the faid Captaine Pierre. He tooke againe for the fecond time the Lieutenancy of the faid Monsseur de Monts, new Vorage. 50 for the government of Kebee, and feeting out in the beginning of March, was forced divers times to turne backe, by reason of contrary windes; which made him to arrive late, as did also Monfeur de Poutrincourt, of his part. And neuertheleffe, in that small time, which hee had in those A Lake of an parts, he exploited a great pecce of worke, having gone this yeare, as farre as a great Lake, hundred jeags of an hundred leagues in length, which is beyond the Fals of the great Riuer of Canada eigh-Haung then reviewed the state of all things at Kebee, and learned what occurrences had past. Agreement to fed there, fince his departure; he made an agreement with the Captaines of the faid place, and goe to war, owith them of Tadoussac, to goe on warfare about the Fall of the faid River, promising them to great Like.

60 procure an hundred Frenchmen, to affift them in the extirping of all their enemies: and that they should have as many of their owne men, of their side, which they liked very well. But the day appointed being come, and the Frenchmen not come, he excused the matter vpon the weather, which had beene boiltrous for Sailers: and for want of whom, hee told them, that himselfe would goe with them, and follow their fortunes. They feeing they could doe no better, accepted

champlein his

Lib.3.c3p.22.

Champleins

1644 Lake 100.leag. in length. Beasts great and small. Sanages Baptized. LIB. VIII.

A Battell.

Sauages Hill hunting for proussion for the kitchin. And they travailed so farre, that after having paffed the Fals, they crossed some Lakes, and in the space of eighty leagues, came to that other Lake, which we have faid to be of an hundred leagues in length: where (as the faid Champlein hath recited vnto me) they were presently set vpon by the Sauages of the Country, and it was behoonefull vnto them, to fland in good order, & well to derend themselves, after the said Chame plein had received a blow on the chine bone, whereof he is not yet fully healed. Since, he made a confederacy with other Nations of those parts, farther distant from the mouth of the Lake, who promifed him, that the next yeare following (which is this yeare 1611.) they would conduct of his offer, and went together with some other Frenchmen more, along the same faire River : the him with all afforance, as for as the fartheit end of the fail Lake. He, for his part, promifed them to faire, and shewed them as well as he could, the greatnesse of our King, and of his Kingdome, and for to make them certaine thereof, he tooke with him a yong man, fonne of a Captaine of those parts, called Sanignon, a man of a good shape, strong, vigorous, and of great courage, whom he hath brought into France to make report, vpon his returne, of that which he hath feene. This Country(by the report of the faid Champlein) is one of the fairest Countries of the world, much tilled. A faire Coun- abounding with chase Deere, and Fish, Vines, Hempe, good Roots, Walnut-trees, Chestnut-trees.

Plantrees and others. There are flore of Beuers along this Lake, but the Inhabitants doe burne them, as here wee Beners burnt.

burne Hogges : and to by that meanes, that haire and wooll, which we goe fo farre of and with fo many perils to leeke for, is loft. There are Bearls great and fmall, differing from ours, and Hor- 20 fes, as the faid Sauignon hath shewed vs, by the neighing. But I dare not give for current that which Monfieur de Monts hath recited voto me, that their Nations haue tame Beares, which Merueilous they teach, to carry them upon trees for want of ladders. They have Forts, fuch as they of Vir-

Forts & towns nia haue, which are great inclosures with trees, loyned together in forme like a Pale, and within those inclosures are houses made, two or three stories high. The lower and higher parts doe ferue for the men when they mult defend themselves from the affalts of their enemies. For in the lower parts there are big Bowes, for the bending of which, the ftrength of fix men is required, and Strong bowes. they have Arrowes, that knocke downe men. Aboue, they have murthering holes, or battlements, from when e to fling or cast stones, and also to shoote with Bowes, when they will his their enemies a farre off. In the middle roomes are the women, which faile not in doing 30 that helpe which their fexe may affoord. And in this middle flory, they lay up their Corne and other prouisions.

Hope for the Champlein promileth vs neuer to give over vntill he have pierced as farre as to the Western Sea. Baffage to or that of the North, to open the way of China; in vame by for many thought for. As for the China. Western Sea, I beleene that at the farther end of the greatest Lake, which is very far beyond that Some great River runging whereof we looke of in this Chapter, there will be found fome great River, which will fall into Westward into the same, or issue from it (as doth that of Canada) and never into the said Westerne Sea, And as the Westerne for the Northerne Sea, there is hope to come neere to it by the River of Saguenay, there being but Sca.

The Northern small distance from the head of the faid River, to the faid Sea.

It is now fit to speake of Monsieur de Poutrencourt, a Gentleman of long time resolute in these 40 actions, who having made his preparation at Diepe, fet faile the 25, of February 1610, with a Atedious Na. number of honeit men, and Artificers. This Naugarion hath bin very tedious and trouble tome: for from the beginning they were driven within light of the Azores, and from thence, almost continually beaten with contrary windes, by the space of two moneths a during which time (as idle people doe commonly occupie their (pirits in ea:11) some, by (ecret practiles, durst conspire against A confpiracy. their Captaine, whom notwithitanding, the faid Pourrincourt, according to his accustomed clemency, did pardon. Having made a review of that coaft, he came into Port Royall, where he brought much con-Their arrivall at Por Royall. folation to the Sauges of that place. As for the buildings, they were found all whole, except the Buildings and covering, and every parcell of houshold stuffe, in the same place where they were left. houtholdftuffe The first care that the said Monsieur de Poutrmourt ha , was for the ciliage of the ground, and to dispose it to receive the seede of corne, for the yeare following; which being finished, hee Pillage of the would not neglect that which belonged to the (pritualty, and whereunto the chiefest aime of his trangales did tend, which was, to procure the faluation of those poore fange and barbabarous The fift Chris people. After necessary instruction given, they were baptized upon Saint Iohn Baptist his day, ftmings made the foure and twentieth of June, 1610. to the number of one and twenty perions; to every one in New France, of which was given the name of some great or notable person of these parts. 1. Memberton great Sagamor, being aboue an hundred yeares of age, was baptized by Sir leffe Fleche Priette, and named by Monsteur de Poutrincourt, Henry, after the Kings name.

Prince, Ruler, 2. Actaudinech, third Sonne of the laid Henry Memberton, was by the faid Pourrincourt, named 60 or Cantaine. Paul, after the name of Pope Paul. 3. The wife of the laid Henry, was named by the hid Pour trincourt, after the Q renes name, that is to lay. Marie. 4. Mombertocoichic, alias Iudas, elier forme to Memberton, being about fixety yeares old, was also captized, and by Monfieur de Birncour, named Lewes, after the name of my L ru the Daulphin, &c.

Memberton, chiefe Sagamos of these Countries, moued with a religious zeale (but without knowledge) faith, that he will denounce open wars against all them that will refuse to become

Shortly after these spirituall regenerations, Monsieur de Poutrincours his son was sent backe. A returne ininto France to take a new charge: In doing whereof, he certified the Queene, what had bin done to France, in those Christenings; whereby the received a marueilous contentment. But this one things is to in those distributed the Nauigation were tedious in going, yet in the returne it was very short; for being come to the fishing banke, which is fiftie leagues on this side New-found-land, he was brought in afortnight into France, in which time they commonly make their returne. Vpon the To Banke they heare the newes of our good Kings death, whose soule resteth with God, and whose posterity we pray God to blesse.

The Author reports another Voyage 1611. by the Lord of Saut Iust; but I have hafte to the English Plantation for whole lake thele are published: there being no great matter of history of thole parts therein. As for the Articles of a Societie concluded, and the names of those which entred therein, till we have greater effect thereof, I shall not trouble you with the recital thereof.

CHAP. IX.

The first plantation of English Colonies in Virginia briefely mentioned.

😭 Ir Walter Raleigh, a man more famous then happy, had obtained of Queene Elizabeth, of glorious memory, a Patent for discouring and peopling of vnknowne The first Voypares not actually possessed by any Christian Prince, dated March 25. A. Reg. 26. and possition The 27. of Aprill 1884 the let forth two Barkes wider the command of Maiter taken. Phillip Amadas, and Master Arthur Barlow, which arrived on that part of A- Virginia namerica, which that Virgin Queene stiled Virginia, and thereof in her Maiesties med so by Q.

an name tooke possession July 12, and having taken view and liking of the Country, and had con- Elizabeth. ference and trade with the Sauages, obseruing aboue foureteene seuerall sweete smelling timber trees, and many other commodities; they returned with two of the Sauages, Wanchefe and Mantee, and arrived in England in September.

Aprill 9. 1585. Sir Richard Greeneuile was fent by Sir Walter Raleigh with a fleete of feuen Second Vovfaile, which landed in the Ile of Saint John Port Ricco, May 12. and there fortified themselves, age and built a Pinnace. The Spaniard promifed to furnish them with victuals, but did not, where- Sir R. Greenwile. upon they tooke two Frigates. In Hispaniola they had friendly greetings and trade, June 26 they anchored at Wocoken, where by the vulkilfulnesse of Fernando the Master, their Admirall strooke on ground and funke. In the 2r. of July, the Generall returned for England, and tooke a Spanish Ship of three hundred tunne richly laden by the way, boording her with a Boate made of the boords of Chefts, which as foone as hee had boorded her fell in funder and funke at the Ships fide. In the Comtrie was a Colonie, left under the government of Master Ralph Lane, viz., Master Philip Amadas, Malter Hariot, Malter Alton, Mafter Edward Stafford, Mafter Prideox, Captaine Vaughan, and aboue a hundred others. Master Lane writ from his new Fort in Virginia, that if Virginia had Kine and Horses in reasonable proportion, no Countrie in Christendome were comparable to it. They discourred from Roaneak to the Chesepians, aboue one hundred and thirty miles, to Chamamock North-Welt as farre. The Sanages confpired against the English, the principall was Pemisapan, who lost his head in the quarrell, in the beginning of June 1586, and Sir Francis Drake 50 comming thither from the facke of divers Spanish Townes, to visite the Colony, on the nineteenth, tooke the Colony with him in his victorious Fleete, and brought them into Engla id. The fame yeere had Sit Walter Raleigh prepared a flup of a hundred tun, fraught with projetion Third Voyage. for the Colonie, which fetting forth late, arrived at Hartoraske immediatly after the departure of the Colonie, which having fought in vaine, the returned with her provisions for England. About Fourth Voya fortnight after her departure, Sir Richard Greenenile, Generall of Virginia, accompanied with a fortnight after her departure, Sir Rehard Greeneuite, Generall of Vrginia, accompanied with three Ships arined there, and neither hearing of the Slip, nor of the Colonie which the hald less three Ships arined there, and neither hearing of the Slip, nor of the Colonie which the hald less three they eare before; after long and vaine learch, he left fifteene men to hold polletion of the fire. Countrie, in the Ile of Romonk, furnished for two yeares, and returned, by the way making spoyle on the Townes of the Azores, and there taking divers Spaniards. Master Thomas Hariot Master Thomas fubscribed allo by Mafter Ralph Lane, extant in Mafter Hacklun his third Tome. In the yeare 1587. Sit Walter Raleigh, continuing his purpose of Plantation, sent another Co- Fifth Voyage lonie of one hundred and fiftie persons, vnder the government of Mafter Iohn Worte; to him he and third Coappointed twelue Affiffants, vn:0 whom he gaue a Charter, and incorporated them by the name lonic.

6) writa large History of the Men, Beatls, Fishes, Fowles, Plants, and Commodities of Virginia, Harret, Hories.

Sca.

Istember 10#;

CHAP.II. Saint Maries Hand, Sauages shew themselues; store of fish.

1647

of Gonernour and Affifants of the Citie of Raleigh in Virginia, Thefe arrived on July 23. 2t Hatoraike, where they went on thore to feeke the hitceene men left there the yeare before, withintent after to plant at the Bay of Chefepiok, according to Sir Walter Raleigh his directions, there to make their feate and Fort, By Mantes they learned how the Sauages had fecretly affaired the fitteene English, and flaine fome, the other being forced to flee, it was not knowne whither. Mantes was Christened, and by Sir Walter Raleighs direction, made Lord of Rosmont. Miltris Dare the Gouernours daughter was delivered of a daughter, which was baptifed by the name

En: "Thborne

The Company were very important with the Gouernour, to returne for England, to Supply their detects; to which, with much vn willing neffe he yeelded, Aug. 27. and Octob. 16. arrived 10 in Ireland, and after in England.

Anno 1590, the faid Matter lohn White put to Sea with Ships, and two Pinnaces, with purpole Si: a Voyage. for Virginia, where they anchored at Hateraik in 36. 20. Aug. 15. They found some of the goods (fuch as the Sauages could not make vie of) and tokens as if they were at Croatoan; but the winds violence permitted no further fearch, and they returned to the Azores, and after to England atriving at Plimmouth, Octob. 24.

Maffer BARTHOLOMBUV GOSNOLDS Letter to his Father, touching his first Voyage to Virginia, 1 602.

MT duetie remembred, &c. Sir, I was in good bope that my occasions would have allowed mee so much libersie, as to have come unto you before this time; otherwise I would have written more at Large concerning the Countrie from whence we lately came, then I did: but not well remembring what I baue already written (though I am affured that there is nothing fet downe disagreeing with the truth) I thought it fittest not to goe about to adde any thing in writing, but rather to leave the report of the rest till I come my felfo , which now I hope shall be shortly , and fo some as with conseniency I may. In the meane time, not with flanding whereas you feeme not to be fatisfied by that which I have already written, concerning some especiall matters, I have here briefely (and as well as I can) added these few lines for 30 your further fattifailion: and first as touching that place where we were most resident, it is in the Latitude of 41 degrees, and one third part; which albeit it be fo much to the Southward, jet is it more cold then those parts of Europe, which are scituated under the same paralell: but one thing is worth the noting, that notwithstanding the place is not fo much subject to cold as Eagland is, yet did me finde the Spring to be later there, then it is with us here, by almost a moneth : this whether it bapned accidentally this last Spring to be fo, or whether it be fo of course, I am not very certaine; the latter seemes most likely, whereof also there may be given some sufficient reason, which now I omit: as for the Acornes we law gathered on heaves, they were of the last yeare, but doubtlesse their Summer continues longer then ours. We cannot gather by any thing we could observe in the people, or by any triall we had thereof our selves but that it is as healthfulla Climate at any can be. The Inhabitants there, as I wrote before, being of tall 40 stature, comely proportion, strong, altime, and some of good yeares, and as it sould seeme very healthfull, are sufficient proofs of the nealthfulnesse of the place. First, for our selves (thankes be to God) we had not a man fiche two dayes together in all our Voyage; whereas others that went out with us, or about that time on other Voyages (especially such as went upon reprisall) were most of them insetted with sideresse, whereof they lost some of their men, and brought home a many sicke, returning notwithst anding long before ws. But Verezzano, and others (as I take is, you may reade in the Books of Disconeries) doemore particularly intreate of the Age of the people in that coast. The Sassafras which we brought we had upon the Ilands ; where though we had little disturbance, and reasonable plenty : yet for that the greatest part of our people were imployed about the fitting of our house, and such like affaires, and a few (and these but cafie labourers) undertooke this worke, the rather becanfe wewere informed before our going forth, that 50 a tunne was sufficient to clos England) and further, for that we hadrefolned upon our returne, and taken view of our victuall, we sudged it then needefull to vic expedition; which afterward we had more certaine proofe of ; for when we came to an anker before Portsmouth, which was some foure dayes after we made the land, we had not one Cake of Bread, nor any drinke, but a little Vinegar, left : fr:hefe and other reasons, we returned no otherwise laden then you have heard. And thus much I hope shall suffice till I can my felfe come to give you further notice, which though it be not fo foone as I could have wifet, yet I hope it shall be in convenient time. In the meane time craning your pardon, for which the vergent occasions of my stay will ploade, I humbly take my leane. 7. Septemb. 1602.

Your dutifull Sonne.

BARTH. COSNOLD.

CHAP. XI.

The Relation of Captaine Gosnots Voyage to the North part of Virginia, becaume the fixe and twentieth of March, Anno 42. ELIZABETHE Reginæ 1602. and delivered by GABRIEL ARCHER, a Gentleman in the faid Voyage.

He faid Captaine did fet fayle from Famonib, the day and yeere aboue written accompanied with thirtie two persons , whereof eight Mariners and Saylers, twelue purpoling vpon the Discouery to returne with the ship for England, the rest remayne there for population. The fourteenth of Aprill following, wee had fight of Saint Maries an Hand of the Afforis.

The three and twentieth of the same, beeing two hundred leagues Westwards from the faid lland in the latitude of 37, degrees. The water in the mayne Ocean appeared yel- Ocean fee-

low, the space of two leagues North and South, where founding with thirtie fadome Line, wee ming yellow, found no ground, and taking vp some of the faid water in a bucket, it altered not either in colour or talte from the Sea Azure.

The feuenth of May following, we first saw many Birds in bignesse of Cliffe Pidgeons; and 20 after divers other as Pettrels, Cootes, Hagbuts, Pengwins, Mutres, Gannets, Cormorants, Guls, with many elfe in our English Tongue of no name. The eight of the same the water changed to a yellowish greene, where at seventie fadome we had ground. The ninth, wee had two and twentie fadome in faire landie ground, hauing voon our Lead many glittering Stones, somewhat heavie, which might promise some Minerall matter in the bottome, we held our selves by computation, well neere the latitude of 43. degrees.

The tenth wee founded in 27. 30. 37. 43. fadome, and then came to 108. fome thought it to be the founding of the Westermost end of Saint Iohns lland, vpon this banke we saw sculs of fish in great numbers. The twelfth we hoyied out halfe of out shallop, and sounding had then eightie fadome without any current perceined by William Strete the Master, one hundred leagues Westward from Saint Maries til we came to the foresaid foundings continually passed fleeting by we reward from Sainte and to have their moueable course towards the North-east, a matter to set Sea-oare, which seemed to have their moueable course towards the North-east, a matter to set fometubile inuention on worke, for comprehending the true cause thereof. The thirteenth, wee founded in feuentie fadome, and observed great beds of weedes, much woode and divers things effe floating by vs, when as we had smelling of the shoare, such as from the Southerne Cape and Smell of the Andulazia in Spaine.

The fourteenth, about fix in the morning we descried Land that lay North, &c. the Northerly pare we called the North Land, which to another Rocke vpon the fame lying twelue leagues Weft, that wee called Sauage Rocke, because the Sauages first shewed themselves there, five Sauage Rocke. leagues towards the faid Rocke is an out Point of woodie ground, the Trees thereof very high 40 and itraight, from the Rocke East North-east. From the faid Rocke, came towards vs a Bifeay shallop with faile and Oares, having eight perions in it, whom we supposed at first to bee Chrifrans diffressed, But approching vs neere, wee perceived them to bee Savages. These comming Savages. within call hayled vs , and wee answered. Then after signes of peace , and a long speech by one of them made, they came boldly aboord vs being all naked, faving about their shoulders certaine loofe Derre-skinnes, and neere their wastes Seale-skinnes tyed fast like to Irih Dimmie Troufes. One that lecemed to be their Commander wore a Wastecoate of blacke worke, a paire of Breeches, cloth Stockings, Shooes, Hat, and Band, one or two more had also a few things made by some Christians, these with a piece of Chalke described the Coast thereabouts, and could Their behause name Placentia of the New-found-land, they spake divers Christian words, and seemed to voicer-

50 fland much more then we, for want of Language could comprehend. These people are in colour fwart, their haire long votyed with a knot in the part of behind the head. They paint their bodies, which are ftrong and well proportioned. These much defired our longer stay, but finding our selues short of our purposed place, we set faile Westwards, leaving them and their Coast. About fixteene leagies South-west from thence, wee perceived in that course two small Ilands, the one lying Eastward from Sanage Rock, the other to the Southwards of it, the Coast we left was full of goodly Woods, faire Plaines, with little greene round Hils about the Cliffes appearing vnto vi, which are indifferently railed, but all Rockie, and of shining stones, which might have perswaded ws a longer stay there.

The fifteenth day wel ad againe fight of the Land, which made a head being as wee thought 60 an Hand, by readin of a large found that appeared Westward betweene it and the Mayne, for comming to the Wet end thereof, we did perceive a large opening, we called it Shole-hope: Neere Shile-hope. this Cape we came to Auchor in fifreene fadome, where wee tooke great store of Cod-fish, for Which whater red the name, and called it Cape Cod. Here wee faw fouls of Herrings, Mackerels Care Cod. and other Imail find in great abundance. This is a low fundie shoare, but without danger, also wee came to Anchor agains in fixteene fadome, faire by the Land in the latitude of 42. degrees. This Cape is well neere a mile broad, and lieth North-east by East. The Captaine went here ashoare and found the ground to be full of Peafe, Strawberies, Hurtheries, &c. as then vnripe., the fand alfo by the fhoare fomewhat deepe, the fire-wood there by vs taken in was of Cypreffe, Birch. Wich-hazell and Beech. A young Indian came here to the Captaine, armed with his Bow and Arrowes, and had certaine plates of Copper hanging at his Eares, hee shewed a willingnesse to helpe vs in our occasions.

Xxxxxx 3

The fixteenth, we trended the Coast Southerly, which was all champaine and full of graffe. but the Ilands somewhat wooddie. Twelue leagues from Cape Cod, we descried a point . with fome breach a good diffance off, and keeping our loffe to double it, wee came on the furden into to shoale water, yet well quitted our felues thereof. This breach wee called Tuckers Terror . voor his expressed feare. The Point we named Point Care, having passed it wee bore vp againe with the Land, and in the night came with it anchoring in eight fadome, the ground good. Thefee uenteenth, appeared many breaches round about vs, fo as wee continued that day without remooue.

Diuers llinds. Sauages

Pengwins.

Point Care.

The eighteenth, being faire we fent forth the Boat, to found ouer a Breach, that in our course lay of another Point, by vs called Gilberts Point; who returned vs foure, five and feuenfadome ouer. Also a Discouery of divers llands which after prooued to bee Hils and Hummocks. dittinet within the Land. This day there came vnto the thips tide divers Canoas; the Indiani apparelled as aforefaid, with Tobacco and Pipes Heeled with Copper, Skins, artificiall ffrings and 20 other trifles to barter, one had hanging about his necke a plate of sich Copper in length a foor, in breadth halfe a foot for a breft-plate, the Eares of all the rest had Pendanis of Copper. Also one of them had his face over painted, and his head stucke with feathers in manner of a Turkey Cocks traine : There are more timerous then those of the Sau ge Rocke, yet very theeuith.

The nineteenth, we paffed ouer the breach of Gilberts Point in foure or fine fadome, and anchored a league or somewhat more beyond it; betweene the last two Points are two leagues, the interim, along shoale water, the latitude here is 41. degrees two third parts.

The twentieth, by the ships side we there killed Pengwins, and law many sculs of fish. The Coast from Gilberts Point to the supposed Iles lyeth East and by South. Here also we discoursed two Inlets which might promise fresh water, inwardly whereof we perceived much imoake, as 30 though some population had there beene: This Coast is very full of people, for that as we trended the same Sauages Hill runne along the shoare, as men much admiring at vs.

The one and twentieth, we went coasting from Gilberts Point to the supposed Iles, in tenne, nine, eight, seuen, and fixe fadome close aboord the shoare, and that depth lyeth a league off. A little from the supposed Hes appeared vnto vs an opening, with which we stood sudging it to bee the end of that which Captaine Gofnoll descrieth from Cape Cod, and as hee thought to extend some thirtie or more miles in length, and finding there but three fadome a league off, we omitted to make further discouerie of the same, calling it Shole-hope.

From this opening the Mayne lyeth South-welf, which coasting along we saw a disinhabited

Manthest Fac. Iland which so after wards appeared vnto vs.: we bore with it, and named it Marthast Frequent, 40 from Shole-bepe it is eight leagues in circuit, the Iland is five miles, and hath 41. degrees and one quarter of latitude : the place most pleafant; for the two and twentieth, we went ashoare, and found it full of Wood, Vines, Goofeberie bushes, Hortberies, Raspices, Eglentine, &c. Heere we had Cranes, Hearnes, Shoulers Geefe, and divers other Birds which there at that time vpon the Cliffes being fandie with some Rockie stones, did breed and had young. In this place we saw Deere, heere we rode in eight fathome neere the shoare, where wee tooke great store of Cod, as before at Cape Cod, but much better.

The three and twentieth wee weyed, and towards night came to Anchor at the Northwest part of this lland, where the next morning off, red vnto vs fast running thirteene Sauages apparelled as aforelaid, and armed with Bowes and Arrowes without any feare. They brought 10. 50 bacco, Deere skins and some sodden fish. These offered themselves vnto vs in great familiaritie, who feemed to be well conditioned. They came more rich in Copper then any before. This I-land is found, and hath no danger about it. The foure and twentieth, we fet faile and doubled the Cape of another Iland next vnto it, which wee called Doner Cliffe, and then came into a faire Sound, where wee roade all night, the next morning wee fent off our Boate to difcouer another Cape, that lay betweene vs and the Mayne, from which were a ledge of Rockes a mile into the Sea, but all aboue water, and without danger, we went about them, and came to Anchor in eight fadome, a quarter of a mile from the shoare, in one of the stateliest Sounds that ever I was in. This called wee Gofnolls Hope; the North banke whereof is the Mayne, which stretcheth East and West. This lland Captaine Gof. 60 noll called Elizabeths Ile, where we determined our abode : the diffance betweene every of thele Ilands is, viz. from Marthaes V meyard to Douer Cliffe, halfe a league ouer the Sound, thence to Elizabeths lle one league distant. From Elizabeths lle vnto the Mayne is foure leagues. On the North tide neere advoying voto the Hand Elizabeth, is an Het in compaffe halfe a myle full of Cedars, by me called Hills Hop, to the Northward, of which in the mouth of an opening on Hills Hee. the Mayne appeareth another the like, that I called Haps Hill, for that I hope much hap may be Haps Hill.

The figurand twentieth, it was that we came from Gofnolls Hope. The fix and twentieth, we trimmed and fitted vp our Shallop. The feuen and twentieth, there came vnto vs an Indian and two womens the one we supposed to be his Wife, the other his Daughter, both cleane and strate hodied, with countenance iweet and pleafant. To these the Indian gaue heedfull attendance for that they shewed them in much familiaritie with our men, although they would not admit of any immodest touch.

The eight and ewentieth we entred counfell about our abode and plantation, which was concluded to be in the West part of Elizabeths Iland. The North-east thereof running from out our ken. The South and North standeth in an equall Parallel. This Iland in the Westernde admitteth fome Increekes, or fandie Coues, fo girded, as the water in some places of each fide meeteth , to which the Indians from the Mayne doe oftentimes refort for fishing of Crabs. There is eight fadome very neere the shoare, and the latitude here is 41. degrees 10. minutes, the tread. h tiem Elegabeths 1's Sound to Sound in the Welter part is not palling a mile at moit, altogether vnpeopled and dil inhabited. It is ouer-growne with Wood and Rubbish, viz. Okes, Ashes, Beech ; Wal nut, 10 minut a Weech-halfe, Saffafrage, and Cedars, with divers other of vnknowne names. The R Wilh is comban wild Pezze, young Sallafrage, Cherie trees, Vines, Eglentine, Goose-berie bushes, Hawtmorne, an Honiflickles, with others of like qualitie. The herbs and Roots are Strawberies Rafgis, Ground Nuts, Alexander, Surrin, Tantie, &c. without count. Touching the fertilitie of the levele by our owne experience made, we found it to be excellent for fowing fome English pulse it iprowted out in one fortnight almost halte a foot. In this Iland is a stage or Pond of tresh water, in circuit two miles, on the one fide not diffant from the Sea thirtie yards, in the Centre whereof is a Rockie Islee, contayning neere an Acre of ground full of wood, on which wee beganne our Fort and Fort eggs place of abode, disposing it selfe to fit for the same. These Indians call Gold Was ador, which argueth there is thereof in the Countrey. The nine and twentieth, we laboured in getting of Sassafrage, rubbishing our Ittle Forter Islet, new keeling our shallop; and making a Punt or Flat bottome Boate to passe to and tro our in Fortouer the fresh water, the powder of Saffafrage in twelue houres cured one of our Company that had taken a great Surfet by eating the bellies of Dog-fish, a very delicious meate.

The thirtieth, Captaine Gofnoll with divers of his company went voon pleasure in the shale lop towards Hills Hap to view it, and the Sandie Coue, and returning brought with him a Canca that foure Indians had there left being fied away for feare of our English which we brought into

The one and thirtieth, Captaine Golnoll desirous to see the Maine, because of the distance, bee fet tayle ouer; where comming to anchor, went ashoare with certaine of his companie, and immediatly there presented vn to him men women and children, who with all curteous kindnesse entertayned him, giving him certaine skinnes of wilde beafts, which may be rich Furres, Tobac-4000, Turtles, Hempe, artificiall Strings coured, Chaines, and fuch like things as at the inwant Theger they had about them. These are a faire conditioned people: On all the Sea coast along we found Mussell shells that in colour did represent Mother-of-pearle, but not having meanes to dredge, could not apprehend further knowledge thereof. This Maine is the goodhest Continent that euer we faw, promiting more by farre then we any way did expect : for it is replenished with faire fields, and in them fragrant Flowers, also Medowes, and hedged in with stately Groues, being furnished also with pleasant Brookes, and beautified with two maine Rivers that (as wee judge) may haply become good Harbours, and conduct vs to the hopes men fo greedily doe thirst after. In the mouth of one of thele Inlets or Rivers lieth that little Ile before mentioned, called Happer Hill, from which vnto the Westermost end of the Maine, appearing where the other Inlet is, I account some five leagues, and the Coast betweene bendeth like a Bow, and lyeth East 50 and by North. Beyond thefe two Inlets we might perceive the Mayne to beare up South-weft. and more Southerly. Thus with this tafte of Difcouery, we now contented our felues, and the fame day made returne vnto our Fort, time not permitting more spating delay.

Thefirst of Iune, we employed our felues in getting Sassafrage , and the building of our Fort. The fecond, third and fourth, we wrought hard to make readie our house for the provision to bee had ashore to sustaine vs till our ships returne. This day from the Mayne came to our ships side a Canoa, with their Lord or chiefe Commander, for that they made little stay only pointing tothe Sunne, as in figne that the next day hee would come and visit vs, which hee did accordingly. 60 The fifth, wee continued our labour, when there came vnto vs ashoare from the Mayne sittle Sauages, flout and lustie men with their Bowes and Arrowes, amongst them there seemed to be one of authoritie, because the rost made an inclining respect vinto him. The ship was at their comming a league off, and Captaine Gofnoll aboord, and so likewise Captaine Gilbert, who almost neuer went alhoare, the company with me only eight persons. These Indians in hastie manner

Elizabethi Ile.

came towards vs. fo as we thought fit to make a stand at an angle betweene the Sea and a fresh water, I mooued my felfe towards him feuen or eight steps, and clapt my hands first on the fides of mine head, then on my breaft, and after prefented my Musket with a threatning countenance. thereby to fignifie vnto them, either a choice of Peace or Warre, whereupon hee vfing mee with mine owne figures of Peace, I stept forth and imbraced him, his company then all fatedowne in manner like Grey-hounds voon their heeles, with whom my company fell a bartering. By this time Captaine Gofisell was come with twelve men more from aboord, and to shew the Sauare Seignior that he was our Captaine, we received him in a guard, which he passing thorow, saluted the Seisnior with ceremonies of our falutations, whereat he nothing mooned or altered himselfe. Our Capraine gaue him a straw Hat and a paire of Kniues, the Hat awhiles hee wore, but the IO Kniues he beheld with great maruelling, being very bright and sharpe, this our courtese made them all in love with vs.

The fixt being raine, we fpent idlely aboord. The feuenth, the Seignier came againe with all his troupe as before, and continued with vs the most part of the day, we going to dinner about noone, they fate with vs and did eate of our Bacaleure and Mustard, dranke of our Beere, but the Mustard nipping them in their noses they could not indure : it was a sport to behold their faces made being bitten therewith. In time of Dinner the Sauages had ftolnea Target wherewith acquainting the Seignier, with feare and great trembling they restored it againe, thinking perhaps we would haue beene reuenged for it, but feeing our familiaritie to continue, they fell a fresh to roatting of Crabs, Red Herrings, which were exceeding great, ground Nuts, &c. as be- 20 fore. Our Dinner ended, the Seignier first tooke leave and departed, next all the rest saving foure that stayed and went into the Wood to helpe vs digge Sassafrage, whom we defired to goe abourd vs, which they refused and so departed.

The eighth wee divided the victuals, viz. the thips fore for England, and that of the Planters. which by Captaine Gilbert; allowance could be but fixe weekes for fixe moneths, whereby there fell out a controuer sie, the rather, for that some seemed secretly to vinderstand of a purpose Captaine Gilbert had not to returne with supplie of the issue, those goods should make by him to be carried home. Belides, there wanted not ambitious conceits in the mindes of some wrangling and ill disposed persons that ouerthrew the stay there at that time, which vpon consultation thereof had, about fine dayes after was fully refolued all for England againe. There came in this 30 interim aboord vnto vs, that flayed all night, an Indian, whom wee vied kindly, and the next day fent ashoare hee shewed himselfe the most sober of all the rest, wee held him sent as a Spie. In the morning he filched away our Pot-hookes, thinking he had not done any ill therein; being ashoare wee bid him strike fire, which with an Emerald stone (such as the Glasiers vie, to cut Glaffe) he did. I take it to be the very fame that in Latine is called Smiris, for ftriking therewith vpon Touch-wood that of purpose hee had, by meane of a mynerall stone vsed therein, sparkles proceeded and forth with kindled with making of slame. The ninth, wee continued working on our Store-house for as yet remayned in vs a defired resolution of making flay. The tenth, Captaine Gofinol fell downe with the ship to the little life of Cadars, called Hill happe, to take in Cedar wood, leauing mee and nine more in the Fort, onely with three meales meate, 40 wpon promise to returne the next day. The eleventh, he came not, neither sent, whereupon I commanded source of my companie to feeke out for Crabbes, Lobsters, Turtles, &c. for fustayning vs till the ships returne, which was gone cleane out of fight, and had the winde chopt up at Southewest, with much difficulty would shee haue beene able in short time to haue made returne. These foure Purveyers, whom I counselled to keepe together for their better safety divided themselves, two going one wayes and two another, in fearch as aforefaid. One of thefe petie companies was affaulted by foure Sauage assault Indians, who with Arrowes did shoot and hurt one of the two in his side, the other a lusty and nimble fellow, leapt in and cut their Bow-ftrings whereupon they fled. Being late in the euening, they were driven to lie all night in the Woods, not knowing the way home thorow the 50 thicke rubbish, as also the weather somewhat stormie. The want of these fortowed vs much,

as not able to coniecture any thing of them vnlesse very enill.

The twelfth, those two came vnto vs againe, whereat our ioy was encreased, yet the want of our Captaine, that promifed to returne, as aforesaid, strooke vs in a dumpish terrour, for that hee performed not the same in the space of almost three dayes. In the meane wee sustayned our felues with Alexander and Sorrell pottage, Ground-nuts and Tobacco, which gaue nature a rea-fonable content. Wee heard at last, our Captaine to lewre vnto vs, which made such musike as fweeter neuer came vnto poore men.

The thirteenth, beganne fome of our companie that before vowed to flay, to make revolt: whereupon the planters diminishing, all was given over. The fourteenth, and fix. 63 teenth wee spent in getting Salafrage and fire-wood of Cedar, leaving Houle and little Fort by ten men in nineteene dayes sufficient made to harbour twenty persons at least with their neces-

The feuenteenth, we fet fayle, doubling the Rockes of Elizabethi Iland, and paffing by Douer

CHAP.11. Cranes, Hernsbowes, and Geese. Lakes of fresh water.

Cliffe, came to anchor at Marthaes Vineyard being fine leagues diftant from our Fort, where we went ashoare, and had young Cranes, Herneshowes, and Geele, which now were growne to pretie bigneffe.

The eighteenth, we fet fayle and bore for England, cutting off our Shalop, that was well able Returned to land fine and twenty men, or more, a Boate very necessary for the like occasions. The winds doe raigne most commonly vpon this coast in the Summer time, Wetterly. In our homeward course wee observed the forelaid fleeting weeds to continue till we came within two hundred leagues of Europe.

The three and twentieth of July we came to anchor before Exmenth.

CHAP. XI

Notes of the same Voyage taken out of a Tractate written by IAMES Ros SIER to Sir WALTER RALEIGH, and of MACES Vovage to Virginia.

Lizabeths Iland is full of high timbred Oakes, their leanes thrice fo broad as ours : Ce. Oakes Cedatsi dars, firaget and tall; Beech. Elime, Holle, Wal-mat trees in abordance, the first as Beech. Elime, beige as ours, as appeared by those wee famul onder the trees, which had lien all the rece, thereis year own at hered; Halse-must trees, the leafe, have and beyerfe not trees, the different formats in E. John has the All-ha hands the hirty. differing from ours in England, but the stalke beareth the blossomes or finit at the end thereof, like a clufter of Grapes, forese or fiftie in a bunch; Saffafras trees great plen. Saffafrastrees, tie all the Ilandoner, a tree of high price and profit; also divers other fruit-trees, some of them with Divers other frange barkes, of an Orange colour, in feeling foft and smooth like Velnet: in the thickest parts of these trees.

Woods, you may fee a furlong or more round about.

On the North-west side of this Iland, neere to the Sea-side, is a standing Lake of fresh water, almost three Englith mites in compaffe, in the musle whereof shants woods ground, an are in quantities on an A Lake three mites about; and the share the Lake is shall of small Torisifes, and exceedingly frequented with all forts of fowles before re- small Torioifes beared, which breed, one lowe on the banks, and others on lowe trees about this Lake in great about. dence, whose young ones of all forts wee tooke and eate at our pleasure: but all these fowles are much Abundance of dance, whose young ones of an loves were tooke and east at our premare; but an torge founds are much bigger than ours in England. Also, in enery lland, and almost enery part of enery lland, are great bigger than fore of Ground-nuts fortie together on a string, some of them as bigge as Hennes egges; they growe not ours in Engtwo suches under ground : the which Nuts wee found to bee as good as Potatoes. Alfo, diners forts of land. bell-fifb, as Scalops, Muffels, Cockles, Lobsters, Crabs, Oisters, and Wilkes, exceeding good and very Ground nuts. meat. But not to cloy you with particular rebearfall of fuch things as God and Nature bath bestowed Shell fifth, on these places, in comparison whereof, the most fertile part of all England is (of it selfe) but barren; weewent in our Light-borfman from this lland to the Maine, right against this Iland some two miles 40 off, where comming allocare, wee frood a while like men ranished at the beautic and delicaty of this sweet The exceeding logie; for besides diners cleere Lakes of fresh mater (whereof wee Saw no end) Medowes very large, beauty of the and full of greene graffe; enen the most wooddy places (I peake onely of such as I saw) doe grows so Great Lakes. and full of greene graffe; even the most woods) places (I peake outs) of your most and you can be added to define the day, one tree from another, upon greene graffle ground, onemotes they for than the Plainte. Lings Medons as f Nature would from her felfer done bet power, artificial. Hard by, we expired four Indians.

The state of the state and comming up to them, at first they expressed some feare; but being emboldned by our courteous vlage, and some trifles which we game them, they followed us to a necke of Land, which wee imagined had beene Sewered from the Marnet but finding it otherwise, wee perceined abroad Harbour or Riners mouth, A broad Riverwhich came on into the Mayne; and because the day was farre spent, we were forced to returne to the Iland from whence we came, leaning the Disconery of this Harbour, for a time of better lessure. Of A good Har-10 the goadnesse of which Harbour, as also of many others thereabouts, there is small doubt, con-bout. sidering that all the Hands, as also the Maine (where wee were) is all Rockie Grounds and broken

Now the next day, wee determined to fortifie our felues in a little plot of ground in the middest of the Lake abone mentioned, where wee built an honfe, and concred it with (-dge, which grew about this Lake in great abundance; in building whereof, wee spent three weekes and more: but the second day after our comming from the Maine, wee effied eleven Canoas or Boats, with fifty Indians in them., II. Canoas comming toward us from this part of the Maine, where wee two dayes before landed: and being loath with so Indiane they should discouer our fortification, were went out into the Sea side to meets them; and comming some_ in them. what neere them, they all fate downe upon the stones, calling aloud to us (as wee rightly ghessed) to doe the like, a little distance from them : having fate a while in this order, Captaine Goineld willed mee

to goe unto them; to fee what countenance they would make; but as some as I came up unto them. one of them, to whom I had owen a Knife two dayes before in the Maine, knew mee (whom I also very well remembred) and smiling upon me, spake somewhat unto their Lord or Captaine, which sate in the midst Their Captain of them, who presently rose up and tooks a large Beuer skinne from one that stood about him, and gaus

Their purpole

came towards vs, fo as we thought fit to make a stand at an angle betweene the Sea and a fresh water, I mooued my felfe towards him feuen or eight steps, and clapt my hands first on the fides of mine head, then on my breaft, and after prefented my Musket with a threatning countenance. thereby to fignific voto them, either a choice of Peace or Warre, whereupon hee vfing mee with mine owne fignes of Peace, I stept forth and imbraced him, his company then all sate downe in manner like Grey-hounds voon their heeles, with whom my company fell a bartering. By this time Captaine Gofnell was come with twelve men more from aboord, and to shew the Sauare Sciencer that he was our Captaine, we received him in a guard, which he passing thorow, saluted the Seignior with ceremonies of our falutations, whereat he nothing mooned or altered himfelfe. Our Captaine gaue him a straw Hat and a paire of Kniues, the Hat awhiles hee wore, but the 10 Kniues he beheld with great maruelling, being very bright and sharpe, this our courtese made them all in loue with vs.

The fixt being raine, we fpent idlely aboord. The feuenth, the Seignier came againe with all his troupe as before, and continued with vs the most part of the day, we going to dinner about moone, they fate with vs and did eate of our Bacaleure and Mustard, dranke of our Beese. but the Mustard nipping them in their noses they could not indure : it was a sport to behold their faces made being bitten therewith. In time of Dinner the Sauages had stolnea Target wherewith acquainting the Seignier, with feare and great trembling they restored it againe, thinking perhaps we would haue beene reuenged for it, but feeing our familiaticie to continue, they fell a fresh to roalting of Crabs, Red Herrings, which were exceeding great, ground Nuts, &c. as be- 20 fore. Our Dinner ended, the Seignier hift tooke leave and departed, next all the reft fauing foure that staved and went into the Wood to helpe vs digge Sasiafrage, whom we defired to goe abourd vs, which they refused and so departed.

The eighth wee divided the victuals, viz. the thips flore for England, and that of the Planters, which by Captaine Gilberts allowance could be but fixe weekes for fixe moneths, whereby there fell out a controuer sie, the rather, for that some seemed secretly to understand of a purpose Captaine Gilbert had not to returne with supplie of the iffue, those goods should make by him to be carried home. Besides, there wanted not ambitious conceits in the mindes of some wrangling and ill disposed persons that ouerthrew the stay there at that time, which vpon consultation thereof had, about fine dayes after was fully refolued all for England againe. There came in this 30 interim aboord vnto vs, that stayed all night, an Indian, whom wee vied kindly, and the next day fent afhoare hee fhe wed himfelfe the moft fober of all the reft , wee held him fent as a Spie. In the morning he filched away our Pot-hookes, thinking he had not done any ill therein; being ashoare wee bid him strike fire, which with an Emerald stone (such as the Glasiers vie, to cut Glaffe) he did. I take it to be the very fame that in Latine is called Smiris, for firiking therewith vpon Touch-wood that of purpose hee had, by meane of a mynerall stone vied therein. sparkles proceeded and forthwith kindled with making of slame. The ninth, wee continued working on our Store-house for as yet remayned in vs a defined resolution of making stay. The tenth, Captaine Gososs fell downe with the ship to the little Het of Cedars, called Hill happe, to take in Cedar wood, leauing mee and nine more in the Fort, onely with three meales meate, 40 wpon promise to returne the next day. The eleventh, he came not, neither fent, whereupon I commanded foure of my companie to feeke out for Crabbes, Lobsters, Turtles, &c., for fustayning vs till the ships returne, which was gone cleane out of fight, and had the winde chopt up at Southwest, with much difficulty would shee haue beene able in short time to haue made returne. These foure Purveyers, whom I counselled to keepe together for their better safety divided themselves, two going one wayes and two another, in fearch as aforesaid. One of these petie companies was assaulted by foure Sauage affault Indians, who with Arrowes did shoot and hurt one of the two in his side, the other a lufty and nimble fellow , leapt in and cut their Bow-strings whereupon they fled. Being late in the euening, they were druen to lie all night in the Woods, not knowing the way home thorow the thicke rubbith, as also the weather somewhat stormie. The want of these forrowed vs much,

as not able to coniecture any thing of them vnlesse very enill.

The twelfth, those two came vnto vs againe, whereat our joy was encreased, yet the want of our Captaine, that promifed to returne, as aforefaid, ffrooke vs in a dumpish terrour, for that hee performed not the same in the space of almost three dayes. In the meane wee sustayned our felues with Alexander and Sorrell pottage, Ground-nuts and Tobacco, which gave nature a reafonable content. Wee heard at lait, our Captaine to lewre vnto vs. which made fuch musike as fweeter neuer came vnto poore men.

The thirteenth, beganne some of our companie that before vowed to slay, to make revolt: whereupon the planters diminishing , all was given over. The fourteenth , fifteenth , and fix- 63 teenth wee spent in getting Salafrage and fire-wood of Cedar, leaving Houle and little Fort by ten men in nineteene dayes sufficient made to harbour twenty persons at least with their necesfary provisione

The feuenteenth, we fet fayle, doubling the Rockes of Elizabeths Iland, and paffing by Douer

CHAP.11. Cranes, Hernsbowes, and Geese. Lakes of fresh water.

Cliffe, came to anchor at Marthaes Vineyard being fine leagues diffant from our Fort . where we went ashoare, and had young Cranes, Herneshowes, and Geete, which now were growne to pretie bieneffe.

retie Dignesse. The eighteenth, we let layle and bore for England, cutting off our Shalop, that was well able Returned to land fine and twenty men, or more, a Boate very necessary for the like occasions. The winds doe raigne most commonly upon this coast in the Summer time, Westerly. In our homeward course wee observed the forestaid fleeting weeds to continue till we came within two hundred leagues of Europe.

The three and twentieth of July we came to anchor before Exmonth.

CHAP. XL

Notes of the same Voyage taken out of a Tractate written by I A M E S Ro-SIER to Sir WALTER RALEIGH, and of MACES Voyage to Virginia.

Descap Lizabeths Ilandis full of high timbred Oakes, their leanes thrice fo broad as onrs : Ce... Oakes.Cedatsi Lieuteits lland is julio b tight tembred Unter, their lettus thrice fo broad at ours; Ce. Dischedictif dear, firugist and tall; Beech, Elme, Holle, o'Almet trees in abundance, the first as Beech, Elme, to buge as ours, as appeared by those wee found under the trees, which had lies all the trees, which had lies all the trees. Cherrie trees, the least- have and byperse not trees, the arrives of the art of of tie all the Iland ouer, a tree of high price and profit; also diners other fruit-trees, some of them with Diners other frange barkes, of an Orange colour, in feeling foft and smooth like Veluet: in the thickest parts of these

Woods, you may fee a furlong or more round about.

Woods, you may jee a foreing or more vonn avons.

Outs & Nothowelf field of this Iland, mere is the Sea-fide, is a flanding Lake of field water, almost three lines English miles is compaffe, in the miss theoreof flands a woody ground, on acre in quantitie, or not miles about 30 about: the Lake is field of final Tortoffer, and exceedingly frequenced with all first of fronte before zer. Small Tortoffer, and exceedingly frequenced with all forest of fronte before zer. Small Tortoffer, and the state of the stat bewied, which breed, some lowe on the bankes, and others on lowe trees about this Lake in great abundance, whose young ones of all forts wee tooke and eate at our pleasure: but all these fowles are much Abundance of dance, whose young ones of all sorts wee tonce and sate at our presumer. Out an torse juntes are much bigger than ours in England. Also, in enery iland, and almost enery part of enery iland, are great bigger than flore of Ground-nuts fortie together on a ftring, some of them as bigge as Hennes egges; they growe not ours in Engtwo inches under ground : the which Nuts wee found to bee as good as Potatoes. Alfo, diners forts of land. Bull-fifb, as Scalops, Muffels, Cockles, Lobfters, Crabs, Oifters, and Wilkes, exceeding good and very Ground mus. meat. But not to cloy you with particular rebear fall of fuch things as God and Nature bath bestowed Shellish. on these places, in comparison whereof, the most fertile part of all England is (of it selfe) but barren; wee went in our Light-bor (man from this lland to the Maine, right against this Iland some two miles off, where comming ashoare, wee stood a while like men ranified at the beautie and delicacy of this sweet The exceeding off, where comming allower, wee freed a white the men ranged at the beastire and activaty of two meets. In executing flee, for befold ainers clear class of field meter (wheree we as we not a). Medowns very large, beausy of the and full of greene graffe; cause the most woods places (I flowly early of fisch at I faw) doe grown for time Linds, and find for greene graffe; cause, fourther the most woods places (I flowly early of fisch at I faw) doe grown for the state that the class of the state of and comming up to them, at first they expressed some feare; but being emboldned by our courteous vsage, and some trisles which we game them, they followed us to a necke of Land, which wee imagined had beene fewred from the Mayne; but finding st otherwise, wee perceined abroad Harbour or Riners mouth, A broad Riner. which came up into the Mayne : and becanse the day was farre spent, we were forced to returne to the I. land from whence we came, leasing the Disconery of this Harbour, for a time of better lessure. Of A good Har-10 the goadnesse of which Harbour, as also of many others thereabouts, there is small doubt, con- bout. sidering that all the Hands, as also the Maine (where wee were) is all Rockie Grounds and broken

Now the next day, wee determined to fortifie our felues in a little plot of ground in the middest of the Lake abone mentioned, where wee built an honse, and concred it with sedge, which grew about this Lake in great abundance; in building whereof, wee spent three weekes and more: but the second day after our comming from the Maine, wee efficed eleven Canous or Boats, with fifty Indians in them, 11. Canoas comming toward us from this part of the Maine, where wee two dayes before landed: and being loath with so indicate they should discouer our fortification, wee went out into the Sea side to meete them; and comming some in them. what neere them, they all fate downe upon the stones, calling aloud to us (as wee rightly ghessed) to doe the like, a little distance from them : basing fate a while in this order, Captaine Golinold willed mee

to goe unto them; to fee what countenance they would make; but as foone as I came up unto them, one of them, to whom I had given a Knife two dayes before in the Maine, knew mee (whom I also very well remembred) and failing upon me, spake somewhat unto their Lord or Captaine, which sate in the midst Their Captains of them, who prefently rose up and tooks a large Bener skinne from one that stood about him, and gane

o flav bru-

CHAP.II.

it unto me, which I requited for that time the best I could: but I, pointing towards captaine Gofnold. made fignes unto him, that hee was our Captaine, and defirom to bee his friend, and enter league with bim, which (as I perceived) be understood, and made figures of iny: whereupon Captaine Gosnold. with sherest of his companie, being twenty in all, came up unto them; and after many signes of gratulations (Captaine Golnold presenting their Lord with certaine trifles which they wondred at, and highly effec. med) wee became very great friends, and fent for meat abourd our Shalop, and game them fuch meater as wee had then ready dreffed, whereof they misliked nothing but our Mustard, whereat they made many a soure face. While wee were thus merrie, one of them had conneighed a Target of ours into one of their a jours face. It miss were were some merits, one of their canons, which were suffered, onely to true whether they were in subjection to this Lord, to whom we made Genes (by Shewing him another of the same likenesse, and pointing to the Canoa) what one of his com- to name had done: who suddenly expressed some feare, and speaking angerly to one about him (as wee perceimed by his countenance) canfed it presently to be brought backe againe. So the rest of the day wee thent in trading with them for Fures, which are Beaners, Luzernes, Marterns, Otters, Wilde-cat skinnes, very large and deepe Furre, blacke Foxes, Conie skinnes, of the colour of our Hares, but somewhat leste. Deere skinnes very large, Seale skinnes, and other beafts skinnes to us unknowne.

They have also great store of Copper , some very red, and some of a paler colour ; none of them but have Chaines, Eare-rings, or Collars of this metall: they bead some of their Arrowes berewith much like our broad Arrow heads, very workmanly made. Their Chaines are many hollow pieces semented

Red Copper in abundance. Chaines.

Scuerall fores

Furres.

together, each piece of the bignesse of one of our reeds, a singer in length, ten or twelve of them toge. ther on a string, which they weare about their neckes; their Collars they weare about their bodies like 20 Collars. Bandelieres a bandfull broad, all bollow pieces, like the other, but somewhat (horter, foure hundred pieces Drinking cups in a Collar, very fine and enenty fet together. Besides these, they have large drinking Cups made like Sculls, and other thinne plates of Copper, made much like our Boare-freare blades, all which ther lo little of Copperesteeme, as they offered their fairest Collars and Chaines for a Knife, or such like trifte, but wee seemed little tores and it; yet I was defirous to understand where they had such store of this mettall, and made liones to one of them (with whom I was very familiar) who taking a piece of copper in his hand, made a hole Mines of with bis finger in the ground, and withall pointed to the Maine from whence they came. They fire fire Copper. Mineral Bones in this manner; enery one carrieth about him in a Purse of tend Leather, a Minerall stone (which I take to be their Copper) and with a flat Emerie stone (wherewith Glasiers cut glasse, and Cutlers glass blades) tred fast to the end of alittle flicke, gently bee friketh upon the Minerall flone, and within a ftroke or 30 two, a harke falleth upon a piece of Touch-wood (much like our Spange in England) and with the least parke he maketh a fire presently. Wee had also of their Flaxe, wherewith they make many strings and Flaxe. cords, but it is not fo bright of colour as ours in England : I amperfueded they have flore growing opon the Maine, at alfo Mines, and many other rich commodities, which we, wanting both time and meanes could not possibly discouer. Thus they continued with vs three dayes, enery night retiring themselves to the furthermost part of our llund two or three miles from our Fort: but the fourth day they returned to the Maine, pointing fine or fixe times to the Sunne, and once to the Maine, which we understood, that within fine or fixe dayes they would come from the Maine to us againe: but being in their Canoas a little from the shoare, they made buge cries and shouts of soy unto us, and wee with our Trumpet and Cornet, and casting up our 40 caps into the aire, made them the best farewell wee could: yet fixe or seven of them remayned with ve behinde, bearing us companie enery day in the Woods, and beloed us to cut and carrie our Sassafras, and others that we have seene; so for shape of body and louely famour, I thinke they excell all the people of eye-browes and baire blacke, which they weare long, tyed up behinde in knots, whereon they pricke feathers of fowles, in fastion of a Crownet: some of them are blacke thinne bearded; they make beards of the haire of beafts: and one of them offered a beard of their making to one of our Saylers, for his that and close about their neckes. They pronounce our Language with great facilitie; for one of them one day jutting by mee, upon occasion l' spake smiling to him these words: How now, firrha, are you so

fawcy with my Tobacco ? which words (without any further repetition) be suddenly spake fo plame Indians apt for Some of them lay abourd our (hip. These people as they are exceeding curteous, gentle of disposition, and well conditioned, excelling all fervice. Saffafras. A goodly peo America; of stature much higher than wee; of complexion or colour, much like a darke Oline; their good condi-

grew on bu face, which because it was of a red colour, they indeed to be none of his owne. They are quicke 50 eyed, and stedfast in their lookes, fearelesse of others barmes, as intending none themselnes; some of the Their apparell. meaner fort ginen to filebing, which the very name of Sausges (not weighing their ignorance in good or enill) may easily excuse: their garments are of Deere skinnes, and some of them weare Furres round and distinctly, as if hee had beene a long Scholer in the Language. Many other such trials wee had, Their women which are here needlesse to repeat. Their women (such as wee san) which were but three in all, were but lowe of stature, their eye-browes, haire, apparell, and manuer of wearing, like to the men, fat, and very well-fanoured, and much delighted in our companie; the men are very dutifull to-60 wards them. And truly, the wholfomnesse and temperature of this Climate, doth not onely argue this people to be answerable to this description, but also of a perfect constitution of body, active strong, health-The goodnesse full, and very wisty, as the fundry toyes of theirs cunningly wrought, may easily witnesse.

of the Climate For the agreeing of thu Climate with vs (I fpeake of my felfe, and fo I may infily doe for the rest of our companie) that we found our health and strength all the while we remayned there, so to renew and encrease, as notwithstanding our diet and lodging was mone of the best, yet not one of our companie (God be thanked) felt the least grudging or inclination to any disease or sicknesse, but were much fatter, and in better bealth than when we went out of England : but after our Barke had saken in fo much Sastafras. Cedar, Furres, Shinnes, and other commodities, at were thought connenient; some of our companie that had promifed Captaine Gosnold to stay , having nothing but a saving voyage in their mindes. made our companie of Inhabitants (which was small enough before) much smaller ; so as Captaine Gosnola seeing his whole strength to consist but of twelve men, and they but meanly prouided , determined to returne for England, leaning this lland (which be called Elizabeths lland) with Their returne, en as many true forrowfull eyes, as were before delirous to fee it. So the eighteenth of Inne, being

Friday, we weighed, and with indifferent faire winde and weather came to anchor the three and twentieth of luly, being also Priday (in all, bare fine weekes) before Exmouth.

Your Lordships to command. IOHN BRERETON.

A briefe Note of fuch commodities as we faw in the Countrie, notwithstanding our small time of stay.

Rees. Saffafras trees, the roots whereof at three fhillings the pound are three hundred thirty 10 I fixe pound the tunne. Cedars tall and ftraight, in great abundance; Cypres trees, Oakes, Wal-nut trees great ftore, Elmes, Beech, Hollie, Halle-nut trees, Cherrie trees, Cotton trees, and other fruit-trees to vs vnknowne. The finder of our Saffafras in these parts, was one Maiter Robert Meriton.

Fowles, Engles, Hernstiawes, Cranes, Bitters, Mallards, Teales, Geefe, Pengwins, Ofpreis and Hawkes, Crowes, Rauens, Mewes, Doues, Sea-pies, Black-birds with carnation wings. Beaffs. Deere in great flore, very great and large; Beares, Luzernes, blacke Foxes, Beauers, Otters, Wilde-cats very large and great, Dogs like Foxes, blacke and sharpe noted; Conies. Fruits, Plants, and Herbes. Tabacco, excellent tweet and ftrong; Vines more plenty than in France, Ground-nuts, good meate and alto medicinable; Strawberries, Raip-berries, Goofeberries, Hurtleberries, Peafe growing naturally, Flaxe, Iris Florentina, whereof Apothecaries make fweet balls; Sorrell, and many other herbes wherewith they made Sallets.

Fibes. Whales, Tortoifes, both on Land and Sea; Seales Cods, Mackerell, Breames, Herrines, Thornbacke, Hakes, Rock-fish, Dog-fish, Lobsters, Crabbes, Mussels, Wilkes, Cockles, Scallops, Oviters.

Snakes foure foot in length, and fixe Inches about, which the Indians cate for dainty meate, the skinnes whereof they vie for girdles.

Colours to die with, red, white, and blacke.

courfe may come to light.

Messals, and Stones. Copper in great abundance, Emerie stones, for Glasiers and Cutlers, Alabafter very white, Stones glittering and flining like Minerall itones; Stones of a blue met-P talline colour, which we take to bee Steele oare; Stones of all fores for buildings; Clay, red and white, which may proue good Terra Sigillata.

A briefe Note of the sending another Barque this present yeere 1602. by Sir WALTER RALEIGH, for the fearching out of his Colonie in Virginia.

C Annel Mace of Weimonth, a very fufficient Mariner, an honell fober man, who had beene at Orginia twice before, was employed thither by Sir Walter Raleigh, to finde those people which were left there in the yeere 1587. To whole fuccour he hath fent fine feuerall times at his owne charges. The parties by him fet forth, performed nothing; some of them following their owne profit elsewhere; others returning with friuolous allegations. At this last time, to anoide all excuse, hee bought a Barke, and hired all the companie for wages by the moneth : who departing from Weimouth in March lait, 1602, fell fortie leagues to the South-westward of Hataraske, in 24, degrees or thereabout; and having there spent a moneth; when they came along the coast to seeke the people, they did it not, pretending that the extremitie of weather, and losse of some principall ground-tackle, forced and seared them from searching the Port of Hataraske, to which they were fent. From that place where they abode, they brought Saffa-60 fras, Radix Chine, or the China Root, Beniamin, Caffia lignes and a rind of a tree more ilrong than any Spice as yet vnknowne, with divers other commodities, which hereafter in a larger dil-

CHAP.

CHAP. XII.

A Voyage fet out from the Citie of Bristoll at the charge of the chiefest Merchants and inhabitants of the faid Citie with a small Ship and a Barke for the discourie of the North part of Virginia, in the yeere 1603. under the command of me MARTIN PRINGE.

Pon many probable and reasonable inducements, vsed vnto sundry of the chiefest 10 Marchants of Brisloth by Maller Richard Habinet Probandam of Sciences fimes the Cathedrall Church of the faid Citie, after diners meetings and due confulcation they resolved to set forth a Voyage for the farther Discouerie of the North part of Unginia. And first they sent the said Master Hablust accompanied with one Matter lobn Angell, and Matter Robert Salters (which had beene in the faid Discouerie the yeere before with Captaine Bartholemew Gosnold) to obtaine permissilineth neither on of Sir Walter Raleigh (which had a most ample Patent of all those parts from Queene Elizais hiszcale beth) to entermeddle and deale in that action. Leave being obtained of him under his hand and dead to this now a Minfter Seale, they speedily prepared a small ship called the Speed-well in burthen about fiftie tunnes. and bath both manning the same with some thirtie men and Boyes, wherein went for Master and chiefe Com- 28 mander in the Voyage one Martin Pring, a man very sufficient for his place, and Famund lones his writing to mee tellified his at- Mate, and Robert Salterne about mentioned, as their chiefe Agent, with a Barke called the Diffection to Vir. couerer, of fix and twentie tunnes or thereabout, wherein went for Mafter William Browne, and Samuell Kirkland his Mate, both good and skilfull Mariners, being thirteene men anda Boy in gin:a. M.Pring whose all in that Barke. The aforelaid thip and Barke were plentifully victualled for eight monethes, Voyage to the Est Indies are and turnished with slight Merchandizes thought fit to trade with the people of the Country, as in the former Hars of divers colours, greene, blue and yellow, apparell of coarie Kerfie and Canualle readie made, Stockings and Shooes, Sawes, Pick-axes, Spades and Shouels, Axes, Hatchets, Hookes, Knucs, Sizzers, Hammers, Nailes, Chissels, Fish-hookes, Bels, Beades, Bugles, Looking-glasses Thimbles, Pinnes, Needles, Threed, and such like. They set faile from Kingrode the twentieth 30 day of March.

April 10, 1603.

we rowed up ten or twelue miles.

M. Salterne vet

We fet faile from Milford Hanen (where the winds had flayed vs a fortnight, in which frace we heard of Queene Elizabeths death) the tenth of Aprill 1603. In our course we passed by the Iles of the Agores, had first fight of the Poke, and afterward of the lland of Cherno and Flores, and after we had runne some fine hundred leagues, we fell with a multitude of small flands on the of June, which Ilands wee North Coast of Virginia, in the latitude of 43 . degrees, the They discouer found very pleasant to behold, a Jorned with goodly graffe and fundry forts of Trees, as Cedars, Spruce, Pines, and Firre-trees. Heere wee found an excellent fishing for Cods, which are better many linds. then those of New-found-land, and withall we saw good and Rockie ground fit to drie them vp-Good fifting on : also we fee no reason to the contrary, but that Salt may bee made in thele parts, a matter of 40 no small importance. We sayled to the South-west end of these Ilands, and there rode with our ships under one of the greatest. One of them we named Foxe Iland, because we found those kind of beafts thereon. So passing through the rest with our Boates to the mayne Land, which lieth for a good space North-east and South-west, we found very tale riding among them, in fixe, seuen, eight , ten and twelue fathomes. At length comming to the Mayne in the latitude of 43. degrees and an halfe, we ranged the same to the South-west. In which course we found foure Inlets, the most Easterly whereof was barred at the mouth, but having passed over the barre, wee ranne vp into it fine miles, and for a certaine space found very good dep h, and comming out againe, as we failed South-weltward, wee lighted vpon two other Inlets, which vpon our learch we found to pierce no: farre into the Land, the fourth and most Westerly was the best, which 53 place.

In all their places we found no people, but fignes of fires where they had beene. Howbeit we beheld very goodly Groues and Woods replenished with tall Okes, Beeches, Pine-trees, Firre-trees, Haiels, Wich-haiels and Maples. We faw here also fundry forts of Beafts, as Stags, Deere, Beares, Wolues, Foxes, Lufernes, and Dogges with sharpe nofes. But meeting with no Saliatras, we left these places with all the forelaid Hands, shaping our course for Sanage Rocks, discouered the yeere before by Captaine Gofnold, where going upon the Mayne we found people, with whom we had no long convertation, because here also we could find no Sassafras. Departing hence webare into that great Gulfe which Captaine Gofnold ouer-shot the yeere before coasting and finding people on the North fide thereof. Not yet fatisfied in our expectation, we left them 60 and failed ouer, and came to an Anchor on the South fide in the latitude of 41. degrees and odde minutes: where we went on Land in a certaine Bay, which we called Whisfor Bay, by the name of the Worshipfull Master Iohn Whitfon then Maior of the Citie of Brifost, and one of the chiefe Aduenturers, and finding a pleasant Hill thereunto adiovning, wee called it Mount Aldworth, Sautge Rocke.

for Master Robert Aldworths sake a chiefe furtherer of the Voyage, aswell with his Purie as with his trauell. Here we had sufficient quantitie of Sassafras. At our going on thore, vpon view of the people and fight of the place, wee thought it conuenient to make a small baricado to keepe diligent watch and ward in, for the aduertizement and forcour of our men, while they should worke in the Woods. During our abode on shore, the The people people of the Countrey came to our men sometimes ten, twentie, fortie or threescore, and at one vifit them, rime one hundred and twentie at once. We vied them kindly, and gaue them divers forts of our meanest Merchandize. They did eat Pease and Beanes with our men. Their owne victuals were most of fish.

mote of annie to whole homely Musicke The Sameet they tooke great delight, and would give him many things, as Tobacco, Tobacco-pipes, Snakes take great deskinnes of fixe foot long, which they vie for Girdles, Fawnes skinnes, and fuch like, and dan-light in mult ke ced twentie in a Ring, and the Gitterne in the middest of them, ving many Sauge gestures, finging Ie, Ia, Ia, Ia, Ia, Ia: him that first brake the ring, the rest would knocke and cry out vpon. Dances. Some few of them had places of Braffe a foot long, and halfe a foote broad before their breafts. Their weapons are Bowes of fine or fixe foot long of Wich-hafell, painted blacke and yellow, Weapons the ftrings of three twifts of finewes, bigger then our Bow-ftrings. Their Arrowes are of a yard and an handfull long not made of Reeds, out of a fine light wood very smooth and round with three long and deepe blacke feathers of some Eagle, Vulture, or Kite, as closely fastened with 20 some binding matter, as any Fletcher of ours can glue them on. Their Quiners are full a vard lone, made of long dried Rushes wrought about two handfuls broad aboue, and one handfull beneath with prettie workes and compartiments, Diamant wife of red and other colours. We carried with vs from Bristoll two excellent Mastines, of whom the Indians were more a. The great vie fraid, then of twentie of our men. One of these Mastines would carrie a halfe Pike in his mouth. And one Mafter Thomas Bridges a Gentleman of our company accompanied only with one of these Dogs, and passed fixe miles alone in the Countrey having lost his fellowes, and returned fafely. And when we would be rid of the Sauages company wee would let loofe the Massiues, and saddenly with out-cryes they would slee away. These people in colour are inclined to a swart, tawnie, or Chestnut colour, not by nature but accidentally, and doe weare their haire brayded in foure parts, and truffed vp about their heads with a small knot behind : in which haire of theirs they flicke many feathers and toyes for brauerie and pleasure. They couer their Ornaments, prinities only with a piece of leather drawne betwixt their twifts and fastened to their Girdles behind and before : whereunto they hang their bags of Tobacco. They feeme to bee fomewhat icalous of their women, for we faw not past two of them, who weare Aprons of Leather skins before them downe to the knees, and a Beares skinne like an Irifh Mantle ouer one shoulder. The men are of stature somewhat taller then our ordinary people, strong, swift, well proportioned, and given to treacherie, as in the end we perceived.

Their Boats, whereof we brought one to Bristoll, were in proportion like a Wherrie of the River Thefathion of of Thames, seuenteene footlong and soure foot broad, made of the Barke of a Birch-tree, farre their Boats, exceeding in bigneffe those of England: it was fowed together with strong and tough Oziers or twigs, and the feames couered ouer with Rozen or Turpentine little inferiour in fweetneffe to Excellentfweet Frankincense, as we made triall by burning a little thereof on the coales at fundry times after Rozen and our comming home: it was also open like a Wherrie, and sharpe at both ends, saving that the beake was a little bending roundly vpward. And though it carried nine men standing vpright, yet it weighed not at the most aboue fixtie pounds in weight, a thing almost incredible in regard of the largenesse and capacitie thereof. Their Oares were flat at the end like an Ouen peele, made of Ash or Maple very light and strong, about two yards long, wherewith they row very (wiftly : Paffing vp a River we faw certaine Cottages together, abandoned by the Sauages, and not farre off we beheld their Gardens and one among the rest of an Acre of ground , and in Their Gardens the same was sowne Tobacco, Pompions, Cowcumbers and such like; and some of the people Corne and had Maiz or Indian Wheate among them. In the fields we found wild Peafe, Strawberries very plants. faire and bigge, Goole-berries, Raipices, Hurts, and other wild fruits.

Hauing spent three Weekes upon the Coast before we came to this place where we meant to flay& take in our lading, according to our instructions given vs in charge before our setting forth, we pared and digged up the Earth with shouels, and lowed Wheate, Barley, Oates, Pease, and fundry forts of Garden Seeds, which for the time of our abode there, being about feuen Weeks, although they were late fowne, came up very well, giving certaine testimonie of the goodnesse of the Climate and of the Soyle. And it feemeth that Oade, Hempe, Flaxe, Rape-feed and fuch like which require a rich and fat ground, would prosper excellently in these parts. For in divers places here we found graffe about knee deepe.

As for Trees the Country yeeldeth Saffafras a plant of fourreigne vertue for the French Poxe, and as some of late have learnedly written good against the Plague and many other Maladies; Vines, Cedars, Okes, Ashes, Beeches, Birch trees, Cherie trees bearing fruit whereof wee did eate, Hafels, Wich-hafels, the best wood of all other to make Sope-ashes withall, Walnut-trees, Maples, Maples, holy to make Bird-lime with, and a kinde of tree bearing a fruit like a small red Pearsplum with a crowne or knop on the top (a plant whereof carefully wrapped vp in earth, Mafter Robert Salterne brought to Briffoll.) We found also low trees bearing faire Cheries. There were likewife a white kind of Plums which were not growne to their perfect ripeneffe. With die uers other forts of trees to vs vaknowne.

The Beafts here are Stags, fallow Deere in abundance, Beares, Wolues, Foxes, Lufernes, and (iome fay) Tygres, Porcupines, and Dogges with sharpe and long noses, with many other forts of wild beafts, whose Cales and Furres being hereafter purchased by exchange may yeeld no smal gaine to vs. Since as we are certainly informed, the Frenchmen brought from Canada the value of thirtie thouland Crownes in the yeere 1 604. almost in Beuers and Otters skinnes only. The 12 most vivall Fowles are Eagles, Vultures, Hawkes, Cranes, Herons, Crowes, Gulls, and great store of other River and Sea-fowles. And as the Land is full of Gods good bleffings, fo is the Seareplenished with great abundance of excellent fish, as Cods sufficient to lade many ships, which we found upon the Coaft in the moneth of June, Seales to make Oile withall, Mullets, Turbuts, Mackerels, Herrings, Crabs, Lobsters, Creuises, and Muscles with ragged Pearles in them. By the end of July we had laded our small Barke called the Discouerer, with as much Sassafras as we thought sufficient, and sent her home into England before, to give some speedie con-

Barke fent

ten; ment to the Aduenturers : who arrived fafely in Kingrode aboue a fortnight before vs. After their departure we so bestirred our selues, that our shippe also had gotten in her lading, during which time there fell out this accident. On a day about noone tide while our men which vied an to cut downe Sassafras in the Woods were asseepe, as they vied to doe for two houres in the heat Danger of the of the day, there came downe about feuen tore Sauages armed with their Bowes and Arrowes, and enuironed our House or Barricado, wherein were toure of our men alone with their Muskets to keepe Centinell, whom they fought to have come downe vnto them, which they vtterly refuted, and stood vpon their guard. Our Master likewise being very carefull and circumspect having not past two with him in the shippe put the same in the best desence he could , lest they should have invaded the same, and cauted a piece of great Ordnance to bee shot off, to give terrour to the Indians, and warning to our men which were fast asleepe in the Woods: at the noyse of which Peece they were a little awaked, and beganne a little to call for Foole and Gallot, their great and fearefull Mastines, and full quietly laid themselues downe againe, but beeing 30 quickned vp eftsoones againe with a second shot they rowsed vp themselues, betooke them to their weapons and with their Mastines, great Foole with an halfe Pike in his mouth drew downe to their thip : whom when the Indians beheld afarre off, with the Maffine which they most feared, in diffembling manner they turned all to a ieft and sport, and departed away in friendly manner : yet not long after, euen the day before our departure, they fet fire on the Woods where wee wrought, which wee did behold to burne for a mile space, and the very same day that wee weighed Anchor, they came downe to the shoare in gleater number, to wit, very neere two hundred by our estimation, and some of them came in their Boates to our ship, and would have had vs come in againe : but we fent them backe, and would none of their entertainment.

About the eighth or minth of August, wee left this excellent Hauen at the entrance whereof 40 we found twentie fathomes water, and rode at our case in leuen fathomes being Land-locked, the Hauen winding in compasse like the shell of a Snaile, and it is in latitude of one and forty degrees and five and twentie minutes. This by the way is not to be forgotten, that our Captaine fell fo much to the Northward because he would find high grounds, where commonly the best Hauens are: which also fell out to his expectation. We also observed that we could find no Sassafias but in landie ground. In our returne we brought our felues into the latitude of eight and thirtie degrees about the Acres for certaine causes, and within fine weekes space came from our Port of Virginia, into the Soundings of England, but there being long encountred with Easterly winds, we came at length into Kongrade, the fecond of October 1603. The Difcouerer was out fine moneths and an halfe. The 30 Speedwell was out fixe moneths upon the Voyage.

A Relation of the Voyage made to Virginia, in the Elizabeth of London, a Barke of fiftie tunnes by Captaine BARTHOLOMEW GILBERT, in the yeere 1603. Written by Master THOMAS CANNER a Gentleman of Bernards Inne his companion in the same Voyage.

VPon Wednesday in Easter weeke, the seuenteenth of Aprill after, I had taken my leaue of fome few of my louing and deere friends in Bernards Inne, I rode toward Southampton, there to bespeake Bisket and some other proution for our Barke, wherein Master Bartholomen Gibert went as Captaine, which had beene in Frema the yeere before with Captaine Bartholomen Gofnold, After our businesse was dispatched here, wee carae into Plimmonth, from whence wee out forth the tenth of May. And the fix and twentieth of the same, we were in the latitude of 22. degrees, hoping to have had fight of the Ile of Madera, whereof we miffed, in which course we met with two or three English men of watre, The first of Iune, we were in the latitude of 27. degrees, and haled ouer toward the llands.

of the Well Indies, and the fifteenth of this moneth toward night wee faw Land. Mafter Gilbert and the Master Henrie Suite dwelling within the Iron Gate of the Towre of London, tooke it to be the Bermudae : being very neere the shore they founded many times and had no ground, at the last they found good ground in fourteene or fifteene fathomes. There weecast Anchor-In To the morning we weighed, and founded still as we trended by the shoare : but after wee were past a Cables length from our Road, we had no Land againe in forty or fifty fathomes : we kept flill by the shore not yet being certaine what Iland it was. The sixteenth in the morning, wee spied the people comming from the shore, who when they came neere, cried out for barter or trade: when they came close aboord, they made fignes and cried out to fee our colours, which we prefantly put forth in the maine top, and told them we were Ingleses, Amigos, and Hermanos, that is, Englishmen, their friends and brothers. Afloone as they understood we were Englishmen, they were bolder to come neere: we threw them a Rope, and one came aboord vs: wee traded with them for some Tobacco, Pine-apples, Plantanes, Pompions and such things as they had : wee saue them Bugles, Kniues, Whistles, and fuch toyes. Here we kept close by the shore. When this 30 Canoa had traded with vs, and vttered all they had and drunke of our Beere, beeing kindly vied they departed; and then prefently after diuces Canoas came, we traded and vied them as the first. They trade as One of them told vs that Iland was Santa Lucia, We bestowed all that forenoone shaking in the Santa Lucia. wind (for we had no ground to Anchor) neere the shore to trade with them. Then wee set our counfe for Saint Vincent, but finding a current against vs and the wind very scant, we doubted we should not fetch it, and that if we did, peraduenture we might bee put to the leeward of Dominice, and to confequently of Menis or Mienes; for which Iland we were specially bound for to cut Lignum vita, in the fame. Therefore Mafter Gilbert thought good to let Saint Vincent alone. although in it is the best Tobacco of all the Hands, yet in the end hee put roomer for Dominica. Dominica. whereof we had light the sementeenth of June, and came close to the shore; and presently one 30 Canoa came aboord, as at Santa Lucia, being fent with two men belike to discouer vs, and to see what entertainment they should have, we vied them kinely and so dismissed them. There came more full of men, with divers of their commodities. The nineteenth in the morning being Sunday, we anchored in a good Road at Menis, and af- Ottomis. ter went on shore to feeke Lignam vitz, Master Gibert, with the Master and divers of the company fought farre into the Woods, but found none but one little Tree, and here and there where one had bin cut : fo we were in doubs to find enough heere to load our ship, a just plague vnto vs for prophaning the Sabbath in trauelling about our worldly bufineffe, when there was no neceffitie. This day in the Euening some went out with the Boate vnto the shore, and brought on boord a Tortoyle fo big that foure men could not get her into the Boate but tied her fast by one Great Tor-Dege water the Boat, and fo towed her to the ship, when they had her by the ship, it was no easie toyle.

matter to get her on boord,

young one.

The next day we went on thore agains to fearch another part of the wood for Lignum vita: Lignum vita. and then God be thanked we found enough. This day at night we opened our Tortoyle, which had in her about 500. Egges, excellent sweet meate, and so is all the whole fish. Vpon Tuefday in the morning we went all on thore fauing the Carpenter and Thomas , and Matter Gilberts man to fell wood, and this day we felled good frore. All the reft of this moneth and three dayes more we continued here every day labouring fore, first in fawing downe the great trees, and fawing them againe into logs, portable out of the thicke wood to the Sea-shoare, so in the Boates, and so to the flup : where M. Gilbers his paines profited double as well in example as in worke, for hee 59 was neuer idle, but either fearthing out more trees, or fetching drinke for the Labourers, or doing one thing or other : fo that in this just fortnight that wee stayed here, wee had gotten on boord fome twenty tuns. Within a few dayes after the Tortoy le was eaten God fent vs another. One of these fishes were sufficient meat for twentie men for three or foure dayes if it could bee prelerned, but in that Climate no falting can preferue it about two dayes, hardly to long. Now the wood growing thinne, and hardly to be found on this lland, he thought it best to stay no longer here, but to goe for Virginia, to learch for better ftore. And fo voon Sunday the third of July in the afternoone we weighed Anchor, and failed North-west and by North, and that night passed by Saint Christopher, and another little Hand. Munday the fourth in the morning we had fight of S. Christopher. the lland, we went into the Woods to fearch for Lionum vite, but found none but one tree, which he cut and went on boord, we fought also for fresh water, but found none : At Euening went on Abundance of shore into the bottome of the Bay to dray the Net; and there we gat good store of fine iresh fish, Tortoyies. and much more, enough to have laden our Boat we should have gotten, if at every draught we had not had in the Net a Tortoyle, which fill brak through and so carried away the fifth with them. At one draught among the reft we had two in the Net, a young one and an old on : the Net held the

CHAP. 12. Store of Munition. Dangerous Rockes, Miraculous deliuerance.

1650

They diffme

Wee weighed and went through betweene the two Hands into the mayne Ocean, toward our long deired Countrey Unginia, distant three hundred and fiftie leagues from vs. Wee layled North North-west.

The feuenth, we ran ftill North-west and North and by West. The eight, weekept the same course. The ninth, we kept still the same course. The winde beganne to vere some thing to the Southward, which had beene conftant still, from the Hands of the Canaries, vnto the Hands of The Westerne the West Indies. And now began the winde to draw towards the West, and then is it as conwinds begin. frant there. The reason I deferre to longer confideration. The current setteth out of the Gulfe of Mexico, and from the mayne shore. Sunday the tenth, we kept still the same course, and had now but a small gale almost becalmed. In The eleventh, we continued the same course with the same small gale we went North. Tuesday the twelfth we kept the same courie, if any at all, for, for the most part we were becalmed.

Wednefday the thirteenth, the calme continued, the Sunne being extremely hot in the calme. Thursday the fourteenth, the calme continued as hot as before. These dayes we ayred our Newland, fish called Poore lobn, which proued ill done. For after it was ayred, it rotted the sooner. being burnt in the fame. On Friday the fifteenth, God fent vs a reasonable gale. The fixteenth and feuenteenth, the calme came againe. Munday, we had a good gale, and went North and by West, and North North-west. The nineteenth, twentieth, and one and twentieth , we had an excellent gale, and ranne North North-west. Then we cast out the Lead and looked out for land, but found no ground nor faw no land, and therefore we much doubted that the current had fet vs 20 very farre to the leeward of the place which wee were bound for, being the Chefepian Bay: but Ground in 30. that could not be knowne till it pleated God to bring vs to land. In the afternoone about fixe of the clocke we cast out the Lead againe, and had ground in thirtie fathomes, whereof we were glad and thanked God, knowing we could not be farre from land. Saturday the three and twentieth in the morning, about eight of the clocke wee law land in the height of 40, degrees and odde minutes, very fine low land, appearing farre off to bee full of tall Trees, and a fine tandie shoare, but a great siege : we saw no Harbour, and therefore coasted along to feeke one to the Northward, the wind being at West.

Sunday the foure and twentieth, the wind being about the North-east we beat hard to fetch An Headlind, an Head-land, where we thought we faw an Harbour : but when we came up with it, weeper- 20 ceiued it was none, and all our labour loft. And therefore the wind beeing now more full in our teeth at the North-east, wee considered it were better to pue roome, so that if the winde should fland, then we should fetch the Bay of Chefepian, which Master Gilbert fo much thirsted after, to feeke out the people for Sir Walter Raleigh lete neere those parts in the yeare 1587, if not, perhaps we might find some Road or Harbour in the way to take in some fresh water : for now wee had none aboord.

On Munday the fine and twentieth of July at night wee came neere the mouth of the Bay : the cheffin but the wind blew to fore, and the Sea was to high, that the Mafter durft not put in that night into the Sea : and fo continued next day. On Wednesday the seven and twentieth, at night the winde came faire againe, and wee bare 40 againe for it all night, and the wind pretently turned againe. Thursday the eight and twentieth, confidering our extremitie for water and wood, victuals and beere likewtle confuming very falt, They departed we could no longer beate for it, and therefore ran roomer, determining for this time to feeke it

Ea@wardfrom the mouth of the Chefepioc grance of a Ri-

Captaine Gil-

Friday the nine and twentieth, being not farre from the shoare, which appeared vnto vsexceeding pleasant and full of goodly Trees, and with some shew of the entrance of a River, our Captaine Bartholomen Gilbert accompanied with Malter Thomas Canner a Gentleman of Bernards Inne, Richard Hareson the Mafters Mate, Henry Kenton our Chirurgion , and one Derricke a Dutchman, went on shore in the Boate from the ship which lay aboue a mile from the land, and with their weapons marched up into the Countrey, leaving two youths to keepe the Boate : but 50 shortly after the Indians fet wpon them, and one or two of them fell downe wounded in fight of pers and source more fline by our yong men that kept the Boat, which had much a doet of faue themselues and it. For some of the Indians roming downe to them, would have haled it on thore, which notwithstanding they faued, and with heavie hearts gat vnto the ship with the losse of their Captain and foure of their principall men. Thus being but eleven men and Boyes in all in the ship, though our want of water and wood were great, yet wee durst not adventure the loss of any more of our imall company in this place; Therefore our Master Henry Sute tooke his course home for England by the Ies of the Acores, and fell first with the Pike, and afterward entring into our Chanell, had first fight of Portland, and thence came up the River of Thames unto Raseliffe, about the end of September 1603. finding the Citie most grieuously infeded with a terrible plague.

CHAP. XIII.

Extracts of a Virginian Voyage made An. 1605. by Captaine GEORGE WAYMOVTH, in the Arch-angell. Set forth by the Right Honorable HENRY Earle of South-hampton, and the Lord THOMAS ARVNDEL, written by TAMES ROSIER.

Pon Easter day, the last of March, the winde comming at North North-east: a- March. bour fue of the clocke after none, we weighed anchor and put to Sea from the Eafter day wee Downes, [in the Name of God] being very well victualled, and furnished with put to See. Munition and all necessaries; our whole companie being nine and twenty perfons, of whom I date boldly lay, few Voyages have beene manned forth with better Sea-men energilly in respect of our few lands.

better Sea-men generally, in respect of our small number. Munday the thirteenth of May, about eleven of the clocke in the fore-noone, our Captaine judging we were not farrefrom Land, founded; and we had foft oze in an hundred and fixty fa- Sounding wee thome: at foure of the clocke after noone wee founded againe, and had the like oze in an hun-found ground, dred fa:home.

From ten a clocke that night till three a clocke in the morning, our Captain tooke in all Savles 20 and lay at hull, being defirous to fall with the Land in the day time, because it was an voknown Coalt, which it pleased God in his mercy to grant vs, otherwise furely we had runne our Shippe vpon the hidden Rockes, and perished all : for when we set sayle, we founded in an hundred fathom; and by eight a clocke, having not made about five or fixe leagues, our Captaine vpon a funden change of water, supposing verily he saw the sand : presently sounded, and had but fine May 14-Land fathome : much maruelling because wesaw no Land, he sent one to the top, who descried a whitilh fandy Cliffe, which bare West North-west about fixe leagues off: but comming neerer within three or foure leagues, we faw many breaches still never the Land. At last we espied a great breach ahead vs right along the shoare, into which, before we entred, our Captaine thought best to hoise out his Spip-boat and sound it : which if hee had not done, wee had there ended our 30 Voyage, together with our lines: for he bare up the Ship as neere as he could after the Boate, vntill Mafter (am his Mate being in the Boat, weffed and caffed to him to winde about and fland off, for in this breach he had very shoald water, two fathome vpon Rockes, and sometime they supposed they saw the Rocke within three or foure foot, whereon the Sea made a very high ftrong breach, which we might discerne (from the top) to rafine along as wee fayled by it, fixe or feuen leagues to the Southward : and we law no end thereof. Wherefore we were conftrained to put backe againe from the Land; and founding (the weather being faire) wee found our felues embayed with continual Shoalds and Rocks, in a most vincertaine ground; as by judge- A dangerous ment of our Captaine and whole companie, they had neuer knowne the like; from fine and fixe place of rocks farhome, at the next cast of the Lead wee should have fifteene and eighteene fathome all hard and shoulds.

4c Rocke ouer many which (by the vnipeakable goodnesse and mercy of God towards vs) wee palfed. For if we had bare in with it but the day before (which was exceeding tempeftuous) or in the night, we could by no meanes have escaped the danger. But God so bleffed vs, that we had weather and winde as faire as poore men could wish, in this diffreste, whereby we both perfectly differred enery breach, and with the winde were able to turne, where wee faw most hope of fatest passage. Thus we parted from the Land, which wee had not so much before defired : and at the first fight reloyced: as now wee all loyfully praised God, that it had pleased him so mirroloufly to deliuer vs from fo imminent danger of death before our eyes. Our Captaine Latitude 41. found himfelfe in the latitude of 41 degrees and an halfe. Here we found great store of fith, and degrees and

Lw many Whales, as we had done two or three dayes before.

Wee flood off that night and all the next day, being Wedneflay: but the winde ftill conti-So ming for many dayes betweene the points of South South-west and West South-west, so as we could not by any possible meanes make any way to the Southward in regard of our great want of water and Wood (which was now spent) wee much defired Land, and therefore fought for it, where the winde would bett tuffer vs to re reth our felges.

Thursday the fixteenth day of May, we stood directly in with the Land : and we much marwelled that we descried it not : wherein wee found our Sea Charts very falle laying our Land Sea-charts where none was, for though we bare in directly with it according to them: yet in almost fifty tale. leagues running we found none.

Friday the fenenteenth of May, about fixe a clocke at night, wee deferred Land, which bare 60 from vs North North-east: but because it blew a great gale of winde, the Sea very high and neere night, not fit to come vpon an vnknowne couft, our Captaine flood off till two of the clocke in the morning being Saturday and Whition Eie: then standing with it againe, wee de- Land descried. clocke in the morning being Saturday and Whitlon Ete: then nanding with reagaine, were designed in the gight a clocke in morning, bearing North-east from vs. It appeared a meane high made nelland. Land, as we after found it, being but an Iland of no great compasse: but I hope the most fortunate named this S.Georges liafid.

CHAP.

Great plenty of fifh.

Mountaines.

Voon Whitfunday wee came into an

Penteroft Har-

Clay.

Our Pinnace Lanched. Varietie of Wee fished.

The fraise of the Hands.

Trees. Turpentine plentifull, for that ever men discovered, as shall appeare by the sequell. About twelve a clocke that day, wee came to an anchor on the North tide of this Iland in forty fathome water, about a league from shoare. This Iland is woody, growne over with Firre, Birch, and Beech, as farre as we saw alone Our Captaine the shoare, and so likely to be within. On the Verge growe Gooseberries, Strawberries, wilde Peafe, and wilde Rose bushes. The fresh water iffued down the rocky Cliffes in many places : and much towle of fundry kindes breed vpon the shoare and Rockes. While wee were at shoare one men aboord with a few hookes got about thirty great Cod and Haddocke, which gaue ws a tafte of the great plenty of fish which we found afterward, wheresoeuer we went vpon the coast.

From hence we might discerne many Blands, and the maine Land, from the West South-west to the East North-east; and North North-east from vsa great way as it then feemed (and as we 10 the M ine and after found it) vp into the Maine, we might discerne very high Mountaines, although the Maine feemed but lowe Land, which gaue vs a hope, that it might pleafe God, to direct vs to the Difcourry of some good, although wee were driven by windes tarrefrom that place, whether both by our direction and delire, we euer intended to shape the course of our Voyage.

The next day being Whitfunday, because we rode too much open to the Sea, and windes, wee waved anchor about twelue a clocke, and came along to the other Ilands more adjoyning to the Maine, and in the Road directly with the Mountaines, about three leagues from the first Hand where we anchored. When we came neere vnto them (founding all along in a good depth)our Captaine manned his Ship-boat, and fent her before with Thomas Cam one of his Mates, whom he knew to be of good experience, to fearch and found about and between the Hands for a place 20 fafe for our ship to ride in. In the meane while we kept aloofe at Sea, having given order to them in the Boat, by a token to weffe in the ship if he found a convenient Harbour, which it pleased God to fend vs, farre beyond our expectation in a most fase birth, defended from all winders in an excellent depth of water for thips of any burthens in fix, feuen, eight, nine and ten fathome voon a clay oze, very tough, where is good moring, even on the Rocks vpon the Cliffefide.

We all with great admiration praised God, who had from so apparent danger miraculously delipered vs, and directed vs vpon this day (vpon which he fent the chiefe promifed Director of all goodnesse vnto his Apostles and Disciples)into such a place, wherof here before we reade none to goodnesse vato his Apolities and Direction, and then which neither our selves could wish, or Nature affoord more secure. In remembrance whereof, our Captaine named it Pentecost Harbour.

Whitfun Munday the twentieth day of May, by three a clocke in the morning, our Captaine caused the Shalop to be carried ashoare: where while some were busied about her, himselfe set others to worke in digging Wels to receive the water, which we found issuing downe out of the Land in many places, and rifing amidft the rocky Cliffes. In digging (amongft other things) we found in some places (and not deepe) clay ground, blue, red and white, to make Bricke or Tile, fit for building. This day our Pinnace was fitted together and lanched, in small time with two or three hookes were fifted fufficiently for our whole companie three dayes, with great Cod, Hadocke, and fome Thornbacke. Towards night we drew with a small Same of 20, fathom iust by the hoare, where we got about 30, very good Lobiters, many Rockfish, some Plaise, and other fmall fishes very good; and fishes called Lumpes, very pleasant to taste. And this wee generally 40 observed, that all the fish of what kind soever we tooke, were well fed, fat, and in tast very sweet.

Wednesday the two and twentieth of May, our Captaine went ashoare with our men, where wee felled and cut wood for our thips vie, cleanfed and fooured our Wells. Wee likewife digged a small plot of ground, wherein among some Garden feeds (which most the birds destroyed) we fet Peale and Barley, which in fixteene dayes grew eight inches, and so continued euery day growing more than halfe an inch: although this was but the crust of the ground, and farre inferiour to the mould we after found in the Maine,

All the next day we labored hard to make vp our wood, because our Captaine intended not to fore, or spend any more time in that of our Voyage. This day our Boat fished againe as before, because wee still were much retreshed with the fresh fish.

Friday the foure and twentieth of May, after we had made an end of cutting wood, and carrying some water aboord our ship. Our Captaine with sourteene that and Pike marched about, and thorow part of two of the Ilands, one of which we ghelfed to be foure or fine miles in compasse, and a mile broad. Along the shoare, and some space within where the wood hindereth not, growe plentifully, Rashberries, Gooseberries, Strawberries, Corane trees, Rose bushes, wilde Vines, Angelica a ioueraine herbe, many other fruits wee knew not. All within the Hands, growe wood of fundry forts, fome very great, and generally all tall : Beech, Birch, Alh, Maple, Spruce, Cherrie tree, Ewe, Oake great and firme, with fo fine graine and colour, as our Captaine, and men of best experience, had neuer seene the like. But the First trees great and small are most abundant, which 65 I name last, as not the least of excellent profit : for from it issuesh Turpentine in maruellous plenty, and so sweet as our Chirurgeon and others affirmed they neuer saw so good in England. Wee pulled off much Gumme congealed on the outfide of the Barke which gaue an odour like Frankincense. This would be a very great benefit for making Tarre and Pitch.

CHAP.13. A very fruitfull Hand, Furres and Skins, Good Tobacco. We staied the longer in this place, not onely because of our good Harbour (which is an excellent comfort) but also because every day we found the Hand, more and more to discover water his pleasant fruitfulnesse, inlomuch, as many of our company wished themselves settled here. Alfo our men found abundance of great Mussels among the Rockes; and in some of them ma- Peack. ny small Pearles. In one Mussell (which we drew vp in our Same) was found sourceene Pearles, whereof one was of pretty bignesse and orient, in another aboue fifty small Pearles; and if one had had a Dragge, no doubt we had found some of great value, seeing these did certainely shew that here they were bred: the shels within all glistering with mother of Pearle.

Thursday the thirtieth of May, the Captaine with thirteene departed in the Shallop, leauing

10 the Ship in a good harbour.

Divers Canoas of Sauages came to vs. The shape of their body is very proportionable, and Their shape of well countenanced, not very tall, nor bigge, but in flature like to vs; they paint their bodies body. with blacke, their faces some with red, some with blacke, and some with blew. Their closwhen olacke, then lates one thins, hanging downe to their knees before and behinde, made things. falt together vpon the shoulder with a leather string; some of them weare sleeues, some buskins of leather tewed very thin and foft. Some weare the haire of their skins outward, some inward; they have befides a peece of skin, which they binde about their waste, and betweene their legges to couer their prinities. They fuffer no haire to grow vpon their faces, but vpon their head very long and very blacke, which behinde they binde up with a string on a long round knot, some 20 of them have haire all curled naturally. They feemed all very civill and very merry, thewing tokens of much thankfulneffe for those things we gave them; which they expresse in their lan- Of good eakens of much thanktuintene to the things with the same of the same time the summe induse come ionitewina, ocyonic identification of the animatica.

good invention, quicke understanding, and ready capacity. Their Canoas are made of the barke of Beech, strengthned within with ribbes and hoopes of Their Canoas wood, in fo good falhion and with fuch excellent ingenious art, as our men that had beene often very artificially in the Indies, faid they farre exceeded any that ever they had seene. The chiefe of them told me by fignes, that they would goe fetch Furres and Skins, and pointed to be with vs againe by that time the Sunne should come somewhat beyond the midst of the firmament.

Animatical content is day we described our Pinnace returning towards vs. Our Captaine had About time discoured vp a great Ruer, trending all almost into the Maine, Vntill his reInfles letten. turne our Captaine left on shoare where they landed, in a path (which seemed to be frequented) shoare, a Pipe, a Brooch, and a Knife, thereby to know if the Sauzges had recourfe that way, because they could at that time see none of them, onely a Beast a farre of, which they thought to be

The next day being Saturday, and the first of June, wee traded with the Sauages all the fore. Wee gaded 2 Deere. noone upon the Shoare, where were eight and twenty Sauages, and because our Ship rode nigh, with the Sauswe were but fine or fixe, where for Kniues and other trifles, to the value of foure or fine shillings. we had forty good Skins, Beuers, Otter, and other which we knew not what to call them. Our trade being ended, many of them came aboord vs, and eare by our fire, and would be very merry 40 and bold, in regard of our kinde vlage of them. Our Captaine shewed them a strange thine.

which they wondered; His Sword and mine having beene touched with the Loadstone, tooke They wondered vo their Knife and held it falt when they plucked it away; and made their Knife turne being arthurffed of laid on a blocke : and giving their Knife a touch with his Sword, made that take vp a Needle, the Loadstone which they much marueiled at. This we did to cause them to imagine some great power in vs. and for that to love and feare vs.

When we went a Shoare to trade with them in one of their Canoas, I faw their Bowes and Arrowes, which in their fight I tooke vp and drew an Arrow in one of them, which I found Their Bowles to be of a reasonable strength, able to carry an Arrow fine or fix score strongly; and one of them tooke it and brew as we draw our Bowes, not like the Indians. Their Bowe is made of Beech in 50 falhion of our Bowes, but they want nocks, onely a string of leather put through a hole at one end, and made fait with a knot at the other. Their Arrowes are of a much greater fize then our and longer, feathered with three feathers tyed on, and nocked very artificially, headed with a long shanke bone of a Deere, made very sharpe, and some Iron heads, with two sangs in manner of a harping Iron. They have likewise Darts headed with sharpebone, one of which I darted Darts, among the Stones and it brake not. Thefe they vie very cunningly to kill Fish . Fowle,

They gaue vs the best welcome they could, spreading Deere skins for vs to sit on the ground Tobacco exby their fire, and gaue vs of their Tobacco in our Pipes, which was most excellent, and so gene- cellent the Sarally commended of vs all to be as good as any we ever tooke, being the simple Leafe without unger gave vs to any composition, very strong and of a pleasant sweete taste; they gave ve some to carry tocur Captaine, whom they called our Balhabe, neither did they require any thing for it; but we would receive nothing from them without remuneration. Here we faw their women, who flood behinde them, as defirous to fee vs, but not willing to Wefawthi: be feene, for before when focuer we came a Shoare, they retired into the woods; whether it Women were it regard of their owne naturall modesty being naked, or by the commanding islousie of their husbands, which we rather sulpected; for it hath beene an inclination noted alwayes generally in Sauages, wherefore we would by no meanes feeme to take any special notice of them. They were very well fauoured, low of stature, and exceeding fat; they had two little children very far, and of good countenance, which they loue tenderly, all naked, except their legges. which were couered with thin leather buskins, faitned with firaps to a Girdle about their walte. which they gird very itreight, and is decked round about with little round peeces of Copper. To these we gave Chaines, Bracelets, and other trifles, which the Savages seemed to accept with great kindneffe.

Acour comming away, we would have had those two that supped with vs to goe aboord and to fleepe, as they had promiled our Captaine; but it appeared their company would not fuffer them, whereat we might easily perceine they were much grieued : but not long after our denarture they came with three more to our Ship, figning to vs, if one of our Company would goe lye a Shoare with them, they would flay with vs. Our Captaine would command none : but Griffin, one of them we were to leave in the Countrey, by their agreement with my Lord the Riche Honorable Count Arundell (if it should be thought needefull or convenient) went with them in their Canoa; and three of them stayed aboutd vs. Whom our Captaine and whole Company very kindely vfed, himfelfe faw their lodging prouided, and them lodged in an old Saile vpon the Orlop, and because they most feared our Dogs, they were tyed vp whensoener any of them

Ceremonies of the Sauages

Griffin which lay on Shoare, reported vnto me their manner, and (as I may tearme them) the Ceremonies of their Idolatry, which they performe thus. One among them (the eldeft of the company as he indeed) rifeth right up, the rest fitting still, and todainely cryed, Bowh, wanth; then the women fall downe, and lye vpon the ground, and the men altogether answering the fame, fall a stamping round about with both feete as hard as they can, making the ground shake, with fundry loud outcries, and change of voyce and found; many take the fire thickes and thrust them into the earth, and then relt filent a while, of a fudden beginning as before, they looke round about, as though they expected the comming of fomething (as lice verily supposed) and continue stamping till the yonger fort fetch from the Shoare Stones, of which every man take one, and first beate upon them with the fire sticks, then with the Stones beate the ground with 30 all their strength : and in this fore (as the reported) they continued about two houres. In the time of their Pauole, our watch aboord were finging, and they figned to him to doe fo, which he did, looking and lifting up his hands to heaven : then they pointed to the Moone, as if they imagined hee worshipped that, which when he with fignes denied, they pointed to the Sunne riling, which hee likewife difliked, lifting up his hands againe, then they looked about, as though they would fee what Starre it might be, laughing one to another. Afterithis ended, their wises fe- they which haue wives take them a part, and withdraw themselves severally into the wood all night. The next morning, as soone as they saw the Sunne rise, they pointed to him to come with cretly.

Their Tobacco Pipe.

company houering about our Ship, to whom (because it was the Sabbath day, I signed they should depart, and at the next Sunne rising wee would goe along with them to their houses, which they understood (as we thought) and departed : three of their Canoas coursing about the Iland, and the others towards the Maine. This day about fine a clocke afternoone, came three other Canoas from the Maine, of which some had beene with vs before, and they came directly aboord vs, and brought vs Tobacco, which we tooke with them in their Pipe, which was made of earth very strong, but blacke and short, containing a great quantity. Some Tobacco they gaue to our Captaine, and some to me, in very civill kinde manner : we requited them with Bread and Peafe. When we came at Shoare, they all most kindely entertained vs, taking vs by the hands, as they had observed we did to them abourd in token of welcome, and brought vs to 50 They saue vs tit downe by their fire, where fat together thirteene of them. They filled their Tohacco Pipe, Tobacco in a which was then the short claw of a Lobster, which will hold ten of our Pipes full, and we dranke Pipe of a Lob- of their excellent Tobacco as much as we would with them; but wee faw not any great quantity to trucke for, and it feemed they had not much left of old, for they spend a great quantity yearely by their continual drinking : they would tigne vnto vs that it was growne yet but a little aboue ground, but it would be high, with a leafe as broad as both their hands; and often would (by pointing to one part of the Maine Eastward) figne vnto vs that the Bashabe (whom wee take to be their King, or some great Commander) had plenty of Furres and much Tobacco.

them to our Sup, and having received their men from vs, they came with all their Canoas and 40

fters Claw.

Maile Booles

and Griffia.

At our departure they made figne, if any of vs would flay there a shoare, some of them would 60 goelye aboord with vs : at which motion Mafter Booles, teruant to the Right Honorable Count Arundell, being delirous to fee the manner of the torelaid Ceremonies, stated with them, and had Griffin with him ; and three of the Sauages lodged with vs, in manner as the night before.

Early the next morning being Munday, the third of June, when they had brought our men a boord, they came about our Shippe, earnestly by signes desiring we would goe with them along to the Maine, for there they had Furres and Tobacco to traffique with vs. Wherefore our Captaine manned the Shallop, with as many men as he could well, which was but fifteene with the Rowers, and we went along with them : two of their Canoas they fent away before, and they which were abound vs all night kept company with vs to direct vs. This we noted as we went along, they in the Canoa with three Oares, would at their will goe a head of vs and about vs, when we rowed with eight Oares ftrong; fuch was the switterfle by reason of the lightnesse, and exquisite composition of their Canoa and Oares.

When we came neere the point, where we saw their fires, where they intended to land, and to where they imagined some few of vs should come on Shoare with our merchandise, as wee had accustomed before : when they had often numbred our men very diligently, they scoured away to their company, not doubting we would have followed them. But when wee perceived this, and knew not either their intents, or number of Sauages on the Shoare, our Captain after confultation flood of and weffed them to vs, determining that I should goe a Shoare first to take a view of them, and what they had to traffique, if he whom at our first light of them seemed to be of most respect, and being then in the Canoa, would stay as a pawne for me. When they came to vs (notwithstanding all our former courteses) he veterly refused, but would leave a yong Sanage, and for him our Captaine lent Griffin in their Canoa, while we lay hulling a little of. He at his returns reported, they had there affembled together, as he numbred them, two hundred foure-20 score and three Sauages, enery one his Bowe and Arrowes, with their Dogges, and Wolves which they keepe tame at command : and not any thing to exchange at all, but would have 1835 suages which they keepe tame at command: and not any thing to exchange at an, our would have allembled in a drawne vs farther vp into a little narrow nooke of a Riger, for their Furres as they trecherie.

We began to alter our opinion of them, and to joyne them in the ranke of all Sauges, who Diffoolition of hane beene by all trauailers and in all discouries found very treacherous, neuer attempting mischiefe, vntill (by some remisnesse) fit opportunity affordern them certaine ability to execute the Purman Mafame. Wherefore we humbly gaue God thankes, who had given vs vnderstanding to preuent heit dealness this, and thereby warning to foresee and prepare our selves against the like danger. And after found courses good aduife taken, our Captaine determined, lo foone as we could to Ship fome of them, leaft (be-30 ing suspicious we had discoursed their plots) they should absent themselves from vs, which surely they had done, if we had not laid hold of the next occasion. Tuesday came to the Ship, there were two Canoas, and in either of them three Sauges, of whom two were below at the fire, the other flaied about the Ship for victual! : and because we could by no meanes entice them aboord, we gaue them a Can of Peate and Bread, which, they carried to the shoare to eate, but one of them brought backe our Can againe presently, and staied aboord with the other two, for he being yong of a ready capacitie, and one wee most defired to bring with veinto England, had received exceeding kinde viage at our hands, and therefore was much delighted in our company: we shipped him, and foure others, two Canoas, with all Canoas, and their Bowes and Arrowes, which is the chiefe substance they possesses.

Saturday the eight of Iune, our Captaine being defirous to finish all businesse about this Harbour, very early in the morning with the Pinnace coafted fine or fixe leagues about the Hands ad- Qur Captaine joyning, and founded all along whereforer he went: helikewife diligently fearched and foun- founded aded along before the mouth of the Harbotr, shout the Rocks which flow themselves at all times, Rockes and are an excellent breach of the waster in as ma See concerns in to offend the Markov Title. and are an excellent breach of the water, fo as no Sex can come in to offend the Harbour. This mouth of die he did to instruct himselfe, and thereby able to direct others that shall happen to come to this Harbour. place : for every where both neerethe Rockes and in all founding about the Ilands, wee never found leffe water then foure or fine fathome, which was very feldome, but feuen, eight, nine, and ten fathome, is the continual founding by the shoare, in some places much deeper, vpon clay Oaze or foft Sand.

This day about one a clocke afternoone, came from the Eastward two Canoas abourd vs, Two Canoas wherein was he that refused to stay with vs for a Pawne, and with him fix other Sauges, whom to the about we had not feene, who had beautified themselves after their manner very gallantly, though their visitem the cloathing was not different from the former, yet they had newly painted their faces very deepe, Balance some all blacke, some red, with stripes of blew ouer their upper lip, note, and chin. One of them ware a kinde of Coronet about his head, made very cunningly of a substance like stiffchare, co- Their Ornaloured red, broad, and more then a handfull in depth, which he fo much effeemed, as he would ments of galnot for any trucke exchange the same : other weare the white feathered skins of lome Fowle round about their head, Ie wels in their eares, & Bracelets of fittle white round bone, fallened together upon a leather firing. These made not any shew that they had notice of the other before ta-

60 ken but we understood them by their speech & signes, that they came sent from the Balkabe, and that his defire was, we would bring vp our Ship (which they call a Quiden) to his house, being as they pointed upon the Maine towards the East, from whence they came, and that hee would exchange with vs for Furres and Tobacco: but because we had no desire to discouer any further that way, and now making what speeds we could up the River; wee let them understand; that if their Balbabe would come to vs, hee should be very welcome, but wee would not remove

We caught fitte

1664

Tuefday, the eleventh of June, we paffed up into the River with our Ship about fix and tweninto the River ty miles; of which (were it not of necessitie I must report somewhat) I had much rather not to with our Ship, write, then by my relation to detract from the worthinesse thereof, not being sufficient in words to expresse the abundant vtilitie and sweete pleasantnesse it yeeldeth. For the River besides that it is fabiect hereafter by Shipping to bring in all traffiques of Merchandife.

The first and chiefest thing required for a Plantation, is a bold Coast, and faire Land to fall

The profits of with. The next, a fafe Harbour for Ships to ride in.

the River. Saint Georges

The breadth

of the River

The first is a speciall attribute to this Shoare, being most free from Sands or dangerous Rockes 10 in a continuall good depth, with a most excellent Landfall as can be defired; which is the first Hand, named Saint Georges Hand. For the fecond, by judgement of our Captaine, who knoweth most of the Coast of England, and most of other Countries (having beene experienced by implyments in discourries and trauailes from his childehood) and by opinion of others of good judgement in our Ship. Here are more good Harbours for Ships of all burthens, then all England can afoord : And farre more secure from all windes and weathers, then any in England, Scotland, Ire-Lind. France, Spaine, or any other part hitherto discouered, whereof we have received any relation: for (befiles without the River in the channell and Sounds about the Ilands adjoyning to the Mouth thereof, no better riding can be defired for an infinite number of thips) the River it felfe as it runneth vo into the Maine very nigh fortie miles towards the great Mountaines, beareth in 20 for almost 400 breadth a mile, fometimes three quarters, and halfe a mile is the narrowest, where you shall neuer have vider foure or five fathom water hard by the Shoare, but fix, feuen, eight, nine, and ten The ground is fathom at a low water. And on both fides, every halfe mile, verie gallant Coues, some able to Once & Clay. containe almost a hundred Sayle, where the ground is excellent foft oaze with a tough clay voider for Anker hold; and where Ships may lye without either Anker or Cable onely mored to the Shoare with a Hazur. It floweth, by their judgement, fixteene or eighteene foote at a high wa-Docker graue ter. Here are made by nature most excellent places, as Dockes to graue and Carine Ships of all burthers, fecured from all windes, which is such a necessary incomparable benefit, that in few places in England, or in any other parts of Christendome. Art with great charges can make and Carine Ships. Salmonsand fore of filb. The Land.

The Wood.

e:h.

It yeeldeth plentie of Salmons, and other fiftes of great bignesse, and assuredly great probabilitie of better things therein to be found, feeing about the Ilands wee had fuch certaine hope of Pearle and Oare. Besides all these commodities innatine to this River, the bordering Land is a most rich neighbour trending all along on both sides, in an equall Plaine, neither Mountainous nor Rockie, but verged with a greene bordure of graffe, doth make tender vnto the beholder of her pleafant fertility, if by clenfing away the woods, thee were connected into Medow. The Wood it beareth is no shrubbish, fit onely for fewell, but good tall Firre , Spruce, Birds, Beech, and Oake, which in many places is not fo thicke, but may with small labour be made feeding ground, being plentifull like the outward Hands with fresh water, which streameth downe in with what admiration wee all confented in ioy; many who had beene erauellers in fundry

Countries, and in the most famous Rivers, yet affirmed them not comparable to this they now beheld. Some that were with Sir Walter Raleigh, in his Voyage to Guiana, in the Discourry of many places. As we passed with a gentle winde vp with our Ship in this River. Any man may conceine tale folum & C.

This River

We marched wp into the land about three miles.

fore Ontingene, the Ruer Orienogue, which eccoed fame to the worldscares; gaue reasons why it was not to be Before the Ri. compared with this, which wanteth the dangers of many Shoakls and broken grounds, whereperorette Ris-uer Ris Grande, with that was encombred. Others preferred it farre before that notable River in the West Indias, called Rio Grande: some before the Rivers of Burdana, Orleance, and Brest in France, Naunce, and the River of Rhoane : which although they be great and goodly Rivers, yet it is no detraction from them to be accounted inferiour to this, which not onely yealdeth all the aforesaid pleasant 50 profits, but also appeared infallibly to vs free from all imagined inconveniences. I will not preferre it before our River of Thames, because it is Natale folum, Englands richest treasure, but wee all did wish those excellent Harbonrs, good Drepes, in a continuall convenient breadth, and fmall tide gates, to be as well therein for our Countrie good, as wee, found them here (beyond our hopes) in certaine for those to whom it shall please God to grant this Land for habitation; which if it had with the other inseperable adherent Commodities here to be found; then I would boldly affirme it to be the most rich, beautifull, large, and secure harbouring River that the world affordeth; for if man should wish, or Art invent, a River subject to all conveniencies, and free from all dangers, here they may take a view in a Plat-forme framed by Nature, who in her perfection farre exceedeth all Arts inuention.

ran vp to the Codde of the River, where we landed, leaving fix to keepe the Shallop till our returne, Ten of vs with our Shot, and some armed, with a Boy to carry Powder and Match, march ed yp into the Countrie towards the Mountaines, which we deferied at our first falling with the Land, and were continually in our view. Vnto some of them the River brought vs so neere, as we judged our felues when we landed, to have beene within a league of them, but we found them not, having marched well nigh foure miles up in the Maine, and passed three great hils; wherefore because the weather was parching hot, and our men in their Armour not able to travell farre and returne to our Pionalle that night, we resolved not to passe any further, being all very weary of fo tedious and labourfome a trauell.

CHAP.13. Good and fertile ground. Armor and Shot. Goodly River.

To this marchive pulled ouer very good ground, pleasant and fertile, fit for pasture, having Good Pasture. but little wood, and that Oake. like tands left in our Pattures in England, good and great fit timber for any vic; fomesmall Birch, Hazell and Brake, which might in small time be clanfed with few men, and made good errable Land; but as it is now will feede Cattell of all kindes with Rodder enough for Summer and Winter. The foyle is good, bearing fundry Hearbes, Graffe, and Stawberries, in many places are low thickets, like our Copiffes of small Wood: And it doth all resemble a flacely Parke, wherein appeare some old trees with high withered tops, and other flourthing with hining greene boughes : till we came to the Hils vpon which doe grow excee- Timber trees ding tall, threight, and excellent great timber of fundry kindes, mast for Ships of foure hundred tonnes, and at the bottome of every hill, a little run of fresh water; but the furthest and last we came unto ran with a great streame able a driue a small Mill. Wee might fre in some places, Deere, where Deere and Hares had beene; and by the rooting of ground we supposed wilde Hogs had Hares ranged there, but we could descry no Beast, because our noise still chaled them from vs.

We were no sooner come aboord our Pinnasse, returning towards our Ship, but wee espied a Canoa comming from the further part of the Cod of the River Eastward, which hasted to vs; wherein with two others was he whom we accounted chiefe of his Company; and his comming was very earnestly importuning to have one of our men to goe lye with their Balhabe or Captaine (as they now tearmed him) who was there ashoare (as they figned) and then the next A plot of the morning he would come to our Ship with Furres and Tobacco. This we perceived to be onely a Sausges. meere device to get possession of any of our men, to ransome all those we had taken; which their naturall pollicy could not fo shaddow, but we did easily discouer and preuent.

These meanes were by this Sauage practised, because we had one of his kinsmen prisoner, as we judged by his most kinde viage of him, being aboord vs together.

10 Thursday, the thirteenth of lune, by two a clocke in the morning / because our Captain would take the helpe and advantage of the Tide) in the Pinnace with our Company well provided and furnished with Armour and Shot both to defend and offend : we went from our Ship vp to that We searched part of the River which trended West into the Maine, to search that, and wee carried with vs part of the River a Croffe to erect at that point; which, because it was not day-light, we left on shoare vntill our uer, returne backe, when we fet it vp in manner as the former. And this we diligently observed, that Weser vp and inno place either about the llands, or vp in the Maine, or along the River, wee could differne other Croffe. any token or figne that ever any Christian had beene before; which either by cutting wood, digsing for water, or letting up Croffes (a thing neuer omitted by any Christian travailours) wee figure that the should have perceived some mention left.

80 But to returne to our River, vp into which we then rowed by estimation twenty miles. What before profit or pleafure is described and truely verified in the former part of the River, is wholly doubled in this; for the breadth and depth is fuch, that any Ship drawing feuenteene or eighteene foote water might have passed as farreas we went with our Shallop, and by all our indgements much further, because we left it in so good depth; which is so much the more to be esteemed of greater worth, by how much it trendeth further vp into the Maine : for from the place of our Ships riding in the Harbour, at the entrance into the Sound, to the furthest point wee were in this River, by our estimation was not much lesse then threescore miles. From each Banke of this River, are divers branching streames running into the Maine, whereby is afforded an vnspeaker- Conveniency ble profit, by the conveniency of easie transportation from place to place, which in some Countion. tries is both very chargeable, and not fo fit, by Carriages on Wane or Horlebacke, Here wee faw 50 ftore of Fish, some leaping aboue water, which we in ged to be Silmon, for they were great. All Salmon and along is an excellent mould of ground, the wood in most places, especially on the Easterne fide, great plency very thin, chiefely Oake and small Birch, bordering low vpon the Riuer, all fit for Meddow and pleasant Pasture ground. And in that space wee went, wee had on both sides the River many plaine places of cleere Meddow, some of three or foure acres, some eight or nine, so as we sudged in the whole to be betweene thirty and forty acres of good graffe, and where the Armes ronne into the Maine, there likewife went a space on both sides of the cleare graffe, how farre we knew not. In many places we might fee pathes Beafts had made to come downe to watering. And we all concluded (18 I verily thinke we might rightly) that we should never see the like River in 60 euery degree equall, vntill it pleafed God we beheld the fame againe : for the further we went, the more pleasing it was to every man, alluring vs fill with expectation of better; fo as our men (although they had with great labour rowed long, and eate nothing) for we carried with vs We were all no votuall but a little Cheefe and Bread, yet they were fo refreshed with the pleasant beholding thereof, and so loath to tortake it, as some of them affirmed, they would have continued this Ruers.

ypon the Hils-

Hogges.

1665

The Hand

where we warered is named

Infula Santa

fect objerus-

Temperature

tion on the

of climate.

Rocke.

willingly with that onely fare and labour two dayes; but the Tide not fuffering vs to make any longer itay (because we were to come backe with the ebbe) and our Captaine better knowing what was fit, then we; and better what they in labour were able to endure, being very loath to make any desperate hazard, where so little necessitie required, thought it best to make returne. because whether we had discouered, was sufficient to conceiue that the River ranne very farre into the Land : for we passed fixe or seuen miles altogether fresh water (whereof we all dranke) forced yo by the flowing of the Salt, which after a great while ebbe where we left it, by bredth and depth of Channell was likely to runne by estimation of our whole companie an vnknowne way further. And as our Captaine verily thought (although hee then concealed it) might polfibly make a paffage into (or very nigh) the South Sea: which hee neither had commission nor to time now to scarch, but hath left that till his next returne : if it shall so please God to dispose

Friday the fourteenth of June early, by foure a clocke in the morning with the Tide, our two Boats, and a little helpe of the winde, we warped our shippe downe to the Rivers mouth: and there came to an anchor about about eleuen a clocke. Afterward our Captaine in the Pinnace. fearched the founding all about the mouth and comming into the River, for his certaine infirm-

Stion of a perfect delcription.

The next day being Saturday, we weighed anchor, and with a briefe from the Land, we favled un to our watering place, and there stopped, went ashoare, and filled all our empty caske with

Our Captaine vpon the Rocke in the middest of the Harbour made his certaine observa-Crucis, becaufe there were tion by the Sunne, of the height, latitude, and variation exactly upon all his Instruments: our Erit Croffe 1. Aftrolabe. 2. Semilphere. 3. Ring-instrument. 4. Croffe staffe. 5. And an excellent Com-Our Gapcaine pas, made for the variation. The latitude he found to be 43. degrees 20. minutes, North. The variation, 11. degrees 15. minutes, viz. one point of the Compas Westward. And it is so much made his perin England at Lime-bouse by London, Battward. The temperature affoorded to vs no speciall alteration from our disposition in England: somewhat hotter vp into the Maine, because it lieth open to the South, but scarse yeelding a sensible difference to any of vs. The aire so wholsome, as I suppose, not any of vs found our lelues at any time more healthfull, more able to labour, nor with better flomachs to fuch good fare, as we partly brought, and partly found.

Sunday the fixteenth of lune, the winde being faire, and because wee had fet out of England vpon a Sunday, descried the Hands vpon a Sunday, and (as we doubted not) by Gods appointment, happily fallen into our Harbour vpon a Sunday : fo now befeeching him with like prosperitie to blesse our returne into England: and from thence (with his good-will and pleasure) to haften and fortunate our next arrivall here. Wee fet fayle and quit the Land vpon a Sunday.

Tuesday the eighteenth day of June, being not runne aboue fine and thirty leagues from Land, and our Captaine for his certaine knowledge how to fall with the Coast, having founded every watch, and from fifty fathom had come in good deeping to feuenty, and so to an hundred. This day, the weather being faire, after the foure a clocke watch, when he thought not to have found ground, before founding in aboue a hundred fathom, we had ground in foure and twenty fathom. 40 Wherefore our Sayles being downe, one of our men prefently cast out a hooke, and before hee indged it at ground was fished and haled wp an exceeding great and well fed Cod: then there were cast out three or foure hookes more, the fish was so plentifull and so great, as when our Captaine would haue fet fayle, we desired him to fuffer them to take fish a while, because wee were fo delighted to feethem catch fish so great, so fast as the hooke came downe, some playing with the hooke they tooke by the backe. And one of the Mates, with two hookes at a Lead, at fine A fifty banke. draughts together haled up ten fifthes all were generally very great, some were measured. This cauled our Captaine not to maruell at the shoalding: for he perceived it was a fish-banke, which (for our farewell from the Land) it pleased God in the continuance of his bleffings to give vs knowledge of.

Sunday the fourteenth of July about fix a clocke at night we were come into founding in our Channell: but for want of fight of the Sunne and Starre, to make a true observation: and with contrary windes we were constrained to beate up and downe till Tuesday the sixteenth of July, when by fine a clocke in the morning wee made Sylly: from whence hindred with calmes and fmall windes. Vpon Thuriday the eighteenth of July about foure a clocke wee came to anchor fafe ly in Dartmonth, which Hauen haply (with Gods affiltance) wee made the laft and firk Harbour in England, as the Termini of our Voyage.

A briefe Note of what profits we found the Countrie yeeld: in the small time of our stay there.

Trees. Oake, of an excellent graine , flaight, and great timber ; Elme , Beech , Birch , very tall and, great of whole Barque they make their Canoas; Nut-halle, Halle, Akler, Cherry tree, Ath.M ple, Ewe, Spruce, Atp, Fir in great abundance; many other fruit trees which we know not. n, na pie, Eagles, Hernshawes, Cranes, Duks great; Geefe, Swans, Penguins, Shark, Crow, Rauen, Kite, Soga, Mewes, Doues, Tortles, birds of fundry colours; and many other fowles vnknown.

Beafts. Deere red and fallow, Beare, Wolfe, Beauer, Otter, Hare, Conie, Matterns, Sables. Hogs, Porkelpines, Polcats, Cats, wilde great, Dogs some like Foxes, some like our other beafts the Sanager ligne vinto vs with hornes and broad eares; which we take to be Olkes or Loshes.

Filhet, Whales, Porpoile, Seales, Cod, very great; Haddocke, great; Herring, Platie, Thornbacke, Rock-fish, Lobster, great ; Crabbe , Mussels , Cockles , Wilks , Cunner-fish , Lumpe-fish, Whiting: the Sauages figne vnto vs that they have Tortoife very great.

Plants, Fruits, Herbs. Tobacco, excellent, sweet and strong; Vine, wilde; Strawberries, Raspberries, Gooseberries, Hurtleberries, Corant trees, in abundance; Rose bushes; Peale, which the Sauges figne to be very great in the Maine; Ground-nuts; Angelica, a most foueraigneherbe; and an herbe that ipreadeth like Camomell , and imelleth like iweet Marjoram , great plente. Good Dies, which appeare by their painting, which they carrie with them in bladders, Sonne or Moone, Kefus. Cod-fish, Biskesore. A fish with hornes, Manedo. Lobster, Shoggab. Rock fish, Shagarocke, Cockle-fish, Hesucke, Muskell, Shoorocke, Cunner-fish, Tattaucke, Crabbe. Wustoralia, Porpoite, Muscopeinck, Plaife, Anego. Tortoile, Romeanecke. Peale, Ushcomono. Tobacco, Tomoch. A leafe, Mebeere. A weed, Calherufb. A Firre tree, Seteoch. A ftone, Nabscurt. 20 A Bowe, Shoanor. An Arrow, Tobood. Barke of a tree, Mashquere. Water, Shamogoon. Sand, Cheemuch. Crowe, Cagagoofe, Haire, Meffer or Meris. A board, Nuomur. A Beare, Rog foo. Beaver. Paneah. Otter, Nymemano. Rat, Sanuke. Polcat, Pocamka. Cat, Pufnick. Fallow Deere, Coribo, Hogge, Madofo, Red Deere, Moofurr. Tkey tell vs of other beafts, which they call, Ta-(anus, Pilho, Narfim. Teeth, Ibider. A hand and finger, Breecke. A Naile of the hand, Culbe. Alegge, Codd. Afoot, Muffeete. Plum-tree, Epfegan. Strawberry, Pulboa. Goofeberry, Shewanor. Cherry tree, Efregononino. Corant tree, Asheemena. Rashbetrie, Kisheemy. A tippe, Metoan, Fire, Squida. The maine Land, Bemoquianche. Sea, Shonbbe. Father, Wado. Sonne, Ufto. Wane of the Sea, Toboogg. Pitch and Tallow, Poco. Wilde Role, Minubeck. Birch, Pagnar. Sword, Edgemente, Montaine, Machaele, Winde, Packenfon, Blod, Paghgeun, Red Paint, Woman, Blacke Paint, Cogolio, A Dogge, Revolute, A Ship or Boat, Quiden, An Orre, Wuttoboganor. A Garnepo Fly, Chuffuab. Bread, Paune, Raine, Songoran, A note, Peech-ten. An Axe or Hatchet, Tomaheegon, A Knife, Quodogon, Oake, Askabeffe, White Bone, whereof they have Chaines , Girdles , Bracelets , Speefone. The Checke Canoah. A Shirt or Coat, Tenoganuke, The Chinne, Queb, An Eye, Sheefack, Eylid, Memon. Forehead, Scottoquab. An Eare, Famwucke. A fish-hooke, Makeecon. A Rainbow, Shimogon.

Words which I learned of the Sauages, in their Language

The Names of their chiefe Gouetnours, whom they call Sagomob. 1. Bashabez. 2. Abatuckquifte. 3. Bdahanedo, one of them we have. 4. Abokeefuffick. 5. Shurokinit. 6. Pfaheno. 7. Menteelmet, 8. Ageemohuck. 9. Mawermet. 10. Chanacoboin. 11. Amilquir. 12. Muafacoromoreete. Thefe dwell vpon the Maine, and weare an ornament of white bone vpon their head; and Chaines, and Bracelets, and Girdles, and have their skinne garments laced with them.

The Names of our Virginians. Edahanedo, Brother to the Baftabes. Amooret, his Erother. Satacomoah . Maneduck . Scikaworrowfe.

Thus have I given thee the proceedings of Virginia and New Englands Discourie: for the origimall beginning of the Discouerie, Sir Sebattian Cabot was the first Discouerer both of it and the rest of the Continent of America. The first Plantation was more Southerly by the charges of Sir Walter Raleigh: as before is showed. The next yeare New Patents were obtained of his Maiestie, for a donble Plantation in these parts. I trouble not the Reader with the whole Patent, both because it hath sustained dissersified alteration, dissission and subdississon, and because I more minde things there done, than bere; for which cause I have also omitted the Articles and instruction two dayes after dated, signed, 50 and fealed, with the Prince Seale for the government of the faid Plantation, of both which I bane the Copies by mee; I onely bere gine thee the beginning of the first Patent, April 10. 1606.

CHAP. XIIII.

The description of the Ilands of Acores, or the Flemish Ilands, taken out of Linschoten, with certaine occurrents, and English acts.

He Iles of Açores, or the Flemish Ilands are seven, that is, Tercera, Saint Mary, Linsote. 07. Saint George, Gratisfa, Pice, and Paisael. There are yet two Hands called Florer anne lianis, and Corse, which are not contained under the name of Agores: but yet at this W yealed day are under the government of the fame Hands, fo that they are in all, account. ted nine llands. They are called Agores, that is to fay, Sparhawkes or Hawkes, because that in their first discouery, they found many Sparhawks, in them, wherof they hold the name, although at this day there is not any there to bee found. They are also called the Flemilh Hands, that is, of the Netherlanders, because the first that inhabited the same were Netherlanders, whereof till this time there is a great number and off-spring remayning, that in manner and behauiour are altogether like Netherlanders, and there is yet in the fame

Iland a running water, that iffueth out of a Hill, and fo runneth into the Sea, whereas ver those issues or off-springs of Netherlanders inhabite, and is called Aribera dos Framenges, that is.

CHAP.14.

Tercera.

the Flemile River.

1668

The principall Hand of them all, is that of Tercera, called Infula de Iefus Christus of Terce-74. It is betweene fifteene or fixteene miles in compasse, and is altogether a great Cliffe of Land, whereby in it there is little roome; for it is as it were walled round about with Cliffes: but where any ftrand or fand is, there standeth a Fort. It hath no Hauens nor entrance of waters. Io for the fecuritie and fafety of the shippes, but onely before the chiefe Towne called Anera. where it hath an open Hauen, which in forme is like a Halfe-moone, by the Portugalt called Anora, whereof the Towne hath her name. It hath on the one fide in manner of an elbow flicking forth, two high Hills, called Brefil, which stretch into the Sea, so that afarre off they feeme to bee divided from the Iland. Those Hills are very high, fo that being vpon them . a man may fee at the least tenne, or twelue, and sometimes fifteene miles into the Sea, being cleare weather. Vpon thefe Hills there iland two fmall ftone Pillers, where there is a Centinell placed, that continually watcheth to fee what shippes are at Sea, and so to aduertise those of the Iland : for that as many shippes as he seeth comming out of the West, that is from the Spanish Indies, or Brasilia, Cabo verde, Guinea , and the Portugal Indies, and all other waves ly- 20 ino South or Welt, for every shippe bee setteth a Flagge vpon the Pillar in the West, and when the (hippes which hee descrieth, are more than fine, then hee setteth vp a great ancient, betokening a whole Fleete of shippes. The like hee doth upon the other Pillar, which standeth in the East, for such shippes as come from Portugall, or other places out of the East or North parts, these Pillars may bee easily seene in all places of the Towne, by reason of the highnesse of the Hills, fo that there is not one shippe or sayle that is at Sea, or maketh towards the Iland , but it is presently knowne throughout all the Towne, and ouer all the whole Hand : for the watch is not holden onely upon those two Hills jutting into the Sea, but also upon all corners, Hills and Cliffes throughout the Iland, and as foone as they perceive any shippes, the Governour and Rulers are presently aduertised thereof, that they may take such order therein as neede requireth. 20 Vpon the furthest corner into the Sea Handeth a Fort, right against another Fort that answer reth it : fo that those two Forts doe shut and defend the Mouth or open Hauen of the Towne, where the shippes lie in the Road, and so no shippe can either goe in or come forth, without the licence or permission of those two Forts. This Towne of Angra is not onely the chiefe Towns of Tercera, but also of all other Townes within the Hands thereabouts. Therein is resident, the Bishop, the Gouernour for the King, and the chiefe place of Judgement, or tribunal Seate of all the llands of Acores.

Three miles from this Towne lieth another Towne towards the North, called Villa de Praya, (for Praya is as much to fay, as Strand) because it lieth hard by a great strand, and for that cause there is little traff que thither, as not having any convenient place for shippes to come at 40 it : yet sometimes there commeth some one, that by reason of contrary winde cannot get beangra descried fore the Towne of Angra, and so by constraint discharge their goods in that Towne, which from thence are carried by Land to Angra, and yet some part thereof is spent and vfed there. It is walled and well houled, but not many people in it, and fuch as are in it, doe get their liuings most by husbandry : for there are very faire Corne lands. The lland is Wines small, likewite very fruitfull and pleasant, ir hath much Corne and Wine, but the Wine is not very good to carry into other Countries thereabouts, because it is small and will not long continue, so that it is vied in the Countrey by the common people : but such as are of wealth, for the most Commodities, Part drinke Wines of Madera, and Canaria. It aboundeth in Flesh, Fish, and all other necessaries and meates for mans bodie, wherewith in time of need they might helpe themselues. Oyle 50 there is none, but it commeth out of Portugall. Also Salt, Pots, Pans, and all kind of earthen

Veffells, Chalke, and such like are brought thither out of other places, for there they are not to bee found : for fruits they have (besides Peaches of divers kindes, and in so great abundance that is is strange) Cherries , Plums, Walnuts, Haste-nuts, Cheinuts, but those not very good : of Apples, Peares, Oranges and Lemons, with all fuch like fruits there are fufficient. Of all forts of Hearbes and Plants, as Coleworts, Radishes, and fuch like they have at their certains times of the yeere. They have likewife in that Iland a certaine fruit that groweth under the earth, like Radishes or other roots, but the Leaues or Plants are Trees like Vines, but different leaues, and groweth longwife vpon the ground : it beareth a fruit called Batatas, that is very good, and is fo great that it weigheth a pound, some more, some lesse, but little esteemed : and 60 yet it is a great sustenance and food for the common fort of people. It is of good account in Portugall, for thither they vie to bring it for a Present, and those of the Hand by reason of the great abundance doe little esteeme it. There is also another kind of stuffe that is fowed like Corne, and is a fruit : it groweth upon the root of the graffe or leaus, and is round and as bigge

242 great Peafe, but not fo round : in eating it tafteth like Earth-nuts, but harder to bite : it is likewife a good meate, and much esteemed in other places: but by reason of the great quantitie thereof, it is most vied to facten their Hogges, and is called funfai. There is also in the Iland a certaine Plant, which is found in all places thereof in the open fieldes: it groweth as high as a man, and beareth no fruit, onely the roote thereof is a fubstance, of the thicknesse of A roote sit to a mans two filts, and in thew as if it were naturall golden haire, and in handling like foft Silke, be worten. which is vied there to fluffe and fill their Beddes in flead of Wooll and Feathers : and I doe certainly believe, if any man of vnderstanding would take it in hand, it would well be wouen. The principallest traffique of this Hand, is their Woade, such as wee vie for dying (whereto of much is made in that Iland, and is fetched from thence by Englishmen, Scots, and Frenchmen, in barter for Cloathes and other wares, who continually traffique into that Iland: and although by reason of the warres, the Englishmen are forbidden to traffique thither, yet under the names of Scots and Frenchmen, they have continuall trade there. The Hand hath not any wilde beafts or fowles, but very few, fauing onely Canary birds, which are there by thoufands, Canary birds. where many Birders take them, and thereof make a daily living, by carrying them into divers places. It hathalfo wonderfull many Quailes , which they call Codornifen: of tame fowles, as Hennes, and Gynnie Hennes are there likewise great store. Hunting is there little vied , but onely for Conies, which are very great : Hares, Harts, Partridges, Venilon, and fuch like, are not there to be found, because of the little respect and care the Inhabitants have to breed any such 30 things. Fish is very plentifull, and of divers kindes, and very good: in Summer there is great flore taken, for in Winter they can hardly brooke the Seas. The chiefe moneths of Winter Winter. weather for raine and ftormes are, Ianuarie, Februarie, March and Aprill, and also the moneth of September is commonly very flormy: all the other moneths it is commonly good weather; The Countrey is very hilly, and in some places wooddy, full of bushes and trees: it is hard to trauell, because their wayes for the most part are stony, so that for a mile, or a mile and a halfe together, men can see no ground , but onely stones, which for sharpnesseand fastion shew like Stones. pointed Diamants, whereby one can hardly treade vpon it, left it fhould cut through both shoots and feet : and yet it is all planted with Vines , fo full and thicke , that in Summer time you can hardly see through it, for that the rootes thereof doe growe betweene the stones: so that a man 30 would thinke it impossible that any thing should growe therein; and which is more, in some places it feemeth impossible for a man to treade voon it, being so wilde and desart as it sheweth, and nothing but hard itones and Rockes. On good ground their Vines will not growe, but onely in the wilde and stony places: and for that cause they are much esteemed.

The good groundes and plaine fieldes, which in some places are very many, especially by Villa da Praya, are fowed with Corne and Woade, and they have fo much Corne, that they neede not bring any from other places: although that besides their Inhabitants, and naturall borne llanders, they have continually with them fourteene Companies of Spaniards, which are all fedde and nourished by the Corne that groweth in the Countrey , vnlesse there chance to come a hard and unfruitfull yeere, as oftentimes it doth, for then they are forced to helpe so themselves with forraine Corne, and that especially because of the Souldiers that lie in the Iland: and yet it is strange, that the Corne, and all other things in the Iland continue not aboue one yeere, and that which is kept aboute a yeere is raught, and nothing worth. And therefore Corne willian to keepe their Corne longer than a yeere, they are forced to burie it in the earth for the space of but a yeere. foure or fine moneths together, to the which end enery Townesman hath his Pit at one end of the Towne in the common high-way, which is appointed for the purpole, and every man fetteth his marke upon his Pit-stone : the Corne is but lightly buried in the earth : the holes Corne busied, within are round, and the toppes thereof fo wide that a man may creepe in, whereunto there is aftone purpolely made to couer it, which shutteth it vp very close. Some of the Pittes are so great, as that they may hold two or three lastes of Corne, some greater, and some smaller, as 50 every man bath his provision: and as soone as the Corne is reaped, and fanned (which is in July) euery man putterh his Corne into those Pittes, laying flraw vnder and round about it, and then they fill it full, or but halfe full, according as their quantitie is, and fo ften it vo with the stone, which they couer with earth, and so let it stand vntill Christmas, when every man that will fetch home his Corne: some let it lie longer, and fetch it by little and little, as they vie it: but the Corne is as good when they take it out, as it was at the first houre that they put it in: and although that Carts, Horses, and men doe commonly passe over it, and also that the raine raineth spoiled : and when it hath beene thus for a long time buried in the earth, it will continue the 60 whole yeere through, and then they keepe it in Chifts, or make a thing of Alats, like a Ccope, to preserue it in, not once stirring or moouing it, and so it continueth very good. The greatest commoditie they have in the Land, and that serueth their turnes best, is their Oxen: and I beleeue they are the greatest and fairest that are to bee found in all Christendome, Gre : Oxe. - with Zzzzzz 2 vpon it, yet there entreth not any drop of raine or moisture into it: and if the Corne were not buried in that manner, it would not continue good about four moneths together, but would be Fruits.

Batatas.

with vomeafurable great and long hornes. Enery Oxe hath his fenerall name like men and Called by their

LIB.VIII.

although there bee a thousand of them in a heard, and that one of them bee called by his name. he pretently commeth forth voto his mafter that calleth him. The Land is very high, and agic feemeth hollow : for that as they passe over a Hill of itone, the ground foundeth voder them as if it were a Seller, fo that it feemeth in divers places to have holes under the earth, whereby it is much jubic of to Earthquakes, as also all the other llands are: for there it is a common thing, and all those llands for the most part have had Myne of Brimstone, for that in many places of Tercer a, and Saint Michael, the imoake and fauour of Brimftone doeth fhill iffue forth of the ground. and the Countrey round about is all findged and burnt. Allo there are places wherein there are Fountainer and Wells, the water whereof is so hot that it will boyle an egge, as well as if it

Ho: Springs. hung ouer a fire. In the Hand of Tercera, about three miles from Angra, there is a Fountaine in a place cal-Gualua Spring led Gualua, which hath a propertie, that all the wood which falleth into it by length of time

interftone.

converteth into from as I my felf, by experience have twied. In the fame Foundaine by the roote of a tree, whereof the one halte runneth under that water, and is turned into as hard from as if it were Steele: and the other part of the roote (which the water toucheth not) is fill wood and root, as it should be. The Iland hath great store and excellent kinds of wood, free Cedars comcially Cedar trees, which growe there in to great numbers, that they make Scutes, Carts, and other groffe workes thereof, and is the commonest wood that they vie to burne in those Countries, whereby it is the wood that with them is least efteemed, by reason of the great quantity 20 thereof. There is another kinde of wood called Sanguinbo, and is very faire of a red colour, and another fort that they call white Wood, being of it felfe as white as Chalke: other that is perfect yellow, and all naturall without any dying; and therefore there are divers good workemen in Tercera, that are skilfull in loyners Occupation, and make many fine pieces of worke, as Deskes, Cupboords, Chiffs, and other fuch like things, whereof many are carried into Porms gall, and much efteemed there, as well for the beauty of the wood, as for the workmanihip. And specially the Spanife Fleet, which ordinarily refresh themselves in that Iland, doe carrie much of it from thence a for it is the best and finest that is made in all Spaine and Portugall, although it bee not compar ble to the Deskes, and fine workmanihip of Nurembereb, and thole Countreves : but for Wood is excelleth all other Countreves , for that they have in the Spanish 20 Fleete, besides their owne kindes of woods, at the least a thousand forts of wood of all colours that man can imagine or deuise, and so faire, that more fairer can not bee painted. There is a certaine kinde of wood in the Iland Pico, fituate and lying twelve miles from Terce-Texe a kind of 74, called Texe, a most excellent and princely wood, and therefore it is forbidden to bee cut, but onely for the Kings owne vie, or for his Officers. The wood is as hard as Iron, and hath a colour within, as if it were wrought, like red Chamlet, with the same water, and the older it is, and the more yied, the fairer it is of colour, fo that it is worthie to bee efteemed, as in wood as hard

Sanguinbo wood. White and vellow woods.

Inhabitants.

Souldiers.

Strangers.

truth it is. All those Ilands are inhabited by Portugals: but fince the troubles in Portugall, there have beene divers Spanish Souldiers fent thither, and a Spanish Governour, that keepe all the For's and 40 Caftles in their polieffions, although the Portugali are put to no charges, nor yet hardly vied by them , but are rather kept fhort, fo that not one Souldier dareth goe out of the Towne, with our licence; and therefore men may quietly travell throughout the Iland, both day and night, without any trouble. Likewise they will not suffer any stranger to travell to see the Countrey : and this order was not brought up by the Spaniards, but by the Portugals themselves, before their troubles, (for they would never permit it :) and which is more, all strangers that came thither were viually appointed a certaine streete, wherein they should sell their wares, and might not goe out of that ftreete. Now it is not fo ftraightly looked vnto, but they may goe in all places of the Towne, and within the Iland, but not about it, to view the Coast: which notwithstanding was granted vnto vs , by the Gouernour himselfe , who lent vs his 50 Horses to ride about, and gaue vs leave to see all the Forts, which at this time is not permitted to the naturall borne Handers, neither are they fo much credited. Wee rode twice about the Hand, which hee granted vs I-aue to doe, by meanes of certaine particular friendih:p wes had with him : neither could the Portugals hinder ve therein , because were were in the Kings feruice, as Factors for the Kings Pepper, and for that, they accounted vs as naturall borne Portugals: for the Gouernour would willingly have had mee, to have drawne a plot of the whole Iland, that hee might have fent it to the King : wherein I excused my felfe : yet I made him the Towne with the Hauen, comming in, and Forts of Angra; which hee fent voto the King, the like whereof you may in this Booke behold ; for the which the Gouernour was greatly affected vaco mee, and thewed mee much friendship. Wee had in our Lodging a French Net - 60 chant and a Scot, that willingly would have gone with vs, to fee the Iland, but could not be fulfered : for the Portugals thinke that they would take the proportion thereof, and to teeke to deteate them of their right.

But returning to our matter, the Hands are very good, and holesome ayre, and the diseases that are most common in those Countries, though not very plentifull, but onely here and there that are mort common in the defendation of the days that taketh them, and maketh The avec. a one, are one negative, or halfe lame of their limmes, or of fome one limme: and another ficksieffe, that is called O Sange, that is, a certaine bloud, that haftely commeth spon a man. as a fwelling in the eyes, or other places of the face, or of the body, and is as red as bloud, for (as they (av) it is nothing elle but meere bloud : these are two difeases like the plague, and are commonneft fickneffes in those Countries, which grow by reason of the great windineffe of the Hands, that are subject to all stormes and foule weathers, and are whrealonable moist, which is one of that are more to an infinite difeases : for the windes are there to ftrong and dangerous, that they Strong windes confume both the Iron and the Steele of their houses, and bring them into powder: for I have feene Iron grates in the Kings Custome house, as thicke as a mans aime, and the windowes of hard free stone, which were to confumed by the winde, that the Iron in some places was become as thin as a firaw, and the ftone in like fort; and therefore in those Countries they vie to make their Roofes and Painthoufer of stones, which they digge in the water, out of fands woon the Sea coatt of those Hands, whereon the winde hath not fo great a power to confirme it : and yet that Customehouse had not beene made aboue fix or seuen yeares before, at the most.

In this Iland belides the two Townes, there are divers great Villages, as Saint Sebalians. Saint Barboran, Altares, Gualua, Villa nona, with many other Parifhes and Hamlets: fo that for the 20 moit part it is built and inhabited, fauing onely the places that are wilde and full of Woods, which can hardly be trauelled, much leffe inhabited. Their most traffique is (as I said before) the wood that groweth in those Countries, I meane for such as deale in Merchandise, and the workemen that make it : but the rest waite for the flee:es that come and goe to and from the Spanish and Portugal Indies, from Brafilia, Cabo, Verde and Guinea : all which Countries doe commonly come vnto Tercera to refresh themselues, as lying very fitty for that purpose : so that all the inhabitants doe thereby richly maintaine themselves, and fell all their wares, as well handy workes as victuals vnto those Ships : and all the Hands round about doe as then come vnto Tercere with their wares, to fell it there. For the which cause the Englishmen and other strangers keepe continually about those Hands, being affured that all Ships for want of refreshing must of 30 force put into those Hands, although at this time many Ships doe avoide those Hands, to the great discommodity of the Ilands and the Ships.

Fion Tercera Southeast, about seuen and twenty or eight and twenty miles, lyeth the lland of Saint Michael, which is about twenty miles long, and is likewife full of Townes and Villages S. Michael, inhabited by Portugals, for ayre and all other things like vnto Tercera. The chiefe Towne is called Panta del Gada, where there is great traffique of English, Scots, and Frenchmen, onely (as in Tercera) because of the woad, which is more abundant in that Iland, then in all the rest of them: for that every yeare there is made aboue two hundreth thousand Quintals of Wood. It hath likewife great abundance of Corne, fo that they helpe to victuall all the Ilands that are round about them. It hath neither Hauens nor Rivers, but onely the broad Sea, and haue leffe fafegard and 40 defence then those which are of Tercera: but there they lye not vader the commandement of any Fort : fo that many fet fayle with all the windes, and put to Sea, which in the road of Tersera they may not doe: and therefore the strangers Ships had rather fayle to Saint Michaels, for there they can not be constrained to doe anything, but what they will themselves to doe, There is also a company of Spaniards in a Castle that standeth by the Towne of Punta del Gade.

which is made by the Spaniards for the defence and maintenance of the fame towne. Prom the Hand of Saint Michaels Southwards twelve miles, lyeth the Island Santa Maria, Saint Me which is about ten or twelue miles compasse, & hath no traff que but onely of pot earth, which the other Hands fetch from thence. It hath no Woad, but is full of all victuals like Tercera, and inhabited by the Portugals. There are no Spaniards in it : because it is a stony Country, like Ter-5c errs, and hard to boord : whereby the inhabitants themselves are sufficient and able enough to defend it. While I remained in Tercera, the Earle of Cumberland came thither, to take in fresh water, and some other victuals; but the inhabitants would not suffer him to have it, but wounded both himfelfe and divers of his men, whereby they were forced to depart without having any From Tercera North Northwest about seven or eight miles, lyeth a little Iland called Gratis-fa, and is but five or fixe miles in compaffe, a very pleafant and fine Iland, full of all truits and all other victuals, fo that it not onely feedeth it jelfe, but also Tercera, and the other Ilands about it, and hath no other kinde of Merchandife it is well built and inhabited by Portugals, and hath no Soldiers in it, because it is not able to beare the charge. The Earle of Cumberland while 1 lay Earle of Cumberland 60 in Tercera, came vnto that Iland, where himselfe in person, with seuen or eight in his company berland. See went on land, asking certaine Beafts, Hens, and other Victuals, with Wine and fresh water, which suplease. they willingly gaue him, and therewith he departed from thence, without doing them any hurt: for the which the inhabitants thanked him, and commended him for his curtefie, and keeping of his promife.

Sains George.

From Tercera Well North-west, eight or nine miles, lyeth the Hand of Saint George, It is about twelve miles long, but not about two or three miles at the furtheft in breadth at is wooddy and full of hils: it hath no speciall traffique, but onely some Woad, and yet very hitsle of it. The inhabitants line most by Cattell and tilling of the Land, and bring much victuals to fell in Tercera : it hath likewife many Cedar trees, and other kindes of wood, that from thence are brought vnto Tercera, and fold vnto the Loyners, which for that occasion dwell onely in Tercera.

Farael.

From Saint George Well South-well feuen miles, lyeth the Hand called Fayael, which is feuenteene or eighteene miles in compafie : it is one of the beit llands next vnto Tercera, and Saine Michaels est aboundeth in all forts of victuals, both fleft and fift, fo that from this Iland the most part of victuals and necessaries commeth by whole Caruels vnto Tercera: it bath likewife to much Wood, fo that many English Ships doe traffique thither, The principall road and place is the Towne called Vitta dorta: there the Shipa like wife doe lye in the open Sea under the Land. as they doe before all the other Hands aby this Towns there lyeth a forerelle, but of small importance; and because the inhabitants of themselves doe offer to defend the Iland against all enemies, the Soldiers discharged from thence, which before that time lay in the Fort, complaining that they were not able to maintaine nor lodge them. The fame time that the Earle of Camberland was in the lland of Gratiofa, he came likewife to Fayael, where at the first time that hee came, they began to refult him, but by reafon of fome controuerfie among them, they let him land where he rafed the Castle to the ground, and sunke all their Ordnance in the Sea. taking with him certaine Caruels and Ships that lay in the road, with provision of all things that hee 10 wanted; and therewith departed agains to Sea. Whereupon the King caused the principall actors therein to be punished, and fent a company of Souldiers thither againe, which went out of Tercera, with all kinde of warlike munition, and great flot, making the Fortrelle vp againe, the better to defend the lland, trufting no more in the Poringals. In that I land are the most part of the Netherlanders off-fpring, yet they vie the Portugals language, by reason they have beene so long conversant among them, and those that vied the Durch tongue are all dead: they are great-

Fajael taken taken by Earle

Pica.

Tercera South-well and by Well twelve miles, lyeth the Iland called Pico, which is more then fifteene miles in length. It is so named of a high Mountaine that standeth therein called Pres, 30 which is to high, that fome thinke it is higher then the Pico of Canaris. When it is cleare weather, it may as perfectly be seene in Tercera, as if it were not halfe a mile from thence, and yet it lyeth about twenty fine miles from it : for it is at the furthest end of the Hand towards Fayael. The top of it is seene cleare and bright, but the nether part is coursed with clouds, and with the Horizon, whereby the Hand is much spoken of. It is very fruitfull of all kindes of victuals, like Fayael, and hath great store of wood, as Cedars & all other kindes, and also the costly wood Teixo. There they build many Caruels and small Ships; and from thence, by reason of the abundance of wood, they ferue the other Ilands with wood. It is also inhabited as the rest are their chiefe traf-

From Fagael Southeast three miles, and from Saint George South-west foure miles, and from

ly affected to the Netberlanders and strangers.

Pleafant Oranges,

From Tercera Westward to the Iland named Flores are seventy miles: it is about seven miles compasse, it is also inhabited by Portugals, & hath no speciall merchandise, but onely some wood, it is full of Cattle, and other necessary prouitions, and lyeth open to all the world, & to whoseper will come thither, as well Englishmen as others : for that the inhabitants have not the power to refift them. A mile from thence Northward, lyeth a little Iland of two or three miles in compasse called DeCorno. The inhabitants are of the same people that dwell in Flores. Between those two Ilands and round about them, the Englishmen doe commonly stay, to watch the Ships that 50 come out of the West: for those are the first Hands, that the Ships looke out for and descry, when they faile vnto Tercera, wherby the inhabitants do but little prosper, because they are at the pleafure & commandment of all that will come vnto them, and take their goods from them, as oftentimes it hapneth. Yet for all their pouerty, not to loofe both lands and goods, they must content themfelues, and faile with enery winde, fique being Cattle & husbandry. It hath much Wine, & the best in all those Ilands, and it hath the Tercera for a present, as being there very much esteemed, and in my judgement they are the best that ever I tafted in any place, Angra, in the Hand of Tercera is the chiefe Towne and Ruler over

fauorest & pleasantest Oranges that are throughout all Portugall: so that they are brought into 40

The He of Tercera lyeth under thirty nine degrees, in the same height that Lisbone lyeth; and is distant from Lisbone lying right East and Westewo hundred and fifty Spanish miles.

Of certaine notable and memorable accidents that happened during my continuance in Tercera: in which are related many English fleetes, Sea-fights and Prizes.

"He fecond of October Anno 1,89, at the Towne of Villa dan Praya, in the Iland of Tercera, two men being in a field hard without the towns were killed with lightning. The ninth of the fame month there arrived in Tercera 14. Ships, that came from the Spanish Indies, laden with Cochenile, Hides, Gold, Siluer, Pearles, and other rich wares. They were fifty in company, when they departed out of the Iland of Hanana, whereof, in their comming out of the Channell, eleuen fink in the fame Channell by foule weather, the reit by a fforme were feattered & fenerated one from the other. The next day there came another Ship of the lame company, that failed close vnder the Hand, fo to get into the Road; where the met with an English Ship, that had not about three call Peeces, & the Spaniard twelve. They fought a long time together, which we being in the Iland might fland & behold: wherupon the Gouernor of Tercera tent two Boats of Musketiers to helpe the Ship; but before they could come at her, the English Ship had those her under water, and to we faw her finke into the Sea, with all her failes vp, and not arry thing feelle of her about the water. The Englishmen with their Boate laued the Captaine and about thirty others with him, but not one peny worth of the goods, & yet in the Ship there was at the leaft to the value of 200000. Dicats in Gold, Silver, and Pearles, the reft of the men were drowned, which might be about 50. persons, among the which were some Friers and women, which the Englishmen would not saue; Those that they had faued they set on land; & then they failed away. The 27.of the fame month, the faid 14. Ships having refreshed the clues in the Hand, departed from Tercera towards Sivil, and comming vobs the coalt of Spaine, they were taken by the Englift Ships, that lay there to watch for them, two onely excepted which escaped away, & the rest were wholly carried into England. About the same time the Earle of Comberland, with one of the Queenes Ships, and fine or fix

20 more, kept about those Hands and came oftentimes so close under the Hand, and to the Road of Anera, that the people on land might easily tell all his men that he had aboord, and knew such as walked on the Hatches: they of the lland not once flooting at them, although they might easily have done it, for they were within Musket shot both of the Towne and Fort. In these places he continued for the space of two Moneths, and failed round about the Hands, and landed in Gratiofs and Farael, as in the description of those Ilands I have already declared. Here he tooke divers Ships and Carvels, which he fent into England: fo that those of the Hand durft not once put forth their heads. At the fame time about three or foure dayes after the Earle of Cumberland had beene in the Iland of Fayael, and was departed from thence, there arrived in the faid Iland the number be of Fayael fix Indian Ships, whose Generall was one Inan Dorym: and there they discharged in true. to the Iland fortie Millions of Gold and Silger. And bauing with all speede refreshed their Ships, fearing the comming of the Englishmen, they fet faile, and arrived fafely in Saint Lucas, not meeting with the enemy, to the great good lucke of the Spaniards, and hard fortune of the Englishmen; for that within leffe then two daies, after the Gold and Silver was laden again into the Spanile Ships, the Earle of Comberland failed againe by that Hand; fo that it appeared that God would not let them haue it, for if they had once had fight thereof, without doubt it had beene theirs, as the Spaniards themselves confessed.

In the moneth of November, therearnized in Tercera two great Ships, which were the Admirall and Viceadmirall of the Fleete laden with Silver, who with flormy weather were seperated from the Fleete, and had beene in great torment and diffresse, and ready to finke; for they were an forced to vie all their Pumps ; fo that they wished a thousand times to have met with the Englibmen to whom they would willingly have given their Silver, and all that ever they brought with them, onely to faue their lives. And although the Earle of Cumberland lay still about those Ilands, yet they met not with him, so that after much paine and labor they got into the Road before Angra, where with all speed they vnladed, &discharged aboue 5. Millions of Silver, all in peeces of 8. and 10, pound great : fo that the whole Ray lay couered with plates & Chefts of Silver, Fine Millions. full of Ryals of eight, most wonderfull to behold : each Million being ten hundred thousand Ducats befides Pearles, Gold, and other ftones, which were not registred. The Admiral & chief commander of those Ships and Fleete called Alnaro Flores de Quinones was licke of the Neapolitan diteale, and was brought to land, whereof not long after he dyed in Symilia. He brought with him the Kings broad Scale and full authority to be Generall & chiefe commander vpon the Seas, and 50 of all Fleets or Ships, and of all places & Hands, or Lands wherefoeuer he came : whereupon the Gouernor of Tercera did him great honor, and betweene them it was concluded, perceiuing the weaknelle of their Ships, and the danger of the Englishmen, that they would fend the Shipsempty with Soldiers to conuey them, either to Simil or Lisbone, where they could first arrive, with adulte Pato his Maiefly of all that had path, and that he would give order to fetch the Silver, with good and lafe contoy, Wherepuon the laid Aluaro Flores staied there, under colour of keeping the Silver, but specially because of his disease, and for that they were afraid of the Englishmen. This Aluaro Flores had alone for his owne part abone fifty thouland Ducats in Pearles, which he shewed vnto vs, and fought to fell them, or barter them with vs for Spices, or bils of exchange. The faid two 6 Ships fet faile with three or foure hundred men, as well Soldiers as others, that came with them and not one man faued. The Vice-admirall cut downe her Mast, and ranne the Ship on ground out of India, and being at Sea had a ftorme, wherewith the Admirall burft and funke in the Sea, hard by Sentunal, where it built in peeces, some of the men fauing themselves by swimming, that brought the newes, but the reft were drowned.

CHAP.14.

In the fame moneth, there came two great thipsout of the Spanish ludies , and being within halfe a mile of the Road of Tercera, they met with an Englift shippe, that after they had fourthe long together, tooke them both. About leven or eight moneths before, there had beene an Englif thip in Teregra, that under the name of a Frenchman came to traffique in the Hand, there to Tade wood, and being discourred was both ship and goods conficated to the Kings vie and all the men kept prifoners : yet went they vp and downe the ffreets to get their liuings, by labourine like flaues, being in deed as fafe in that Iland, as if they had beene in prifon. But in the enduron a Sanday all the Sailers went downe behind the Hils called Brefill . where they found a Fifher. boat, whereinto they got, and rowed into the Sea to the Earle of Comberlands thip, which to their great fortune chanced at that time to come by the Hand, and anchored with his thips about to halfe a mile from the Road of Angra, hard by two small Hands, which lye about a Bales shoe from the Hand, and are full of Goats, Buckes, and Sheepe, belonging to the Inhabitants of the Iland of Torcers. Those Saylers knew it well, and thereupon they rowed voto them with their Boats, and lying at Anchor that day, they fetched as many Goats and Sheepe as they had neede of : which those of the Towne and of the Hand well faw and beheld, yet durit not once go forth. fothere remayned no more on Land but the Mafter, and the Merchant, of the faid Englifb (hip. This Mafter had a Brother in Law dwelling in England, who having newes of his brothers imprisonment in Tercera, got licence of the Queene of England, to fet forth a ship, therewith to fee if he could recouer his losses of the Spaniards, by taking tome of them, and so ro redeeme his brother, that lay priioner in Tercera, and he it was, that tooke the two Spanish thippes before the 20 Towne. The Master of the ship aforesaid, standing on the shore by me, and looking voon them. for he was my great acquaintance, the faipss being taken, that were worth three hundred thoufand Duckets, he tent all the men on Land faving only two of the principall Gentlemen which he kept abourd, thereby to ransome his brother; and sent the Pilot of one of the Indian thins that were taken, with a Letter to the Gouernour of Tercera : wherein he wrote that hee should deliuer him his brother, and he would fend the two Gentlemen on Land; if not, he would faile with them into England, as indeed he did, because the Gouernour would not doe it, saying that the Gentleman might make that fuite to the King of Spains him felfe. This Spanish Pilot we bid to Supper with vs, and the Englishmen likewise, where hee shewed vsall the manner of their fight, much commending the order and manner of the Englatemens fighting, as also for their courteous 30 vling of him; but in the end the English Pilot bkewife ftole away in a French ship, without paying any ransome as yet.

In the moneth of innuary 1590, there arrived one ship alone in Treers, that came from the Spanish Indiers, and brough newes, that there was a fleet of a hundred ships which pur out from the Firme Land of the Spanish Indiers, and by a storme were driven vypon the Coast called Florida, where they were all cast away, she having only escaped, wherein these were great riches, and many men lost, as it may well be thought is to that they made their account that of two hundred and twentie ships, that for certaine were knowned to have pur out of None Spaines, Santo Domongo, Hannon, Capo verde, Brafilia, Goines, che. In the yeare 1980, to layle for Spaine in Partuagal, there were not about fourteene or sittene of them arrived there in safetie, all the rest being 49 and the safety of th either drowned, burft or taken. In the same Moneth of January, there arrived in Tercera fitteen or fixteene ships that came from Simila, which were most Flie-boats of the low Countries, and fome Brittons that were arrested in Spaine: these came full of Souldiers, and well appointed with munition, to lade the filter that lay in Tercera, and to fetch Aluares de Flores, by the Kings commandement into Spaine. And because that time of the yeerethere is alwayes stormes about those Hands, therefore they durit not enter into the Road of Tercera, for that as then it blew fo great a fforme, that some of their thips that had anchored, were forced to cut downe their Masts, and were in danger to bee lost : and among the reft a ship of Biscay ranne against the Land, and was stricken in pieces, but all the men faued themselves. The other ships were forced to keepe the Sea, and separate themselves one from the other, where winde and weather would drive them, vntill the fitteenth of March : for that in all that time they could not have one day of faire weather to anchor in, whereby they indured much miserie, cursing both the silver and the Hand. This storme being past, they chanced to meete with small English thip of about fortie tunnes in bignesse, which by reason of the great wind could not beare all her failes: fo they fet vpon her, and tooke her, and with the English flagge in their Admirals sterne they came as proudly into the Hauen , as if they had conquered all the Realme of England : but as the Admirall that bare the English flagge vpon her flerne, was entring into the Road, there came by chance two English thips by the Hand, that paid her fowell for her paines, that they were forced to cry Miferwordia, and without all doubt had taken her, if the had beene but a mile further in the Sea : but becaute the got under the Fortreffe, which al- 62 to began to shoot at the Euglishmen, they were forced to leave her, and to put further into the Sea, having flaine five or fixe of the Spaniards. The Engliformen that were taken in the small thip were put vhder hatches, and coupled in holts, and after they had beene Prifoners three or fouredayes, there was a Spanife Enfigne-bearer in the fhip, that had a brother flaire in the fleet that came for England, who as then, minding to reuenge his death, and withall to shew his man-hood to the English Captiuses, that were in the English shippe, which they had taken, as a storefaid, tooke a Ponyard in his hand, and went downer under the Hatches, where sinding the poore Englishmen itting in bolts, with the same Ponyard he stabbed sixe of them to the heart: which two others of them perceiving, clasped each other about the middle, because they would not bee must ered by him, tirre withems there were an other were drowned. This sat was of all the Spaniar with mind distinct and very ill taken, so that they carried the Spaniard prisoner with Lishmen, where being artical, the Rings of Spaniar willed the should be sent into England, that the Queene of England might will him as she thought good: which senence his striends by intreasting to the foreurs of the should be shou

ther more specific hips, which followed the Spanish Admiráll, till hee had got vnder the The fame two English hips, which followed the Spanish Admiráll, till hee had got vnder the Fort of Treters, as I had before, par into the Sea, where they met with an other Spanish shape heng of the fame sheet, that had likewise been scattered by the storm and was only million, for the reltary in the Road this small ship the Englishmen tooke, and sent all the men on shorting any of them tout if they had knowne, what had beene done who the forefaid Emotheric store in the store of the s

20 glib Captines, I beleeue they would foone have revenged themielues, as afterward many an innocent foule payed for it. This fine thus taken by the Englishmen, was the fame that was kept and conflicated in the Iland of Teretra, by the Englishmen that got out of the Iland in aftherboat (as I faid before) and was fold winto the Spannards, that as then came from the Indies, wherewith they failed to Saint Lucas, where it was also arreited by the Duke, and appoined to goe in company to feeth the filter in Teretra, because it was a finipe that layled well: but among the Spannards fleete it was the meaneth of the Company. By this meanes it was taken from the Spannards i, and carried into England, and the Owners had it againe; when they leaft spousht of it.

The nineteenth of March, the aforefaid fhips, being nineteene in number, fet faile, having fagor. The nineteenth of March, the aforefaid fhips, being nineteene in number, fet faile, having fagor proution of necessary and good to fight valiantly toth: latt man, before they would yeeld or lofe their riches; and although they fet their course for Saint Loway, the wind draw them wroth Lisbows, which (as it feemed) was willing by his force to helpethem, and to bring them thither in fafetic: although Massia de Flores, both against the wind and weather would perforce haue failed to Saint Loway, but being constrained by the wind, and importunitie of the Sailtres, that protested they would require their loffes and damages of him, he was content to faile to Libbow: from whence the filter was by Land carried into Sainta. At Cape Saint Vincons, there lay a Fleet of twentie English shippes, to w.tch for the Armada, io that it they had put into Saint Loway, they had fallen right into their 3 hands, which if the wind had ferred they had done. And therefore they may fay that the wind

a) hands, which if the wind had ferued they had done. And therefore they may lay that the wind had lent them a happie Voyage: for if the Englithmen had met with them, they had firely beene ingreat danger, and possibly but few of them had escaped, by reason of the scare wherewith they were possessed, and the scale to make the Spaniard out of heart, to the contrarie to give the Englishmen more courage, and to make them bolder for that they are victorious, shout and valiant: and seeing all their enterprises due take lo good effect, that thereby they are become Lords and Masters of the Sea; and need care for no man, as it well appeareth by this burse Discourse.

In the month of March 1590. There was a Blafing Starre with a taile feene in Tercera, that continued four nights together, stretching the tayle towards the South.

In the month of Mry, a Caruell of Figuel arrived at Torcers, in the Hauen or Road of Asgra, ladem with Oxen, Sheepe, Hennes, and all other kinds of wichals, and full of people, which by a forme had broken her Ruther, whereby the Sea calt her about and therewith he limke, and in her were drowned three children, and a Frier France/ean, the reft of the men faued themselves by fiviaming, and by helpe from the short, but all the Cartle and Hennes came drowned to land; the Frier was buried with a great Procession and Solemnitie, effecting him for a Saine, because he was taken by deal with his Book between his armes; for the which cause every man came to looke on him as a Miracle, guing great Offerings to say Malfes for his soule.

The first of August, the Governor of Treera, received adulie out of Peringal and Spaine, that two yeeres before the date of his Letters, there were Lyled out of England twelve great hip pes 60 well appointed, which tull relolution to take their journie, seum of them into the Peringal Indus, and the other fine to ON Malacea: of the which fine, two overe cut away in pushing the Straits of Magellanes, and three Lyled to Malacea: but what they had done there, was as then not knowne. The other seum pushed the Cope de bons Sperauza, and arrived in Indus, where they put into the Coult of Walabares, but let them goe againe; and two Turk-sh Gallies, that came out of the Straits of Mecca or the Red Sea, to whom likewife they did no hurt. And there they laded their fhips wis Spices, and returned backe againe on their way : but where or in what place they had laden , it was not certainely knowne , fauing onely that thus much was written by the Gouernour of India, and fent over Land to Venice, and from thence to Madrill.

Six M.Frobilher.

The feventh of August, a Nauie of English ships was feene before Tercera, beeing twentie in number, and fine of them the Queenes thips : their Generall was one Martin Frobifber, as wee after had intelligence. They came purposely to watch for the fleet of the Spanish Indies, and for the Indian thips, and the thippes of the Countries in the West : which put the Handers in great feare, specially those of Fayses, for that the Englishmen sent a Trumpet to the Governour to aske certaine wine, flesh, and other victuals for their money, and good friendship. They of Fried did not onely refuse to give eare voto them, but with a shot killed their Mossenger or Trumpetter: which the Englishmen tooke in suil part, fending them word that they were best to looke to themselues, and stand upon their guard, for they meant to come and wisit them whether they would or no. The Gouernour made them answere, that he was there, in the behalfe of his Maiestie of Spaine and that he would doe his best, to keepe them out, as he was bound : but no thing was done, although they of Fanel were in no little feare, fending to Tercera for aide, from whence they had certaine Barkes with Powder and Munition for warre, with some Bisket and other necellary prouition.

The thirtieth of August, we received very certaine newes out of Portugal, that there were eightie ships put out of the Carunho, laden with Victuals, Munition, Money, and Souldiers, to goe for Britaine to aide the Catholikes and Leaguers of France, against the King of Nauarre. At the fame time, two Netherland Hulkes, comming out of Portugal to Tercera, beeing halfe the Seasouer, met with foure of the Queenes shippes, their Generall beeing Sir lobn Hawkins, that flaved them, but let them goe againe, without doing them any harme. The Netberlanders reported, that each of the Queenes ships had eightie Peeces of Ordnance, and that Captaine Drake lay with forcie thins in the Englifb Channell, watching for the Armie of Carunho : and likewife that there lay at the Cape Saint Vincent tenne other English thips, that if any thips escaped from the Ilands, they might take them. Those tidings put the Ilanders in great feare, lest if they failed of the Spanish fleete, and got nothing by them, that then they would fall vpon the Hands, be- 20 caule they would not returne emptie home, whereupon they held straight watch, sending ad-

uife voto the King what newes they heard.

The first of September, there came to the lland of Saint Michael a Portugall thip, out of the Hauen of Pernanbuce, in Brafilia, which brought newes that the Admirall of the Portugall fleet, that came from India, having miffed the Hand of Saint Helena, was of necessitie constrained to put in at Pernanbuco, although the King had expreily under a great penaltie forbidden him foto doe, because of the Wormes that there doe spoile the ships. The same ship wherein Bernaldine Ryboro, was Admirall, the yeere before 1589. Sayled out of Liftone into the Indies, with fine thips in her company, whereof but foure got into India, the hit was never heard of, so that it was thought to be cast away : The other foure returned fafe againe into Portugal, though the Ad- 40 mirall was much spoiled, because he met with two English ships, that fought long with him, and flue many of his men, but yet he escaped from them.

The fift of the same moneth, there arrived in Tercera, a Caruell of the Iland of Corno, and brought with her fiftie men that had beene spoyled by the Englishmen, who had fet them on shore in the Hand of Corno, being taken out of a shippe that came from the Spanish Indies, they brought tydings that the Englishmen had taken foure more of the Indian ships, and a Caruell with the King of Spaines Letters of aduite for the thips comming out of the Portugal Indies, and that with those which they had taken, they were at the least forty English ships together, so that not one Barke escaped them, but fell into their hands, and that therefore the Portugall ships comming out of India, durit not put into the Hands, but tooke their course underfortie and forcie two de- 50 grees, and from thence failed to Lifton, flunning likewife the Cape Saint Vincent, otherwife they could not have had a prosperous iourney of it, for that as then the Sea was full of English thips. Wherupon the King admied the fleet, lying in Hanana, in the Spanish Indies ready to come for Spaine, that they should flay there all that yeare till the next yeere, because of the great danger they might fall into by the Englishmen, which was no small charge and hinderance to the fleet, for that the ships that lie there doe consume themselves, and in a manner eare vp one another, by reason of the great number of people, together with the scarcitie of all things, so that many thips choic rather, one by one to adventure themselves alone, to get home, then to stay there : all which fell into the Englishmens hands, whereof divers of the men were brought into Tercera, for that a whole day we could see nothing else, but spoyled men fet on shore, some out 60 of one ship some out of another, that pittie it was to see, all of them cursing the Englishmen, and their owne fortunes, with those that had beene the causes to prouoke the Englishmen to fight, and complayning of the finall remedie and order taken therein by the King of Spaines Officers.

The nineteenth of the fame moneth, there came to Tercera a Caruel of Lifen, with one of the Kings Officers, to cause the goods that were faued out of the ship, which came from Malacea, (for the which we stayed there) to be laden, and lent to Lifton. And at the same time there put out of the Carunda one Don Alonfo de Baffan, with fortie great ships of warre to come vito the Ilands, there to watch for the fleet of the Spanish and Portugal Indies, and the goods of the Malaces hip being laden, they were to convoy them all together into the River of Life on : but being certaine dayes at Sea, alwayes having a contrary wind they could not get who the Hands: only two of them that were feattered from the fleet, they prefently returned backe to feeke them : in the meane time the King changed his minde, and caused the fleet to stay in India, as I said before: and therefore he fent word wnto Don Alongo de Baffan, that hee should return again to the Cato ranks, which he prefently did (without doing any thing, nor once approching neere the llands, listing only the two forefaid thips, for he well knew that the Englifemen lay by the Hand of Cormobut he would not wifit them : and to be returned to the Hausn of Carmba, whereby our goods that came from Malacca, were yet to thip, and cruffed up againe, forced to flay a more fortunate time, with patience perforce. The three and twentieth of Ochober, there arrived in Toceras Carvell, with aduise out of

Portingal, that of fine thips, which in the yeere 1 550. were laden in Lift on for the Indies, foure of them were turned agains to Portingall, after they had been four moneths abroad, and that the Admirall, wherein the Vice-roy called Mathia de Alburkerke lailed, had only gotten to India, as afterward newes thereof was brought ouer Land, having beene at the least eleven monethes at 20 Sea, and neuer faw Land, and came in great milery to Malacea. In this ship there died by the 280. mendie way two hundred and eightie men, according to a note by himselfe made, and lent to the Carway two numerics and the sames and furnames of enery man, together with a description of his by one mans Voyage, and the mifery they had indured : which was only done, because he would not lose the vanite. gouernment of India: and for that cause he had sworne either to lose his life, or to arrive in India as indeed he did afterwards, but to the great danger, loss and hinderance of his company, that were forced to buy it with their lines, and onely for want of prouision, as it may well bee thought: for he knew full well that if he had returned backe againe into Portingall, as the other thips did, hee should have beene casheered from his Indian Regiment, because the people began alreadie to murmurre at him, for his proude and loftie minde. And among other things that 30 the wed his pride the more, behind aboue the Gallery of his thip, he caused Fortune to be painted. and his owne Picture with a staffe standing by her, as it were threatning Forume, with this Possie, Quero que vencus, that is, I will have thee to overcome: which beeing read by the Cardinall and other Gentlemen (that to honour him aboord his thip) it was thought to be a point of exceeding folly. But it is no strange matter among the Portingalle, for they aboue all others must of force Let the Foole peope out of their fleenes, specially when they are in authoritie : for that ! knew the faid Mathias de Alberkerk in India, being a Souldier and a Captaine, where he was e-

Reemed and accounted for one of the best of them, and much honoured, and beloued of all men. as behaving himfelfe courteously to every man : whereby they all defired that he might be Viceroy. But when he once had received his Patent with full power and authoritie from the King to DeVice-roy, hee changed so much from his former behaviour, that by reason of his pride, they all began to feare and curie him, and that before he departed out of Lifton, as it is often feene in many men that are advanced vnto state and dignitie.

The twentieth of Ianuary, Anno 1591, there was newes brought out of Portingall into Tercers, that the Englishmen had taken a thip, that the King had fent into the Portingal Indies, with admie to the Vice-roy, for the returning agains of the fours thips that should have gone to India, and because the ships were come backe againe, that ship was stuffed and laded as full of goods as possible it might be, hauing likewise in ready money five hundred thousand Duckets in Rials of eight, besides other wares. It departed from Lisbone in the moneth of November 1590. and met with the Engliftmen, with whom for a time it fought : but in the end it was taken and carried 50 into England with men and all, yet when they came there the men werelet at libertie, and returned into Liftone, where the Captaine was committed Prifoner: but hee excufed himselfe, and was released, with whom I spake my selfe, and he made this report vnto me. At the same time also they tooke a thip that came from the Myne laden with Gold, and two thips laden with Pepper, and Spices that were to faile into Italie, the Pepper onely that was in them, being worth 178000. Duckets: all theleships were carried into England, and made good prize.

In the moneth of July , An. 1591, there happened an Earth-quake in the Hand of S. Michaell, which continued from the fix and twentieth of July to the twelfth of August : in which time Earthquake no man durft flay within his house, but fled into the fields, fasting and praying, with great for- most terrible. tow for that many of their houles fell downe, and a Towne called Villa Franca, was almost cleane razed to the ground all the Cloysters and houses shaken to the earth, and thereia some people flaine. The Land in tome places rose vp, and the Cliffes removued from on place to another, and some Hils were defaced and made even with the ground. The Earthquake was softrong. Promptes. that the flips which lay in the Road, and on the Sea, shaked as if the World would have turned round : there iprang alio a Fountaine out of the earth, from whence for the space of four dayes,

1678

Sir Richard

Hat Tom. 1.

This Storie

There were

Shippes the

Si: Richard

counfeiled

(which had

and thought to made way

thorow their

made fome

foring loofe

neffe of the

the winds of

there flowed a most cleare water, and after that it ceased. At the same time they heard such thunder and noise under the earth, asif all the Dinels in hell had beene affembled together in that place, wherewith many died for feare. The Hand of Tercera shooke foure times together. to that it feemed to turne about, but there happened no misfortune voto it. Earthquakes are common in those Ilands, for about twenty yeares past there happened another ear house. where in a high Hill that lyeth by the same towne of Villa Franca, fell halfe downe, and covered all the towne with earth and killed many men.

. The fine and twentieth of August, the Kings Armada, comming out of Farel arrived in Teres. ra, being in all thirty Ships, Biskaies, Portugals, and Spaniards : and ten Dutch flye-boates, that were arefted in Lisbone to ferue the King, besides other small Ships Pataxos, that came to ferue to as mellengers from place to place, and to discouer the Seas. This Nauie came to flay for and conuoy the Sinps that thould come from the Spanifo Indies, and the flye-boates were appointed in their returns home, to take in the goods that were faued in the loft Ship that came from Malacea, and to convoy it to Lisbone.

The thirteenth of September the faid Armado arrived at the Hand of Corne, where the Ene-Isomen with about fixteene Ships, as then lay, staying for the Spanish Fleete: whereof some or the most part were come, and there the English were in good hope to have taken them. But when they perceived the Kings Army to be ftrong, the Admirall being the Lord Thomas How. and, commanded his Fleete not to fall your them, nor any of them once to seperate their Shippes Greenuile. See from him, valelle he gaue commission to to doe : notwithstanding the Vice-Admirall, Sir Rich- 20 and Greenfield, being in the Ship called the Remenge, went into the Spanish Fleete, and that apenned by Sir mong them, doing them great hurt, and thinking the rest of the company would have followed : which they did not but left him there, and failed away; the cause why they could not know: which the Spaniards perceiving, with leven or eight Ships they boorded her, but the withflood but fix of thefe them all, fighting with them at the leaft twelve houres together, and funke two of them, one Queenes; and being a new double Flie-boate of twelve thouland tunnes, and Admirall of the Flie-boates, the other a Biscaine: But in the end by reason of the number that came upon her, she was taken, but Greensile ftaid to their great loffe; for they had loft in fighting, and by drowning about four hundred men; and to recouer his of the English were flaine about a hundred, Sir Richard Greenfield himselfe being wounded in his men on thore; braine, whereof afterwards he died. He was borne into the Ship called the Saint Paul, wherein 30 93.of his men were ficke. He was the Admirall of the Fleete Don Alonfo de Barfan : there his wounds were dreit by the Spascorned to five nife Surgeons, but Don Along himselfe would neither fee him, nor speake with him; all the as the Mafter reft of the Captaines and Gentlemen went to vifite him, and to comfort him in his hard fortune, wondring at his courage and flout heart, for that he flewed not any figne of faintneffe nor change ing of colow. But feeling the houre of death to approach, he spake these words in Spanish, and beeneberter) faid; Here dye I Richard Greenfield, with a toyfull and quiet minde, for that I have ended my life at a true Souldier ought to doe, that hath fought for his Countrey, Queene, Religion, and honour, whereby my Soule most toyfull departeth out of this body, and shall alwayes leave behinde it an enertasting fame fquadrons, and of a valiant and true Soldier, that hath done his duette, as hee was bound to doe. When he had hnished these or such other like words, he gaue up the Ghost with great and stout courage, and no man 40 till the greatcould perceive any true figne of heavineffe in him.

This Sir Richard Greenfield was a great and a rich Gentleman in England, and had great years-S. Philipof 1500 ly reuenewes of his owne inheritance : but he was a man very vnquiet in his minde, and greatly tuns being in affected to warre; in so much as of his owne private motion he offered his fervice to the Queene. him, becalmed He had performed many valiant acts, and was greatly feared in these Ilands, and knowne of every man; but of nature very severe, so that his owne people hated him for his fiercenesse, and spake very hardly of him : for when they first entred into the Fleete or Armado, they had their wenge could not feele her failes great faile in a readinesse, and might possibly enough haue failed away; for it was one of the best nor helme, and Ships for faile in England; and the Master perceiuing that the other Ships had I for them, and followed not after, commanded the great faile to be cut, that they might make away : but Sir Rich-50 by the S. Philip ard Greenfield threatned both him, and all the rest that were in the Ship, that if any man laid hand vpon it, he would cause him to be hanged, and so by that occasion they were compelled to fight, and in the end were taken. He was of to hard a complexion, that as hee continued among the Spanish Captaines while they were at dinner or supper with him, hee would caroule three or foure Glasses of Wine, and in a brauery take the Glasses betweene his teeth, and crash them in peeces, and swallow them downe, so that often times the bloud ran out of his mouth without any harme at all vnto him : and this was told me by divers credible persons that many times flood and beheld him. The Englishmen that were lest in the Ship, as the Captaine of the

had first about roo found men to fustaine to the brunt. Yet the endured fifter ne houtes fight, fifteene Armadas by turne, 800, thot, 60 many entries, 53. failes of men of warre, and 10000, men to doethis. After all this, Sir R. Grecafield now wounded, commanded to bee " up the Ship but the Captaine intreating to the contrary, he Miler was fent, vinknowne to Sir R Greenfield, to treat a compolition with a an the Generall, who yeelded their lives to be faued, and to be fint for England, the better fort to pay raniome but free meane time from orifon and Gallie. Almost 1000,01 the enemies were staine in this fight. Thus have I given you the birds of Sir Walters report aife, to make this florie compleate. Soldiers,

Souldiers, the Master and others were dispersed into divers of the Spany Bhips that had taken them, where there had almost a new fight arisen betweene the Bifcaines and the Portugals; while each of them would have the honour to have first boorded her, so that there grew a great noise and quarrell among them, one taking the chiefe Ancient, and the other the Flagge, and the Captaine and enery one held his owne. The finips that had boorded her were altogether out of order and broken, and many of their men hurt, whereby they were compelled to come into the Hand of Tercers, there to repaire themselves: where being arrived, I and my chamber-fellow, to heare fome newes went abourd one of the Ships being a great Biscaine, and one of the twelue Apofiles, whose Captaine was called Bertandono, that had bin Generall of the Biscaines in the fleete to that went for England, He feeing vs, called vs vp into the Gallery, where with great curtefie hereceized vs, being as then fet at dinner with the English Captaine that fat by him, and had on a lute of blacke Veluet; but he could not tell vs any thing, for that he could speake no other language but English and Latine, which Bartandono also could a little speake. The English Captaine that he might come on land with his weapon by his fide, and was in our lodging with the Englisoman that was kept priloner in the Hand, being of that thip whereof the failers got away, as I taid before. The Gouernour of Tercera bad him to dinner, and fhewed him great curtefie. The Matter likewise with licence of Bartandono came on land, and was in our lodging, and had arthe leaft ten or twelve wounds, as well in his head, as on his body, whereof after that being at Sea, betweene Lishone and the Ilands he died. The Captaine wrote a Letter, wherein he de-20 clared all the manner of the fight, and left it with the English Merchant that lay in our lodging, to find it to the Lord Admirall of England. The Englash Captaine comming to Lisbone, was there well received, and not any hurt done vnto him, but with good condoy fent to Sentunal, and from thence tayled into England, with all the self of the Englishmen that were taken

The Spanish Armie stated at the lland of Corno till the last of September, to assemble the rest of the Fleete rogether: which in the end were to the number of one hundred and forty fayle of Ships, parely comming from India, and parely of the Army, and being altogether ready vnto faile to Tercera in good company, there foldinly role to hard and cruell a storme, that those of the Great florme, Hand did affirme, that in mans memory there was neuer any fuch feene or heard of before : for 30 it seemed the Sea would have swallowed up the Hands, the water mounting higher then the Cliffes, which are to high that it amafeth a man to behold them : but the Sea reached aboue them, and living fifthes were throwne vpon the land. This ftorme continued not onely a day or two with one winde, but seven or eight dayes continually, the winde turning round about, in all places of the compale, at the leaft twice or thrice during that time, and all alike, with a continuall storme and tempest most terrible to behold, even to vs that were on shore, much more Greathurs, then to fuch as were at Sea : fo that onely on the Coasts and Clifts of the Hand of Tercers, there were about twelue Ships cast away, and not onely upon the one side, but round about it in every corner: whereby nothing elfe was heard but complaining, crying, lamenting, and telling here is a ship broken in peeces against the Chiffes, and there another, and all the men drowned : so that

40 for the space of twenty dayes after the storme, they did nothing else but fish for dead men, that Reseggereues. for the space of twenty dayes after the storme, they did nothing encourt and for dead men, that god with the continually came driding on the shore. Among the rest was the English ship called the Renenge, solded about that was call away youn a Chiffe neere to the Hand of Tereers, where it brake in a hundred pee- 100.0therships ces, and funke to the ground, having in her fewenty men Galleges, Bifcaines, and others, with of the Spaniards some of the captine Englishmen, whereof but one was laued that got vp vpon the Cliffes aliue, attending her and had his body and head all wounded, and he being on thore brought vs the newes, defining to fates: as great be fhriuen, and thereupon prefently died. The Reusage had in her diuers faire Braffe Peeces, that were all funke in the Sea, which they of the Hand were in good hope to weigh vp againe the next Summer following. Among these Ships that were calt away about Tercera, was likewite a Flie-boate, one of those that had bin arested in Portugal to serue the King, called the White

50 Done. The Master of her, was one Cornelins Martenson of Sebiedam in Holland, and there were in her one hundred Souldies, as in every one of the rest there was. He being over ruled by the Captaine, that he could not be Master of his owne, fayling here and thereat the mercy of God, as the storme drove him, in the end came within the fight of Tercera: which the Spaniards perceiuing, thought all their fafety onely to confish in putting into the Road, compelling the Mafter and the Pilot to make towards the Hand, although the Master refused to doe it, saying, that they were most fure there to be cast away, and veterly spoiled; but the Captain called bim drunkard, & Heretick, and striking him with a staffe, commanded him to do as he would have him. The Mafter feeing this, and being compelled to doe it, faid: well then my Mafters, feeing it is the desire of you all to be cast away, I can but loose one life; and therewith desperately he failed to-60 wards the shoare, and was on that side of the lland, where there was nothing effe but hard stones and Rockes, as high as Mountaines, most terrible to behold, where some of the Inhabitants stood with long ropes and corke bound at the end thereof, to throw them downe wnto the men, that they might lay hold vpon them and faue their hues; but few of them got fo neere, most of them being call away, and smitten in peeces before they could get to the wall. The Ship failed in this Aaaaaaa his failes; fo nenge could not was boorded and foure others. Thefe were bearen feucrall Armadas affailed her. All her Powder was fpent to the laftbarreilmor manner (as I faid before) towards the Hand, and approaching to the shoare, the Master being an old man, and full of yeares, called his Sonne that was in the ship with him, and having imbra ced one another, and taken their last farewell, the good old father willed his Sonne not to take care for him, but feeke to faue himfelte : for (faid he) fonne, thou art yong, and may have fome hope to face thy life, but as for me it is no great matter (I am old) what become of me, and therewith each of these shedding many teares, as every loning father and kinde childe may well confider : the ship fell vpon the Cliffes and brake in peeces, the Father on the one side, the some on the other fide falling into the fea, each laying hold upon that which came next to hand, but to no purpose; for the sea was so high and furious, that they were all drowned, and onely sourceteene or fifteene faued themselves by swimming, with their legges and armes halfe broken and 10 out of ioynt; among the which was the Masters sonne, and soure other Duich Boyes : the rest of the Spaniards and failers, with the Captaine and Mafter were drowned: whose heart would not melt with teares to behold fo grieuous a tight, specially considering with himselfe that the greatell cause thereof was the bealtlinesse and intolency of the Spaniards, as in this onely example may well be feene : whereby may be confidered how the other ships sped, as we our selues did in part behold, and by the men that were faued did heare more at large, as also some others of our Countrimen that as then were in the like danger can well witnesse.

On the other Hands the loffe was no leffe then in Torcera; for on the Hand of Saint George there were two Ships cast away : on the Iland of Pico two Ships : on the Iland of Gratiofa three thips, & betides those there came everywhere round about divers peeces of broken thips, & other 20 things fleeting towards the Hands, wherewith the Sea was all couered most pittifull to behold. On the Hand of Saint Michael, there were foure Ships cast away, and betweene Tercera and Saint Michaels; three more were funke, which were feene and heard to crie out, whereof not one man was faued. The rest put into the Sea without Masts, all torne and rent : so that of the whole Fleete and Armado, being one hundred and forty ships in all, there were but thirty two or thirto three arrived in Spaine and Portagall, yea and those few with so great milery, paine and labour. that not two of them arrived there together, but this day one, and to morrow another next day the third, & fo one after the other to the number aforefaid. All the rest were cast away you the Tlands, and overwhelmed in the fea: whereby may be confidered what great loffe and hinderance they received at that time : for by many mens judgements it was effected to be much more 30 then was left by their Armie that came for England, and it may well be thought, and prefumed. that it was no other but a just plague purpolely lent by God vpon the Spaniards, and that it might truely be faid, the taking of the Remenge was justly revenged vpon them, and not by the might or force of man, but by the power of God, as some of them openly faid in the life of Tercera, that they believed verily God would confume them, and that he tooke part with Latherans and Heretickes: faying further, that so soone as they had throwne the dead body of the Viceadmirall Sir Richard Greenfield ouer-boord, they verily thought that as he had a diuellish Faith and Relion, and therefore the Divels loved him, to he presently funke into the bottome of the Sea, and downe into Hell, where he raifed up all the Dinels to the revenge of his death : and that they brought to great flormes and torments upon the Spaniards, because they onely maintained the 40 Catholike and Romifb Religion : fuch and the like blafphemies against God, they ceased not openly to viter, without that any man reproued them therein, nor for their false opinions, but the most part of them rather said and affirmed, that of truth it must needes be fo.

and so. others of the Indian Ficete.

Note.

Caiaphus pro-

God taketh

part with Lu-

So then the

gares of hell

preuaileth a-sainft their

phelieth.

therans.

As one of those Indian Flee: es put out of Nona Spaigna, there were fine and thirty of them by forme and tempelt call away and drowned in the Sea, being fiftie in all, so that but fifteene escaped. Of the Fleete that came from Santo Domingo, there were foureteene cast away, comming out of the Channell of Hanana, whereof the Admirall and Viceadmirall were two of them : and Two Shipsof from Terra Firma in India, there came two ships laden with Gold and Silver, that were taken treasure taken by the Englishmen, and before the Spanish Armie came to Corno, the Englishmen at times had taken by the English, at the least twenty ships, that came from Saint Domingo, India, Brafillia, &c. and all fent into 50 England. Whereby it plainly appeareth, that in the end God will affuredly plague the Spaniands, having already blinded them, to that they have not the fence to perceive it, but ftill to remaine in their oblinate opinions; but it is loft labour to thrine against God, and to trust in man, as being foundations erected upon the fands, which with the winde are blowne downe and operthrowne, as we daily fee before our eyes, and now not long fince in many places have eutdently observed; and therefore let every man but looke into his ownc actions, and take our Low-Countries for an example, wherein we can but blame our owne sinnes and wickednesses, which doth fo blinde vs, that we wholly forget and reject the benefits of God, continuing the feruants and yoke-flaues of Sathan. God of his mercy open our eyes and hearts, that wee may know our onely health and Sauiour Iefus Christ, who onely can helpe, gouerne, and presente vs, and gue vs 60 a happy end in all our affaires. By this destruction of the Spaniards, and their euill successe, the lading and shipping of the goods that were faued out of the ship that came from Malacca to Tercera, was againe put off ; and therefore wee must have patience till it please God to fen. la fitter time, and that we receive further adule and order from his Majestie of So aine.

All this being thus past, the Farmers of Pepper and other Merchants that had their goods in Tersers, which were taken out of the loft flip that came from Malacta, feeing that the hope of any Armada, or any ships in the Kings behalfe to be sent to fetch it, was all in vaine : they made request vnto his Maiesty, that he would grant them licence enery man particularly to ship his goods in what shiphe would at his owneaduenture, which in the end, after long suite, was granted, ypon condition that every man should put in sureties, to deliner the goods in the Customehouse at Lisbone, to the end the King might be paied his custome, as also that the goods that should be deliuered vnto them in Tercera, should all be registred; whereupon the Farmers of Pepper, with other Merchants, agreed with a Flufringer, to fetch all the Cloues, Nutmegs, To Mace, and other spices and goods that belonged vnto them, the Pepper onely excepted, which as then the King would not grant to lade. The same Ship arrived in Tercers about the last of Nouember, and because it was somewhat dangerous, being the latter end of the yeare, we laded her with all the speede we could, for as then the coast was cleare of Englishmen. To be short, this Flushinger being laden with most part of the goods, fauing the Pepper that was left behinde, we fet faile for Lisbone, passing some small stormes, not once meeting with any ship, but onely vpon the coast where we saw ten Hollanders, that sailed with Corne towards Ligorne, and other 11122 places in Italie, and fo by Gods helpe vpon the fecond of Ianuary, Anno 1 592. we arrived in the River of Lisbone, being nine yeares after my departure from thence, and there I staied till the month of July, to dispatchs such things as I had to doe, and voon the feventeenth of the fame month, I went to Sentuual, where certaine Hollanders lay, with whom I went for Helland. The end of the eight Booke. ENG-A22222 2

CHAP. 14. Request made to the King of Spaine, River of Lisbone.

ENGLISH PLANTATIONS, DISCOVERIES,

ACTS, AND OCCURRENTS,

IN VIRGINIA AND SVMMER ILANDS SINCE THE YEERE

1606. TILE 1624.

THE XIXTH BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

Part of the first Patent granted by his Maiestie for the Plantation of Virginia, Aprill the tenth 1606, MES by the grace of God, Gre. Whereas our lawing and welldipofed Subsects, Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Sümmers; Knightz Richard Hakluyt Clerke, Prebendary of Wessemilers, Knightz Richard Wingssield, Thomas Hannam, Rawleigh Gilbert Esquires, William Parker, George Popham, and diness athers of our lawing Subsects have been humble Suisors-vanithers would ownch fafe vote them our License to make Habitation, Plantation, and to deduce a Colonie of sandry of our people into that part of America; commonly called Vinginia; and wher parts and Territories in America, either appertayming outo vs., or which now are not attually polified by any Coristian Princeor people, fitante thying and being all along the Sac Cassib Stevenen therrite some degrees of Northerly latitude from the Equinoctial Line, and forthe fine degrees of the same latitude, and in the mayne Land betweene the same thirtie foure and fortie fine degrees, and the Ilands thereunto adtacent within one hundred miles of the Coast thereof. And to that end, and for the more speedie accomplishment of the faid intended Plantation and Habitation there, are desirous to deside themselves into 50 two severall Colonies and Companies, the one consisting of certaine Knights, Gentlemen, Merchants and other Aduenturers of our Citie of London and elsewhere, which are and from time to time Shall be inned unto them, which doe desire to beginne their Plantations and Habitations, in some fit and convenient place betweene thirtie foure and fortie one degrees of the faid latitude, all along $2 the Sea Coast of Vitginia, and Coast of America aforesaid. And the other consisting of sundry Knights, Gentlemon, Merchans, and other Aduenturers of our Cities, of Briftoll and Exeter, and of our Towns of Ply mmouth and other places which doe toyne themselves unto that Colonie, which desire to beginne their Plantations and Habitations in some fit and convenient place betweene thirtie eight and fortie five degrees of the said latitude: all alongst the faid Coast of Virginia and America, as that Coast lyeth. We greatly commending and graciously accepting of their desires to the furtherance of so Noble a worke, which may by the providence of Almighie God bereafter tend to the glorie of his Divine Maiestie, in propagating of Christian Religion, to such people as jet line in darknesse, miserable ignorance of the true knowledge andworship of God, and may in time bring the Infidels and Sauages (lining in those parts) to burnane civilitie and to a fettled and quiet government, doe by thefe our Letters Patents graciously accept of, and agree to their humble and well intended desires, And doe therefore for us our Heires and Successours

The first Colony to bee planted betw:xt 24.86 41. degrees of Nor:blaticude. Tory to have all the Lands. &c. for the space of tiftie miles West South-weft from the place o: their firft plannings, and The like East North-cuft with all Hands againft hem, 100. wihin the Land, &c. None to inhabir on the ou: their fpeciali licence in writing, &cc.

grant and agree that the faid Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Summers, Richard Hakluyt, and Edward Maria Wingfield, Aduenturers of our Cute of London, and all fuch others as are or shall be igned unto them of that Colome fall be called the first Colonie, and they shall and may beginne their faid first Plantation and Seate, of their first abode and Habitation at any place upon the faid Coast of Virginia or America, where they shall thinke fit and connenient, betweene the faid thirtie foure and fortie one degrees of the said latitude. And that they shall have all the Lands, Woods, Soyle, Grounds. Hauens, Ports, Rivers, Mynes, Minerals, Marishes, Waters, Fishings, Commodities, and Hereditaments what somer, from the faid first seate of their Plantation, and Habitation by the space of fiftie miles of English Statute measure all alongst the said Coast of Virginia and America, towards the west and South-west as the Coast lyeth, withall the Hands within one hundred miles directly over against the 10 Same Sca Coast: And also all the Lands, Soyle, Grounds, Hauens, Ports, Rivers, Mynes, Myneralls. Woods, Marihes, Waters, Fishings, Commodities, and Hereditaments, what seener from the saidplace of their first Plantation and Habitation for the space of siftee like English miles at alongst the said Coast all Mynes, &c. of Virginia, and America, towards the East and North-east as the Coast theth, together with all the la lands within one hundred miles directly oner against the same Sea-coast. And also all the Lands, Woods. Soyle, Grounds, Haums, Ports, Rivers, Mynes, Mynerals, Marifees, Waters, Fistings, Commodities, and Hereditaments, what seemer from the same, fiftie miles every way on the Sea Coast direlly into in the Sta ouer the manne Landby the space of one bundred like English miles. And shall and may inhabit and remarne there, and shall and may also build and fortific within any the same for their better safeguard and defence, according to their best discretions, and the direction of the Conneell of that Colonie. And that 20 no other of our Subiects [hall be permitted or suffered to plant, or inhabit behind or on the backeside of them towards the mayne Land, without the expresse license or consent of the Councell of that Colonic. Dacklide with thereunto in writing first had or obtained. And we doe likewise for vs our Heires and Successors, by these presents, grant and agree that the Said Thomas Hanham, Rawleigh Gilbert, William Parker, and Groese Popliam, and all others of the Towne of Plimmouth in the Countie of Devon, or elembere, which are or Shall be toyned unto them of that Colonie Shall be called the second Colonie, and that ther Ball and may begin their faid first Plantation and Seate, of their first aboad and Habitation at any Place upon the faid Coast of Virginia and America; where they shall thinke fit and connenient betweene thirtie eight and fortie fine degrees of the same latitude, and that they ball have all the Lands, Soyle, Greunds, Hauens, Ports, Riners, Mynes, Minerals, Woods, Marifhes, Waters, Fiftings, Cem. 30 modifies, and Hereditaments, what souer from the first Seate of their Plantation and Habitation. br the Bace of fiftee like English miles, as a aforefaid, all along It the faid Coaft of Virginia and America towards the West and South-west, and towards the South as the Coast lieth: And all the Hands within one hundred miles directly oner against the same Sea Coast. And also all the Lands, Soyle, Grounds, Hauens, Ports, Riners, Mynes, Mynerals, Woods, Marifies, Waters, Fishings, Commoduies, and Hereditaments what some from the said place of their first Plantation and Habitation for the space of siftie like English miles all alongit the faid Coast of Virginia and America towards the East and Northeast, and towards the North as the Coast tyeth, and all the Hands within one hundred miles directly over og ainst the same Coost, and also all the Lends, Soyle, Grounds, Hauers, Posts, sheres, Woods, Affret, 40 Affret also Mariflet, Waters, Fishings, Commodities and Heredisaments what source, from the same 40 fiftie miles e. very way on the Sea Coast deretty into the mayne Land, by the frace of one hundred like English miles; and Shall and may inhabu there, and shall and may also build and fortific within any the fame, for their better safeguard according to their best discretions, and the direction of the Counces of that Colonic, and that nane of our Subjects shall be permitted or suffered to plant or inhabit behind, or on the backe of them towards the mayne Land, without the expresselections or consent of the Councell of that Colonie in writing thereunto first had and obteined. Provided alwayes, Go. It followerh that neither Colonie shall plant within one hundred miles of each other; also that each Colonie shall have a Councell of thirteene persons to rule and be ruled according to Articles fee downe and confirmed under the Prinie Seale (which I haue, but for breuitie omit, as alto the rest of this Patent) the Seales of each Colonic appointed, the digging of Mynes granted to in the fame, and on the backfide of their Colonies within the mayne Land, paying the fit of Gold and Silver, and the fifteenth of Copper to the King; libertie to carrie all Subjects (not refirained) which will goe with them. Of coyning for the Colonies vie there, of repelling enemies, of flaving thips which trade there without leave, were too long to reherte, feeing this Patent hath beene often altered and renewed.

CHAP.

CHAP, II2

Observations gathered out of a Discourse of the Plantation of the Southerne Colonie in Virginia by the English, 1 606. Written by that Honorable Gentleman Master GEORGE PERCY.

NSaturday the twentieth of December in the yeere 1606, the fleet fell from London, and the fift of lanuary we anchored in the Downes; but the winds continued contrarie fo long, that we were forced to flay there some time, where wee suffered great stormes, but by the skilfulnesse of the Captaine wee suffered no great lolle or danger. The twelfth day of February at night we faw a blazing Starre, and presently a The next day ftorme. The three and twentieth day we fell with the Hand of Mastanenio in the West Indies. Cap. Smith was suspected The foure and twentieth day we anchored at Dominico, within fourteene degrees of the Line, 2 for a supposed very faire Hand, the Trees full of sweet and good smels inhabited by many Sausge Indians, they Mutine, were at first very scrupulous to come aboord vs. Wee learned of them afterwards that the Spa- thoughneuer niards had given them a great overthrow on this Ile, but when they knew what we were, there no in his matter, 20 came many to our ships with their Canoas, bringing vs many kindes of sundry fruites, as Pines, minica. Potatoes, Plantone, Tobacco, and other fruits, and Roane Cloth abundance, which they had gotten out of certaine Spanifb thips that were cast away vpon that Iland. We gaue them Kniues. Hatchets for exchange which they esteeme much, wee also gaue them Beades, Copper Iewels which they hang through their nofthrils, eares, and lips, very strange to behold, their bodies are all painted red to keepe away the biting of Muscetos, they goe all naked without couring : the haire of their head is a yard long, all of a length pleated in three plats hanging downe to their wastes, they fuffer no haire to grow on their faces, they cut their skinnes in diuers workes, they are continually in warres, and will cate their enemies when they kill them, or any stranger if they take them. They will lap vp mans spittle, whillt one spits in their mouthes in a barbarous Brutifun fleof 30 fathion like Dogges. Thele people and the rest of the Ilands in the West Indies, and Brasill, the Dominicant. are called by the names of Canibals, that will eate mans flesh, these people doe poylon their Arrow heads, which are made of a fifthes bone: they worship the Deuill for their God, and have no other beliefe. Whilest were mayned at this Iland we law a Whale chased by a Thresher and Fight betwist a Sword-fish: they fought for the space of two houres, we might fee the Thresher with his slayle a Whale, the layon the monstrous blowes which was strange to behold in the end these two fishes brought the Thresher and

Whale to her end. The fixe and twentieth day, we had fight of Marigalanta, and the next day wee filled with Guadaluta. a flacke faile alongst the Ile of Guadalupa, where we went ashore, and found a Bath which was Bath very bot. to hot, that no man was able to stand long by it, our Admirall Captaine Nempore caused a piece 40 of Porke to be put in it : which boyled it foin the space of halfe an houre, as no fire could mend it. Then we went aboord and failed by many Ilands, as Mounferot and an Iland called Saint Chrifopher, both vnhabited about; about two a clocke in the afternoone wee anchored at the lle of Menis. There the Captaine landed all his men being well fitted with Muskets and other conuenient Armes, marched a mile into the Woods; being commanded to stand vpon their guard, fearing the treacherie of the Indians, which is an ordinary vie among it them and all other Sanages on this Ile, we came to a Bathsfanding in a Valley betwirt two Hils; where wee bathed our Bath at Meile. felues and found it to be of the nature of the Bathes in England, some places hot and some colder: and men may refresh themselves as they please, finding this place to be so convenient for our men to avoid dileafes, which will breed in to long a Voyage, wee incamped our felues on this fle fixe 50 dayes, and spent none of our ships victuall, by reason our men some went a hunting, somea sou-

ling, and some a fishing, where we got great store of Conies, fundry kinds of fowles, and great Commodities plentie of fish. We kept Centinels and Courts degardat every Captaines quarter, fearing wee there. should be affaulted by the Indians, that were on the other fide of the Hand : wee law none nor were molefled by any; but iome few we faw as we were a hunting on the lland, They would not come to vs by any meanes, but ranne swiftly through the Woods to the Mountaine tops; to we loft the fight of them : whereupon we made all the halte wee could to our quarter , thinking there had beene a great ambuilt of Indians there abouts. We past into the thickest of the Woods where we had almost lost our selves, we had not gone above halfe a mile amongst the thicke, but we came into a most pleasant Garden, being a hundred paces square on enery side, having many 60 Cotton-trees growing in it with abundance of Cotton-wooll, and many Guiacum trees: wee faw the goodliest rall trees growing to thicke about the Garden, as though they had beene fet by

Art, which made vs maruell very much to fee it. The third day, wee fee faile from Menis : the fourth day we failed along by Castinia and by Aprill. Saba: This day we anchored at the He of Virgines, in an excellent Bay able to harbour a hundred

CHAP.2. Croffe fet pp at Chesupioc Bay. Strange manner of Dancino.

1687

Tortoiles.

Ships : if this Bay food in England, it would be a great profit and commoditie to the Land. On this lland wee caught great flore of Fresh-fish, and abundance of Sea Tortosses, which served all our Fleet three daies, which were in number eight fcore perfons. We also killed great store of wille Fow le, wee cut the Barkes of certaine Trees which tafted much like Cinnamon, and very hot in the mouth. This I and in some places hath very good g. and, straight and tall Timber. But the greatest discommoditie that wee have seene on this I and is that it hath no Fresh-water, which makes the place void of any Inhabitants.

Sidenia water vowholfome.

Voon the fixt day, we let faile and paffed by Becam, and by Saint Iohn deportorico. The fenenth day, we arrived at Mona : where wer watered, which we flood in great need of, feeing that our water did fmell fo vildly that none of our men was able to indure it. Whilft fome of the Say- Io lers were a filling the Caskes with water, the Capraine, and the rest of the Gentlemen, and other Soldiers marched up in the Ile fixe myles, thinking to find some other provision to maintaine our victualling; as wee marched we killed two wild Bores, and faw a huge wild Bull, his hornes was an ell betweene the two tops. Wee alto killed Guanas, in fashion of a Serpent, and speckled like a Toade under the belly. There wayes that wee went, being to trouble fome and ville going upon the sharpe Rockes, that many of our men fainted in the march, but by good fortune wee lost none but one Edward Brooker Gentleman , whole fat melted within him by the great heate and drought of the Countrey : we were not able to relieve him nor our felues, to he died in that great

Rd. Brookes faint with thirft.

Moneta.

The ninth day in the afternoone, we went off with our Boat to the Ile of Moneta, some three 20 leagues from Mona, where we had a terrrible landing, and a troublesome getting up to the top of the Mountaine or He, being a high firme Rocke flep, with many terrible sharpe stones : After wee got to the top of the lle, we found it to bee a fertill and a plaine ground, full of goodly graffe, and abundance of Fowles of all kindes, they flew ouer our heads as thicke as drops of Hale; be-Store of fowles fides they made fuch a noife, that wee were not able to heare one another speake. Furthermore, wee were not able to let our feet on the ground, but either on Fowles or Egges which lay to thicke in the graffe : Wee laded two Boats full in the space of three houres, to our great

The tenth day we fet faile, and difimboged out of the West Indies, and bare our course Northerly. The fourteenth day we passed the Tropicke of Cancer. The one and twentieth day, 2- 30 bout five a clocke at night there began a vehement tempest, which lasted all the night, with winds, raine, and thunders in a terrible manner. Wee were forced to lie at Hull that night, because we thought wee had beene nearer land then wee were. The next morning, being the two and twentieth day wee founded; and the three and twentieth and foure and twenteth day, but we could find no ground. The five and twentieth day we founded, and had no ground at an we were ansuared fathom. The fix and twentieth day of Aprill, about four a clocke in the morning, wee night, and by descried the Land of Virginia: the same day wee entred into the Bay of Chesupine directly, without any let or hinderance; there wee landed and discourred a little way, but wee could find nothing worth the speaking of, but faire meddowes and goodly tall Trees, with such Fresh-waters funning through the woods, as I was almost rauished at the first light thereof.

the ftorme were forced neere the fhoare,not knowing. where we were. They land in

At night, when wee were going aboard, there came the Sauages creeping vpon all foure, from the Hills like Beares, with their Bowes in their mouthes, charged vs very desperately in the faces, hurt Captaine Gabrill Archer in both his hands, and a fayler in two places of the body very dangerous. After they had ipent their Arrowes, and felt the sharpnesse of our shot, they retired into the Woods with a great noise, and fo left vs.

The feuen and twentieth day we began to build vp our Shallopithe Gentlemen and Souldiers marched eight miles vp into the Land, we could not fee a Sauage in all that march, we came to a place where they had made a great fire, and had beene newly a rofting Oyfters : when they perceived our comming, they fled away to the Mountaines, and left many of the Oysters in the fire : we eat some of the Oysters, which were very large and delicate in tafte.

The eighteenth day we lanched our Shallop, the Captaine and some Gentlemen went in her, and discouered up the Bay, we found a River on the Southside running into the Maine; we entered it and found it very shoald water, not for any Boats to swim : Wee went further into the Bay, and faw a plaine plot of ground where we went on Land, and found the place five mile in compasse, without either Bush or Tree, we saw nothing there but a Cannow . which was made out of the whole tree, which was fine and fortis foot long by the Rule. Vpon this plot of ground we got good flore of Muffels and Oyfters, which lay on the ground as thicke as flones : wee opened some, and found in many of them Pearles. Wee marched some three or fouremiles further into the Woods, where we law great smoakes of fire. Wee marched to those smoakes and found that the Sauages had beene there burning downe the graffe, as weethought either to make their 60 plantation there, or else to give signes to bring their forces together, and to to give vs battell. We past through excellent ground full of Flowers of divers kinds and colours, and as goodly trees 25 I have feene, as Cedar, Cipreffe, and other kindes : going a little further we came into a little plat Strawberries, of ground full of fine and beautifull Strawberries, foure times bigger and better then outsin England, All this march we could neither see Sauage nor Towne. When it grew to be towards night we food backe to our Ships, we founded and found it shallow water for a great way, which nue we out of all hopes for getting any higher with our Ships, which road at the mouth of the River. Wee rowed ouer to a point of Land, where wee found a channell, and founded fix, eight, ten, or twelve fathom: which put vs in good comfort. Therefore wee named that point of Land, Cape Point Comfort.

The nine and twentieth day we fet up a Croffe at Chefapine Bay, and named that place Cape Henry, Thirtieth day, we came with our thips to Cape Comfort; where wee faw fue Sauages running on the shoare; presently the Captaine caused the shallop to be manned, so rowing to the 10 (hoare, the Captaine called to them in figne of friendship, but they were at first very timessome, until they faw the Captain lay his hand on his heart: vpon that they laid down their Bowes and Arrowes, and came very boldly to vs, making fignes to come a shoare to their Towne, which is called by the Sauages Kecoughtan. Wee coafted to their Towne, rowing ouer a River running Kecoughtan. into the Maine, where these Sauges swam ouer with their Bowes and Arrowes in their months.

When we came ouer to the other side, there was a many of other Sauges which directed vs to their Towne, where we were entertained by them very kindly. When we came first a Land they made a dolefull noise, laying their faces to the ground, feratching the earth with their nailes. We did thinke that they had beene at their Idolatry. When they had ended their Cere-20 monies, they went into their houses and brought out mats and laid voon the ground, the chiefest of the fate all in a rank: the meanest fort brought we such dainties as they had, & of their bread which they make of their Maiz or Gennea wheat, they would not fuffer vs to eat valeffe we fate down, which we did on a Mat right against them. After we were well satisfied they gane vs of their Ta- Tobacco. bacco, which they tooke in a pipe made artificially of earth as ours are, but far bigger, with the bowle fashioned together with a piece of fine copper. After they had feasted vs. they shewed vs. in welcome, their manner of dancing, which was in this fashion : one of the Sauages standing in the midit finging, beating one hand against another, all the rest dancing about him, shouting, howling, and stamping against the ground, with many Anticke tricks and faces, making noise like so many Wolues or Deuils. One thing of them I observed; when they were in their dance they kent 30 firoke with their feet iust one with another, but with their hands, heads, faces, and bodies, every one of them had a feuerall gesture : so they continued for the space of halfe an houre. When they had ended their dance, the Captaine gave them Beades and other trifling lewells. They hang through their cares Fowles legs : they shave the right side of their heads with a shell, the left side they weare of an ell long tied up with an artificiall knot, with a many of Foules feathers flicking in it. They goe altogether naked, but their prinities are coursed with Beafts skinnes befer commonly with little bones, or beafts teeth : fome paint their bodies blacke, fome red, with artificiall knots of fundry lively colours, very beautifull and pleafing to the eye, in a braver fashion then they in the Weit Indies .

The fourth day of May, we came to the King or Werowance of Paspihe : where they enter-40 tained vs with much welcome; an old Sauage made a long Oration, making a foule noile, vtte- A longoration ring his speech with a vehement action, but we knew little what they meant. Whilst we were in company with the Passibes, the Werowance of Rapahanna came from the other side of the Riper in his Cannoa : he feemed to take displeasure of our being with the Passibes : he would faine have had vs come to his Towne, the Captaine was vnwilling; feeing that the day was fo far fpent he returned backe to his ships for that night. The next day, being the fift of May, the Werowance of Rapabanna fent a Meffenger to have vs come to him. We entertained the faid Meffenger, and gane him trifles which pleafed him: Wee manned our shallop with Muskets and Targatiers sufficiently : this faid Messenger guided vs where our determination was to goe. When wee landed, the Werowance of Rapabama came

50 downers the water fide with all his traine, as goodly men as any I have feene of Sauages or Chriflians : the Werowance comming before them playing on a Flute made of a Reed, with a Crown of a Reed. of Deares haire colloured red, in fashion of a Rose fastened about his knot of haire, and a great Plate of Copper on the other fide of his head, with two long Feathers in fashion of a paire of Hornes placed in the midft of his Crowne. His body was painted all with Crimfon, with a Chaine of Beads about his necke, his face painted blew, besprinkled with filuer Ore as wee thought, his eares all behung with Braflets of Pearle, and in either eare a Birds Claw through it befet with fine Copper or Gold, he entertained vs in to modelt a proud fashion, as though he had beene a Prince of civill government, holding his countenance without laughter or any fuch ill behaulour; he caused his Mat to be spred on the ground, where hee sate downe with a great Ma-

iellie, taking a pipe of Tabacco: the rest of his company standing about him. After he had rested a while he rofe, and made fignes to vs to come to his Towne : Hee went formost, and all the rest of his people and our selves followed him vp a steepe Hill where his Palace was settled. Wee passed through the Woods in fine paths, having most pleasant Springs which issued from the Mountaines : Wee also went through the goodliest Corne fieldes that euer was seene in any Countrey. When wee came to Rapabannes Towne, hee entertained vs in good humanitie. The eight day of May we discourred up the River. We landed in the Countrey of Apama. tica, at our landing, there came many fout and able Sauages to refift vs with their Bowes and Arrowes, in a most warlike manner, with the swords at their backes belet with sharpe stones and pieces of yron able to cleave a man in funder. Amongst the rest one of the chiefest standing before them croffe-legged, with his Arrow readie in his Bow in one hand, and taking a Pipe of Tobacco in the other, with a bold verering of his speech, demanded of vs our being there, willing vs to bee gone. Wee made fignes of peace, which they perceived in the end, and let vs land in

The twelfth day we went backe to our ships, and discourred a point of Land, called Archers to Hope, which was sufficient with a little labour to defend our selves against any Enemy. The foile was good and fruitfull, with excellent good Timber. There are also great store of Vines in bigneffe of a mans thigh, running vp to the tops of the Trees in great abundance. We also did fee many Squirels, Conies, Black Birds with crimfon wings, and divers other Fowles and Birds of divers and fundrie collours of crimfon , Watchet, Yellow, Greene , Murry , and of divers other hewes naturally without any art vfing.

We found store of Turkie nests and many Egges, if it had not beene disliked, because the ship could not ride neere the shoare, we had fetled there to all the Collonies contentment,

The thirteenth day, we came to our feating place in Paspihas Country, some eight miles from the point of Land, which I made mention before: where our shippes doe lie so neere the shoare that they are moored to the Trees in fix fathom water.

Their Planta-

Land giuen.

The fourteenth day we landed all our men which were fet to worke about the fortification, and others some to watch and ward as it was convenient. The first night of our landing, about midnight, there came some Sauages sayling close to our quarter: presently there was an alarum giuen; ypon that the Sauages ran away, and we not troubled any more by them that night. Not long after there came two Sauages that feemed to be Commanders, brauely dreft, with Crownes of coloured haire vpon their heads, which came as Messengers from the Weromance of Paspibe; telling vs that their Werowauce was comming and would be merry with vs with a fat Deare. The eighteenth day, the Werowance of Paspina came himselfe to our quarter, with one hundred

Sauages armed, which garded him in a very warlike manner with Bowes and Arrowes, thinking 30 at that time to execute their villany. Paffiha made great fignes to vs to lay our Armes away. But we would not truft him fo far : he feeing he could not have convenient time to worke his will, at length made fignes that he would give vs as much land as we would defire to take. As the Sausges were in a throng in the Fort, one of them Role a Hatcket from one of our company, which fujed him doing the deed : whereupon he tooke it from him by force, and also strooke him over Thefe Sanages thearme : prelently another Sauage feeing that, came fiercely at our man with a wooden fword, are naturally thinking to beat out his braines. The Weromance of Pafpiba faw vs take to our Armes, went fud-great heeues. denly away with all his company in great anger.

The nineteenth day, my felfe and three or foure more walking into the Woods by chance wee espied a path-way like to an Irish pace : wee were desirous to knowe whither it would bring 40 vs; wee traced along some foure miles, all the way as wee went, having the pleasantest Suckles, the ground all flowing ouer with faire flowers of fundry colours and kindes, as though it had beene in any Garden or Orchard in England. There be many Strawberries, and other truits vnknowne : . wee faw the Woods full of Cedar and Cypreffe trees, with other trees, which iffues out sweet Gummes like to Balsam: wee kept on our way in this Paradife, at length wee came to a Sausge Towne, where wee found but few people, they told vs the rest were gone a hunting with the Weromance of Paspiha: we stayed there a while, and had of them Strawberries, and other things; in the meane time one of the Sauages came running out of his house with a Bowe and Arrowes and ranne mainly through the Woods: then I beganne to militust some villanie, that he went to call fome companie, and fo betray vs, wee made all the hafte away wee could: 50 one of the Sauages brought vs on the way to the Wood fide, where there was a Garden of Tobacco, and other fruits and herbes, he gathered Tobacco, and distributed to every one of vs, so wee departed. The twentieth day the Weromance of Pastiba fent fortie of his men with a Derre, to our quarter: but they came more in villanie than any loue they bare vs: they faine would have layne in our Fortall night, but wee would not fuffer them for feare of their treachery. One of our Gentlemen having a Target which hee trufted in, thinking it would beare out a flight flot , hee fet it vp against a tree, willing one of the Sauages to shoot; who tooke from his backe an Arrow of an elle long, drew it strongly in his Bowe, shoots the Target a foote thorow, or better: which was strange, being that a Pistoll could not pierce it. Wee feeing the force of his Bowe, 60 afterwards fet him vp a iteele Target; he shot again, and burit his arrow all to pieces, he presently pulled out another Arrow, and bit it in his teeth, and feemed to bee in a great rage, to hee went away in great anger. Their Bowes are made of tough Hafell, their firings of Leather, Their arrowes their Arrowes of Canes or Hafell, headed with very sharpe stones, and are made artificially like abroad Arrow: other some of their Arrowes are headed with the ends of Decres hornes, and are feathered very attificially. Pafibia was as good as his word; for hee fent Venifon, but the Sawle came within few dayes after.

At Port Cotage in our Voyage vp the River, we faw a Savage Boy about the age of ten yeeres. Yellow haired which had a head of haire of a perfect yellow and a reasonable white skinne, which is a Mira- Virginian. cle amongst all Sauages.

This River which wee have discovered is one of the famous of Rivers that ever was found by River of Pobaany Christian, it ebbes and flowes a hundred and threescore miles where ships of great burthen tan.

may harbour in fafetie. Wherefoeuer we landed upon this River, wee faw the goodlieft Woods 10 as Beech, Oke, Cedar, Cypresse, Wal-nuts, Sassafras and Vines in great abundance, which hang in great clusters on many Trees, and other Trees vnknowne, and all the grounds befored with many tweet and delicate flowres of divers colours and kindes. There are also many fruites as Strawberries, Mulberries, Risberriesand Fruits vnknowne, there are many branches of this River, which runne flowing through the Woods with great plentie of fifh of all kindes, as for Sturgeon all the World cannot be compared to it. In this Countrey I have feene many great and large Medowes * having excellent good pasture for any Cattle. There is also great store of Deere both Red and Fallow. There are Beares, Foxes, Otters, Beuers, Muskats, and wild beafts

The foure and twentieth day wee fet up a Croffe at the head of this River, naming it Kings 20 River, where we proclaimed Iames King of England to have the most right vinto it. When wee Wee came had finished and set vp our Crosse, we shipt our men and made for lames Fort. By the way wee downe the Ricame to Pobasans Towre where the Captaine went on shore suffering none to goe with him, hee uer. presented the Commander of this place with a Hatchet which hee tooke joyfully, and was well

But yet the Sauages murmured at our planting in the Countrie, whereupon this Weromance made aniwere againe very wifely of a Sauage, Why should you bee offended with them as long as they hurt you not, nor take any thing away by force, they take but a litle waste ground, which doth you nor any of vs any good.

Ifaw Bread made by their women which doe all their drugerie. The men takes their pleasure in hunting and their warres, which they are in continually one Kingdome against another. The Bread how manner of baking of bread is thus, after they pound their wheat into flowre with hote water, made, they make it into paste, and worke it into round balls and Cakes, then they put it into a pot of feething water, when it is fod throughly, they lay it on a smooth stone, there they harden it as well as in an Ouen.

There is notice to be taken to know married women from Maids, the Maids you shall alwayes Diffind habit fee the fore part of their head and fides shauen close, the hinder part very long, which they tie of Maids and in a pleate hanging downe to their hips. The married women weares their haireall of a length, Wines. and is tied of that fallion that the Maids are. The women kinde in this Countrey doth pounce and race their bodies, legges, thighes, armes and faces with a sharpe Iron, which makes a stampe 19 in currous knots, and drawes the proportion of Fowles, Fish, or Beasts, then with paintings of fundry lively colours, they rab it into the stampe which will never be taken away, because it is dried into the flesh where it is fered. The Sauges beare their yeeres well, for when wee were at Pamonkies, wee faw a Sauge by Sauge 160. their report was about eight score yeeres of age. His eyes were sunke into his head, having neuer yeeres old. a tooth in his mouth, his haire all gray with a reasonable bigge beard, which was as white as any Bearded. fnow. It is a Miracle to fee a Sauage haue any haire on their faces, I neuer faw, read, nor heard. any haue the like before. This Sauage was as luftie and went as fast as any of vs, which was ftrange to behold.

The fifteenth day of Iune, we had built and finished our Fort which was triangle wife, having three Bulwarkes at every corner like a halfe Moone, and foure or five pieces of Arullerie mounted in them, we had made our felues fufficiently ftrong for thefe Sauzges, we had also fowne most of our Corne on two Mountaines, it iprang 2 mans height from the ground, this Countrey is 2 fruitfull foile, bearing many goodly and fruitfull Trees, as Mulberries, Cherries, Walnuts, Ceders, Cyprelle, Saffatras, and Vines in great abundance.

Munday the two and twentiesh of lune, in the morning Captaine Newport in the Admirall Cap. Hempers departed from James Port for England.

Captaine Newport being gone for England, leaving vs (one hundred and foure persons) verie bare and feantie of victuall-, furthermore in warres and in danger of the Sauages. We hoped after a supply which Captaine Newport promised within twentie weekes. But if the beginners of this 60 action doe carefully further vs. the Country being fo fruitfull, it would be as great a profit to the Realme of England, as the Indies to the King of Spaine, if this River which wee have found had beene discouered in the time of warre with Spaine, it would have beene a commoditie to our Realme, and a great annoyance to our enemies. The feuen and twentieth of July the King of Ra-Pahama, degranded a Canoa which was reftored, lifted up his hand to the Sunne, which they worthing as their God, befides he laid his hand on his heart, that he would be our speciall friend. It is a generall rule of these people when they swere by their God which is the Sunne, no Chris flian will keepe their Oath better voon this promife. These people haue a great renerence to the Sunne aboue all other things at the rifing and fetting of the same, they fit downe lifting vp their hands and eyes to the Sunne making a round Circle on the ground with dried Tobacco, then they began to pray making many Deuillish gestures with a Hellish noise foming at the mouth flaring with their eyes, wagging their heads and hands in fuch a fashion and deformitie as it was

The fixt of August there died Iohn Afore of the bloudie Flixe. The minth day died George Flowre of the swelling. The tenth day died William Bruster Gentleman, of a wound ginen by the Sauages, and was buried the eleventh dav.

The fourteenth day, lerome Alikeck Ancient, died of a wound, the same day Francis Midwinter, Edward Moris Corporall died fuddenly.

The fifteenth day, their died Edward Browne and Stephen Galtbrope. The fixteenth day their died Thomas Gower Gentleman. The feuenteenth day, their died Thomas Mounflie. The eighteenth day, there died Robert Pennington, and John Martine Gentleman. The mnetcenth day. died Drue Pregafe Gentleman. The two and twentieth day of August, there died Cantaine Bartholomen Gofnold one of our Councell, he was honourably buried, having all the Ordnancein the Fort shot off with many vollies of imallshot. After Captaine Gofnols death, the Councell could hardly agree by the diffention of Captaine 20 Kendall, which afterward was committed about hainous matters which was proved against him.

The foure and twentieth day, died Edward Harington and George Walker, and were buried the fame day. The fixe and twentieth day, died Kenelme Throgmerine. The feuen and twentieth day died William Roods. The eight and twentieth day died Thomas Stoodie, Cape Merchant.

The fourth day of September died Thomas lacob Sergeant. The fift day, there died Beniamin Beast, Our men were destroyed with cruell diseases as Swellings, Flixes, Burning Feuers, and by warres, and some departed suddenly, but for the most part they died of meere famine. There were neuer Englishmen left in a forreigne Countrey in such miserie as wee were in this new disconcred Virginia. Wee watched enery three nights lying on the bare cold ground what weather forener came warded all the next day, which brought our men to bee most feeble wretches, our to food was but a imall Can of Barlie fod in water to fine men a day, our drinke cold water taken out of the River, which was at a floud verie falt, at a low tide full of flime and filth, which was the destruction of many of our men. Thus we lived for the space of five moneths in this miserable diftreffe, not having fine able men to man our Bulwarkes vpon any occasion. If it had not pleafed God to haue put a terrour in the Sauages hearts, we had all perished by those wild and cruell Pagans, being in that weake effate as we were; our men night and day groaning in enery corner of the Fort most pittifull to heare, if there were any conscience in men, it would make them harts to bleed to heare the pittiful murmurings & out-cries of our fick men without reliefe energy night and day for the space of fixe weekes, some departing out of the World, many times three or foure in a night, in the morning their bodies trailed out of their Cabines like Dogges to beburied : in this fort did I fee the mortalitie of diners of our people,

Gods good-

It pleased God, after a while, to send those people which were our mortall enemies to releeue vs with victuals, as Bread, Corne, Fish, and Flesh in great plentie, which was the setting rp of our feeble men, otherwise wee had all perished. Also we were frequented by divers Kings in the Countrie, bringing vs ftore of prouision to our great comfort.

The eleuenth day, there was certaine Articles laid against Master Wing field which was then Prefident, thereupon he was not only diplaced out of his Prefident ship, but also from being of the Councell. Afterwards Captaine Iobn Rascliffe was chosen Prefident.

The eighteenth day, died oue Ellis Kmistone which was started to death with cold. The same He was a made the waste of the state of the

William White (having lived with the Natives) reported to vs of their customes in the morning by breake of day, before they eate or drinke both men, women and children, that be aboue tenne omitted being yeeres of age runnes into the water, there washes themselues a good while till the Sunne riseth, more rully fer then offer Sacrifice to it, strewing Tobacco on the water or Land, honouring the Sunne as their downein Gap. God, like wife they doe at the fetting of the * Sunne,

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

The description of Virginia by Captaine IOHN SMITH, inlarged out of his written Notes.

Tryinia is a Countrie in America, that lieth betweene the degrees of 34.* and 44. The Latitude of the North Latitude. The bounds thereof on the Raif ide are the age of the America. of the North Latitude. The bounds thereof on the East fide are the great Orean. By Juere Pa-On the South lieth Florida: on the North Nona Francia. As for the West thereof, tens this is on the South lieth Florida: on the North North Francia. As for the West Chief on extended turther to the limits are vinknowne. Of all this Countrie we purpose not to speake, but on the to the south so ly of that part which was planted by the Englishmen in the years of our Lord, degree, &c. 4.66. And this is under the degree 32, 22, and at The removatour of this 1606. And this is under the degrees 37. 38. and 39. The temperature of this

Countrie doth agree wel with English constitutions being once seasoned to the Countrie, Which appeared by this, that though by many occasions our people fell ricke; yet did they recour by verie small meanes and continued in health, though there were other great causes, not only to have made them ficke, but even to end their dayes, &c.

The Summer is hot as in Spaine; the Winter cold as in France or England. The heate of Sum- The temper mer is in June, July, and August, but commonly the coole Breefes asswage the vehemencie of the rature. 20 heate. The chiefe of Winter is halfe December, lanuary, February, and halfe March. The cold is extreme sharpe, but heere the Proucibe is true, That no extreme continueth long. In the yeere 1607. was an extraordinary Frost in most of Europe, and this Frost was found as extreme in Virginia. But the next yeere for eight or ten daies of ill weather, other fourteene daies would be as Summer.

The winds here are variable, but the like Thunder and Lightning to purifie the Aire, I have The winds. seldome either seene or heard in Europe. From the South-west came the greatest guits with Thunder and heate. The North-west winde is commonly coole, and bringeth faire weather with it. From the North is the greatest cold, and from the East and South-east as from the Bar-madas, fogges and raines. 30 Sometimes there are great droughts other times much raine, yet great necessitie of neither, by reason we see not, but that all the varietie of needrull Fruits in Emrope may bee there in great plentie by the industry of men, as appeareth by those we there planted. There is but one entrance by Sea into this Country, and that is at the mouth of a verie The entrances goodly Bay, the widenesse whereof is neere eighteene or twen-ie miles. The Cape on the South fide is called Cape Henrie, in honour of our most Noble Prince. The shew of the Land there is a white Hilly Sand like vnto the Downes, and along the hoares great plentie of Pines and Firres. Che Henry. The North Cape, is called Cape Charles, in honour of the worthy Duke of Torke. Thelles before Cape Charles. it are named Smiths Iles, because be first of ours set foot on them. Within is a Countrey that may Cap. Smith. have the prerogative over the most pleasant places of Europe, Asia, Africa, or America, for large 40 and pleafant nauigable Rivers, Heaven and Earth never agreed better to frame a place for mans habitation being of our constitutions, were it fully mannured and inhabited by industrious people. Here are Mountaynes, Hils, Plaines, Vallies, Riuers and Brookes, all running moit plea. The Country, lantly into a faire Bay compassed but for the mouth with fruitful & delightiome Land. In the Bay and Rivers are many Hes both great and small, some woodie, some plaine, most of them low and not inhabited. This Bay lieth North an South, in which the water floweth neere two hundred miles, and hath a Channell for one hundred and fortie miles, of depth betwixt feuen and fifteene The Bay. fadome, holding in breadth for the most part ten or fourteene miles. From the head of the Bay atthe North, the Land is mountainous, and to in a minner from thence by a South-west Line; So that the more Southward, the farther off from the Bay are those Mountaines. From which 50 fall certaine Brookes which after come to fine principall Nau gable Riners. These runne from the North-west into the South-east, and so into the West side of the Bay, where the fall of every Riuer is within twentie or fiftgene miles one of another. The Mountaines are of divers natures, for at the head of the Bay the Rockes are of a composi- The Mountionlike Mil-stones. Some of Marble, &cc. And many pieces of Christall we found as throwne taines. downe by water from the Mountaines. For in Winter these Mountaines are couered with much Snow, and when it diffolueth the waters fall with fuch violence, that it caufeth great inuniations in the narrow Vallies, which vet is fearce perceived being once in the Rivers. Thefe waters wash from the Rockes such glistering tinctures that the ground in some places seemeth as gilded, The soile. where both the Rockes and the Earth are fo plendent to behold, that better sudgements then ours 60 might have beene postanded, they contained more then probabilities. The velture of the Earth in most places doth manifeitly proue the nature of the foile to be luftle and very rich. The colour of the Earth we found in divers places, refembleth Bole Armones, terra sigillata adlemnia, Full. r. Earth, Marle, and divers other fu happearances. But generally for the most part the Earth is a blacke fandie mould, in some places a fat slimie clay, in other places a very barren grauell. But the best best ground is knowne by the vesture it beareth, as by the greatnesse of Trees or abundance of Weeds. &c.

The Vallies.

The Countrie is not mountainous nor yet low, but fuch pleasant plaine Hils and fertile Vallies, one pretily croffing another, and watered fo conueniently with their fweete Brookes and Christall Springs, as if Art it selfe had deuised them. By the Rivers are many plaine Marishes con-

Plaines.

tayning fome twentie, fome one hundred, fome two hundred Acres, fome more, fomeleffe. Other Plaines there are few, but only where the Sauages inhabit; but all ouer-growne with Trees and Weeds, being a plaine Wildernesse as God first made it. On the West lide of the Bay, we said were fine faire and delightfull nanigable Rivers, of which we will now proceed to report. The first of those Rivers and the next to the mouth of the Bay 10

The River Powhatan.

hath his courie from the West and by North. The name of this River they call Perhatan according to the name of a principall Countrie that lieth vpon it. The mouth of this River is neere three miles in breadth, jet doe the shoales force the Channell so neere the Land that a Sacre will oner shoot it at Point blanke. This River is navigable one hundred and fiftie miles as the Channell goeth; the boales and foundings are heere needlesse to be expressed. It falleth from Rockes farre West in a Countrie inhabited by a Nation that they call Monacan. But where it commeth into our Dif-coverie it is Powhatan. In the farthest place that was diligently observed, are Falles. Rockes. Shoales, &:. which makes it past nauigation any higher. Thence in the running downeward. the River is enriched with many goodly Brookes, which are maintained by an infinite num-The branches, ber of imall Rundles and pleafant Springs that disperse themselves for best service, as doe the 24

the North fide is the River of Chickahamania, the backe River of James Townes; another by the make that place very pleasant to inhabit, their Corne fields being girded therein in a manner as Peninfulaes. The most of these Rivers are inhabited by severall Nations, or rather Families, of the name of the Rivers. They have also in every of those places some Governour, as their King, which they call Werowances. In a Peninfula on the North fide of this River are the English planted in a place by them called lames Towne, in honour of the Kings most excellent Maieste, voon which fide are also many places under the Werowarces. The first and next the Rivers mouth are the Cecouphians, who besides their women and chill veines of a mans bod e. From the South there fals into this River ; First; the pleasant River of Anamatuck : next more to the East are the two Rivers of Quiyough cohanocke. Alittle farther is a Bay wherein fallech three or foure pretie Brookes and Creekes that halfe intrench the Inhabitants of Warraskoyac; then the River of Nandfamund, and laftly, the Brooke of Chifaptack. From

Ceder Ile, where we lived ten weekes upon Oisters, then a convenient Harbour for filher-boats or small Boats at Keconghian, that so conveniently turneth it selfeinto Bayes and Creekes that

tames Towne. The feuerall

dren, have not nast twentie fighting men. The Paspabeges on whose Land is seated the English Colonie, some fortie miles from the Bay have not past fortie. The River called Chick chamania Inhabitants. neere two hundred. The Weanocks one hundred. The Arrowhatocks thirtie. The place called Powhatan, some fortie. On the South fide this River the Appamatucks have fixtie fighting men. The Quirougcohanocks, five and twentie. The Warraskojacks fortie. The Nandamunds two hundred. The Chesapeache are able to make one hundred. Of this last place the Bay beareth the 49 name. In all their places is a feuerall Commander, which they call Werowance except the Chick-hamanians, who are gouerned by the Priefts and their Afiftants of their Elders called Caw came wassoughes. In Summer no place affoordeth more plentie of Sturgeon, nor in Winter more abundance of Fowle, especially in the time of Froft. There was once taken fiftie two Sturgeons at a draught, at another draught fixtie eight. From the latter end of May till the end of June are taken, but young Sturgeons of two foot or a yard long: From thence till the midit of September, of two or three yards long and few others. And in foure or fine houres with one Net were ordinarily taken seuen or eight : often more, feldome lesse. In the small Rivers all the veere there is good plentie of small fish, so that with Hookes those that would take paines had sufficient.

Free State.

R. Pamaunhe.

Fourteene miles Northward from the River Powbatan; is the Kiver Pamaunke, which is nani- 50 gable sixtie miles, but with Catches and small Barkes, twentie or thirtie miles farther. At the ordinary flowing of falt water, it divideth it lelfe into two gallant branches. On the South inhabit the people of Toughtanund, who have about fixtie men for warres. On the North branch Mattapa-The Inhabiment, who have thirtie men. Where this River is divided, the Countrie is called Panamauske, and nourisheth neere three hundred able men. About five and twentie miles lower on the North fide of this River is Werawocomoco, where their great King inhabited when Captaine Smith was deliuered him prisoner; yet there are not past fortie able men. But now he hath abandoned that, and liueth at Orapakes by Youghtanund in the Wildernelle; tenne or twelue miles lower; on the Southfide of this River is Chikiack, which hath fome fortie or fiftie men. Thefe, as alio Apa-

K. Pobatan.

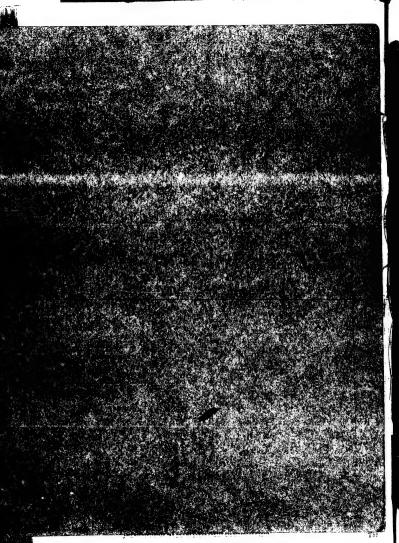

Payanhatank R.

matuck Irrobatocke, and Powbatan, are their great Kings chiefe Alliance and Inhabitance. The 62 reit (as they report) his Conque is. Before we come to the third River that falleth from the Mountaines, there is another River (some thirtie miles nauigable) that commeth from the In-land, the River is called Payankstanks, the Inhabitants are about fome fortie feruiceable men.

the most civill to give entertainment.

the Bay in their Barge.

River inhabited on both fides. Strange people in attire.

The third naugable River is called Toppabarock. (This is naugable some one hundred and thir- Totalban ch R. tie miles.) At the top of it inhabit the people called Mannaboackes amongst the Mountaines. but they are about the place we deferibe. Vpon this River on the North fide are feated a people The Inhabicalled Cutatowomen, with thirtie fighting men. Higher on the River are the Moranghtacunds, tans. with eightie able men. Beyond them Toppahanecke with one hundred men. Farre aboue is another Cuttatawomen with twentie men. On the South, farre within the River is Namtaus heacund having one hundred and fiftie men. This River also as the two former, is replenifhed with fifh and fowle.

The fourth River is called Patawomeke, and is fixe or feven miles in breadth. It is nanigable Preprinte B. one bundred and fortie miles, and fed as the reft with many fweet Rivers and Springs . which fall from the bordering Hils. These Hils many of them are planted, and yeeld no lesse plentie and varietie of fruit then the River exceedeth with abundance of fish. This River is inhabited on both fides. First on the South fide at the very entrance is Wightecomote, and hath some one hundred and thirtie men , beyond them Sekacawone with thirtie. The Onenmanient with one hundred. Then Paramomeke with one hundred and fixtie able men. Here doth the River dwide it felfe in to three or foure continuent Rivers. The greatest of the least is called Outrough trendeth Northwest, but the Rouer it seife turneth North-east, and is still a nauigable streame. On the Westerne fide of this bought is Tanxenent, with fortie men. On the North of this River is Secomocomoco with fortie men. Some what further Potangeo with twentie. In the East part of the bought of the River, is Pamacacack with fixtie men; After Mayomances with one hundred, And laftly, Nacotehtanke with eightie able men. The River tenne miles aboue this place maketh his passage downer a low pleasant Vally ouer-shadowed in many places with high Rockie Mountaines; from whence diffill innumerable fweet and pleafant Springs. The fire River is called Partnaunt, and is of a leffe proportion then the reft; but the channell Partnaunt R is fixteene or eighteene fadome deepe in tome places. Here are infinite skuls of diners kinds of fish more then eliewhere. Vpon this River dwell the people called Acquintanackinak, Pawinwant and Mattapanient. Two hundred men was the greatest fireneth that could be there perceined. But they inhabit together, and not to differ fed as the reft. There of all other were found bogges incironed with high Mountaines. There is one that commeth due North three or foure dayes journey from the head of the Bay, and fals from Rockes and Mountaines, upon this River inhabit a people called Safquefahanoche. They are feated two dayes higher then was raffage for the Discouerers Barge, which was hardly two tunnes, and had in it but twelue men to performe this Discourry, wherein they lay about the space of twelve weekes upon those great waters in those vnknowne Countries, having nothing but a little Meale or Oat-meale and water

Thirtie leagues Northward is a River not inhabited, yet navigable : for the red Earth or Clay Bolte R. refembling Bole Armoniack, the English called it Bolus. At the end of the Bay where it is fixe The head of or feuen miles in breadth, there fall into it foure finall Rivers , three of them iffuing from divers to feed them; and scarce halfe sufficient of that for halfe that time, but that by the Sauages, and by the plenty of fifth they found in all places, they made themselves provision as opportunity ferued ; yet had they not a Mariner er any that had skill to trimme their Sayles , vie their Oares, or any businesse belonging to the Barge, but two or three. The rest being Gentlemen, or as ignorant in such toyle and labour, yet necessitie in a short time by their Captaines diligence and example, taught them to become so perfect, that what they did by such small meanes, I leave to the centure of the Reader to judge by this Discourse and the annexed Map. But to proceed, fixtie of those Salquelabanocks, came to the Discouerers with Skinnes, Bowes, Artowes, Targets, Beades, Swords and Tobacco-pipes for Prefents. Such great and well proportioned men. are fellome seene, for they seemed like Giants to the English, yea, and to the Neighbours, yet seemed of an honest and simple disposition, with much adoe restrained from adoring the Disco-ple. uerers as Gods. Those are the most strange people of all those Countries, both in Language and Active: for their Language it may well befeeme their proportions, founding from them, as it were a great voyce in a Vault, or Caue, as an Eccho. Their Attire is the Skinnes of Beares, and Woolues, fome have Callacks made of Brares heads and Skinnes that a mans necke goes. The deferious through the Skinnes necke, and the Eares of the Beare fastned to his shoulders behind, the onot a Salque. Note and Teeth hanging downe his breaft, and at the end of the Note hung a Beares Pawe, the fabanough. See halfe fleenes comming to the elbowes were the neckes of the Beares and the armes through the the Map. mouth with pawes hanging at their Notes. One had the head of a Woolfe hanging in a Chaine Long Spoone for a lewell his Tobacco-pipe three quarters of a yard long , prettily carried with a Bird , a to eate with Beare, a Deere, or some such deuce at the great end, sufficient to beate out the braines of a man, with Bowes, and Arrowes, and Clubs furable to their greatnesse and conditions. These are scarce knowne to Powkatan. They can make neere sixe hundred able and mightie men, and are pallifadoed in their Townes to defend them from the Mallawomekes their mortall enemies. Fine of their chiefe Weromances came abourd the Discouerers, and crossed

The Picture of the greatest of them is figurified in the Mappe. The calfe of whose legge was three quarters of a yard about, and all the reft of his limbes fo aniwerable to that propertion , that hee feemed the goodlieft man that ever wee beheld. His haire , the one fide was long, the other shorne close with a ridge ouer his crowne like a Cockes Combe. Hie Arrowes were fine quarters long, headed with flints or ipinters of itones, in forme like a Heart, an inch broad, and an inch and a halte or more long. These hee wore in a Woolues Skinne at his backe for his Quiuer, his Bow in the one hand and his Clubbe in the other, as is described.

Tochwhogh R.

On the East side the Bay, is the River of Tockwhogh, and vpon it a people that can make one honored men . leated foine feuen miles within the River : where they have a Fort very well to pallitadoed and mantelled with the Barke of Trees. Next to them is Ozimes with fixtie men-More to the South of tha East fide of the Bay, the River of Rapabanock, neere voto which is the River of Ruskarawaock. Vpon which is leated a people with two hundred men. After that is the River of Tants Wighcocomoco, and on it a people with one hundred men. The people of sgbescomoce those Rivers are of little stature, of another Language from the reft, and very rude. But they on the River of Acobanock with fortie men, and they of Accomack eighty men do equalize any of Accomach R. the Territories of Powb. tan and speake his Language, who over all those doth rule as King. Southward they went to some parts of Chamonock and the Mangones to search for the men

Chammuck.

Languages.

there lett by Sir Walter Raleigh; for those pares to the Towne of Chisapeack have formerly heene diffouered by Mailer Harsots and Sir Ralph Lane. Amongst those people are thus many 20 feuera I Nations of fundry Languages, that entiron Powbatans Territories. The Chamonocker, the Mangoars, the Monacans, the Mannahokes, the Majawomekes, the Powbasans, the Sajquefaha. nocks, the Alquanachukes, the Tockwogbes, and the Kufcarawaokes. Of all those not any one viderflaumerhanother but by Interpreters. Their feuerall Habitations are more plainly determed by this annexed Mappe, which will prefent to the eye, the way of the Mountaines and current of the Rivers, with their feuerall Turnings, Bayes, Shoales, Iles, Inlets, and Creekes, the breadth of the waters, the diffances of places and fuch like. In which Map observe this, that as farre as you fee the little Croffes on Ruers, Mountaines, or other places have beene discouered; the reft was had by information of the Sauages, and are let downe, according to their inftructions,

Of such things which are naturall in Virginia, and how they wse them. Virginia doth affoord many excellent vigitables and living creatures, yet graffe there is little or none, but what groweth in low Marithes : for all the Countrey is ouergrowne with Trees, whose droppings continually turne their graffe to weedes, by reason of the ranknesse of the ground which would toone be amended by good busbandry. The wood that is most common is Oke and Walnut; many of their Okes are to tall and straight, that they will beare two foote and a halfe square of good Timber for (wenty yards long; Of this wood there is two or three fenerall kinds. The Acornes of one kind, whose barke is more white then the other, are somewhat sweetish, which being boyled halfe a day in senerall waters , at last affoord a sweete Oyle, 40 which they keep in Goards to annoint their heads & joynts. The fruit they eate made in bread or otherwife. There is also some Elme, some blacke Wal-nut tree, and some Ash: of Ash and Elme they make Sope-ashes. It the trees be very great, the ashes will be good, and melt to hard lumps, but if they be small, it will be but powder, and not so good as the other. Of Walnuts there is two Supposed Gy or three kinds; there is a kind of wood we called Cypresse, because both the wood, the fruit, and leafe did most resemble it, and of those trees there are some neere three fadome about the Roote very straight, and fifty, fixty, or eighty foot without a branch. By the dwelling of the Sauages are some great Mulbene trees, and in some parts of the Countrey, they are sound growing naturally in pretie Groues. There was an offay made to make filke, and furely the Wormes prospered

Why there is httle graffe.

Woods with their fraits.

Mulberies.

Elme.

Walnuts.

excellent well, till the Mafter workman fel fick. During which time they were eaten with Rats, 50 In some parts were found some Chesnats whose wild fruit equalize the best in France, Spaine, Chefnuts. Germany, or Italy, to their tafts that had taited them all. Plummes there are of three forts. The red and white are like our hedgy Plummes, but the other which they call Putchamins, grow as high as Palmeta: the fruit is like a Medler; it is first greene then yellow, and red when it is ripe; if it be not ripe it will draw a mans mouth awrie, with much torment, but when it is ripe, Plummes.

Cherier.

it is as delicious as an Apricock. They have Cherries, and those are much like a Damson, but for their tastes and colour we called them Cherries. Wee faw fome few Crabbes, but very fmall and bitter. Of Vines great abundance in many pares climbe the tops of the highest trees in some places; but these beare but few Grapes. But by the Rivers and Savage habitations where they are not cuershadowed from 60 the Sunne, they are couered with fruit, though neuer pruned nor manured. Of those hedge Grapes wee made neere twenty gallons of Wine, which was neere as good as your French Britsifb Wine : but certainly they would prove good, were they well manured. There is another fort of Grape, neere as great as a Cherrie, this they call Mefaminnes, they be far, and the myce thicke. Neither doth the tafte so well please when they are made in Wine. They have a small from growing on little trees, busked like a Chefnut, but the fruit most like a very small Acorne . this they call Chechinquamins, which they efteeme a great daintie. They have a berrie much like Chechinquamini our Gooseberrie, in greatnesse, colour, and taite; those they call Rawcomenes, and doe eate them Rawcomenes raw or boyled. Of these natural fruits they live a great part of the yeare, which they vie in this manner. The Walnuts, Chefnuts, Acornes, and Chechinquamins, are dried to keepe. When How they vie they need them they breake them betweene two stones; yet some part of the Walnut shels will cleaue to the fruit. Then doe they drie them againe voon a Mat ouer a Hurdle. After they put it in a Morter of wood, and beate it very fmall : that done they mixe it with water, that the 10 thels may finke to the bottome. This water will be coloured as milke, which they call Paperbilling, and keepe it for their vie. The fruit like Medlers they call Parchamins, they call voon Hurdles on a Mat, and preferue them as Prunes. Of their Chefnuts and Chechinquamins bows led foure houres, they make both Broth and Bread for their chiefe men, or at their greatest feafle. Besides those fruit trees, there is a white Populer, and another tree like vnto it, that yeeldeth 4

CHAP. 2. Small fruit on which many line. Strange bealts.

Wee tried conclusions to extract it out of the wood, but nature affoorded more than our arts. In the watery Valleyes groweth a Berrie, which they call Ocomphenismus, very much like Berries, vnto Capers. These they dry in Summer. When they will eate them, they boyle them neere 20 halfe a dav : for other wife they differ not much from poilon. Mattonine groweth as our Bents Mattolime. doe in medowes : the feed is not much valike to Rie, though much smaller : this they vie for a dainty Bread buttered with Deeres Suet.

During Summer there are either Strawberries which doe ripen in Aprill 3 or Mulberries which Strawberries ripen in May and June: Raspites, Hurtes, or a fruit that the Inhabitants call Maracocks, which and other is a pleafant whollome fruit, much like a Limond, Many Herbes in the Spring time there are berries. commonly dispersed throughout the Woods, good for Broths and Sallets, as Violets, Purslane; Sorrell, &c. Befides many wee vied whole names we know not.

The chiefe root they have for food is called Tockawhoughe, It groweth like a Flag in low muddy Freshes. In one day a Sauage will gather fufficient for a weeke. These rootes are much of the preatnesse and taste of Poratoes. They vie to couer a great many of them with Oke Leanes and Ferne, and then couer all with earth in the manner of a Cole-pit; ouer it, on each fide, they continue a great fire twentie foure houres before they dare eat it. Raw it is no better then roifon. and being roafted, except it be tender and the heat abated, or fliced and dried in the Sunne, mixed with Sorrell and Meale, or fuch like, it will prickle and torment the throat extreamely, and yet in Summer they vie this ordinarily for bread.

They have another root which they call Wighfacan: as th'other feedeth the Bodie, fo this cua Wighfacan a reth their horts and diseases. It is a small roote which they bruise and apply to the wound. Pos medicinable cones. is a small root that groweth in the Mountaines, which being dried and beat in powder turneth red. And this they vie for swellings, aches, anointing their toynts, painting their heads and small root. earments. They account it verie precious, and of much worth. Mulqualpenne is a root of the big- Mulqualpenne neffe of a finger, and as red as bloud. In drying it will wither almost to nothing. This they wife to a root paint their Mats, Targets, and fuch like. There is also Pellitorie of Spaine, Safafrage, and divers Parietaries others Simples, which the Apothecaries gathered, and commended to be good and medicinable, Saffatras, others Simples, which the Apothecarse gasueres, anatomises to be good or more in many places, In the low marifles grow plots of Onions containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection of the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection of the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection of the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection of the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection of the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection of the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infection or the containing an acre of ground or more in many places.

Of beafts the chiefe are Deare, nothing differing from ours. In the Defarts rowards the heads of Oxen found the Rivers, there are many , but amongst the Rivers few. There is a beaff they call Aronghoun, by Cap, Aroll. much like a Badger, but vierh to live on trees as Squirrele doe. Their Squirrels, fome are neere as Their chiefe great as our smallest force of wilde Rabbets , fome blackifh or blacke and white, but the most are 50 gray. A small beast they have, they call a figurick, but wee call them flying Squirrels, because Arougheum. foreading their legs and fo firetching the largenetic of their skinnes, that they have beene feene to Sourcels. flie thirtie or fortie yards. An Opassam hath a head like a Swine, and a taile like a Rat, and is of Allapanich a the bigneffe of a Cat. Under her belly she hath a bag, wherein she lodgeth, carrieth, and suckleth Squirres Bying her young. Muffaicus, is a beaft of the forme and nature of our water Rats, but many of them Opefform smell exceeding strongly of Muske. Their Hares are no bigger then our Conies, and few of them to be found.

Their Beares are verie little in comparison of those of Muscomia and Tartaria. The Beaner is Muscalem. as big as an ordinane great Dog, but his legs exceeding thort, His fore feet like a Dogs, his hinder Be res. teet like a Swans. His taile somewhat like the forme of a Racket bare without haire, which to ate the Sauages effeeme a great delicate. They have many Otters, which as the Beauers they Otters. take with fnares, and effeeme the skins great ornaments, and of all those beaffs they vie to feede when they eatch them.

There is also a beaft they call Vetchunquoyes, in the forme of a wil te Cat, their Foxes are like Vetcunquojes, our filter haired-Conies of a small proportion, and not smelling like those in England, Their Foxes, Bbbbbbb 3 very cleare and an odoriferous Gumme like Turpentine, which fome called Balfam. There are pery cleare and an outsterous Cumme nav 1 in a final proportion of themselves. Gume Ceders, also Ceders and Saxafras tree. They also yeeld Gummes in a small proportion of themselves. Saxafras trees.

LIB, IX.

Do s. Martins. Polcats. Weefels, and Minkes. Note.

Dogs of that Countrey are like their Wolues, and cannot barke but ho wle; and their Wolues not much bigger then our Englifb Foxes. Martins, Powlecats, Weetiels and Minkes we know they haue, because we have seene many of their akins, though very seldome any of them aline. But one thing is strange, that wee could never perceive their vermine destroy our Hens, Egges, nor Chickens, nor doe any burt, nor their Flyes nor Serpents any way pernitious, where in the South parts of America they are alwaies dangerous and often deadly.

Birds. Fish hawkes.

Of Birds the Eagle is the greatest denourer. Hawkes there bee of diners forts as our Falconers called them, Spatrowhawkes, Lanarets, Gulhawkes, Falcons, and Operaies, but they all prev most vpon Filh. Partridges there are little bigger then our Quailes, wilde Turkies are as bigge as our tame. There are Woofels or Black-birds with red shoulders. Thrushes and divers forts of small 10 Birds, fome red, fome B'ew, fcarce fo big as a Wren, but few in Summer. In Winter there are area plentie of Swans Cranes, gray and white with blacke wings, Herons, Geefe, Brants, Duck, Wigeon, Dotterell, Oxeies, Parrats and Pigeons. Of all those forts great abundance, and some other ffrange kinds to vs vnknowne by name. But in Summer not any or a very few to be feene.

O Fish, we are reft acquainted with Sturgeon, Grampus, Porpus, Seales, Stingraies, whole tail sale very dangerous. Bretts, Mullets, white Salmonds, Trowts, Soles, Place, Herrings, Conytifh, Rocktifh, E. Is., Lampreyes, Catfifh, Shades, Perch of three forts, Crabs, Shrimps, Creufes. Strange forme Oyfters, Cocles and Muscles. But the most strange Fosh is a small one, so like the picture of Saint George his Dragon, as possible can bee, except his legges and wings, and the Todefish, which will fw. Il till it be I ke to burft, when it commeth into the aire.

The Rocks.

Concerning the entrailes of the earth little can be faid for certaintie. There wanted good Refiners, for those that tooke vpon them to have skill this way, tooke vp the washings from the mountaines, and some moskered shining stones and spangles which the waters brought downe. flattering themselves in their owne value concert to have suppoted what they were not, by the meanes of that Ore, if it proued as their Arts and judgements expected. Onely this iscertaine, that many Regions lying in the lame Latitude, afford Mines very rich of divers natures. The cruit allo of their Rocks would easily periwade a man to believe there are other Mines then Iron and Sceele of there were but meanes and men of experience that knew the Mine from Bare.

Of their Planted fruits in Virginia, and how they wfe them.

They divide the yeere into five feafons. Their Winter some call Papanen , the Spring Cate underheyeres penk, the Summer Cobattajough, the earing of their Corne Nopmangh, the Harvelt and fall of Icate Taguirock From Sep. ember, vivall the midft of Nouember are the chiefe Fraits and Sacrifice. Then have they plentie or truces, as well planted as naturall, as Corne, green and ripe, Fish, Fowle, and wild beafts exceeding fat.

How they pro-

The greatest labour they take, is in planting their Corne, for the Countrey is naturally overgrowns with Wood. To prepare the ground they bruife the barke of the trees neere the roote, then doe they fourth the roots with hie that they grow no more. The next yeere with a crooked piece of Wood, they beat up the Woods by the roots, and in those moulds they plant their Corne. 40 Their manner is this. They make a hole in the earth with a flicke, and into it they put four graines of Wheat, and two of B. anes. There holes they make foure foot one from another; Their women and children do continually keepe it with weeding, and when it is growne middle high, they hill it about like a Hop-yard.

How they

In April they begin to plant but their chiefe plantation is in May, and so they continue till the midft of Iune. What they plant in April, they respe in August ; for Blay, in Septembers for Iune, in October. Euery stalke of their Corne commonly beareth two cares, some three, seldome any foure, many but one, and fome none. Every care ordinarily hath between two hundred and five hundred graines. The stalke being greene bath a fweet inyce in it, fomewhat like a Sugar Cane, which is the cause that when they gather their Come greene, they sucke the stalkes for as we ga- 10 ther greene Peale, so doe they their Corne being greene, which excelleth their old. They plant alio Peale, which they call of fest amous, which are the fame they call in Italy, Pogisti. Their Beanes are the fame the Turkes call Garner fes, but thefe they much efteeme for dainties.

How they vie

Their Corne they roft in the eare greene, and bruifed it in a Morter of Wood with a Polt, lap it in roules in he leaues of their Corne, and to boile it for a daintie. They also referue the Corne late planted that will not ripe, by roaffing it in hot after, the heat thereof drying it. In Winter they efteeme it, being boiled with Beanes, for a rare dish, they call Pauleromena. Their old Wheat they first steepe a night in hot water, in the morning pounding it in a Morter. They vie a small basket for their Temmes, then pound agains the great, and sofeparating by dalning their hand in the basket, receive the flower in a platter made of Wood, scraped to that forme with bur- 60 ning and theis. Tempering this flower in water, they make it either in cakes covering with after till they be baked, and then washing them in faire water they drie prefently with their owner heat; or elfe boile them in water, eating the broth with the bread, which they call Pours. The groute and pieces of the cornes remaining, by fanning in a platter, or in the wind, away, the brance they boile three or foure hours with water, which is an ordinary food they call Vitatahamm. But fome more thriftie then cleanly, doe burne the coare of the earers powder, which they call Panamenth, mineling that in their meale, but it never tafted well in bread, nor broth, There his and rieft they boile either very tenderly, or brode it folong on hurdles ouer the fire, or else after How they vie the Spanish fashion, putting it on a spit, they turne first the one side, then the other, till it beest their fish and drie as their lerkin beefe in the Welt Indies, that they may keepe it a month or more without field, putrifying. The broth of fish or fiesh they eate as commonly as the meat. In May also amongst their Corne they plant Pumpeons, and a fruit like vnto a Munke Millen. Planted fruits.

Pumpions planted amongst Corne. Women Barbers. CHAP.2

1607

but leffe and worfe, which they call Macocks. Their increase exceedingly, and riper in the beso sinning of July, and continue vntill September. They plantalfo Muracocks, a wilde fruit like a Lemmon, which also increase infinitely. They begin to ripe in September, and continue till the and of October. When all their fruits be gathered, little elle they plant, and this is done by their women and children; neither doth this long fuffice them, for neere three parts of the yeare they onely observe times and seasons, and live of what the Countrey naturally affordeth frem hand to mouth,&c.

The mildnefle of the aire, the fertilitie of the foile, and the fituation of the Rivers, are fo propi. The 'commotions to the nature and vie of man, as no place is more concernent for pleasure, profit, and mans dities in Vigis suffenence. Vnder that Latitude or Climate, here will live any beafts, as Horses, Goats, Sheepe, Affes, Hens, &c. as appeared by them that were carried thither. The waters, Iles, and hoales, are by industry. 30 full of fafe harbours for thips of Warre or Merchand ze, for boats of all torts, for transportation or A proote, catfishing, &cc. The Bay and Ruers have much merchandable fish, and places fit for Salt scats, but tell will live ding of Ships, making of Iron,&c. Mulconia and Polonia doe yeerely receive many thousands, for Pitch, Tarre, Sope, ashes, Rosen, The Com-Flax, Cordage, Sturgeon, Mafts, Yards, Wainfoot, Firres, Glaffe, and fach like : also Swirbland for Iron and Copper. Frame in like manner for Wine , Canvas, and Sale ; Spaine as much for Iron, Steele, Figs, Reafons, and Sackes. Italy with Silkes and Veluets confirme our chiefe commodities. Holland maintaines it felfe by Fishing and Trading at our owne doores. All these temporize with other for necessities, but all as vocertaine as Peace or Warres. Besides the charge, trauell, and danger in transporting them, by feas, lands, flormes, and Pyrats. Then how much liath Virginia 30 the presogniue of all those flourishing Kingdomes, for the benefit of our Land, when as within one hundred miles all chofe that are to bee had, either readie prouided by nature, or elle to be prepared, were there but industrious men to labour. Onely Copper (we may doubt) is wanting this there is good probabilitie that both Copper, and better manerals are there to bee had for their labour. Ocher Countries haue it. So then here is a place ; a murfe for Souldiers ; a practife for Mariners, a trade for the Merchants, a reward for the good, and that which is most of all, a butineffe (most acceptable to God) to bring fuch poore Infidels to the true knowledge of God, and his holy Gofpel.

Of the natural Inhabitants of Virginia, and their customes.

The land is not populous, for the men be few; their farregreater number is of women and children. Within fixtie miles of lames Towne there are about fome 7000. people, but of able men fit for their warres fearle 2000. To nourish so many together they have yet no meanes, becaple they make to imalt a benefit of their Land, be it never to fertill : feven or eighe handred (hough by their owne report they were about a thousand) have beene the most which hath beene feene together, when they gathered themselues to have furposed Captaine South at Pamayune, having but fifteene to withfland the worft of their furie. As Imail as the proportion of to have furpriground that hath yet beene difcouered, is in comparison of that yet waknowne, the people dif. fed Captains fer very much instance, especially in language, as before is expressed. Some being very great, as Smith. 50 the Sofquefabansocks; others very little, as the Wighousmorers; but generally tall and ftraight, of a comely proportion, and of a colour browne when they are of any age, but they are borne white. Their haire is generally blacke, but few haue any beards. The men weare halfe their The Barbers. heads shauen, the other halfe long; for Barbers they wie their women, who with two shels will grate away the haire, of any fathion they pleafe. The women are out in many fathions agreeable to their yeares, but ever some part remainesh long. They are very strong, of an able body and The constitute full of agilitie, able to endure to lye in the woods under a tree by the fire, in the worlt of winter, or in the weedes and graffe, in Ambuferdo in the Summer. They are inconstant in enery The dispositithing, but what feare conftraineth them to keepe. Craftie, timerous, quicke of apprehension, on.

60 and very ingenious. Some are of disposition feareful, some bold, most cautelous, all Sauage : Generally conerous of Copper, Beads, and such like trash. They are some moved to anger, and so malicious, that they feldome forget an injury : they feldome steale one from another, least their Conjurers should reveale it, and to they be pursued and punished. That they are thus feared is certaine, but that any can reutale their offences by consuration I am doubtfull. Their women are carefull not to be julpected of dishonefty without the leave of their husbands. Each houshold

the moff feene together, when they thought A delcziocios

The poffesti-Their attire.

Their ofna-

knoweth their owne lands and gardens, and most line of their owne labours. For their apparell, they are fometime couered with the skins of wilde Beafts, which in winter are deeffed with the haire, but in summer without. The better fort victarge mantels of Deare skins, not much differing in fashion from the Irif Mantels : some imbrodered with white Beades, some with Conper, other painted after their manner. But the common fort haue scarce to court sheir nakednesse but with graffe, the leaues of trees, or fuch like. Wee have seene some vie mantels made of Turkie-feathers, fo prettily wrought and wouen with threds, that nothing could be difeerned but the feathers. That was exceeding warme and very handsome. But the women are alwaves covered about their middles with a skin, and very fhamefac't to be feene base. Thevadorne themselves most with Copper Beads and paintings. Their women, some have their less. 10 hands, brefts and face cunningly imbrodered with divers works, as Beafts, Serpents, artificially wrought into their flesh with blacke spots. In each eare commonly they have three great holes. whereat the hang Chaines, Bracelets or Copper. Some of their men weare in those holes, a fmall greene and vellow coloured Snake, neere halfe a yard in length, which crawling and lappine her felfe about his necke oftentimes familiarly would kille his lips. Others weare a dead Rat tied by the taile. Some on their heads weare the wing of a bird, or some large feather with a Rattell. Thole Rattels are fomewhat like the chape of a Rapier but leffe, which they take from the taile of a Snake, Many have the whole skin of a Hawke or iome strange fowle, stuffed with the wings abroad. Others a broad peece of Copper, and fome the hand of their enemy drie ed. Their head and shoulders are painted red with the roote Pocone braied to powder mixed with 20

Their buildings.

to behold.

Their Buillings and habitations are for the most part by the Rivers, or not farre distant from some fresh Spring. Their Houses are built like our Arbors, of small your sprigs bowed and ried, and to close couered with mats, or the barks of trees very hand fomely, that not with handing either winde raine or weather, they are fo warme as floues, but very imoakie, yet at the top of the house there is a hole made for the smoake to goe into right ouer the fire.

Oyle, this they hold in fummer to preferue them from the heate, and in winter from the cold.

Many other formes of paintings they vie, but he is the most gallant that is the most mensious

Their lodg-

Against the fire they lye on little hurdles of Reades couered with a mat borne from the ground a foote and more by a Hurdle of wood. On these round about the house they lye heads and 30 points one by shother against the fire, some covered with Mats, some with Skins, and some starke naked, lye on the ground, from fix to twenty in a house. Their Houses are in the midst of their Their gardens, Eields or Gardens, which are small plots of grounds; some twenty, some forty some a hundred, fome two hundred, fome more, fome lefte, fometimes from two to a hundred of those houses together, or but a little seperated by groues of trees. Neare their habitations is little small wood or old trees on the ground by reason of their burning of them for fire. So that a man may sallop a horse amongst these woods any way but where the creekes or Rivers shall hinder.

How they vie

Men, Women, and Children haue their feuerall names, according to the feuerall humour of their Parents. Their women (they fay) are easily delivered of child, yet doe they love children very dearely. To make them hardy, in the coldest mornings they wash them in the Riuers, 40 sheir children. and by painting and ointments fo can their skins, that after a yeare or two, no weather

The industry of their wo.

The men beflow their times in filhing; hunting, warres, and fuch manble exercises, forming to be feene in any womanlike exercise; which is the cause that the women be very painfull, and the men often idle. The women and chikiren doe the reft of the worke. They make Mats, Bafe kets, Pors, Morters, pound their corne, make their bread, prepare their victuals, plant their corne, gather their corne, beare all kinde of burdens, and fuch like.

How they Their order of Their fire they kindle prefently by change a dry pointed sticke in a hole of a little square peece of wood, that firing it telfe, will fo fire moffe, leaves, or any fuch like dry thing, that well quickly burne. In March and April they like much vpon their fifting wares, and teedeon fifth, Tur- 50 kies; and Squirrels. In May and lune they plant their fields, and line most of Acornes, Walnuts, and fifh. But to mend their diet, forme difperfe them felues in small companies, and line vpon fifh Beafts, Crabs, Oyfters, land Fortoyfes, Strawberries, Mulberries, and fuch like. In June, July, and August, they feede upon the rootes of Tocknough Berries, Fish, and greene Wheate. It is strange to fee how their bodies alter with their diet, euen as the Deere and wilde Beafts, they feeme fat and leane, strong and weake. Powhatan their great King, and some others that are prouident, rost their fillt and fielh voon hurdles, as before is expressed, and keepe it till scarce times.

How they

Their Knife.

For fifting, and hunting, and warres, they vie much their Bowe and Arrowes. They bring their Bowes, to the forme of ours; by the scraping of a shell. Their Arrowes are made some of Straight youg sprige, which they head with bone, some two or three inches long. These they 62 wie to firoce at Squirrels on trees. Another fort of Arrowes they vie, made of reedes : thele are perced with wood, headed with splinters of Christall, or some sharpe stone; the sours of a Turkey, or the bill of some Bird. For his Knife, he hath the fplinter of a reede to cut his feathers in forme. With this Knife also, he will iount a Deere or any Beast, shape his shoors, buskins, Mantels. &c. To make the noch of his Arrow, he hath the tooth of a Beuer, fet in a thicke, wherewith he grateth it by degrees. His Arrow head he quickly maketh with a little bone, which he euer weareth at his bracer, of any iplint of a thone or glaffe, in the forme of a hart; and there they glew to the end of their Arrowes. With the finewes of Deere, and the tops of Deeres hornes hoiled to a jelly, they make a glew that will not diffolue in cold water,

For their warres also they vie Targets that are round and made of the barkes of trees, and a Their Targets (word of wood at their backes, but oftentimes they vie for fwords the horne of a Deere put and swords. through a peece of wood, informe of a Pickaxe : fome a long from fharpened at both ends. yfed in the fame manner. This they were wont to vie also for Hatchets, but now by to trucking, they have plenty of the fame forme of Iron. And those are their chiefe instru-

Their fishing is much in Boates. These they make of one tree by burning and scratching a- Their Boats. way the coles with stones and shels, till they have made it in forme of a Trough. Some of them are an elle deepe, and forty or fifty foote in length, and fome will beare forty men, but the most ordinary are smaller, and will beare ten, twenty, or thirty, according to their bignesse. Instead of Oares, they vie paildles and thickes, with which they will rowe falter then our Barges. Batwint their hand, and thighes, their women vie to fpin; the Barkes of trees, Deere linewes, or Howthey foint a kinde of graffe they call Pemmenam, of these they make a thred very even and readily. This thred ferueth for many vies, about their housing, apparell, as also they make nets for filling, for on the quantity as formally braded as ours. They make also with it lines for angles. Their hookes Their Fishcoles are either a bone grated, as they nocke their Arrowes, in the forme of a crocked pin or fishhooke. or of the splinter of a bone tied to the clift of a little flicke, and with the end of the line, they twe on the baite. They vie alfo long Arrowes tyed in a line, wherewith they shoote at fish in the River. But they of Accommack vie staves, like vnto Iquelins, headed with bone. With these continuall ranging, and trauell, they know all the advantages and places most frequented with 20 Deere, Beafts, Fish, Fowle, Rootes, and Berries. At their huntings they leave their habitations, and reduce themselves into companies, as the Tartars doe, and goe to the most desert places with How they have their families, where they spend their time in hunting and fowling up towards the Mountains. by the heads of their Rivers, where there is plenty of game. For betwixe the Rivers, the grounds are fo narrow, that little commeth there which they denouse not. It is a margell they can fo directly passe these detarts, some three or source daies source without habitation. Their hunting Hunting harhouses are like vnto Arbours coucred with mats. There their women beare after them, with fes. Corne, Acornes, Morters, and all bag and baggage they vie. When they come to the place of exercise, every man doth his best to thew his dexteritie, for by their excelling in those qualities, they get their wines. Forty yards will they shoote levell, or very neere the marke, and one hunao dred and twenty is their best at random. At their hunting in the desarts they are commonly two or three hundred together. Having found the Deere, they environ them with many fires, and betwire the fires they place themselves. And some take their stands in the midst. The Decre being thus feared by the fires and their voices, they chace them to long within that circle, that many times they kill fix, eight, ten, or fifteene at a hunting. They vie also to drive them into fome narrow point of land, when they finde that advantage, and fo force them into the River, where with their Boates they have Ambulsadoes to kill them. When they have flot a Deere by land they follow him like Bloud-hounds, by the bloud and straine, and oftentimes so take them. Hares, Partridges, Turkies, or Egges, fat or leane, yong or old, they denoure all they can catch in their power. In one of these huntings they found Captaine Smith, in the discouery of the head of the River of Chickahamania, where they flew his men, and tooke him prisoner in a Begmire, where he faw those exercises, and gathered these observations.

In their hunting & filhing they take extreame paines; yet it being their ordinary exercise from their infancy, they effeemed it a pleasure and are very proud to be expert therein: And by their bours.

One Sauage hunting alone, vied the skinne of a Deere flit on the one fide, and fo put on his One Sauage arme, through the necke, fo that his hand comes to the head which is fluffed, and the hornes, hunting alone, head, eies, eares, and euery part as artificially counterfeited as they can deuile. Thus throwding his body in the skin, by stalking he approacheth the Deere, creeping on the ground from one tree to another. If the Deere chance to finde fault, or stand at gaze, hee turneth the head with his hand to his best advantage to feeme like a Deere, also gazing and licking himsel e. So watching his best aduantage to approach, having shot him, he chaseth him by his bloud and straine till heget him.

When they intend any Wars, the Werowarces vivally have the advise of their Priests and Con- Their confidinters, and their allies and ancient friends, but chiefely the Priefts determine their refolution. rations. Every Werowance, or fome lafty fellow, they appoint Captaine over every Nation. They feldome make Warre for lands or goods, but for women and children, and principally for revenge. They have many enemies, namely all their Westernely Countries beyond the Mountaines, and Theirenem 65;

they dart fift I wimming in the water. They have also many attificiall wares in which they get the heads of the Rivers. Vpon the head of the Powbatans are the Monacans, whole chiefe habitation is at Rullawmeake, voto whom the Moubementhughes, the Massimnacacks, the Manahal-Canno es, and other Nations pay tributes. Vpon the head of the Ruer of Toppabanocke is a penple called Mannahoseks. To the legre contributers the Taux Initamas, the Shackaconsas, the Outponeas, the Tezoneaes, the Whonkentyaes, the Stegarakes, the Haffinnungas, and divers others. all confederates with the Monacans though many differ in language, and be very barbarous, huine for most part of wilde Beaits and fruies. Beyond the Mountaines, from whence is the head of Maffaroniches, the River Patawomeke, the Savages report inhabit their most mortall enemies, the Masfaromekee ypon a great falt water, which by all likelihood is either fome part of Commada, fome great vpon a great fait water, which by att hat falleth into the South Sea. Thele Maffamentes are a great Nation and very populous. For the heads of all those Rivers, especially the Pattawomeker.

the Pantuxuntes, the Safquefahanoks, the Tockwonghes are continually tormented by them : of whole cruelty, they generally complained, and very importunate they were with Cantaine Smith and his company to free them from these tormentors. To this purpose they offered food. conduct, affiltance, and continuall subjection; which hee concluded to effect. But the councell then present, emulating his successe, would not thinke it fit to spare him forty men to be hazarded in those vnknowne Regions, having passed (as before was spoken of) but with twelve, and fo was loft that opportunity. Seuen Boates full of thele Maffanomekes the discourrers encountred at the head of the Bay; whole Targets, Baskets, Swords, Tobaccopines, Flatters. Bowes and Arrowes, and enery thing the wed, they much exceeded them of our parts, and their dexteritie in their small Boates made of the barkes of trees fowed with barke and well luted with gum, argueth that they are feated upon iome great water.

Against all these enemies the Powbarans are constrained sometimes to fight. Their chiefeattempts are by Stratagems, trecheries or furprilals. Yet the Weromances women and children they put not to death, but keepe them Captiues. They have a method in warre, and for our pleasures they flewed it vs, and it was in this manner performed at Mattapanient.

Having painted and difguited themselves in the hercest manner they could deuise. They did uided themielues into two Companies, neere a hundred in a Company. The one company called Monacans, the other Powhatans. Either army had their Captaine. Thele as enemies tooke their stands a Musket shot one from another; ranked themselves fifteene a breit, and each ranke 20 from another foure or fine yards, not in tyle, but in the opening between their tyles. So as the Reare could shoote as conveniently as the Front, Having thus pitched the fields : from either part went a Meffenger with these conditions, that whoforuer were vanquished, furh as elope woon their fubmission in two daies after shall live, but their wives and children should be prize for the Conquerours. The Messengers were no sooner returned, but they approached in theirorders : On each flanke a Sarieant, and in the Reare an officer for Lieutenant, all duely keeping their orders, yet leaping and finging after their accustomed tune which they vie onely in wars. Vpon the first flight of Arrowes they gave such horrible shouts and screeches, as so many infernall helhounds could not have made them more terrible. When they had spent their Arrowes, they joyned together prettily, charging and retiring, every ranke seconding other. As they got 40 aduantage, they catched their enemies by the haire of the head, & down he came that was taken! his enemy with his wodden Sword feemed to beate out his braines, and ftill they crept to the Reare to maintaine the skitmith. The Monacans decreafing, the Powhatans charged them in the forme of a halfe Moon; they vnwilling to be inclosed, fled all in a troope to their Ambulcadors, on whom they led them very cunningly. The Monacans difperfe themielues among the fresh men, whereupon the Powbatans retired with all speede to their seconds; which the Monacans seeing, tooke that advantage to retire againe to their owne battell, and so each returned to their owne quarter. All their actions, voices and gestures, both in charging and retiring, were fo strained to the height of their quallitie and nature, that the strangenesse thereof made it seeme very

For their musicke they vie a thicke Cane, on which they pipe as on a Recorder. For their warres they have a great deepe platter of wood. They cover the mouth thereof with a skin, ac each corner they tie a Walnut, which meeting on the backefide neere to the bottome, with a fmall rope they twitch them together till it be fo tough and fliffe, that they may beare vpon it as vpon a Drum. But their chiefe instruments are Rattels made of small gourds or Pumpions shels. Of these they have Base, Tenor, Countertenor, Mear eand Trible. These mingled with their voyces, fometimes twenty or thirty together, make fuch a terrible norte, as would rather affright then delight any man. If any great Commander arrive at the habitation of a Weromance, they spread a Mat, as the Turkes doe a Carpet, for him to fit vpon. Vpon another right cppolice they fit themselves. Then doe all with a tunable voice of showing bid him welcome 60 After this doe two or more of their chiefest men make an Oration, testifying their loue; which they doe with such vehemency, and so great passions, that they sweate till they drop, and are fo out of breath they can scarce speake; so that a man would take them to be ex ding angry, or flarke mad. Such victuall as they have, they spend treely, and at night where his

CHAP. 3. Trading for Copper. Priests Ornaments. Strange passions. lodging is appointed, they fet a woman fresh painted red with Pocenes and Oile, to be his

Their manner of trading is for Copper, Beades, and fuch like, for which they give fuch commodities as they have, as Skins, Fowle, Fish, Flesh, and their Countrie Corne. But their victuall

Euery fpring they make themselues sickewith drinking the juice of a roote they call Wieb. Their philicke, Gean, and water, whereof they powre fo great a quantity, that it purgeth them in a very violent manner ; fo that in three or foure daies after they scarce recouer their former health. Sometimes they are troubled with dropfies, fwellings, aches, and fuch like difeales; for cure whereof they build a stone, in the forme of a Douehoule, with mats, so close that a few coales therein copered with a pot, will make the patient sweate extreamely. For swellings also they vie small peeces of touchwood, in the forme of cloues, which pricking on the griefe they burne close to the Helh, and from thence draw the corruption with their mouth. With this root Wighfacan they ordinarily heale greene wounds. But to scarrifie a swelling or make incision, their best instruments are some splinted stone. Old vicers or putrified hurts are seldome seene cured amongst them. They have many professed Physicians, who with their charmes and Ractels with an in- Their charmes fernall rows of words and actions will feeme to fucke their inward griefe from their nauels or to cure, their grieued places; but of our Chirurgians they were to conceited, that they beleeved any Plaifter would heale any hurt.

Of their Religion.

There is yet in Virginia no place discouered to be so Sauage in which the Sauages have not a Religion, Deere, and Bow, and Arrowes. All things that were able to doe them hurt beyond their preuention, they adore with their kinde of diuine worship; as the fire, water, lightning, thunder, our ordnance peeces, horses, &cc. But their chiefe God they worship is the Diuell; him they call Oke, and ferue him more of feare then loue. They fay they have conference with him and faihion themselves as neere to his shape as they can imagine. In their Temples they have his image euilfauouredly carued, and then painted and adorned with Chaines, Copper, and Beads, and couered with a skin, in such manner as the deformitie may well suite with such a God. By him is commonly the fepulcher of their Kings. Their bodies are first bowelled, then dried vpon hurdles till they be very dry, and so about the most of their joints and necke they hang How hey bu-

Bracelets or Chaines of Copper, Pearle, and such like, as they vie to weare, their inwards they ry their Kings, fluffe with Copper Beads and coursed with a Skin, Hatchets, and fuch trash. Then lap they them very carefully in white Skins, and fo rowle them in mats for their winding-sheetes. And in the Tombe, which is an arch made of Mats, they lay them orderly. What remaineth of this kinde of wealth, their Kings haue, they fet at their feete in baskets. These Temples and bodies are

For their ordinary burials, they dig a deepe hole in the earth with fharpe stakes, and the corpes being lapped in Skins and Mats with their lewels, they lay them upon dicks in the ground, and 40 fo couer them with earth. The buriall ended the women being painted all their faces with black coleand oyle, doe fit foure and twenty houres in the houses mourning and lamenting by turnes, with fuch yelling and howling as may expresse their great passions.

In every Territory of a Werowance is a Temple and a Priest, two, or three, or more. Their pring Their Temples cipall Temple or place of superfittion is at Vitamuffack at Pamaunke, neere vnto which is a house temple or place of Powhatans. Vpon the top of certain red fandy hils in the woods, there are three great houses filled with images of their Kings, and Duels, & Tombes of their Predeceffors, Those houses are neere fixty foot in length, built arbot-wise after their building. This place they count fo holy as that none but the Priests and Kings dare come into them; nor the Sauages dare not goe Vp the River in Boares by it, but that they solemnly cast some peece of Popper, white Beads or

To Pocones into the River; for feare their Oke (hould be offended and revenged of them. In this place Their ornacommonly are refident feuen Priefts. The chiefe differed from the reft in his ornaments, but inferments for rior Priefts could hardly be knowne from the common people, but that they had not io many their Priefts. holes in their eares to have their Iewels at. The ornament of the chiefe Prieft were certaine attires for his head made thus: They tooke a dofen, or fixteene, or more Snake skins, and stuffed them with moste, & of Weelels, and other vermine skins a good many. All these they tye by their tailes, fo as all their tailes meete in the top of their head, like a great Taffell. Round about this Taffell is as it were a cown of feathers, the skins hang round about his head, necke, and shoulders, and in a manner couer his face. The faces of all their Priefts are painted as vgly as they can deuife, in their hands they had every one his Rattell, some base, some smaller. Their devotion was most in 60 Songs, which the chiefe Priest beginneth, and the rest followed him, sometimes he maketh inuo.

cations with broken fentences by flarts and flrange paffions, and at every paule, the reft give a It could not be perceived that they keepe any day as more holy then other; but onely in some Their times of great diffreste of want feare of enemies, times of triumph and gathering together their fruits, the folemeries.

whole

Their Coniurations.

with Rattles and shouts together foure or fine houres. Sometime they let a man in the midft.and about him they dance and fing, he all the while clapping his hands if he would keepe time, and after their fongs and dancings ended they goe to their Feafts. They have also divers conjurations; one they made when Captaine Smith was their prisoner (as they reported) to know if any more of his Country-men would arrive there, and what hee there intended. The manner of it followeth in his story.

Their Altara. C.Smith.

Sacrifices to

the water.

They have also certaine Altar stones, they call Pancorances, but these stand from their Temples, fome by there houses; others in the Woods and Wildernesses : Where they bane bad any ex- 10 traordinary accident or incounter. As you travell by them they will tell you the cause of their erection. wherein they instruct their children; fo that they are in flead of Records and memorialls of their Antianities. Voon this they offer bloud, Deare fuet, and Tobacco. These they doe when they returne from the warres, from hunting, and vpon many other occasions. They have also another Superflition that they vie in flormes, when the waters are rough in the Rivers and Sea Coafts. Their Conjurers runne to the water fides, or paffing in their Boats, after many hellish outcies and invocations, they cast Tobacco, Copper, Pocones, or such trash into the water, to pacifie that God whom they thinke to be very angry in those flormes. Before their dinners and suppers, the better fort will take the first bit, and cast it in the fire, which is all the grace they are

Their folemne making of

C.Smith.

Enery Nation in feuen or ten yeeres vieth a kind of folemnity. Such a one was at Quijongbeohanack, fome ten miles from lames Towne, and thus performed. Fifteene of the properest young Boyes, betweene ten and fifteene yeeres of age they painted white. Having brought them forth. the people spent the forenoone in dancing and singing about them with Rattler. In the afternoone they put those children to the root of the tree. By them all the men stood in a gard, euery one having a Bastinado in his hand, made of Reeds bound together. This made a lane betweene them all along, through which there were appointed fine young men to fetch thefechile dren : fo euerie one of the fine went through the guard to fetch a child each after other by turnes, the guard fearlessy beating them with the Bastinadoes, and they patiently enduring and receiuing all, defending the children with their naked bodies from the vinmerciful blowes, that pay them foundly, though tie children escape. All this while the women weepe and cry out vene pissionately, prouiding Mats, Skins, Mosse, and drie Wood, as things fitting their childrens Funtralls. After the children were thus passed, the guard tore downe the trees, branches, and boughs, with such violence that they rent the bodie, and made wreathes for their heads, or bedecked their haire with leaves. What elfe was done with the children, was not feene, but they were all cast on a heape, in a Valley as dead, where they made a great feast for all the company, The Werowance being demanded the meaning of this facrifice, answered. That the children were not all dead, but the next day they were to drinke Wighlakon, which would make them mad; and they were to bee kept by the last made Blacke boyes in the wildernesse, where their Oke did sucke the blond of those which fell to bic lot. The truth is, as I thinke that many die with the mifery which they endure. For they 46 lye in all weathers in a little bonell naked , and they seldome speake or keepe company with any but them Keepers ; whom they obey fo, that if they be bidden fit on the frozen from, they will not rife till they be called. And if they bid them goe take Fish, Flesh, or Corne from their mothers, or elfe they are Old me, this word is fo terrible that they will teare their mothers throat but they will have it; yea it makes them do what seemer they are commanded: and much mischiefe they often doe to such as they find stragling. Tet burt they not each other. They continue thus nine months. Then are divers platters of broth set, of which some are porsoned; and be whose dimmation finds out the porsoned, is much esteemed and made a Quiyoughootuck. Thefe are the degrees to become Priests or Coniurers. This facrifice they held to be to necessary, that if they should omit it, their Oke or Devil, and all their other Quijone hoo suches which are there other Gods, would let them have no Deare, Turkies, Corne, nor Fifth, and yet be- 50 fides, be would make a great flaughter among it them.

They thinke that their Weromances and Priests , which they also esteeme Quijone beefaghes, when they are dead, goe beyond the Mountaines towards the fetting of the Sunne, and euer remaine there in forme of their Oke, with their heads painted with Oile and Pocones, finely trimmed with Feathers, and shall have Beades, Hatchets, Copper, and Tobacco, doing nothing but dance and fing, with all their Predeceffors. But the common people they suppose shall not live after death.

Their refur-

To divert them from this blind Idolatry, many vied there best endeauours, chiefly with the Werewances of Quiyoughcohanock, whose deuotion, apprehension, and good disposition, much exceeded any in those Countries, whom though wee could not as yet prevaile withall to forfake 62 his falle Gods, yet this hedid beleeue, that our God as much exceeded theirs, as our Gunnes did their Bowes and Arrowes, and many times did fend to the President, at Iames Towne, men with Presents, intreating them to pray to his God for Raine, for his God's would not fend him any. And in this lamentable ignorance, doe these poore soules sacrifice themselves to the Devil, not knowing their Creator.

of the manner of the Virginians Government.

Although the Countrey people be very barbarous, yet have they amongst them such govern ment, as that their Magistrates for good commanding, and their people for due subjection, and obeying, excell many places that would be counted verie civill. The forme of their Commonwealth is a Monarchiall government, one as Emperour ruleth over many Kings or Governours. Their chiefe Ruler is called Powhatan, and taketh his name of the principall place of dwelling, salled Powhatan. But his proper name is Wahun Sonacock, Some Countries hee hath which have been his Ancestors, and came vnto him by Inheritance, as the Countrie called Pophasan, Arro-To bateck, Appamatuke, Pamavuke, Toughtanud, and Mattapaniont. All the reft of his Tetritories expreffed in the Map, they report have beene his feuerall conqueits. In all his ancient Inheritances, hee hath houses built after their manner like arbours, fome thirtie, some fortie yards long, and at euerie house prouision for his entertainment according to the time. At Weroweomogo, hee was feated youn the Northfide of the River Pamazuke, fome fourteene miles from James Towne. where for the most part, hee was resident, but hee tooke so little pleasure in our neere neighbourhood, that were able to visit him against his will in sixe or feuen houres. that he retired himselfe to a place in the Defarts at the top of the River Chickahamania, betweene Tonghtanund and Pow- A deferition batan. His habitation is called Orapacks, where he ordinarily now refideth. He is of parlonage a of Powhatan. tall well proportioned man, with a fower looke, his head fomewhat gray, his beard to thin that an it feemeth none at all , his age neere fixtie; of a verie able and hardie bodie to endure any labour. About his person ordinarily attendeth a guard of fortie or fiftie of the tallest men his Countrie doth afford. Euerie night voon the foure quarters of his house are foure Sentinels each standing from other a flight shoot, and at every halfe houre one from the Corps due guard doth hollow, vnto whom euerie Sentinell doth answere round from his stand; if any faile, they presently fend forth an officer that beateth him extreamely. A mile from Orapakes, in a thicket of Wood, hee hath a house in which hee keepeth his kind of His treasuries Treasure, as Skins, Copper, Pearle, and Beads, which he storeth vp against the time of his death and buriall. Here also is store of Red paint for ointment, and Bowes and Arrowes. This house is siftie or fixtie yards in length, frequented onely by Prieffs. At the foure corners of this house stand of foure Images as Sentinels, one of a Dragon, another a Beare, the third like a Leopard, and the fourth like a Grant-like man, all made eurll-favor dly, according to their best workmanship. He hath as many women as he will, whereof when he lieth on his bed, one fitteth at his head. His Whice, and another at his feet, but when he fitteth one fitteth on his right hand & another on his left. As he is weary of his women, he bestoweth them on those that best deserue them at his hands. When he dineth or suppeth, one of his women before and after meat, bringeth him water in a woodden Platter to wash his hands. Another waiteth with a bunch of Feathers to wipe them insteed of a Towell, and the Feathers when he hath wiped are dried againe. His Kingdome descendeth not to his ionnes nor children, but first to his brethren, whereof hee hath three, namely Opitchapan, His Successions Opechancanough, and Catataugh, and after their decease to his fifters. First to the eldest fifter, then The title of ao to the rest, and after them to the heire male and semale of the eldest fister, but never to the heires sacceffion-

of the males. Hee, nor any of his people understand any letters whereby to write or read, onely the Lawes whereby he ruleth is Cuftome. Yet when hee lifteth his will is a law, and must be obeyed : not only as a King, but as halfe a God they efteeme him. His inferiour Kings, whom they call Their authoris Weromances are tied to rule by cultomes, and have power of life and death, as their command in that nature. But this word Werewance, which we call and confter for a King, is a common word whereby they call all Commanders : for they have but few words in their language, and but few occasions to vie any officers more then one Commander, which commonly they call Werowances. The topor of They all know their fenerall lands, and habitations, and limits, to fish, fowle, or hunt in, but they their lands. 50 hold all of their great Werowance Powhatan, vnto whom they pay tribute of Skins, Beads, Copper. Pearle, Deare, Turkies, wild Beatls, and Corne. What hee commandeth they dare not disobey in the least thing. It is strange to see with what great feare & adoration all these people do obey this Powhatan. For at his feet they present whatsoever hee commandeth, at the least frowne of his brow, their greatest spirits will tremble with feare; and no marnell, for hee is very terrible and tyrannous in punishing such as offend him. For example, hee caused certaine malefactors to bee His manner of bound hand and foot, then having many fires, gathering great flore of burning coles, they rake these punishments. coles round in the forme of a cock-pit, and in the midtl they cast the offenders to broyle to death.

ftone, and one with clubs beat out their braines. When he would punish any notorious enemy or 60 malefactor, hee caufeth him to bee tied to a tree, and with Mulile shels, or Reeds, the executioner cutteth off his joynts one after another, ever cafting what they cut off into the fire; then doth hee proceed with S. els and Reeds to case the skin from his head and face; then doe they rip his belly, and so burne him with the tree and all. Thus themselves reported they executed George Cassen. Their ordinary correction is to beat them with cudgels. Wee have seene a man kneeling on his

Cececee

Somtimes hee canfeth the heads of them that offend him, to beel aid vpon the altar or facrificing

Vanitie of

Liff minate

Vanitie of

felf-fecking

glor:ofos.

Planters.

knees, and at Powhatans command, two men have beat him on the bare skin, till hee hath fallen fenfeleffe in a found, and yet neuer cry nor complained.

In the yeare 1608, he furprised the people of Paganhetank, his neere neighbours and subjects: The occasion was to vs vnknowne, but the manner was thus. First, he sent divers of his mento lodge among them that night, then the Ambufacodes invironed all their houses, and at the hour appointed, they all fel to the spoile, twenty foure men they slew, the long haire of their one fide of their heads, with the skinne caled off with shels or reeds, they brought away. They surprifed also the women, the children, and the Werowance. All these they present to Pombaran. The Weremance, women and children became his pritoners, and doe him feruice. The lockes of haire with their skins he hanged on a line vnto two trees. And thus hee made oftentation of 25 to great a triumph at Werowocomoco, thewing them to the English men that then came vnto him at his appointment, they expecting prouision, he to betray them, supposed to halfe conquer them by this ipectacle of his terrible crueltie.

And this is as much as my memory can call to mind worthy of note; which I have purposely collected, to fatisfie my friends of the true worth and qualitie of Virginia. Yet fome bad natures will not flick to flander the Countrey, that will flouenly fpit at all things, especially in company where they can find none to contradict them. Who though they were learce euer ten miles from Iames Towne, or at the most but at the Falls; yet holding it a great diffrace that among to much action, their actions were nothing, exclaime of all things, though they never adventured to know any thing , nor ever did any thing but devoure the fruits of other mens labours. Being for 20 most part of such tender educations and small experience in martiall accidents, because they found not English Cities, nor fuch faire houses, nor at their owne wishes any of their accustomed dainties, with Feather-beds, and Down-pillowes, Tauernes and Ale-houses in euery breathing place, neither fuch plentie of Gold and Silver and diffolute libertie as they expected, had little or no care of any thing, but to pamper their bellies, to fly away with our Pinnaces, or procure their meanes to returne tor England. For the Countrey was to them a mifery, a ruine, a death, a bell, their reports here, and their owne actions were there according.

Some other there were that had yeerely stipends to passe to and againe for transportation: who to keepe the mystery of the businesse in themselves, though they had neither time nor meanes to know much of themselves; yet all mens actions or relations they so formally tuned to 20 the temporizing times simplicitie, as they could make their ignorances seeme much more, then all the true actors could by their experience. And those with their great wordes deluded the world with such strange promises, as abused the businesse much worse then the rest. For the bufineffe being builded vpon the foundation of their fained experience, the planters, the Money, Tin, and meanes haue still miscarried : yet they euer returning, and the Planters so farre absent, who could contradict their excuses ? which still to maintaine their vain-glory and estimation, from time to time they have vied fuch diligence as made them passe for truths, though nothing more falle. And that the adventurers might be thus abused, let no man wonder; for the wisest litting is foonest abused by him that hath a faire tongue and a dissembling heart.

Miferie of bale

There were many in Virginia meerely proiecting, verball and idle contemplators, and those so 40 denoted to pure idlenelle, that though they had lived two or three yeeres in Virginia, lordly, neceffitie it selfe could not compel them to paste the Pninfula, or Palisadoes of lames Town, & thole wittie spirits, what would they not affirme in the behalfe of our transporters to get victual from their ships, or obtaine their good words in England to their passes. Thus the clamors and the ignorance of itle informers, are forung those disasters that sprung in Virginia, and our ingenious Verbalists were no lesse plague to vain Virginia, then the Locusts to the Egyptians, For the labour of thirtie of the best only, preserved in Christianitie by their industry the idle livers of neere two hundred of the rest: who hung neere ten months of such natural meanes, as the Countrey naturally of it selfeassorded, not withstanding all this, and the worst fury of the Sauges, the extremitie of ficknesse, mutinies, faction, ignorances, and want of victual : in all that time Host 50 but seuen or eight men, yet subjected the Sauages to our defired obedience, and received contribution from five and thirtie of their Kings, to protect and affift them against any that should affault them; in which order they continued true and faithfull, and as subjects to his Maiestie, so long after as I did gouerne there, vntill I left the Countrey : fince , how they have revolted, the Countrey lost, and againe replanted, and the businesses have succeeded from time to time, I refer you to the relations of them returned from Virginia, that have been more diligent in fuch obseruations, gathered out of the Writings of divers of that Plantation, by Doctor William Simon.

CHAP. 60

CHAP. IIII.

CHAP. 4. Letters Patents for establishing a Counsell. A Fort contriued.

The proceedings of the English Colony in Virginia, taken faithfully out of the writings of THOMAS STYDLY Cape-Merchant, ANAS TODKILL, Doctor Rys-SELL, NATHANIEL POWELL, WILLIAM PHETIPLACE, and RICHARD POT, * RICHARD WIFFIN, THO. AB-BAY, THO. HOPE; and since enlarged out of the Writings of Capt. IOHN SMITH, principal Agent and Patient in thele Virginian Occurrents, from the beginning of the Plantation 1606. till Ann. 1610. Comewhat abridged.

Apraine Bartholomen Gofnold, the first mouer of this Plantation, having many cause these weeres folicited many of his friends, but found imall affiftants; at last prevailed have alreadie with fome Gentlemen, as M. Edward-Maria Wingfield , Captaine John Smith, feene the light, and divers others, who depended a yeere upon his projects, but nothing could and containe be effected, till by their great charge and industrie it came to bee apprehended of Virginian by certaine of the Nobilitie, Gentrie, and Merchants, fo that his Maiettie by affaires. I was his Letters Patents, gaue Commission for establishing Councels, to direct here, and to governe, and loth to wearie to execute there : to effect this was front another yeere, and by that time three Ships were pro- the Reader uided, one of one hundred Tuns, another of fortie, and a Pinnace of twentie. The transportation with others of this time. on of the Company was committed to Captaine Christopher Newport, a Mariner well practifed for The fift mothe Westerne parts of America. But their orders for gouernment were put in a Box, not to bee ucr of the

opened, nor the Governours knowne vntill they arrived in Virginia.

On the ninteenth of December, 1606. wee fet faile, but by vnprosperous winds, were kept Orders for gofix weekes in the fight of England; all which time, M. Hunt our Preacher, was fo weake and england; ficke, that few expected his recourrie. Yet although hee were but ten or twelue miles from his Admirall with to habitation (the time we were in the Downes) and notwithstanding the stormy weather, nor the 71, feandalous imputation (of fome few , little better then Atheilts , of the greatest ranke among it God feed Vice. vs) fuggefted against him, all this could neuer force from him so much as a seeming defire to leave admirall with the bulinesse, but preferred the Service of God, in so good a Voyage, before any affection to con
Gommanded test with his godleffe foes, whose disasterous designes (could they have prevailed) had even then by Cap Golnal. overthrowne the businesse. So many discontents did then arise, had he not with the water of patience, and his godly exhortations (but briefly by his true denouted examples) quenched those Rear admirely, flames of enuy and diffention.

Wee waterdat the Canaries, we traded with the Sauages at Dominica; three weekes we spent M. Hunt. in refreshing our selues amongst these West India Iles; in Gwardalupa wee found a Bath so hot, as 40 in it we boiled Porck as well as over the fire. And at a little lle, called Monica, wee tooke from the Bulhes with our hands, neere two Hogsheads of Birds in three or foure houses. In Mevis, Monica an vno Mona , and the Virgin Iles, we spent some time, wherewith a loathsome beast like a Crocadil, called a Gwayn, Tortoles, Pellicans, Parrots, and Filhes, wee daily feasted. Gone from thence in fearch of Virginia, the Company was not a little discomforted, seeing the Mariners had three daies passed their reckoning and found no Land, so that Captaine Ratcliffe (Captaine of the Pinnace) rather desired to beare vp the Helme to returne for England, then make further search. But God the guider of all good actions, forcing them by an extreame florme to Hull all night, did drive them by his providence to their defired Port, beyond all their expectations, for never any of them had feenethat Coaft. The first Land they made, they called Cape Henry; where ancho- Their first ring, M. Wing field, Goffoll, and Newport, with thirtie others, recreating themselves on shoare, Were landing-50 affaulted by fine Sauages, who hart two of the English very dangerously. That night was the Box opened, and the orders read in which Bartholomen Gofnoll Edward Wing field, Christopher Nemport.

John Smith, John Ratliffe, John Marzin, and George Kendall, were named to be the Councell, and to chuse a President among st them for a yeere, who with the Councell should gouerne. Matters of Matters of gol moment were to be examined by a Jury , but determined by the Maior part of the Councell , in ueroment. which the Prefident had two voices. Vintill the thirteenth of May they fought a place to plant in, then the Councell was I worne, M. Wing field was chosen Prefident, and an Oration made, why Captaine Smith was not admitted to the Councell as the reft.

Now falleth every man to worke, the Councell contrine the Fort, the rest cut downe Trees to 60 make place to pitch their Tents ; some prouide Clap-board to relade the Ships, some make Gardens, lome Nets, &c. The Sauges often visited vs kindly. The Presidents ouerweening iealousie would admit no exercise at Armes, or Fortification, but the Boughs of Trees cast together in the The discourse forme of a halfe Moone, by the extraordinary paine and diligence of Captaine Kendall, Nemport, orthe Fols and With Smith, and twentie others, were lent to discouer the head of the River : by divers small habi- Pontain.

* I haue many written Treatifes lymo by me, written by Capt. Smith and others. fome there, feme here af

Godly zeale of

Cccccc 2

The Fort affaulted by the I hau: also M. Wingfields notes of thefe offaires : but ould not rouble the Reader here with things nore then troublefome zhere.

tations they passed, in fixe dayes they arrived at a Towne called Powbatan, consisting of some twelve houses pleasantly seated on a Hill; before it three fertill lies, about it many of their Cornfields, the place is very pleasant, and strong by nature, of this place the Prince is called Pope hatan, and his people Powhatans, to this place the River is Navigable, but higher within a mile, by reation of the Rockes and Iles, there is not passage for a small Boat, this they call the Falls, the people in all parts kindly intreated them, till being returned within twentie miles of lames Towne, they gave just cause of jealousie, but had God not blessed the discoverers otherwise then those at the Fort, there had then beene an end of that Plantation; for at the Fort, where they are rived the next day, they found seventeene men hurt, and a boy slaine by the Sauages, and had it nor chanced a croffe Bar shot from the Ships strooke downe a Bough from a Tree amongst them, that caused them to retire, our men had all beene flaine, being securely all at worke, and their Armes in Dry-fats. Heereupon the President was contented the Fort should be pallisadeed, the Ordnance mounted, his men armed and exercifed, for many were the affaults, and Ambufcadore of the Sauges, and our men by their diforderly ftragling were often hurt, when the Sauges by the nimble neile of their heeles well elcaped. What toile we had, with fo small a power to guard our workemen adayes, watch all night, refilt our enemies, and effect our bulineffe, to relade the Ships, cut downe Trees, and prepare the ground to plant our Corne, &c. I refer to the Readers confideration. Six weekes being Ipent in this manner; Captaine Newport (who was hired onely for our transportation) was to returne with the Ships.

Now Captaine Smith (who all this time from their departure from the Canaries) was reftrai-20 ned as a prisoner upon the scandalous suggestions of some of the chiefe (enuying his repute) who fained he intended to viurpe the gouernment, murder the Councell, and make hunfelfe King that his confederates were dispersed in all the three Ships, and that divers of his confederates that renealed it, would affirme it; for this he was committed, thirteene weekes hee remained thus fulpected, and by that time the Ships should returne, they pretended, out of their commissions. to referre him to the Councell in England to receive a check, rather then by particulating his defignes make him to odious to the world, as to touch his life, or veterly ouerthrow his reputation : but he much scorned their charitie, and publikely defied the vetermost of their crueltie, hee wilely prevented their policies, though bee could not suppresse their enuies, yet so well hee demeaned himfelte in this businesse, as all the Company did see his innocencie, and his adversaries malice, 20 and those which had beene subborned to accuse him, accused his accusers of subornation; many wntruths were alledged against him; but being so apparantly disproved, begat a generall hatred in the hearts of the Company against such vniust Commanders; many were the mischiefes that daily forume from their ignorant (yet ambitious) spirits; but the good doctrine and exhortation of our Preacher Master Hunt reconciled them, and caused Captaine Smith to be admitted of the Councell: the next day all received the Communion, the day following the Sauages voluntarily defired peace, and Captaine Newport returned for England with newes; leaving in Virginia one hundred the fifteenth of lune 1607.

The names of them that were the first planters, were these following. Master Edward-Maria Winefield, Captaine Bartholomew Gofnoll, Capt. Iohn Smith, Capt. Iohn Ratcliffe, Cap. Iohn Martin, 40 Capt. George Kendall, Councellors.

M. George Piercy, M. Robert Hunt Preacher, Anthony Gofnoll, Capt. Gabrill Archer, Rob. Ford, William Brustar, Dru Pickhouse, John Brookes, Thomas Sands, John Robinson, Visis Clonil, Kellam Throgmorton, Nathaniell Powell, Robert Bebethland, Ievemy Alicock, Thomas Studley, Richard Crofts, Nucholas Houlgraue, Thomas Webbe, John Waler , William Tankard , Francis Snarsbrough , Edward Brookes, Richard Dixon, John Martin, George Martin, Anthony Gofnold, Thomas Wotten, Stirg. Thomas Gore, Francis Midwinter, Gentlemen.

William Laxon, Edward Pifing, Tho. Emry, Rob. Small, Carpenters. Anas Todeill, John Capper. Iames Read, Blacksmith, Ionas Profit, Sailer. The Couper, Barber. lobn Herd, Brick-layer, William Garret, Brick-layer. Edward Brinto, Malon, William Lone, Taylor, Nic, Skee Drum.

Iobn Laydon, William Caffen, George Caffen, Tho. Caffen, William Rods, William White, Ould Edward, Henry Tanin, George Golding, loba Dods Will. lobn fon, Will. Vinger, Labouters. Will Wilkin fon. Surgeon. Samuell Collier, Nat. Pecock, James Brumfield, Rich, Matton, with divers others to the number of one hundred and fine.

What happened till the first supply. The occasion of fickneffe. The Sailers

D Eing thus left to our fortunes, it fortuned that within ten dayes, scarce ten among it vs could Deither goe, or well stand, such extreame weaknesse and sicknesse oppressed vs. And thereat none need maruell, if they confider the cause and reason, which was this; whilest she ships stayed, our allowance was somewhat bettered, by a daily proportion of bisket which the Saylers would pilfer to fell, give or exchange with vs, for money, faxefras, furres, or love. But when they 60 departed , there remained neither Tauerne, Beere-house , nor place of reliefe but the common kettell. Had we beene as free from all finnes as gluttony, and drunkennesse, we might have beene canonized for Saints : But our President would never have beene admitted, for ingroffing to his private, Otemeale, Sack, Oile, Aquavitz, Beefe, Egges, or what not, but the kettel; that indeed he allowed equally to be diffributed, and that was halfea pinte of Wheat, and as much Barly boiled with water for a mana day, and this having fryed tome fix and twentie weekes in the ships hold, contained as many wormes as graines; fo that wee might truely call it rather fo much Bran then Corne, our drinke was water, our lodgings castles in aire, with this lodging and diet, our extreame toile in bearing and planting Pallifadoes, lo strained and bruifed vs. and our continual labour in the extreamitie of heat had to weakned vs, as were cause sufficient to have made vs as miferable in our native Countrey, or any other place in the world. From May to September, those dene. that escaped lived upon Sturgion, and Sea-Crabs; fiftie in this time we buried : The rest seeing the Presidents projects to escape these mileries in our Pinnace by flight (who all this time had to neither felt want nor ficknesse) so moued our dead spirits, as wee deposed him; and established

Rateliffe in his place, (Gofnell being dead) Kendall deposed, Smith newly recoursed, Martin and Railffe was by his care preferred and relieved, but now was all our provision spens, the Sturgeon gone, all helpes abandoned, each houre expecting the fury of the Sauages; when God, the Parron of all good indeauours in that desperat extreamitie, to changed the hearts of the Sauages, that they Plentie vnczbrought such plentie of their fruits and prouision, as no man wanted.

The new President, and Marin, being little beloued; of weake sudgement in dangers, and leffe industry in peace, committed the managing of all things abroad to Captaine Smith: who by his owne example, good words, and faire promites, fet some to mow, others to binde thatch, some to build houses, others to thatch them, himselfe alwaies bearing the greatest taske for his owne 20 share, so that in short time he prouided most of them lodgings, neglecting any for himselfe. This done, leeing the Sauages superfluitie begin to decrease (with some of his workmen) hee shipped himselfe in the shallop to search the Countrey tor trade, the want of the language, knowledge to mannage his Boat without Sailers, the want of fufficient power (knowing the multitude of the Sauages) apparell for his men, and other necessaries, were infinite impediments, yet no discouragement, Being but fixe or leuen in company, hee went downe the River to Kecongbian, where ragement. Deing out in a sa a flarued man; and would in derision offer bies a handfull of Corne, or a c. smith. piece of Bread for their Swords and Mulkets, and such like proportions also for their apparell. But seeing by trade there was nothing to be had nesefficie forced him to exceed his Commission, and to vie his Muskets to another kind of trading, which made these deriders flye to the Woods. Hee basted to their honses, 30 and found flore of Corne, from which the hungry Souldier; were hardly detained, in bastier spoile to bane betrayed themselves to the returning Sanages affault. This fixite or seventy did presently, with hideous noise to the eare, and manifold colours painted to the eye, singing and dancing with their Okee (which was an Idol made with skins, sinfed with mosse, all painted and hanged with Chaines and Copper, borne before them) and being well ar med with Clubs, Targets, Bowes and Arrowes, they charged the English, who fo kindly received them with their Muskets loaden with Postoll flot, that downe fell their God, and divers of his worthippers lay forauling on the ground, the reft firing to the Woods. Soone after they fent one of their Quiyoughcalucks to offer peace, and redeeme their Okee. Smith agreed that if onely fixe would come wnarmed and load his Boat with Corne, bee would be their friend, restore their Okee, and give them also Beads, Copper, Hatchets; which on beth sides was performed to mutual content, and they brought him 40 (finging and dansing) Vension, Turkeys, wild Fowle, Bread, &c. In his returne hee discourred and (finging and danfing) Vension, Tinkess, was Fowle, Bread, Gre. In his returns nee discourred and Thebeginning kindly traded with the Wereskopks, in the means time those at the Fort to glutted the Sauages of tradea-

with their commodities as they became not regarded. Smith perceiving (notwithstanding their late mifery) not any regarded but from hand to mouth (the company being well recoursed) caused the Pinnace to bee prouided with things fitting to get prouition for the yeere following; but in the interim he made three or foure journyes and discovered the people of Chickehamine, yet what hee carefully provided the rest carelesty spent, Wingfield and Kendall living in digrace, feeing all things at randome in the absence of Smith, The Companies diflike of their Prefidents weaknesse, and their small love to Martins ne- The distourre uer-mending fickneffe, ftrengthened themselves with the Sailers, and other confederates to re- of chukuha

30 gaine their former credit and authoritie, or at least fuch meanes aboard the Pinnace (being fitted mine. to faile as Smith had appointed for trade) to alter her course and to goe for England, Smith vnexpectedly returning had the plot discoursed unto him, much trouble hee had to preuent it, till with flore of Fauken and Musket shot hee forced them to flay or linke in the River, which action coil the life of Captaine Kendall. The President and Captaine Archer not long after intended also to have abandoned the Countrey, which project also was curbed and sup- in a coabinpressed by Smith. And now the Winter approaching, the Rivers became so covered with don the Coun-Swans, Geele, Ducks, and Cranes, that wee daily feathed with good Bread, Virginia Peale, trry. Pumpions, and Putchamins, Fish, Fowle, and divers forts of wild Beasts as fat as wee could eate Winter Fowles them : fo that none of our Tuftaffatie humorifts defired to goe for England. But our Comzdies

60 neuer endured long without a Tragedie; some ielle exceptions being muttered against Capraine Smith, for not discouring the head of Chickahamine river, & taxed by the Conneel, to be too slow in to worthy an attempt. The next voyage hee proceeded fo far, that with much labour by cutting off Trees in funder hee made his paffage, but when his Barge could paffe no farcher, hee left her in a broad Bay out of danger of thot, commanding none should goe ashoare till his returne sbufes.

Cccccc 3

Capt. Newports returne for Emland.

himfelfe with two English and two Sauages went up higher in a Canowe, but hee was not long abtent, but his men went ashoare, whose want of government, gave both occasion and opportunity to the Sauages to surprize one George Casson, and much failed not to have cut off the Boate and of Sauages.

Diali admired

The Sauages having drawns from George Casson, whither Captaine Smith was gone, followed him with three hundred Bowmen, conducted by Opechankanough the King of Pamaunke; who fearthing Cap. Smith af. the dinifions of the River found Robinton and Emery by the fire side, whom they bot full of Arrowes and stem. Smith being assaulted slew three of them, and so galled the rest that they would not come nere. be vied the Savaze bis guide as a fireld, having bound him to bis arme with his garters; and thinking to bane reconered his Boate, having more eye to them in his march then to his way, he supped up to the IC middle in an ozie creeke, and bus Savage with bim; yet aurst they not come to bim till bettrew awar bis armes, being neere dead with cold. Then according to composition they drew him forth, and led him to the fire, where his men were flaine. Diligently they chafed his benummed lumbes; and be gave One. chankanough a round luory double compassed Diall. They much maruelled at the playing of the five which ther could see and not touch, by reason of the Glasse coner; but when he hadread a Comporable. call lecture to them of the Skies, Earth, Day, and night, with the varietie of Nations, and such like, they were all amazed: notwithstanding which sudden wonder, they tide him to a tree within an houre ofter us many as could frand about him prepard their fatall Arrowes to his death, which were all laid downe when Opechankanough beld up the faid Diall : and they led him in a kinde of trimmeh to

Sauage tri-

Their order was this: drawing themselves all in sile, the King in the midst had all their Perces Sauzge tri-umph, difeiplin and Swords borne before him: Captaine Smith was led after him by three great lubbers, bolding him and gallantry. fast; on each side went six in file, with their Arrowes nocked. When they arrowed at the Towne (which was of thirty or forty bunting houses made of Mats, removed at pleasure, as Tents with vs) the women and children came to stare on him; the Souldiers in file bad their Sargiants to keepe them in order. A good while they thus continued, and then cast themselves into a ring, dancing in fenerall postures, and singing bellish noates, strangely painted, each having bis Quiner of Arrowes . and at his backe a Clubbe ; on his arme a Foxes or Otters Skinne for his vambrace. their heads and houlders painted red with Oyle and Pocones mineled together, his Bome in his band, and the Skinne of a Bird, with her wings abroad, dried, tied on his head, with a peece of 30 Copper, a white Shell, a long Fether, and a small Rattle growing at the taile of their Snabes, or some such toy fastened thereto. All this while Smith flood with the King quarded in the midst, till three dances being done, they departed. Then did they conduct Swith to along bonfe, where thirty or forty men guarded bim, and some after was brought more Bread and Venison then would have served twenty: what he left they put in Baskets and tied over his head, which about midnight they againe let before bim, none of them eating ough: with him, till basing brought as much more the next morning, they did eate the old, and referned the new in like manner. Hee thought they intended to fat and eate bim.

Their feafting-

One Maocastater, in requitall of Beads which be had given him, brought him his Gowne to defend bim from the cold. Another was possessed with a contrary humour, and would have staine him for the 40 death of his sonne, had not the guard prenented; to him, yet breathing his last, they brought him to recouer him. Smith told them that at lames Towne be bad a water that would doe it if they would let him fetch it. But they prepared to all aule James Towne, promising him liberty, and women, if he would aflift them. In part of a Table Booke be wru bu minds to those which were at the Fort : that they should fend such things mentioned. They were in bitter weather for Frost and Snow, and seeing men fally out. as he had before told them, they fled; but comming agains in the night to the place which be had appointed, for an answer, they found things ready, and speedsly returned, as if either be had divined, or the paper bad Goken. After this they led bim to the Youghtanunds, the Matapanients, the Payankatiks, the Nantaughtacunds, the Onanmanients, upon the Rivers of Rapahanocke, and Patanomecke, and 50 backe againe by diners other Nations, to the Kings babitation at Pamaunk, where they entertained him with frange consurations. Earely in a morning a great fire was made in a long house, a Mat sprea on each lide; on one of which he was let, the quard went out, and in came a great grum fellow skipping, all painted with cole mingled with Oyle, many Snakes and Weefels skins stuffed with Mosse, their tailet tied together, and meeting on the crowne of his head; round about the taffell was a coronet of Fethers; the skins bung round about his head, shoulders, backe and face : With a bellish voyce, strange gestures and passions, with a Rattle in his band, bee began his innocation, and environed the fire with a circle of Meale. After this, three such other divels rushed in with like trickes, painted halfe blacke, halfe red, all their eyes painted white, with some red stroakes along their sheekes. These having danced a pressio while, three more same in as vely as the reft, with red eyes and white stroakes oner their blacke faces. At 60 last they all fat downe right against him, the chiefe Priest in the midst, and three on each hand. All then with their Rattles began a fong, which ended the chiefe Priest laid downe fine Wheate cornes : and straining bis armes and hand wish such violence, that he swet, and his veines swelled : hee began a short Oration; at the conclusion whereof shey gave a short ground, and then laid downe three graines more. Now they becam their Song againe, and then another Oration, ever laying downe so many cornes as before till they had twice encircled the fire. That done, they take a bunch of lutle flickes, prepared for that purpole, and at the end of enery Song and Oration laid downe a flicke betwixt the divisions of the Corne. Till niebt, neither be nor they did eate or drinke, and then they feasted merrily with their best promisous, Three dages they vied this Ceremonie, thereby to know (as they faid) whether bee intended them weller no. The circle of meale fignified their Country, the two circles of Corne the Sea-bounds: and the stickes his Countrey. They imagined the World to be flat and round like a trencher and them- Sausae Geo: felues in the midst. After this, they brought him a buge of Powder, which they carefully preserved till graphy. the next fring, to plant as they did their Corne, because they would be acquainted with the nature of Gunpowder

Sauage fimplicity.

Opitchapam the Kings brother, innited him to his house, where hee welcommed him with as many Platters of Bread, Fowle and wilde Beasts, as did encompasse bim: but not any would eate with him, reserving theremainders in Baikets. At his returne to Opechankanoughs, all the Kings women and their children flocked about him, as for their customary due, to be merry with such fragments. At last they brought him to Werowocomoco to Pohatan, where about two hundred of his Courtiers He is brought fload wondring on him, till Pohatan and his traine had put themselnes in their greatest branery. Before to Pohatan. a fire bee lat on a lease like a bedited, concred with a great robe made of Rarowcun Skinnes, all the tailes banging by: on each hand did fit a your wench of fixteene or eighteene yeeres of age; along on each fide the boufe two romes of men, and behinde them as many women, with all their heads and shoul-20 ders painted red , many of their beads bedeeked with the white downe of Birds , enery one adorned with Wilde tovaler. Come thing , a great chaine also of white Beades about their neckes. At his entrance before the King all the people came a great front. The Queene of Appanatucke was appointed to bring water to malh bis hands, another brought him a bunch of Feathers instead of a Towell to drie tuem. Haming feasted him in their best manner, the held a consultation, in conclusion whereof, two creat flones were brought before Poliatan, and as many as could lay bold on him dragged him to them.

bim Hatchets, and Beads, Bels, and Copper for ber. For they thought him like themselues, of all occu-and thereon laid his head, being ready with their clubbes to beate out his braines. Pocahuntas the Kings desrest Daughter, when no intreatie would premaile, got his head into her armes, and laid her Pocahuntas

owne voon his to faue birm from death : whereupon the Emperour was contented hee should live to make fueth his life, 20 pations ; the King himfelfe making his owne Robes, Shooes, Bowes, Arrowes, Poss, Planting alfo, Hun- All men of all

ting, and doing Offices, no leffe then the reft. Two dayes after, Pohatan having desquesed himselfe in the dreadfullest manner, caused Captaine Smit to be bronght forth to a great boufe in the woods, and there upon a Mat by the fire to bee ieft alone, Not long after from bebinde a Mat which divided the house, was made the dolefullett moile that ever bee had beard. After this Pohatan with twenty more as blacke as himselfe came unto him, and told him that they were now friends, and presently hee should goe to lames Towne to fend him two great Gunnes and a Grindstone, for which hee would give him the Country of Capahowolick, and for ener eiteeme bien as bis Sonne Nantaquaus. Hee fent bim thither with twelve ouides. When they came to the Fort, Smith veed the Sanages kindely, and shewed Rawhunt.

40 Poharans trufty fernant two Demiculnerius and a Militone to carry to Pohatan : fomembat too beaute for their carriage. But when they faw him discharge them leden with stones, on the boughes of a great tree banging full of isickles, the Ice and boughes comming downewith (ach furie, the Sawaves were halfe dead with feare; and at last returning contented with toics and presents for Poliatan. his women and childred. This his returning fafe to the Port, once more stated the Pinnace her The third proflight for England, which till his returne, could not fet faile, to extreame was the weather, and ice to abase fo great the Frost.

His relation of the plenty he had feene , especially at Weromocomoco, where inhabited Powe batan (that till that time was vnknowne) fo remined againe their dead spirits, as all mens feare was abandoned , Powhatan having fent with this Captaine divers of his men loaded with 50 prouision, hee had conditioned, and so appointed his trustie Messengers to bring but two or three of our great Ordnances; but the Medlengers being fatisfied with the fight of one of them difcharged an away amazed with feare, till meanes were vied with gifts to affure them our loues.

A LL this time our cares were not fo much to abandon the Countrie, but the Treasurer and The arrivall of Connfell in England, were as deligent and carefull to supply vs. Two tall Shippes they the fift upply fent vs, with neere one hundred men, well furnished with all things could be imagined ne- with their procellary, both for them and vs. The one commanded by Captaine Newport: the other by Cape ceedings and taine Nolon, an honest manand an expert Marriner, but such was the leewardnesse of his Ship

(that though he were within fight of Cape Henry) by stormy contrary windes, was forced to The Phenie farre to Sea, as the West Indies was the next land for the repaire of his Masts, and reliefe from Cape of wood and water. But Captaine Nempers got in, and arrived at lames Towne, not long after Hemy forced to the Well the redemption of Captaine Smith, to whom the Sauges energy other day brought spell plenty Indies, of Bread, Fish, Turkies, Squirrels, Deere, and other wilde Beasts, part they gave him as protents from the King; the rest, he as their marker Clarke fet the price how they should fell.

So he had inchanted those poore soules (being their Prisoner)in demonstrating vato them the roundnesse of the World, the course of the Moone and Starres, the cause of the day and night, the largenesse of the Seas, the qualities of our ships, shot and powder : The diminon of the World, with the disertitie of people, their complexions, customes and conditions. All which gothis liberty. he fained to be winder the command of Captaine Newport, whom he termed to them his Father: of who e arrivall, it chanced he to directly prophecied, as they esteemed him an Oracle; by thefe fictions he not only faued his owne life, and obtained his liberty; but had them at that command, he might command them what he litted. That God that created all these things; they Their opinion knew he adored for his God, whom they would also tearme in their Discourses, the God of

Folly in vader-

traluing our Commodities

by gifts or fmall prizes.

Anerher folly

in Mariners

trade both

which fup-

The Prefident and Councell fo much enuied his estimation amongst the Sauages (though wee all in generall equally participated with him of the good thereof) that they wrought it into their understandings, by their great bountie in giving foure times more for their Commodities then he appointed, that their greatnesse and authoritie, as much exceeded his, as their bountie and liberalitie: Now the arrival of his first supply, so ouer-ioyed vs, that wee could not dense too much Commodities to please the Mariners. Weegaue them libertie to trucke or trade at their pleasures. But ina fhort time, it followed, that that could not be had for a pound of Copper, which before was fold for an ounce, Thus Ambition and Sufferance, cut the throat of our Trade, but confirmed their opinion of Newports greatnesse where with Smith had possessed Pombatan) especially by the great Prefents Newport often fent him, before he could prepare the Pinnace to goe and vifit him; fo 20 that this Sauage also defired to see him. A great brute there was to fet him forward; when hee went he was accompanied, with Captaine Smith, and Mafter Scrimener a very wife understanding Gentleman newly arrived, and admitted of the Councell, and thirtie or fortiethofen men for that guard. Arriving at Werowocome, Newports conceit of this great Sauage bred many doubts and suspicions of Treacheries; which Smith, to make appeare was needleffe, with twentie men well appointed, undertooke to encounter (with that number) the world that could happen. These being kindly received ashore, with two or three hundred Savages were conducted to called his Sonne, for whom Pombatan gaue him Namontacke his truftie Servant , and one of a in Powbatan carried himselfe so proudly, yet discreerly (in his Sauage manner) as made vs all admire his naturall gifts confidering his education, as forming to trade as his fubicets did, her be-

Spake Newport in this manner. Captaine New port it is not agrecable with my greatneffe in this pedling manner to trade for trifles, and I esteeme you a great Weroans, Therefore lay mee donne all your Commodities together, what I like, I will take, and in recompence give you that I thinke fitting their value. Captaine Smith being our Interpreter, regarding Nemport as his Father , knowing belt the disposition of Pombatan told vs his intent was but to cheat vs; yet Captaine Nemport thinking to out-braue this Sauage in oftentation of greatnesse, and so to bewitch him with his bountie, as to shrewd subtill capacitie. Three or foure dayes were spent in feating, dancing and trading, where- 40 planted the good of the Smiths reuifiting Pemberan.

P whaton fult their Towne ; Powbatan ftrained himfelfe to the vttermost of his greatnesse to entertaine vs. entertainment with great shouts of Ioy, Orations of protestations, and the most plentie of victuals hee could prouide to feath vs. Sitting vpon his Bed of Mats, his Pillow of Leather imbroydered (after their rude manner) with Pearle and white Beads, his Attire a faire Robe of skinnes as large as an Irih of this journie: Mantle, at his head and feet a hand fome young woman; on each fide his house sare twenties his Concubines, their heads and shoulders painted red, with a great chaine of white Beads about but content their neckes, before those fate his chiefest men in like order in his Arbor-like house. With many my felic with pretie Discourses to renue their old acquaintance; the great King and our Captaine spenthe this briefer to time till the ebbe left our Barge aground, then renuing their Feaths and mirth, we quartred that anoid prolinity night with Powhatan : the next day Newport came aftore, and received as much content as those people could give him, a Boy named Tho. Sauage was then given vnto Powhatan, whom Newport

The exchange of a Christian for a Sauage.

Pewhatans

Difference of

lames Towne Mafter Hutts

have what he lifted; but to it chanced, Pombatan having his defire, valued his Corne at such a rate, as I thinke it better cheape in Spaine, for we had not fourebushels for that we expected twenthe so Hogheads. This bred fome vnkindnesse betweene our two Captaines, Newport leeking to please the humour of the vulatiable Sauage; Smith to cause the Sauage to please him, but smoothering his diftafte (to avoid the Savages suspition) glanced in the eyes of Pombatan many Trifles who fixed his humour vpon a few blue Beads ; A long time he importunately defired them , but Smithfeemed so much the more to affect them, so that ere we departed, for a pound or two of blue Beads he brought over my King for two or three hundred buffiels of Corne, yet parted good friends. The like entertainment we found of Opechantymongh King of Pamaunke whom also he in like manner fitted, (at the like rates) with blue Beads a and io wee returned to the Fort. Where this new supply being lodged with the reft, accidentally fired the quarters, and so the Towne, which being but thatched with Reeds, the fire was fo fierce as it burnt their Pallizadoes (though ten or twelve 62 yards diftant) with their Armes, Bedding, Apparell, and much private provision. Good Mafter Hant our Preacher loft all his Librarie and all that hee had (but the clothes on his backe) yet none over faw him repine at his loff. Vion any alarme be would be as readic for defence as any, and till be could freake; he never ceassed to his utmost to animate us constantly to persist : whose soule que-fliouleffe is with God. This happened in the Winter, in that extreme Frost 1607. Now though montelle is with a long a monte of Oate-meale, Meale, and Corne, yet the ship staying there fourteene weekes, when she might as well have beene gone in fourteene dayes, spent the Beefe, Porke, Oyle, Aquauitæ, Fish, Butter, and Cheele, Beere and such like; as was prouded Ashipidly loito be landed vs. When they departed, what their differentian could spare vs, to make a Feastfor tring touneen two with Bisket, Porke, Beefe, Fish, and Oyle, to rellish our mouthes, of each somewhat they weeks, and two with Disact, a confesse, those that had either Money, spare Clothes, credit to give Bils of haufing the payment, Gold Rings, Furres, or any fuch Commodities were euer welcome to this remooning company here Tauerne; fuch was our patience to obey fuch vile Commanders, and buy our owne prouifion at and Colonie To fifteene times the value, fuffering them to feast (we bearing the charge) yet must not repine, but there to pri-fait; and then leakage, thip-rats, and other cafualties occasioned the loft, but the vessell and remnants (for totals) we were glad to receive with all our hearts to make vp the account, highly commending their Prouidence for preferring that. For all this plentie our ordinarie was but mesle and water, fo that this great charge little relieued our wants, whereby with the extremitie of the bitter cold Aire more then halfe of vs died, and tooke our deaths, in that piercing Winter. I cannot deny, but both Serimener and Smith did their best to amend what was amisse, but with the President went the major part, that their hornes were too short. But the worst michiefe was, our gilded Refiners with their golden promises, made all men their slaues in hope of recompence; there was no talke, no hope, no worke, but digge Gold, wash Gold, refine Gold, The effect of 20 load Gold, fuch a brute of Gold, as one mad fellow defired to bee buried in the Sands, leaft they meere Verba fhould by their Art make Gold of his bones: Little need there was and lesse reason, the shippe lists.

should stay, their wages sunne on, our victuall consume fourteene weekes, that the Mariners charge. might fay, they built such a golden Church, that we can fay, the raine washed neere to nothing in fourteene dayes. Captaine Smith would not applaud all those Golden inventions, never any * Certaine thing did more torment him, then to fee all necessary businesse neglected, to traught such a drunken ship with so much gilded * dirt; till then we neuer accounted Captaine Newport a Refiner; who being fit to fet faile for England, and we not having any vie of Parliaments, Playes, Petiti- was fent over ons, Admirals, Recorders, Interpreters, Chronologers, Courts of Plea, nor Justices of Peace, ons, Admirals, Recorders, Interpreters, Chronologers, Courts or Plea, nor juttices or Peace, great promites fent Mafter Wingfield and Captaine Archer with him for England, to feeke fome place of better of gold, like ac imployment.

"He authority now confifting in refining Captaine Martin, and the still fickly President, the performance. The arrival of fale of the flores Commodities maintayned their effates as inheritable Revenues. The the Phanix her Spring approching, and the thip departed, Mafter Seriuener and Captaine Smub divided betwixt them, the rebuilding our Towne, the repayring our Pallifadoes, the cutting downe Trees, pre- ther accidents panng our fields, planting our Corne, and to rebuild our Church, and recouer our Storehouse; all Chapter men thus busie at their severall labours, Master Nelson arrived with his lost Phonix, (lost I say, of lames towned for that all men deemed him loft) landing (afely his men; fo well hee had mannaged his ill hap, Welfauthonecaufing the Indian lies to feed his company that his victuall (to that was left vs before) was fuffi- fly & fidelinic. 40 cient for halfe a yeere, he had nothing but he freely imparted it; which honest dealing (in a Mariner) caused vs admire him, wee would not have wished so much as he did for vs. Now to relade this thip with fome good tydings. The Prefident (yet not flanding with his dignity to leave the Fort) gaue order to Captaine Smith and Mafter Scrimener to discouer and search the Commodities Sinie spoolinof Monacans Countrey beyond the Falls, fixty able men were allotted, the which within fixe ted to discount dayes exercise, Smith had so well trained to their Armes and Orders, that they little feared with Menecan. whom they should encounter. Yet so vnseasonable was the time, and so opposite was Captaine Martin to every thing, but only to fraught his ship also with his phantasticall Gold, as Cap-Smith rather defired to relade her with Cedar, which was a prefent difpatch; then either with dirt, or the reports of an vacertaine Discouerie. Whilft their conclusion was resoluting, this

Powbatan to expresse his love to Newport, when he departed, presented him with twenty Turkeyes, conditionally to returne him twenty Swords, which immediatly were fent him; Now af- Anill examter his departure he presented Captaine Smith with the like luggage, but not finding his humour ple to sell obeyed in fending him Weapons, he caused his people with twentie deuices to obtaine them; at uages. last by Ambuscadoes at our very Ports they would take them perforce, surprize vs at worke, or Pombatans the any way, which was fo long permitted that they became fo infolent, there was no Rule, the com- cherie, mand from England was fo straight not to offend them, as our authority Bearers (keeping their houses) would rather be any thing then Peace-breakers: this vncharitable charity prevailed, till well it chanced that they medled with Captaine Smith , who without farther deliberation gaue The Goner-

them such an incounter, as some hee so hunted up and downe the Ile, some hee so terrified with nours weakthem used an incounter, as some neet to nuntee v pand downer that My and the state of this foraging differ-whipping, beating and imprisonment, as for reuenge they surprized two of his foraging differ-derly Souldiers, and hauing assembled their forces, boldly threatned at our Ports to force Smith to tuperesse to re-deliuer seuen Sauages, which for their villanies he detained Priloners. But to try their fue the Sourges ries, in leffe then halfe an houre he fo hampered their infolencies, that they brought the two pri- injolencies

(I faw it) with the promilers yealding fandy

1712

Powhatan, to obtaine him our owne weapons to cut our owne throats, with the manner how where, and when, which we plainly found most true and apparant. Yet hee fent his Messengers Powbatant ex- and his deerest Daughter Pocabuntas to excuse him, of the injuries done by his Subjects described their liberties, with the affurance of his loue. After Smith had given the Prifoners what correction he thought fit, vied them well a day or two after, he then delivered them to Pocabuntas. for whole take only hee fained to faue their lives and grant them liberty. The patient counfell. that nothing would moone to warre with the Sanages, would gladly have wrangled with Captaine Smith for his cruelty, yet none was flaine to any mans knowledge, but it brought them in fuch feare and obedience, as his very name would fufficiently affright them. The fraught of this thin being concluded to be Cedar, by the diligence of the Master, and Captaine Smub, thee was Aftip fraught quickly reladed; Mafter Scrimener was neither idle nor flow to follow all things at the Fort, the thip falling to the Cedar Ile, Captaine Martin having made shift to bee sicke neere a yeere . and now, neither Pepper, Sugar, Cloues, Mace, nor Nutmegs, Ginger, nor Sweet meats in the Countrey (to enjoy the credit of his supposed Art) at his earnest request, was most willingly admitted to returne for England, yet having beene there but a yeere, and not past halfe a yeere fince the ague lett him (that he might fay fomewhat he had feene) he went twice by water to Pathabeth a place neere feuen miles from lames Towne, but left the dew should diftemper him. was euer forced to returne before night. Thus much I thought fit to expresse, hee expressy commanding me to record his Icurnies, I being his man, and he sometimes my Master. One hundred and twentie were landed in the last supply. Thomas Studly. Avas Todkill.

foners defiring peace without any farther composition for their Prisoners, who being threatned and examined their intents and plotters of their villanies, confelled they were directed only by

tures of Cap. Martin.

The accidents which nagned had a while tyed both Marinand him to the Rules of Proportion, but now Smith being to in the discoure depart, the Prelidents authority so overswayed Master Scrineners discretion as our store, our time, rie of the Bay. our strength and labours were idlely consumed to fulfill his phantasies. The second of lune 1608. Chep 5.

Thane a Diarie Smith left the Fort to performe his Discouery; with this company. Walter Rullell Doctor of Phyof this and the ficke. Ralph Morton, Thomas Memford. William Cantrill. Richard Fetherstone. I ames Bourne. Mifollowing Dife chael Sicklemore. Anas Todkill. Robert Small, James Watkins, John Powell, James Read black Smith, 29 coucrie of the Richard Keale Fishmonger. Ionas Profit fisher.

Thefebeing in an open Barge of two tunnesburthen leaving the Phanix at Cape Henrie, we ning things more particu- croffed the Bay to the Easterne shoare, and fell with the sles called Smiths Hes: the first people larly & largely we law there were two growme and fout Sauages voon Cape Charles, with long Poles like lautbut I was loth lings, headed with bone, they boldly demanded what we were, and what we would , but after ings, neaded with bone, they boldly demanded what we were, and what we would, but after to be redious, many circumftances, they in time feemed very kind, and directed vs to Acarmacke, the liabitation fince in this, on of the Werows where we were kindly intreated; this King was the comelieft proper civil Saunge we incountred : his Country is a pleasant fertile clay soyle, He told vs of a strange accident Cape charles. lately happened him, and it was? Two dead children by the extreme passions of their Parents, Aftrange mor- or fome dreaming Vilions, Phantalie, or affection mooved them agains to reuisit their dead car- 40 kailes, whose benummed bodies reflected to the eyes of the beholders such pleasant delightfull ralirie of Sacountenances, as though they had regained their vitall spirts. This is a Miracle drew many to behold them, all which, (being a great part of his people) not long after died, and not any one escaped. They spake the Language of Powhatan, wherein they made such descriptions of the Bay, Iles, and Rivers that often did vs exceeding pleafure. Paffing alongst the Coast, searching euery Inlet, and Bay fit for Harbours and Habitations, feeing many Iles in the midft of the Bay, we bore vp for them, but ere we could attaine them, such an extreame gust of Winde, Raine, Thunder, and Lightning happened, that with great danger wee escaped the vnmercifull raging winhearamara. Anextreme want of fresh water.

An extreame Ruffels Hes.

> The Barge a guft.

Limbe Ilcs.

of that Ocean-like water. The next day fearthing those inhabitable Hes (which wee called Ruffells Hes) to promide fresh 50 water, the defect whereof forced vs to fellow the next Eafterne Channell, which brought vs to the River Wighcocomoco, the people ac first with great furie feemed to affault vs., yet at lait with Songs, Dances, and much mirth, became very tractable, but fearthing their habitations for water, we could fill but three, and that fuch puddle, that never till then, we knew the want of good water. We digged and fearched many places, but ere the end of two dayes wee would have refuled two Barricoes of Gold for one of that puidle water of Wigheocomoco. Being past their lies, filling with a high Land vpon the Mayne, we found a great pond of tresh water, but so exceeding hot, that we supposed it some Bath ; that place we called Point-ployer, in bonour of that Honourable House of Moulaye, that in an extreame extremitie oncerobbed our Captaine: Breing thus refreshed in crossing over from the Mayne to other lies, the winde and waters fo much increased 50 with Thunder, Lightning, and Raine, that our fore-mast blew ouer-boord, and such mightie waves over-wrought vs in that small Barge, that with great labour, wee kept her from ficking by freeing out the water : two dayes were were inforced to inhabit these winhabited Iles, which (for the extremitie of Gusts, Thunder, Raine, Stormes, and ill weather) we called Limbo. Reputring our fore-layle with our thirts, we fet fayle for the Mayne, and fell with a faire Riuet on the East called Kuskaranaocke. The people ran as amazed in troupes, from place to place, and disters got into the tops of Trees, they Gap. Smith.

were not foaring of their Arrowes, nor the greatest passion they could expresse of anger, long they bot we full riding at an Anchor out of their reach, making all the figures of friendship wee could. The next day ther same unarried, with enery one a Bithet, densing in a ring to draw us on thore, but feeing there was nothing in them but villanie, we discharged a volley of Musters charged with Pestoll shot, whereat they all last umbling on the ground, cresping some on may, some avoiber into a great cluster of Reeds bard he where there companions lay in Ausbuscado. Towards the Enening were weighted and approached the 10 fore, discharging fine or fixe for amongst the Reeds we landed, where they laid a many of backets , but far not a Sanage, a smoke appearing on the other side the River we went thither, where wee found two or jan not a same, , junto a fire, there we left some pieces of Copper, Beads, Bels, and Looking-glaffes , and then went into the Bay. When it was darke we came to an Anchor againe. Earely in the morney, foure Sanages came to vs in their Canoa, whom we vsed with such courteste, nor knew what we were, nor bad done, basing beene in the Bay a filbing, bad us flay, and ere long they would returne, which they did, and (ome twentie more with them, with whom after a little conference, two or three hundred men, women, and children came clustering about vs, energ one presenting vs somewhat, which a little Bead would so well require, we became (uch friends, they would contend who should fetch us water, stay with us for bostage, conduct our men any whether, and give us the best content. 30 By it inhabit the people of Soraphanigh, Naufe, Arfek, and Nautaquake, that much extolled a Thefift nogreat Nation called Mafanometes, in fearch of whom wee returned by Limbo, but finding this tice of the Batterne thore that low broken lies, and the Mayne for most part without fresh water, we pasted by the Straits of Limbo, for the Westerne shore. So broad is the Bay here, that we could scarce perceine the great high Cliffes on the other fide; by them wee anchored that night, and called them Rubards Cliffes. Thirtie leagues we layled more Northwards, not finding any Inhabitants, yet the Coast well watered, the Mountaines very barren, the Valleyes very fertile, but the Woods extreme thicke, full of Wolnes, Beares, Deere, and other wild Beafts. The first Inlet we found, we called Bolm, for that the clay (in many places) was like (if not) Bole-Armoniacke : zoim River; when we first fet faile, some of our Gallants doubted nothing, but that our Captaine would make 30 too much bast home; but having lien not about twelve dayes in this small Barge, oft tyred at their Oares, their Bread spoyled with wet, so much that it was rotten (yet so good were their stomackes that they could digest it) did it with continual complaints so importune him now to returne, as caufed him bespeake them in this manner. Gentlemen, if you would remember the memorable Historie of Sir Ralfe Lane, how his company impersuned him to proceed in the Discouerie of Morattico, alleaging, they had yet a Dogge, that beeing boyled with Saxafras leanes, would richly feed them in their returnes; what a shame would it bee for you (that have beene fo [nifescians of my tendernesse) to force me returne with a moneths promision, scarce able to fay where we have beene, nor jet heard of that we were fent to feeke; you cannot fay but I have [bared with you of the worst is past; and for what is to come of lodging, diet, or what somer, I um co ten. 40 ted you allot the worst part to my selfe as for your feares that I would lose my self in these unknown large waters, or be swall owedup in some stormie gust, abandon those childish feares, for worse then is past cannot happen, and there is as much danger to returne, as to proceed forward. Regains therefore your old frists; for returne I will not, (if God affist me) sill I bane seene the Massawomekes, found Patawomeck, or the head of this great water, you conceit to be endleffe. Three or foure dayes we expected wind and weather, whole adverse extremities added such discouragements to our discontents as three or foure fell extreme ficke, whose pittifull complaints caused vs to returne, leaving the Bay some ten miles broad at nine or ten fathome water. The fixteenth of June we fell with the River of Paramemeck: feare being gone, and our men re- The discoue is couered, we were all contented to take some paines to know the name of this nine miles broad of Patamoniche River, we could fee no Inhabitants for thirtie miles fayle; then we were conducted by two Sa-

50 tages up a little bayed Creeke toward Onammament, where all the Woods were laid with Am- Ambufcadoes bulcadoes to the number of three or foure hundred Sauages, but fo firangely painted, grimed, and of Sauages. disguized, shouting, yelling, and crying, as we rather supposed them so many Deuils, they made many brauadoes, but to appeale their turie, our Captaine prepared with as feeming willingnes (as they) to encounter them, the grazing of the bullets v pon the River, with the Eccho of the woods so amazed them, as downe went their Bowes and Arrowes; (and exchanging hostage) lames Waskins was fent fixe miles up the Woods to their Kings Habitation : wee were kindly vied by thele Sauages, of whom we understood, they were commanded robetray vs, by Pombaians direction, and he fo directed from the discontents of Ismes Towne. The like incounters we found 60 at Patawomecke, Cecocamne, and divers other places, but at Mojaoner Nacothtant and Tana, the A treatherous people did their best to content vs. The cause of this Discourre, was to tearch a gilistering Mettall, the Sauages toll ve they had from Patamomeck, (the which Nomport allured that hee had tryed to hold halfe tiluer) also to search what Furres, Metals, Rivers, Rockes, Nations, Woods, Filhings, Fruits, Victuals and other Commodities the Land affoorded, and whether the Bay were endlesse, how farre it extended. The Mine we found nine or ten miles up in the Country from the River, but it proved of no value; to which he marched, leading his hinds in Chaines which they were to have for their paines, and so returning loded with that Ore they had. Some Otters, Beuers, Martins, Lizards, and Sabels we found, and in divers places that abundance of fill lying fo thicke with their heads aboue the water, as for want of nets (our Barge driving a. mongst them) we attempted to catch them with a Frying-pan, but wee found it a bad instruplenty of fifth. ment to catch fish with. Neither better fish, more plenty, or variety, had any of vs ever seene. in any place fwimming in the water, then in the Bay of Chefabeack, but there not to be cauche

Anchundant

To expresse all our quarrels, treacheries, and incounters amongst those Sauages, I should be to How to deale too tedious; but in briefe, at all times we so incountred them and curbed their infolencies, as they with the Saua- concluded with prefents to purchase peace, yet wee loft not a man. At our first meeting, our Captaine euer observed this order, to demand their Bowes and Arrowes, Sword, Mantles or Furs. with some childe for hostage; whereby he could quickly perceive when they intended any villanie, Hauing finished this discouery (though our victuall was neere spent) he intended to have feene his imprisonments, acquaintance voon the River of Toppahannocke. But our Boate thy resfon of the ebbe) chanfing to ground vpon a many shoules lying in the entrance, wee spied many A Stingrave. fifthes lurking amongst the weedes on the Sands, our Captaine sporting himselfe to catch them ry hurtfull, one by nailing them to the ground with his Sword, fet vsall a fishing in that manner; by this dein foulenessess unfe. we tooke more in an houre, then we all could eate: but it chanced, the Captaine taking a fo wolne with fin from his Sword (not knowing her condition) being much of the fashion of a Thornebacke with a longer taile, whereon is a most poyloned sting of two or three inches long, which shee his his ke fifth (trooke an inch and halfe into the wrift of his arme the which in foure hours had to extreamely ermans-bones, fwolne his hand, arme, shoulder, and part of his body, as wee all with much forrow concluded that he therof his funerall, and prepared his grave in an Ile hard by (as himselfe appointed) which then wee died, in 1613. called Stingeray Ile, after the name of the fish. Yet by the helpe of a precious Oyle which Doctour Rulleils applied, ere night his tormenting paine was fo well affwaged that hee eate the fish they could not to his supper, which gave no leffe joy and content to vs. then ease to himselfe. Having neither bring his coffin Surgeon nor Surgery but that preferuative Oyle, we prefently fet faile for Iames Towne; palout of the dore fing the mouth of Pyankatanck, and Pamaunte Rivers, the next day we fafely arrived at Keengh. 30 tan. The simple Sauages, seeing our Captaine hure, and another bloudy (which came by breakwall (as they ing his shin) our number of Bowes, Arrowes, Swords, Targets, Mantles and Forres, would needesimagine wee had bin at warres, the truth of these accidents would not fatisfie them, The Saurges, but impatiently they importuned vs to know with whom wee fought, finding their aptneffe to affighted with beleeue, we failed not (as a great fecret) to tell them any thing that might affright them, what spoyle wee had got and made of the Masawomeckes, this rumour went faster up the River then our Barge; that arrived at Werafkorack the twentieth of July, where trimming her with painted itreamers, and such denises, we made the Fort jealous of a Spanish Frigot : where we all fafely arrived the twenty one of July.

A needeleffe

picion.

There we found the laft supply, all ficke, the rest, some lame, some bruised, all wnable to doe 40 any thing, but complaine of the pride and vnreasonable needelesse cruelty of their filly President, that had riotoufly confumed the store, and to fulfill his follies about building him an wnnecessary Pallace in the Woods, had brought them all to that mifery : That had not we arrived, they had as strangely tormented him with reuenge. But the good newes of our discovery, and the good hope we had (by the Sauages relation) our Bay had itretched to the South Sea, appealed their furie; but conditionally that Ratliffe should be deposed, and that Captaine Smith would take vpon him the government: their request being effected, hee Substituted Master Scrimener his deare friend in the Prefidencie, equally distributing those private provisions that the other had ingroffed; appointing more honest officers to affait Scrimener (who then lay extreamely tormented with a callenture) and in regard of the weakenesse of the company, and heate of the yeare, 50 The Company they being vnable to worke; he left them to live at eafe, but imbarked himselfe to finish his lefeto line at discouery. Written by Walter Russell and Anas Todkill.

What hapned Chap. 6.

The Sauages

The twentieth of Ioly Captaine Smith fet forward to finish the discovery with twelve men their names were Nathaniell Powell, Thomas Momford, Richard Fether stone, Michaell Sickle age to discourt more, lames Bourne, Anas Todkill, Edward Pyfing, Richard Keale, Anthony Bagnall, lames Walkins, William Ward, Ionas Profit. The winde being contrary caused our flay two or three daies at Kecoughtan, the Weromans featting vs with much mirth, his people were perswaded wee went purpolely to be reuenged of the Maffanomeckes, in the evening we firing two or three rackets, To terrified the poore Saluages, they supposed nothing impossible we attempted, and defired to 60 affilt vs. The first night we ancored at Stingeray He, the next day croffed Paramomecks River, and halted for the River Bolw, we went not much farther before wee might perceive the Bay to deuide in two heads, and arriving there wee found it deuided in foure, all which wee fearched fo farre as we could faile them; two of them we found vninhabited, but in croffing the Bay to the other, we encountered feuen or eight Canoaes full of Maffawomeckes, wee feeing them preother, we encounter them, yet were we with he made way with our faile to incounter them, yet were we with he mallbut fine (with our Captaine) that could stand: for within two dayes after wee left Kecoughtan, warners. the reft (being all of the last fupply) were ficke almost to death (vintill they were featoned to the the reit (being and) the last tupping, were the action of the last support the Barge Good policy. fide to make vs sceme many, and on each fide a man a loded Musket; and so weethinke the Indians supposed those hats to be men, for they fled withall possible speede to the shoare, and there flayed, flaring at the failing of our Barge, till wee anchored right against them. Long it was ere we could draw them to come vnto vs , at last they lent two of their company vnarmed in 10 a Canoa, the rest all followed to second them if neede required: These two being but each presented with a Bell, brought aboord all their fellowes, presenting the Captaine with Venion, Beares flesh, Bowes, Arrowes, Clubbes, Targets, and Beare-skins, we understood them nothing at all but by fignes, whereby they fignified vnto vs that they had beene at warres with the Tockwoods, the which they confirmed by shewing their green wounds; but the night parting vs, we imagined they appointed the next morning to meete, but after that we neuer faw them. Entring the River of Tockwood the Sauages all armed in a fleete of Boates round invironed vs: An incounter it chanced one of them could speake the language of Pombatan, who perswaded the rest to 2 meets. friendly parley: but when they faw vs furnished with the Masamemeckes weapons, and we fained the invention of Kecouchean to have taken them perforce; they conducted vs to their 20 pallizedoed Towne, mantelled with the Barkes of trees, with Scaffolds like Mounts, brefted about with Barkes very formally, their men, women, and children, with Dances, Songs, Fruits, Fifth, Furres, and what they had kindely entertained vs, foreading Mats for vs to fit on, fretch-

CHAP.A. Presents of Venison. Beares-flesh. & c. Captaine adored by the Sauages 1755

ing their best abilities to expresse their loues.

Many Hatchets, Kniues, and peeces of Iron, and Braffe, we faw, which they reported to haue from the Safquefahanocker a mighty people, and mortall enemies with the Mallawomecker: The Salquefabanecks, inhabit vpon the chiefe Spring of thefe foure, two dayes journey higher then our Barge could passe for Rockes. Yet we preuailed with the interpreter to take with him another interpreter to perf wade the Safquefabanecks to come to vifite vs, for their language 20 is different : three or foure dayes we expected their returne, and then fixty of these Gyantlike people came downe with prefents of Venison, Tobacco-pipes, Baskets, Targets, Bowes and Ar-rowes, fine of their Werowances came boldly aboord vs, to croffe the Bay for Tockwood, leaning their men and Canoses, the winde being so violent that they durst not passe. Our order was daily to have prayer, with a Pfalme; at which folemnity, the poore Sauages much wondered : our prayers being done, they were long builed with confultation till they had contriued their businesse; then they began in most passionate manner to hold up their hands to the funne with a most fearefull fong, then imbracing the Captaine, they began to adore him in like manner, though he rebuked them, yet they proceeded till their Song was finished, which done with a most strange furious action, and a hellish voyce began an Oration of their loues : that ended, with a great painted Beares skinne they couered our Captaine, then one ready with 40 a chaine of white Beades (weighing at least fix or feuen pound) hung it about his necke, the others had eighteene mantles made of divers forts of Skins fowed together, all these with many other toyes, they laid at his feete, flroking their ceremonious hands about his necke for his creation to be their Gouernour, promiting their aides, victuals, or what they had to be his, if he would flay with them to defend and reuenge them of the Massawomeckes: But we left them at Tockwogh, they much forrowing for our departure, yet we promifed the next yeare agains to visit them; many descriptions and discourses they made vs of Arquanabucke, Mas awomecke, and other people, fignifying they inhabited the River of Cannida, and from the French to have Cannida. their Hatchets, and fuch like tooles by trade, thefe know no more of the territories of Pombatan then his name, and he as little of them.

Thus having fought all the Inlets and Rivers worth noting, we returned to discourt the Ri- Partus unit. R. ver of Pawturunt; these people we found very tractable, and more civill then any, wee pro-mifed them, as also the Paramomeckes, thenext years to revenge them of the Massawomeckes. In the discovery of this River, which some call Rapahanocke, others Tapahanocke; we were kinde- The exceeding by entertained by the people of Moraughtacun ; here we encountred our old friend Mosko , a lustie Sa- loue of the Sawage of Wighcocomoco, upon the Riner of Parawomecke, wee supposed him some Frenchmans Sonne, uage Mojco. because he had a thicke, blacke, bush Beard, and the Sauages seldome have any at all, of which bee was not a little proud to see so many of bie Countrie men: wood, and water bee would fetch vis, guide vi any whether, nay cause diners of his Countrie men to belpe vs too, against winde or tyde, from place to place, till we came to Patawomeke. There be rested, till me returned from the head of the River, and then

60 occasioned us conduct to the Mine, which we supposed Antimony. Now in this place bee failed not to Mine of Antidoe vs all the good he could, perswading vs in any sase not to goe to the Rapahanocks, for they would mony. kill vs, for being friends with the Moraughlacuds, that but lately had ftolne three of the Kings women. This we did thinke was but that his friend: might onely have our trade, or so cooffed the Riner to the Rapahanocks : there some twelve or fixteene standing on the shore, directed us to a little narrow cricke,

Our fight with

where was good landing, and commodities for us, in three or foure Canaacs which we faw there. But ac. cording to our custome, we demanded to exchange a man, w figne of lone, which after they had a little con sulted foure or fine came to the middles to fetch our man, and leave us one of them, shewing we neede not feare them, for they had neither Clubs, Bowes, nor Arrowes: notwithstanding Anas Tockillb. ing fine on there to fee if he could discouer any ambuscados; desired to goe over the plaine to fetch some wood, but they were unwilling, except we would come into the creeke, where the Boate might come close aftere. Tod. kill by degrees having gotten some two stones throwes up the plaine, perceined two or three bundred men as be thought behinde the trees, fo that offering to returne to the Boate, the Sanages affayed to carry him away perforce be called to vs, we were betraid, and by that be had foken the word, our bostage was ourboard but Watkins bis keeper flew bim in the water, immediatly we let fly among to them fo that they fled of to Todkill efcaped ret they hot fo fast that be fell flat on the ground ere be could recover the Boate there the Mallawomecks Targets flood us in good flead, for upon Molcos words we had fet them about thefore are of our Boate like a fore-castell, from whence we securely beate the Sanages from off the plaine wahout a. ny burt. yet they flot more then 1000. Arrowes, and then fled into the woods, arming our felmes with thefe light Targets (which are made of little (mall flicks, women betwitt firings of their bempe and filke graffe, as is our cloth but to firmly that no Arrow can possibly pierce them) we refcued Todkill who was blonded by some of them that were shot, but as it pleased God, be had no hurt, and followed them up to the woods. we found some wou ded some flaine of in divers places much bloud : it feemes all their Arrows were frent, for we hard no more of them : their Canoas we tooke the Arrowes which we found we broke except those we kept for Moico, to whom we gave the Canones for his kindnes, that entertained us in the best trium- an phing manner and warlike order in armes be could procure of the Moroughtacunds. The rest of the day wee spent in accommodating our Boate, instead of tholes we made stickes like bed-

Stanes, to which we fastned fo many of our Milliam mecke Targets, that insuroned ber as wasteloathes:

Fetherilones

the most.

Bay.

the next morning we went up the River and our friend Moleo followed us along the hoare, but at last defired to one with vs in our Boite. But as wee paffed by Pilacacke, Machopeake and Wecuppom, three Townes scituated upon high white clay Clifts, the other side all a low plaine marish, and the River there but narrow, thirty or forty of the Rapahanockes bud fo prepared them (elues with branches as we tooke them for little Bulbes growing among ft the Sedge : feeing their Arrowes fir the the Targets and drop in the Rimer. Masso fell that on his face, crying the Rapahanock swhich prefently we office to be the Bufhes, which at our first Voter fell downe in the Sedge; when we were gone neere balfe a mile, they hewed them clust, 30 daneing and linging very merrily. The Kings of Piffaffacke, Naudraughtacund and Cuttatawomen, vled us kindely, and all the people negleited not any thing to Molco to bring us to them. Betweet Secobecke and Massacecke is a [mall lie or two, which canfet b the Riner to be broder then ordinary : there it pleased God to take one of our company, called M. Richard Fetheritone, that all the time bee badbene in the Country had behaved himselfe very honestly, valiantly. or industriously, where in a little Bay, called bereupen Fetherstones Bay, we burred him with a volly of shot, the rest not with standing their ill diet and bad lodging cronded in fo [mall a Barge in fo many dingers never resting, but almaies toffed to & againe, bad all well recovered their bealths. The next day we failed so bigh as our Boat would flote, there setting up Crosses. Then we disconcred the Riner of Payankatank so high as it was Nauigable, but the people were For feare of most abunting, but a few old men, women and shildren, that were tending their Corne; of which, 40 they promised us part when wee would fetch it, as had done all the other Nations where ener we had haue leit out yet beene. In a faire calme, rowing towards Point Comtort, wee anchored in Guinolds Bay; but such a sodaine gust surprised us in the night, with thunder and rame, that wee never thought more to have seen sames Towne; yet running before the winde, we sometimes see the Land by the subject of fire from beaven, by which light onely wee kept from the splitting shoare, until it pleased God in that blacke darkeneffe to preserve us by that light to finde Point Comfort : there refreibing our felues , because wee bad onely but heard of the Chisapearckes and Nandsamunds , wee thought it as fit to know all our Neighbours neere home, as so many Nations abroad. This wee did (the particulars are omitted) and arrived lafe the feuenth of September, 1608. where wee found Mafter Skrinener, and divers others well recovered, many dead, fome ficke : The late Preli- 50 dent prisoner for muteny ; by the honest diligence of Master Skriuener the haruest gathered, but the stores proussion much spoiled with raine. Thus was that yeare (when nothing wanted) confumed and spent, and nothing done (such was the government of Captaine Raicliffe) but onely this Discouery, wherein to expresse all the dangers, accidents, and incounters reduced to the forme of this figure, the order of watch renued, the fquadrons (each fetting of reduced to the former of the whole Company every Saturday exercised in a field prepared for that left out. purpole; the Boates trimmed for trade, which in their journey encountred the fecond funply, that brought them backeto discouer the Countrey of Monacan. How, or why, Captaine Nempero obtained such a prisuate Commission as not to returne without a lumpe of Gold, a cerrainty of the South-Sua or one of the loft Company of Sir Walter Rawley I know nor, nor why hebrought such a fi e pieced Barge, not to beare vs to that South-Sea, till wee had borne her ouer the Mountaines : which how farre they extend is yet vaknowne) as for the Coronation Civiliay is not ouer the Mountaines: which how tarre they extend is yet vakhowne) as for the Coronation the way to win of Powhatav, and his Presents of Bason, Ewer, Bed, Cloathes, and such costly nouelvies, they Sauges, nor 10 had bin much better well spared, then so ill spent. For we had his fauour much better, onely magnificence of or a poore poece of Copper, till this stately kinde of soliciting made him to much our ualue and bouncy to himlelfe, that he respected vs as much as nothing at all; as for the hiring of the Poles and reclaime Bar-Duteb to make Pitch and Tarre, Giaffe, Mils, and Sope-aftes, was most necessary and well, deen are plea-But to fend them and feuenty more without victuall to worke, was not fo well confidered; yet fed with toves this could not have burt vs, had they bin two hundred (though then we were one hundred and and awed with thirty that wanted for our felues.) For wee had the Sauages in that order (their haruest being rods; and this newly garbered) that we feared not to get victuall sufficient, had wee bin fine hundred. Now coursest toics newly gathered) that we reared not to get victual numeron, had wee bit his monared. Now a stream of the was there no way to make vs milerable, but to neglect that time to make our Provision, whilst alwaybest proit was to be had; the which was done to performe this strange Discouery, but more strange Co- speed with

Their procee-

The Prefidenev furrendred Me tenth of September 1608, by the election of the Councell, and request of the Comps. 60 20 Cap. Smith. ny, Captaine Smith received the Letters Patents, and tooke vpon him the place of Prelithe arrival and returne of the dent, which till then by no meanes he would accept, though he were often importuned therefecond supply: unto. Now the bailding of Raciffes Pallace was staid as a thing needelestic. The Church was repaired, the Storehouse recoursed; building prepared for the supply we expected. The Fort this small number passed in that small Barge, with such watrie diet in these great waters and barbarous Countries (till then to any Christian vtterly vnknowne) I rather referre their merit to the censure of the courteous and experienced Reader, then I would be redious, or partiall, being a party. By Nasbaniell Powell, and Anas Todkill.

20 ronation; to loofe that time, ipend that victuall weehad, threand flarue our men, having no wilde Indians meanes to carry victuall, munition, the hurt or ficke, but their owne backes, how or by whom either to doe meanes to carry victuals, munition, the nurr of licke, dut then owner backers, how or by which them, or to they were invented, I know not; But Captaine Newport we onely accounted the author, who make them to effect thele projects had fogilded all our hopes, with great promifes, that both Company good to vs or and Councell concluded his resolution. I confesse wee little understood then our estates, to con- themselves. clude his conclusion, against all the incommensences the foreseeing President alleadged. There This vanity of was added to the Counfell one Captaine Walds, and Captaine Winne, two ancient Souldiers and ours made Pow was added to the Counfell one Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancient Southerns and Value Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancient Southerns and Value Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancient Southerns and Value Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Value Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Watas, and Captaine Winner, two ancients Southerns and Captaine Watas, and Captain mitted to have his voyce, and Master Scrinener defirous to fee strange Countries, so that al- his Corne, &c. though Smith was Prelident, yet the Counfell had the authority, and ruled it as they litted; as No way but

30 for cleering Smiths obiections, how Pitch, and Tarre, Wanfcot, Clapboord, Glaffe, and Sope- one to ouerashes, could be prouided to relade the Smp; or prouision got to line with all, when none was in throw the basithe Countrey, and that which we had, fpent before the Shippes departed: The answere was. Captaine Newport vndertooke to fraught the Pinnace with Corne, in going and returning in his Discouery, and to retraught her againe from Werowocomers; also promiting a great propostion of victuall from his Ship, inferring that Smiths propositions were onely deutles to hinder his journey, to effect it himielfe; and that the cruelty Smith had vied to the Sauages, in his absence, might occasion them to hinder his defignes : For which, all workes were lett, and one hundred and swenty chosen men were appointed for his guard; and Smith, to make cleere these feeming fuspitions, that the Sauages were not so desperate, as was pretended by Captaine New-

40 port, and how willing hee was to further them to effect their projects (because the Coronation would confume much time) undertooke their mellage to Powbatan, to intreate him to come to with four ego-Iames Towne to receiue his Prefents, accompanied onely with Captaine Waldo, Mafter Andrew ethto Bamba-Buckler, Edward Brinton , and Samuell Collier ; with these foure hee went over land, against tan. Werawocomoco; there passed the River of Pamaunke in the Sausges Canoaes, Powhatan being thirty miles off, who, presently was sent for, in the meane time his women entertained Smub in

In a faire plaine field they made a fire, before which he fitting voon a Mat; fuddenly among it The womens the woods was heard fuch a hideous noile and shriking, that they betooke them to their armes, entertainment fuppoling Porbatan with all his power came to furprife them; but the beholders which were as Weranoco-50 many, men, women, and children, fatisfied the Captaine there was no fuch matter, being prefently prefented with this anticke, thirty yong women came naked out of the woods (onely couered behinde & hefore with a few greene leaves) their bodies all painted, tome white, tome red, some blacke, some party colour, but every one different, their leader had a faire paire of Stagges hornes on her head, and another Skinne at her girdle, another at her arme, a quiver of Artowes at her backe, and Bowes and Arrowes in her hand, the next in her hand a Sword, ano- A wilde Dina ther a Clubbe, another a Pot-sticke, all horndalike, the rest every one with their severall deuifes. Thete Feinds with most helish cries and shouts rushing from amongst the trees, cast person. themselves in a ring about the fire, singing and dancing with excellent ill variety, oft falling into their infernall paffions, and then folemnely againe to fing and dance. Having ipent neere an houte in this Maskarado, as they entred, in like manner they departed. Having reaccommodated themselves, they solemnly inuited Small to their lodging, but no sooner was hee within the house, but all these Nimphes more tormented him then ever, with crowding, and preffing, and hanging vpon him, most tediously crying, Loue you not mee? This falutation ended, the feath was fee, confifting of Fruite in Baskets, Fish and Flesh in woodden Platters, Ddddddd 2

Captain Smith mellage.

and banquet being ended, with Firebrands (instead of Torches) they conducted him to his The next day came Powhatan; Smith delivered his Message of the Presents sent him. and redelivered him Namontacke, defiring him to come to his Father Nemport to accept those Prefents, and conclude their revenge against the Monacans: whereupon, the subtill Sause

Bosnes and Peafe there wanted not (for twenty Hogges) nor any Sauage daintie which their invention could devile; fome attending, others finging and dancing about them; this mirth

Perchateut anfwer-

If your King have fent mee prefents, I also am a King, and this my land; eight dayes I will flav to receive them; your Father is to come to mee, not I to him, nor yet to your Fort, neither will bue at such a baite: as for the Monacans, I can resenge my owne insuries, and as for Asquants chucke, where you say your Brother was saine, it is a contrary way from those parts you suppose it. But for any falls water beyong the Mountaines, the relations you have had from my people are falls; whereupon he began to draw plots upon the ground (according to his discourse) of all those R gions : many other difcourses they had (yet both desirous to give each other content in Complementall curtesies) and so Captaine Smith returned with this answer.

Voon this Captaine Newport fent his prefents by water, which is neere one hundred miles.

parell (with much adoe) put on him, being periwaded by Namontacke, they would doe him no 20 with fitty of the belt shot, himselfe went by land, which is but twelve miles, where he met with our three Barges to transport him ouer. All things being fit for the day of his Coronation, the hurt. But a foule trouble there was to make him kneele to receive his Crowne, he neither knowing the Maiefly nor meaning of a Crowne, nor bending of the knee, indured fo many perfivafions, examples, and instructions, as tired them all : At last, by leaning hard on his shoulders, he

he fee all was well, then remembring himfelfe, to congratulate their kindenesse, he gave his old Shooes and his Mantle to Captaine Newport. But perceiuing his purpole was to discouer the then Namontacke, and so (after some complementall kindenesse on both sides) in requitall of his 20

prefents, he prefented Newport with a heape of Wheate eares, that might contains some feuen ronation. So much was done to buy repentance with more coft prefents were brought, his Bafon, Ewer, Bed and Furniture fet vp, his Scarlet Closke and Apthen worthin. If we feeke Sanages we loofe them.if wee force them to a little flooped, fo they put the Crowne on his head; When by the warning of a Piffoll, the fecke vs. wee shal finde these Boates were prepared with such a Volly of shot, that the King start vp in a horrible feare, till shadowes of men close at our feet.I haue read more fto- Monacans, he laboured to divert his resolution, retuing to lend him either men or guides, more ries of them then perhaps any man, and finde that a cruell m rev in awing Saua-

is better then

that mercifull

by roo much

by too much

or eight bulhels, and as much more we bought ready dreffed in the Towne, wherewith we returned to the Fort. The Ship having disburdened her felfe of feventy persons, with the first Gentlewoman, and ges to feare vs woman feruant that arrived in our Colony ; Captaine Newport with all the Counfell, and one handred and twenty chosen men, set forward for the discouery of Monacan, leaving the Prefis dent at the Fort with eighty (fuch as they were) to relade the Ship. Arriving at the fals, wee cruelty, which marched by land some forty miles in two dayes and a halfe, and so returned downe to the same kindenes hath path we went. Two Townes we discourred of the Monacans, the people neither ving vs well made vs feare nor ill, yet for our fecurity we tooke one of their petty Weromances, and led him bound, to con- to them, or effe duct vs the way. And in our returns fearched many places we supposed Mines, about which we spent some time in refining, hauing one William Callicut a refiner, fitted for that purpole, confidence to bose our selves from that crust of earth which we digged, he perswaded vs to believe hee ex racted some small quantity of Siluer (and not vnlikely tome better ftuffe might be had for the digging) with this Smith S: Newpoore triall being contented to leaue this faire, fertill, well watered Country. Comming to the port may by their examples Fals, the Sauages fained there were divers Ships come into the Bay to kill them at Iames Towne. teach the just Trade they would not, and findetheir Corne we could not, for they had hid it in the woods, and course to be take with fuch: being thus deluded we arrived at lames Towne, halfe ticke, all complaining, and tired with toile, famine, and discontent, to have onely but discovered our gilded hopes, and fruitlesse certainties, the one brecdread, without as the President foretold vs.

No sooner were we landed, but the President dispersed as many as were able, some for Gliffe, Spanish or Pamit terror, the others for Pitch, Tarreand Sope-afnes, leaving them (with the Fort) to the Councels overfight. But thirtie of vs he conducted fine miles from the Fort to learne to make clap-boord, cut downe other difera-Trees, and lie in Woods; among it the reit he had chosen Gabriell Beadell, and John Ruffell the onced in feeking ly two Gallants of this last supply, and both proper Gentlemen : strange were these pleasures to to grace with offices of hu-

which are gracelesse. Neither doth it become vs to vse Sauages with sauagenesse, nor yet with too humaine vsage, but in a middle path (medio tutisfinings ibis) to goe and doe so that they may admire and feare vs, as those whom God, Religion, Civility, and Art, haue made fo farre superiour; yet to abuse them (vnprouoked) as hostile states, or as meere beasts, with cruell and beastly serty, whom nature hath equally made men. This breedes desperate depopulations, as in the Spanish Indies hath beene seene; that gentlenesse and vnequall equity makes them proud and treacherous, as wofull experience hath rought in the late massacre. 60 Our remperance and audice should be qualified with prudence and fortitude. Neither must wee make them beasts, nor very slare them as Christians, till we have made them luch; and the way to make them Christian men, is first to make them civill men, to file off the rult of their humanity, which as children (the like in taming wilde Beafts) must be done with feuere gendencife, and gende fenerity, which may breede in them a louing awe,or awfull lone, at least a luft disead toward vs, that feare may make them know vs. and then the fault is ours if they fee no cause to loue vs.

to their conditions, yet lodging, eating, drinking, working, or playing, they doing but as the President, all these things were carried so pleasantly, as within a weeke they became Masters, making it their delight to heare the Trees thunder as they fell, but the Axes fo oft bliftered there tender fingers, that commonly every third blow had a lowd Oath to drowne the Eccho; forcemedic of which finne the President deuised how to have every mans Oathes numbred, and at night, for every Oath to have a Kan of water powred downe his fleeue, with which eue- A pretie pury Offender was so washed (himselfe and ali) that a man should scarce heare an Oath in Apretie punishment for

By this, let no man thinke that the Prefident, or thefe Gentlemens spent their times as com-10 mon Wood-hackers at felling of Trees, or fuch like other labours, or that they were pressed to any thing as hirelings or common flaues, for what they did (beeing but once a little inured) it. feemed, and they conceited it only as a pleafure and a recreation. Yet thirtie or fortie of fuch vo- One Gentleluntarie Gentlemen would doe more in a day then one hundred of the rest that must be prest to manbetter it by compulfion. Mafter Serinemer, Captaine Waldo, and Captaine Winne at the Fort, every one then twentie in like manner carefully regarded their charge. The Prefident returning from amongst the Woods feeing the time confumed, and no pronision gotten, (and the ship lay idle, and would do nothing presently imbarked himselfe in the Discouery Barge, giving order to the Councell, to fend Master Percie after him with the next Barge that arrived at the Fort; two Barges, he had himfelfe, and twentie men, but arriving at (bickahamina, that dogged Nation was too well acquainted with 20 our wants, refusing to trade, with as much icorne and infolencie as they could expresse. The President perceiuing it was Powhatans policie to starue vs, told them hee came not Io much for The chiclata-President perceiuing it was Pownstans policie to statue vs, took them necessme not formed for their Corne, as to reuenge his imprisonment, and the death of his men murdered by them, and contribution. fo landing his men, and readie to charge them, they immediatly fled; but then they fent their Ambaffadors, with corne, fifh, fowle, or what they had to make their peace (their corne being that weere bad) they complained extremely of their owne wants yet fraughted our Boates with one hundred bushels of Corne, and inlike manner Master Percies, that not long after vs arrived; they having done the best they could to content vs, within foure or fine dayes were returned to Iames Towne.

All this time our old Tauerne, made as much of all them that had either Money or Ware as A good rauern could be defired; and by this time they were become so perfect on all sides (I meane Souldiers, Saylers, and Sauages) as there was ten times more care, to maintayne their damnable and private Trade, then to prouide for the Colonie things that were necessarie, neither was it a small policie in the Mariners, to report in England wee had fuch plentie, and bring vs fo many men without victuall, when they had so many private Factors in the Fort, that within fixe or seven weekes after the thips returne, of two or three hundred Hatchets, Chiffels, Mactockes, and Pick-axes fearce twentie could bee found, and for Pike-heads, Kniues, Shot, Powder, or any thing (they could fleale from their fellowes) was vendible; They knew as well (and as fectetly) how to con- Abad trade of could fleate from their fellowes) was vendible; I ney knew as well (and as secretary now to collaboration of the Sauages, for Furres, Baskets, Mustaneekes, young beafts or such like Sailets. Commodities, as to exchange them with the Saylers, for Butter, Cheele, Beefe, Porke, Aqua-10 mitz. Beere, B. sker, and Oate-meale; and then faine, that all was fent them from their friends. And though Virginia affoord no Furres for the store, yet one Mariner in one Voyage hath got so many, as he hath confelled to haue fold in England for thirtie pound. And for all this riot and Stuall his Thip homeward. Those are the Saint-seeming Worthies of Virginia, that have notwith sanding all this, meat, drinke, and pay, but now they beginne to grow wearie, their Trade beeing both perceiued and preuented; none hath beene in Unginia (that hath observed any thing) which knowes not this 50 to be true, and yet the scorne, and shame was the poore Souldiers, Gentlemen and carelesse Gouernours, who were all thus bought and fold, the Aduenturers coezened, and the action ouerthrowne by their false excuses, informations, and directions by this let all the World Judge, how this butineffe could prosper, being thus abused by such pilfering occasions. .

Newports boaffing to leave vs for twelve monethes, though we had eightie nine by his Discourie ficke and lame, which by one wan for a pound of Copper might much better hans beene done, and bauing but apint of Corne a day for a man, we were constrained to give bim three Hogsbeads of that Corne to vi-

The proceedings and accidents, with the second supply.

Mafter Scrimener was fent with the Barges and Pinnace to Werawacomoco, where he found the Scrimeners voy-Sauages more readie to fight then trade, but his vigilancie was such, as preuented their projects, age 1018/2020. 60 and by the meanes of Namontack got three or foure Hogsheads of Corne, and as much red paint which (then) was efteemed an excellent die.

Ddddddd 3

Captaine Newport being dispatched with the tryals of Pitch, Tarre, Glasse, Frankincense, and Sope-ashes, with that Clapboord and Wainscot which could bee provided, met with Master Serimener at Point Comfort, and so returned for England, leaving vs in all two hundred, with thotehe brought vs.

Non Camund forced to congribu.ion.

Nansamund, tooke with him Captaine Winne and Master Scrimener, (:hen returning from Captaine Nemport) these people also long denied him Trade (excuting themselves to be to commanded by Powbatan) till we were conftrained to begin with them perforce, and then they would rather fell'ys some, then we should take all; so loading our Boats, with one hundred bushels wee parted friends, and came to lames Towne, at which time, there was a Marriage betweene lobn Lava First marriage, don and Anna Burrowes, being the first Marriage we had in Virginia.

Long he stayed not, but fitting himselfe and Captaine VValdo with two Barges, from Chamano. VVeanocke and all parts there, was found neither Corne nor Sauage, but all fled (being iealous of our intents) till we discouered the River and people of Apparaetuck, where we found little: that which they had , wee equally denided, betwixt the Sauages and vs (but gaue them Cop_ Id per in contideration) Maiter Perce, and Mafter Serinener went also abroad but could finde no.

thing. The President seeing this procrassinating of time, was no course to line, resolved with Captaine VValdo (whom he knew to be fure in time of need) to furprize Pomhatan, and all his prouifion, but Captaine VVinne, and Mafter Scruener (for some private respects) did their best to hinder their project : But the President whom no perswasions could perswade to starue, being inuited by Powhaten to come vnto him, and if he would fend him but men to build him a house bring him a Grindstone, fiftie Swords, some Peeces, a Cocke and a Henne, with Copper and Beads, he would load his thip with Corne, the Prefident not gnorant of his deuices, yet vnwilling to neglect any opportunitie, prefently fent three Durchmen and two English (haung no victuals to imploy them, all for want thereof being idle) knowing there needed no better Castell, then that houle to furprize Powbatan, to eff. Et this project hee tooke order with Captaine Waldo to fecond him if need required; Serimener he left his Substitute; and fer forth with the Pinnace two Barses, and fixe and fortie men which only were fuch as voluntarily offered themselues for his journie the which) by reason of Master Scrineners ill successe) was censured very desperate, they all knowing Smith would not returne emptie how focuer, cauled many of those that he had appointed, to find excuses to stay behind.

iourneto Pa-

The nine and twentieth of December hee set forward for Werdwegomogo, In the Pinnace.

Master George Percie, brother to the Earle of Northumberland. Master Francis West, bromainte. Cb. 8. ther to the Lord De la-Ware. William Phetiplace Captaine of the Pinnace. Ionai Profit Maftet. Robert Ford Clerke of the Councell.

Michaell Pheriplace. Geoff ry Abbot Sergeant. William Tankard. George Tarington. lames

Bourne, George Burton, Thomas Cee, Gentlemen.

John Dods, Edward Brinton, Nathaniell Peacocke. Henry Powell. Danid Ellis, Thomas Gipfon. Iohn Prat. George Acrigge. Iames Reade. Nicholas Hancocke. Iames Walkins. Anthony Bag. gly Sergeant. Thomas Lambert, Edward Pifing Sergeant. Souldiers. Foure Dutchmen and Richard Sanage were lent by Land, to build the house for Ponhatan against our arrivall.

This company being victualled but for three or foure dayes lodged the first night at Werakerack, where the President tooke sufficient promsion; This kinde Saurge did his best to divert him from feeing Pombatan, but perceiuing hee could not preuaile, hee aduifed in this manner; Captame Smith, you Shall find Powhatan to ve you kindly, but trust him not, and be sure he have no opportunitie to feize on your armes, for he bath fent for you only to cut your throt; the Captaine thanked him for nis good counfell, yet the better to try his loue, defired Guides to Chomanoke, for hee would fend a present to that King to bind him his friend. To performe this Ioumey, was tent Michael Sicklemore, a very honest valuant, and painfull Souldier, with him two Guides, and directions how to fearch for the loft company of Sir Walter Rawleigh, and Silke Graffe : then weed parted thence, the Prefident affuring the King his perpetuall loue, and left with him Samuel Collier his 50 Page to learne the Language.

Plentie of xi Suall. 148 Fowles

The good

Weraskoyake.

The next night being lodged at Kecoughtan fixe or feuen dayes, the extreme wind, raine, froft, and inow, cauled vs to keepe Christmail, among it the Sauages, where we were never more merrie, nor fed on more plentie of good Oyiters, Fish, Flesh, Wild-foule, and good Bread, nor neuer had better fires in England then in the dry warme imokie houses of Kecouchtan. But deparkined at three ting thence, when we found no houses, we were not curious in any weather, to lie three or foure nights together vponany shore under the Trees by a good fire. The President Anthony Bagly, and Edward Pising, did kill one hundred fortie and eight Fowles at three shootes. At Kukiack the Froit forced vs three or foure dayes also to supprelle the infolencie of those proud Sauiges; to quarter in their houses, and guard our Birge, and cause them give vs what we wanted, yet were 60 wee but twelve with the President, and yet wee neuer wanted Harbour where wee foundary

The twelfth of Ianuary we arrived at Werawocomo, where the River was frozen neere halfe 2 mile from the shore; but to neglect no time, the Prefident with his Barge, fo farre had approached by breaking the Ice as the ebbe left him amongst those Ozie shoales, yet rather then to lie there frozen to death, by his owne example he taught them to march middle deepe, more then a flight fhot through this muddie frozen Oze; when the Barge floted hee appointed two or three Anill march. to returne her aboord the Pinnace, where for want of water in melting the Salt Ice they made Powbatons Subfresh water, but in this march Master Russell (whom none could perswade to stay behind) being theire. fomewhat ill, and exceeding heavie, so over-toyled himselfe, as the rest had much adoe (ere hee got ashore) to regaine life, into his dead benummed spirits, quartering in the next Houses wee found, we fent to Pombatan for prouision, who fent vs plentie of Bread, Turkeyes, and Vension. The next day having feasted vs after his ordinary manner, he began to aske, when we would bee to gone, fayning hee sent not for vs, neither had hee any Corne, and his people much lesse, vet for fortie Swords hee would procure ve fortie bushels. The President shewing him the men there prefent, that brought him the meffage and conditions, asked him how it chanced hee became fo forgetfull, thereat the King concluded the matter with a merrie laughter, asking for our Commodities, but none hee liked without Gunnes and Swordes, valuing a basket of Corne more precious then a Basket of Copper, faying, hee could eate his Corne, but not his

CHAP. 4. Salt Ice melted. Demand of Swords and Gunnes.

Captaine Smith feeing the intent of this subtle Swage; beganne to deale with him after this Cap. Smiths manner, Powhatan, Though I had many courses to have made my provision, yet beleeuing your promi- discourse to les to supply my wants, I neglected all, to fatisfie your defire, and to testifie my lone, I fent you my men Pombatin. 20 for your building, neglecting my owne : what your people bad you have engroffed , forbidding them our Trade, and now you thinke by consuming the time, we shall consume for want, not having to fulfill your strange demands, as for Swords and Gunnes, I told you long agoe, I had none to fare. And you hall know, those I have, can beepe me from want, yet steale, or wrong you I will not nor disclue that friendwe have mutually promised, except you constraine me by your bad vlage.

The King having attentively littled to this Discourse; promited, that both he and his Coun- Powertenses trey would spare him what they could, the which within two dayes, they should receive, yet ply and flattery Captaine Smith (faith the King) some doubt I have of your comming hither, that makes me not To kindly feeke to releeue you as I would; for many doe informe mee, your comming is not for Trade, but to inuade my people and possesse my Country, who date not come to bring you corne, 30 feeing you thus armed with your men. To cleere vs of this feare, leave aboord your weapons, for here they are needl-fie we being all friends and for euer Powhatans.

With many such Discourtes they spent the day, quartering that night in the Kings houses, the next day he reniewed his building, which he little intended should proceed; for the Dutchmen finding his plentie, and knowing our want, and perceiuing his preparation to furprize vs. little Wickednesse thinking we could escape, both him and famine (to obtaine his fauour) revealed to him as much of their Dutabas they knew of our estates proceets, and how to prevent them; one of them being of fo good a mon iudgement, spirit, and resolution, and a hireling that was certaine of wages for his labor, and euer well vied, both he and his Countrimen, that the President knew not whom better to trust, and not knowing any fitter for that imployment, had fent him as a fpie to discouer Powhatans in-

40 tent, then little doubting his honeftie, nor could ever be certaine of his villany, till neere halfe a yeere after. Whilst we expected the comming in of the Country, we wrangled out of the King ten quarters of Corne for a Copper Kettle, the which the President perceiuing him much to etfect, valued it at a much greater rate, but (in regard of his fearcitie) he would accept of as much more the next years, or elle the Country of Monacan; the King exceeding liberall of that he had not yeelded him Monacan, Wherewith each feeming well contented; Pombatan began to expostulate the difference betwixt Peace and Warre, after this manner.

Captaine Smith you may understand, that I, having seene the death of all my people thrice, and not Powhetens disone living of those three Generations, but my selfe, I know the difference of Peace and Warre, better then course of any in my Countrie. But now I am old, and ere long I must die, my Brethren, namely Opichapam, O- Poece and Waire. pechankanough, and K karaugh, my two fisters, and their two daughters, are diffinelly each others suc-

50 ceffors, I will their experiences no leffe then mine, and your love to them, no leffe then mine to you: but this brute from Nanfamund that you are come to destroy my Countrie; so much affrighteth at m; people, as they dare not vifit you; what will it anaile you, to take that perforce you may quietly have with lone, or to destroy them that provide you food? what can you get by war, when we can hide our provision and flie to the woods, wherby you must family by wronging is your friends; and why are you thus icalous of our lucs, feeing vs unarmed, and both doe, and are willing fill to feed you with that you cannot get but by our labours? thinke you I am fo simple not to know, it is better to eat good meate, lie well, and sleepe quietly with my women and children, laugh & be merrie with you, have Copper, Hatchets, or what I want, being your friend then be forced to flee from all to lie cold in the woods, feed upon Acornes, roots and such traft, and 60 be so bunted by you, that I can neither rest, eat, nor sleepe; but my tired men must watch, and if a twig but breake, enery one cry there comes Captaine Smith then maft I flie I know not whether, and thus with miferable feare end my miserable life; leaning my pleasures to such your bs as you, which through your rash unadmisednesse, may quickly as miserably end, for want of that you mener know how to find? Let this therefore affure jou of our lones, and eneric seere our friendly Trade shall furnish you with Corne, and now also if you would come in friendly manner to see us, and not thus with your Guns and Swords, as to innade your foes. To this fubtill discourse the President thus replied.

C. Smiths

Sceing you will not rightly conceine of our words, we strive to make you know our thoughts by our deeds. The vow I made you of my lone, both my felfe and my men have kept, as for your promise I find it everie day miolated by some of your subjects, yet we finding your love and kindnesse (our sustaine is so far from being ungratefull) that for your (ake onely, we have curbed our thirfting defire of revenge, elle had they knowne as well the crueltie we vie to our enemies, as our true love and curtefie to our friends. And I thinke your indigement sufficient to conceine as well by the admentures wee have undertaken, as by the aduantage we have by our Armes of jours : that had we intended you any hurt , long ere this wee could have effected it : jour people comming to me at lames Towne, are entertained with their Bowes and Ar- 10 romes without exception ; we esteeming it with you, as it is with vs, to weare our Armes as our appared. As for the dangers of our enemies, in such warres consist our chiefest pleasure, for your riches wee have no vie, as for the hiding your promision, or by your flying to the Woods, wee Shall so unadmisedle Starue as you conclude your friendly care in that behalfe is needleffe; for wee hans armle to find beyond your knowledge.

Many other discourses they had, till at last they began to trade, but the King freing his will would not be admitted as a law, our guard differfed, nor our men difarmed, he (fighing) breathed his mind once more in this manner.

Pow a ansim. portunitiesor to have them betray them.

Captaine Smith . I never vied any Wetowances fo kindly as your felfe; yet from you I receive the least bindnesse of any, Captaine Newport gave me swords, Copper, Clothes, a Bed Teoles, or what I de- 20 fired ever taking what I offered him, and would fend away his Guns when I intreated him : none doth deny to lay at my feet (or doe) what I defire, but onely you, of whom I can have nothing, but what you resard not, and ret you will have what soener you demand. Captaine Newport you call fasher, and so you call me. but I fee for all vs both, you will doe what you lift, and wee must both feeke to content you: But if you intend to friendly as you fay, fend hence your Armes that I might beleene you, for you fee the love I heare ron, doth canfe me thus naked to forget my felfe.

Smith feeing this Sauage but trifled the time to cut his throat : procured the Sauages to breake the Ice (that his Boat might come to fetch both him and his Corne) and gaue order forhismen to come alhore, to have surprised the King, with whom also hee but trifled the time till his men landed, and to keepe him from fulpition, entertained the time with this reply.

C.Smiths difcourse to delay time,mar he might furprife Pombatan.

Powhatan, you must know as I have but one God, I honour but one King; and I live not here at the Subject but as your friend, to pleasure you with what I can: by the gifts you best ow on me, you gaine were then by trade, yet would you wifit mee as I doe you, you frould know it is not our customes to fell our two telle as a vendible commoditie. Bring all your Countrey with you for your guard, I will not diffike of it # being over sealows. But to content you, to morrow I will leave my Armes, and trust to your primite. I call you father indeed, and as a futher you hall fee I will lone you, but the small care you had of such a child, caused my men to perswade me to lists for my selfe.

Perphatans plot to have murdered Smith.

A Chaine of Pearle for a

Prefent. His excuse.

Pretending to kill our men loaded with baskets_wee forced the Samages to car-

By this time Powhatan having knowledge, his men were readie : whilft the Ice was breaking, his luggage, women, and children fled, and to aword futpition, left two or three of his women talking with the Captaine, whilft hee fecretly fled, and his men as fecretly befet the house, which 40 being at the instant discoursed to Captaine Smith, with his Pistol, Sword, and Target, hee made fuch a passage among it those naked Deuills, that they fled before him, some one way, some another fo that without hurt hee obtained the Corps du-guard : when they perceived him fo well escaped, and with his eight men (for hee had no more with him) to the vttermost of their skill, they lought by excuses to diffemble the matter, and Powhatan to excuse his flight, and the sudden comming of this multitude, lent our Captaine a great Bracelet, and a Chaine of Pearle, by an ancient Orator that bespoke vs to this purpose (perceiuing then from our Pinnace, a Barge, and men departing and comming vnto vs.) Captaine Smith, our Werowance is fled, fearing your Guns, and knowing when the Ice was broken there would come more men, fent those of his to quard bis Corne from the pilfry, that might bappen without your knowledge : now though some bee hurt by your misprisson, 50 yet he is your friend, and so will continue : and fince the Ice is open hee would have you fend away your Corne; and if you would have bis company fend also your Armes, which to affriobseth this people, that they dare not come to you, as he bath promised they sould : Now having provided Baskets for our men to carry the Corne, they kindly offered their service to guard our Armes, that none should steale them. A great many they were, of goodly well appointed fellowes as grim as Deuills : yet the very light of cocking our matches against them, and a few wordes caused them to leave their Bowes and Arrowes to our guard, and beare downe our Corne on their owne backes; wee needed not importune them to make quick dispatch. But our owne Barge being left by the ebbe, caused vs to flay till the midnight tide carried vs fafe aboard, having spent that halfe night with such mirch, as though we never had infpected or intended any thing, we left the Durchmen to build, 60 Brinton to kill Fowle for Powbatan (as by his Meffengers he importunately defired) and left directions with our men to give Powbatan all the content they could, that we might miew his company at our returne from Pamaunke.

VV E had no fooner let faile, but Pombatan returned, and fent Adam and Francis (two Howwee'ca-frow Durch men) to the Fort, who faining to Captaine Winne that all things were pediupring well and that Captaine Smith had vie for their Armes, wherefore they requeited new (the which at Pamaunte. were given them) they told him their comming was, for some extraordinary tooles and shift of chap. 9. apparell, by this colourable excute, they obtained fixe or feuen more to their confederacie, fuch men deceme expert theetes that prefently furnished them with a great many of Swords, Pike-heads, Peeces, C. Smith. Shot, Powder, and such like ; they have Sanages at hand ready to carry it away. The next day Perfidings they returned vnsuipeded, leaving their confederates to follow, and in the interim, to connay wretche them a competencie of all things they could, for which feruice they should live with Powhatan to as his chiefe affected : free from those misries that would happen the Colony. Samuell their other confort, Powhatan kept for their pledge, whose diligence had provided them three hundred of their kind of Hatchets, the reit fiftie Swords, eight Pecces, and eight Pikes: Briton, and Richard Sauage feeing the Dutch-men fo strangely diligent to accommodate the Sauages; these weapons attempted to have got to lames Towne, but they were apprehended, Within two or three daies we arrived at Passaunie, the King as many daies entertained vs with feathing and much mirch : and the day he appointed to begin our trade, the Prefident, with M. Persie, M. West, M. Russell, M. Beheathland, M. Powell, M. Crafbam, M. Ford, and some others to the number of niceene went up to now he aban-Openhancanonels houle (neere a quarter of a mile from the River) where we found nothing, but a doned. lame fellow and a boy, and all the houses about, of all things abandoned; nor long wee stand ere an the King arrived, and after him came divers of his people loaded with Bowes and Arrowes, but fuch pinching commodities, and those eftermed at such a value, as our Captaine began with him Opechancanough, the great lone you professe with your tongue, seemes meere deceit by your actions; Smith speech last yeare you kindly fraughted our Ship, but now you have innited me to starue with bunger. You know my want, and I your plentse of which by some meanes I must have a part, remember it is fit for Kings to keepe their promife, here are my commoduties, whereof take your choice; the rest I will proportion fit bargaines

The King feemed kindly to accept his offer; and the better to colour his project, fold vs what they had to our owne content; promiting the next day more company, better prouided (the Barthe Prefident, with his old fifteens marched up to the Kings house, where wee found foure or hue men newly come with great Baskets. Not long after came the King , who with a ftrained cheerefalneffe held vs with difcourse, what paines he had taken to keepe his promisestill M. Russell brought vs in newes that we were all betrayed : for at least tixe or feven hundred of well appointed Indians had incironed the 700.50x27es house and befet the fields. The King conjecturing what Ruffel related, wee could well perceive befet in Enge how the extremitie of his feare bewrayed his intent: whereat fome of our company feeming farcene. difmayed with the thought of fuch a multitude; the Captaine incouraged vs after th a manner. Worthy Country-men were the mischiefes of my seeming friends , no more then the danger of these ene- Smith Secreti mies, I little cared, were they as many more; if you dare doe, but as I. But this is my terment, that if I to his Com-40 escape them, our malicious Councell, with their open mouthed Minions, will make me such a peace-breaker pany. (in their opinions) in England, as will breake my necke : I could wish those here, that make these (come Saints, and me an Oppreffer. But this is the worft of all, wherein , I pray aide me with your opinions , Should we begin with them and surprize this King, we cannot keepe bim, and defend well our selves, if wee should each kill our man, and so proceed withall in this house; the rest will all fly, then shall we get no more, you know (being alone affaulted with two or three bundred of them) I made them compound to faue my life, and we are now fixteene, and they but seuen hundred at the most, and assure your selines GOD will so affift us, that if you dare but to stand to discharge your Peeces, the verie smoake will be sufficient to affright them: yet bowfemer (if there be occasion) let us fight like men, and not die like sheepe but first I will deale with them, to bring it to paffe, we may fight for some thing, and draw them to it by conditions. If you like this motion, promifeme youle be valiant, The time not permitting any argument, all vowed to execute whatfoeuer he attempted, or die; whereupon the Captaine approaching the King, then the bodies that are flaine, and then starme for victuall: as for their furiest is the least danger, for well befpoke him in this manner. I see Opechancanough your plot is to murder me, but I feare is not; as yet your men and mine, have Smiths offer to done no harme, but by our directions. Take therefore your Armes ; you fee mine : my bodie finall bec as naked as yours; the lle in your River is a fit place, if you be contented; and the conquerour (of us two) Shall be Lord and Master oner all our men : otherwaies draw all your men into the field; if you have not enough, take time to fetch more, and bring what number you will, so eneric one bring a basket of Corne, against all which I will state the valuean Copper ; you see I have but sitteene men , and our gan e shall be,

60 The conquerour take all. The King , being guarded with fiftie or fixtie of the chiefe men , feemed kindly to appeale Ofechanes-Smubs suspicion of vnkindnesse, by a great present at the doore, they intreated him to receive. This was to draw him without the doore where the prefent was guarded with (at the leaft two Smith. hundred men, and thirtie lying under a great tree (that lay thwart as a Barricado) each his Ar-taken prifoner amids his men. If this course had bin eskén by athers Virginia by this had .

1723

1724

n out of her .c.& able o goe alone, yea to trade or Sght. Bur same of neace haue bred worfe then wars, and our considence harehed the milerable maffacre by this perfidious Saunge. And would God a Dale or Smith, or fome fuch fpirit were yet there to take this that is the onely right cou:fe wi b thole which know not to doe right further for trace offuffering it enforceth. Smiths difcourse to the

The Sausees diffemble their intent. See their vie of English Armes. Their excuse and reconcilement. The loffe of M. Shrineser and others with a Skiffe. M. Wiffin his journey to the Prefident.

Pam: unkies.

Pembatan con-Oraineth his men to be treacherous

The third berray vs.

row necked ready to shoot; some the President commanded to go & see what kind of deceit this Obechancenough was, and to receive the Prefent but they refuled to doe it) yet divers offered whom he would not permit : but commanding M. Perfie, and M. West to make good the house, to M. Pavell, and M. Bebeatbland to guard the doore, and in such a rage fnatched the King by his long locke of haire in the midth of his men, with his Piftoll readie bent against his breft, he instantly yeelded his Bow and Arrowes, and fued for his life : Thus he led the King (neere dead with feare) amonest all his people, who delinering the Captaine his Bow and arrowes, all his men were cally intreated to cast downe their Armes, little dreaming any durit in that manner have vied their King; who then to escape himselfe, beltowed his Prefents in good fadnesse. And having caused all his multitude to approach difarmed; the Pretident argued with them to this effect,

I fee you Pamavakies, the great defire you have to cut my throat; and my long suffering your ininries, have involded you to this presumption. The canse I have forborne your insolencies, is the momile I mide you (before the God I ferne) to be your friend, till you give mee inst cause to bee your enemy. If I beene this vow. my God will keepe me, you cannot hurt me; if I breake h , be will destroy me. But if you Shoot but one Arrow, to feed one drop of bloud of any of my men, or steale the least of these Beades, or Conper (i purne before me with my foot) you hall see, I will not conservenge (if once I begin) so long as I can heare where to find one of your Nation that will not deny the name of Pamavnke : I am not now at Rafe lenear (kalle drown'd with mire), where you tooke me prisoner, yet then for keeping promise, and your good vlage, and faning my life, I fo affect you, that your denialls of your treacherie, doth halfeperwade me to miliake my felfe. But of I be the marke you aime at, here I fland , Poor he that dare, You an promised to fraught my pop ere I departed and so you shall er I meane to load ber with your dead careasles : yet if as friends you will come and trade, I once more promise not to trouble you, except you eine mee the first occasion. Vpon this away went your Bowes and Arrowes, and men, women, and children brought in their commodities, but two or three houres they to thronged about the Prefident and fo overwearied him, as hee retired himselfe to reft, leaving M. Bebeathland, and M. Powel to accept their Prefents: but tome Sauages perceiping them fait affecte, and the guard carefully difperfed fortie or fiftie of their choice men each with an English Sword in his hand, began to enter the house, with two or three hundred others that prefed to second them. The noise and hast they made in, did fo shake the house, as they awoke him from his sleepe, and being halfe amazed with this fudden fight, hetooke him straight to his Sword and Target, M. Crafbawand lome 50 other charging in like manner, they thronged fafter backe, then before forward. The house thus clenfed, the King and his Ancients, with a long Oration came to excute this intrusion. Therest of the day was ipent with much kindnesse, the company againe renuing their Presents of their best prouision. And what socuer we gave them, they seemed well contented with it.

Now in the meane while fince our departure, this hapned at the Rott : M. Sermener willing to croffe the furnizing of Powhatan; nine daies after the Prefidents departure, would needs vifit the He of Hogs, and tooke with him Captaine Waldo (though the Prefident had appointed him to be readie to second his occasions) with M. Anthony Gofnoll, and eight others; but to violent was the wind (that extreame frozen time) that the Boat funke, but where or how, none doth know, for they were all drowned; onely this was knowne, that the Skiffe was much outladed; and 40 would fearce have lived in that extreame tempert, had she beene emptie; but by no periwasion he could be diverted, though both Walds and a hundred others doubted as it happed. The Sausges were the first that found their bodies, which so much the more encouraged them to effect their projects. To advertise the President of this heavy newes, none could be found would vndertake it, but the journey was often refused of all in the Fort, vntill M. Wiffin vndertooke alone the performance thereof; wherein he was encountred with many dangers and difficulties, and in all parts as he passed (as also that night he lodged with Pombatan) he perceived such preparation for warre, that affured him, some mischiefe was intended, but with extraordinary bribes, and much trouble, in three daies trauell at length he found vs in the midft of their turmoiles. This vnhappy newes, the Prefident swore him to conceale from the rest, and so diffembling his forrow, 10 with the best countenance he could, when the night approached, went lafely aboard with all his

Now so extreamely Powhatan had threatned the death of his men, if they did not by some meanes kill Captaine Smith, that the next day they appointed the Country should come to trade vnarmed; yet vnwilling to be treacherous, but that they were constrained, hating fighting, almost as ill as hanging, such feare they had of bad successe. The next morning the Sunne had not long appeared, but the fields appeared couered with people, and baskets to tempt vs ashore. The Prelident determined to keepe aboard, but nothing was to be had without his prefence, nor they would not indure the fight of a Gun ; then the President seeing many depart , and being vnwilling to lose such a bootie, so well contriued the Pinnace, and his Barges with Ambuscadoes, as 63 only with M. Perfie, M. West, and M. Ruffell armed, he went ashore, others vnarmed hee appointed to receive what was brought; the Sauages flocked before him in heapes, and (the banke feruing as a trench for retreate) he drew them faire open to his Ambulcadees, for he not heine to be perswaded to goe to visit their King, the King came to visit him with two or three hundred men, in the forme of two halfe Moones, with some twentie men, and many women loaded with great painted baskets; but when they approached tomewhat neete vs. their women and children Aed for when they had enuironed and befet the fields in this manner, they thought their purpole fure ; yet to trembled with feare, as they were fearce able to nock their Arrowe; : Smith standing with his three men readie bent beholding them, till they were within danger of our Ambulcade, who, vpon the word discourred themselues, and hee retiring to the banke : which the Sauages no fooner perceived, but away they fled, effeeming their heeles for their best advantage. That night we fent to the Fort M. Crashaw, and M. Ford, who (in the mid-way betweene Werawocsmoco and the fort) met foure or fine of the Dutchmens confederates going to Powhatan, the to which (to excuse those Gentlemens suspition of their running to the Sanages returned to the Fort and there continued.

The Sauages hearing our Barge depart in the night were so terribly affraide, that wee sent for more men (wee having so much threatned their ruine, and the rasing of their Houses, Boates, and Canowes) that the next day the King, fent our Captaine a Chaine of Pearle to alter his purpoie, A Chaine of and flay his men, promifing (though they wanted chemielues) to fraught our fhip, and bring it Pearle fent to aboard to avoid suspition, so that five or sixe daies after, from all parts of the Countrey within ten or twelve miles, in the extreame cold Froft, and Snow, they brought vs provision on their

Yet notwithstanding this kindnesse and trade, had their are and posson beene sufficient, the The President no President with Master West and some others had beene poyloned : it made them sicke, but expelled it felfe. Wecuttanom aftout young fellow, knowing hee was suspected for bringing this The offender present of poilon, with fortie or fiftie of his choice companions (feeing the President but with a punished few men at Potavneat --) fo proudly braued it , as though hee expected to incounter a reuenge: which the Prelident perceiums, in the midft of his company did not onely beat, but spurned him like a dogge, as fcorning to doe him any worse mischiese : whereupon all of them fled into the Woods, thinking they had done a great matter, to have fo well escaped : and the Townsmen remayning, prefently fraughted our Barge, to bee rid of our companies, framing many excules to excuse Weenstanow (being sonne to their chiefe King , but Powbatan) and told vs , if wee would shew them him that brought the poyson, they would deliuer him to vs to punish 20 as wee pleated.

Men may thinke it ftrange there should bee this stirre for a little Corne, but had it beene Gold with more ease wee might have got it : and had it wanted, the whole Colony had flarued. Wee may bee thought verie patient, to indure all those injuries; yet onely with fearing them, wee got what they had. Whereas if wee had taken renenge, then by their losse wee should have lost our felues. We searched all the Countries of Toughtanund and Mattapamient, The Sange where the people imparted that little they had, with such complaints and teares from women want and and children ; as hee had beene too cruell to bee a Christian that would not have beene fatif- pourrie. fied, and moued with compassion. But this happened in October, Nouember, and December, when that vnhappy discouerie of Monacan was made, wee might have fraughted a Ship so of forcie Tunnes, and twice as much might have beene had from the Rivers of Toppahannock, Patawomeck, and Pawennunt. The maine occasion of our temporating with the Sauages was to part friendes (as wee did) to give the lefte cause of suspicion to Powhatan, to five: The Durchby whom wee now returned, with a purpose to have surprised him and his provision: for effect men did much ting whereof (when wee came against the Towne) the President sent Master Wiffin and Ma- hurt. fter Coe, a shoare to discouer and make way for his intended project. But they found that those damned Dutchmen had caused Pombatan to abandon his new house, and Werawecomoco, and to carrie away all his Corne and provision; and the people they found by their meanes so ill affected, that had they not flood well voon their guard, they had hardly escaped with their liues. So the Prefident finding his intention thus frustrated, and that there was nothing now to bee had, and therefore an vnfit time to reuenge their abufes, held on the course for lames Towne: wee having in this journey (for five and twentie pound of Copper, fiftie pound of Iron and Beades) kept fortie men fixe weekes, and daily feilted with Bread, Corne, Flesh, Fish, and Fowle, euery man having for his reward (and in consideration of his commodities) a months promision (no trade being allowed but for the store) and wee delivered at lames Towne to the Worker the ships departed, all the provision of store (but that the President had gotten) How the Saua-was so rotten with the last Summers Raine, and eaten with Rats and Wormes, as the set became Hogges would fearcely eate it, yet it was the Souldiers Die:, till our returnes: fo that we found English. 60 nothing done, but victuall spent, and the most part of our Tooles, and a good part of our Armes Chap. To. conveyed to the Sausges. But now, calting up the flore, and finding sufficient till the next Harueft, the feare of starting was abandoned; and the Company divided into tennes, fifteenes, or as the busines required foure houres each day was spent in work, the rest in pastimes and merrie exercife. The Duccomens Conforts to closely still contaid Powder, Shot, Swords, and Tooles, that

Cape-Merchant two hundred feuentie nine bushels of Corne.

The Dutchmens plot to murder Cap.

emith taketh

1626

though wee could find the defect, we could not find by whom it was occasioned, till it was too late, All this time the Datchmen remayning with Powbatan, received ti em, inftructing the Samoes their vie. But their Conforts not following them as they expected (to know the cause. they fent Francis their companion (a front young fellow) diguised Sauage like) to the Glassethey tent transs then companies (the House Jowne) where was the randenoze for all their voluspected villany; fortie men they procured of Pombatan to lie in Ambulcadoe for Cantaine Smith, who no fooner heard of this Dutchman, but he lent to apprehend him, who found he was gone, yet to crolle his returne to Powbatan, Captaine Smith prefently dispatched twenty shoe after him, and then returning but from the Glaffe-house alone, he incountred the King of Passa. bergh, a most strong stout Sauage, whose pers wassons not being able to perswade him to his am. 10 bulh, feeing him only armed but with a Fauchion, attempted to haue shot him; but the President prevented his short by graphing with him, and the Sauage as well prevented him for drawing his Fauchion, and perforce bore him into the River to have drowned him; long they struggled in the water, from whence the King perceiving two of the Poles vpon the fands would have fled; but the President held him by the haire and throat till the Poles came in; then feeing how pittifully the poore Saluage begged his life, they conducted him prisoner to the Fort. The Dutchman ere long was also brought in, whose Villany, though all this time it was suspected, yet he fained such the King of Pathonish a formall excuse, that for want of Language, Winne had not rightly understood them, and for their dealings with Powhatan, that to faue their lives they were confirmed to accomodate his aims, of whom he extremely complained to have detained them perforce; and that hee made this efcape with the hazard of his life, and meant not to have returned, but only walked in the woods to gather Walnuts: yet for all this faire Tale (there was fo small appearance of truth) hee went by the heeles; the King also he put fetters; purposing to regaine the Dutehmen, by the fauing his life: the poore Sauage did his best, by his daily Messengers to Powhatan, but all returned that the Duchmen would not returne, neither did Powbatan itay them, and to bring them fiftie miles on their backes they were not able. Daily this Kings Wives, children, and people, came to vilit him with Presents, which he liberally bestowed to make his peace, much trust they had in the Presdents promife, but the King finding his Guard negligent (though fettered) yet escaped; Captaine Winnethinking to purfue him, found fuch troupes of Sauages to hinder his passages, as they exchanged many voltes of shot for flight of Arrowes. Captaine Smith hearing of this, in retur. 30 ning to the Fort tooke two Sauages Prifoners, the one called Kemps, the other Kinfock, the two most exact Villaines in the Countrey; with those, Captaine Winne and fifthe cholen men attempt ted that night to have regained the King, and revenged his injurie (and to had doue if he had followed his directions, or beene aduited by those two Villaines, that would have betrayed both their King and Kindred for a piece of Copper) but hee trifling away the night, the Sauagesthe next morning by the rifing of the Sunne, braued him to come afhore to fight, a good time both fides let flie at other, but we heard of no hurt, only they tooke two Canozes, burnt the Kings

The Sauages defire peace.

The Prefident fearing those brauadoes, would but incourage the Sauages, begunne himselfeto the his conclusions; whereby fixe or seuen Sauages were slaine, as many made Prisoners: burnt the bit of the conclusions whereby sixe or seuen Sauages were slaine, as many made Prisoners: burnt to the burnt of the conclusions whereby sixe or several s their Houses, tooke their Boats with all their filling weares, and planted them at lames Towns for his owne vie; and now relolued not to cease till hee had reuenged himselfe vpon all that had injured him, but in his journey passing by Pass abeigh towards Chickabamina, the Sauages did their best to draw him to their Ambuscadoes; but leeing him regardlesly passe their Countrey, all shewed themselues in their brauest manner, to try their valours; he could not but flie, and ere hee could land, the Sauages no fooner knew him, but they threw downe their Armes and defired Peace; their Orator was a ftout young man called Oceanindge, whose worthy Distourse deferent to be remembred; and this it was. Captaine Smith, my Master is bere present in this companie thinking it Captaine Winne, and not you; and of him be intended to have beene renenged, basing neuer offended him: if he have offended you in elegating your important ment to the contract of the have offended him: in escaping your imprisonment; the Fishes swimme, the Fowles sue, and the verie Benits structo escape the four and line; then blame not him being a man; he would entreate you remember , your being a prisoner, what paines hee tooke to save your life; if since hee hath iniured you, hee was compelled to it; but how focuers you have revenged it with our too great loffe; we perceive and well know you intend to destroy vs, that are here to intreat and delire your friendship, and to enioy our honses and plant our fields, of whose fruit you shall participate, otherwise you will baue the worst by our absence, for we can plant any where, though with more labour, and we know you cannot line if you want our Haruest, and that reliefe we bring you; if you promise us peace we will believe you, if you proceed in renewee, we will abandon the Counyou properly superse we mususester you give the present reases, we will around not the you check teamns the President promised them peace, till shey did vis inture, you can dition they should bring in protein, do all departed good friends, and so continued till Smith left?

Ocanindze his

A Sautge fmothered at Imnes Towne, and was reco-

Arriving at lames Towne, complaint was made to the Prefident that the Chickahaminos, who all this while continued Trade, and feemed our friends by colour thereof were the only Theenes, and among ft other things, a Piffoll being stolne, and the Theife fled, there was apprehended two proper young fellowes that were brothers, knowne to be his confederates. Now to regaine this Pufoll the one we imprisoned, the other was fent to returne againe within twelve houres, or his brother to be hanged, yet the President pittying the poore naked Sauage in the dungson tent him victuall and fome Char-cole for fire; ere midnight his brother returned with the Piftoll, but the Charenter Sauge in the dungeon was so smothered with the smoake hee had made, and so pittiously burnt, smoke an ythat he found him dead, the other most lamentably bewailed his death, and brake forth in fach feal murtherer bitter agonies, that the Prefident (to quiet him) told him that if hereafter they would not iteale. he would make him aliue againe, but little thought he could be recoursed, yet (we doing our best islent on. with Aquanita and Vineger) it pleased God to restore him againe to life, but so drunke and afto frighted that he seemed lunaticke, not vnderstanding any thing he spoke or heard, the which as much grieued and termented the other, as before to fee him dead; of which maladie (vpon pro- Perhaps the mife of their good behaujour afterward) the President promised to recouer him, and so caused lesuites was mile of their good behaviour afterward the Prendent promited to leoute him? and to cancel have (or fides him to be laid by a fire to fleepe, who in the morning (having well flept) had recovered his permeter lies) feed lenges: and then being dreffed of his burning, and each a piece of Copper given them, they barched move went away fo well contented, that this was spread among stall the Sauages for a Miracle, that of their indian Captaine Smith could make a man aline that is dead. Thefe and many other fuch prette accidents. Miracles from fo amazed and affrighted both Powbaran and all his people that from all parts with prefents as validely egs they defired peace, returning many stolne things which wee neither demanded nor thought of. And after that, those that were taken stealing (both Powhatar and his people) hath fent them strie and op-20 backe to James Towne to receive their punishment, and all the Countrie became absolutely as portunite.

CHAP.4. Sauage mothered. Powhatan affrighted, Store of Sturgeon.

free for vs, as for themselues.

Now wee so quietly followed our businesse, that in three moneths wee made three or source done in three last of Pitch and Tarre, and Sope-ashes, produced a triall of Glasse, made a Well in the moneths ha-Fortof excellent iweet water (which till then was wanting) built fome twenty houses, reco- ung victuall. nered our Church, proteiled Nets and wares for filhing (and to ftop the diforders of our diforder- The ftore dely theeues and the Sauages) built a Blocke-house in the necke of our He, kept by a garrison to entertaine the Sauages trade, and none to palle nor repalle, Sanage, nor Christian, with out the Prefidents order; thirty or forty acres of ground we digged, and planted; of three Sowes in one of fuch natural

30 years increased fixty and odde Pigges, and neers flue hundred Chickens brought vp themselves fruits as the (without having any meate given them) but the Hogges were transported to Hogge Ile, where Countrie afalto we built a Blocke-house with a Garrison, to give vs notice of any shipping, and for their exercise they made Clap-boord, Wainscot, and cut downe Trees against the ships comming. Wee built also a Fore for a retreat, neere a consenient River vpon a high commanding Hill, very hard to be a laulted, and easie to be defended; but ere it was halfe finished, this defect caused a stay; in fearching our Casked Corne, wee found it halfe rotten, the rest so consumed with the many thousand Rattes (increased first from the ships) that wee knew not how to keepe that little wee Rat-plague had. This did drive vsall to our wits end, for there was nothing in the Countrey but what Nature affoorded, vntill this time Keings and Taffere, were fettered Prisoners , and daily wrought, 40 and taught vs how to order and plant our fields. Whom now (for want of victuall) we fet at libertie, but fo well were they vied, that they little defired it; and to expresse their loues, for fixteene dayes continuance, the Countrey brought vs (when leaft) one hundred a day of Squirrils, Turkeyes, Deare, and other wilde Beafts; but this want of Corne occasioned the end of all our workes, it beeing worke sufficient to prouide victuall, fixtie or eightie with Ensigne Laxon, were fent downe the River to live voon Oysters, and twentie with Lieutenant Percie to try for filhing at Point Comfort, but in fixe weekes, they would not agree once to cast out their Net. Master West with as many went up to the Falls, but nothing could be found but a few Berries and Acornes; of that in the store every one had their equal proportion. Till this Thepaines of prefent (by the hazard and endeauour of fome thirtie or fortie) this whole number had ever bin so, fed 150.

50 fed. We had more Sturgeon then could be denoured by Dogge and Man; of which the induftrious, by drying and pownding, mingled with Cauiare, Sorrell, and other wholrome hearbs, would make Bread and Meate; others would gather as much Tockwoneh Roots in a day, as would make them Bread a Weeke, to that of those wilde Fruites, Fish, and Berries, thefe lived very well (in regard of fuch a Diet) but fuch was the most firange condition of some Basingle of one hundred and fiftie, that had they not beene forced to gather and prepare their victual they ideactic, would all haue started, and haue eaten one another: of those wilde fruites the Sauages often brought vs: and for that the President would not folish the vnreasonable desire of those distracted lubberly Gluttons to fell, not only our Kettles, Howes, Tooles, and Iron, nay Swords, Peeces, 60 and the very Ordnance, and Houses (might they have prevailed but to have beene but idle) for those Sauage fruites they would have imparted all to the Sauages, especially for one basket of Corne they heard of, to bee at Powbatans, fiftie miles from our Fort, though hee brought neere halfe of it to fatisfie their humours , yet to have had the other Their delite: halfe, they would have fold their foules (though not fisficient to have kept them a Weeke) defiroy that thousands were their exclamations, suggestions, and deuises, to force him to those base sclues, Ececoco

Powhatan d. G. reth peace.

The Profidents Speech to the Drones.

Inventions, to have made it an occasion to abandon the Countrey. Want perforce comfravned him to indure their exclayming follies till hee found out the Author, one Dree a most craftie Knaue, and his ancient maligner, whome hee worthily punished, and with the reit her argued the case in this manner. Fellow Souldiers, I did little thinke any fo fallo to report, or fo many fo fimple to bee persuaded, that I either intend to fixtue you, or that Powhatan (at this prefent) hath Corne for himselfe, much leffe for you; or that I would not have it, if I know where it were to be had. Neither did I thinke any so malicious as now I see a great many. set it shall not fo much passionate mee, but I will doe my best for my worst maligner. But dreame no lower of this vaine hope from Powhatan, nor that I will longer forbeare to force you from your idlenelle, and punily you if you raile, you cannot denie but that by the baz ard of my life, many a time I have 10 Gined yours, when, might your owne wills have prenailed, you would have starned, and will doe still metaber I will or no. But I protest by that God that made me, since necissitie halb not power to force you to gather for your seluct stools simile the Earth doth yeeld, you shall not only gather for your seluct, but for those that are sicke: as jet I never had more from the flore then the worst of you; and all me E. glifh extraordinary promifion that I have, you fhall fee me denide among the ficke. And thu Sanage trulh, you fo [cornfully repine at, being put in your mouthes your stomacks can digest it, and therefore I will take a course you shall provide it. The sicke shall not starme, but equally share of all our labours, and every one that gathereth not every day as much I doe, the next day hall be fet beyond the Ruer. and for ener be banshed from the Fort, and line there or flarne. This order many mur nured, was very cruell, but it caused the most part to well bestirre 20

Bu: 7 of 200. died in two moneths.

The Sauages returneour Fugitiues.

themselves, that of two hundred men (except they were drowned) there died not past leven or eight. As for Captaine Winne, and Mafter Ley, they died ere this want happened . and thereft died not for want of fuch as preferued the reit. Many were billitted among the Sausges, whereby we knew all their pallages, fields, and habitations, how to gather and vie their fruts, as well as themselves. So well those poore Sauages vied vs (that were thus Billited) as divers of the Souldiers ranne away, to learch Kemps our old prifoner. Glad was this Sauage to have fuch an occation to teffine his love, for infleed of entertayning them, and fuch things as they had ftolne with all the great offers and promifes they made them, to reuenge their injuries voon Captaine Smith. First hee made himselfe sport in shewing his Countrimen (by them) how hee was vied: feeding them with this Law, Who would not worke must not eate, till they were neere flarned, continually threatning to beate them to death, neither could they get from him. till perforce he brought them to our Captaine, that so we contented him, and punished them : as many others that intended also to have followed them, were rather contented to labour at home, then adventure to live idle among the Sauages (of whom there was more hope to make better Christians and good subjects, then the one halfe of those that counterfeited themselves both) For so affraid were all those Kings and the better fort of their people, to displease vs. that some of the baser fort that wee haue extreamely hurt and punished for their villanies. would hire vs that wee should not tell it to their Kings or Countrimen, who would also repunih them, and yet returne them to James Towne to content the President, by that testimonie

Search for them fent by Sir W. Rawlew. Pawhatia confeffed that hee had bin at the murther of that Colon e: and thewed to Cap. Smith à Musker barrell and a braffe Morter, and certaine pecces of Iron wh ch had bin prouds.

Mafter Sicklemore well returned from Chamonock, but found little hope and leffe certaintie of them which had beene left by Sir Walter Rawley. So that Nathaniell Powell and Anas Todkill, were also, by the Quiyough quohanochs, conducted to the Mangonges to fearch them there. But nothing could we learne but they were all dead. This honest, proper, good promise-keeping King, of all the rest did ever best affect vs, and though to his falle Gods hee was yet very zealous, yet he would confess, our God as much exceeded his, as our Guns did his Bow and Arrowes, often jending our President many Presents to pray to his God for rain, or his corn would pensh, for his Gods were angrie all this time. To reclaime the Dutchmen, and one Bentley another Fugitive, we imployed one William Volda, (a Switzer by birth) with pardons and promifes to regain them. Little we then suipected this double villanie of any villany, who plainly taught vs, in the most trust 50 was the greatest Treason. For this wicked Hypocrite, by the freming have hee bore to the lewd condition of his curfed Countrimen, having this opportunitie by his imployment to regaine them, conveighed them every thing they defired to effect their project to deftroy the Colonie. With much denotion they expected the Spaniard, to whom they intended to have done good feruice. But to begin with the first opportunitie, they feeing necessitie thus inforced vs to disperse our selves; importuned Powhatan to lend them but his forces, and they would not only defrey our Hogges, fire our Towne, and betray our Pinnasse; but bring to his seruice and subjection the most part of our companies. With this plot they had acquainted many discontents, and many were agreed to their deuillish practite. But one Thomas Donese and Thomas Mallard (whose Chriftian hearts much relenting at such an vnchriftian act) voluntarily reneated it to Captaine Smith: 63 who did his best it might be conceased, perswading Donese and Mallard to proceed in the confederacie : only to bring the irreclamable Dutchmen, and inconftant Sauages in fuch a manner amongit his Ambuscadoes, as hee had prepared, as not many of them thould ever have returned from out our Peninfula. B.st

CHAP. A. Sauages offer of amitie. Mutinie, Dreach of beide.

But this brute comming to the cares of the impatient multitude, they fo importuned the President to cut off those Dutchmen, as among it many that offered to cut their throats before the Two Geniles face of Powhatan, Mafter Wiffin and lefra Abbot were fene to Habbe or Thoote them; but thefe men tento kil Dutchmen made fuch excuses accusing Wolder whom they supposed had reusaled their project, them. as Abbet would not, yet Wiffs would, perceiving it but deceit. The King understanding of this their imployment, fent prefently his Mellengers to Captaine Smith; to fignifie it was not his fault to detayne them , nor hinder his men from executing his command, nordid hee nor would he mayntaine them, or any to occasion his displeasure. But ere this businesse was brought to a point, God having feene our milery fufficient, fent in Capraine Argalto fish for Sturgeon with to a flup well furnished with Wine and Bisket, which though it was not fent vs, such were our occasions we tooke it at a price, but left him sufficient to returne for England, still dislembling Valdo his villany, but certainly be had not escaped had the President continued. Notwithflandure this Valdo comming for England, presending to the Company what rich Mynes Gap. Sai: be had found, for which he was verie much funomed, remarded and respected, but returning with the Lord La-ware, be could not performe any thing hee promised, and thus also bearing coor ened them all. died both basely and miserably. For the rest of his Consorts upon the arrivall of the Lord La-ware, whom they highly recommended to Powhatan, promising what great wonders they would worke with his Lordbip, would be give them leave to goe to him, but when he faw they would be gone, be replied, as you would have betrayed Captaine Smith to me, so will you me to this Lord, for you that would be so false to 20 bim, cannot be true to me, fo canfed his men to beat out their braines, as the Sanages reported to diners that came from thence.

TO redreffe those larres and ill proceedings, the Councell in England altered the government The arrival of and devolved the authoritie to the Lord De-la. ware. Who for his Deputie, sent Sir Thomas the third up-Gales, and Sir George Somers, with nine thips and fine hundred perfons : they fet faile from Eng. ply. Chap. 12. land in May 1609. a imali Catch perished at Sea in a Herycano. The Admirall, with 150. The alteration land in May 1609, a Imali Caten perined at Sea in a Herreaus. The Admirall, with 150, of the goutte-men, with the two Knights, and their new Commission, their Bils of loading with all manner, ment. of directions, and the most part of their promition arrived not. With the other feuen (as Cap- The loffe of taines) arrived Ratlife (whole right name was Sickelmore) Martin, and Archer. Who as they had Virginia, so beene troublesome at Sea, began againe to marre all ashore. For though, as is faid, they were formerly deposed and sent for England : yet now returning againe, graced by the title of Captaines of the passengers, seeing the Almirall wanting, and great probabilitie of her losse : strongthned themselves with those new Companies, so railing and exclayming against Captaine Smith, that they mortally hated him , ere euer they faw aim. Who understanding by his Scowts, the arriwall of fuch a fleet (little dreaming of any such supply) supposing them Spaniards, he so determined and ordered his affaires, as we little feared their arruall; nor the fucceffe of our incounter, nor were the Sauages any way negligent or vn willing, to aide and offit vs with their best power. had it so beene, we had beene happy. For we would not have trusted them but as our foes, whereas receiving those as our Countrimen and friends, they did their best to murder our President, to offer to fight 40 furprize the store, the Fort, and our Lodgings, to vsurpe the government, and make vs all their vnderour coferuants and flaues to our owne merit. To a thouland mischiefes those lewd Captaines led this lours, lewd company, wherein were many vnruly Gallants packed thether by their friends to escape Multiples ill Destinies, and those would dispose and determine of the government, sometimes one, the next day another, to day the old Commission, to morrow the new, the next day by neither. In fine, they would rule all orrune all; yet in Charitie wee must endure them thus to destroy vs, or by correcting their follies, have brought the Worlds centure voon vs to have beene guiltie of their blouds. Happie had we beene had they neuer arrived; and wee for ever abandoned, and (as wee were) left to our fortunes, for on Earth was neuer more confusion, or milery, then their facti-

The President seeing the desire those Braues had to rule, seeing how his authoritie was so vn- The planting so expectedly changed, would willingly have left all and returned for England, but feeing there was Manjamund, small hope this new Commission would arrive, longer hee would not suffer those factious spirits to proceed. It would be too tedious, too strange, and almost incredible, should I particularly relace the infinite dangers, plots, and practifes, heedaily escaped amongst this factious crue, the shiefe whereof hee quickly laid by the heeles, till his leafure better ferued to doe them Inflice; and to take away all occasions of further mitchiefe, Master Percie had his request granted to returne for England, and Mafter West with one hundred and twentie went to plant at the Falls. Marin wath neere as many to Nanfamund, with their due proportions of all provisions, accor. A plantation thing to their numbers.

Now the Prefidents yeere being neere expired, he made Marin Prefident, who knowing his owne insufficieticie, and the Companies scorne and conceit of his vinworthinesse, within three houres refigued it agains to Captaine Smith, and at Nanfamund thus proceeded. The people being Contributors vied him kindly : yet fuch was his jealous feare, and cowardize in the midft of peace with the his mirth, he did furprize this poore naked King, with his Monuments, Houses, and the He hee Saurges.

Ecccec 2

Mutinics.

inhabited; and there fortified himfelfe, but so apparantly diffracted with feare, as imboldned the Sauages to assault him, kill his men, redeeme their King, gather and carrie away more then one thouland bulhels of Corne, he not once daring to intercept them. But fent to the Fresident then at the Falls for thirtie good shot, which from lames Towne immediatly were fenthim, but he fo well imployed them, as they did init nothing, but returned, complayning of his childifhneffe, that with them fled from his company, and fo left them to their fortunes.

Mafter Woft having feated his men at the Falls, prefently returned to result lames Towne, the Prefident met him by the way as hee followed him to the Falls : where hee found this Company inconfiderately feated, in a place not only subject to the Rivers inundation, but round invironed with many intollerable inconveniences. For remedy whereof, hee fent prefently to Powlater, 14 to fell him the place called Powbatan, promifing to defend him againft the Monacans, and these should be his conditions (with his people) to refigne him the Fort and Houses, and all that Countrey for a proportion of Copper : that all stealing offenders should bee sent him, there to receive their punishment : that every House as a custome should pay him a bushell of Corne for an inch fquare of Copper, and a proportion of Poeones as a yeerely Tribute to King Iames, for their protection as a dutie : what elle they could spare to barter at their beft discretion.

But both this excellent place and those good conditions did those furies refuse, contemning both him, his kinde care and authoritie, the worst they could to shew their spight, they did. I doe more then wonder to thinke how only wish five men, hee either durit, or would seventure as he did (knowing how greedie they were of his bloud) to land amongst them, and commit to Fine suppresse imprisonment the greatest spirits among st them, till by their multitudes being one bundred and swentie, they forced him to retire, yet in that retreat he surprized one of the Boats, wherewith he returned to their ship, wherein was their prouisions, which also he tooke. And well it chanced he found the Mariners so tractable and constant, or there had beene small possibilitie hee had eyer escaped. Notwithstanding there were many of the best, I meane, of the most worthy in judgement, reason or experience, that from their first landing hearing the generall good report of his old Souldiers, and feeing with their eyes his actions to well mannaged with discretion, as Captaine Wood, Captaine Web, Captaine Moone, Captaine Phitz-lames, Mafter Partridge, Ma-Rer White, Master Powell, and divers others; when they perceived the malice and condition of

Rascliffe, Marin, and Archer, left their factions; and euer refted his faithfull friend : But the 30 worst was, the poore Sauages that daily brought in their contribution to the President, that diforderly company to termented those poore naked foules, by stealing their Corne, robbing their peace with the Gardens, beating them, breaking their Houles, and keeping some prisoners; that they daily Sauages at the complayned to Captaine Smith, hee had brought them for Protectors worfe enemies then the Monacans themselves, which though till then (for his love) they had indured : they defired pardon, if hereafter they defended themselues, fince hee would not correct them, as they had long expected he would : so much they importuned him to punish their missemeanours as they offered (if he would conduct them) to fight for him against them. But having spent nine dayes in feeking to reclaime them, thewing them how much they did abuse them telues, with their great gilded hopes, of Seas, Mynes, Commodities, or Victories they fo madly conceived. Then (leeing 40 nothing would preuaile with them) hee fet faile for lamer Towne: now no fooner was the thip under faile but the Sausges affaulted those one hundred and twentie in their Fort, finding some An affault by stragling abroad in the Woods they flue many, and so affrighted the rest, as their prisoners escathe Sauages. ped, and they scarce retyred, with the Swords and Clokes, of these they had slaine. But ere we had failed a league our ship grounding, gaue vs once more libertie to summon them to a parlie Where we found them all io strangely amazed with this poore simple assault, as they submitted themselves vpon any tearmes to the Presidents mercy. Who presently put by the heclesia or feuen of the chiefe offenders, the rest he seated gallantly at Powhatan, in their Sauage Fortthey built and prettiy fortified with Poles and Barkes of Trees sufficient to have defended them from all their Sauages in Unginia, dry Houles for Lodgings three hundred Acres of ground readie to 50 plant, and no place to strong, so pleasant and delightfull in Virginia, for which wee called it None-such. The Sauges also he presently appealed; redelivering to every one their former losfes. Thus all were friends, new Officers appointed to command, and the President agains ready The planting of Nonfueb. to depart. But at that inftant arrived Mafter VVeil , whose good nature with the perswasions New prace and compassion of these mutinous priloners was so much abused, that to regaine their old shops concluded. new turmoyles arose. For the rest being possessed of all their Victuall, Munition, and every thing, they grow to that height in their former factions, as there the President left them to their Fortunes, they returning againe to the open Aire at VVeft Fort, abandoning Non-Inch, and hee to lames Towne with his best Expedition, but this happened him in that

Sleeping in his Boat (for the Ship was returned two dayes before) accidentally, one fired his Powder-bag, which tore his flesh from his bodie and thighes, nine or ten inches square in a most pittifull manner : but to quench the tormeating fire, frying him in his clothes, hee lesped ouerredunto the deepe River, where ere they could recover him hee was neere drowned. In this CHAP.4. Government Vsurped. Pocahontas kindnesse to Captane Smith.

estate, without either Chirurgion, or Chirurgerie he was to goe neere one hundred miles. Arriting at Iames Towne, causing all things to be prepared for Peace or Warres to obtaine proussion. whilest those things were prouiding, Martin, Ratcliffe, and Archer, being to have their trialls. their guiltie consciences fearing a just reward for their deserts, seeing the President vinable to fland, and neere bereft of his fentes by reason of his torment, they had plotted to have murdered him in his bed. But his heart did faile him that should have given fire to that mercilesse Pistoll. So, not finding that course to be the best, they joyned together to vsurpe the gouernment, thereby to escape their punishment, and excuse themselves by accusing him. The President had notice of their projects: the which to withstand, though his old Souldiers importuned him, but to permit them to take

10 off their heads that would refift his command, yet he would not permit them : but feut for the Masters of The wouldness. Bips, and tooke order with them for his returne for England. Seeing their was neither Chirurgion, nor ment viured Chururgery in the Fort to cure his hurt, and the ships to depart the next day, his Commission to be suppresfed hee knew not why, bimselfe and Souldiers to bee rewarded he knew not bow, and a new Commillion granted they knew not to whom, the which so disabled that authoritie he had, as made them presume so oft to those mutinies and factions as they did. Besides, so grienous was his wounds, and so cruell his torment. few expected be could lime, nor was he able to follow his businesse to regaine what they had wit, suppresse those factions, and range the Countries for promision as be intended, and well be knew those affaires his owne actions and presence was as requisite as his experience, and directions, which now could not be. hee went presently about d, resoluting there to appoint them governours, and to take order for the mutiners and

20 their confederates. Who feeing him gone, persmaded Master Perfie to stay and be their President, and within leffe then an hour was this mutation begun & concluded. For when the Company under food Smith within tells total an about the rest in Armes called Presidents and Councellors, divers began to faune on The earlies those new Commanders, that new bent all their wits to get him resigne them his Commission, who after why Smith lest many falt and bitter repulses, that their confusion should not bee attributed to him, for leaving the Countie try without gonernment and authoritie; having taken order to be free from danger of their malice; and his Combe was not unwilling they should steale it from him, but never consented to deliver it to any.

Leauing vs thus, with three Ships, feuen Boats, commodities readie to trade, the Haruest newly gathered, ten weekes prouision in the store, foure hundred nintie and odde persons, foure and C.Smithlest in twentie Peeces of Ordnance, three hundred Muskets, Snaphanches, and fire-lockes, Shot, Pow- Prouifions lets 30 der and match sufficient, Curats, Pikes, Swords, and Morions more then men : the Sauages their language and habitations well knowne to one hundred well trained and expert Souldiers : Neta for Fishing, Tooles of all forts to worke, Apparell to supply our wants, fixe Mares, and a Horse. fine or fixe hundred Swine, as many Hennes and Chickens; fome Goates, fome Sheepe, what was brought or bred there remained : but they regarded nothing but from hand to mouth, to confume what wee had, tooke care for nothing but to perfit fome colourable complaints against Captaine Smith, for effecting whereof, three weekes longer they staied the fixe Ships till they could produce them. That time and charge might much better have beene spent; but it suted well Their comcould produce them. That time and charge might much determine the plaints and with the rest of their discretions. Now all these which Smith had either whipped, punished, or proofe against and proofe agai any way difered, had free power and libertie to fay or sweare any thing, and from a whole him. 40 armefull of their examination, this was concluded.

The Musiners at The Falls, complained be cansed the Sanages to assault them, for that he would not revenge their loffe, they being but one bundred and twentie, and hee five men and himfelfe, and this they proued by the oath of one hee had oft whipped for periury and pilfering. The Dutch-men that hee had appointed to be flab d for their treacheries, fwere be fent to poifon them with Rats-bane. The prudent Councell , that he would not submit himselse to their stolne authoritie. Coe and Dyes, that should have murdered him, were highly preferred for swearing, they beard one say, he heard Pow hatan say, That bee beard a man fay: if the King would not fend that Corne bee bad, bee Sould not long enity his Copper Crowne, nor shofe Robes bee had fent bim : yet those also swore be might have had Corne for Tooles, but would not. The truth was, Smith bad no such Engines as the King demanded, nor Powhatan any 50 Corne. Tet this argued be would starue them. Others complained bee would not les them rest in the Fort (to flarue) but forced them to the Oyster Bankes to line or starne, as hee lined himselfe. For though hee had of his owne prinate provisions fent from England , sufficient : yet hee gave it all away to the weake and ficke, caufing the most untoward (by doing as he did) to gather their food from the unknowne parts of the Riners and Woods, that they lined (though hardly) that otherwayes would have starued, ere they would have left their beds, or at the most the fight of lames Towne to have got their owne victuall. Some propheticall first calculated he had the Sauages in such subjection, be would have made himselfe a King, by marrying Pocahontas, Powhatans daughter. It is true, she was the very nonparell of his Kingdome, Pocahontal and at most not past thirteene or fourteene yeeres of age. Very oft she came to our Fort, with what shee Powhatens could get for Captaine Smith, that ener loued and vied all the Country well , but her especially bee ener daughter her much respected : and see so well required it, that when her father intended to have surprised him, she by C. Smile. flealth in the darke night came through the wild Woods and told him of it. But her marriage could no way baue entitled him by any right to the Kingdome, nor was it ener suspected be had ener such a thought, or more regarded her, or any of them, then in bonest reason and discretion he might. If he would be might

1731

Theft ite of the Colony when bane married ber, or have done what him listed. For there was none that could have bindred his deter-Ecccece 3

mination. Some that knew not any thing to say, the Councell instructed, and admifed what to sweare. So diligent they were in this businesse, that what any could remember, he had ener done, or said in mirth, ar pallion, by fome circumstantialloath, it was applied to their fittest vie , yet not past eight or nine could fan much, and that nothing but circumstances, which all men did know was most false and untrue. Many on their Passes, by promising in England to say much against him. Instead of accusing him. I have never heard any give him a better report, then many of those witnesses themselves that were fent only home to tellifie against him. Richard Pots, W. P. The day before the Ships departed, C. Davis arrived in a small Pinnace, with some fixteene proper men more: to those were added a company from Iames Towne, vnder the command of

The planting at Point Com-

proper men mote to the Point Comfort. Marin, and Master West having lost their Boats, to and neere halfe their men amongst the Sauages, were returned to lames Towne. For the Sauages no sooner vnderstood of Captaine Smith: loffe, but they all revolted, and did murder and soule all they could encounter. Now were weeall constrained to line onely of that which Smith had onely for his owne company, for the rest had confirmed their propertions. And now have wee twentie Prefidents, with all their appurtenances, for Mafter Perfie was fo ficke he could not goe nor stand. But ere all was confumed, Master West, and Rathsfe, each with a Pinnace, and thirtie or fortie men well appointed, sought abroad to trade, and vpon confidence of Pombatan, Rathfie and his men were flaine, onely leffery Shortridge escaped, and Pochahuntas the Kings dangher laned a bor, called Henry Spelman , who lined many peeres after by ber meanes amongst the Patawo mekes. Powhatan fill as bee found meanes, cut off their Boats and denied them trade. And Mafter well fin ling little better successe, set faile for England. Now we all found the want of Captaine Smith, yea his greatest maligners could then curse his losse. Now for come, provision, and contribution from the Saueges; wee had nothing but mortall wounds with Clubs and Arrowes. As for our Hogs, Goats, Sheepe, Horfe, or what lived, our Commanders and Officers did daily confume them : tome fmall proportions (fometimes) wee tafted till all was denouted, then Swords, Arrowes, Peeces, or any thing we traded to the Sauages, whole bloudy fingers were fo imbrued in our blouds, that what by their crueltie, our Gouernours indifcretion, and the loffe of our Ships : Or fine hundred within fixe moneths, after there remained not any more then fixtie most milerable and poore creatures. It were to vild to fay what wee endured. Life was now preferred by Roots, Herbs, Acomes, Waleuts, Berries, now and then a little Eth, and Starch by fueb as bad an, A 30 Sauage flaine and huried, is faid to have beene taken up by the poorer and esten : which is reported also

The occasion of these miseries was onely our owne, for want of prouidence, industrie, and gotternment, and not the barrennesse and desect of the Countrey, as is generally supposed, fortill then in three yeeres (for the numbers were landed vs) wee had neuer landed fufficient provision Wichednes of for fixe moneths, fuch a glutton is the Sea, and fuch good fellowes the Mariners, wee as little tafied of those great proportions for their prouisions, as they of our miseries, that notwithstanding improvidences ever Iwayd and overruled the businesse : though weedid live as is said, three yeeres chiefly of what this good Countrey naturally affordeth ; yet now had wee beene in Paradice it felfe (with 40 those Governours) it would not have beene much better with vs, yet were there some amongst vs, who had they had the gouernment, would furely have kept vs from those extreamities of miferies, that in ten dayes more would have supplanted veall by death. Thus you fee the miferable ends of those viarping Commanders, for all their greatnesse, Oratory, and long being there, and what is the want of owne man in Authoritie, that is houeft and valiant, discreet, and industrious; and how easily that may also be blemished, by ambitious indiscretion, or what did hinder them now in his absence, they had not done much better then bee, having all these aduantages.

to have bapned to others of their owne. A report was that one flew bis wife, and had eaten part of her: this is by others denied, the murther acknowledged, and be infly executed for that parricide.

Sir Tho. Gates with 150. lames Towne abandoned.

Theartiuallof But God that would not it should bee unplanted, sent Sir Thomas Gates, and Sir George Summers , with one hundred and fiftie men , most happily preserved by the Bermudas to preserve vs. But when those noble Knights did see our miseries (being strangers in the Countrey) and could 50 understand no more of the cause but by their consecture of our clamours and complaints, of accufing or excusing one another, they imbarked vs with themselves, with the best meanes they could, and abandoning lames Towne, fet faile for England.

The arrivall of

But yet God would not so haue it , for ere wee left the River ; wee met the Lord de-la-wate, then gouernour of the Countrey, with three Ships exceeding well furnished with all necessaries ficting, who againe returned them to the abandoned I ames Towne, the ninth of Iune, 1610. 20companied with Sir Ferdinande Wainman, and divers other Gentlemen of fort. Sir George Someter, and Captaine Argall he presently dispatcheth to repaire to the Bermuda, to furnish them with prouision : Sir Thomas Gates for England to helpe for ward their supplies : himselfe neglected not the best was in his power for the furtherance of the businesse, and regaining what was lost. But 60 euen in the beginning of his proceedings, his Lordship had such an incounter, that after eight Two fhips fent months fickneffe, he was forced to faue his life, by his returne for England.

to the Bermu-

In this time Argall, not finding the Bermadas , having loft Sir George Semers at lea, fell on the coast of Sagadabock, where refreshing himselfe, he found a convenient hilling for Cod. With a taste CHAP. S. Sauages kind Dage; Crost by extraordinary windes.

whereof he returned to lames Towne, from whence the Lord De-la-ware fent him to trade in the River or Patawomeck, where finding an English boy those people had preserved from the furv of Powbatas, by his acquaintance had fuch good viage of those kind Sauages, that they fraughted his Ship with Corne, wherewith he returned to James Towne, and fo for England with the Lord Gouernour; yet before his returne, the adventurers had fent Sir Thomas Dale with three Ships. The arrivalos men and cattell, and all other provisions necessarie for a yeere, all which arrived the tenth of Sir. The Dale, , May, 1611.

Againe, to second him with all possible expedition there was prepared for Sir Thomas Gates, fixe tall Ships with three hundred men, and one hundred Kine, with other cattell, with munition, and all manner of prouision could be thought needfull, and they arrived about the first of Auguft next after fafely at lames Towne.

Sir Goorge Somers all this time was supposed loft : but thus it hapned, miffing the Barmudas, Sir George So. hee fell also as did Argall with Sagadabeck, where being refreshed, would not content himselfe mers arrivall at with that repulle, but returned agains in the fearch, and there fafely arrived. But overtoyling and dieth. himselse on a surfet died. And in this Cedar Ship built by his owne directions, and partly with his owne hands, that had not in her any Iron, but onely one bolt in her Keele, yet well endured thus toffed to and seaine in this mightie Ocean, till with his dead bodie the arrived in England, and at Whitchareh in Dorfetshire, his body by his friends was honourably buried, with mane vo- His heart and lies of shot, and the rites of a Souldier, &c.

But thus much may ferue at the argument of the diffenries fellowing, and at the Prologue to the Vir buried in Sumginian Scene, where we will first produce M. Archer, after whose succinit narration, M. Strachies co. mer Ilands, a pious discourse shall feast you with the linely expression of others miseries, and Barmudas bappy discours to them comin Rhetorickes Full fea and spring tide.

municated.

CHAP. V.

A Letter of M. GABRIEL ARCHAR, touching the Voyage of the Fleet of Ships. which arrived at Virginia, without Sir THO. GATES, and Sir GEORGE SYMMERS, 1609.

Rom Woolwich the fifteenth of May, 1609, fementh faile weyed anchor, and came to Pimmouth the twentieth days, where Sir George Somers, with two final Vessells, conforted with us. Here we tooke into the Bleffing (being the flip wherein I went) fixe Mares and two Horfes; and the Fleet layed in forme necessaries belonging to the attion : In which bufinesse we spent time till the second of lune. And then wee set sayle to Sea, but croft by South-west winder, we put in to Faulemouth, and there staying till the eight 40 of lune, me then gate out. Our Courfe was commanded to leane the Canaries one hundred leagues to the appointed Eastward at least, and to store away directly for Virginia, without touching at the West Indies, except Course the Fleet Should chance to be Separated, then they were to repaire to the Bermuda, there to stay fenen dayes in expellation of the Admirall; and if they found him not, then to take their course to Virginia.

Now thus it happened; about fixe dayer after we loft the fight of England, one of Sir George So. The Ships, and mers Pinnaffes left our company, and (as I take it) bare up for England ; the reft of the first, viz. The chiefe men in Sea Aduenture Admiral mberein was Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Somer, and Captaine Newport : The Diamond Vice-admirall, wherein was Captaine Ratcliffe, and Captaine King. The Falcon Reme-admirall, in which was Captaine Martin, and Master Nellion : The Bleffing , wherein I and Captaine Adams went : The Vnitie, wherein Captaine Wood, and Master Pett were. The Lion. wherein Captaine Webb remained : And the Swallow of Sir George Somers, in which Captaine 40 Moone, and Master Somer went. In the Catch went one Matthew Fitch Master : and in the Boat of Sir George Somers, called the Virginia, which was built in the North Colony, went one Captains Davies, and one Master Davies. These were the Captatines and Masters of our Fleet.

We ran a Southerly course fron the Tropicke of Cancer, where having the Sun within fixe or seuen degrees right over our head in luly, we bore away West; so that by the ferment heat and loomes breezes, Sicknesse and many of our men fell field of the Calenture, and out of two figs was throwne over-board thirtie two per- mortalities at fant. The Vicealmitall was land to have the planes in here thus in the Rhelling we had not any felds of his Sea. sons. The Viceadmirall was faid to have the plague in her; but in the Bleffing we had not any sicke, albeit we had twenty women and children.

Vpon Saint lames day, bemo about one hundred and fiftie leagues distant from the Weft Indies, in 60 croffing the Gulfe of Bahoma, there hapned a most terrible and venement storme, which was a taile of the Terrible ter-West Indian Horacano; this tempest seperated all our Fleet one from another, and it was so violent that pett. men could scarce stand upon the Deckes, neither could any man beare another speake, being thus divided. enery man steered bis owne course, and as it fell out about fine or fixe dayes after the storme ceased (which endure fortie foure boures in extremitie.) The Lion first, and after the Falcon and the Vnitie, got fight of our Shippe, and so we lay a way directly for Virginia, finding neither current nor winde opposite. at Note. Folicite- some bane reported, to the great charge of our Counsell and Aduenturers. The Vnicy man fore distressed nome nume reported, when the second product of fewenty land men, five had not ten found, and all her Sea men were downe. but onely the Master and his Boy, with one poore faster, but we relieved them, and we four e consortine sall into the Kings Riner haply the elementh of August. In the Vnity were borne two children at Sea. but both died, being both Boyes.

Снар. 6.

mors charge-Arrivall in Vaginia.

1734

When wee came to lames Towns, we found a Ship which had bin there in the River a moneth before we came; this was fent out of England by our Counfels leave and authority, to fish for Sturgeon, and to cos the ready nay, without tracing through the Torrid Zoan, and shee performed it: her Commander was Captain Argall Captains Argoll (a good Marriner, and a very civill Gentleman) and her Master one Robert Tindail. 19

State of the Colony.

blame alfo.

The veople of our Colonic were found all in health (for the most part) howbest when Captaine Argoll same in they were in such distresse for many were dispersed in the Sauages townes, living upon their almes for an ounce of Copper a day, and fourescore lined twenty miles from the Fort, and fed upon nothine but Orders eight weekes fo ace, baning no other allowance at all, neither were the people of the Country able to relieue them if they would, Whereupon Captaine New port and others have beene much to blame to in-Lilleneffe and forme the Counfell of such plenty of vittuall in this Country, by which meanes they have beene flacke in other vicesto this supply to give convenient content. V pon this, you that be adventurers, must pardon us, if you finde not returne of Commodity fo ample as you may expect because the law of nature bids us seeke sustenance first. and then to labour to content you afterwards. But upon this point I shall be more large in my next Letter. After our foure Ships had him in harbour a few dayes, came in the Viceadmirall, having out her mane 20

Some things parely,falfe rumors, partly factions, fuggenions, are here left out.

the malecon-

tents which

fing nowill

comming of the following

miferies in which this

perificd,

Author with him arole

Mast over boord, and bad many of her men very sicke and weake, but she could tell no newes of our Governour, and some three or foure dayes after her, came in the Swallow, with her maine Maft overboard alfa. and had a shrewa leake neither did she see our Admirall. Now aid we all lament much the absence of our Gouernour, for contentions began to grow, and fattions, and partakings, &c. Infomuch as the President, to strengthen his authority, accorded with the Mariners, and gave not any due respect to many worthy Gentlemen, that came in our Ships: wherewore They choose a they generally (baning alfo my confent) chofe Maiter Welt, my Lord de la Wars brother, to betheir Go. newGouernor. uernour, or president de bene este, in the absence of Sir Thomas Gates, or if be miscarried by Sea. then to continue tillwe heard newes from our Counfell in England. This choice of him they made not to di-Hincille lacherme. Henge fro furbe the old President during his time, but as his authority expired, then to take upon him the folego- 30 wenment with such assistants of the Captaines, as discrettest persons as the Colonie afforded. Perhaps ven Bad beene in Prail bane it blaz sued a mutenie by such as retaine old malice; but Master West, Master Petcie, and President bear of the Master West, Master Petcie, and enemies to the all the respected Gentlemen of worth in Virginia, can and will testifie otherwise upon their outher. For the Kings Patent weratified, but refused to be governed by the President that now is, after his time was ex-Prefident,raipired, and onely subjected our selves to Master West, whom we labour to have next President. I cannot certific you of much more as yet, until we grow to some certaine flay in this our state, but by the other reports at their Ships you hall know more. So with my harty commendations I cease. From Iames Towne this last thefe ftirs and of Angust 1609.

CHAP. VI

amont the whole Colony A true reportory of the wracke, and redemption of Sir THOMAS GATES Knight ; poon, and from the Hands of the Bermudas : his comming to Virginia, and the estate of that Colonie then, and after, on-der the government of the Lord LA WARRE, luly 15. 1610. written by WILLIAM STRACHY, Esquire.

A most dreadfull Tempest (the manifold deaths whereof are here to the life described) their wracke on Bermuda, and the descrip-

Xcellent Lady, know that vpon Friday late in the evening, we brake ground out of the Sound of Pomosuf, our whole Fleete then confidment of Course and two Pinnesses. of the Sound of Pymuth, our whole Heete then confifting of fearn good Ships, go and two Pinneses, all which from the fail fecand of June, who the twenty three of fully kept in friendly confort together not a whole watch at any time, Joofine the fishe school golden. fing the fight each of other. Our course when we came about the height of betweene 26. and 27. degrees, we declined to the Northward, and according to our Governours instructions aftered the trade and ordinary way vied heretofore by Dominico. and Monis, in the West Indies, and found the winde to this course indeede as triendly . 25 in the judgement of all Sea-men, it is vpon a more direct line, and by Sir George Summers our Ad- Sir O Summers mirall had bin likewise in former time failed, being a Gentleman of approued affurednesse; and a good maiready knowledge in Sea-faring actions, having often carried command, and chiefe charge in ma. ner and tried ny Ships Royall of her Maiefties, and in fundry Voyages made many defeats and attempts in the time of the Spaniards quarrelling with vs, vpon the Hands and Indies, &c. We had followed this sourfe folong, as now we were within feuen or eight dayes at the most, by Cap, Newports reckoning of making Cape Henry upon the coast of Priginia: When on S. James his day, July 24. be-

o ing Monday (preparing for no lefte all the blacke night before) the cloudes gathering thicke vp. A terrible on vs. and the winder linging, and whiftling most vausally, which made vs to cast off our Pin- florme expreson vs, and the windes mignig, and winding most the latery wind hideous began to blow from fed in a pathe-nace towing the same vntill then afterne, a dreadfull storme and hideous began to blow from ficialland retoout the North-east, which swelling, and roaring as it were by fits, some houres with more violence then others, at length did beate all light from heaven; which like an hell of darkeneffe ture tion. ned blacke upon ve, to much the more fuller of horror, as in such cases horror and feare wie to Black-darknes, opermine the troubled, and overmaftered fences of all, which (taken vp with amazement) the eares lay to fentible to the terrible cries, and murmurs of the windes, and diffraction of our Company, as who was most armed, and best prepared, was not a little shaken. For surely (Noble Feare of death Lady) as death comes not so sodaine nor apparant, so he comes not so elusin and painfull (to men fearefull. an especially even then in health and perfect habitudes of body) as at Sea; who comes at no time fo welcome, but our frailty (to weake is the hold of hope in milerable demonstrations of danger) it makes guilty of many contrary changes, and conflicts: For indeede death is accompanied at no time, nor place with circumstances every way so vncapable of particularities of goodnesse and inward comforts, as at Sea. For it is most true, there artieth commonly no such vonmercifull tempest, compound of so many contrary and divers Nations, but that it workerh voon the whole frame of the body, and most loathsomely affecteth all the powers thereof : and the manner of the ficknesse it laies upon the body, being so unsufferable, gives not the minde any free and quiet time, to wie her judgemen; and Empire : which made the Poet fay :

Hostium ux ores, paerique cacos Sentiant motus erientis Hadi, & Lqueris nigri fremitum, & trementes Verbere rinat .

For foureand twenty houres the florme in a reftleffe tumult, had blowne fo exceedingly, as Confinence we could not apprehend in our imaginations any possibility of greater violence, yet did wee still and increases finde it, not onely more terrible, but more constant, fury added to fur, and one storme vrging a fecond more outragious then the former; whether it fo wrought voon our feares, or indeede met with new forces: Sometimes firikes in our Ship amongst women, and passengers, not vied to fuch hurly and discomforts, made vs looke one vpon the other with troubled hearts, and panting bosomes : our clamours dround in the windes, and the windes in thunder. Prayers might well be in the heart and lips, but drowned in the outcries of the Officers: nothing heard that could give comfort, nothing feene that might incourage hope. It is impossible for me, had I the voyce of Stentor, and expression of as many tongues, as his throate of voyces, to expresse the outcries and miferies, not languishing, but wasting his spirits, and are constant to his owne principles, but not prevailing. Our failes wound up lay without their vie, and if at any time wee bore but a Hollocke, or halfe forecourfe, to guide her before the Sea, fix and fometimes eight men were not inough to hold the whipstaffe in the steerage, and the tiller below in the Gunner roome, by which may be imagined the strength of the storme : In which, the Sea swelled about Swelling Sea the Clouds, and gaue battell vnto Heauen. It could not be faid to raine, the waters like whole fer forth in a Rivers did flood in the ayre. And this I did still observe, that whereas vpon the Land, when a swelling stile. florme hath powred it selfe forth once in drifts of raine, the winde as beaten downe, and vanquifhed therewith not long after indureth: here the glut of water(as if throatling the winde ere while) was no fooner a little emptied and qualified, but infrantly the windes (as having gotten their mouthes now free, and at liberty) spake more loud, and grew more tumultuous, and Compared malignant. What shall I say? Windes and Seas were as mad, as fury and rage could make them; with the Aufor mine owne part, I had bin in fome stormes before, as well vpon the coast of Barbary and Alexperiments. geere, in the Lenant, and once more diffresfull in the Adriatique gulfe, in a bottome of Candy, fo as I may well fay. Ego quid fit ater Adria noni finus, & quid albus Peccet lapex. Yet all that I had euer fuffered gathered together, might not hold comparison with this: there was not a moment in which the fodaine splitting, or infant ouer-fetting of the Shippe was not

Howbeit this was not all; It pleased God to bring a greater affliction yet upon vs; for in the Leake added beginning of the storme we had received likewise a mighty leake. And the Ship in every loyne to the stormes almost, having spued out her Okam, before we were aware (a casualty more desperate then any tenour, other that a Voyage by Sea draweth with it) was growne fine footefuddenly deepe with water aboue her ballaft, and we almost drowned within, whilest we fat looking when to perish from aboue. This imparting no leffe terrour then danger, ranne through the whole Ship with much fright and amaziment, flartled and turned the bloud, and tooke downe the braues of the most hardy Marriner of them all, infomuch as he that before happily felt not the forrow of others. now began to forrow for himselfe, when he saw such a pond of water to suddenly broken in and which he knew could not (without prefent avoiding) but instantly finke him. So as iovning (nnely for his owne fake, not yet worth the fauing) in the publique fafety; there might be feene Mafter, Mafters Mate, Boateswaine, Quarter Mafter. Coopers, Carpenters, and who not with candels in their hands, creeping along the ribs viewing the fides, fearthing enery corner, and life. ning in enery place, if they could heare the water runne, Many a weeping leake was this way found, and halfuly itopt, and at length one in the Gunner roome made vp with I know not how many peeces of Beere; but all was to no purpose, the Leake (if it were but one) which drunke in our oreatest Seas, and tooke in our destruction taltest, could not then be found, nor ever was, by any labour, countell, or fearch. The waters still increasing, and the Pumpes going, which at length choaked with bringing vp whole and continuall Bisket (and indeede all we had, tenne thousand weight) it was conceiued, as most likely, that the Leake might be sprung in the Breadroome, whereupon the Carpenter went downe, and ript vp all the roome, but could not

Leake cannor which cannot

> I am not able to give vnto your Ladiship every mans thought in this perplexity, to which we were now brought; but to me, this Leakage appeared as a wound given to men that were before dead. The Lord knoweth, I had as little hope, as defire of lite in the ftorme, & in this, it went beyond my will; because beyond my reason, way we should labour to preserve life; yet we did. either because so deare are a few lingring houres of life in all mankinde, or that our Christian knowledges taught vs, how much we owed to the rites of Nature, as bound, not to be falle to our felues, or to neglect the meanes of our owne preferuation; the most despairefull things amongit men, being matters of no wonder nor moment with him, who is the rich Fountaine and admirable Effence of all mercy.

Their labour for life three dayes and foure nights,

Our Gouernonr, vpon the tuefday morning (at what time, by fuch who had bin below in the hold, the Leake was first discovered) had caused the whole Company, about one hundred and forty, besides women, to be equally divided into three parts, and opening the Ship in threepla- 26 ces (vnder the forecastle, in the waste, and hard by the Bitacke) appointed each man where to attend; and thereunto every man came duely upon his watch, tooke the Bucket or Pumpe for one houre, and rested another. Then men might be seene to labour, I may well say, for life, and the better fort, euen our Gouernour, and Admirall themselves, not refusing their turne, and to fold each the other, to give example to other. The common fort stripped naked, as men in Gallies, the easier both to hold out, and to shrinke from under the falt water, which continually leapt in among them, kept their eyes waking, and their thoughts and hands working, with tyred bodies, and waited spirits, three dayes and foure nights destitute of outward comfort, and desperate of any deliuerance, testifying how mutually willing they were, yet by labour to keepeeach other from drowning, albeit each one drowned whilest he laboured.

Seabreakes in.

The Gover-

Once, so huge a Sea brake vpon the poope and quarter, vpon vs, as it couered our Shippe from flearne to flemme, like a garment or a vast cloude, it filled her brimme full for a while within, from the hatches up to the sparse decke. This source or confluence of water was fo violent, as it rusht and carried the Helm-man from the Helme, and wrested the Whipstaffe out of his hand, which so flew from side to side, that when he would have ceased the same againe, it fo toffed him from Star-boord to Lar-boord, as it was Gods mercy it had not folie him : It so best him from his hold, and so bruifed him, as a fresh man hazarding in by chance fell faire with it, and by maine ffrength bearing somewhat vp, made good his place, and with much clamour incouraged and called vpon others; who gave her now vp, rent in pieces and absolutely loft. Our Gouernour was at this time below at the Capftone, both by his speech and authoritie 50 heartening every man vnto his labour. It strooke him from the place where hee fate, and grovelad him, and all vs about him on our faces, bearing together with our breaths all thoughts from our bolomes, e. e, then that wee were now finking. For my part, I thought her alreadie in the bottome of the Sea; and I have heard him fay, wading out of the floud thereof, all his ambition was but to climbe vp about hatches to dye in Aperto colo, and in the company of his old friends. Remerois fa. It fo flun'd the flip in her full pace, that free flured no more, then if free had beene caughtin a net, or then, as if the fabulous Remora had thucke to her fore-castle. Yet without bearing one inch fmall fifthable of faile, even then fnee was making her way nine or ten leagues in a watch. One thing, it is not without his wonder (whether it were the feare of death in fo great a storme, or that it pleased God to be gracious vnto vs) there was not a paffenger, gentleman, or other, after hee beganne to 60 firre and labour, but wasable to relieue his fellow, and make good his courie : And it is most whom he will trus, fuch as in all their life times had neuer done houres worke before (their mindes now helping their bodies) were able twice tortie eight houres together to toile with the belt,

During all this time, the neavens look'd to blacke vpon vs, that it was not possible the eleva-

nation of the Pole might be oblerued : nor a Starre by night, not Sunne beame by day was to be feene. Onely your the thurlday night Sir George Summers being voon the watch, had an apparition of a little round light, like a faint Starre, trembling, and ffreaming along with a sparkeling blaze, halfe the height vpon the Maine Maft, and shooting fometimes from Shroud to Siroud, tempting to lettle as it were upon any of the foure Shrouds: and for three or foure houres together, or rather more, halfe the night it kept with vs. running fometimes along the Maine-Shrouds. yard to the very end, and then returning. At which, Sir George Cummers called divers about him. and shawed them the same, who observed it with much wonder, and careful nesse: but voon a fadaine towards the morning watch, they loft the fight of it, and knew not what way it made.

10 The superstitious Sea-men make many constructions of this Sea-fire, which neverthelesse is vsuall in formes : the fame (it may be) which the Gracians were wont in the Mediterranean to call Caffor and Pollux, of which, if one onely appeared without the other, they tooke it for an ewill hope of great tempest. The Italians, and fuch, who lye open to the Adrianane and Tyrrene Sea, call it (a (acred Body) Corpo (ancto : the Spaniards call it Saint Elmo, and have an authentique Section 1.14. and miraculous Legend for it. Be it what it will, we laid other foundations of fafety or ruine. c.i. s.t. then in she rifing or falling of it, could it have ferued vs now miraculously to have taken our height by, it might have frucken amazement, and a reverence in our devotions, according to the due of a miracle. But it did not light vs any whit the more to our knowne way, who ran now (as doe hood winked men) at all aduentures, fometimes North, and North-eaft, then North and

20 by West, and in an instant againe varying two or three points, and sometimes halfe the Compaffer. East and by South we steered away as much as we could to beare pright, which was no small carefulnesse nor paine to doe, albeit we much vnrigged our Ship, threw ouer-boord much luggage, many a Trunke and Cheft (in which I fuffered no meane loffe) and tlaued many a Butt of Beere, Hogiheads of Oyle, Syder, Wine, and Vinegar, and heaved away all our Ordnance on the Starboord fide, and had now purposed to have cut downe the Maine Mail, the more to lighten her, for we were much ipent, and our men fo weary, as their flengths together failed them. with their hearts, having trausiled now from Tuefday till Friday morning, day and night, with No fleene or out either fleepe or foode; for the leakeage taking vp all the hold, wee could neither come by food romtuef

Beere nor fresh water: fire we could keepe none in the Cookeroome to dresse any meate, and day till triday carefulnesse, griefe, and our turne at the Pumpe or Bucket, were sufficient to hold sleepe from

And furely Madam, it is most true, there was not any houre (a matter of admiration) all these dayes, in which we freed not twelue hundred Barricos of water, the leaft whereof contained fix 1200. Barricos gallons, and some eight, besides three deepe Pumpes continually going, two beneath at the Capfides a Pumpe, ftone, and the other aboue in the halfe Decke, and at each Pumpe foure thousand stroakes at the acquiting 100 leaft in a watch; fo as I may well fay, every foure houres, we quitted one hundred tunnes of wa- tuns of water ter ; and from tuefday noone till friday noone, we bailed and pumped two thousand tunne, and suery 4, houres yet doe what we could, when our Ship held leaft in her, after tuelday night fecond watch) shee bore ten foote deepe, at which stay our extreame working kept her one eight glaffes, forbearance 40 whereof had instantly funke vs, and it being now Friday, the fourth morning, it wanted little, but that there had bin a generall determination, to have flut vp hatches, and commending our finfull foules to God, committed the Shippe to the mercy of the Sea : furely, that night we must have done it, and that night had we then perished: but see the goodnesse and sweet introduction of better hope by our mercifull God given vnto vs. Sir George Summers, when no man dreamed of fuch happinesse, had discovered, and cried Land. Indeede the morning now three quarters summer lands commanded the Helme-man to beare vp, the Boatefwaine founding at the first, found it thirteene fathome, & when we stood a little in seven fatham; and presently heaving his lead the third time. to had ground at foure fathome, and by this, we had got her within a mile under the South-east point of the land, where we had somewhat smooth water. But having no hope to saucher by comming to an anker in the fame, we were inforced to runne her ashoare, as neere the land as we could, which brought vs within three quarters of a mile of thoare, and by the mercy of God vnto vs. making out our Boates, we had ere night brought all our men, women, and children, about They go a land

the number of one hundred and fifty, fare into the Hand. We found it to be the dangerous and dreaded Hand, or rather Hands of the Bermuda: whereof let mee give your Ladyship a briefe description, before I proceed to my narration. And that the supposed the rather, because they be so terrible to all that ever touched on them, and such tempelts, thunders, Divels, &c.

and other featefull objects are feene and heard about them, that they be called commonly, The 60 Denils Hands, and are feared and anoyded of all fea trauellers aline, about any other place in the world. Yet it pleased our mercifull God, to make eyen this hideous and hated place, both the place of our fafetie and meanes of our deliverance.

And hereby also, I hope to deliver the world from a foule and generall errour : it being counted of most, that they can be no habitation for Men, but rather given over to Deuils and wicked

fpent, had wonne a little cleerenesse from the dayes before, and it being better furueyed, the ye-descried by Sig ty trees were feene to move with the winde vpon the shoare side: whereupon our Governour George Summers

Shippe in her courfe. Godinableth faue to faue themfelues,

Spirits; whereas indeed wee find them now by experience, to bee as habitable and commodious as most Countries of the same climate and situation infomuch as if the entranceinto them were as a le as the place it selfe is contenting, it had long ere this beene inhabited, as well as other liands. Thus thall we make it appeare, That Truth is the daughter of Time, and that men onehnot to deny enery thing which is not fubice to their owne fenfe.

Si-George Sum.

forucy : his

we have note

M.No parchach

In his Gen hill.

Line other reci-

terh the fame

h florie more

fairh it haih

gwe names,

Garza,of the

and Bermudez

mudes: Note that he place h

ir mare to the North-then that which is time the , fee

The Scan gras

(as I haue beard) which were wracked

there in Cap.

on that ours

are not the

Butleys time

The Bermudu bee broken Hands, fine hundred of them in manner of an Archipelague (at leaft if you may call them all Ilands that lie, how little focuer into the Sea, and by themselues) of fmall compaffe, fome larger yet then other, as time and the Sea hath wonne from them, and eaten his pallage through, and all now lying in the figure of a Croissant, within the circuit of fixe or feven leagues at the most, albeit at first it is said of them that they were thirteene or sourteene 10 leagues; and more in longitude as I have heard. For no greater diffance is it from the Northwest Point to Gates his Bay, as by this Map your Ladyship may fee, in which Sir George Summers, who coalted in his Boat about them all, tooke great care to expresse the same exactly and full. and made his draught perfect for all good occasions, and the benefit of such, who either in distresse mishe draught which he brought voon them, or make taile this way.

It should feeme by the testimony of Gonzalus Ferdinandus Oniedus, in his Booke intituled. The Summary or Abridgement of his generall History of the West Indies, written to the Emperer Charles une parinnea an exact Map. the Fitt, that they have beene indeed of greater compasse (and I easily believe it) then they are Orfalams now, who thus faith : In the yeere 1515, when I came first to informe your Maiefly of the flate of the things in India, and was the year following in Flanders, in the time of your most fortunate succellen to the le your kingdomes of Aragony and Catteel, whereas at that voyage I fayled above the Iland Bermudas otherwise called Gorza, being the farthest of all the Ilands that are yet found at this day in the world. and arriving there at the depth of eight yards of water, and distant from the Land as farre as the sha of a Peece of Ordnance, I determined to fend some of the Ship to Land, as well to make fearch of Such pa-ticularly he things as were there, as a'fo to leave in the I land certaine Hogges for increase, but the time not ferning my purpole, by reason of contrary winds I could bring my Ships no neerer : the Iland being twelve leagues in length, and fixteene in breadth, and about thirtie in circuit, lying in the thirtie three digrees of thip which first discouered it, the North fide. Thus farre hee.

True it is, the maine lland, or greatest of them now, may bee some sixteene miles inlength being fo called, East North-east, and West South-west the longest part of it, standing in thirtie two degrees and 20 or that this ma- twentie minutes, in which is a great Bay on the North fide, in the North-west end, and many broken Ilands in that Sound or Bay, and a little round Iland at the South-west end, As occasions med lobn Ber-

were offered, to we gave titles and names to certaine places. These Hands are often afflicted and rent with tempests, great strokes of thunder, lightning and raine in the extreamity of violence; which (and it may well bee) hath fo fundred and tome downe the Rockes, and whuried whole quarters of Ilands into the maine Sea (fome fixe. some by oursinaabi- feuen leagues, and is like in time to fwallow them all) fo as even in that distance from the shoare tid, & fay form there is no finall danger of them and with them, of the fformes continually raging from them, which once in the full and change commonly of every Moone (Winter or Summer) keepe their vnchangeableround, and rather thunder then blow from enery corner about them, fometimes for- 40 tie eight houres together : especially if the circle, which the Philosophers call Halo were (in our being there) seene about the Moone at any season, which bow indred appeared there often, and would bee of a mightie compasse and breadth. I have not observed it any where one quarter so great, especially about the twentieth of March, I faw the greatest when followed upon the eucs eue of the Annuntiation of our Ladie, the mightiest blast of lightning, and most terrible rap of thunder that ever aftonied mortall men, I thinke. In August, September, and untill the end of were of opini-October, wee had very hot and pleasant weather onely (as I say) thunder, lightning, and many feattering showers of Raine (which would passe swiftly ouer , and yet fall with such force and Bermudas : Yea darkneffe for the time as if it would never bee cleere againe) wee wanted not any; and of raine more in Summer then in Winter, and in the beginning of December wee had great flore of highe 50 have sensuch (the sharpe windes blowing Northerly) but it continued not, and to say truth, it is wintry or an Hand to the fummer weather there, according as those North and Noth-west windes blow, Much caste of this North of ours, kind of Winter wee had; for those cold windes would suddenly alter the ayre : but when there ted to diffouer was no breath of wind to bring the movil ayre out of the Seas, from the North and North-well, it ; [a] lidice wee were rather weary of the heate, then pinched with extreamitie of cold : Yet the three Winter moneths, December, lanuary, and February, the winds kept in those cold corners, and indeed temposition. then it was heavy and melancholy being there, nor were the winds more rough in March, then mannerirele in the forefaid moneths, and yet euen then would the Birds breed. I thinke they breede there, Monage geat most monethes in the yeere, in September, and at Christmaffe I saw young Birds, and compasse in Februarie, at which time the mornings are there cas in Marie I saw young Birds, and shared. in Februarie, at which time the mornings are there (as in May in England) fresh and sharpe. 60 Well may the Spaniards, and thefe Bifcani Pilots , with all their Traders into the Indies, palls by these Hands as afraid (either bound out or homewards) of their very Meridian, and leave the fishing for the Pearle (which some fay, and I beleeue well is as good there, as in any of their other Indian Hands, and whereof we had some triall) to such as will adventure for them. The Seas about them are so ful of breaches, as with those dangers; they may well be faid to be thestrongeit lituate in the world. I have often heard Sir George Sammers, and Captaine Newport lay how they have not beene by any chance or discovery voon their like. It is impossible without great and perfect knowledge, and fearch first made of them to bring in a bable Boat, to much as of ten Tun without apparant roine, albeit within there are many faire harbours for the greatest English Ship : yea, the Argafies of Venice may ride there with warer enough, and lafe land-lockt. There is one onely lide that admits fo much as hope of fafetie by many a league, on which (as before defeibed) it pleated God to bring vs. wee had not come one man of vs elfe a shoare, as the weather was : they have beene ever therefore left defolate and not inhabited.

10 . The foile of the whole Iland is one and the same, the mould, dark, fed, sandie, dry, and vncapa- Experience ble I beleeue of any of our commodities or truits. Sir George Summers in the beginning of August, hath Biesquared out a Garden by the quarter (the quarter being fee downebefore a goodly Bay, voon ter thewed which our Gouernour did firit lespe ainoare, and therefore called it (as aforefaid) Gates bis Bay, fince, as we atwhich opened into the Eaft, and into which the Sea did ebbe and flow, according to their tides, truits wormes. and fowed Muske Melons, Peafe, Onyons, Raddilh, Lettice, and many English feeds, and Kitchen & those that Herbes. All which in some cen daies did appeare aboue ground, but whether by the small Birds, dwell there of which there be many kindes, or by Flies (Wormes I never faw any, nor any venomous thing, as Toade, or Snake, or any creeping beaft hurtfull, onely fome Spiders, which as many afterme are which tooke fignes of great flore of Gold : but they were long and flender legge Spiders, and whether veno-

20 mous or no I know not . I beleeue not, fince wee should still find them amongst our linnen in our ledging. Yes Chefts, and drinking Cans; but we never received any danger from them: A kind of Melonibia, the dawning & or blacke Beetell there was, which bruifed, gaue a fauour like many fiveet and ftrong gums punned together) whether, I ay, hindred by these, or by the condition or vice of the soyle they light; though came to no proofe, nor thrused. It is like enough that the commodities of the other Westerne notall so cer-Ilands would prosper there, as Vines, Lemmons, Oranges, and Sugar Canes: Our Gouernour taineas the made triall of the later, and buried some two or three in the Garden mould, which were referred Sun; for which in the wracke amongst many which wee carried to plant here in Vogima, and they beganne to cause I have grow, but the Hogs breaking in , both rooted them vp and eate them : there is not through the thefefift difwhole Hands either Champion ground, Valleys, or fresh Rivers. They are full of Shawes of good coveries.

30 ly Cedar, fairer then ours here of Virginia; the Berries, whereof our men feething, straining, and Spidore. letting ftandiome three or foure daies, made a kind of pleafant drinke : thele Berries are of the Beeile very fame bigneffe, and collour of Corynthes, full of little stones, and verie restringent or hard building. Hoss. Peter Martin faith, That at Alexandria in Egypt there is a kind of Cedar, which the lewes Cedars. dwelling there, affirme to be the Cedars of Libanus, which beare old fruite and new all the years, Cedar-drinke; being a kinde of Apple which tait like Prines : but then, neither those there in the Bermudis, American Co. nor ours here in Virginia are of that happy kind.

Likewise there grow great store of Palme Trees, not the right Indian Palmes, such as in Saint with those of Iohn Port-Rico are called Cocos, and are there full of fmall fruites like Almonds (of the bignesse of Libanus, as by the graines in Pomgranates) nor of those kind of Palmes which beares Dates, but a kind of Sie the historic of 40 merons or wild Palmes in growth, fashion, leaves, and branches, refembling those true Palmes; them in our for the Tree is high, and straight, sappy and spongious, vinitime for any vite; in branches but in the vppermost pur thereof, and in the top grow leaves about the head of in the most pair.

Application

A whereof they call Palmeto, and it is the heart and pith of the fame Trunke, fo white and thin, as Many forts of it will peele off into pleates as smooth and delicate as write Sattin into twentie folds, in which a Palmes, the man may write as in paper) where they fread and fall downward about the Tree like an ouer. Coco, the blowne Rose, or Sasfron flower not early gathered; so broad are the leanes, as an Italian Vmbrello, the Winea man may well detend his whole body under one of them, from the greatest storme raine that Palme, or tade falls. For they being stiffe and smooth, as if so many slagges were knit together, the raine easily die, &c, besides flideth off. Wee oftentimes found growing to thefe leaves, many Silk-wormes involved there-

80 m, like those small wormes which Acosta writethos, which grew in the leaves of the Tunal Tree, Silks wormes, of which being dried, the Indians make their Cochinile to precious and marchantable, With there leanes we that ched our Cabbins, and roading the Palmito or loft top thereof, they had a tafte like fried Melons, and being fod they eate like Cabbedges, but not fo offenfuely thankefull to the ftomacke. Many an ancient Borger was therefore heaved at, and fell not for his place, but for his head : for our common people, whole bellies never had eares, made it no breach of Charitie in their hot blouds and tall fromackes to murder thousands of them. They beare a kind of Berry, blacke and round, as bigge as a Damfon, which about December were ripe and I from theing scalded (whilest they are greene) they eate like Bullates. These Trees shid their leaves in the Winter moneths, as withered or burnt with the cold Hails of the North winde, effeci-60 ally these that grow to the Seaward, and in March, there Burgen new in their roome fresh

Other kindes of high and fiveet fmelling Woods there bee, and divers colours, blacke, yellow, Other Trees! and red, and one which beares a round blew Berry, much eaten by our owne people, of a fliptick qualitie and rough taite on the ton gue like a Slow to Hay or binde the Fluxe, which the often then found.

Waters No Springs

fince Wells

haue bin then

eating of the luscious Palme berry would bring them into, for the nature of fweet things is to clense and dissolute. A kinde of Pease of the bignesse and shape of a Katherine Peare, wee found growing woon the Rockes full of many tharpe fubtill prickes (as a Thirtle) which wee therefore called , The Printle Pears , the outfide greene , but being opened , of a deepe murrie. full of invee like a Mulberry, and just of the same substance and taste, wee both eate them raw

Sure it is, that there are no Rivers nor running Springs of fresh water to bee found voon and of them : when wee came first wee digged and found certaine gushings and soft bublings, which being either in bottoms, or on the tide of hanging ground, were onely fed with raine water, which neuerthelelle foone finketh into the earth and vanisheth away, or emptieth it felfe out of fight in- ta to the Sea, without any channeli aboue or vpon the superficies of the earth: for according as angged which ebbc and flow their raines fell, we had our Wels and Pits (which we digged) either halfe full, or absolute exhausted and dry, howbeit some low bottoms (which the continuall descent from the Hills filled full, and in those flats could have no passage away) we found to continue as fishing Ponds, or standing Pooles, continually Summer and Winter full of fresh water.

Fifb.

The shoare and Bayes round about, when weelanded first afforded great store of fish . and that of divers kindes, and good, but it should seeme that our fiers, which wee maintained on the shoares side draue them from vs, so as wee were in some want, vntill wee had made a flat bottome Gundall of Cedar with which wee put off farther into the Sea, and then daily hooked great store of many kindes, as excellent Angell-fish, Salmon Peale, Bonetas, 20 Stingray, Cabilly, Sinappers, Hogge-fish, Sharkes, Dogge-fish, Pilcherds, Mullets, and Rock-fish, of which bee divers kindes : and of these our Governour dryed and salted, and barrelling them vp, brought to fea fine hundred, for he had procured Salt to bee made with some Brine. which happily was preserved, and once having made a little quantity, he kept three or four pots boyling, and two or three men attending nothing elie in an house (iome little diffance from his Bay) fet vp on purpole for the fame worke.

Salt made

Likewise in Furbushers building Bay wee had a large Sein, or Tramell Net, which our Gopernour caused to be made of the Deere Toyles, which wee were to carry to Virginia, by drawing the Masts more straight and narrow with Roape Yarne, and which reached from one fide of the Dock to the other : with which (I may boldly fay) wee haue taken fine thousand of small 30 raken at a hale and great fish at one hale. As Pilchards , Breames , Mullets , Rocke-fish, &c. and other kindes for which wee haue no names. Wee haue taken also from under the broken Rocks, Creuises oftentimes greater then any of our best English Lobsters; and likewise abundance of Crabbes, Oylters, and Wilkes. True it is, for Eth in eueric Coue and Creek weefond Snaules, and Skulles in that abundance, as (Ithinke) no lland in the world may have greatered. Caule of their ter flore or better Fish. For they sucking of the very water, which descendeth from the high Somnessee Hills mingled with juyce and verdor of the Palmes, Cedars, and other sweet Woods (which likewise make the Herbes, Roots, and Weeds sweet which grow about the Bankes) become thereby both fat and wholfome. As must those Fish needes bee groffe, slimy, and corrupt the bloud, which feed in Fennes, Marishes, Ditches, muddy Pooles, and neere vnto places 40 where much filth is daily cast forth. Vnscaled Fishes, such as Suning calleth Molles Pisces, as Trenches, Eele, or Lampries, and fuch feculent and dangerous Snakes wee neutrlaw any, nor may any Riuer bee inuenomed with them (I pray God) where I come. I forbeare to speake what a fort of Whales wee have seene hard aboard the shoare followed sometime by the Sword-fish and the Thresher, the sport whereof was not unpleasant. The Sword-fish, with his sharpe and needle Finne, pricking him into the belly when hee would stake and fall into the Sea; and when hee startled vpward from his wounds, the Thresher with his large Fins (like that in the selfe same perill and Janger doe men live in this mortall life, wherein is no certaine se-

Flayles) beating him about water. The examples whereof gives vs ((aith Onied:u) to vinderstand,

No unscaled

Whale and

Cater-tray beare the bell away.Medie tutifimus ibis. Fowles.

Wild Swans,

it maketh a

curity neither in high effate nor low. Fowle there is great store, small Birds, Sparrowes fat and plumpe like a Bunting, bigger then ours, Robbins of divers colours greene and yellow, ordinary and familiar in our Cabbins, and other of leffe fort. White and gray Hernshawes, Bitters , Teale, Snites, Crowes, and Hawkes, of which in March wee found divers Ayres, Golhawkes and Taffells, Oxen-birds, Cormorants, Bald-Cootes, Moore-Hennes, Owles, and Battes in great store. And vpon New-yeeres day in the morning, our Gouernour being walked foorth with another Gentleman Master Iames Swift, each of them with their Peeces killed a wild Swanne, in a great Sea-water Bay or Pond in our Hand. Akinde of webbe-footed Fowle there is, of the bignifie of an English They call it of greene Plouer, or Sca-Meawe, which all the Summer wee faw not, and in the darket nights of November and December (for in the night they onely feed) they would come forth, but 60 not flye farre from home, and houering in the ayre, and ouer the Sea, made a strange hollow and barth howling. Their colour is inclining to Ruffet, with white bellies, as are likewife the long Feathers of their wings Ruffet and White) thele gather themselves together and breed in those llands which are high, and so farre alone into the Sea, that the Wilde Hogges cannot I wimme over them , and there in the ground they have their Burrowes , like Conves in a Warren, and to brought in the loofe Mould, though not fo deepe : which Birds with a light bough in a darke night (as in our Lowbelling) wee caught. I have beene at the taking of three hundred in an houre, and wee might have laden our Boates. Our men found a pretrie way to take them, which was by standing on the Rockes or Sands by the Sea fide, and hollowing, laughing, and making the strangest out-cry that possibly they could : with the nevie whereof the Birds would come flocking to that place, and lettle voon the very armes and head of him that fo cryed, and still creepe neerer and neerer, answering the noyse themselves : by which our men would weigh them with their hand, and which weighed heavieff they tooke IO for the best and let the others alone, and to our men would take twen ie dozen in two houres of the chiefest of them ; and they were a good and well relished Fowle, fat and full as a Partridge. In lanuary wee had great store of their Egges, which are as great as an Hennes Egge. and to fathioned and white helled, and have no difference in yolke nor white from an Hennes Egge. There are thousands of these Birds, and two or three Hands full of their Burrowes . when ther at any time (in two hours warning) wee could fend our Cock-boat, and bring home as many as would ferue the whole Company : which Birds for their blindneffe (for they fee weak-Iv in the day) and for their cry and whooting, wee called the Sea Onle; they will hite cruelly with their crooked Bills. Wee had knowledge that there were wilde Hogges vpon the Hand, at first by our owne Wild Hogges

20 Swine preserved from the wrack and brought to shoare : for they straying into the Woods, an how histourd huge wilde Boare followed downe to our quarter, which at night was watched and taken in out and taken in this fort. One of Sir George Summers men went and lay among the Swine, when the Boare being come and groueled by the Sowes, her put ouer his hand and rubbed the fide gently of the Boare, which then lay itill, by which meanes hee fastned a rope with a sliding knot to the hinder legge and so rooke him, and after him in this fort two or three more. But in the end (a little bufinefleouer) our people would goe a hunting with our Ship Dogge, and fometimes bring home thirtie, fometimes firtie Boares, Sowes, and Pigs in a weeke aliue : for the Dog would faiten on them and hold, whilest the Hunti-men made in ; and there bee thousands of them in the Ilands, and at that time of the veere in August, September, October, and November, they were well fed 30 with Berries that dropped from the Cedars and the Palmes, and in our quarter wee made flyes for them, and gathering of these Berries served them twice aday, by which meanes we kept them in good plight : and when there was any fret of weather (for vpon enery increase of wind the billow would be fo great, as it was no putting out with our Gundall or Canow) that we could not fi h nor take Tortoyles, then wee killed our Hogs. But in February when the Palme Berries began to be icant or dry, and the Cedar Berries failed two moneths sooner. True it is the Hogs greye poore, and being taken to, wee could not raile them to be better, for besides those Bernes, we had nothing wherewith to franke them ; but even then the Tortoyles came in againe, of w hich wee daily both turned up great store, finding them on Land, as also sculling after them in our Boate throoke them with an Iron goad, and fod, baked, and roafted them. The Tortoyfe is reasonable Tortoifeld toothiom (fome fay) wholfome meate. I am fure our Company liked the meate of them verie well, and one Tortoyle would goe further among it them, then three Hogs. One Turtle (for fo we called them) featted well a dozen Meffes, appointing fixe to every Meffe. It is fuch a kind of meat. as a man can neither absolutely call Fish nor Flesh, keeping most what in the water, and feeding vpon Sea-graffe like a Heifer, in the bottome of the Couesand Bayes, and laying their Egges (of which wee should finde five hundred at a time in the opening of a shee Turtle) in the Sand by the shoare side, and so covering them close leave them to the hatching of the Sunne, like the Manati at Saint Dominique, which made the Spanish Friars (at their first arrivall) make some feruple to eate them on a Friday, because in colour and taste the fiesh is like to morfells of Veale. Concerning the laying of their Egges, and hatching of their young, Peter Martyr writeth thus in 50 his Decades of the Ocean : at fuch time as the heate of Nature moueth them to generation, they came forth of the Sea, and making a deepe pit in the fand, they lay three or four hundred Egges therein : when they have thus emptied their bag of Conception, they put as much of the fame againe into the Pit as may fatisfie to couer the Egges , and fo refort againe vnto the Sea, nothing carefull of their fuccession. At the day appointed of Nature to the procreation of these creatures.

Fffffff 2

there creepeth out a multitude of Tortoyies, as it were Pilmyers out of an Ant-hill, and this only by the heate of the Sunne, without any helpe of their Parents: their Egges are as big as Greie

Egges, and themselves growne to perfection, bigger then great round Targets.

ð. I I.

Actions and Occurrents whiles they continued in the Ilands : Rauens fent for Virginia: Diners mutinies ; PAINE executed : Two Pinnaces built.

O foone as wee were a little fetled after our landing, with all the conveniencie wee might, and as the place, and our many wants would give vs leave, wee made vp our ong Brate (as your Ladyship hath heard) in fashion of a Pinnace, fitting her with a httle Deck, made of the Hatches of our ruin'd flip, fo close that no water could goe in Io

H. Rauensvoy. her, gaue her Sayles and Oares, and intreating with our Mafters Mate Henry Rauens (who was Supposed a sufficient Pilot) wee found him easily wonne to make over therewith, as a Barke of Amfo for Virginia, which being in the height of thirtie feuen degrees, fine degrees from the Hard which we were, might bee some one hundred and tortie leagues from vs,or thereabouts (t : ko. ning to every degree that lies North-east, and Westerly twentic eight English leagues) who the twentie eight of August being Munday, with fixe Saylers, and our Cape Merchant Thomas Whittingham departed from vs out of Gates his Bay; but to our much wonder returned againe vpon the Wednelday night after, having attempted to have got cleere of the Hand, from the North North-eath to the South-west, but could not as little water as shee drew, which might not bee about twentie inches for shoales and breaches, so as he was faine to go out from Summers Creeks, 20 and the same way we came in on the South South-east of the Hands, and from thence wee made to Sea the Friday after the first of September, promising if hee lived and arrived safe there, to returne vnto vs the next new Moone with the Pinnace belonging to the Colony there : according vnto which instructions were directed vnto the new Leistenant Gouernour, and Councell from our Gouernour here, for which the Ilands were appointed carefully to be watched, and fiers prepared as Beacons to have directed and wafted him in, but two Moones were wasted voon the Promontory before mentioned, and gaue many a long and wished looke round about the Horizon, from the North-east to the South-west, but in vaine, discouring nothing all the while, which way foeu r we turned our eye, but ayre and fea.

You may please, excellent Lady, to know the reason which moued our Gouernour to dispatch 20 this long Boat, was the care which hee tooke for the efface of the Colony in this his interced absence : for by a long practifed experience, foreseeing and fearing what innovation and tumult might happily arife, among it the younger and ambitious spirits of the new companies to arrive in Virginia, now comming with him along in this fame Fleet, hee framed his letters to the Colony, and by a particular Commission confirmed Captaine Peter Win his Lieutenant Gouernour, with an Affiltance of fixe Counsellours, writing withall to divers and such Gentlemen of qualificand knowledge of vertue, and to fuch louers of goodnesse in this cause whom hee knew, intreasing them by giving examples in themselves of duty and obedience, to assist likewise the said Lieutenant Governour, against such as should attempt the innovating of the perion (now named by him) or forme of government, which in some Articles hee did likewise prescribe vnto them : 40 and had faire hopes all should goe well, if these his letters might arrive there, vntill such time as either some Ship there (which hee fairely beleeved) might bee moved presently to adventure for him : or that it should please the right honourable, the Lordes, and the rest of his Maiesties Councell in England, to addresse thither the right honourable the Lord Lawar (one of more eminencie and worthinesse) as the project was before his comming forth) whilest by their honourable fauours, a charitable confideration in like manner might bee taken of our estates to redeeme vs from hence. For which purpose likewise our Gouernour directed a particular letter to ther industrie, the Councell in England, and fent it to the foreigid Captaine Peter Winne (his now to bee chofen Lieutenant Gouernour) by him to bee dispatched (which is the first) from thence into

In his absence Sit George Summers coasted the Hands, and drew the former plat of them, and tilly fished, and hunted for our whole company well. daily fished, and hunted for our whole company, vntill the fouen and twentieth of November, when then well perceiving that we were not likely to heare from Virginia, and conceiving how the Pinnace which Richard Frubbulber was a building would not be of burthen fifficient to transport all our men from thence into Dirginia (especially considering the season of the years, wherein we were likely to put off) he consulted with our Gouernour, that if hee might have two Carpenters (for we had foure, such as they were) and twenty men, ouer with him into the maine Hand, he would quickly frame vp another little Barke, to fecond ours, for the better fitting and conneiance of our people. Our Gouernour, with many thankes (as the cattle required) cherifing this fo carefull and religious confideration in him(and whose experience likewise was 60 somewhat in these affaires) granted him all things sutable to his desire, and to the furthering of the worke : who therefore had made ready for him all fuch tooles and inftruments, as our owne wie required not : and for him, were drawne forth twenty of the ableft and flourest of the company, and the best of our men, to hew and square timber, when himselfe then, with daily maines ding the meanes of redeeming vs from hence, as each one wrought with his Mate how to divorte him from the fame.

and labour, wrought upon a fmall Veffell, which was foone ready as ours: at which wee leave him a while bulled, and returne to our felues. In the meane space did one Frubbulker, borne at Graves end, and at his comming forth now dwelling at Lime Houle (a painefull and well experienced Shipwright, and skiltull workman' labour the building of a little Pinnace: for the furtherance of which, the Gouernout dispensed with no rangile of his body, nor forbare any care builds another or study of minde, perfuading (as much and more, an ill qualified parcell of people, by his owne performance, then by authority, thereby to hold them at their worke, namely to fell carry, and fawe Cellar, no for the Corpenters purpose (for what was so meane, whereto he would not himfelic fet his hand, being therefore up earely and downe late ?) yet neuertheleffe were they hard-10 ly drawne to it, as the Fortoile to the inchanement, as the Prouerbe is, but his owne prefence and hand being fet to enery meane labour, and imployed foreadily to enery office, made our people power of exa at length more diligent, and willing to be called thereunto, where they should see him before ample. they came. In which, we may observe how much example prevailes above precepts; and how readier men are to be led by eyes, then eares.

And fure it was happy for vs. who had now runne this fortune, and were fallen into the bottome of this mifery, that we both had our Gouernour with vs and one to folicitous and carefullwhole both example (as I faid) and authority, could lay flyine, and command upon our people; elfe. I am periwaged, we had most of vs fini hed our dayes there, so willing were the major part of the common fort (especially when they found fuch a plenty of victuals) to settle a foundati-20 on of ever inhabiting there; as well ippeared by many practifes of theirs (and perhaps of tome of the better (ort) Loe, what are our affections and passions, if not rightly (quared? how irreligious, and irregular they expresse vs : not perhaps to ill as we would be, but yet as wee are; fome Mutinous condangerous and fecret difcontents nourished among ft vs, had like to have bin the parents of blou- ceptions. dy illues and mitchiefes; they began first in the Sca-men, who in time had fattened vinto them (by falle baits) many of our land-men likewife, and fome of whom (for opinion of their Religion) was carried an extraordinary and good respect. The Angles wherewith chiefely they thus hooked in these disquieted Pooles, were, how that in Virginia, nothing but wretchednesse and labour must be expected, with many wants, and a churlish intreaty, there being neither that Fish, Plesh, nor Fowle, which here (without wasting on the one part, or watching on theirs, or any threatning, and are 20 of authority) at ease, and pleasure might be intoyed ; and since both in the one, and the other place iber were (for the time) to loofe the frustion both of their friends and Countrey, as good, and better were to for them, to repose and seate them where they should have the least ontward wants the while. This, thus preached, and published each to other, though by such who never had bin more onward towards Virginia, then (before this Voyage) a Sculler could happily rowe him (and what hath a more adamantine power to draw vnto it the confent and attraction of the idle, vntoward, and wretched number of the many, then liberty and fulnesse of sensuality?) begat such a

And first (and it was the first of September) a conspiracy was discovered, of which fix were Conspirafound principals, who had promifed each vnto the other, not to let their hands to any tranale or endeauour which might expedite or forward this Pinnace; and each of these had severally (according to appointment) fought his opportunity to draw the Smith, and one of our Carpenters . Nicholas Bennit , who made much profession of Scripture , a mutinous and differnbling Imposter; the Captaine, and one of the chiefe perswaders of others, who afterwards brake from the society of the Colony, and like outlawes retired into the Woods, romake a fectlement and habitation there) on their party, with whom they purposed to leave our Quarter, and possesse another Iland by themselves: but this happily found out, they were condemned to the same punishment which they would have chosen (but without Smith or Car-50 Penter) and to an Iland farre by it felfe, they were carried, and there left. Their names were murmur, and fuch a difcontent, and difunion of hearts and hands from this labour, and forwar-

John Want, the chiefe of them, an Effex man of Newport by Saffronwalden, both setitious, and John Mane, a fectary in points of Religion, in his owne prayers much denout and frequent, but harely wall same in drawne to the publique, infomuch as being suspected by our Minister for a Brownist, he was the sex a often compelled to the common Liturgie and forme of Prayer. The reit of the confederates and parameter were Christopher Carter, Francis Pearepoint, William Brian, William Martin, Richard Knowles: but soone they missed comfort (who were farre removed from our store) besides, the society of their acquaintance had wrought in some of them, if not a loathsomenesse of their offence, yet a forrow that their complement was not more full, and therefore a wearine fe of their being thus vntimely prescribed; infomuch, as many humble petitions were tent vnto our Gouerner, fraughe 60 full of their feeming fortow and repentance, and earnest vowes to redeeme the former trespasse, with example of dueties in them all, to the common cause, and generall butinesse; you which our Gouernour (not easie to admit any acculation, and hard to remit an offence, but at all times forry in the punishment of him, in whom may appeare either shame or contrition) was eatily content to reacknowledge them againe.

I ffffff 2

He builds a Pinnace.

Cap. Wim.

L. Lawarre.

Sir George Summers his

Another Mu-

Yet could not this be any warning to others, who more fubtilly began to shake the foundation of our quiet lafety, and therein did one Stephen Hopkins commence the first act or ouerture: A fellow who had much knowledge in the Scriptures, and could reason well therein, whom our Minister therefore chose to be his Clarke, to reade the Psalmes, and Chapters vpon Sondayes, at the affembly of the Congregation under him : who in Ianuary the twenty foure, brake with one Samuel Sharpe and Humfrey Reede (who presently discouered it to the Gouernour) and alleaged fubitantiall arguments, both civill and divine (the Scripture fallly quoted) that it was no breach of honefly, conscience, nor Religion, to decline from the obedience of the Gouernour, or refuse to goe any further, led by his authority (except it fo pleafed themfelues) fince the authority ceato goe any further, and by instantion and with it, they were all then freed from the gouern- fed when the wracke was committed, and with it, they were all then freed from the gouernment of any man; and for a matter of Confcience, it was not vnknowne to the meanest, how much we were therein bound each one to prouide for himselfe, and his owne family : for which were two apparant reasons to stay them even in this place; first, abundance by Gods providence of all manner of good foode: next, fome hope in reatonable time, when they might grow wezry of the place, to built a small Barke, with the skill and helpe of the aforelaid No bolas Beonit. whom they infinuated to them, albeit hee was now ablent from his quarter, and working in the maine Hand with Sir George Summers upon his Pinnace, to be of the confurery, that for might get cleere from hence at their owne pleafures : when in Virginia, the first would be alluredly wanting, and they might well feare to be detained in that Countrie by the authority of the Commander thereof, and their whole lite to ferue the turnes of the Aduenturers, with their transiles and labours. This being thus laid, and by fuch a one, who had gotten an opinion (as I before remembreu) of Religion; when it was declared by those two accusers, not knowing what further ground it had or complices, it pleased the Gouernour to let this his factions of fence to haue a publique affront, and contestation by these two witnesses before the whole Com-Sterben Hoskins pany, who at the toling of a Bell) affemble before a Corps du guard, where the Prifoner was condemied and particular which was onely full of forrow and teares, pleading fimplicity, and demall. Bet heebeing onely found, at this time, both the Captaine, and the follower of this Mutinie, and generally held worthy to latisfie the punishment of his offence, with the facrifice of his life, our Governour patied the fentence of a Martiall Court vpon him, fuch as belongs to Mutinie and 20 Rebellion. But so penitent hee was, and made so much moane, alleadging the ruine of his Wife and Children in this his trespalle, as it wrought in the hearts of all the better fort of the Company, who therefore with humble intreaties, and earnest supplications, went vnto our Gouernor, whom they befought (as likewife did Captaine Newport, and my felfe) and neuer left him vital we had got his pardon.

Confeience my to confcie

In the edangers and divellish disquiets (whilest the almighty God wrought for vs , and sent vs miraculously delivered from the calamities of the Sea, all bledings vpon the shoare, to content and binde vs to gratefulneile) thus inraged amongft our felues, to the destruction each of other, into what a mischiefe and misery had wee bin given vp, had wee not had a Gouer-Third Mutiny, nour with his authority, to have suppressed the same? Yet was there a work practise, fa- 40 Ction, and conjuration a foote, deadly and bloudy, in which the life of our Governour, with many others were threatned, and could not but miscarry in his fall. But such is ever the will of God (who in the execution of his judgements, breaketh the firebrands upon the head of him, who first kindleth them) there were, who conceived that our Governour indeede neither durst, nor had authority to put in execution, or palle the act of Iultice vpon any one, how treacherous or impious to euer; - their owne opinions to much deceiuing them for the valawfulness of any act, which they would execute: daring to infifine among themselves, that if they should be apprehended, before the performance, they should happily suffer as Martyrs. They perfeuered therefore not onely to draw wnto them luch a number, and allociates as they could worke in, to the abandoning of our Governour, and to the inhabiting of this Iland. They had now purpo- 50 fed to have made a surprise of the Store-house, and to have forced from thence, what was therein either of Meale, Cloath, Cables, Armes, Sailes, Oares, or what elfe it pleased God that we had recouered from the wracke, and was to ferue our generall necessity and vie, either for the relief of vs, while wee stated here, or for the carrying of vs from this place againe, when our Pinnace should have bin furnished. Eastlas inhath But as all giddy and lawlesse attempts, have alwayes fomething of impersection, and that a deficient as well by the priperty of the action, which holderh of disobedience and rebellion (both full esuicio in and of feare) as through the ignorance of the deuiters themselues; so in this (belides those detects) fects, def. dis there were some of the allociation, who not strong inough fortified in their owne concerts, brake from the plot it felie, and (before the time was ripe for the execution thereof) discour- 50 red the whole order, and every Agent, and Actor thereof, who neverthelesse were not suddenly apprehended, by reason the confederates were divided and feperated in place, some with vs, and the chiefe with Sir George Summers in his Hand (and indeede all his whole company) but good watch passed vpon them, every man from thenceforth commmanded to wears his weapon, without which before, we freely walked from quarter to quarter, and converfed among our felues, and every man aduled to stand upon his guard, his owne life not being in fafery, whileft his next neighbour was not to be trufted. The Centinels, and nightwaiters doubled, the passages of both the quarters were carefully observed, by which meanes nothing was further attempted; vntill a Gentleman amongst them, one Henry Paine, the thirteenth of H. Paine his March, full of mischiefe, and every houre preparing something or other, stealing Swords, A. Musinus behalf difer, Axes, Hatchets, Sawes, Augers, Planes, Mallets, &c. to make good his owne bad end, wout.

his watch night comming about, and being called by the Captaine of the fame, to be voon the guard, did not onely give his faid Commander cuill language, but frucke at him, doubled his blowes, and when hee was not juffered to close with him, went off the Guard, icoffing at the double diligence and attendance of the Watch, appointed by the Gouernour for much purpose, as hee faid: vpon which, the Watch telling him, if the Gouernour should vnderstand of this his infolency, at might turne him to much blame, and happily be as much as his life were worth. The faid Paine replyed with a feeled and bitter violence, and in fuch vnreuerent tearmes, as I hould offend the modelt eare too much to expresse it in his owne pirale : but the contents were, how that the Governour had no authoritie of that qualitie, to instific upon any one (how meane soener in the Colonie) an action of that nature, and therefore let the Gonernour (faid hee) kife, &c. Which words, being with the omitted additions, brought the next day vnto euery common and publique discourse, at length they were delivered over to the Goan uernour, who examining well the tact (the transgression so much the more exemplary and odious, as being in a dangerous time, in a Confederate, and the fuccesse of the same wishtly liftened after, with a doubtfull conceit, what might be the iffic of fo notorious a boldnesse and impudency) calling the faid Paine before him, and the whole Company, where (being foone consinced both by the witnesse, of the Commander, and many which were voon the watch with him) our Gouernour, who had now the eyes of the whole Colony fixed you him, condemned him to be instantly hanged; and the ladder being ready, after he had made many confessions, hee earnestly delired, being a Gentleman, that hee might be shot to death, and towards the evening His execution he had his defire, the Sunne and his life fetting together.

But for the other which were with Sir George, vpon the Sunday following (the Barke beeing ao now in good forwardnesse) and readie to lanch in short time, from that place (as we supposed) to meet ours at a pond of fresh water, where they were both to bee mored, wntill such time as being fully tackled, the wind should serue faire, for our putting to Sea together) being the eighteenth of March, hearing of Paynes death, and fearing hee had appeached them, and discovered the attempt (who poore Gentleman therein, in so bad a cause, was too secret and constant to his owne faith ingaged voto them, and as little needed, as veged thereunto, though fomewhat was voluntarily delivered by him) by a mutuall confent forfooke their labour, and Sir George Summers, and like Out-lawes betooke them to the wild Woods: whether mese rage, and gree- Diversof Sie dineffe after fome little Pearle (as it was thought) wherewith they conceived, they should for G Summers ener inrich themselues, and saw how to obtaine the same easily in this place, or whether, comp ny fire an the defire for ever to inhabite heere, or was other fecret elfe mouel them thereunto, into the woods true it is, they fent an audacious and formall Petition to our Gouernour, subscribed with all their names and Seales : not only intreating him, that they might flay herre, but (with oreat art) importuned him, that he would performe other conditions with them, and not wave, nor euade from some of his owne promises, as namely to furnish each of them with two Sutes of Apparell, and contribute Meale rateably for one whole yeere, so much among them, as they had weekly now, which was one pound and an halfea weeke (for such had been our proportion for nine moneths.) Our Gouernour answered this their Petition, writing to Sir George Summers to

That true it was, at their first arrivall upon this Iland, when it was feared how our meanes would not Sit T. Gateshin extend to the making of a Velfell, capeable and large enough, to transport all our Countrimen at once . in letter to Sit Go 50 deed out of his Christian consideration (mourning for such his Countrimen, who comming under his com- Summers. mand, he fore aw that for a while, he was like enough to leave here behind, compelled by tyrannie of necessitie) his purpose was not yet to for suke them so, as given up like Sanages : but to leave them all things fitting to defend them from want and wretchednesse, as much at least as lay in his power, to spece from the present use (and perhaps necessitie of others, whose fortunes should be to be transported with him) for one whole years or more (if so long by any casualtie, the lins which he would send was them michs be Staied before their arrivall, so many bazards accompanying the Sea) but withall intreated Sir George to remember unto his Company (if by any meanes he could learne where they were) how he had vowed unto him, that if either his ownemeanes, his anthoritie in Virginia, or love with his friends in England, 6) could dispatch for them fooner, how farre it was from him, to let them remarne abandoned, and neg-letted without their redemption folong: and then proceeded, requesting Sir George Summers againe, to signifie unto them, lince now our owne Pinnalle did arise to that buriben, and that it would sufficiently transport them all, beside the necessitie of any other Barke; and yet, that since his Barke was now readic too, that those consultations, how somer charitable and most passionate in themselves, might determine, as

taken away thereby, and therefore, that he bould now bee pleafed to admife them well, how unanswerable this grant or consent of his bould be : first, to his Maieste for so many of his subjects, next to the Ad. menturers, and lastity, what an imputation and infamy it might be, to both their owne proper reputations. mounters, una injury, won, an improvement in their places, to competite adnersant and irregular multitude, at any time, to what frould bee obedient and honest, which if they should not execute, the blame would not by upon the people (at all times wavering and insolent) but upon themselves so weake and unworthy in their command. And moreoner intreated him by any fecret practice to apprehend them, fince that the obstinate, and precipitate many, were no more in (nch a condition and state to bee fanoured, then the murmuring and mutinie of such Rebellious and turbulent Humorists, who had not considence nor the marmurang was minister of goodnesse, and in the businesse for which they were sent out of England; 10 for which likewife, at the expence and charge of the Adventurers, they were to him committed, and that the meanest in the whole Fices stood the Company in no leffe then twentie pounds, for his owne personall Transportation, and things necessary to accompany him. And therefore loningly consured Sir George, by the worthinesse of his (heretosore) well magnitaged reputation, and by the powers of his owne indecwint, and by the vertine of that ascient lone and friendlip, which had thefe many yeeres beene feiled betweene them, to doe his beft, to give this remoited Company (if he could fend unto them) the confideration of these particulars, and so works with them (if he might) that by faire meanes (the Matiniereconciled) they would at length (uruey their owne errours, which bee would bee as readie, upon their rendring and comming into paridon, as he did now pittie them: affuring them in general and particular, that what focuer they had fin ferly committed, or practifed buberto against the Lawes of dutie and honestie, 20 frould not in any fort be imputed againft them.

In which good Office Sir George Summers did so nobly worke, and heartily labour, as hee brought most of them in, and indeed ail, but Christopher Carter, and Robert Waters, who (by no meanes) would any more come among it Sit Georges men, hearing that Sir George had commanded his men indeed (ince they would not be intreated by faire meanes) to furprize them (if they could) by any device or force. From which time they grew fo cautelous and wary, for their owne ill, as at our comming away, wee were faine to Isaue them behind. That Waters was a Sayler, who at his first landing upon the lland (as after you shall heare) killed another fellow Sayler of his, the bodie of the murthered and Murcherer fo dwelling, as prescribed now

During our time of abode upon these Hands, wee had daily every Sunday two Sermons pres-

Backt.

The most holy:

Marriage.

Child-birth,

Chi'dren named Bermuda

civilland mod

Maters and

Larter ftand

out and are left behind.

Religiouses- ched by our Minister, besides every Morning and Evening at the ringing of a Bell, wee repayed ercies perfor- all to puplique Prayer, at . hat time the names of our whole Company were called by Bill, and med by Mafter fuch as were wanting, were duly punished.

The contents (for the most part) of all our Preachers Sermons, were especially of Thankefulnesse and Vnitie, &c.

It pleated God alio to give vs opportunitie, to performe all the other Offices, and Rites of our Christian Profession in this lland : as Marriage, for the fixe and twentieth of November, we had one of Sir George Summers his men, his Cooke, named Thomas Powell, who matried a Maid Servant of one Miltris Horton, whole name was Elizabeth Persons: and upon Christmasse Eue, 40 as also once before, the first of October; our Minister preached a godly Sermon, which being enday by exercise ded, he celebrated a Communion, at the partaking whereof our Gouernour was, and the greater ded, he celebrated a Communion, at the partaking whereof our Gouernour was, test part of our Company : and the elementh of February , weehad the childe of one lobn Rofe of Sacraments christened a Daughter, to which Captaine Newport and my selfe were Witnesses, and the aforefaid Multis Horson and we named it Bermuds, as also the five and twentieth of Marc', the wife of one Edward Eason, being delivered the weeke before of a Boy, had him then christened, to which Captaine Newport and my feife, and Maiter lames Swift were Godfathers, and we named and Beymsdas.

Likewife, we buried five of our company, Ieffery Briars, Richard Lewis, William Hitchman, and my God-daughter Bermuda Rolfe, and one votimely Edward Samuell a Sayler, being villanouly 50 killed by the forefaid Robert Waters, (a Sayler likewife) with a shouell, who strake him therewith under the life of the Eare, for which he was apprehended, and appointed to be hanged the next day, the fact being done in the twilight) but being bound falt to a Tree all night, with many Ropes, and a Guard of fine or fix to attend him, his fellow Saylers watching the advantage of the Centinels fleeping) in despisht and distaine that Instice should bee shewed upon a Sayler, and that one of their crue should be an example to others, not taking into confideration, the vincanlineff of the murther, nor the horror of the finne, they cut his bands, and conveyed him into

We chad brought our Pinnafe fo forward by this time, as the eight and twentieth of August 60 we having laid her Keele. The fixe and twentieth of February, we now began to calke cold Cables we had preferred vnto vs, which affoorded Ocam enough : and one barrell of Pitch, and another of Tire, we like wife faued, which ferued our viefome little way vpon the Bile, wee breamed her otherwite with Lime made of Wilke fiels, and an hard white ftone which we bur-

the Woods, where they fed him nightly, and closely, who afterward by the mediation of Sir George Summers, upon many conditions, had his tryall respited by our Gourmour.

ned in a Kill, flaked with fresh water, and tempered with Tortoyles Oyle. The thirtieth of March being Friday, we towed her out in the morning Spring-tyde, from the Wharfe where the was built, boying her with foure Caske in her runne only : which opened into the Northweft, and into which when the Breeze flood North and by West with any staffegale, and your the Spring-tydes, the Sea would increase with that violence, especially twice it did to, as at the first time (before our Gouernour had caused a solid Causey of an hundred load of stone to bee brought from the Hils and Neighbour Rockes, and round about her ribs from flemme to flemme. where it made a pointed Baulke, and thereby brake the violence of the Flowe and Billowe) it indangered her overthrow and ruine, beeing greene as it were voon the Stockes. With much to difficultie, diligence, and labour, we faued her at the first, all her Bales, Shores, and Piles, which under-fet her, being almost carried from her, which was the fecond of January, when her knees were not fet to, nor one joynt firme : We launched her vnrigged, to carrie her to a little round Iland, lying Well North-weit, and close abourd to the backe side of our Hand, both neerer the Ponds and Wels of fome fresh water, as also from thence to make our way to the Sea the better: the Channell being there fufficient and deepe enough to leade her forth, when her Mafts, Savles, and all her Trimme should bee about her. Shee was fortie foot by the Keele, and nineteene foot broad at the Beame, fixe foote floore, her Rake forward was fourteene foot, her Rake aft from the top of her Poil (which was twelve foot long) was three foot, thee was eight foot deepe vnder her Beame, betweene her Deckes the was foure foot and an halfe; with a riting of halfe a foot 20 more under her fore Castle, of purpose to scowre the Decke with small shot, if at any time wee should bee borded by the Enemie. Shee had a fall of eighteene inches aft, to make her sterage and her great Cabbin the more large; her sterage was fine toote long, and fixe foore high, with a close Gallerie right aft, with a window on each fide, and two right aft. The most part of her timber was Cedar, which we found to be bad for hipping, for that it is wonderous falle inward, Cedarill for and befides 1: 18 fo spault or brickle, that it will make no good plankes, her Beames were all Oke thipping, of our rune ship, and some plankes in her Bow of Oke, and all the rest as is aforesaid. When thee began to swimme (vpon her launching) our Gouernour called her The Deliverance, and thee might be some eighty tunnes of burthen.

Before we quitted our old quarter, and dislodged to the fresh water with our Pinnasse, our Go-

30 nemour fet vp in Sir George Summers Garden a faire Muemofjnon in figure of a Croffe, made of Croffe fet vp some of the timber of our ruined shippe, which was scrued in with strong and great trunnels to a for a memorial mightie Cedar, which grew in the middeft of the faid Garden, and whofe top and upper branches he caused to be lopped, that the violence of the winde and weather might have the leffe power ouer her.

In the middest of the Crosse, our Gouernour fastened the Picture of his Maiestie in a piece of His Maiesties Siluer of twelue pence, and on each side of the Croffe, hee fet an Inteription graven in Copper, in Picture, the Latine and English to this pur pole,

In memory of our great Delinerance, both from a mightie storme and leake : wee have set up this to the bonour of God. It is the poyle of an English |bip (of three bundred tunne) called the Sea Venture. 40 bound with seven ships more (from which the storme divided vs) to Virginia, or Nova Britania, in America. In it were two Knights, Sir Thomas Gates Knight , Gonernour of the English Forces and Colonie there : and Sir George Summers Knight, Admirall of the Seas. Her Capsaine was Christopher Newport, Paffengers and Mariners shee had beside (which came all (afe to Land) one bundred and liftie. We were forced to runne ber ashore (by reason of her leake) under a Point that bore Southeast from the Northerne Point of the Iland, which wee disconcred first the eight and twentieth of

About the last of Aprill, Sir George Summers launched his Pinnasse, and brought her from his building Bay, in the Mayne Hand, into the Chanuell where ours did ride, and fhee was by the Keele nine and twentie foot : at the Beame fifteene foot and an halfe : at the Loote fourteene, at 50 the Trausam nine, and the was eight foot deepe, and drew sixe foote water, and hee called her

S. III.

Their departure from Bermuda and arrivall in Virginia : miseries there, departure and returne upon the Lord LA WARRES arriving. I A M E S Towne described.

Rom this time we only awaited a favourable Westerly wind to carrie vs forth, which longer then viuall now kept at the Eart, and South-east, the way which wee were to goe. The tenth of May early, Sir George Summers and Captaine Nempors went off with their long Boates, and with two Canoaes boyed the Channell, which wee were to leade it out in , and which was no broader from Shoales on the one fide and of that, were we able to fit our Bowyes, but even when we came just upon them, we strucke a more winde blew, we were fainte to court in Rocke on the starboord side, ouer which the Bowye rid, and had it not beene a soft Rocke. by which meanes she bore it before her, and crushed it to pieces, God knowes we might have beene like enough, to have returned anew, and dwelt there, after tenne monethes of carefuln fleand great labour a longer time : but God was more mescifull vnto vs. When shee strucke vpon the Rocke, the Cock-1 wayne one Walfingham beeing in the Boate with a quicke spirit (when wee were all amazed, and our hearts failed) and to by Gods goodnesse wee led it out at three fadome. Io and three fadome and an halfe water. The wind ferued vs eafily all that day and the next, when (God be ever prayled for it) to the no little ioy of vs all, we got cleere of the Ilands. After which holding a Southerly course, for seven dayes wee had the winde sometimes faire, and sometimes scarce and contratie : in which time we Loft Sir George Summers twice, albeit we still spared him our may ne top-layle, and sometimes our fore course too. The seventeenth of May we saw change of water, and had much Rubbish swimme by our ship Signe of fide, whereby weeknew wee were not farre from Land. The eighteenth about midnight wee Land. founded, with the Dipling Lead, and found thirtie feuen fadome. The nineteenth in the morning we founded, and had nineteene and an halfe falome, stonie, and fandie ground. The twentierhabout midnight, we had a maruellous iweet finell from the shoare (as from the Coast of 20 Spaine, thort of the Straits) itrong and pleasant, which did not a little glad vs. In the morning by day breake (fo soone as one might well see from the fore-top) one of the Saylers descryed Land about an houre after, I went vpa id might discouer two Hummockes to the Southward, from which (Northward all along) lay the Land, which were were to Coast to Cape Henrie. About feuen of the clocke wecaft for han Anchor, because the tyde (by reason or the Freshet that fet into the Bay) make a strong Ebbe there, and the winde was but easte, so as not beeing ableto stemme the Tyde, we purposed to lye at an Anchor vntill the next flood, but the wind comming South-west a loome gale about eleuen, we set tayle againe, and hauing got ouer the Barre, bote This is the famous Chesipiacke Bay, which we have called (in honour of our young Prince) 30 Cape Henrie over against which within the Bay, lyeth another Head-land, which wee called in Cheffiack Bay. honour of our Princely Duke of Yorke Cape Charles; and these lye North-east and by East, and South-west and by West, and they may bee distant each from the other in breadth seuen leagues, betweene which the Sea runnes in as broad as betweene Queenebutrough and Lee. Indeed it is a goodly Bay and a fairer, not eafily to be found. The one and twentieth, beeing Munday in the morning, wee came vp within two milesof Point Comfort, ween the Captaine of the Fort discharged a warning Peece at vs, whereupon we came to an Anchor, and fent off our long Boar to the Fort, to certifie who we were by reason of the shoales which lye on the South-side, this Fort early commands the mouth of the River, albeit it is as broad as betweene Greenwich, and the Ile of Dogges. True it is, such who talked with our men from the shoare, deliuered how safely all our ships the last yeere (excepting only the Admirall, and the little Pinnalle in which one Muchael Philes commanded of iome twentie tunne, which we towed a sterne till the storme blew) arrived, and how our people (well increased) had therefore builded this Fort; only wee could not learne any thing of our long Boat, fent from the Bermudas, but what wee gathered by the Indians themselves, especially from Powhatan, who would tell our men of such a Boat landed in one of his Riuers, and would describe the people, and make much seeffing sport thereat : by which wee have gathered, that it is most likely, how it arrived upon our Coast, and not meeting with our River were taken at some time or other, at some advantage by the Savages, and so cut off. When our The long Boat Skuffe came up againe, the good newes of our ships, and mens arruall the last veere, did nota 50 fent by Rauens cuft away little glad our Gouernour: who went foone ashoare, and assoone (contrary to all our faire hopes) had new enexpected, encomfortable, and heavie newes of a worle condition of our people aboue at lames Towne.

70 diforders the lait veere) then i was east e nour found the condition and there of the C is how to amend it or faue are owne Company, at the like necessities. For we had brought from ring no fuch accidents pointle to betali the C. fiftie for a Sea Voyage : 171 wacm : pais helpe from the Inwan. Fire the time, this time

fion, the old Patent and the Council State had taken from them) rent vp and burnt, rather within; with many more particularities of their flones call off from them, to teten other her.

out, if our men (tirred but beyond the orange downe, the Ports open, the Catestran, mouth, it was now like with him en Selection nor was there at the Fort and were my week ther fufficient Seine, nor other con e. ent No. 20 Sturgeon yet come into the North Alexander Speech vinto the Company, get ne them and equally there with him, and the thing from the Countrey, by the endeander port them all into their Nithur Countrey there was a general acclamation, and in outer to be disheartened and faint, when they taw ? ned vnto themfelues. In the meane which . ctions, which hee en ovned them threative t them, which being written out take, were fer 30 notice of. If I should be examined from whence, and h ons descended upon our people. I can only reter the Aduenturers have fent hitner intituled, . "

in the ground and causes are fausurably and an produced, not excufing likew to the turne of ? full enough among to heatie a multipluse, et per the lait years with vs : with whom to coerte absolute command, came along and . mere we with them had reached our will early to Vinto fuch calamity can that him to an exdeede (right noble Laciv) no it ev can re nome.

people, thus gouerned, have bot . Fire and and fome of them, whose vavces and communate guilt hereof, as flanding vntourist in the renaries shall neuer find time nor care of the practifes, who, it may be, lavall the where the But vnder pardon, let me speake terely to the

both meet in any one of their that I am tie in England, continuall watti gir filian " 50 provisions, what better could total and the ner, then necessarily toll was a leave doome of the Witeman 1 Per a . 1 fothy powerty commeto, at ore that there is a to with this Idlenetle, when and the headlesse in this day . -which they were fert higher, - - - - for their owne bellies, more para Gardens or eliewhere I have no a region lie ficke and languable of the bee

V pon Point Comfort our men did the last yeere (as you have heard) rayse a little Fortification, which fince hath beene better perfected, and is likely to prooue aftrong Fort, and is now kept by Captaine lames Danies with forty men, and hath to name Algernoone Fort, to called by Captaine George Percy, whom we found at our arrivall Prefident of the Colony and at this timelikewife in the Fort. When we got into the Point, which was the one and twentieth of May, being Rockeson the other, then about three times the length of our Pinnafe. About ten of the clocke, that day being Touriday, we fet fayle an eafiegale, the wind at South, and ov reason no more winde blew, we were fame to towe her with our long Boate, yet neither with the helpe of that, were we the to fit our Bowyes, but even when we came just voon them, we strucke a Rocke on the starboard side, over which the Bowye rid, and had it not beene a fost Rocke, by which meanes she bore it before her, and cruthed it to pieces, God knowes we might have beene like enough, to have recurned anew, and dwelt there, after tenne monethes of carefuln fle and great labour a longer time; but God was more meiciful vnto vs. When thee ftrucke vpon the Rocke, the Cock-twayne one Walfingham beeing in the Boate with a quicke fpirit (when wee were all amazed, and our hearts failed) and fo by Gods goodnesse wee led it out at three fadome, 10 and three fadome and an halfe water. The wins ferued vs eafily all that day and the next, when (God be ever prayled for it) to the no little toy of vs all, we got cleere of the Ilands. After which holding a Southerly courfe, for feuen dayes wee had the winde fometimes faire, and fometimes fearce and contrarie : in which time we Lift Sir George Summer; twice, albeit we fill spared mm our mayne top-fayle, and sometimes our tore course too.

Signe of

The fenenceenth of May we faw change of warer, and had much Rubbish swimme by our ship fide, whereby wee knew wee were not farre from Land. The eighteenth bout midnight wee founded, with the Dapting Lead, and found thirtie feuen fadome. The mineteenth in the morning we founded, and ad nineteene and an haire faiome, fronie, and fandie ground. The twentieth about midnight, we had a margellous iweet fmell from the shoare (as from the Coast of 19 Spaine, thort of the Straits) itrong and pleafant, which did not a little glad vs. In the morning by day breake (fo foone as one might well fee from the fore-top) one of the Saylers deferyed Land about an houre after, I went vp and might discouer two Hummockes to the Southward, from which (Northward all along) lay the Land, which were were to Coast to Cape Henrie. About feuen of the clocke we cast forth an Anchor, because the tyde (by reason or the Freshet that set into the Bay) make a ftrong Ebbe there, and the winde was but easie, so as not beeing able to ftemme the Tyde, we purposed to lye at an Anchor vntill the next flood, but the wind comming South-west a loome gale about eleuen, we settayle againe, and hauing got ouer the Barre, bore in for the Cape.

This is the famous Chefipiacke Bay, which we chaue called (in honour of our young Prince) 30 Cape Henrie ouer against which within the Bay, lyeth another Head-land, which wee called in honour of our Princely Duke of Torke Cape Charles; and thefe lye North-east and by East, and South-west and by West, and they may bee distant each from the other in breadth seuen leagues, betweene which the Sea runnes in as broad as betweene Queeneburrough and Lee. Indeed it is a goodly Bay and a fairer, not eafily to be found.

The one and twentieth, beeing Munday in the morning, wee came up within two miles of Point Comfort, ween the Captaine of the Fort discharged a warning Pecceat vs, whereupon we came to an Anchor, and fent off our long Boar to the Fort, to certifie who we were by reason of the shoales which lye on the South-side, this Fort early commands the mouth of the River, albeit it is as broad as betweene Greenwich, and the He of Dogges.

True it is, such who talked with our men from the shoare, deliuered how safely all our ships the last yeere (excepting only the Admirall, and the little Pinnalle in which one Michael Philes commanded of some twentie tunne, which we towed a sterne till the storme blew) arrived, and how our people (well increased) had therefore builded this Fort; only wee could not learne any thing of our long Boat, fent from the Bermudas, but what wee gathered by the Indians themfelues, especially from Powhatan, who would tell our men of such a Boat landed in one of his Riuers, and would describe the people, and make much scoffing sport thereat : by which wee have gathered, that it is most likely, how it arrived upon our Coast, and not meeting with our River were taken at some time or other, at some advantage by the Savages, and so cut off. When our Skiffecame vp againe, the good newes of our ships, and mens arrivall the last weere, did not a 50 little glad our Gouernour: who went soone ashoare, and assoone (contrary to all our faire hopes) had new vnexpected, vncomfortable, and heavie newes of a worle condition of our people aboue at lames Towne.

The long Boat mens caft away

Miserable

Vpon Point Comfort our men did the last yeere (as you have heard) rayse a little Fortification, which fince hath beene better perfected, and is likely to prooue a ftrong Fort, and is now kept by Captaine lames Danies with forty men, and bath to name Algernoone Fort, localled by Captaine George Percy, whom we found at our arrivall President of the Colony, and at this timelike-M. George Percy. wife in the Fort. When we got into the Point, which was the one and twentieth of May, being Munday about noone; where riding before an Indian Towne called Keconghien, a mightie storme

From hence in two dayes (only by the helpe of Tydes, no winde flirting) wee plyed it fadly on the River, and the three colors and three colors and the three colors and three colors an of Thunder, Lightning, and Raine, gaue vs a shrewd and fearefull welcome. vp the River, and the three and twentieth of May we cast Anchor before Iames Towne, where we landed, and our much grieued Gouernour first visiting the Church caused the Bell to be rung, at which (all fuch as wereable to come forth of cheir houses) repayted to Church where our MiCHAP. 6.8 3. Fort viewed Want of provision. Neglett, and sensuall surfer.

miller Mafter Bucke made a zealous and forrowfull Prayer, finding all things fo contrary to our expectations, to full of misery and misgouernment. After Seruice our Governour cauled mee to reade his Commillion, and Captaine Percie (then Prefident) deliuered up unto him his Commif. Old Farent fion, the old Patent and the Councell Seale. Viewing the Fort, we found the Palliladoes torne verified vp. downe, the Ports open, the Gates from off the hinges, and emptie houles (which Owners deat had taken from them) rent vp and burnt, rather then the dwellers would flep into the Woodsa thones cast off from them, to fetch other fire-wood : and it is true, the Indian killed as fait without, if our men (tirred but beyond the boun Is of their Block-house, as Famine and Pestilence did instead for their mileties within; with many more particularities of their fufferances (brought vpon them by their owne could malarum; to diforders the last yeere) then I have heart to expresse. In this defolation and misery our Governour found the condition and state of the Colonie, and (which added more to his griefe) no hope how to amend it or faue his owne Company, and those yet remayning alive, from falling into the like necessities. For we had brought from the Bermadas no greater store of provision (tearing no fuch accidents possible to befall the Colony here) then might well Grue one hundred and fiftie for a Sea Voyage and it was not posible, at this time of the yeere to amount it, by any helpe from the Indian. For beiles that they (at their beit) have little more, then from band to mouth, it was now likewife but weir Seed-time, and all their Corne fearce put into the ground : nor was there at the Fort, as they whom we found related vnto vs) any meanes to take till, neither sufficient Seine, nor other conuccient Net, and yet if there had, there was not one eye of 10 Sturgeon yet come into the River. All which confidered, it pleafed our Governour to make a Speech vnto the Company, giving them o vnderdand, that what providen he had, they should equally share with him, and if he should had it not possible, and easie to supply them with some thing from the Countrey, by the endeuours o' his able men, hee would make readie, and transport them all into their Native Countrey (accommodating them the best that he could) at which there was a generall acclamation, and shoute of io, on both sides (for even our owne men began to be disheartened and faint, when they saw this morey among the others, and no lesse threatned vnto themselves. In the meane while, our Government published certaine Orders and Instru-Aions, which hee enjoyined them firifully to observe, the time that hee should stay among the continued for them, which being written out faire, were fet vp vpon a pol in the Church for every one to take their fhort notice of.

If I should be examined from whence, and by what occasion, all these disasters, and affilieti- culers are here ons descended wpon our people, I can only referre you (honoured Lidie) to the Booke, which contained a the Aduenturers have fent hither intituled, Adnertisements onto the Colony in Virginia: where- Preface and in the ground and causes are fauourably abridged, from whence these milerable effects have beene at Articles to produced, not excufing likewife the forme of government of some errour, which was not power- Pictie, Loyaltill enough among so headie a multitude, especially, as those who arrived here in the supply fent the and Politic the last yeere with vs: with whom the better authoritie and gouernment now changes into an the Colonie, biolute command, came along, and had beene as happily established, had it pleased God, that we with them had reached our wished Harbour. Vinto fuch calamity can floath, riot, and vanity, bring the most fetled and plentifull estate. In-deede (right noble Lady) no ftory can remember vinto vs, more woes and anguifnes, then thefe people, thus gouerned, have both fuffered and pold voon their owne heads. And yet true it is.

fome of them, whose voyces and command might not be heard, may easily be absolued from the guilt hereof, as standing vntouched, and vpright in their innocencies; whilest the privile factionaties shall neuer find time nor darknesse, to wipe away or couer their ignoble and irreligious. Men blamed practifes, who, it may be, lay all the differedits, and imputations the while upon the Countrie. but not all the

But vinder pardon, let me speake freely to them : let them remember that if riot and floth should. Country freed both meet in any one of their best Families, in a Countrey most stored with abundance and plentie in England, continuall wasting, no Husbandry, the old store still spent on , no order for new provisions, what better could be all vinto the Inhabitants, Land-lords, and Tenants of that corner, then necessarily following cleannesse of teeth, famine and death? Is it not the sentence and doome of the Wiseman! Tet a little sleepe, a little slumber, and a little folding of the hands to sleepe: Prou.6. so thy powerty commeth, as one that travelleth by the way, and thy necessitie like an armed man. And with this Idleneffe, when some thing was in store, all wastfull courses exercised to the height, and the headlesse multitude, some neither of qualitie nor Religion) not imployed to the end for which they were fent hither, no not compelled (lince in themfelues vinwilling) to fowe Corne fortheir owne bellies, nor to put a Roote, Herbe, &c. for their owne particular good in their Gardens or eliewhere: I fay in this neglect and fentuall Surfet, all things fuffered to runne on, to lieficke and languish; must it be expected, that health, plentie, and all the goodnesse of a well Ordered State, of necessitie for all this to flow in this Country? You have a right and noble heart (worthy Lady) beeindge of the truth herein. Then fuffer it not bee concluded vnto you, for beleeue, I befeech you, that the wants and wretchednesse which they have indured, ascend of the pouertie and vilenesse of the Countrey, whether bee respected the Land or Rivers:

the one, and the other, having not only promifed, but powred enough in their veines, to con-

1750

uince them in fuch calumnies, and to quit those common calimities, which (as the shadow The Courter accompanies the body) the precedent neglects touched at, if truely followed, and wrought vpon. What Englandmay boalt of, having the faire hand of husbandry to manure and dreffe it, God, and Nature have favourably bestowed vpon this Country, and as it hath given vnto it, both by fituation, height, and soyle, all those (part hopes) affurances which follow our well planted native Countrie, and others, lying vinder the fame influence: if, as ours, the Countriey and foyle might be improued, and drawne forth: lo hath it indowed it, as is most certaine, with many nore, which England tetcheth farre vntoher from ellewhere. For fift wee house experience, and even our eyes witherfie (how yong fo ever wee are to the Countrie) that no Countrey yeeldethegoodher Corne, nor more manifold increase : large Fields wee haue, as prospects of the 10 same, and not farre from our Pallisado. Besides, wee haue thousands of goodly Vines in euery hedge, and Boske running along the ground, which yeelde a plentiful Grape in their kinde. Let mee appeale then to knowledge, if these naturall Vires were planted, dreffed, and ordered by skilfall Vincaroones, whether wee might not make a perfect Grape, and francefull vintage in those time? And we have made triall of our owne English feedes, kitchen treate, and Rootes, and finde them to prosper as speedily as in Eigland.

Times of 11-

T.Gates.

Onely let me truely acknowledge, they are not an hundre or two of deboilt hands, dropt forth by yeare atter yeare, with penury, and leifure, ill prouded for before they come, and worfe mifery in Virtuo be gouerned when they are here, men of fuch destempered bodies, and infected mindes, whom no examples daily before their eyes, either of goodnesse o punishment, can deterre from their habituall impieties, or terrifie from a shamefull death, nat must be the Carpenters, and worke-

men in this to glorious a building. Then let no rumour of the pouerty of the Courty (as if in the wombe thereof there lay not those elementall leedes, which could produce a many faire births of plenty, and increase, and better hopes, then any land vnder the heaves to which the Sunne is no neerer a neighbour) I fay. let no imposture rumour, nor any fame of some one, or a few more changeable actions, interpofing by the way, or at home, want any mans taire purposes hitherward, or wrest them to a declining and falling off from the bufinelle

I will acknowledge, detre Lady thate feene much propenfineffe already towards the unity, and generall endeauours: how contentedly doe such as labour with vs, goe forth, when men of 30 ranke and quality, all it, anities on their labours? I have feene it, and I protest it, I have heard the inferiour people, with alacrity of spirit professe, that they should neuer refuse to doe their best in the practife of cheir iciences and knowledges, when such worthy, and Noble Gentlemen goe it and out before them, and not onely fo, but as the occasion shall be offered, no late helpe them with their hand, then defend them with their Sword. And it is to bourvader Sir be voderflood, that fuch as labour, are not yet fo taxed, but that eafly they performe the fame, and end by tenne of the clocke have done their Mornings worke: at what time, they have the allowances fet out ready for them, and vntill the three of the clocke againe, they take elieir owne plealure, and afterwards with the Sunne fet, their dayes labour is finished. In all which couries, if the businesse be continued, I doubt nothing, with Gods fauour towards 40 vs, but to fee it in time, a Countrie, an Hauen, and a Staple, fitted for such a trade, as shall advance affureder increale, both to the Adventurers, and free Burgers thereof, then any Trade in Christendome , or then that (even in her earely dayes, when Michael Causeco the Greeke, did first discouer it to our English Factor in Poland) which extenus it selie now from Calpe hopes of Virand Abila, to the bottome of Sidon, and so wide as Alexandria, and all the Ports and Hauens North and South, through the Arches to Co., Smyrna, Troy, the Hellefont, and vp to Pompeys Piliar, which as a Pharos, or watch Tower, itands vpon the wondrous opening into the Euxine Sca.

Sir T. Gates his care.

Note. The

From the three and twentieth of May, wnto the fruenth of June, our Gouernour attempted, and made triall of all the wayes, that both his owne indgement could prompe him in , and the 50 aduise of Captaine George Perer, and those Centlemen whom hee found of the Counsell, when hee came in , as of others; whom hee caused to deliver their knowledges, concerning the State and Condition of the Countrey: but after much debating, it could not appeare, how possibly they might preserve themselves (reteruing that little which wee brought from the Bermudas in our Simppes, and was vpon all occasions to stand good by vs) tenne dayes from starning. For besides, that the Indians were of themselves poore, they were forbidden likewife (by their fibtile King Powbatan) at all to trade with vs; and not onely fo, but to indanger and affault any Boate upon the River, or Hragler out of the Fort by Land, by which (not long before out arrivali) our people had a large Boate cue off, and divers of our men kdled, euen within command of our Blocke-house; as likewise, they shot two of our people to 62 death, after we had bin foure and fine dayes come in: and yet would they dare then to enter out Ports, and trucke with vs (as they counterfeited underhand) when indeede, they came but as Spies to discouer our strength, trucking with vs vpon such hard conditions, that our Gouernour might very well fee their subtiltie, and therefore neither could well indure, nor would continue it. And I may truely fay befide, fo had our men abased, and to such a contempt. had they brought the value of our Copper, that a prece which would have bought a bulhell of Basenesse of their Corne in former time, would not now buy a little Cade or Bisket of a Pottle. And for this misgouernment, chiefely our Colony is much bound to the Mariners, who never yet in any Voyage hither, but haue made a prey of our poore people in want; infomuch, as velleffe Mischiefes of they might advance foure or five for one (how affored focuer of the payments of their Bils of Mariners. Exchange) they would not spare them a dust of Corne, nor a pinte of Beere, to give vinto them the leaft comfort or reliefe, although that Biere purloyned, and stolne perhaps, either from some particular supply, or from the generall store : to vncharmable a parcell of people they whe, and ill conditioned. I my felfe haue heard the Mafter of a Shippe lay (euen voon the arriuall of this Fleete, with the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, when the faid Mafter was treated with for such Commodities as hee brought to felt) that valeffe hee might have an East Indian increase, foure for one, all charges cleered, hee would not part with a Canof Beere. Befides, to doe vs more villany and mischiefe, they would fend of their long Boates still by night, and (well guarded) make out to the neighbour Villages, and Townes, and there (contrary to the Articles of the Fort, which now pronounce death for a trespasse of that qualitie) trucke with the Indians, giving for their trifles Otter skinnes, Beuers, Rokoone Furres, Beares skinnes, &c. to large a quantity, and measure of Copper, as when the Trucke-Master for the Colong, in the day time offered trade, the Indians would laugh and forme the fame, telling what to bargains they met witha'l by night, from our Mangor Quintons (fo calling our great Shippes) by which meanes, the Market with them forestalled thus by these dishonest men, I may boluly lay, they have bin a confequent cause (this last yeare) to the death and starting of many a worthy Pursers from fpirit; but I hope to lee a true amendment and reformation, as well of those as of divers other intollerable abuses, thrust upon the Colony by these shamelesse people, as also for the transportation onof fuch prouisions and supplies as are tent hither, and come under the charge of purfers (a parcell, fragment, and odde ends of fellowes dependancies to the others) a better course thought vpon : of which supplies, neuer yet came into the Store, or to the Parties, vnto whom such supplies were fent, by relation hitherto, a moirie or third part; for the speedy redresse of this, being fo fourraigne a point, I vinderstand how the Lord Governour and Captaine Generall, hath adur- Remedy, If fe | vnto the Counfell, that there may be no more prouisions at all deliuered vnto Pursers, but hath intreated to have the provision thus ordered. He would have a Commissary Generall of the Victuals to be appointed, who (receiving the flore for the Colony, by Indenture from the Frequency furer, and Victuallers in England) may keepe a just accompt, what the groffe amounteth voto, and what is transported every Voyage, in leuerall kindes, as of Bread, Meate, Beere, Wine, &c. which faid Commiffary shall deliner ouer the same, to the Matter of every Ship, and take an Indentre from the faid Mafter, of what he hath in charge, and what he is to deliver to the Treasurer of the flore in Virginia: of which, if any be wanting, he the faid Mafter shall make it good, out of in owne intertainment, otherwife the Purfers, Stewards, Coopers, and quarter Mafters, will befure ftill, not onely to give themselves and their friends double allowances, but thinke it all will gotten that they can purloine and Heale away. Besides that the Indian thus euill intreated vs, the River (which were wont before this time of the yeare to be plentifull of Storgion) had not now a Fish to be seene in it, and affect we labured, and hold our Net twenty times day and night, yet we tooke not so much as would content halfe the Fishermen. Our Gouernout therefore sent away his long Boate to coast the River downward, as farre as Point Comfort, and from thence to Cape Henry, and Cape Charles, and all within the Bay : which after a leuen nights triall and trausile, returned without any fruites of their labours, scarse getting so much Fish as served their owne Company.

And to take any thing from the Indian by force, we never vied, nor willingly ever will and The Colony though they had well deferued it, yet it was not now time, for they did (as I faid before) but when they h then set their Corne, and at their best, they had but from hand to mouth; so as what now fouredayes of temained ! fuch as we found in the Fort, had wee staid but foure dayes, had doubtliffe bin the straing. most part of them started, for their best reliefe was onely Mushrums, and some heartes, which sod together, made but a thin and vulauory broath, and fivelled them much. The pitry hereof moued our Gouernour to draw forth fuch provision as he had brought, proportioning a measure equally to every one a like. But then our Governor began to examine how long this his flore would hold out, and found it (husbanded to the best adventage) not possible to serue longer then fixeene dayes: after which, nothing was to be possibly supposed out of the Country (as before temembred) nor remained there then any meanes to transport him elsewhere. Whereupon hee then entred into the confultation with Sir George Summers, and Captaine Newport, calling vnto the same the Gentlemen and Counsell of the former Gouernment, intreating both the one and the other to adulfe with him what was best to be done. The prouision which they both had aboord himselfe and Sir George Summers, was examined, and delinered, how it, being rackt to the vttermoft, extended not about, as I faid, fixteene dayes, after two Cakes a day. The Gentlehen of the Town, who knew better of the Country, could not give him any hope;or wayes, how would continue it. And I may true vay believe, to had our men abased, and to such a contempt. the regard full wer, and wrought vo. had they brought the value of our Copper, that a prece which would have bought a bushell of Basenesse of gran ê satulio international control of the state of the st their Corne in former time, would not now buy a little Cade or Basket of a Pottle. And for The state of the s this milgouernment, chiefely our Colony is much bound to the Mariners, who never yet in aan nicht fest in der Duratiere gening fein Woor well planmy Voyage hither, but have made a prey of our poore people in want; infomuch, as wilese Michiefes of The law uses the same of the first state Countries and they might aduance foure or fine for one (now affured foeuer of the payments of their Bils of word start and an analytic trace of the Orthogonal worth tra-Exchange) they would not spare them a dust of Corne, nor a pince of Beere, to give vinto tan a mai a in, mai aw ara hand it weemine experience. them the least comfort or reliefe, although that Beere purloyned, and stolne perhaps, either willig la eder wire are to the Countrie thirt no Countriev verla from some particular supply, or from the generall store: so which are table a parcell of people they mur la distrate de l'arge I lius less deux, es projectes of ene la to be, and ill conditioned. I my felfe have heard the Mafter of a Shippe tay (even vpon the ar-1... 2.0 Belles, werbaut triujanus of goodly Vines in eur. tigall of this Fleese, with the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, when the faid Mafter to go me ground, would product a plei trudi Grape in their was treated with for fuch Commodities as hee brought to fell) that valeffe hee might have an to will wieugu, if there natures. Whise were planted, cresh East Indian increase, foure for one, all charges cleered, hee would not part with a Can of Beere. Vingernanes, wiet et wee mig it ist makes periedt Grape. Besides, to doe vs more villany and mischiete, they would send of their long Boates still by met gun wie naus maue trillige fur a were Engule eelestatemen night, and (well quarded) make out to the neighbour Villages, and Townes, and there (coneine i est establiseult abid Eigiana. trary to the Articles of the Fort, which now pronounce death for a trespasse of that qualifie) Till fill fill fill film tien ver der Tilt die eine Afterden Leter trucke with the Indians, giving for their trifles Otter skinnes, Beuers, Rokoone Furres, Beares nyma. Rybow una "est de mysterenten de Labouren Labouren et Labouren et Labouren et Labouren et Labouren et Labouren skinnes, &c. to large a quantity and measure of Copper, as when the Trucke-Matter for the Coere mich obligen a Reminewald under stall under treatminues, worm long, in the day time offered trade, the Indians would laugh and foome the fame, telling what Vester har liga autabe i gar alimenta akt deterre from thristia. Po 20 harrying they met witha'l by night, from our Mangor Quintons (fo calling our great Shippes) by ma merch leath . . semun de the Ca gentirs, and workewhich meanes, the Market with them foreflated thus by thefe diffhoneft men, I may boldly lay, they have bin a confequent cause (it is last yeare) to the death and starting of many a worthy Puisers fraud-Plarty if the Courty as the tre sombe thereof there layers forrit; but I hope to see a true amendment and reformation, as well of those as of divers other Table 1 odder of any taken of the of greaty, and increase, and intollerable abuses, thrush upon the Colony by these shamelesse people, as also for the transportatiuent a calente would the summers of neerer a neresbour Ilav. on of fuch proussions and supplies as are tent hither, and come under the charge of purfers (a par-The first of the control of the control of the control of the sections interposition of the control of the cont cell, fragment, and odde ends of fellowes dependancies to the others) a better course thought alle and pans taire puly eles i it let ware, er wrele tiem to a declivpon : of which supplies, neuer yet came into the Store, or to the Parties, vnto whom such supplies were fent, by relation hitherto, a moitie or third part; for the speedy redresse of this, being Laury or the fearth made proper fine for already towards the valve, to foueraigne a point, I understand how the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, hath adui-Tyriter really are land astronom with ver greiterin, when mener 30 30 fe i vnto the Counfell, that there may be no more prouifions at all deliuered vnto Purfers, but Gerigh Gleif land in fill baue lee eine, and I proteit in, I faue hath intreated to have the provision thus ordered. He would have a Commissary Generall of the vich alair im or iminit prictelle, it at it em hould neuer refine to Victuals to be appointed, who (receiving the flore for the Colony, by Indenture from the Treaof the modernes and knowledges, when such worthwy and No. furer, and Victuallers in England) may keepe a infl accompt, what the groffe amounteth vneo. ມກວານກອດກອກ . ຂາມ ກ່າງການທ້ານ, ພົມກ່ອນ ກ່າວວັດສຸກິດກໍ່ ກິນມີ 🤐 and what is transported every Voyage, in severall kindes, as of Bread, Meate, Beere, Wine, &c. ault in Badel, tien leten innem wit inner Sword, America w which faid Commillary shall deliner ouer the same, to the Master of enery Ship, and take an Indennorther than to take a but that as livetien berforme the and ture from the faid Malter, of what he hath in charge, and what he is to deliner to the Treasurer na vidua vivi a primir minimi milja wintsa pistiwi kabama, they sala of the flore in Virginia: of which, if any be wanting, he the faid Mafter shall make it good, out of o pora niemy ja na o jo o je si jest orez oz toje obroke agjoznek i znevitake. his owneintertainment, otherwife the Purfers, Stewards, Coopers, and quarter Mafters, will general wood of the order of the raise layer lacely a footbal. In be fure still, not onely to give themselves and their friends double allowances, but thinke it all nelle oli oli oli oli ili ili ili ili nello oli inge wild. Glies reconstrumeres 🤂 40 well gotten that they can purloine and iteale away. onered to Holon, Fullettick of fed for the laterate, as fault Befides that the Indian thus euill intreated vs, the River (which were wont before this time in the transport of the state o of the yeare to be plentifull of Storgion) had not now a Fish to be seene in it, and affect we lathe state of the state of the state of the state of the Grains boured, and hold our Net twenty times day and night, yet we tooke not fo much as would con-ကွ (၂) ရှိသို့ က (၂) ရေးသည်။ သည် သည် သည် သည် သည် မြောက် tent halfe the Fishermen. Our Gouernour therefore sent away his long Boate to coast the River Fig. 2 am (4) in the first series and a series and downward, as farre as Point Comfort, and from thence to Cape Henry, and Cape Charles, and all in a resident of the second section of the second second within the Bay : which after a feuen nights triall and trauaile, returned without any fruites of their labours, scarfe getting so much Fish as served their owne Company. And to take any thing from the Indian by force, we never yied, nor willingly ever will fand. The Colon, though they had well deferued it, yet it was not now time, for they did (as I faid before) but when they and the first of t 50 then fet their Corne, and at their best, they had but from band to mouth; so as what now foure daye, of Agentic of the Country of the Countr remained fluch as we found in the Fort, had wee staid but foure dayes, had doubtleffe bin the fliraingmost part of them starued, for their best reliefe was onely Mushrums, and some hearbes, which fod ing and the state of the second process. together, made but a thin and vnfauory broath, and fivelled them much. The pitry hereof The state of the s moued our Gouernour to draw forth fuch provision as he had brought, proportioning a measure e-qually to every one a like. But then our Gouer nor began to examine how long this his flore in the first water that complete

Politans po-

would hold out, and found it (husbanded to the best aduantage) not possible to serue longer then fixteene dayes : after which, nothing was to be polibly supposed out of the Country (as before remembred) nor remained there then any meanes to transport him elsewhere. Whereupon hee

then entred into the consultation with Sir George Summers, and Captaine Newport, calling vnto

the fame the Gentlemen and Countell of the former Government, intreating both the one and

The second of th

and the second of the second o

to improve it from the Indian, It some then appeared most fit, by a generall approbation, that to preferue and faue all from flaruing, there could be no readier course thought on, then to abandon the Country, and accommodating themselves the best that they might, in the present Pinnices then in the road, namely in the Descourry and the Virginia, and in the two, brought from, and builded at the Bermudas, the Delinerance, and the Passence, with all speede convenient to make Purpole toleau for the New found Lind, where (being the fishing time) they might meete with many Engliships into which happily they might disperie most of the Company.

1752

The highest pitch & low ft dep h of the Colonics mifories fearily elcaping the iawes of denouting defpe-Hopes mor-L.La Warring-ration.

This Confultation taking effect, our Gouernor having caused to be carried aboord all the Armer. and all the best things in the store, which might to the Aduenturers make some commodiand all the best things in home, and burying our Ordnances before the Fort gate, which looked to your the tale thereof at home, and burying our Ordnances before the Fort gate, which looked the into the River. The feventh of lune having appointed to cuery Pinnace likewife his complement and number, also delivered thereunto a proportionable rate or prouision, hee commanded every man at the beating of the Drun to repaire aboord. And because hee would preserve the Towne (albeit now to be quitted) vaburned, which some intemperate and malicious people threatned. his owne Company he cauled to be last ashoare, and was himselfe the last of them, when about noone giving a farewell, with a peale of small shot, wee fet faile, and that night, with the tide. fell downe to an Hand in the River, which our people have called Hogge Hand; and the morning tide brought vs to another lland, which we have called Mulberry lland; where lying ac an ancor, in the afternoone flemming the tide, wee discouered a long Boate making towards vs. an ancor, in the mire in much delcant we made thereof, about an houre it came up; by which, to 20 our no little joyrs, we had intelligence of the honorable my Lord Lawarr his arrivall before Algarnoone Fort the lixt of lune, at what time, true it is, his Lordship hauing vinderstood of our Go. u. rnous resolution to depart the Country, with all expedition caused his Skiffe to be manned. and in it dispatched his letters by Captain Edward Bruster (who commandeth his Lordships Company) to our Gouernour, which presenting vs before the aforefaid Mulberry Iland, the eight of June aforelaid) vpon the receipt or his honours letters, our Gouernour bore vp the helme, with the winde comming Easterly, and that night (the winde to fauourable) relanded all his men at the Fort againe: before which (the tenth of lune, being Sunday) his Lordship had likewise brought his Ships, and in the afternoone, came a shoare with Sir Ferdinando Weinman, and all his Lord-

Description of fire of lames Towne.

Here (worthy Lady) let mee have a little your pardon, for having now a better heart, then when I half landed, I will briefely describe ynto you, the fituation and forme of our Fort. When Captain Nempers in his first Voyage alid not like to anhabit vpon to open a roade, as Cape Henry nor Poine Confort he plied it vp to the River, it il looking out for the most apt and secureit place, as well for his Company to fit downe in, as which might give the least cause of offence, or distalt in his judgement, to the Inhabitants. At length, after much and weary fearch (with their Barge coa-Ring still before, as Virgell writeth Auest did, arriving in the region of Italy called Latimo, vpon the bankes of the River Tyber) in the Country of a Weromance talled Wominchapuncke (aditionary to Powbaran) within this faire River of Paffihaigh, which wee have called the King, River, a Country least inhabited by the Indian, as they all the way observed, and threescore miles & bet- 40 ter up the fresh Channell, from Cape Henry they had fight of an extended plaine & spot of earth, which thrust out into the depth, & middest of the channell, making a kinde of Cherfonts wo Peninfala, for it was faitened onely to the Land with a flender necke, no broader then a man may well-quarte a tile shard, & no inhabitants by feuen or fix miles neere it. The Trumpets foundings the Admirall-frooke faile, and before the fame, the rest of the Fleete came to an ancor, and here (as the best yet offered vinto their view , supposed so much the more convenient, by how much with their small Company, they were like inough the better to affure it) to loofe no further time, the Colony difimbarked, and every man brought his particular flore and furniture, together with the generall prouision ashoare: for the safety of which, as likewise for their owne security, ease, and better accommodating, a certaine Canton and quantity, of that little halfe Hand of ground, 50 was measured, which they began to fortifie, and thereon in the name of God, to raise a Fortresse, with the ablest and speediest meanes they could: which Fort, growing since to more perfection, is now at this present in this manner.

The Fort.&c.

A low level of ground about halfe an Acre, or (fo much as Queene Dide might buy of King Hyarban, which the compaffed about with the thongs cut out of one Bull hide, and therein built her Cattle of Byzza) on the North file of the River, is cast almost into the forme of a Triangle, and to Pallizadoed. The South fide next the River (howbeit extended in a line, or Curtaine fix foore foote more in length, then the other two, by reason the advantage of the ground doth so require) containes one hundred and forty yards: the Well and Eaft files a hundred onely, At enery Anglesor corner, where the lines meete, a Bulwarkeor Watchtower is railed, and in each 60 Bulwarks a prece of Ordnance or two well mounted. To enery fide, a proportioned diffance from the Palliado) is a feet of fluete of houles, that runs along, so as each line of the Angle bath his threete. In the middelf is a market place, a Store house, and a Corps du guard, as likewise a pretty Chappell, though (at this time when wee came in, as runned and vofrequented; but the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall, hath given order for the repairing of it. and at this instant, many hands are about it. It is in length threescore foote, in breadth twenty foure, and thall have a Chancell in it of Cedar, and a Communion Table of the Blake Walnut, and all the Pewes of Cedar, with faire broad windowes, to flut and open, as the weather shall occasion, of the same wood, a Pulper of the same, with a Pont hewen hollow, like a Canoz, with two Bels at the West end. It is so cast, as it be very light within, and the Lord Gonernour and Captaine Generall doth cause it to be kept passing sweete, and trimmed vp with diuers flowers, with a Sexton belonging to it, and in it every Sonday wee have Sermons twice a day, and every Thursday a Sermon, having true preachers, which take their weekely turnes, 10 and every morning at the ringing of a Bell, about ten of the clocke, each man addrelleth himfelfe to prayers, and io at toure of the clocke before Supper. Every Sunday, when the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall goeth to Church, hee is accompanied with all the Counfailers, Captaines, other Officers, and all the Gentlemen, and with a Guard of Holberdiers, in his Lordships Livery, faire red cloakes, to the number of fifty both on each side. and behinde him : and being in the Church, his Lordship hath his feate in the Quier, in a greene Veluet Chaire, with a Cloath, with a Veluet Cushion spread on a Table before him, on which he kneeleth, and on each fide fit the Counfell, Captaines, and Officers, each in their place, and when he returneth home againe, he is waited on to his house in the same manner,

And thus inclosed, as I faid, round with a Pallizado of Planckes and itrong Posts, foure foote 20 deepe in the ground, of yong Oakes, Walnuts, &c. The Fort is called in honour of his Maiesties name, lame: Towne; the principall Gate from the Towne, through the Pallizado, opens to the River, as at each Bulwarke there is a Gate likewise to goe forth, and at every Gate a Demi-Culuerin, and fo in the Market Place. The houses first railed, were all burnt, by a casualty of fire, the The Houses. beginning of the second years of their feate, and in the second Voyage of Captain Newsors, which fince haue bin better rebailded, though as yet in no great vniformity, either for the falhion. or beauty of the ftreete. A delicate wrought fine kinde of Mar the Indians make, with which (as they can be trucked for, or fratched up lour people do dreffe their chambers, and inward roomes, which make their houses to much the more handlome. The houses have wide and large Country Chimnies in the which is to be supposed (in such plenty of wood) what fires are maintained; and Barke Roofes, 30 they have found the way to couer their houses : now (as the Indians) with barkes of Trees, as durable, and as good proofe against stormes, and winter weather, as the best Tyle defending likewise the piercing Sunbeames of Summer, and keeping the inner lodgings coole enough, which before in fultry weather would be like Stoues, whilest they were, as at first, pargetted and plaistered with Bitumen or tough Clay: and thus armed for the injury of changing times, and feafons of the yeare, we hold our felues well apaid, though wanting Arras Hangings, Tapiftry, and guilded Venetian Cordouan, or more spruse houshold garniture, and wanton City ornaments, temembring the old Epigraph:

We dwell not bere to build vs Bowers, But Hals we build for vs and ours, And Hals for pleasure and good cheere: To dwell in them whilst we line here.

True it is, I may not excuse this our Fort, or lames Towne, as yet seated in somewhat an yn. Vnhealthful wholesome and sickly ayre, by reason it is in a marish ground, low, flat to the River, and hath no neffe of James fresh water Springs seruing the Towne, but what wee drew from a Well sixe or seuen fathom deepe, fed by the brackish River owzing into it, from whence I verily beleeve, the chiefe causes have proceeded of many difeates and ficknesses which have happened to our people, who are indeede strangely afflicted with Fluxes and Agues; and every particular scason (by the relation of the old inhabitants) hath his particular infirmity too, all which (if it had bin our fortunes, to have feated vpontiome hill, accommodated with fresh Springs and cleere ayre, as doe the Natiues of the Country) we might have, I believe, well escaped : and some experience we have to perswade 50 our felues that it may be fo, for of foure hundred and odde men, which were feated at the Fals, the last yeere when the Fleete came in with fresh and yong able spirits, vinder the government of Captain Francis West, and of one hundred to the Seawards (on the South fide of our River) in the Country of the Nanfamundes, under the charge of Captaine Iohn Martin, there did not fo much as one man miscarry, and but very few or none fall ficke, whereas at Immes Towne, the same time, and the same moneths, one hundred sickned, & halfe the number died: howbeit, as we condemne not Kent in England, for a small Towne called Plumsted, continually affaulting the dwellers there (especially new commers) with Agues and Feuers; no more let vs lay scandall, and imputation vpon the Country of Virginia, because the little Quarter wherein we are set dowee (vnaduisedly 60 to chosed) appeares to be vinwholesome, and subject to many ill ayres, which accompany the like marish places.

ø. IIII.

The Lord LaW ARRES beginnings and proceedings in lames Towne. Sir THOMAS GATES fent into England; his and the Companies testimony of Virginia, and cause of the late miseries.

Pon his Lord hips landing at the South gate of the Pallix ado (which lookes into the Ruser) our Gouernour cauled his Company in armes to fland in order, and make a Guard : It pleased him, that I should beare his Colours for that time : his Lordship Guard: It pleafed him, that I should beare his Colours for that time: his Lordship landing, tell vpon his knees, and before vs all, made a long and silent Prayer to himfelfe, and after, marched up into the I owne, where at the Gate, I bowed with the Colours and let them fall at his Lordfnips feete, who passed on into the Chappell, where he heard a Sermon by Mafter Bucke, our Gouernours Preacher; and after that, caufed a Gentleman, one of his owne followers, Matter Anthony Scot his Ancient, to reade his Commission, which intituled him Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall curing his life, of the Colony and Plantation in Verginta (Sit Thomas Gates our Gogernour hitherto, being now filled therein Lieutenane

Arter the reading of his Lordships Commission, Sir Thomas Gates rendred vp vnto his Lordfind his owne Commission, both Patents, and the Countell Seale : after which, the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall, delivered some few words vnto the Company, laying many blames whom them for many vanities, and their Idlenesse, earnestly wishing, that he might no more finde it fo leaft he should be compelled to draw the sword of Iustice, to cut off such delinquents, which he had much rather, he protested, draw in their defence, to protect them from injuries; hattening them with the knowledge of what store of provisions he had brought for them, viz, sufficient to serue foure hundred men for one whole yeare.

Provisions brought. Countell chofen & iwoine.

Officers appointed.

Commission

Lord La Was

Sit T. Gares

Lieutmant

Generali.

His fpeech.

The twelfth of lune, being Tueflay, the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall did conflitute, and give places of Office, and charge to divers Captaines and Gentlemen, and elected vnto him a Counfell, vnto whom he did administer an Oath, mixed with the oath of Allegiance and Supremacy to his Maiestie: which oath likewife he caused to be administred the next day after 20 to every particular member of the Colony, of Faith, Affilance, and Secrecy. The Countaile which Colony worn, he elected were. Sir Thomas Gases Kinght, Lieutenant Generall. Sir George Summers Knight. Admirall, Captaine George Percy Esquire, and in the Fort Captaine of fifty. Sir Ferdinando Wille. man Knight, Mafter of the Ordnance, Captaine Christopher Newport, Vice-admirall. William Srechei Esquire, Secretary, and Recorder,

As likewise the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, nominated Captaine Iohn Maria, Matter of the Battery workes for Steele and Iron : and Captaine George Webb Sergeant Maior of the Fort, and especial Captaines ouer Companies, were these appointed; Captaine Edward Brufler, who hath the command of his Honours owne Company. Captaine Thomas Lawfon. Captain Thomas Holecroft: Captaine Samuell Argoll. Captaine George Turder, who commandeth the Lucit of tenant Generals Company. Divers other Officers were likewise made, as Mafter Raiph Hamm, and Maiter Browne, Clarkesof the Counfell, and Mafter Daniell Tucker, and Mafter Robert Wilde,

The first businesse which the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall (after the setling of these Officers) thought upon, was to aduse with his Counsell, for the obtaining of such prouifions of victuals for Hore, and quality, as the Countrey afforded. It did not appeare, that any kinde of Flesh, Deere, or what elie, of that kinde, could be recovered from the Indian, or to be fought in the Countrey, by the trauaile or fearch of his people, and the old dwellers in the Fort (together with the Indians not to friend) who had the last winter, destroyed and killed up all the Hogges, intomuch, as of fine or fixe hundred (as it is supposed) there was not one left alive; nor 50 an Henne, nor Chicke in the Fort; and our Horses and Mares, they had eaten with the first, and the proudion which the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall had brought, concerning any kinde of flesh, was little or nothing; in respect it was not drempt of by the Ada.nturers in England, that the S vine were destroyed.

In Countell therefore the thirteenth of Iune, it pleased Sir George Summers Knight, Admirall, Sir G. Summers to propose a Voyage, which for the better reliefe, and good of the Colony, he would perform in bringgrouis to the Bermudas, from whence he would fetch fix moneths provision of Flesh and Fish, and some ons from Er- hus Hogges to fto:e our Colony againes and had a Commission given vinto him the hitteenth of lune, 1610. who in his owne Bermeda Pinnace, the Patience, conforted with Captaine Sammes Aged, in the Difeouery (whom the Lord Gouerour, and Captaine General), make of the countries of the countrie the twenty two left the Bay, or Cape Henry a iterne.

And likewife, because at the Lord Governous, and Captaine Generals first comming, there was o found in our owne River no itore of Filh; after many trials, the Lord Governour, and Capraine

Generall, dispatched in the Virginia, with inflructions, the feuenteenth of June, 1 6 1 0. Robert Tradall. Mafter of the De la Warre, to fish vnto, all along, and betweene Cape Henry, and Cape Charles, within the Bay; who the last of the faid moneth returned vnto vs againe, but as ill speeding as the former, whom our Gouernour (now Lieutenan: Generall) had addressed thither before for the same purpole. Nor was the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall in the meane while idle at the Fort, but every day and night hee caused the Nets to be hawled, sometimes a dosen times one after another. But it pleased not God so to blesse our labours, that we did at any time take one quarter to much, as would give vnto our people one pound at a meale a peece, by which we might haue better husbanded our Peafe and Oatemeale, notwithitanding the great fo flore we now faw daily in our River : but let the blame of this lye where it is , both voon our Nets, and the vnskilfulneffe of our men to lay them.

The fixth of Iuly Sir Thomas Gates Lieutenant Generall, comming downe to Point Comfort, the North wind (blowing rough) befound had forced the long Boate belonging to Algernoone Fort: to the other shoare voon Nansamund side, somewhat flint of Weroscoick; which to recouer againe, one of the Lieutenant Generals men Humfrey Blum, in an old Carrow made ouer, but the wind driging him voon the Strand, certaine Indians (watching the occasion) feifed the poore fellow, and led him vp into the Woods, and facrificed him. It did not a little trouble the Lieurenant Gouernour, who fince his first landing in the Countrey (how inftly focuer prouoked) would not by any meanes be wrought to a violent proceeding against them, for all the practices . Ad Gracas 20 of villany, with which they daily indangered our men, thinking it possible, by a more tra- Calendan. Ctable course, to winne them to a better condition ; but now being fartled by this, he well per. Can a Leoceited, how little a faire and noble intreatie, workes upon a barbarous disposition, and therefore his spors? Can in tome measure purposed to be reuenged.

The ninth of July, he prepared his forces, and early in the morning fet vpon a Towne of theirs, mayning a Sa fome foure miles from Algernoone Fort, called Kecoughtan, and had foone taken it, without use becimile loffe or hurt of any of his men. The Gouernour and his women fled (the young King Powhatans Were not wee tone on the control of the Control o bacco, and some few womens Girdles of Silke, of the Graffe-tilke, not without art, and much our Progeni-30 neatneffe finely wrought; of which I have fent diners into England, (beeing at the taking of tors dayes and the Towne) and would have fent your Ladiship some of them, had they beene a Present were not Case

We purposed to set a Frenchman heere a worke to plant Vines, which grew naturally in great Vinginions The plentie. Some few Corne fields it hath, and the Corne in good forwardnesse, and weede- Romane swords spaire not but to bee (able if our men stand in health) to make it good against the Indian.

The continual practifes of the fubtle King Powhaten, doth not meanely awaken all the chers of ciuipowers and workings of vertue and knowledge, in our Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, other Counhow to preuent not only his mischieses, but to draw him vpon some better termes, and acknowledgemen of our forces and spirits, both able and daring to quit him in any valiant and martiall Graffesike. ao course whatsoeuer, he shall dare to runne with vs, which hee doth yet scarily beleeue. For this therfore, fince first, and that so lately, he hath set on his people, to attempt vs with private Conspiracies and actuall violence, into the one drawing his Neighbour Confederates and under Princes, and by the other working the loffe and death of divers of our men, and by fuch their loffe feifing their Armes, Swords, Peeces, &c. of which he hath gathered into his store a great quantitie and number by Intelligence about two hundred Swords, besides Axes, and Pollaxes, Chiffels, Howes, to paire and clenfe their ground, with an infinite treasure of Copper) our Lord Go- English Armes uernour and Captaine Generall fent two Gentlemen with an Ambassie vnto him, letting him to treatured by understand of his practiles and outrage, hitherto vied toward our people, not only abroad but at Psubatan. our Fort also yet flattering him withall how the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall did not Porbates. 50 suppose, that these mischiefes were contriued by him, or with his knowledge, but conceined them rather to be the acts of his worst and varuly people, his Lordship therefore now complayning vato him required, that hee (being fo great and wife a King) would give an vinuerfall order to his Subjects, that it might bee no more to, left the Lord Governour and Captaine Generall should be compelled (by defending him and his) to offend him, which he would be loath to do: withall he willed the Meslengers to demand of him the said Powhatan, that he would either punith or fend vnto his Lordship such of his people whom Pombatan knew well not long before, had affaulted our men at the Block-house, and but newly killed foure of them, as also to demaund of Powhatan, willing him to returne vnto the English Fort, both such men as hee detayned of ours, and fuch Armes as he had of theirs in his polleifion, and those conditions performed, hee willed 60 them to affure vnto Powhatan that then their great Werowance, the Lord Governour and Captaine

Generall would hold faire quarter, and enter friendship with him, as a friend to King James and his Subjects. But refusing to submit to these demands, the Lord Governour and Captaine Generall gaue in charge to the Messengers, so tent to signifie vnto Pombatan that his Lordship would by all meanes publike and private, feeke to recour from him fuch of the English as he had, being Ggggggg 3

coick taken

Sir T. Gates

bound for England.

Priloner.

Subjects to his King and Mafter, voto whom even Pombatan himfelfe had formerly vowed nor only triendfhip but homage, receiving from his Maiestie therefore many gitts, and vpon his knees. a Crowne and Scepter with other Ornaments, the Symbols of Chull State and Christian Sone-Powhanas ho- raigntie, thereby onliging himfelte to Offices of dutie to his Maietie. Vito all which Powhan tan returned no other and were, but that either we should depart his Country, or confine our felicesto lames Towne only, without fearching further vp into his Land, or Ruers, or otherwise, hae would give in command to his people to kill vs, and doe vnto vs all the mitchiete, which they at their pleafure could and we feared: withall forewarning the faid Meffengers, not to returne and more vnto him, valelle they brought him a Coach and three Hories, for hee had underfloor by. the Indians which were in England, how fuch was the state of great Weromances, and Lords us Io England, to nide and v fit other great men.

After this divers times, and daily hee fent fometimes two, fometimes three, with our Forte understand our strength, and to observe our Watch & Guard, and how our people stood in health. and what numbers were arrived with this new Weroance; which being foone perceived our Lord Governour and Captaine Generall forewarned fuch his Spies, ypon their owne perill, to refore no more vnto our Fore. Howbeit, they would daily preffe into our Block-house, and come va to our Pallizado gates, supposing the government as well now, as fantafficall and negligent in the former times, the whilest some quarter of a mile short of the Block-house, the greatest somber of them would make affault, and lye in ambush about our Glasse-house, whether, Disess times indeed our men would make out either to gather Strawberries, or to fetch fresh water, any 20 one of which fo ftragled, if they could with conveniencie, they would affault and charge with their Bowes and Arrowes, in which manner they killed many of our men : two of which being Pass aheans, who were ener our deadlieft enemies, and not to be reconciled; at length being apprehended (and one of them a notable villaine, who had attempted vpon many in our Fort) the Lord Gouernour caused them to be manacled, and convented before him and his Countell, where it was determined that her that had done fo much mischiese should have his right hand strocke. off, sending him away withall, with a message to Powhatan, that volesse hee would yet returne fuch Englishmen as he detayned, together with all fuch their Armes (as before fpoken of)that not only the other (now Prisoner) thould die, but all such of his Sauges (as the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, could by any meanes surprize) should runne the same courte: as shewife the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall would fire all his Neighbour Corne Fuldes, 19 Townes, and Villages, and that fuddenly, if Powhatan fent not to contract with him the fooner

What this will worke with him, wee know not as yet, for this was but the day before our thips were now falling to Point Comfort, and to to fet tayle for England: which thips riding be-King of Weref fore Werefeeick to take in their fraight of Cedar, Clap-boord, Blacke Wal-nut, and Iron Out, tooke Prifoners likewise the chiefe King of Weroscoick, called Safenticum, with his Sonne Kainta, and one of his chiefe men. And the fifteenth day of July, in the Bleffing Captaine Adams brought them to Point Comfort, where at that time (as well to take his leave of the Lieutenant Generall Sir Thomas Gates, now bound for England, as to dispatch the ships) the Lord Go- 40

uernour and Captaine Generall had pitched his Tent in Algernoone Fort.

The Kings Sonne Kainta the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, hath fent now into England , vntill the thips arrive here agains the next Spring, dimiting the clid It eromance, and theother with all tearmes of kindnesse, and friendship, promifing further designes to beeeffested by him, to which hee hath bound himselfe, by divers Savage Ceremonies, and ad-

And thus (right Noble Ladie) once more this famous businesse, as recreated, and dipped a new into life and spirit, bath rayled it (I hope) from infamy , and shall redeene the staines and loffes under which the hath fuffered, fince her hift Conception : your Graces still accompany the least appearance of her, and vouchfafe her to bee limmed out, with the beautie which wee will 10 begge, and borrow from the faire lips : nor feare you, that shee will returne bloshes to your cheekes for praying her, fince (more then most excellent Ladie) like your selfe (were all tongues dumbe and enuious) thee will prayfe her felfe in her most filence : may shee once bee but fene, or but her shadow lively by a skilfall Workman set out indeed, which heere (bungerly as lam) I have prefumed (though defacing it) in these Papers to present vinto your Lauchip.

Atter Sir Thomas Gates his arrivall, a Booke called A true Declaration of Virginia, was p. blished by the Company, out of which I have heere inserted this their publike teltimonie of the cautes of the former culs, and Sir Thomas Gates his Report vpon Oath of Vaginia.

The ground of all these miscrees, was the permission Providence of God, who, in the fore meeting 63 and violent storme, special the bead from the bodie, all the vitall powers of Regiment being the store of the sto exiled with Sir Thomas Gates in those infortunate (yet fortunate) Ilands. The troten remainder of those supplies made a greater shipporacke in the Continent of Virginia, by the tempest of Deticion: every man oner-malning his owne worth, would be a Commander: every man under prizing ascillars vaine, demed so be commanded.

The next Fountaine of wees was focure negligence, and improvidence, when custy man sharked for bie present bootes, but was altogether careleffe of succeeding penurie. Now, I demand whether Sidles , or Sardinia (Jameiraces the Barnes of Rome) cauld hope for increase without manuring? A Colony is therefore denominated, because they found be Coloni, the Tellers of the Earth, and Stewards of ferellitie: our noutmous Logievers would not fow with providence, and therefore they reaped the fruits of too descrebought Rapportance. An increasible example of their idlenesse, is the report of Sri Thomas Gates, who affirmeth, that after his first comming thither, be hath seene some of them eat their filn raw, rather then wher would goe a flores call to fetch wood and dreffe it. Dilaboribus on wa vendunt, God lets we all things for our labour, when Adam bumfalfe might not tive in Paradice without dreffing the 10 Garden Vaso-idlateste, you may sorne Trassons, wrought by those unballowed creature; that for socke the Colome, and appoled their de Colaic Breibren to extreame miferie. Tou final know that eight and twentie or thatte of the Company were appointed (mibe ship salled the Swallow) to trucke for Corne with the Indiass, and baung entained a great garnitia by traing, the most feducion of them, co fored together, persuaded some, and enforced others, to this barbarasu prosect. They, fole away the fine, therease a league among it thernfelms to be prefujed Pirats, with areames of Mount aires of Gold, and bapte Robberies : thus at one instant they peromand the bopet, and subserted the cares of the Colonic, who depends of apon their resurve; fore-flowed to lange out far further promision; they created the Ladians our implacable enemies by some vivience they had affered; they carried away the hell buy (which fronta h us beene a 20 refuse in extrematics:) they weakened our forces, by substruction of their armes and succours. These are that scurme of men that fayling in their Piracie, that being sinched nith sumingeand perure, after their mildo rowing upon the Sea, when all their lawleffe hapes failed, force remarmed with other Livale. there men upon the Sea, the others resolved to returne for England, bound themselves by mu wall Quin, to agree all in one report to descredit the Land, to deplore the famine, and to protest that this beix comming amay, proceeded from desperate necessive: These are they, that roared out the Tragecal Historie of the man cating of his deat Wife in Virginia; when the Master of this flip willingly confessed before for tie witneffet, that at their comming away, they left three monethes victuals, and all the Cattel liung in the Fort : fametimes they reported that they fam this borrible altion, fametimes that Captaine Divies (and 6, Cometimes that one Beatla the Lieutenant of Captaine Danies did relate it , varying this report 30 mes describes of falls colours, which hold no likewells and proportion: but to cleere all doubts, Ser Tuomas Gates thus relegate the Tragedie.

There was one of the Company who mortally hated his Wife, and therefore fecretly killed her, then cue her in picces and hid her in divers parts of his House: when the woman was misting, the man ful pecked, his House searched, and parts of her mangled hodie were discoursed, o excute himfelte le faid that his Wife died, that he hid her to fatisfie his hunger, and that hee fed darly vpon her. Vpon this, his Houle was againe fearched, where they found a good quantitie of Meale, Oat-meale, Beanesand Peale. He thereupon was arraigned, confessed the Murder, and was burned for his horrible villany.

Now shall the scandalous reports of a viperous generation, preponderate the testimonies of so worthy Leaders? Shall their venemous tongues, blast the reputation of an ancient and worthy Peere, who voon Lord Lang re, the ocular certainty of future bleffings, bath protested in his Letters, that he will sucrefice himselfe for his Countrie in this feruice, if be may be feconded; and if the Company dor gine it oner, bee will jet lay all his fortunes upon the profecution of the Plantation ?

Vnto Treasons, you may toyne constous resse in the Mariners, who for their prinate lucre partly imbereled the promisons; partly presented our Trade with the Indians making the Matches in the night, and forestalling our Market in the day : whereby the Virginians were glutted with our Trifles, and inbiunced the prices of their Corne and Victuall, That Copper which before would have provided a bushell would nes now obtaine jo much as a Pottle.

Some unto the le another enill: inere is great store of Fish in the River, especially of Surgeon; but our 50 men promided no more of them then for p efent ne efficie, not barrelling up any ftore against that feafon the Stargeon returned to the Sea. And not to diffemble their folly, they fuffered fourteene nets (ubi: h was all they bad) torst and pople, which by orderly drying and mending might have beene preferred : but being lost, all helps of filhing perilhed.

The state of the Colony, by these accidents began to finde a sensible declining: which Powerstan (as a greedy Vulture) observing, and boiling with delire of revenge, bee inuited Captaine Rat. I. ffc, and about thirty others to trade for Corne, and vader the colour of fairest frienditip, bee brought them with in the compasse of bis ambush, whereby they were cruelly murthered and mass acred. For upon considence of bis fidelise, they want one and one into severall houses, which caused their severall destructions, when if but any fixe hadremained together, they would have beene a Bulwarke for the generall prefernation. After this, Powhatan in the night cut off some of our Boats, he drawe away all the Decre into the further part of the Countrey, bee and his people destroyed our Hogs (to the number of about fixe bundred) hee sent one of his Indians to trade with vs, but layed secret anobusties in the Woods, that if one or two diopped out of the Fort alone, they were indangered. Cast up the reckning together: want of government, fore of idlenesse, their expectations frustrated

by the Traytos, their market specied by the Mariners, our Nets broken, the Deere chafed, our Boats loft. our Hoos killed our trade with the Indians forbidden, some of our men fled, some murtbered, and most be drinking of the brackish muter of lames Fort weakened and indangered, famine and sicknesse by all these meanes increased, here at home the monyes came in fo flowly, that the Lord Laware could not bee difparched till the Colony was worne and spint with difficulties : About all, bauing neither Ruler, nor Preacher, they neither feared God, nor man, which prouched the wrath of the Lord of Hofts, and bulled dewne his judgements upon them. Diferte justitiam moniti.

The Councell of Virg ma (finding the smallesse of that returne, which they boped should have defrased the charge of a new supply) entred into a deepe confulation, and propounded amongst themselves, whether it were fit to enter into a new contribution, or in time to fend for home the Lord La-wate, and is a. in bandon the attion. They resolved to fend for Sir Thomas Gates, who being come, they adirection to deale plainly with them, and to make a true relation of those things which were presently to be bad . hereafter to be boped for in Virginia. Sir Thomas Gates with a folemne and facred outh replied. the all things before reported were true : that the Countrey yeelded abundance of Wood, as Oake, Wainfca. Walnut Trees, Bay Trees, Albe, Sarfafrafe, line Oake, greene all the yeere, Cedar and Fir; which are the materialis, of Soape after, and Pot after, of Oyles of Walnuts, and Bayes, of Pitch and Tur, of Clapa boards, Pipe Stanes, Masts and excellent boards of fortie, fiftie, and fixtie length, and three foot breadth when one Furretree is able to make the maine Mast of the greatest Ship in England. He anouched that there are incredible varietie of (weet woods, especially of the Balfamum tree, which distilleth a precione Gumme: that there are innumerable white Mulberry trees, which in so warme a climate may cherift and feede millions of Silke-wormes, and returne vs in a very fort time, as great a plenty of Silke as is vented into the whole world from all the parts of Italy : that there are diners forts of Minerals, effecially of Iron oare lying ripper the ground for ten Miles sircuite; of which wee have made a trial at home. that it maketh as good Iron as any is in E trope :) that a kinde of Himpe or Flaxe, and Silke Graffe doe growt bere naturally, which will affoord stuffe for all manner of excellent Cordage: That the River swarmeth with all manner of Sturgeon : the Land aboundeth with Vines; the Woods doe barbour exceeding store of Beauers, Foxes, and Squirrels; the Waters doe nourish a great encrease of Otters, all which we conered with precious Furres : that there are in present disconcred Dyes and Drugges of sundry qualities: that the Orenges which have beene planted, did profper in the winter, which is an infallible argument that Lemmons, Sugar Canes. Almonds, Rice, Annifeede, and all other commodities which wee bane from the 30 Straights, may be supplied to us in our owne Country, and by our owne industry: then the Corne yeldeth a terrible encrease more then ours : and lastly, that it is one of the goodliest Countries under the Sume; enterneined with fine maine Rivers, and promising as rich entrals as any Kingdome of the earth, to whom the Sunne is no neerer a neighbour.

CHAP. VII.

The Voyage of Captaine SAMVEL ARGAL, from Iames Towne in Virginia, to feeke 40 the He of Bermuda, and missing the same, his putting over toward Sagadahoc and Cape Cod, and (o backe againe to lames Towne, began the nineteenth of lune, 1610.

till eight of the clocke at night it was all Southerly, and then that shifted to South-west. The Cape then bearing West, about eight leagues off. Then wee stirred away South-east. The foure and twentieth, at noone I observed the Sunne , and found my felte to bee in thirtie fixe degrees, fortie leuen minutes, about twentie leagues off from the Land. From the foure and twentieth at noone, to the fire and twentieth at noone, fixe leagues East, the wind Southerly, but for the most part it was calme. From the five and twentieth at noone, to the fixe and twentieth about fixe of the clocke in the morning, the winde was all Southerly, and but little. And then it beganne to blow a fresh gale at West South-west. So by noone I had failed fourteene leagues East, South-east pricked. From the fixe and twentieth at noone, to the feuen and twentieth at noone, twentie leagues East, South-east. The wind shifting from the West, South-west Southerly, and so to the 60 East, and the weather faire, but close. From the seuen and twentieth at noone, to the eight and twentieth at noone, fixe and twentie leagues East, South-east, the wind shifting backe again from the East to the West. Then by mine observation I found the ship to be in thirtie five degrees fiftie foure minutes. From the eight and twentieth at noone, to the nine and twentieth at noone, thirtie fixe leagues East by South, the wind at West, North-west. Then by my observation I found the ship to be in thirtie five degrees, thirtie minutes pricked. From the nine and twentieth at noone, to the thirtieth at noone, thirtie fine leagues East, South-east, The winde thifting betweene West, North-west, and West, South-west, blowing a good fresh gale. Then by my objernation I found the thip to be in thirtie foure degrees, fortie mine minutes pricked. From the thirtieth of lune at noone, to the first of July at noone, thirtie leagues South-east by East, the winde at well, then I found the thip in thirtie foure degrees pricked.

CHAP.7. Fresh gale, Calme weather, Very ftormy westerly pariation.

From the first of July at noone, to the second at noon, twentie leagues East, South-east southerly, the wind Weft, then I found the fhip to bee in thirtie three degrees, thirtie minutes pricked.

the weather very faire. From the lecond at noone, to the third at foure of the clocke in the afternoone it was calme, then it beganne to blow a resonable fresh gale at South-east : so I made account that the ship had driven about fixe leagues in that time East. The Sea did set all about the West. From that time to the fourth at noone, feuenteene leagues East by North, the wind shifting betweene South-east and South South-well, then I found the ship to bee in thirtie three degrees, fortie minutes, the weather continued very faire. From the fourth at noone, to the fifth at noone, ten leagues South-east, the wind and weather as before, then I found the thip to be in thirtie three degrees, feuenteene minutes pricked. From the fitt at noone, to the fixt at noone, eight leagues South-west, then I found the thip to be in thirtie two degrees, fiftie seven minutes pricked; the wind and weather continued as before, only we had a im ill thowre or two of raine.

From the fixt at noone, to the leventh at noone, feventeene leagues East by North, then I found the ship to be in thirtie three degrees, the wind and weather as b. tore. From the feuenth at noon, to the eight at noone, fourteene leagues North-east, then I found the ship to be in thirtie three 13. degreess degrees, thirde two minutes, the wind and weather continued as before, From the eight at noon as moon to the ninth at noone, fine leagues South-east, there I found the ship to be in thirtie times degrees, twentie one minutes, the wind at South-weit, he weather very faire, From the ninte at noone, to the tenth at noone, fine leagues South the wind westerly; but for the most part it was calcie. and the weather very faire. From the tenth at noone, to the eleuenth at noone it was calme, and fo continued vntill mine of the clocke the fame night, then it began to blow a reasonable fresh gale at South-east, and continued all that night betweene South-east and South, and writill the 33. deore twelfth day at noone ; by which time I had failed fifteene leagues West foutherly ; then I found the ship in thirtie three degrees, thirtie minutes. From that time to foure of the clock the twelfth day in the morning twelve leagues West by North, the wind all foutherly, and then it shifted betweene South and South-weit, then wee tacked about and flood South-east, and South-east by South : fo by noone I had fayled fine leagues South-east by Bast; then I found the ship in thirtie three degrees ten minutes. From the thirteenth at noone , to she fourteenth at noone , twenty leagues South-east by East, the wind shifting betweene the South-west, and West South-west. then I found the fhip to be in thirtie two degrees, thirtie five minutes. From the fourteenthat 12 degrees, noone, to the fifteenth at noone, twentie leagues South-raft, then I tound the thip to be in thirty two degrees, the wind as before : then we tacked about, and lay North-west by West. From the 40 fifteenth at noone, to the fixteenth at noone, twelve leagues North by West, the wind shifting

betweene South-west and West, and the weather very stormy, with many sudden suffs of wind

And about fixe of the clocke in the afternoone, being to windward of our Admirall I bare vp. He freaker vnder his lee : who when I hayled him, told me that he would tack it up no longer, because hee with the Adwas not able to keepe the fea any longer, for lacke of a road and water : but that hee would pre- mnall. fently fleere away North North-welt, to fee if he could fetch Cape Cod. Which without delay he put in execution. His directions I followed : fo from the fixteenth day at noone, to the feuen- They faile toteenth at noone I had failed thirtie eight leagues North North-west : then I found my ship to be ward Cape cod in thirtie foure degrees, ten minutes. The feuenteenth and eighteenth dayes were very wet and ftormy, and the winds shifting all points of the Compasse. The nineteenth day, ab ut foure of the 60 tinued very little wind vntill the two and twentieth at nonne, and thit meg at an prints of the Compasse : yet by mine observation that I made then, I como must be then be then twenty-dec. 35 1965 leagues North, for I found her to be in forty degrees, one minute, who they are in the third backs. there was some tide or current that did fet Northward. Again 1,000 to 1000 to 1,000 for ward, did fay, That in their watch they did fee race, and that flop did cries is see at the low thousand. when she had not a breath of wind.

50 clocke in the morning it began to cleere up, and then we had a very fliffe gale betweene East and North-east. From the seventeenth at noone, to the mneteenth at noone. I had tayled fifting fine leagues North North-west, then I found the ship to be thirtie sixe degrees thirty minutes. From the mineteenth at noone, to the twentieth at noone, thirty fine leagues North-west : then I was in thirty feuen degrees, fifty two minutes, the weather now was fairer and the wind all eafterly. From the twentieth at noone, to the twentie one at noone, we layled twenty leagues North by West, the wind betweene East and South-east, and the weather very faire: At the sunne setting west-I observed, and found thirteene degrees, and an halfe of wester's variation, and vntill midnight arise we had a reasonable fresh gale of wind all southerly, and then it fell coline and aired and to con- Sec-

From the two and twentieth at noone, vntill ten of the clocke at night, we had a fresh sale of wind, betweene East and South-east, and then it shifted all westerly, and so continued vntill two of the clocke the twenty three in the morning : and then it began to be very foggy and bue little wind, yet shifting all the points of the Compasse, and so continued vntill ten of the clocke. and then it began to cleere vp. At twelue of the clocke I obferued, and then I found the flip to be in fortie degrees fiftie minutes : fo from the twenty two at noone, to the twenty three at noone I had dayled twenty leagues Northward. From the twenty three at noone, to the twenty foure, at three of the clocke in the morning it was calme, and then we had a reasonable fresh gale of wind all foutherly, and fo it continued vntill noon foutherly, in which time I had failed twelve leagues North. And about foure of the clocke in the afternoone, we had forty feuen fathoms of 10 water, which water we did find to be changed into a grasse green in the morning, yet we would not heave a lead, because our Admirall was so farre on head of vs : who about three of the clocke in the afternoone lay by the lee, and fished till I came vp to him : and then I fitted my selfe and my boat, and fifted untill fixe of the clocke. And then the Admirall fitted his failes, and flirred away North, whom I followed with all the speed I could. But before seuen of the clocke there fell such a myst, that I was faine to shoot off a Peece, which he answered with a Cornet that he had aboord. So with hallowing and making a noyfe one to another all the night we kept company. About two of the clocke, the twenty hue day in the morning we tooke in all our failes, and lay at Hull wntill five of the clocke : and then finding but small flore of fish, we set saile and firred away North-west, to fetch the mayne land to relieue our selues with wood and water, which we stood in great need of. About two of the clocke in the afternoone we tooke in all our failes and lay at Hull, a. which time I heaved the lead three times together, and had three fundry kindes of foundings. The first a blacke peppery land, full of peble stones. The second blacke peppery, and no ftones: The third blacke peppery, and two or three ftones.

Weer like vn-

Great for and

Sounding.

From the fourth at noone, to the twentie five, at wo of the clocke in the afternoone, I savled thirteene leagues West North-west : and the weather continuing very foggy, thicke, and rainy. about fine of the clocke it began to ceale, and then we began to filh, and to continued vntill feuen of the clocke in betweene thirty and forty fathoms, and then we could fift no longer. So having gotten betweenetwentie and thirty Cods, we left for that night : and at fine of the clocke, the twenty fixe in the morning we began to fish againe, and so continued vntill ten of the clocke, and 30 then it would fish no longer : in which time we had taken neere one hundred Cods, and a couple of Hollybuts. All this while wee had betweene thirty and forty fathoms water: before one of the clocke in the afternoone we found the thip driven into one hundred and twenty fathoms. and fost blacke Ofe. Then Sir George Somers fent me word, that he would fet faile, and stand in for the River of Sagadahoe; whole directions I followed.

Before two of the clocke we fet faile, and furred away North-west by North, the wind South the morning we heated the lead, and had no ground in one hundred and twentie fathoms. Then I hot off a Peece, but could not heare none answere from our Admirall: and the weather was so 40

thicke, that we could not fee a Cables length from our ship. Betweene nine and ten of the clock

we did thinke that we did heare a Peece of Ordnance to windward : which made me suppose our Admirall had fet faile, and that it was a warning piece from him. So I fet fayle and stood close by the wind, and kept an hollowing and a noile to try whether I could find him againe : the wind was at South-west, and I stood away West North-west. From the fixe and twentieth, at two of the clocke in the afternoone, to eight of the clocke at night I had fayled nine leagues North-weft.

The feuen and twentieth at noone I heaved the Lead, in one hundred and twenty fathoms, and had no ground. Then I stirred away North-well, till foure of the clocke at night : then I heaved the Leadagaine one hundred and twenty fathoms, and had no ground. Then I tooke all my failes and lay at Hull and I had fayled feuen leagues North-west. The eight and twentieth, at se-

uen of the clocke in the morning I did found in one hundred and twenty fathoms, and had no

South-west, and the weather continued very foggy. About eight of the clocke wee tooke in all our failes, and lay at Hull at that night. The feuen and twentieth, about feuen of the clocke in Too.Cods taken, Th. Ship d sueth.

They ft and for the River of Sazadahoc.

V rie foggie weather.

The thick fog continueth.

ground. Then I tet fayle againe, and steered away North, and North by West. At noone I heaved in one hundred and twenty fathoms againe, and had no ground. So I steered on my course still, the wind shifted betweene South and South-west, and the fog continued. At source of the clocke in the afternoone, I heaved one hundred twenty fathoms againe, and had no ground : fo I flood on vntill eight of the clocke, by which time I had failed twelve leagues : then I heaved the Lead againe, and had blacke Oie, and one hundred thirty fine fathoms water. Then I tooke in all my fayles and lay at hull untill the nine and twentieth, at fine of the clocke in the morning. Then I fer faile againe, and steered away North, and North by Weit. At eight of the clocke I heared the Lead agame, and had blacke Ole in one hundred and thirty fathoms water. Betweene eleuen and twelve of the clocke it began to thunder, but the fogge continued not still. About two of the clocke in the afternoone, I went out with my Boat my lelfe and heaved the Lead, and had blacke Ofe in ninety fathoms water by which time I had failed fix leagues North by Weil more, Then I vooke in all my tayles fauing my Fore-course and Bonnet, and stood in with those failes onely.

About fixe of the clocke I founded agains, and then I had fixty five fathoms water. Affoote as I same abourd it cleared up, and then I fave a small Il and which bare North about two braues off: whereupon I flood in varilleight of the rlocke : And then I flood off againe varill two of the clocke in the morning the thirtieth day. Then Litood in againe, and about eight of the clocke I was faire aboord the Hand. Then I manned my. Boat and went on floare; where I found great fore of Seales : And I killed three Scales with my hanger. This Hand is not halfe a mile about, and A Rocke of nothing but a Rocke, which feemed to be very sich Marble from And a South South west Moon a micabout msketh a full Sea. About ten of the clocke I came abourd againe, with fome Wood tha I had in 1 of Seales. found voon the lland, for there had beene some folkes that had made fiers there, Then I ftood The malrocke on ouer to another Hand that did beare North off me about three leagues; this small rockie-Hand ly- Hand lieth in ouer to another hand that did beare worth on me about three leagues, cans that to want that year eth in forty foure degrees. About feuen of the clocke that dight I came to an anchor among many Many dands llands in eight fathoms water ; and vpon one of these llands I fitted my lelle with Wood and in eight fa-The third day of August , being fitted to put to Sex againe , I caused the Master of the shap to August 3.

open the boxe wherein my Committion was, to fee what directions I had; and for what place I was bound to shape my course. Then I tried whether there were any fish thereor not, and I found Reforal le reasonable good ftore there; to I stayed there fishing till the twelfrin or August and then finding fore of nit. that the fifthing did faile. I thought good to returne to the Iland where I bad killed the Scales, to fee whether I could get any store of them or not ; for I did find that they were very nourshing on meate, and a great reliefe to my men, and that they would be very well faued with labeto keepe along time. But when I came thither I could not by any meanes cauch any. The fourteenth day Seale Rocke in at noone I polyrued the Sen, and found the Hand to be in torry three degrees, for y minutes. Then 43 deg, 47 mil I fhaned-mix source for Cape Ced, to fee whether I could get any felt them or not 210 by the fit. Hereturneth teenth that noone, I had failed thirty two leagues South-west, the wind for the most part was home; ibetweene Northiwell and North. From the fifteenth at moone, to the fixteenth at moone I ran twenty leagues South , she wind thisting betweene West and South-west. And then Founded and had exound in eighteene fathoms water, full of thele and peblettenes of divers colours : fome greene, and some ble wish, some like diamants, and some speckled: Theo i make in all by sayles, and let all my company to filling, and filled till eight by the clocke chat me had and finding but little fift there, I let fayle agains, and by she enemmenthan noonel baddhyied ten leggues Wieft by North, the wind hifting betweene South and South well. Frominoone, till tixe at the clocke at night, foure leagues North-well, the wind finfting lienweene Well and South-well. Then it add and did blow to hard that I tooke in all my fayles, and lay at hull all that night, vntill nue of the clock the eighteenth day in the morning rand then I fee faile againe, and by noone I had failed foure leagues North-west, the wind betweene West and South-west. From the eighteenth at noone, to the nineteenth at noone ten leagues Well by Well, the wind shifting betweene South and South-west, and the weather very thick and fogey.

About feven of the clocke at night the fogge began to breake away, and the wind did finft Thick and foge westerly , and by midnight it was shifted to the North, and there it did blow very hard vitall gie was her. so the twenty at noone; but the weather was very cleare, and then by my obternation I found the thin to bee in the latitude of forty one degrees, forty toute minutes, and I had lailed twenty leagues South-well by Welf. From the nineteenth at noone, to the twentieth at noone : about two of the clocke in the afternoone T did lee an Hed-Tand, which did beare off me South-west, 41.4 g. 44 mis about four eleagues : fo I steered with it, taking it to bee Cape Cod; and by four of the clocke I was fallen among to many thoales, that it was hue of the clocke the next day in the morning before I could get cleere of them, at is a wary dangerous place to fall witholl atoutle theates freat Cape cot. the leaft ten leagues off from the Land ; and I had voon one of them but one fathem and an halfe the des water, and my Barke did draw-fenen foor. This Land lyerh Southwest fand North and Jank file Speales lie of from it South and South by Welt, and I a slong toward the North. At the Northwellby West Guards Fobserned the North-Starre, and found the ship cobe methods of torso tie-one degrees, fitte minutes, being then in the middle of the Sholdes and I did finde thirteene The midd' of degrees on wellerly variation then likewife. Thus finding the place nor so be for my turne afform the Sholees in as I was cleare of their dangers. I shought it fit to retorns to laner Towne in Un with to the 41 des. so mis Lord De-lamarre, my Lord Court much and theresto assembly sommand to I shaped my courte we firth Vafor that place. And the one and twenteeth day by noone I had brought my felie South South-riation. well thirtie three leagues from this Care; and Had the wind thiting all this while betweene North and North-weith a and the weather very faire tod where: From the one and twentieth at noone, to the two and twentieth at noone, I ran thirtie leagues Sooth West by Walty and then by mine obtavation I found the thip to be in chirele minestegrees, that is fixe minutes want Flad 12. degrees of 62 twelve siegrees welterly inaration, and the wind feitring between North and North east, things and the weather very farreand electe. From the two and twentieth at mone, to the three and twentieth at noone ; nine leagues Somets well by West ; and then by observation adid find the 11. degrees of Thip in thirtie nine degrees, twent ditarreminines, and I had eleven degrees of westerly variation, on and there did blow but very littlengend, and flutting betweene West and North, and the weather very faire and cleere. From the three and twentieth at noone to the foure and twentieth at noone eighteene leagues South-west , and then I found the shippe to be in there is he degrees tortie two minutes : and I had swelve degrees of Westerly Variation, and the wind thisting betweene North and West, and the weather very faire.

1762

From the foure and twentieth at noone, to the fine and twentieth, at noone two and twentie leagues West by South, the wind shifting betweene North and East, And then I found the ship to bee in thirtie eight degrees fine and twentie minutes, and the fame Variation that I had before.

and the weather very faire. From the fine and twentieth at noone, to the fix and twentieth at noone, fine and twentie leagues Wefterly, the wind all fhifting betweene South and South-weft. And I had thirteene 10 degrees fine and twentie minutes of Westerly Variation. About fixe of the clocke at night the water was changed, and then I founded and had red fandie ground in twelve fathomes water a-17. deg. 15.mi. bout twelve leagues from the shore. variation.

The feven and twentieth by day in the morning, I was faire aboord the shore, and by nine of the clocke I came to an Anchor in nine fathomes in a very great Bay, where I found great flore of people which were very kind, and promifed me that the next day in the morning they would bring me great ftore of Corne. But about nine of the clocke that night the winde shifted from South-west to East North-east. So I weighed presently, and shaped my course to Cape Charles. This Bay lyeth in Westerly thirtie leagues. And the Souther Cape of it lyeth South South-east and North North-well, and in thirtie eight degrees twentie minutes of Northerly Latitude. 20

Many shoales many of shoales, about pwelve leagues to the Southwester of Cape La Warre. So there I came to 12. leagues to an Anchor in three fathomes water, the winde beeing then all Eafterly, and rode there all that the South of Cape La Watte

Night.

The nine and twentieth in the morning I weighed againe, the wind being all Southerly, and turned vusill night, and then I came to an Anchor in lenen fathomes water in the offine to Sea. How the tyde didier there, or whether that there did runany current or not , I cannot tay; but I could find neither current nor tyde.

The eight and twentieth day, about foure of the clocke in the afternoone I fell among a great

The thirtieth in the morning I weighted againe, the wind still Southerly, and turned all that day, but got very little, fo at Euening I frood off to Sea vneill midnight, and then ftood in againe. 10 The one and thirtieth, about feuen of the clocke at night I came to an Anchor vnder Cape Charles in foure fathomes, and one third part water, and rode there all that night, Cape Charles.

CHAP. VIII.

A Short Relation made by the Lord De-La-Warre, to the Lords and others of the Counfell of Virginia, touching bu unexpetted veturne home, and afterwards delinered to the general Affembly of the faid Company, at a Court holden the twentie fine of fune, 1611. Published by authoritie of the faid Counfell.

My Lords, &c.

Eing now by accident returned from my Charge at Virginia, contrary either to my ownedente or other mens expectations, who spare aut to centure mee, in point of dutie, and to discourse and quetion the reason, though they apprehend not the this casts of my returne, I am forced (out of a willingness to stay appendent ry man) codeliuer with your Lordships, and the rest of this Assembly, briefly 50 to the rest of the rest of this Assembly, briefly 50 to the rest of the rest (but truly) in what flate I have lived, ever fince my arrivall to the Colonie; what hath beene the just occasion of my furdem departure thence; and in what termes I have left the fame: The rather becaused perceine, that fince my comming into England, fuch a coldnesse and irrefolution is bred, in many of the Adventurers, that some of them feeke to withdraw those payments, which they have subscribed cowards the Charge of the Plantation, and by which that Action must be supported and mayntained; making this my returne, the colour of their needlesse backwardneffeand vninte protraction. Which, that you may the bester understand , I must in-Some your Lordfhips, that presently after my arrivall in lames Towne. I was welcommed by a hot and violent Ague; which held me a time, will by the addice of my Phylition, Doctour Lan-Lord La Warter Pence Baban (by bloud letring) I was remoured as invay firth Letters by Sir Thomas Gates, I have 60 informed you. That Difeafe had not long left me, till (within three weekes af er I had gotten a little ftrengeh) I beganto bediffempered with other grieunus fickneifes, which fuccefficely and feuerally affailed meet for befules a relapse into the former Dilease, which with much more violence held me more third a monetty, and brought me to great weaknesse, the Flux surprized mee, and kept me many dayes; then the Crampe affaulted my weake bodie, with ftrong paines; and afrerwards the Goot (with which I had heeretofore beene fometime troubled) afflicted me in fuch fort, that making my bodie through weaknesse vnable to stirre, or to vie any manner of exercise, drew vpon me the Diseale called the Scurny; which though in others it be a ficknesse of slothfalnesse, yet was in me an effect of weaknesse, which never left mee, till I was voon the point to

These severall Maladies and Calamities, I am the more desirous to particularise voto your Lordthinnes (although they were too notorious to the whole Colonie) left any man fhould mildeeme that under the generall name and common excuse of ticknesse, I went about to cloke either sloth. on or feare, or any other bife apprehension, vinworthy the high and Monorable Charge, which you had entrusted to my Fidelitie.

In these extremities I resolved to consult my friends, Who finding Nature spent in mee. and my body almost confumed, my paines likewise daily encreasing) gaue me adulte to prefer a hopefull recodery, before an affured ruine, which must necessarily have ensued, had I lived, but twentie dayes longer in Freinia: wanting at that inflant, both food and Phylicke, fit to remedy fuch extraordinary Dicales, and reftore that strength fo desperately decayed.

Whereupon, after a long confiltation held, I refolued by generall confent and perswafion, to fhip my felfe for Menis, an Illand in the West Indies, famous for wholfesome Bathes, there to try what helpe the Heauenly Prouidence would affoord mee, by the benefit of the hot Bath: an But God, who guideth all things; according to his good will and pleafure, fo provided, that after we had fayled an hundred Leagues, we met with Southerly windes which forced mee to change my purpole (my bodie being altogether vnable to endure the tediousnesse of a long Voyage) and fo feere my course for the Westerne Hands, which I no sooner recoursed, then I found helpe for my health, and my ficknesse asswaged, by meanes of fresh Diet, and especially of Orenges and Orenges and Lemons, an vindoubted remedy and medicine for that Difease, which lastly, and so long, had at Lemons good flicted me : which eafe as foone as I found, I refolued (although my body remayned itill feeble remode for and weake, to returne backe to my charge in Fremia againe, but I was aduised not to hazard my the Scurue. felfe before I had perfectly recouered my thrength, which by counfell I was perfwaded to feeke in the naturall Ayre of my Countrey, and so I came for England. In which Accident , I doubt not but men of reason, and of judgement will imagine, there would more danger and prejudice

haue happened by my death there, then I hope can doe by my returne.

In the next place, I am to give account in what estate I left the Colonie for government in my absence. It may please your Lordships therefore to understand, that upon my departure thence, I made choice of Captaine George Percie (a Gentleman of honour and refolution, and of no small experience in that place, to remayne Deputie Gouernour, vntill the comming of the Marshall rill the com-Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined. mas Gates, according to the intent and order of your Lordinips, and the Councell here.

The number of men I left there, were vpward of two hundred, the most in health, and pro- 200 let there. nided of at least ten moneths victuals, in their Store-house (which is daily iffued voto them) bechildes other helps in the Countrey, lately found out by Captaine Argell by trading with pettie Trade by Capa Kings in those parts, who for a small returne of a piece of Iron, Copper, &c. have consented to dr. 34. trucke great quantities of Corne, and willingly imbrace the intercourse of Traffique, shewing

vnto our people certaine fignes of amitie and affection. And for the better strengthening and securing of the Colonie, in the time of my weaknesse there. I tooke order for the building of three leuerall Forts, two of which are leated neere Point Three Forts. Comfort, to which adiovneth a large circuit of ground, open, and fit for Corne : the third Fort is at the Falls, upon an Iland invironed also with Corne ground. These are not all manned, for I wanted the commoditie of Boats, having but two, and one Barge, in all the Countrey, which hath beene cause that our fishing hath beene (in some fort) hindered for want of those prouisions, which eafily will be remedied when we can gaine fufficient men to bee imployed about those bu-finelles, which in Virginia I found not : but fince meeting with Sir Thomas Gates at the Cowes Sir T. Gates his neere Portsmouth, (to whom I gaue a particular account of all my proceedings, and of the pre- second voyage fent estate of the Colonie as I left it) I understood those wants are supplyed in his Fleet.

The Country is wonderfull fertile and very rich, and makes good what some heretofore hath beene reported of it, the Cattell alreadie there, are much encreased, and thrive exceedingly with the pasture of that Countrie: The Kine all this last Winter, though the ground was covered most with Snow, and the Seafon sharpe, lived without other feeding then the grasse they found, with which they profpered well, and many of them readie to fall with Calue: Milke beeing a great nourithment and refreshing to our people, seruing also (in occasion) as well for Physicke as for 60 food, fo that it is no way to be doubted, but when it shall please God that Sir Thomas Dale, and roo. Kine and

Sir Thomas Gates, shall arrive in Virginia, with their extraordinary supply of one hundred Kine, 200. Swine and two hundred Swine, befides flere of all manner of other provisions for the fuffenance and fent. maintenance of the Colonie, there will appeare that successe in the Action as shall give no man sause of distruit that hath alreadie aduentured, but encourage euery good minde to further so worthy a worke, as will redound both to the glory of God, to the credit of our Nation, and to the comfort of all those that have beene Instruments in the furthering of it.

Dale Mar hoil

Hhhhhhhh

1761

The lat Discourry, during my continual licknesse, was by Captaine Argoll, who hath found a Trade with Patamack (a King as great as Pombatan, who ftill remaynes our Enemie, though not able to doe vs hurt.) This is in a goodly River called Patomack, upon the borders whereof there are growne the goodlieft Trees for Mafts, that may bee found elie-where in the World : Hemps better then English: growing wild in abundance : Mynes of Antimonie and Lead.

There is also found without our Bay to the Northward an excellent fishing Banke for Cod and Ling, as good as can be eaten, and of a kind that will keepe a whole yeere in fhips hold, with little care; a triall whereof I now have brought over with me. Other Ilands there are voon one 10 Coasts, that doe promife rich Merchandize, and will further exceedingly the establishing of the Plantation, by supply of many helpes, and will speedily affoord a returne of many worthy com-

I have left much ground in part manured to receive Corne, having caused it the last Winter to be fowed for Roots, with which our people were greatly relegied. There are many Vines planted in divers places, and doe profper well, there is no want of any thing, if the action can be vnheld with constancie and refolution.

Larly, concerning my felte and my course, though the World may imagine that this Comptrie and Climate, will (by that which I have fuffered beyond any other of that Plantation) ill agree with the flate of my bodie, yet I am fo farre from thrinking or giving over this honourable 10 Enterprize, as that I am willing and readie to lay all that I am worth vpon the aduenture of the Action, rather then so Honourable a Worke should faile, and to returne with all the convenient expedition I may, beleeching your Lordhips and the reft, not onely to excuse my former wants. happened by the Almightie Hand : but to fecond my Refolutions with your friendly indepours: that both the Scate may receive Honour, your felues Profit, and I tuture Comfort, by beeing imployed (though but as a weake Instrument) in so great an Action.

And thus having plainly, truly, and briefly delivered the cause of my returne, with the state of our affaires, as we now stand, I hope every worthy and indifferent hearer, will by comparing my present resolution of returne, with the necessitie of my comming home, rest satisfied with this true and short Declaration.

CHAP. IX.

A Letter of Sir Samuell Argoll touching his Voyage to Virgima, and Actions there : Written to Master Nicholas Hames. June 1612.

Aster Hawes, within senen weekes after my departure from the Coast of England, being the three and twentieth of Iuly, 1612. I fell with the Coast of Virginia, in the La- 40 tituae of fortie degrees. The twelfth of September, with all my men in good health, the number being fixtie two, and all my victuals very well conditioned : my course being fiftie leagues to the Northward of the Azores. The seventeenth, I arrived at Point Comtort, where by the discreet and provident government of Sir Thomas Gates, and oreat paines and bazard of Sir Thomas Dale , I found both the Countrey and people in farre better estate there, then the report was by Juch as came home in Sir Robert Manshelds Ship. From my arrinal until the first of Nonember, I fpont my time in belging to repaire such ships and Boats, as I found beere decayed for lacke of Pitch and Tarre : and in pursuing the Indians with Sir Thomas Dale, for their Corne, of which we got some quantitie, which we were like to have bought very deerely: for by the Providence of God, Sir Thomas Dale escaped killing very narrowly. Then about the beginning of No- 50 uember, by the addice of Sir Thomas Gates, I carried Sir Thomas Dale to Sir Thomas Smiths I. land, to have his opinion of the inhabiting of it: who, after three dayes march in discovering it, apprecied very well of the place : and so much the better, because we found abundance of fish there, and very great Cod, which we caught in fine fathome water, of which we are in hope to get a great quantitie this Summer, for the reliefe of our men, as also to find lafe passage for Boats and Barges thither, by a cut out of the bottome of our Bay, into the De la Watte Bay. For which fifting and better Discourry, I have my fing readie, with my Company in as good health, as at my arrivall, and as they have continued over fixee : for which, God be glorified, to whom we give daily thanker, for the continuance of his mercy.

After my returne from Sir Thomas Smiths Hand, I fitted my thip to fetch Corne from Patowomeck, by trading with the Indians, and fo fet Suyle from Point Comfort the first of December and being 60 entred into Penbrooke River, I met with the King of Pastancie a bunting, who went prefectly about with me, feeming to be very glad of my comming, and told me that all the Indians there were my very great friends, and that they had good flore of Corne for mee , which they had provided the seers before, which we found to be true. Then I carried my lappresently before his Towne, and there last eve a fout shallon, to get the Corne aboord withall, which being done, and having concluded a peace with divers other Indian Lords, and likewife given and taken * Hoftages: I hasted to lames Towne, beeing the first of * Can Web. January, and arrived as Point Comfort the first of February.

CHAP.O. Felling of timber. Great quantitie of Corne. Good Harbour

In this Voyage I got 1100, bulbels of Corne, which I delinered into the senerall Store bouses, accor. Rob. Searches & ding unto the direction of Sir T. Gates : besides the quantuie of 300. busbels, refermed for mine Compa. INO Boyes. my. As some I had valaden this Corne, I set my men to the felling of Timber, for the building of a Fre. 1100 buthels of Corne. gat, which I left halfe finished in the hands of the Carpenters at Point Comfort, the 19. of March: The second and returned my felfe with the hip into Pembrook Riner, and fo discovered to the head of it, which is a voyage to Pinbout 6s. leagues into the Land, and nauigable for any flip. And then marching into the Countrie, I found brooke River, 10 great store of Cattle as big as Kine, of which, the Indians that were my guides, killed a couple which wee Great fore of found to be very good and wholfome meate, and are very easie to be killed, in regard they are beauty firm, Oxen in Praand not fo wild as other beafts of the Wilderneffe. In this cournie I libewife found a Myne, of which I brooke. have fent a triall into England : and likewife a ftrange kind of Earth , the vertee whereof I know not : River. but the Indians eate it for Phylicke, alleaging that it cureth the sicknesse and paine of the belly. I then ife A Myne. found a kind of mater is using out of the Earth, which bath a tart taste much like vuto Allum-water, it is Earth. good and wholfome: for my men did drinke much of it, and never found it otherwife. I alfo found an earth A water that the a Gumme, white and cleere; another fort red like Terra figillata; another very white, and of fo light hith thate

a substance, that being cast into the water, it swimmeth.

Whilst I was in this businesse, I was told by certaine Indians, my friends, that the Greas Powhatans Summe. 20 Danehter Pokahuntis was with the great King Patowo neck, whether I presently repaired, resolving to Ared Earth policife my felfe of ber by any firatagem that I could vie, for the ransoming of fo many English men as like term felle were prisoners with Powhatan ; as also to get such armes and tooles, as bee, and other Indians had got late. by murther and flealing from others of our Nation, with some quantitie of Carne, for the Colonies re. The great King by matther analiseum from overs of the Powne, I manned my Boate and fent on Source, for the Ensign Swift.

Liefe. So soone as I came to an anchor before the Towne, I manned my Boate and fent on Source, for the Ensign Swift. King of Pastancy and Ensigne Swift (whom I had left as a pledge of our love and truce, the Voyage before) who presently came and brought my pledge with him : whom after I had received , I brate the matter to this King, and told him, that if he did not betray Pokohuntis into my hands; wee would be no longer brothers nor friends. Hee alleaged, that if hee Should undertake this businesse, then Powhatan would make warres upon him and his people; but upon my promife, that I would in ne with him against

30 bim, hee repaired presently to bis brother, the great King of Patowomeck, who being made acquainted with the matter, called his Counsell together: and after some few boures deliberation, concluded rather to deliner her incomy bands, then lose my friendship : so presently, he betrayed her into my Boat, wherein I recabunti tacarried her abourd my flip. This done, an Indian was dispatched to Powhatan, to let him know that I had ken. taken his Daughter : and if he would fend home the Englishmen (whom he deteined in Stanerie, with such armes and tooles, as the Indians had gotten, and floine) and also a great quantitie of Corne, that then, he Should have his daughter restored, otherwise not. This newes much grieved this great King, yet, without delay, he returned the messenger with this answer. That he desired me to we his Danghter well, and bring my Ship into his Riner, and there he would give mee my demands; which being performed, I Should deliner

bom his Daughter, and we should be friends.

Having received this answere, I presently departed from Patowomeck, being the 13. of Aprill, and reparred with all freed to Sir T. Gates, to know of bim upon what condition he would conclude this peace, and what he would demand : to whom I also delinered my prisoner, towards whose ransome within few dages, this King (ent home fewen of our men, who feemed to be very tog full for that they were freed from. 7, men freec, the flauery and feare of cruell murther, which they daily before lined in. They brought also three pieces, one broad Axe, and a long Whip-faw, and one Canow of Corne. I beeing quit of my prisoner went forward with the Frigat which I had left at Point Comfort, and finished her.

Thus having put my flip in hand to be fitted for an intended fishing Varage. I left that businesse to be followed by my Master with a ginge of men, and my Lieutenant fortifled on shoare with another ginge to felltimber, and cleane plankes to build a fifting Boat; my Enfigne with another ginge was imployed in

50 the Frigat, for getting of fish at Cape Charles, and transporting it to Henries Towne for the reliefe of such men as were there : and my selfe with a fourth ginge departed out of the River in my shallop, the first of May, for to discourr the East side of our Bay, which I found to have many small Rivers in it, and very courty, good harbours for Boats and Barges, but not for thips of any great burthen; and allo creat fiore of Inbabitants, who feemed very defirous of ou lone, and fo much the rather, because they had received good reports from the Indians of Pembrock River, of our courteous vlace of them, whom I found trading with me for Corne, whereof they had oreat store. We also discovered a multunde of Hands bearing good Medow ground, and as I thinke, Salt might eafily be made there, if there were any ponds digged, for that I found Salt kerned where the water had ouer-flowne in certaine places. Here is also great flore of fish, both shel-fish and other. So basing discourred along the shore some fortie leagues Northward, I returned againe to my loip, the twelfth of May, and hasted forward my businesse left in hand at my departure: and May 12. 1613 fitted up my (lip, and built my fishing Boate, and made readie to take the first opportunitie of the wind for my filling Voyage, of which I beleech God of bis mercy to bleffe us.

Hhhhhhhh 2

CHAP.

Sir T. Gates. Sir T. Dale.

The Deliue -Yance. This was in the Rouge of Nanfamund. His Vovage to Sir T. Smiles Hand, Dela War Bay.

His firft Vovage to Patomomee and Penbrooke Riner. Ayapa Jus the Wernance of Paftancie, CHAP.10. R. Nanfamund. Sir Thomas Gates arrivall. Henrico built.

Notes of Virginian Affaires in the gonernment of Sir THOMAS DALE and of Sir THOMAS GATES till Anno 1614. Taken out of Ma. fler RALPH HAMOR (Secretary to the Colome) his Booke.

Euery mans care is no mans Propriepameftaker.

threefcore persons therein, and those scarceable to go ealone, of wel-nigh fix hundred, nor full ten monethes before. The reason hereof E found the Colonie at our arrivall there, from the Bermudas, not living about when our people were fed out of the common store, and laboured joyntly in the manuring of the ground, and planting Corne, glad was that man that could flip from inslabour ; nay, the most honest of them in a generall businesse, would not take so much faithfull and true paines, in a weeke, as now hee will doe in a day, neither cared they for the increate, prefuming that howfoeuer their hatuest prospered, the generall stere must maintavne them. By which meanes we resped not fo much Corne from the labours of thirtie men, as three men haue done for themselues. To preuent which mitchiefe hereafter Sir Thomas Dale hath tamen naue done for themselves the whole Colonie, by which meanes, the generall flere (appareil onely excepted) shall not bee charged with any thing : and this it is, here hath allotted to every man in the Colonie, three English Acres of cleere Corne ground, which every man is to mature and tend, being in the nature of Farmers (the Bermuda vindertakers onely excepted) and they are not called voto any feruice or labour belonging to the Colonie, more then one moneth in the yeere, which shall neither be in Seed time, or in Haruest, for which, doing no other durie to the Colonie, they are yearely to pay into the store two barrels and a halfe of Corne : there to be referued to keepe new men, which shall bee fent ouer , the first yeere after their arrivall : and even by this meanes I dare fay, our store will bee bountifully furnished, to maintayne three or source hundred men, whenfoeuer they shall be fept thither to vs. Concerning the vidertaking of the Bermuda Citie, a bufineffe of greatest hope, euer begunne 30 at a time.

Sir Thom. Dales

Bermuda Citica

in our Territories there, their Patent, doth apparantly demonstrate, upon what termes and conditions they voluntarily haue undertaken that imployment. The Land is stored with plentie and varietie of wild Beafts, Lions, Beares, Deere of all forts, onely differing from ours in their o: 4. Fawnes increase, having vitall, three or foure Fawnes at a time, none that I have seene or heard off vnder two: the reason whereof some of our people ascribe to the vertue of scme grasse or herbe which they eate, because our Goates oftentines bring forth three, and most of them two: for my part I rather impute their fecundire to the Prouidence of God, who for every mouth provideth meate. and if this moreafe were not, the Naturals would affuredly starue; for of the Deere (they kill as doe we Beefes in England) all the yeere long, neither sparing young nor olde, no not the Does readie to fawne, nor the young Fawnes, if but two dayes olde) Beauers, Otters, Foxes, Racou- 40 nes, almost as bigge as a Foxe, as good meate as a Lambe, Hares, wild Cats, Muske Rats, Squirrels flying, and other of three or foue forts, Apossumes of the bignesse and likenesse of a P.gge of a moneth old, a beaft of as strange incredible nature, she hath commonly leuen young ones, sometimes more and sometimes lesse, which at her pleasure till they be a moneth old or more shee tateth up into her belly, and purteth forth againe without hurt to her felfe or them. Of each of thefe beafts, the Lion excepted, my felle haue many times eaten, and can testifie that they are not onely taftefull, but also wholfome and nourishing food. There are fowle of divers forts, Eagles wild Turkeyes much bigger then our English Cranes, Herons white and ruffet Hawkes, wilde Pidgeons (in Winter beyond number or imagination, my selfe have feene three or foure houres together flockes in the Aire, fo thicke that even they 50 haue shadowed the Skie from vs) Turkeyes, Buzzards , Partridge , Snipes, Owles, Swannes, tore in Ouieds. Geele, Brants, Ducke and Mallard, Droeis, Shel-drakes, Cormorants, Teale, Widgeon, Curtore in Ouieds. lewes, Puits, beildes other small birds, as Black-birds, Heige-Sparrowes, Oxe-eyes, Wood-peckers, and in Winter about Christmasse many flockes of Parakertoths. For fish, the Rivers are plentifully stored, with Sturgeon, Porpasse, Base, Rockfish, Carpe, Shad, A Frigusla- Herring, Ele, Cathill, Perch, Flat-fish, Trout, Sheepes-head, Drummers, Iarlish, Creviles, Crabbes, Oyfters and divers other kindes, of all which my felfe hath feene great quantitie taken, especially the last Summer at Smiths lland, at one hale a Fingots lading of Sturgion, Bale and other great fish in Captaine Argals Saine : and even at the very place which is not above fifteene miles trom Point. Comfort, if we had beene furnished with falt, to have faued it, wee might have taken 60

Apossumes.

as much fish as would have served vs that whole yeere. To goe yet a little further, I my felfe know no one Countrey yeelding without Art or indufiry fo many fruits; Grapes Strawberries, Mulberries, Maricocks, of fallion of a Lemmon, whole Faireflowres, bloffome may admit comparison with our most delightsome and beautifull Flowers, and the fruit exceeding pleafant and taffuil: Chefine-trees towardes the Falls as many as Oakes, and as fertill many goodly Groues of Chincomentrees, with a buske like vnto a Cheinut, raw or boiled. Interious and heartie meat : Walnuts of three or foure forts, whereof there might bee yeerely made orest quantitie of Oyles, as vicifull and good as that of Oliues: Some Filberds haue I feene, Crabs Crabs. great store, leffe, but not to fower as ours, which grafted with the Siens of English Apple-trees. without question would beare very good fruit.

In May, 1611. Sir Thomas Dale, with a prosperous passage, not full eight weekes arrived there Sir The. Dales with him about three hundred people, fuch as for the present speed and dispatch could then bee going to Virgi prouided, of worse condition then those formerly there, who I forrow to speake it, were not fo mis jair tit. a proudent, though once before bitten with hunger and penury, as to put Corne into the ground for their Winters bread, but trufted to the store, then furnished but with eight months prouision. His first care therefore was to imploy all hands about fetting of Corne at the two Forts. feated wretches. voon Kecongbian , Henry and Charles , whereby the fealon then not fully past, though about the His care and end of May, we had there an indifferent Crop of good Corne.

This purinelle taken order for , and the care and truth of it committed to his under Officers : to lames Towns hee haitened, where the most company were, and their daily and vitall workes, bowling in the fireets, these he imployed about necessary workes, as felling of Timber, repairing their houses ready to fall upon their heads, and prouiding Pailes, Posts and Railes, to impaile his purposed new Towne, which by reason of his ignorance in those parts, but newly arrived there, to he had not resolved where to seat. For his better knowledge therefore of those parts, himselfe with an hundreth men spent some time in the discourry, first of Navlamund River, which in de- R Nanlamund foight of the Indians, then our enemies, hee discouered to the Head, after that, our owne River to Wife for the fpight of the Indians, then our enemies, nee on concrete to the read, after that, but the Relation the Falls, where vponaligh Land, inuitoned with the maine Riggs, fome fixteene or twentie forbuild conmiles from the Head or the Falls, neere to an Indian Towne called Arfabattocke, hee reloked to plant his new Towne, and fo did, whereof in his due place I shall make a briefe relation.

It was no meane trouble to him, to reduce his people to timely to good order, being of foill a condition as may well witnesse his seuere and strict imprinted booke of Articles , then needfull with all feueritie and extremitie to bee executed, now much mitigated ; for more deferued death in those dayes, then doe now the least punishment, so ag if the law should not have restrained by execution, I fee not how the veter subursion and ruine of the Colory should have beene prevented, witnelle Webbes and Prifes defigne in the first yeere, fince that Abbets, and others more dand wolleiter.

gerous then the former, and even in this Summer, Coles and Kuchins Plot, with three more, bending their course towards the Southward, to a Spanish plantation reported to be there, who had travelled (it being now a time of peace) fome five dates sourney to Ocanaboen, there cut off by sertaine Indians, hired by vs to hunt them home to receive their delerts.

Thus much obuiously I proceed in his indevours, varill Sir Thomas Gates his happy arrivall, which was onely in preparing Timber, Pales, Polits, and Railes for the prefent impailing this new Towne to fecure himselfe, and men from the malice and weatherie of the Indian, in the midst and heart of whom he was resolved to set downer. But before he could make himselie readie for that bufineffe, Sir Thomas Gates happily arrived about the focond of August, with fixe good Ships, men, Arrivallof Sir prouisions and cattle. The worthies being met after falutation and welcome given and received, Sir Thomas Dale acquainted Sir Thomas Gates, both with fuch bufineffes as he had affected fince his arrivall, and alfo of his resolution to build a new Towne at the Fales: which designe and purpose of his, Sir Thomas Gates, then principall Gouernour in Virginia, well approuing, furnished him with the huntin and fiftie men, fuch as himselfe made choice of, and in the beginning of September, to 11 her to from lames Towne, and in a day and a halfe landed at a place where hee purposed to pack and build, where hee had beene ten dates before hee had verie frongly impaled feuen ball Acte of ground for a Towne . which in honour of the Noble Prince Heary (of ever happen and bleffe to memory, whose Royall heart was strongly affected to that action) hee called by the name of Henrico. In foure moneths space, he had made Henrico much better, and of more worth then all the worke ever fince the Colony began, therein done. I should bee too ted ous if I should give yo the account of enery daies I bour, which therefore I purpofely omit, and will onely deferibe the Towne, is the very flate and perfection which I left it and first for the situation, it stands whom a necke of a very high Land, three parts thereof inuironed with the maine River, and cut out between two Rivers with a strong Pale, which maketh the neck of Landan Hand. There are in this by Sir T. Dale.

honfes, and fuch like; there are also, as ornaments belonging to this Towne, vpon the Verge of this River, fine faire Block-houtes, or Commanders, wherein live the honester lore of reople, as in Farmes in England, and there keepe continuall centinell for the Townes fecuritie, and about two miles from the Towne into the Main, a Pale of two miles in length cut offer from River to River, guarded likewife with feusrall Commanders, with great quantitie of Corne ground impage led, fufficient if there were no more in the Colony secured, to maintaine with but cake manuring, Habbahh 3

Town three dreets of well framed houses, a handsome Church & the foundation of a more stately one laid of Brick, in length an hundred foot, and fiftie foot wide, befides Store-houses, Watchimploiment,

Tho. Gates, with

Henrico buile

and husbandry, more men, then I suppose will be addressed thither (the more is the pittie) these

For the further enlargement yet of this Towne, on the other fide of the River, by impaline likewife : for we make no other fence, is fecured to our vie, especially for our hogges to feed in about twelle English miles of ground, by name, Hope in Faith, Coxen-Dale, secured by five Fortscalled Charity Fort, Mount Malado, a Retreat or Gueft-house for ficke people, a high feate, and wholiome ayre, Elizabeth Fort, and Fort Patience: and here hath Master Whitacres chosen his Parfonage, or Church-land, some hundred Acres impaled, and a faire framed Parsonage house built thereupon, called Rocke Hall. Of this Towne, and all the Forts thereunto belonging, hath Captaine James Danis the principall Command and Gouernment.

guished.

Virginia is brought to fuch an a-

him or others

in that kind.

I proceed to our next and most hopefull habitation, whether wee respect commoditie or secu-Bermada a city. ritie (which we principally ayme at) against forraine designes and inuasion, I meane the Bermuda Citie, begun about Christmasse last, which because it is the neerest adiopning to Henrico. though the last vindertaken, I hold it pertinent to handle in the next place. This Towne, or Plantation is feated by Land, fome fine miles from Hemice, by water fourteene, being the veere before the habitation of the Appamatucks, to revenge the treacherous injurie of those people done vnto vs, taken from them, belides all their Corne, the former before without the loffe of amy, faue onely force few of those Indians (pretending our hurt) at what time Sir Thomas Dale. being himfelfe vpon that feruice, and duely confidering how commodious a habitation and feate sunareds set out and diffine it might be for vs, tooke resolution to possesse and plant it, and at that very instant, gaue it the 20 name of the new Bermudas, whereunto he hath laid out, and annexed to bee belonging to the Freedome, and Corporation for ener, many miles of Champion, and Wood-land, in feurrall Hundreds, as the upper and nether Hundreds, Roch-dale Hundred, West: Sherly Hundred. French di planand Digges his Hundred.

Captaine Argalls Northward discourries towardes Sacadebec, and beyond to Port Rosall. Long difcourfes followed in the Authoribut Santia Crux, and thereabout may not bee concealed : In which his aduentures, if he had brought home no commoditie to the Colony (which yet he did very much, both of apparell, victualls. and many other necessaries) the honour which he hath done vnto our Nation, by displanting the French, there beginning to feat and fortifie within our limits, and taking of their Ship & Pinnace, which he brought to Iame: Towne, would have been reward enough for his paines, and will ever 30 that I have no heart to follow speake loud his honour, and approved valour.

CHAP. XI

A Letter of Sir THOMAS DALE, and another of Master WHITAKERS, from James Towne in Virginia, lune 18. 1614. And a piece of a Tractate, written by the faid Mafter WHITAKERS from Virginia the yeere before.

> To the R. and my most esteemed friend, M.D. M. at his house at F. Ch. in London.

John Reutrend Sir, by Sir Thomas Gates I wrote unto you, of fuch occasions as then prefenced themselves, and now agains by this worthy Gentleman Captaine Argall I falute you : for such is the reserved regard I have of you, as I cannot omst any occasion to expresse the function affection I beare you. You have over given mee encouragements to per seuro in this Religious Wartare, until your last Letters; not for that you are now less well assected thereunto : but because you see the Action to be in danger of their non-50 performances who undertooks the businesse. I have undertaken, and have as faithfully, and with all my might indeanoured the profecution with all alacritie, as God that knoweth the heart can beare merecord, what recompence, or what rewards, by whom, or when I know not where to expect; but from him in whole Vineward I labour, whose Church with greedy appetite I defire to erect. My glarious Mafter is gone, that would have ennamelled with bie favours the labors I undertake, for Gods cause, and his immortall konome. Hee was the Great Captaine of our Israel, the hope to have builded up this beauent, new Icarullem he interred (I thinke) the whole frame of this bufinesse, fell into his grave : for most mensionward (at least feeming fo) desires are quenched, and Virginia stands in desperate bazard. Tou there dos your duties, I will no way omit mine, the time I promised to labour, is expired : it is not a yoke of Oxen bath drawne mee from this feaft : it is not the marriage of a wife makes me hall bome, though that fallat 63 gine mee an appetite to canse me returne. But I have more care of the Stock, then to set upon a Dye, and rather put my lefe to the curtefic of noble and worthy censures, then ruine this Worke; and have a Tury (nay 4 million) of foule mouthed detractors, fcan upon my endeanours, the ends whereof they cannot dimeinto. You Shall briefly understand what bath betide since my last, and how ne new stand, and are likely to grow to perfection, if wee be not altogether neglected, my ftay grounded upon such reason. as had I now returned, it would have hazarded the ruine of all.

Sir Thomas Gates basing imbarked bimfelfe for England, I put my felfe into Captaine Argalls flip, with a bundred and fiftie men in my frigot, and other boats went unto Pamaunkie River, where Powina- Sir T. Dales tan hath his residence, and can in two or three dayes, draw a thousand men together; with me I carried joutny to Powhis danshier, who had beene long prisoner with us, it was a day or two before wee heard of them: At batan: Counlength they demanded why wee came; I gave for answere, that I came to bring him his daughter, conditionally he would (as bath beene agreed upon for her ransome) render all the Armes, Tooles, Swords, and men that bad run away, and to give me a ship full of Corne, for the wrong bee bad done unto us: if they the particular 10 would doe this, wee would be friends, if not burne all. They demanded time to fend to their King; I affen- circumstances ted, I taking, they receising two pledges, to carry my meffage to Pownatan. All night my two men lay not farre from the water fide about noone the next day they told them the great King was three daies iournes off that Opechankane was hard by to whom they would have had them deliner their message, saying, M. Hanot. That what hee agreed upon and did, the great King would confirme. This Opocankano is brother to Powhatan, and is his and their chiefe Captaine : and one that can as foone (if not fooner) as Powhatan com nand the men. But my men refused to doe my message unto any saue Powhatan, so they were brought backe, and I (ent theirs to them; they told me that they would fetch Simons to me, who had thrice plaid the runnagate, whose lyes and villany much hindred our trade for Corne: But they delayed vs. so as we went a hore they fact at us, we were not behinde hand with them, killed some, hurt others, marched into 20 the Land, burnt their bouses, tooke their Corne, and quartered all night ashoare.

The next day we went further up the River, they digged us and called to know whither we went; wee answered. To burne all, if they would not doe as we demanded, and had beene acreed voon. They would they (aid, bring all the next day fo we forbare all hostilitie, went ashoure, their men in good numbers commine amonest ve but we were very cantious and flood to our Armes. The Kings daughter went alboare, Pacabintus bebut would not talke to any of them, Carce to them of the best fort, and to them onely, that if her father haubur and had loved her, he would not value her leffe then old Swords, Peeces, or Axes: wherefore shee would fill tepotte dwell with the English men, who loued ber, At last came one from Pow hatan, who told vs, that Simons was run away, to Nonlow haicond, which was a truth, as afterwards appeared, but that the other Englift man was dead that proued a lie (for fince M. Hamor, whom I employed to Powhatan brought him to mee) our Peeces, Swords, and Tooles within fificene dayes, should be sent to lames Towne, with some Corne, and that his daughter should be my child, and ener dwell with mee, defiring to be ener friends, and named such of his people, and neighbour Kings, as hee defined to be included, and have the benefit of the peace, promifing if any of our men came to hime, without lease from mee, he would fend them backe : and that if any of his men ft ale from us, or killed our cattell, hee would fend them to us to bee punished as wee thought fit, With the fe conditions were returned, and within the time limited, part of our Armes were fent, and twentie men with Corne, and promifed more, which he hath alfo fent. Opachankano defired I Orachankana would call bim frund, and that be might call me so, saying, Hee was a great Captaine, and did always now their fight: that I was also a great Captaine, and therefore be loued mee; and that my friends should bee his king,& worked friends. So the bargaine was made, and enery eight or ten dayes, I have me fages and prefents from him.

40 with many appearances that he much desireth to continue friendship. Now may you indee Sir, if the God of Battailes had not a belging hand in this, that having our Swords drawne, killing their men, burning their boufes, and taking their corne : yet they tendred us peace. and strine with all alacretie to keepe us in good opinion of them; by which many benefits arise unto us. First, part of our Armes, diffracefully lost long agoe (kept by the Sauages as Monuments and Trophies of our frames) redelinered fome repaire to our Honor, Our catellto mercafe without dancer of de-Broying our men at libertie to hunt freely for Veni fou, to fifb, to doe any thing elfe, or goe any whither without danger , to follow the bushanding of our corne securely , whereof wee have abone fine hundred Acres (et. and God be praised, in more forwardnesse then any of the Indians, that I have seene or heard of this yeares, Roots and Hearbs we have abundance; all doubt of want is by Gods bleffing quite vanished, and much plentie expected. And which is not the least materiall, wee may by this peace come to discourse the Countrey better, both by our owne trauells, and by the relation of the Sanages, as we grow in familiaria

Powhatans daughter I caused to be carefully instructed in Christian Religion, who after she had made Some good progresse therein, renounced publikely her Countrey Idolatry, openly confessed her Christan Pocahantas Faith, was, as shee desired, haptised, and is since married to an English Gentleman of good waderslan. baptised (80 thing (as b) his Letter unto me, containing the reasons of his marriage of her you may perceine) another have heard the knot to binde this peace the stronger. Her Father and friends gave approbation to it, and her Vncle gave was properly her to him in the Church : free lines civilly and louingly with him, and I trust will increase in goodnesse, as named) at helt the knowledge of God increaseth in ber. Shee will goe into England with mee, and were it but the gaining called Rebecca; 60 of this one foule, I will thinke my time, toile, and prefent flay well spent.

Since this accident, the Governours and people of Checkahomanies, who are fine hundred Bow-men, and better, a front and warlshe Nation, have made meanes to have us come unto them, and conclude a peace, where all the Governours would meet me. They having thus three or foure times importuned me, I refolued to goe; fo having Captaine Argall, with fiftie men in my Frigot and Barge I went thither : Capfelues be called. The partiletter to the Committees

foure of the

put all together, may no

ery either for commodities.

or goodness

Mafter Alexan-

of foile.

same Arzall with forty men landed, I kept abourd for some reasons. Vpon the meeting they told Captaine Argall they had longed to be friends, that they had no being, but eight great men, who gonerned them. He told them that we came to be friends, asked them if they would have King lames to be their King, and whether they would be his men? They after some conference betweene themselves, seemed willing of both demanding if we would fight against their enemies; he told them that if any didthem minry, they should lend me word, and I would agree them, or if their adversaries would not, then I would let them have ac many men as they would to helpe them: they liked well of that, and told him that all their men should They called the English Tof- being a Mil this being agreed upon, Captaine Argall ganc enery Counfellour a Tamahawk. and familia and o a peece of Copper, which was kindely taken: they requested further, that if their Boates flouds hap-woold them.

Best meter with our Boates flouds happen to meete with our Boates, and that they faid they were the Chikahominy Englishmen, and 10 King lames bu men, wee would let them passe: we agreed unto it, so that they pronounced themselues Englishmen, and King lames his men, promising within fifteene dages to come unto lames Towne to fee culars and ar-ticles of agree- me, and conclude the fe conditions; every Bowman being to give me as a Tribute to King lames two meamont are in M. fures of Corne every harvest she two measures containing two bushels and a halfe and I to give every Bow-H amors Books; man a small Tamahawke; and to enery Counseller a fuit of red cloath, which did much please them. This people neuer acknowledged any King before, no nor ener would acknowledge Powhatan for their King; a front people they be, and a delicate feate they have.

Now Sir you fee our conditions, you, and all worthy men may indee, whether it would not be a criefe to lee thele faire hopes frostbitten, and thele fresh budding plants to wither? which had I returned had alfuredly followed for here is no one that the people would have governe them, but my felfe: for I had now come 20 away, bad I not found a generall defire in the best fort to returne for England : Letter upon Letter, request upon request from their friends to returne, so as I knew not upon whom to conferre the care of this businelle in my ablence : whom I thought fit was generally distasted, so as seeing the eminent ensuing danger. bould I have left this multitude, not yet fully refined, I am refolued to flay till harnest be got in, and then Cetile things according tomy poore understanding, and returne : if in the interim there come no authoria fed Gonernour from England.

Consider I pray you, since things be brought to this passe, as you see, and that I should have come away, Sir T. Dales rethen through their factions, humors, mutinies, or indifferetion of the Chiefes I had left behinde, this port of Firgi. Should fall to ruine : I then should receive the emputation, and incurre the blame, for quitting the Plantaia. In another tion, although I might doe is, both with my bonour, my promised flay of time being expired, and basino 30 warrant from my Soueraigne, the Kings Maiesty : but the precedent reasons moned mee and that this he writeth that astion of fuch price, fuch excellency and affured profit to mine come knowledge should not dye to the scorne of our Nation, and to give cause of laughter to the Papists, that desire our ruine. I can affere you no best Kingdoms Country of the world affords more affured bopes of infinite riches, which both by mine owne peoples difcoof Christendame mery, and the relation of fach Sauages, whose fidelity we have often found, affureth me. Oh why should Comany Princes and Noblemen ingage themselves, and thereby intermeding herein, have cansed a numway compare with this coun- ber of soules transport the melelucs, and be transported bother? Why should they (I. say) relinquish thu so olorious an Action: for if their end; be to build God a Church, they ought to perfenere : if otherwise, yet their honour ingageth them to be constant. How seener they hand affelted, here is enough to content them, 10 let their ends be either for God, or Mammon.

These things having animated me to stay for a little season, to leave those, I am tied in conscience to returne unto, to leave the affured benefits of my other fortunes, the sweete society of my friends and acquaintance, with all mundall delights, and refide here with much turmoile, which I will constantly doe, rather then fee Gods glory diminified, my King and Countrey dishonored, and thefe poore people, I have the charge of, ruined. And so I be secch you to answer for me, if you beare me taxed for my staying, as some may infily was son to that doe, and that these are my chiese motives God I take to witnesse. Remember me and the cause I have in worthy of Po- band, in your daily meditations, and reckon me in the number of those shat doe sincerely lone you and yours, and will ever rest in all offices of a friend, to doe you service.

der whitaker lemicall Dinine Doctor whitaker Mafter of S. labas Col.in Cambridge. Whatshadowes of men are the moft in this fhould neede gyrikes ? They

> ing tuffer ill, crywhore firft,

To my very deere and louing Cosen At. G. Minister of the B. F. in London.

Ir, the Colony here is much better. Sir Thomas Dale, our Religious and valiant Governour, bath Inom brought that to paffe, which never before could be effected. For by warre upon our exemies, and age, that the Inam brought that to paye, would never before could be ejected. For of warre 2000 our extends, be best deserving kinde vsage of our friends, he hash brought them to seeke for peace of vs. which is made, and they dire not breake. But that which is best, one Pocahuntas or Matoa the daughter of Powhatan, is married to an bonest and descreete English Gentleman Master Rolfe, and that after the had openly renounced her Country Idolatry, professed the faith of lesus Christ, and was baptised ; which thing Sir Thomas Dale had laboured a long time to ground in her.

Tet notwithstanding, are the vertuous deedes of this worthy Knight, much dehafed, by the Letters which fome wicked men have written from hence, and especially by one C. L. If you heare any condemna and by depra- this noble Knight, or doe feare to come hither, for those standarows Letters, you may upon my word boildy uing inflice represents my now that no malefulfors can abide the face of the Indge, but themselves scorning to CHAP. 11. Surplis and subscription. Miserable condition. Strange Narrations. 1771 be reproved, doe professie with all hatred, all those that labour their amendment. I marwaile much that ociep men of honest life, hould feare the Sword of the Magistrate, which is unfheathed onely in

But I much more muse, that so sew of our English Ministers that were so bot against the Survius and SubGription : come hither where neither spoken of. Doe they not either wilfully bide their Tallents or beeve themselues at home for feare of loosing a few pleasures? Be there not any amongst them of Moles bu munde, and of the Apoities, that for sooke all to follow (brist? But I referre them to the indee of all bearts, and to the King that shall remard enery one according to the gaine of his Talent. But you my cofen bold fait that which you have, and I, though my promise of three yeeres service to my Country be 10 expired, will abide in my vocation here untill I be lawfully called from hence. And so betaking us all unto the mercies of God in Christ lefus, I rest for ener.

Part of a Tractate written at Henrico in Virginia, by Master A L EX. WHITAKER, Minister to the Colony there, which then gouerned by Sir T. DALE, 1613.

Hey acknowledge that there is a great good God, but know him not, having the eyes of I their understanding as yet blinded: wherefore they serue the Diuell for seare, after a most bale manner, facrificing sometimes (as I haue here heard) their owne Children to him. I haue fent one Image of their god to the Counfell in England, which is painted vpon one fide of a toadfoole, much like vnto a deformed monfter. Then Priefts (whom they call Quiste foughs) are no Their Priefts other but fuch as our English Witches are. They live naked in body, as if their shame of their and mannet finne deferued no courring: Their names are as naked as their body: they esteeme it a vertue to or huing. lye, deceiue, and steale, as their Master the Divell teacheth them. Much more might be said of their miferable condition, but I referre the particular narration of these things to some other

These men are not so simple as some have supposed them : for they are of body lufty, strong, and very nimble: they are a very understanding generation, quicke of apprehension, juddaine in their dispatches, subtile in their dealings, exquiste in their inventions, and industrious in their labour, Liuppole the world hath no better marke-men with their Bowes and Arrowes then they be; they will kill Birds flying, Fishes swimming, and Beasts running: they shoote also with meruilous ftrength, they shot one of our men being vnarmed quite through the body, and nailed both his armes to his body with one Arrow : one of their Children also, about the age of twelue or thirteene yeeres, killed a Bird with his Arrow in my fight. The feruice of their God is answerable to their life, being performed with a great feare and attention, and many strange dumbe shewes vsed in the same, stretching forth their limbes, and straining their body, much like to the counterfeit women in England, who faine themselves bewitched, or possessed of some

They stand in great awe of the Quickofonabs or Priests, which are a generation of Vipers, even of Sathans owne brood. The manner of their life is much like to the Popish Hermits of our age; for they live alone in the woods, in houses sequestred from the common course of men, neither may any man be fuffered to come into their house or to speake with them, but when this Priest doch call him, He taketh no care for his victuals, for all such kinde of things both Bread and Water, &c. are brought vnto a place neere vnto his cottage, and there are left, which hee fetcheth for an proper neede. If they would have raine, or have loft any thing, they have their recourse to him, was conjureth for them, and many times prevaileth. If they be ficke, he is their Phylician; if they be wounded, he sucketh them. At his command they make warre and peace, neither doe they any thing of moment without him. I will not be tedious in these firange Narrations, when I have more perfectly entered into their fecrets, you shall know all. Finally, there is a civill government among ft them which they strictly observe, and shew thereby that the law of Nature dwell th in them: for they have a rude kinde of Common-wealth, and rough government was killed in wherein they both honour and obey their Kings, Parents, and Gouernours, both greater and lette, Bernadaby anthey observe the limits of their owne possessions. Murther is fearly heard of : Adultery and other other State offences teuerely punished.

The whole Continent of Virginia fituate within the degrees of 34. and 47. is a place beautified by God, with all the ornaments of nature, and enriched with his earthly treasures : that pare of it, which we already possesse, beginning at the Bay of Chasapheae, and stretching it telle in 60 Northerly latitude to the degrees of 39, and 40 is interlined with feuen most goodly Rivers, the leaft whereof is equall to our River of Thames: and all thete Rivers are to neerely toyned, as that Arthoras there is not very much distance of dry ground betweene either of them, and those feu rall maine miles. lands are every where watered with many veines or creekes of water, which fundry waies doe Suerthwart the land, and make it almost nauigable from one River to the other. The commodity alto Eagels and Hankes of all forts, among ft whom are Auspreys, fishing Hanke, and the Cormorant. The woods be every where full of wilde Turkies, which abound, and will runne as swift birds; the Riners and creekes be ouer-spread enery where with water foule of the greatest and brait fort, as Swans, flockes of Geefe and Brants, Ducke and Mallard, Sneldrakes, Dyuers, &c.

besides many other kindes of rare and delectable Birds, whose names and natures I cannot yet recite, but we want the meanes to take them. The Rivers abound with Fish both small and great;

of Herings come in first : Shads of a great bignesse, and Rock fish follow them. Trouts, Base, great Sturgeons, whereof we catch many, and should do more, but that we want good Nets antiwerable to the breadth and deapth of our Rivers : besides, our channels are so soule in the botgiue proper names to the divers kindes of fresh fish in our Rivers; I have caught with mine Angle,

Pike, Karpe, Eele, Perches of fix seuerall kindes, Crea-fish, and the Torope or little Turtle, besides to Flounders, and other dainty fish come in before the other be gone : then come multitudes of the Sea-fish come into our Rivers in March, & continue vnrill the end of September : great sculls Fish.

tome with great logges and trees, that we often breake our Nets vpon them: I cannot reckon nor Nets.

as a Greyhound. In winter our fields be tull of Cranes, Herons, Pigeons, Partridges and Black- Fowle.

whereof to those that shall inhabite this land is infinite, in respect of the speedy and easie transportance of goods from one River to the other, I cannot better manifelt it vnto you, but in aduting you to confider whether the water or land hath beene more beneficiall to the Low-Countries. To the River which we inhabit (commonly called Powbatans River) ebbeth and floweth one hundred and forty miles into the maine; at the mouth whereof are the two Forts of Henrice and Charles: two and forty miles voward is the first and Mother-Christian Towne feated, called James-Torne: and fevency miles beyond that vpward, is the new Towne of Henrice built, and fo named in the memory of Noble Prince Herry of lafting and bleffed memory: tenne miles beyond this is a place called the Fals, because the River hath there a great descent falling downe between Christall Rock Stall Rocke wherewith the Indians doe head many of their Arrowes; three dayes journey from thence is there a Rock or flony hill found, which is in the top couered all ouer with a perfect and most rich Silver oare. Our men that went to discouer those parts had but two Iron Pickaxes with them, and those to ill tempered, that the points of them turned againe, and bowed at enery ftroake, fo that we could not learch the entrailes of the place, yet fome triall was made of that oare with good successe, and argument of much hope. Six dayes journey beyond this Mine a great ridge of high hils doe runne along the maine land, not farre from whom the Indians reporta great Sea doth runne, which we commonly call a South Sea, but in respect of our habitation is a West Set, for there the Sun fetteth from vs. The higher ground is much like vnto the molde of France. have done for out Bricks) we finde it to be red clay, full of gliffering spangles. There be many tockie places in all quarters; & more then probable likelihoods of rich Mines of all forts : though I knew all, yet it were not convenient at this time that I hould veter all, neither have wee had meanes to fearch for any thing as we ought, thorough prefent want of men, and former wants Avreand Sea- of provision for the belly. As for Iron, Steele, Antimonium, and Terra figillata, they have rather offered themselves to our eyes and hands, then bin sought for of vs. The Ayre of the Countrey (especially about Henrico and voward) is very temperate and agreeth well with our bodies. The extremity of Summer is not to hot as Spaine, nor the cold of Winter fo sharpe as the frosts of England. The Spring and Haruest are the two longest seasons and most pleasant, the Summer and Winter are both but fhort. The Winter is for the most part dry and faire, but the Summer 30 watered often with many great and lodaine showers of raine; whereby the cold of Winter is warmed, and the heate of Summer cooled. Many have died with vs heretofore thorough their

The naturall people of the Land are generally such as you heard of before. A people to be feared of thole that come you them without defensive Armor, but otherwise faint-hearted (if they fee their Arrowes cannot pierce and easie to be subdued. Shirts of Male, or quilted cotten coates are the best desence against them. There is but one or two of their petry Kings, that for feare of vs have defired our friendship; and those keepe good quarter with vs, being very pleasant amongst 40 vs. and (if occasion be) seruiceable vnto vs. Our eldest friends be Pipisco and Choapote, who are our overchwart neighbours at lames-Towne, and have beene friendly to vs in our great want. The other is the Weromance of Chescheak, who but lately traded with vs peaceably. If we were once the mafters of their Country, and they flood in feare of vs (which might with few hands imployed about nothing elfe, be in short time brought to passe) it were an easie matter to make them willingly to forfake the Diuell, to embrace the faith of Iefus Christ, and to be baptized. piety&ciuility Besides, you cannot easily judge how much they would be availeable to vs in our Discoue-What vie may ries of the Countrey, in our Buildings and Plantings, and quiet prouision for our felues, when we may peaceably passe from place to place without neede of Armes or Guard.

owne filthinese and want of bodily comforts for ficke men; but now very few are ficke amone

vs : not aboue three persons amongst all the inhabitants of Henrice; I would to God our soules

The meanes for our people to line and fublift here of themselves are many and most certaine to both for Beafts, Birds, and Hearbes. The Beafts of the Countrey are for the most part wilde: as Lyons, Beares, Wolues and Deere: Foxes blacke and red, Rakowns, Beners, Pollowns, Squerrels, Wilde-Cats, whose skins are of great price, and Muske-Rats which yeelde Muske as the Muske-Cats doe. There be two kindes of Bealts amongst these most strange; one of them is the female Pollowne, which will let forth her yong out of her belly, and take them vp into her belly againe at her pleafure without hurt to her felfe; neither thinke this to be a Trauellers tale, but the very truth; for nature hath framed her fit for that fertice, my eyes have beene witneffe vato it, and we have fent of them and their yong ones into England. The other strange conditioned creature is the flying Squirrell, which thorough the helpe of certaine broad flaps of skin growing on each fide of her forelegs, will flye from tree to tree twenty or thirty paces at one flight 60 and more, if the have the benefit of a fmall breath of winde, Befides there, fince our comming hither, we have brought both Kine, Goates, and Hogges, which prosper well, and would multiply exceedingly, if they might be prouided for. This Countrey besides is replenished with Birds of all forts, which have bin the best sustenance of flesh, which our men have had since they came;

many minerall Rockes which be there: twelue miles farther beyond this place is there a Chris. In clay and fand being proportionably mixed together at the top; but if we digge any depth (as we 10

many imaller kindes,&c.

I therto you have heard the Authors themsekes speak of their owne affaires. Now we must for continuation and confummation of our Story, borrow a few Collections from others, where the Authors themselves have not comne to our hands. Wherein that industrious Gentleman Captaine lobn Smith still breathing Vergimid and diligent enquiry and writing, as sometime by discouery and doing to shew his zeale to this action (for feeing he cannot there be employed to performe Virginian exploits worthy the writing, here he employeth himselfe to write Virginian affaires worthy the reading) having compiled a long Hiltory of that and the Summer Iland plantation, and of New England in tix Bookes, hath gently communicated the fame to mine, that is to thine, as intended to the Worlds vie. Out of his rich fields I have gleaned thefe handfuls, adding thereto the crop also of mine owne industry.

W Sir Thomas Gates returned from Virginia in March, and Captaine Argall in Iune following 1614. The Lottery. and to animated by their hopefull reports the Adventurers, that the great standing Lottery was drawns Anno 1615, in the West end of Pauls Churchyard (where before, as in many other places after; arun-Anno 1015, in the tree come of rause consequents, on which the Prizes were proportioned from two for the Lottery of smaller adventures had beene vsed in which the Prizes were proportioned from two To 1900, 2006. crownes (which was the least) to divers thousands, arising in ordinary assents and degrees , casually accrownes (which was the least; to dimers thom ands, arijung in ordinary algents and degrees", the many according to cruing as the lot fell, and paid in money or in Plate there set forth to view, provided that if any chose more 2000, and the ney rather then Plate or goods for paiment, in summes abone ten crownes, be was to abate the tenth part. highest 45000 The orders of this Lotters were published, and courses taken to present frauds, Whiles Sir. Thomas Dale was in Virginia, it chanced that a Spanish Ship beate up and downe before Point Comfort, and fent alhoure for a Pilot. Captaine James Davies fent them one, with whom they Spanift Ships 50 presently sailed away, leaving three of their company behinde. These, upon examination, confessed that a Virginia. bauing lost their Admirall, accident had forced them into those parts; two of them said they were Cap- Enville Pilace taines of chiefe command in the Fleete. They received good v (age there, till one of them was found to be or ladas tathert an English nan, which in the great Fleete 1588, hadbin a Pilot to the Spaniards, and now exercifed his suspended and wonted trechery, having induced some malecontents to runne away puth a small Barke. This darkness expited togebeing brought to light, ome of them were executed, and he expelling no better confelled that two or three ther according Spanish Ships were at Sea, on purpose to discouer the state of the Colony: but their Commission was not to his metra to be opened till they arrived in the Bay, fo that he knew no further. One of the Spaniards died the other was fent for England, and this fellow was now reprised but (as became (usb a Pilot) was hanged at Sea in Sir Thomas D les returne. The English Pilot which they had carried away to Spaine, after long

60 imprisonment by much suite recovered his liberty and Country. Sir Thomas Dale having thus established things as you have heard, returned thence, appoint Con Yardhine ting Captaine George Tardly his deputy Gouernour in his absence, and arrived at Plemmouth in pury Gouer May or lune A. 1616, to aduance the good of the Plantation, Mafter Rolfe also with Rebecca his sournew conjugate and confort, and Ittamstamshin (commonly called Tomocomo) one of Tobatans

CHAP. XII.

Of the Lottery : Sir THOMAS DALES returne : the Spaniards in Virginia. Of POCAHVNTAS and TOMOCOMO: Captaine YERD-LEY and Captaine AR & OLL (both since Knighted) their Government: the Lord L A-W ARRS death, and other occurrents till Anno 1610.

Note well.

were no ficker then our bodies.

ginning of be made of the Natines.

ftrange beaft.

Flying Squir-

Counfellours came ouer at the same time. With this Sauage I have often converfed at my good friends Mafter Doctor Goldstone, where he was a frequent guest; and where I have both feen him Hitherto from Capt, Smith.

fine and dance his diabolicall measures, and heard him discourse of his Countrey and Religion. Sir

The. Dales man being the Interpretour, as I have elsewhere shewed, Master Rolfe lent mee a difcourse which he had written of the estate of Virginia at that time, out of which I collected those See my Pil.1.8. things which I have in my Pilgrimage delivered. And his wife did not onely accustome her felfe to civilitie, but full carried her felfe as the Daughter of a King, and was accordingly respected. not onely by the Company, which allowed prouision for her felfe and her sonne, but of divers particular persons of Honor, in their hopefull zeale by her to advance Christianitie. I was prefent, when my Honorable & Reuerend Patron, the L. Bishop of London, Doctor King entertained 12 her with festivall state and pompe, beyond what I have seene in his great hospitalitie afforded to other Ladies. At her returne towards Virginia the came at Granefend to her end and grave, having given great demonstration of her Christian finceritie, as the first fruits of Virginian conversion, leauing here a godly memory, and the hopes of her refurrection, her foule afpiring to fee and enior presently in heaven, what here shee had loyed to heare and beleeve of her beloved Saulour. New fush was Tomocomo, but a blafphemer of what he knew not, and preferring his God to ours because he taught them (by his owne so appearing) to weare their Deuill-lock at the left eare; hee acquainted mee with the manner of that his appearance, and beleeved that this Okee or Devil had

See my Pile. taught them their husbandry, &c. Powbeten was at this time of their comming gone Southwards. whi sup. for feare (as some thought) least Opachancanough his brother should some with the English a- 20 Perphatans regainst him. His age was not so great as some have reported, they reckoning euery Spring and mouc. Autumne for diffinet yeeres. Tomocomo was as wife in computation of his failing, reckoning each

Viteinian yeers night (when hee expected they frould have anchored by the floare) as another day. Hee is faid which perhaps allo to haue fet vp with notches on a flick the numbers of men, being fent to fee and fignifie the occasioned the truth of the multitudes reported to his Master. But his arithmetike soone failed, and wonder did no lefe amoze him at the fight of so much Corne and Trees in his comming from Plimmonth to their longevity I and on the Virginians imagining that defect thereof here had brought vs thither.

But let vs returne to Captaine Smiths Relations. The new Gouernour applied himselfe to the readjeft way of gaine in planting Tobacco; and though Sir Tho. Dale had caused much Corneto be planted, yet the new supplies easing them of that superfluitie, hee fent to the Chickahaminies 30 for the tribute Corne which Sir Thomas Dale and Captaine Argall had conditioned with them, but receiued a bad answere. Whereupon hee gathered a hundred men, and twelue of them were flaine, twelue others captized, and returned to lames Towne with three Boats laden with corne, of which one hasting to bring the newes was overfet, and eleven men, together with the goods drowned. Captaine Spelman by his language did them good fetuice. This, together with the league which they had with Opachankanough enemy to the former, put them fo in feare, that ours followed their labours quietly, and other Nations also brought them provisions and would hunt for them. Captaine Yeardly is taxed for suffering two of his Sauages to vie the Peece in their game and therein to grow expert; a thing reported to have beene practifed by some others. Yet whiles hee stated in the gouernment they lived quietly with the Savages, but grudges grew a- 40 mongst themselves.

A. 1617. Captaine Yeardly returned for England, after the arrivall of Captaine Argall, fent this ther to be deputie Gouernour.

Captaine Argall was (ent in the George, and with Capt. Hamor his Vice- Admirall, in May, 1617. arrived at lames Towne, where bee found things in much disorder, which hee sought to redresse. Their cattell were now well encreased, and both of their owne growing, and from the Saunges they had store of Corne, A. 1618. happened a great drought, and such a cruell storme of haile, that it did much burt to their Corne and Tobacco. The Magazine that came in the George, being fine moneths in her paffage Great drought proned badly conditioned.

To supply them, the Company furnished and set forth in Aprill a Ship of two hundred and siftie tunnet, 50 with two hundred people. The Lord De-la-war ment therein, and at the Iland of Saint Michael was L. De.la. Wars laft voyages bonourably feasted. Departing from thence, they were long troubled with contrary windes, in which time and death. many fell ficke, thirtie died, one of much was that honourable Lord of noble memory. The rest refreshed themselnes on that Coast of New England, with Fish, Fowle, Wood, and Water, and after sixteene weekes fent at Sea, arrived in Virginia.

The Ship called the Treaturer not long after came thither with fortie Passengers, before the other Ship Plowing and was gome. They now had ved the Plow, and reaped good forme, and they writ for more Plow-harueffe to

Richard Killingbeck with foure others , going to trade fecretly with the people of Chickahaminias, either for reuenge of some before staine in Captaine Yerdly's expedition, or for conetons nelle of their goods 60 were affaulted by the Sauages, one of which had a Peece furnished and therewith shot Killingbeck dead; therest also were all staine, stripped and spoyled. Other muribers also were done by other Sanages, which Opachankanough excused by ignorance, and for the former, hee sent a basket of earth, in token of the gift and possession of that Towne where they dwelt, to Captaine Argal, desiring him not to revenge the fault of a few, which for feare of remenge were fled to the Woods, on their unnocent neighbours. Sam. Arg.

. Roite. Master Rolfe west, Inne 15. 1618. that Powhatan died in Aprillbefore, Itopatan his second brother succeeded, who with Opachanckanough had confirmed the league with the Colony. May 11. death. happened at lames Towns in the might, a terrible storms which lasted about halfe an hours, and poured downe bailestones eight or mine in ches about.

A. 1619. Sir Edwin Sands being chosen Treasurer , Captaine Yerdley was knighted and fent Go- Sit Edwin mernour into Virginia. A little Pinnace bad arrived fome twelve dayes before bim, in which Capsaine Sands Treafine Argall returned, leaving in his place Captaine Nathaniel Powel, As for their dignifts ownen the rer. To Company (in their apprehension) by Captaine Argall, I am not fully informed, or lust to bee the

Sir George Yerdly arriving April 18. filled the Colony with toyfull bopes of better successed at his errivall, and I freely acknowledge the Treasurers great study and care was worthy (bad God so pleased) of better enemis then by unexpected accidents have fince happened.

Captaine West, Captaine Powel, Maller Pory, Master Rolfe, Master Wickam, & Master Wacock, were added to the Councell. A Pinnace of Captaine Bargraue, another of Captaine Lawines, and a third of Mafter Evans, and the Marget of Brittol arrived. Some fcandalous Letters, which laid a falle imputation on the Country, caused enquiry to bee made, where by men of best experience was found, that an industrious man not otherwise imployed may well bushand foure Acres of Corne, and one thousand Profit to be an Plants of Tobacco, of which many to have much, neglet the goodnesse (in suffering too many leaves to made in Progrow on one stalee) and many Tobaccomongers in England are faid to fell the best of it in other names, ginia, calling all their traft Virginian, and fo at once rob both England and Virginia. June 25, the Triall came in with Corne and Cattell. The Governour and Counfell caused Burgesses to be chosen in all places. and a generall affembly was beld for consultation about the Colonies good. The ancient Planters being fet building and planting. Many good instructions were fent from the Company, to amend the Virginian abuses and competencie of provision was appointed for Officers. But leave weawhile our Captaines Notes, and let vs liften to that which the Company publifted, A. 1620.

free chose places to their content, and sweetnesse of proprietie made them emulous to exceed each other in

CHAP. XIII:

The estate of the Colony, A. 1620. and Master Dermers Letter to mee from Virginia. touching bis Voyage for the South Sea.

Ow touching the present efface of our Colony in that Country, We have throught it not vnfit thus much briefly to declare. There have beene fent thither this laft yeere, and are now prefently in going, twelve hundred perfons and voward, as particularly appeareth in the note about specified; and there are neere one thornfand more remaining of those that were gone before. The men lately sent, have beene most of them choice men, borne and bred up to labour and industry. Out of Denonshire, about an hundred men , brought vp to Husbandry. Out of Warnickshire and Staffordsbre, about one hundred and ten; and out of Suffex, about fortie; all framed to Iron-worker: the rest dispersedly out of divers Shires of the Realme. There have beene also fundry persons of good qualitie, much commended for sufficiency, industry and honestie, prouided and sene to take charge and government of those people. The care likewise that hath beene taken by directions, instructions, Charters and Commissions to reduce the people and affaires in Virginia into a regular course, hath been such and so great, that the Colony beginneth now to have the face and faihion of an orderly State, and fuch as is likely to grow and profper. The people are all divided into feuerall Burroughes; each man having the shares of Land due to him fet out to hold and enjoy to him and his Heires. The publike Lands for the Company here, for the Gouernour there, for the Colledge, and for each particular Burrough, for the Ministers also, and for divers other necesfary Officers, are likewise laid out by order and bounded. The particular Plantations for divers Buctoughs prinate Societies, are feeled in their Seates, being allotted to their content, and each in concenient distance. The rigour of Martiall Law, wherewith before they were governed, is reduced -within the limits preferibed by his Maietty; and the landable forme of luftice and government vied in this Realme, established, and followed as neere as may be. The Gouernour is to restrained 6) to a Counfell ioyned with him, that he can doe wrong to no man, who may not have speedy remedy. Each Burrough, and each particular Plantation, partly hath, partly is bound to have in short time a sufficient Minister : for whom maintenance is ordained, to each of two hundred pounds a yeere value. Which orderly proceeding there, by direction from hence, hath caufed

A. 1617.Cap.

Argells 20-

uernment.

the Colony now at length to fettle themselues in a firme resolution to perpetuate the Plantation. They fall to building of Houses, each for his owne private; and the Generality to the rearing of publike Gueft-houles, for entertaining of new men vpon their first arrivall. They fall to fet vp their Ploughes, to the planting of Vineyards; to the pursuing of the Staple Commodities furnified and commended from hence. In fumme, they are now to full of alacrity and cheerefulneffe, that in a late generall Affembly, they have in the name of the Colony prefented their greanene, that in a late general Amenday, for the care that hath beene taken for the fetling of the Plantation. Neither is it to be omitted, the care which hath beene had here lately at home, for the reducing of all the proceedings and affaires of the Company, to an orderly course of good goperment and Iultice. Wherein to begin with the Fountaine thereof, his Maiefties authoritie rarent meet und pleasure, there hath beene a collection made of all the branches of the same, dispersed in his 10 Letters Patents, now three times renewed : as also out of other instructions proceeding from his Maieftie. Out of both which, together with fuch other Orders as (authorized by his Maieftie) the Companie them felues have thought necessary to make, hath beene compiled a booke of standing Orders and Conflicutions, appround by the generall confent of all the Companie: whereby both the Company here, and the Colony in Voginia, have their businesse carried regularly, induffrioufly, and with, every man knowing both his right and dutie, to their generall great content, and the great advancement of the Action. And whereas the Colony likewife have been often Sutors in effect, to reduce into a compendious and orderly forme of writing, the Lawes of ten studies much to the vie of that Plantation, with addition of fuch other, as the nature of the England proper for the vie of that Plantation, with addition of fuch other, as the nature of the Place, the noutely of the Colony, and other important circumflances should need any require: A 20 place, the noutely of the Colony, and other important circumflances should need any require: A course is like wife taken for the effecting of this worke; yet so as to submit it first to his Maiesties view and approbation; it being not he that his Majerties Subjects should bee gourned by any other Lawes, then fuch as receive the influence of their lite from him.

And now to come to that which concerneth the Aduenturors in particular, by whose charges. care, and labour (next vnto his Maethies especiall grace) this famous Plantation hath not onely beene vindertaken, but through to many difficulties vipheld and continued; wee fhould beevery greatly injurious to them, if we should not acquaint them with this seasonable time, for the reaping of that benefit and reward which is due vnto them. Wee therefore let them know, that in this last yeere now ended, there have beene granted by the Company under their legall Scale, eleuen seuerall Patents for particular Plantations; and more are in hand to bee passed this next 30 Quarter-Court. It is not un probable that upon each of these Patents, divers hundreds of persons will foone Plant in Virginia : there have beene already transported upon the first, about three hundred men. These and other like Planters, having priority of time, will have priority also in choice of the Seat of their Plantations. Seeing therefore the onely matter of retribution to the Adventurors, is by a faire proportion of Land to them and their heires, namely, of one hundred Acres for every share of twelve pounds and ten shillings, vpon a first division; and as much more wpon a fecond, the first being peopled; with fiftie Acres for every person (to bee doubled in like manner) which at their own charges they shall transport to inhabite in Unginia bafore the foure maintri / winches called ordinate and the tent three yeares, either at one of leveral times, or and twentie: he of lune, a 625, if hee continue there three yeares, either at one of leveral times, or the after he is thipped for that voyage: It flandeth them you, who are not willing to be the last 40 the after he is thipped for that voyage: It flandeth them you, who are not willing to be the last 40 the after he is thipped for that voyage: It flandeth them you, who are not willing to be the last 40 the after he is thipped for that voyage: It flandeth them you, who are not willing to be the last 40 the after he is thipped for that voyage: It flandeth them you. in the benefit to be partaked, not to be the last in fetting forth to the choice and peopling of their Land. Wherein what fauour or aff flance may by vs bee given them, they that bee well afford of it, in equall proportion with our felues, as their charges and long expectance have well deferred. And to the end that not onely the Aduenturors now living, but the Herres also of the deceased, may take certaine notice of the feuerall proportion of Land, which ratably to their Aduentures in money are due and belonging to them.

A Note of the Shipping, Men, and Provisions Sent to Virginia, by the Treasurer and Company, in the yeere 1619.

He Bona None of two hundred Tun, fent in August 1619, with one hundred and twenty per-I fons. The Duty, of feuenty Tun, fent in Ianuary 1619. with fiftie one persons. The lengthers of three hundred and fiftie Tun, fent in February 1619. with two hundred persons. The Triall, of two hundred Tun, fent in February 1619, with fortie persons, and fixtie Kine. The Faulcon, of one hundred and fifeie Tun, fent in February 1619, with thirtie fixe persons, fiftie two Kine, and foure Mares. The London Merchant, of three hundred Tun, fent in March 1619. with two hunpersons. The Swan of Barnstable, of one hundred Tunne, sent in March, 1619 with seventie one persons. The Bonnessure of two hundred and sertie Tun, sent in April, 1620, with one hundred 69 and fiftie three persons. Besides these, set out by the Treaturer and Company, there hath beene fet out by particular Adventurers for private Plantations. The Garland of two hundred and fitte Tun, fent in Iune, 1619. for M. lohn Farrars Plantation, with fortie five persons. Who are yet detained in the Sammer Hands. A Ship of Briffell, of eightie Tun, fent in September, 1619, for M.

Barkleys Plantation, with fortie fine perfons. There are also two Ships in prouiding to be short-Iv gone, for about three hundred pertons more, to bee fent by private Adventurers to Fromia. The fumme of the persons one thousand two hundred sixtie one. Whereof in the eight Ships set out by the Treasurer and Company, eight hundred seuentie one.

Of these persons there are sent for publike and other prousvies, these ensuing Tenants People. for the Gouernours Land, besides fiftie sent the former Spring, eightie. Tenants for the Companies Land, one hundred and thirtie. Tenants for the Colledges Land, one hundred, Tenants for the Ministers glebe-Lands, fiftie. Young Maids to make Wives for so many of the former Tenants, ninetie. Boyes to make Apprentices for those Tenants, one hundred. Seruants for the 10 publike, fiftie. Men ient by their labours, to beare up the charge of bringing up thirtie of the Infilels children in true Religion and Civilitie. The fum of persons for publike vie, &c.dix hundred and fiftie. The fix hundred and elegen remaining, are fent for private Plantations.

The Commodities which these people are directed principally to apply (next to their own necessary main. Commodities, tenance) are these ensuing : Iron, for which are tene one nundred and fiftie perions, to set up three Iron-workes; proofe having beene made of the extraordinary goodnesse of that Iron.

Cordage : for which (belides Hempe) direction is given for the planting of Silke graffe (naturally growing in those parts) in great abundance : which is approved to make the best Cordage and Linnen in the world. Of this, every housholder is bound to set one hundred Plants; and the Gouernour himfelfe hath fer five thoufand.

20 Pot-ashes and Sope-ashes, Pitch and Tarre : for the making whereof the Polacres are returned

Timber of all fores, with Masts, Planks and Boords for prouision of Shipping, &c. there being not so good Timber for all vies, in any one knowne Countrey what soeuer. And for the case and encreate of divers of these workes, provision is sent of men and materialls, for the setting up of fundry Sawing Mills.

Silke : for which that Countrey is exceeding proper, having innumerable flore of Muibers Trees of the best, and some-Silk-wormes naturally found upon them, producing excellent Silke: fome whereof is to be feene. For the fetting vp of which Commoditie, his Maiefty hath beene graciously pleased now the second time (the former having miscarried) to bestow upon the Company plenty of Silk-wormes-feed of his owne store, being the best.

Vines : whereof the Countrey yeeldeth naturally great flore, and of fundry forts : which by culture will be brought to excellent perfection. For the effe ang whereof, divers skiltull Vignerons are lent, with ftore also from hence of Vine-plants of the beft fort.

Salt : which workes having beene lately fuffered to decay, are now ordered to bee fet up in fo great plentie, as not onely to ferue the Colony for the prefent ; but as is hoped in fhort time also the great Fishings on those Coasts.

For the following, working, and perfecting of these Commodities, all provisions necessary for the present are sent in good abundance. As like wife the people that goe are plentifully form shed with apparell, bedding, victuall for fixe moneths: Implements both for the House and Labour, Armour, Weapons, Tooles, and fundry other necessaries. And a supply of Armour, Powder, and many necessary prouisions is made for those of the Colony which were there before yet without any prejudice to the former Magazin.

There have beene given to the Colony this yeere by denout persons, these Gifts ensuing : Two persons Gifts. vnknowne, haue given faire Plate, and other rich On aments for two Communion Tables : whereof one for the Colledge, and the other for the Church of Mattreffe Mary Robinfors founding: who in the former yeere by her Will, gaue two hundred pounds towards the tounding of a Church in Virginia.

Another vinknowne person (together with a godly Letter) hath lately sent to the Treasurer. fine hundred and fiftie pounds in gold, for the bringing up of children of the Infidels; first in the to Knowledge of God and true Religion; and next, in he Trades whereby honeftly to lue.

Master Nicolas Ferrar deceated, hath by his Will given three hundred pounds to the Colledge in Virginia, to bee paid, when there shall be ten of the Infidels children placed in it. And in the meane time foure and twentie pounds by yeere, to bee distributed vnto three discreet and godly men in the Colony, which shall honestly bring up three of the Infidels children in Christian Religion, and fome good course to live by.

An unnamed perion fent to the Treasurer the summe of ten pounds, for advancing of the

There have beene Patents granted this yeere for particular Plantations, as here enfucth: To the Sc- Patents. cietie of Southamton Hundred. To Matter Heath, Recorder of London. To Matter Wincop. To Master Tracie. To Doctor Bohun. To Master Pierce. To Master Delbridge. To Master Pointz. To Master Barkley. To Captaine Bargrane. To Captaine Ward. Who have vndertaken to transport to Virginia great multitudes of people, with store of cattell.

It is to be knowne, that touching the Colledge for the Infidels children, it hath beene thought more expedient to begin first with the planting and peopling of the Lands (which hath beene done this yeere) and afterwards to proceed to the erecting of the Fabricke, which is to be performed out of the revenues of the Lands.

SIR,

To his Worshipfull Friend M. SAMVEL PVRCHAS, Preacher of the Word, at the Church a little within Lude ate, London.

Twas the nineteenth of May, before I was fitted for my discovery, when from Monahiggan I see Twas the mineteenth of way, octore and the land I told you of. I passed alongit the Coast where I (agle in an open Pinnace of fine tun, for the Iland I told you of. I passed alongit the Coast where I L japie in an open rinnace of time um, for ence cannot roughout. A pagica acomption coals where I found some antient Plantations, not long sace populous now otterfy coal; in other places a termantre. In maines, but not free of sicknesse. Their disease its Plague, for nee might perceive the sores of some that had e Coped, who described the spots of Such as V sully die. When I arrived at my Sauages native Country (finding all dead)! transiled along it addies sourney Westward, to a place talled Nummattaquyt, where. finding Inhabitants, I diffiatched a Messenger a dayes iourney further West, to Poconackit which berderesh on the Sea; whence came to fee me two Kings, attended with a guard of fiftie armed men, who beang well faitified with that my Sanage and I discoursed unto them (being desirous of noueltie) game mee content in whasoeuer I demanded, where I sound that former relations were true. Here I redeemed a Frenchman , and afterwards another at Mattachusit , who three yeeres since escaped sipwrache at the renchman, and afterwards notices at mantachate, movement period process period payments at the North east of Cape Cod. I must among it many things worthy observation) for mant of leisure, therefore 20 bence I possel continued any place where we touched in the way) to the liand, which were discovered 20 the melfibof lane. Here we had good quarter with the Sanages, who likewife confirmed former reports. I found seven several places digged, sens bonne of the earth, with samples of other commodities elsewhere found, founded the Coast, and the time being farre if ent bare up for Monahiggan, arriving the three and tieth of lune, where wee found our Ship ready to depart. To this lle are two other neere advoning, all which I called by the name of King James his Hes, because from thence I had the first motines to fearch. winco i cauca of the name of a mg satures and uses, various; i was corner a cumine; in a more respective for that (now probable paffage) which may bareafter be both bonourable and profitable to bis Massile.

When I had diffracted with the lips ready to depart, I thus concluded for the accomplifying my businesses. In regard of the fewnesse of my men, not being able to leave behind mee a competent number for defence, in regara of toe genneye v, my man, not most of my provisions about the Sampson of Cape Ward ready 30 and yet sufficiently farnish my selfe. I put most of my provisions about the Sampson of Cape Ward ready 30 bound for Virginia, from whence bee came, taking no more into the Pinnace then I though might ferue our surnes, determining with Gods below to search the Coast along, and at Virginia to supply our select for a second descent, of the first failed. Him as the best actions are commonly bardest in effecting and are Glacome without their crosses, so in this we had our soure, and met with many difficulties : for wee had not fayled about forty leagues, but wee were taken with a Southerly forme, which drame us to this frait; 9ther we must weather a rockie point of Land, or run into a broad Bay no leffe dangerous ; Incidit in Syllam, &c., the Rocket wee could not weather, though wee loofed till we received much water, but at last were forced to beare up for the Bay, and run on ground a furlong off the floare, where we find beene bear zen to pieces, had wee not instantly throwne our board our promisons to have our lives; by which meanes ven to pieces, man wee not meanity turowne vaccoood a me promotion to mane one times; v) worto means we escaped and brought off our Pinnace the next high water without hurt, having our Planke broken, and 40 as features to two which we castly mended. Being left in this misery, having lost much bread, all our Beefe and Sider, some Meale and Apparell, with other provisions and necessaries; having now little left besides boge to encourage vi to persili : Tet after a little deliberation we resolved to proceed and departed with the next faire winde. We had not now that faire quarter among it the Saunges as before, which I take is was by reason of our Saudoes absence, who desired (in regard of our long iourney) to stay with some of our Sanage friends at Sawahquatooke) for now almost enery where, where they were of any firengila they sought to betray vs. At Manamock (the Southerne part of Cape Cod, now called Succliffe Iulets) I was vnawares taken prisoner, when they sought to kill my men, which I left to man the Pinnace; but missing of their purpose, they demanded a ransome, which had, I was as farre from libertic as before : yet it pleased God at last, after a strange manner to deliner me, with three of them into my hands, and a little 50 after the chiefe Sacheum himselfe; who seeing me weigh anchor, would have leaped overboord, but intercepted, craued pardon, and fent for the Hatchets given for ransome, excusing himselfe by laying the fault on his neighbours; and to be friends sent for a Canous lading of Corne, which receined we set him free. I am leth to omit the flory, wherein you would finde cause to admire the great mercy of God even in our greatest misery, in gining we both freedome and reliefe at one time. Departing hence, the next place we arrined at was Capaock, an Hund formerly discourred by the English , where I met with Epinew a Sanagethat had lind in England, and featherindifferent good English, who four exercisine being carried bone, was reported to have beene flame, with dimers of bis Countregmen, by Saylers, which was falfe. with him land much conference, who gave me very good fettifalten in every living almost foundation made. Time one permitting mere to fearch bere, which I flowed have done for fundry things of fixed monder. Time one permitting mere to fearch bere, which I flowed have done for fundry things of fixed monders the wind faire. I flood away flagting my course as the Cools led mee, till I came to be might more than the wind faire. I flood away flagting my course as the Cools led mee, till I came to be might

Weiterly part where the Coast began to fall away Southerly. In my way I disconered Land about theric loaques in length, heretofore taken for Mayne, where I feared I had beene imbarca, but by the helpe of an Indian I get to the Sea againe, through many crooked and freight passages. I let passe many accidents to this journey occasioned by treacherie, where wee were compelled twice to goe together by the eares . once the Sausoes had great aduantage of us in a freight, not about a Bowe flot, and where a multitude of Indians let five at us from the banke , but it pleased God to make us victours : neere unto this wee found a most dangerous Catwratt amongst small rockie llands, occasioned by two unequalitydes. the one ebbing and flowing two boures before the other : here wee loft an Anchor by the frengib of the current, but found it deepe enough; from bence were wee carried in a fort space by the tides (wiftnesse into a great Bay (to vs so appearing) but indeede is broken land, which came vs light of the Sea: here, as I faid, the Land readeth Southerly. In this place I talked with many Saluages, who told me of two fundry passages to the great Sea on the West, offered me Pilots, and one of them drew mee a 10 Plot with Chalke upon a Choft, whereby I found it a great Iland, parted the two Seas : they report the one scarce passable for shoulds, perillous currents, the other no question to be made of Haning receined these directions, I basten to the place of greatest hope, where I purposed to make triall of Gods goodnesse cowards us , and very best endenous to bring the truth to light , but wee were but onely Shewed the entrance, where in seeking to passe were forced backe with contrary and overblowing windes. bardly escaping both our lines. Being thus overcharged with weather, I stood alongst the coast to seke barbours, to attend a fanourable gale to recover the streight, but being a harbourlesse Coast for ought we could then perseine, wee sound no succour till wee arrived between Cape Charles and the Maine on the East side the Bay Chestapeak, where in a wilde Roade wee anchored and the next day (the eight of September) croffed the Bay to Kecoughtan, where the first newes strooks 30 cold to our bearts, the generall sistenesse oner the Land. Here I resolved with all possible feede to returne in pursuite of this businesse; so that after a little refreshing, wee recovered up the River to lames Citie, and from thence to Cape Warde bie Plantacon, where immediately wee fell to heming of Boords for a close Decke, having found it a most defined course to attempt as before. At wee were thus labouring to effect our purposes, is pleased almisture God (who enety disposeth of the times and sossons, wherein all workes shall be accomplished to restite us with his heamic hand, so that at one time there were but two of vs able to beloe the rest, my selfe so fore shaken with a buruing feaser, ibst I was brought enew unto deaths doore, but at length by Gods affittance escaped, and base non with the rest almost reconcred my former strength. The Winter having overtaken us (a time on these Coasts especially) subject to guits and fearefull stormes, I have now resolved to choose a more temperate season, both for the generall good and our owne safeties. And thus I have fent you a broken discourse, though indeede very unwilling to have guen any notice at all, till it had pleafed God to have bleffed mee with a thorow fearch, that our eyes might have withefed the truth.

I have drawne a Plot of the Coast, which I dare not yet part with five feare of danger, let this therefore I have drawn a l'lot of toe woss; words tare nes set par with yo face of annyer, at the therefore force for confirmation of your bapes, till can better performs any promise and your defire; for what I have spoken (can produce at least mille testes; sarre sporate, of the Sea behinde them, and of Ships, which come many dayes courney from the West, and of the great extent of this Sea to the North and South, not knowing any bounds thereof Westward. I cease to trouble you till a better opportunity offer it selfe rea membring my best lone, orc. I reft From Captaine MARTYN his Plantation, 27. Decemb. 16 19.

Yours to command.

THO. DERMER.

To Sir Edwin Sands in the Treasurership succeeded the right Honorable Henry Earle of South- Cap. I. Smith. ampion, whose industry together with that of those two brethren John and Nicolas Farrars the Sir Edw. Sands fuccessive Deputies, have given much content to many, but to divers others matter of complaint; was Tressurer wherein I am an vnft ludge; onely as a reasonable man and Christian Minister (that I isy not from Ap. 1619 50 Historian) I am much grieued that Voginias prosperity cannot answer mens hopes; nor can any till lunatore man meruaile if diuifions (minde-maffacres) here, with the maffacring Sauages and difeases there. have hindred there the expected effects of honorable and carefull indeuours. Mafter Stockam, a Mafter Stock Minister, writthence, May the eight and twentieth, that which deserueth inst consideration, ams Lever to that he found no probability byfaire meanes alone to draw the Sauages to goodnesse, and if Mars Master whiteand Minerua went hand in hand, they would effect more good in one houre, then these verball terbefore. Mercurians in their lines: and till their Priests and Ancients have their throats cut, there is no hope to bring them to conversion.

Iiiiiii 3

CHAP.

CHAP. XIIII.

A true Relation of a Sea Fight betweene two great and well a ppointed Spanish Ships, or Men of Warre; and an English Ship, called thy Margaret and Iohn, or the Blacke Hodge, going for Virginia.

Auing taken our iourney toward Virginia in the beginning of February last past in a Ship called the Blacke Hodge, her burthen one hundred and fixtie tunne, man- Ia ned onely with eight fron Peeces, and a poore Faulcon, we soone ouer-passed both the tedious endurances and fearefull dangers of fuch a Voyage, and came at last by the foureteenth of March under 1 3. and halfe Latitude, within twenty leagues

Hellanders co.

Falling with Menis by the twentieth of March, and compating the furthest point to stand in the handlommer with the shore, wee perceived two tall Ships at anchor right over against the watring place with their top fayles loofe, and their Boates going ashoare for their men. At first we supposed them Hollanders, in respect of their building, and the Hollanders colours borne by their Admirall in the maine top, the vice Admirall haung his fore top mast downe, and no colors difplayed, which encreased our former opinion, adding withall that it must needes be prife, or 20 fome other Ship fubiect to the misfortune of a fight.

But driving by necessity of water, and willing to refresh our selves a shoare, wee trimmed our Ship, and came to anchor fairely by them, fending our Boate in friendly manner to hale them both unprouided and unarmed, which returned with certificate, that they were Spaniards, wherein not fully fatisfied, by reason of our former apprehension that it was otherwise; the better to be resolued, we sent out our Boate againe, as well to be assured what to trust vinto, as to gaine fometime to prepare our Shippe, and trim her more commodiously, being peffered with goods and fardels betweene the deckes, and altogether unpromided for any fight, either offensue or

defensiue.

The Boate approached the hindmost Ship, which I call the vice-Admirall, and haled her, de- 30 manding who they were, but instead of refoluing vs, she commanded them to come aboord, and would answere no otherwise; whereupon the Boate rowed from them, as resoluting all was not fhot at theboat well, and so made haste vnto vs againe, yet could not prevent a volley of small shot powred very dangeroully amongst them, infomuch that they had their cloathes shot through, their Oares shivered, and the fides battered with Bullets; yet thankes be to God, neither was a man hurt, nor any thing loft; which, as if they had had notice of the same escape, rated their rage so much the more: For by that time the Boate was out of reach of their small shot, they followed it to the Ship with great Ordnance; and when they perceived they were fafely come abourd, they East/ bynpre- tooke it foill, that they thundred against our Ship with the foarer rage, and most violent vollies, pared for fight. which we could not answer, having no Peece in our gunner roome, nor indeede any other well 40

They fhot at Spanish aduan-

The Spaniards

mounted for such a Sea fight. By this time their vice Admirall heaved up her anchor to her warpe, and laid her selfe to wind-ward, if either we should passe forward, or anchor shortagaine, so that we perceived they meant to affault vs on all hands: for the let flye a whole broad-fide vpon vs, and came furioully vp to our lee quarter without damage or relistance of our parts.

But when we were thus terrified and threatned by them, and thus encombred and disanimated amongst our selues, knowing withall (by reason of our ill prepared Ordnance) the disaduantage and hazard to be boorded at anchor by two good Ships well prepared for spoyle and ruine; we hoyfed up our failes, and determined to fet forward, had not the vice-Admirall come on our star-boord fide, and beate vpon vs fo hardly, that we fell to our businesse, and answered their vn- 50 kndenesse accordingly with many faireshot, which proved most effectuall, especially from a demy-culturing, which at last shot her betweene winde and water, so that shee was compelled from vs, and bare off to Sea, leaving her Admirall onely fingle with vs, who at last came fairely in our quarter to winde-ward, taking in her Holland flagge, and advanced her Spanish colours, and Spanish colors.

Their conference.

We quietly and quickly answered, both what we were, and whither wee were bound, discouering the effect of our Committion, and relating the cause of our tarying there for water, neither purpoling to annoy any subsect of the King of Spaines, nor by way of affront to braue either Merchant or man of Warre. Then the charged vs to strike our failes for the King of Spaine, and vaile the bonnet according to the prerogative they had in those Seas: we replyed with enlarging the 60 particulars of the league betweene the King our Master and their King, adding with all, that as we intended no ill, we would take no wrong; Whereupon the Mafter left the poope, and fequeftred himselfe from such open conference; had they not called for the Captaine againe, who at last prefented himselfe, till they commanded him to come about with his Commission, which he refused, yet wished them to send their Boat aboord, and then they should see it most

But infread either of answering vs further with kinde words, or accepting of our reply in good Infolence of part, they made two great that at vs, and poured among vs such a volley of small that, before we the Spaniers. could get off the poope, that we thanked God they did no more harme, yet we were much amazed they did to much: not thus content they waved vs with their bright fwords, and reuiled vs with approprious tearmes, mil-tearming vs dogs, and inventing more odious names against vs. then we could imagine that Christians durft vige one another withall : at last they laid vs aboord, which enforced vs to raise vp our maine fayle, and to give the word to our small to thot, which all this while lay close, well resolved and prepared : but sodainely breaking The Emplish forth wee plyed them in fuch fort that wee made them give backe and thrinke from their former fight.

The fight continued some halfe hours in our quarter, and according to the terrour of such encounters, wee were compatt as it were in fire and smoake, untill they discourred the waste of our Ship naked, and were encouraged with the hope of reciprocall damage, whereupon they brauely ranne your our fide, and laid vs abourd loofe to loofe, haltning with Pikes and Swords to enter, to which was added fuch fury, that if they had not beene preuented, we should have Spaniards Socke fhrunke vnder the rage of a barbarous flaughter : but it pleafed God io to direct our Mafter with to enter. aduice, and encourage our men with valour, that our Pikes being formerly placed vnder our 36 halfe decke, and certaine thot lying close for that purpose vnder the portels of the Shippe, encountred them to brauely, that their fury was not onely rebated, but their halfinesse inter- Their repulse. cepted, and the whole Company beaten backe, especially vpon the wind-ward side, where the charge was hottest, and the fight bloodiest; for there the throng was great, and men had worke enough to make proofe of their courages and fortunes. Divers of our men were hurt, and many fell on their fide.

In the end they were violently repulled by vs, enforced to a retreat, vntill they were reinforced backe againe by their Commanders, who standing upon tearmes of honor, as being men of Warre, and designed for that purpose, thought it an indignity to be so afronted and countermanded; which earlied a fecond charge, and that was answered with a fecond beating backe, till the Second charge Captaine himfelfe grew enraged, as not brooking to be fo much overmated, and conftrained them to come on a fresh, which they did so effectually, that questionlesse it had wrought an alteration, Third charge if the God that toffeth Monarchies, and teareth the Mountaines in his fury, had not taught vs to toffe our Pikes with profeerous event, and poured out a fodaine volley of small shot upon them, whereby that worthy Commander was flaine at the foote of a Pike, and many of his Souldiers Their Captain dropped downe on the top of the hatches. Prefently our Mafter tooke advantage of their dif. flainc. comfiture (though with fome commiferation for their valiant Captaine fo flaine) that hee not onely plyed them a fresh with great Ordnance, but had more false shot under the Pikes, which were bestowed to good purpose, and amased our enemies with the sodainnesse.

Amongst the rest one Lucas our Carpenters mate must not be forgotten, who perceived a way an how to annoy them, as they were thus pulled and in a confusion, drue out a minion which hee Lucubis brave nobly fer a worke under the halfe decke, till at the last hee brought it to the doxe of the halfe act. decke, and there bent it you them, but in fuch a manner, that when it was fiered the cases full of stones and peeces of Iron fell vpon them like haile, and cleared their decke in such a fort that The case after of flones and peeces of fronten vpon them like hane, and cleared then decke in flor in flore time we faw few affailants, but onely fuch ascrept from place to place Omnium to are very couertly, and feemed willing to obscure themselves from the fury of our shot, which now vicissitude, was thicker then theirs: For although (as farre as we may commend our enemies) they had done fome things worthy of admiration : yet either wanting men, or overtaken with the volooked for valour of our company, they now began to thrinke, and gaue vs leave to be wanton with

Yet were our great Ordnance onely foure, that we could vie in this fight, but it should seeme The Exclision they ferued the turne as well as foure times foure: for they (hot her divers times betweene winde could wit but and water, and so prevailed, that at last we saw many signes of their willing nesse to leave vs, fourc Ordbut by reason she was fast in a slach of our cable, which in haste of weighing our anchor hung nance. loofe, the could not be divided nor make that way thee purposed, vntill one of our men cut it with an Axe without direction, and was flaine for his labour. But when the perceived the was looie, after the had beene a boord two houres and a halfe, good Lord what haite the made, and how quickly were we divided, both great and small shot playing on both sides, which lasted vn- Spaniards fall till the remotenesse was about a Caliner shot, and we discoursed the vice-Admirall comming to off. her affiftance, who began a farre off to ply vs with great fnot, and put vs in minde we had ano-

60 ther worke in hand. Whereupon wee manned our Ship a new, feparating the dead and hurt bodies by them felues Brauado turfrom vs, and were so encouraged, that we wanted her, and in a manner made toward her to fight a ned English. fresh : For when we perceived, that the Admirall made not a shot more at vs, we verily imagined, that either the was preparing her felfe with a new tupply or wanted men to make her feruiceable

Next dayes

or resolued to goe away from vs , considering shee had lost her Captaine; yet loth to bee secure. and imagining the Vice-admirall might come and boord vs finding vs play, till the Admirall did make her selfe better readie, we prepared our selues, wondring yet that shee came no neerervs then Falcon flot, where with she plyed vs still on the Lee side, wntill at last she received another payment from our Demie-culturing, which thot her through, and made her beare with the thore payment that water, where sheer remayned till two of the clocke after midnight, and so wee had time to reforme our disorders, and make our selues better readie for the next dayes varietie. By breake of day the came up againe with the Admirall with her; as if they determined indeed to deuoure vs at once; but as it seemed it was but a Brauado, though for the time they forflooke not our quarter within Musket shot : for all that night and morning they were quiet IQ Neighbours, and kept vs company without any great annoyance with their Top-lavles downe, not knowing, as it should seeme, what to doe with vs, or else suspecting their owne hurts and Leakes, they durit not trust themselves too farre from Land, nor to the ferrie of another encounter. All that night we had time and leafure to ouer-looke our losses, and prepare for them, the Admirall made thew of an encounter, and we after Prayers were ended propare tot them, but fuddenly wee perceived the Vice-Admirall hang a sterne, cutting her mayne fayle to come vp, and stirring very ill.

At length the Admirall shooke in the wind, and by apparant signes gaue vs notice of slacking her courle, whereby we might runne a head and follow the Seas at her pleasure, so wee permirall fecteib ceined the Vice-Admirall with all her Syles to make towardes an Iland called Sana, which 20 to recourt the to recoure the the Admirall either tooke notice of, as knowing the danger she wasin, or gaue directions accorqualitie, Sonta dingly, confidering there wasno good to bee done with vs : for prefently the tacked about and loit vs , bearing toward that Iland ale.

Dofter Behane and feuen others flane out-right,

somilb thips deferibed.

Wee lost Doctor Behave, and seuen other were slaine out-right: two died shortly after of their wounds, and fixteene were that through in some part or other of the bodie, whose wounds Gods be thanked were recured and without mayme or further impeachment of health are now recovered and fettled in Virginia, according to our first entended purpose and Commisfion : I reckon not fuch as are hurt with Pikes and other offensue Weapons, because there was no danger in their cures, and the skilfull Surgeon shewed his art and good speed with facilitie. How danger in their cures, and the saminal outgoon hieror and arriving good speed with restricts. Flow many they loft were cannot tell, nor what men of name were entertaying amongst them, once $\frac{3}{2}$ by I am fure we faw many he shane on the Decke, and more cast ouer-boord in the fight, besides the Scuppers ran with bloud, and the very Sea in their quarter was coloured with a Scarlet hue, and looked fearfully vpon vs all.

The burthen of their Admirall was three hundred tunnes, having two and twentie Peeces of Braile, and all prouision of a man of Warre indeed : their Vice-Admirall three hundred tune, and fixteene cast Peeces, nor much inferiour to her for trimming and correspondent Equipage, and both to outward shew ouer-masterfull and daring for one poore Merchant and Passenger, being but a hundred and fixtie tunnes, having eight Iron Peeces and one Falcon, over-loaden with Stuffe and Wares, encombred with Pallengers, toyled with a storme, tyred with a long Voyage, affrighted with wants, and euery way infufficient to answere any such enemie: but 40 as it in the Scripture, it is all one to thee, O God, whether there be few or many, and Gedeons three hundred shall slay many thousands of the Midianites: as for deliuerances, the people of Ifraell shall passe through the Red Sea dry foot : Ionas shall bee cast safe on shoare out of the Whales belly: and Paul shall escape shipwracke, fauing his life with all his Passengers in the Iland of Malta.

For to conclude with the purpole in hand, there is one thing most remarkable as an inducement to this our deliuerance, that Captaine Chefter embraced Doctor Bobune beeing mortally wounded, and thus recomforted him, faying, O Doctor Bohune what a difaster is this; the Noble Doctor no whit examinated, replyed, Fighe it out braue man, the canse is good , and Lord recoine my foule.

Slaine out right. Doctor Bobune, Thomas Demeter Gentleman. Th. Read. William Garret. Th. Vernam. Gabriel Peies. Danid Baibering. Raph. Gc. Died after, Francis Annis Gentleman. Ed. Neroberg Sayler. Wounded yet cured. William Bird Gentleman. Alexander Bousnine. William Bannington Gentleman. William loyce Quarter Matter. John Wakings, John Wilfon Sayler. George Tayler Sayler. William Lucas Sayler. John Robbins Steward, Phillip Durmine. Three Frenchmen, Robert Lettor, Anthony Browne Gentleman.

CHAP.

CHAP. XV.

Virginian affaires since the yeere 1620 till this present 1624.

A note of the Shipping, men, and provisions fent and provided for Virginia, by the Right Honourable HENRY Earle of South-hampton, and the Company, and other prinate Aduenturers, in the yeere 1 621. 66. with other Occurrents then published by the Company.

SHIPS AND PEOPLE.

The George 180. tun: in Iuly 17 The Bonanenture 50. tun: in Aprill 10. 120.

The Marmaduke 100. tun : in July The Temperance 80, tun : in Iuly The Warwicke 160. tun : in August 100.

The Tigre 40. tun : in August The Sea-flowre 140.tun: in August 120.

The Flying Hart 200, tun: in August 60. Men. and 40. Cattell. To The Disconerie 60, tun : in November 20.

II The Bona None 200. tun : in Noumber 50. 12 The Hope-well 60. tun : in Nouember 20.

13 The God-freed 150. tun : in Aprill 11622. 14 The Gift of God 140. tun : in Aprill 100.

He Elianor 30. tun : in May | 15 The Prime-Rofe 80. tun : in Aprill 1621. with 10. perfons. 16 The Charnie 80. tun: in April > 18 The White Lion 180. tun: in May 40 Men, 40. Cattell. 10 The Furtherance 180, tunin May 80,men.

> 20 The May res and lobs 160 tun in May 21 The lames 120, tun : in May Summe of the perions, 1300. Cattell 80.

> > Sent alfo to the Summer Hands by that Company.

22 The lefet 150. tun : in May 1621. 100. perfons.

22 The lames 120, tun : in Iuly 24 The Concord 180. tun : in August

So there is foure and twentie Sayle of thips, with fine hundred Mariners in them imployed to there Plantations in this yeere. Befides, there are now prouiding feuerall ships in divers parts of this Kingdome to transport to the Plantations about five hundred persons.

And for the benefit of the Plantations these things following have beene here done this yeere.

Sixteene persons and others have beene provided and sent for the making of Beads for erade Beads. in the Countrie with the Natiues, and for making Glaffe of all forts.

Seven and fiftie voung Maides have beene fent to make wives for the Planters, divers of which Maids. were well married before the comming away of the Ships.

50 A Magazine hath beene fent of all necessaries for the Colonie, to the value of two thousand Magazines pound, besides all private mens sending goods, which was very ample, Trade being fer open for all his Majesties Subjects. A ship called the Discouerie, hath beene set out for the rich Trade of Furre-trade. Furres, which both the French and Hollanders have yearely within our Precincts, and within fiftie leagues of vs. Fine and twentie persons for the building of Boats, Pinnasses and Ships, for the Boat-builders; necessarie vie of the Colonie for fishing, Trade, and Discouerie, &c. Seuen persons sent for planting the thousand Acres of Land given to the East Indie Schoole.

Other Occurents of Note.

The Gouernours arrivall in Virginia, at the end of the last Summer, with nine thips, and neere feuen hundred people, all tately, and in good health. The admirable deliuerance of diuers ships; and namely, of the Tiger, which beeing driven strangely neere two hundred leagues out of her courle, fell into the Turkes hands, and yet came faue to Virginia.

Mafter

LIB. IX.

Iren.

Master Berkleyes Letters ashire vs , that there is not a more fit place for Iron-workes then in Virginia, both for Wood, Water, Mynes, and Stone: and that by Whitfontide next, wee may relie voon Iron made by him.

Corton

The Plants of Cotton-wooll trees that came out of the West Indies, prosper exceeding well. and the Cotton-wooll-feeds from the Mogels Countrie come vp, and grow: Samples of it they have fent; and this Commoditie they hope this yeere to bring to a good perfection and ogantitie. - The Indico Seed thrines well, but they yet want knowledge how to cure it.

Indico. V.nes.

Our Frenchmen affure vs that no Countrie in the World is more proper for Vines, Silke, Oliues. R ce, &c. then Urginia, and that it excelleth their owne Countrey. The Vines beeing in abundance naturally ouer all the Countrey ta taste of which Wine they have alreadie fent vs. with 10 hope the next yeare to lend vs a good quantitie. There bee Mulberie trees in wonderfull abundance, and much excelling both in goodneffe and greatneffe thole of their Countrey of Lanene. docke. To the full periecting of both which rich Commodities of Wine and Silke, there wanteth nothing but hands. And of the Mulb: ries may bee made also good wholelome Wine for the people there. And of a certaine Plumme in the Countrey, they have made good drinke, Salt-workes are erecting (the proper place being now found, as the Rocheller doth certific ve) whereby many ships will transport people at easier races hereafter, finding Salt there to furnish them for the great and profitable fiftings upon that Coast, whither twentie fayle of thips went

Silke and Mulberies.

Plum-drinke. Salt-workes.

this last yeare out of the Westerne parts of England, besides the ships formerly mentioned, Maiter John Porie hath of late made a Discourrie into the great Bay Northward (yet at the 20 bottome of it he was not, referning it to a fecoud Voyage) where are now fetled neere one hun-New Difcouedred English very happily, with hope of a good Trade of Furresthere to bee had. And Terra

Lemnia was lent vertom thence, which is found as good as that of Tunker, and is in great abun-In February last he likewise discourred to the South River, some fixtie miles over Land from

. vs, a very fruttiuli and plealant Countrey, full of Rivers, wherein are two Harvests in one week - (the great King giuing him friendly entertainment, and defirous to make a league with vs) hee found also there in great quantitie of the same Silke-grasse (as appeareth by the samples lent vs) whereof Maiter Heror in his Booke 1587. makes relation, who then brought home some of it, with which a piece of Grogeran was made, and given to Queene Elizabeib, and some heere who 30 have lived in the East Indies affirme, that they make all their Cambana Stuffes of this, and Coo ton-wooll. Allo in his paffage by Land, Maiter Pores discouered a Countrey full of Pine-trees, abouetwentie miles long, whereby a great abundance of Pitch and Tarre may bee made : and other forts of woods there were, fit for Pot-athes and Sope-athes,

The Indians have maderelation of a Copper Myne, that is not farre from thence, how they gather it, and the firange making of it : a piece whereof was lent home being found (after trial) very excellent metall. Some of the English have made relation of a China Boxe leene at one of the Kings Houses, who declared, that it was sent him from the Well , by a King that dwels ouer the great Hils, whose Countrey is neere the Sea, he having that Boxe from a people as hee faid, that come thicherin flips, and weare clothes, and dw. ll in Houtes, and are called Acanack. 40 ching. And he offered our people that he would fend his Brother slong with them to that King: which the Gouernour purpoteth not to refuse, hoping thereby to discouer the South Sea, to long talked of.

Summer Iland

A small ship comming in December last from the Summer-Ilands, to Virginia, brought thither from thence thele Plants, viz. Vines of all forts, Orange and Leman trees, Sugar Canes, Caffado Roots (that make bread) Pines, Plantans, Potatoes, and fundry other Indian fruits and plants, not formerly feene in Virginia, which begin to prosper very well.

Gifts.

The Gentlemen and Mariners that came in the Royall I ames, from the East Indies (beeing at Cape Bona Speranza homeward bound) gave towards the building of a Free Schoole in Virginia, to be called the East Indie Schoole, the fumme of icuentie pound eight shillings fix pence.

Towards the furtherance of the faid East India Schoole, an vinknowne perion hath added the

A person resuling to be made knowne, hath given the summe of fortie shillings a yeere for cafumme of thirtie pound. uer, tor a Sermon, before the Virginia Company thirtie pounds.

At a Quarter Court held the thirtieth of January 1621, by a person not willing as yet to bee knowne, was sent in Gold to helpe forward the East Indue Schoole, fine and twentic pounds.

At the fame Quitter Court, a small Bible, with a couer richly wrought; agreat Church Bible; 63 Bookes of Common Prayer; and other Books were presented to be sent to Ungmia, in the name of a person who had the yeere before fint, for the vie of the Colledge at Henrico, divers Bookes, and an exact Map of America; the Giver is not knowne, but the Bookes are valued at cenne Giuen

CHAP.15. S.2. Parents granted. Newes fent. Restraint for Trade.

Given by Master Thomas Bargrane, Preacher in Virginia deceasted, for the vie of the Colledge. a Library valued at a hundred Markes.

And there is a contribution made by the Inhabitants in Virginia, for the building of an house of entertainment for new commers at Iames Citie, amounting to the value of fifteene hundred

Patents granted this yeere.

14 To Sir George Teardly. To the Ladie Dale. To Sir Dudly Digger. 1 e To Master Thomas Leneson. To Sat John Bourchier. 16 To Captaine William Wildon 17 To Mailer Henry Souther. To Captaine Ralph Hamer. 18 To Martins Hundred. To Mailer Arthur Swayne, &c. 19 To Mafter Robert Mofton. To Matter Rowland Trueloue, &cc. To Maffer Iobu Crowe. 20 To Master Edmand Wynne. 21 To Captaine Henry Pelbam, &c. To Mailer Edward Rider. 22 To Captaine Daniell Tucker. To Cantaine Simon Leeke. 23 To Sir Bowyer Worlly. 10 To Matter Daniell Gookin. 11 To Maiter Edward Bennet. 24 To Mafter Thomas Buckley. 13 To Mafter lofeph Lemmg. 25 To Malter Francis Harwell. 20 11 To Sir Charles North. 26 To Sir Iohn Brooke.

Who together with their Affociates, have undertaken to transport great multitudes of people and cattle to Virginia.

Newes from Virginia in Letters fent thence 1621. partly published by the Company, partly transcribed from the Originals, with Lesters of his Maiestie, and of the Company touching Silke-workes.

for Virginia two and fortie Saile of thips, three thousand flue hundred and feventie featto Virginia men and women for Plantation, with requisite provisions, besides store of Cattle, and in the three men and women for Planeation, with require prouinons, penaes more or Cattle, and at those ships haugheene about tweller hundred Mariners imployed: There hath also Saile of ships, beene tent in those yeeres nine fin ps to the Summer Ilands with about nine hundred people to 1200, Mariners inhabit there, in which ships two hundred and fortie Mariners were imployed. In which space imployed, have beene granted fifty Patents to particular persons, for Plantation in Virginia, who with their 1500. To the Affociates have undertaken therein to transport great multitudes of people and cattell thither, 40 which for the most parc is since performed, and the residue now in preparing, as by the seuerall Declarations of each yeare in their particulars, (manifested and approoued in our generall and imployed, publike Quarter-Courts) and for the fuller latisfaction of all defirous to understand the particularities of such proceedings, hath beene by printing commended to the understanding of all.

Sir Francis West was fent Gouernour into Virginia, who arrived there in November 162 1. with Mafter George Sandys Treasurer, Mafter Danifon Secretarie, &c. In the nine fhips fenc in that Fleet died but one Passenger of seven hundred, in whose roome there was another also borne at Sea. Their provisions were not found so well conditioned as was expected. The Sailers are full blamed for imbezelling the goods fent to private persons, for killing of Swine, inordinate trucking &c. It was ordained that for every head they should plant but a thousand plants of Toto bacco (and for the better (trength not to fuffer aboue nine leanes to grow on each plant) which will make about a hundred weight.

Master Gookin arrived also out of Ireland with fiftie men of his owne, and thirtie Passengers well furnished. The present gaine by Tobacco, had made the planting of Corne to be neglected: and some thinke that if Corne might there be valued (not at two shillings fixe pence the bushell) as deere as that which is brought from hence, there would be lefte feare of famine, or dependance on Tobacco.

The Letters written from the Governour and Treasurer in Variation the beginning of Alarch last, (which came hither in Aprill) gaue assurance of ouercomming and bringing to pertection in this yeere, the Iron-workes, Glasse-workes, Salt-workes, the plentifull sowing of all forts of to English graine with the Plough, having now cleered good quantitie of ground; fetting of flore of Indian Corne or Maiz, sufficient for our felues, and for trucke with the Natives; reftration of the quantitie of Tobacco, and amendment of it in the qualitie, learned by time and experience: The planting of Vines and Mulberie trees neere to their Houles, Figge-trees, Pomegranates, Potatoes, and Cotton-would Seeds, Pocoon, Indico, Sugar Canes, Madder, Woade, Hempe, Flaxe,

Nthe three last yeares of 1619. 1620. and 1621. there hath beene prouided and fent 1570, people and Silke-graffe; and for the erecting of a faire Inne in lames Citie for the better entertainment of new commers, whereto and to other publike workes, every old Planter there offered freely and liberally to contribute. I write the words of their Letters. And how in a late Discourrie made. a few moneths before by some of them to the Southward, they had past thorow great Forrests of Pines, fifteene or fixteene miles broad, and aboue threescore miles long, very fit for Mastsfor shipping, and for Pitch and Tarre, and of other forts of woods fit for Pot-ashes and Sope-ashes. and came vnto a most fruitfull Countrey, blessed with abundance of Corne, reaped twice a yeere (within the limits of Virginia) where also they understand of a Copper Myne, an estay whereof was fent, and voon triall here found to be very rich; and met with a great deale of Silke-graffe there growing, which monethly may be cut, of which kinds, and Cotron-wooll, all the Came To baya and Bengala Stuffes are made in the East Indies : and of which kindes of Silke-graffe was

M. Haristinhis heretofore made a piece of Grogeram giuen to Queene Elizabeth. And how that in Decem-Books of Vin- ber lait they had planted and cultivated in Unginia Vines of all (as well those naturally growing, as those other Plants sent them from these parts of Europe) Orengeand Lemon-trees, Figtrees, Sugar Canes, Cotton-wooll, Caffaui Roots (that make very good bread) Plantanes, Potatoes, and fundry other Indian fruits and Plants not formerly feene in Virginia, which at the time of their faid Letters began to profeer very well as also their Indico Seed, for the true cure whereof there is lately cauled a Treatife to be written. Furthermore, they write that in a Voyage made by Lieutenant Marmaduke Parkinfon, and other Englis Gentlemen, up the River of Patomacke they faw a China Boxe at one of the Kings 20 Houses where they were. This Boxe or Casket was made of braided Palmito, painted without, and lined in the infide with blue Taffata after the China or East India fashion. They enquiring whence it came, the King of Patomecke faid, it was presented him by a certaine people of the Mountaines toward the South-west, who got it from another Nation beyond them some thirtie dayes journie from Patomacke, called Acana Echinac, beeing of small stature, who had Houses. Apparell, and Houshold stuffe like vs, and living within foure dayes journey of the Sea, had ships come into their River : and he his Brother along with them to that King, which offer the Gouernour purposed not to refuse ; and the rather, by reason of the continual constant relations of all those Sauages in Virginia, of a Sea, and the way to it West, they affirming that the heads of all those feuen goodly Ruers (the least whereof is greater then the River of Thomes, and Navigable 30 about an hundred and fiftie miles, and not about fixe or eight miles one from another) which fall all into one great Bay, have their rifing out of a ridge of Hils, that runnes all along South and North : whereby they doubt not but to find a lafe, easie, and good passage to the South Sea, part by water, and part by Land, efteeming it not about an hundred and fiftie miles from the head of the Falls, where we are now planted; the Discouerie whereof will bring forth a most rich Trade to Carbay, China, Iapan, and those other of the East Indees, to the inestimable benefit of this

Moreouer, the Letters of Mafter John Berkley, formetimes of Benerstone Caftle in the Countie of Glocester, (a Gentleman of an Honourable Family) likewise certifie, that a more fit place for Iron-workes (whereof he was made Mafter and Ouer-leer) then in Vaginia, both for Wood, 40 Water, Mynes, and Stone, was not to be found : And that by Whitfontide the Company might relye vpon good quantities of Iron made by him : which also by Letters from Matter George Sandys the third of March last, was confirmed, with this farther description of the place (called The falling Creeke) to be to fitting for that purpose, as if Nature had applyed her selfe to the wish and direction of the Workman; where also were great stones hardly seene else-where in Unguna, laying on the place, as though they had beene brought thither to advance the crection of those Workes. The Letters of the French Vignerous or Vine-men, procured out of France, and fent ouer into Virginia, did likewise assertaine, that no Countrey in the World was more proper for Vines, Silke, Rice, Olines, and other frints, then Verginia is: and that it far excelled their owne Coun-So trie of Languedocke; the Vines of divers forts being in abundance naturally over all the Countrey. They fearfly belecued those fruits to be Grapes till they had opened them and seene their kernels; such was their bignesse. They are in lone with the Countrey, and having planted some cuttings of Vines at Michaelmas last, in their Letters affirme that these bare Grapes alreadie this Spring to their great wonder, as being a thing they suppose not heard off in any other Countrie. A tafte of Wine made of the wilde Grape, they last yeere fent, with hope to fend a good quantitie this next Vintage; and that the Mulbery trees, where they abode were in wonderfull abundance, and much excelling both in goodnesse and greatnesse those of their owne Countrey of Languedonte: and that those Silke-wormes they have, prosper exceeding well, and some Silke they hope to fend this yeere, there wanting nothing to fet vp that rich Commoditie but flore of 60 hands where with England doth abound. Of the fruit of which Mulbery trees (as of a Plumme there plentifully growing) they would make wholsome Drinkes for the Colonie and people

Opachankanengh doted on a house which the English had built for him of our fashion : hee

CHAP.15. S. 2. Copper Peeses. His Maieft, Letter to the Treasurer of Virginia, 1787

dwelled therein, shewed it to his owne people and strangers with pride, keeping his Keves charily, and bufying himfelfe with locking and vnlocking the doores, fometimes a hundred times in a day, admiring the ilrangenesse of that Engine, a Locke and Key. Hee gaue the English leave to feate themselues any where on his Rivers where the Natives are not actually seated, and entred into further couenants of amity, for reciprocall defence, mutuall transportation, discouery of mines, &c. They report also of Copper Peeces presented to Opachank. which Copper is gathered at the foote of the Mountaines, where they digge a hole in the ground, in which they put the oare, and make thereon a great fire, which causeth it to runne into a masse, and become malleable : neither haue they any tooles, but smooth stones for that purpose. This seemed strange to to ours which heard the English Copper passeth eleven fires.

His Maiesties gracious Letter to the Earle of South-hampton, Treasurer, and to the Counsell and Company of Virginia here: commanding the present setting vp of Silke workes, and planting of Vines in Virginia.

20 R Ight truity and welbeloued, We greete you well: whereas We understand, that the Soyle in Vica 20 R inia naturally yreldeth store of excellent Mulberry trees, We have taken into Our Princely consider stion the creat benefit that may grow to the Aduenturers and Planters, by the breede of Silkewormes, and setting up of Silkeworkes in those parts. And therefore of Our gracious Inclination to a designe of so much benour and advantage to the publike, We have thought good, as at fundry other times, so now more particularly to recommend it to your specialisare, hereby charging and requiring you to take specdy order, that our people there, vie all possible diligence in breeding Silkewormes, and erecting Silkewrites, and that they rather bettem their transfel is sempaffing this rich and folds. Commodity, then in that of Tobacce; which befildes much unnestifier expense, trungs with it many diforders and necessaries.

And or a much as One Trease, to his Boncol that he have paint in fetting downer the rivers of the contraction of the contract of the Silkeworme, together with the Art of Silkemaking, and of planting Vines, and that his experience and abilities may much conduce to the advancement of this businesse; We doe hereby likewise require you to canfe his directions, both for the faid Silkeworkes and Vineyards, to be carefully put in practice thorowone our Plantations there, that fo the worke may goe on cheerefully, and receive no more interruptions

Given under Our Signet, at our Pallace of Westminster, the ninth day of July, in the twentieth yeare of our Raigne of England, France and Ireland, and of Scotland the five and fiftieth.

To Our right trusty and right welbeloued Cousin and Councellour, HENRY, Earle of Southbampton, Treasurer of our Plantation in Virginia, and to Our trusty and webeloued, the Deputy, and others of Our faid Plantation.

Virginia.

WINDEBANK.

The Treasurour, Counsell and Company of Virginia, to the Governour and Counsell of State in Virginia residing.

Fier our very harry commendations: His Sacred Maiesty, out of his high wisedome and care of A the noble Plantation of Virginia, hath beene graciously pleased to direct his Letters to Us here in England, thereby commanding vs to advance the fetting up of Silkworkes, and clanting of Vineyards; as by the Copy herewith Cent, you may perceise.

The intimation of his Maiesties pleasure, we conceine to be a motine sufficient, to induce you to imploy all your indexors to the festing forward those two Staple Commodities of Silke and Wine; which brought to their perfection, will infinitely redound to the bonour, benefit, and comfort of the Colony, and of this whole Kingdome: yet we, in discharge of our duties, doe againe renew our often and iterated Instruction ons, and muite you cheerefully, to fall upon these two so rich, and necessary Commodities And if you hall finde any person, either through negligence or wilfulnesse, to omit the planting of Vines, and Mulberry trees, in orderly and busbandly manner, as by the Booke is prescribed, or the providing of convenient 60 roomes for the breeding of Wormes; me defire they may by senere censures and punishment, be compelled thereunto. And on the contrary, that all fauour and possible assistance be given to such as yeelde willing obedience to his Highnesse Commands therein. The breach or performance whereof as we are bound to give a first account, so will it also be required of you the Governour and Countell especially. Herein there can be no Plea, either of difficulty or impossibility; but all the contrary appeares, by the natural a Kkkkkkk

Forrest of

with the Sa-

French Vigne-

The Broke is Vines & oth r husbandry;but abundance of those two excellent Plants afore-named enery where in Virginia: neither will such excuses be admitted, nor any other pretences ferme, whereby the businesse be at all delayed : and as wee formerly fent at our great charge the French Vignerons to you, to teach you their Art; fo for the lame timele we now commend this Booke visto you, to ferue as an Instructions to enery one, and fend you flore of them remeta, con- tomme comment to be difer sed ouer the whole Colony, to enery Master of a Family one, Sike-seede you feall receive also good tulesboth by thu Ship, sufficient to store enery man : so that there wants nothing, but industry in the Planter, sudtor Siknorks, denly to bring the making of Silke to its perfection : which either for their owne benefit (we hope) they will willingly indeuour, or by a whole some and necessary severity they must be inforced.

Thu particular adnice we thought necessary to give you, lest that if it should have come to you minoled to be injected, with others, you would have interpreted at as a common Instruction, or a businesse that was not taken fo to heart, as this by Us. and we hope will be by you in bumble obedience to his Sacred Maiesties Rorall Instructions. The paines and industry of the Anthour, for the benefit of the Plantations (being a member of our Company) are sufficient arguments of his good affection to the Action, and they both deferne your best acceptance and ours, that others may thereby be innited to impart their knowledge in businesse of Juni ocis acceptance and in Sereby the Colony may not oxely be supported for the present, but brought to that perfection, that may redound to the glory of God, the honour of his Maiestie, and the inestimable benefit of his noble Kingdomes; which as they are the true aime and end the Aduenturers and Planters have proposed unto themselves, so ought they to be still the honorable seedes to put others also forward in this action : we commend this businesse againe to your speciall care. And so we commit you all, and your maighty of aires, to the protection of the Almighty.

HENRY Southampton.

S. III.

The barbarous Massacre committed by the Sauages on the English-Planters, March the two and twentieth, 1621. after the English accompt.

He last May there came Letters from Sit Francis Wist Governour in Uirginia, which did advertise that when in November last heartned in Virginia, and entred upon his Government, he found the Country setled in a peace (as all men there thought) sure and viunotable, not onely because it was folemnly ratified and sworne, and at the request of the Natiue King flamped in Braffe, and fixed to one of his Oakes of note, but as being aduantagious to both parts; to the Saungesas the weaker, under which they were lafely sheltred and defended; to vs, as being the ealiest way then thought to pursue and advance our projects, or buildings, plantings, and effecting their conversion by peaceable and faire meanes. And such was the conceit of hime peace and amity, as that there was feldome or neuer a Sword worne, and a Peece iel- 40 Hafty fecurity, cent of mime peace and annay, as that the Plantations of particulation of centre of the Plantations of particulation of the Plantation of particulation of the Plantation of particulation of the Plantation of the lar Aduenturers and Planters were placed featteringly and flraglingly as a choyce veine of rich ground inuited them, and the further from neighbours held the better. The houses generally set open to the Sauages, who were alwayes friendly entertained at the table of the English, and commonly lodged in their Bed-chambers. The old Planters (as they thought now come to reape the benefit of their long trauels) placed with wonderfull content upon their private dividends, and the planting of particular Hundreds and Colonies puritied with an hopefull alacrity, all our proiects (faith he) in a faire way, and their familiarity with the Natines, feeming to open a faire

diffimulation Englifa fecurity

gate for their conversion to Christianity. The Country being in this estate, an occasion was ministred of sending to Opachantano the King 50 of thele Sauages, about the middle of March last, what time the Messenger returned backe with these words from him, That be beld the peace concluded so firme, as the Skie |bould sooner fall then it disfoluced : yea, such was the treacherous distimulation of that people, who then had contribed our de struction, that even two dayes before the massacre, some of our men were guided thorow the woods by them in fafety : and one Browne, who then to learne the language lived among the Warrafcoyacks (a Province of that King) was in friendly manner fent backe by them to Captaine Hamor his Matter, and many the like pullages, rather increating our former confidence, then any wife in the world ministring the least inspition of the breach of the peace, or of what instantly enfired; vea, they borrowed our owne Boats to conney themselves crosse the River (on the bankes of both ides whereof all our Plantations were) to confult of the divellish murder that ensued, 60 and of our veter extirpation, which God of his mercy (by the meanes of some of themselves converted to Christianity) presented ; and as well on the Friday morning (the fatall day) the two and twentieth of March, as alfo in the euening, as in other dayes before, they came vinarmed into our houses, without Bowes or Arrowes, or other weapons, with Deere, Turkies, Fifth, Furres, and other prouisions, to fell and trucke with vs for Glasse Beades, and other trifles : yea, in some places, far downe at Breakfait with our people at their tables, whom immediately with their owne tooles and weapons, either laid downe, or flanding in their houses, they bately and barbarously murthered, not sparing eitherage or fexe, man, woman or childe; so fodaine in their cruell execution, that few or none discerned the weapon or blow that brought them to defiruction, In which manner they also slew many of our people then at their severall worker and busbandries in the fields, and without their houses, some in planting Corne and Tobacco, some in gardening, fome in making Bricke, building, fawing, and other kindes of husbandry, they well knowing in what places and quarters each of our men were, in regard of their daily familiarity, and refort to vs for trading and other negotiations, which the more willingly was by vs continued and cherified for the delire we had of effecting that great mafter-peece of workes, their conver-

fion. And by this meanes that fatall Friday morning, there fell under the bloudy and barbarous hands of that perfidious and inhumane people, contrary to all lawes of God and Men, of Nature and Nations, three hundred and forty feuen men, women, and children, most by their owne basely murcheweapons: and not being content with taking away life alone, they fell after againe woon the red, some think dead, making as well as they could a fresh murder, defacing, dragging, and mangling the dead more. carkaffes into many peeces, and carrying some parts away in derition, with base and bruitish triumph. Neither yet did these Beafts spare those amongst the rest well knowne vnto them, from whom they had daily received many benefits and favours, but spitefully also massacred them.

One instance of it, amongst too many shall ferue for all.

Toat worthy religious Gentleman, Mafter George Thorpe Elquire, Deputie of the Colledge He had written lands, lometimes one of his Maiesties Pensioners, and in one of the principall places of command letters the year lands, tometimes one of his Maiettes Pentioners, and in one or the principal places of command before, May 17 in Directia, did fo truely and earneitly affect their convertion, and was fo tender over them, that sefficies the whofocuer ynderhis authority had given them but the least displeasure or discontent, hee punish plentiful comed them feuerely. He thought nothing too deate for them, and as being defirous to binde them ming up of the voto him by his many courtefies, he never denied them any thing that they asked him, infomuch Cotten feede, that when thele Sanges complained vnto him of the fierceneffe of our Maftines, molt implace- &c.attributing that when these Sanages complained with him of the hercenesie of our Matties, most implacts the ill successe ble and terrible with other (knowing them by inflined it seems, to be but treacherous and false of things, to hearted friends to vs, better then our felues) he to gratifie them in all things, for the winning the not feeking an of them by degrees, caused some of them to be killed in their presence, to the great displeasure of Gods glory of the owners, and would have all thereft guelt (had he not beene hindered) to make them the in connering of the owners, and would have an interest guest (had no not been millered to make what the gentler and the miller to them. Hee was not onely too kinde and beneficiall to the common the Natiues, fort, but allo to their King, to whom he oft reforted, and gaue many prefents which he knew to were peaceabe highly pleafing to him. And whereas this King before dwelt onely in a Cottage, or rather a ble, & wanted denne or Hog-ftye, made with a few poles and flickes, and couered with Mats after their wilde but meanes manner: to civilize him, he first built him a faire House, according to the English fashion, in which (indeed to must (as before is faid) he tooke fuch ioy, especially in his Locke and Key, which hee fo admired, as therstem, which locking and vilocking his doore an hundred times a day, he thought no deuice in all the world timed) Sure was comparable to it. Thus infinuating himfelfe to this King for his Religious purpoles, he conferred after with him Pitty luch an oft, and intimated to him matters of our Religion ; and thus farre the Pagan confessed moued by Abel should be naturall Principles, that our God was a good God, and better much then theirs, in that hee had fo Kaindetti with fo many good things about them endowed vs. He told him, if he would frue our God, he should be partaker of all those good things we had, and of farre greates then sence or reason euch could imagine. He won voon him, as he thought in many things, so as hee gave him faire heav ring and good answer, and seemed to be much pleased with his discourse, and in his companie. And both he and his people for the daily courtefies this good Gentleman did to one or other of them, did professe such outward love and respect vnto him, as nothing could seeme more : but all was little regarded after by this Viperous brood, as the sequell shewed: for they not onely wilfully murdered him, but cruelly and felly, out of a diuellish malice, did so many barbarous deso fpights and foule fcornes after to his dead corps, as are unbefitting to be heard by any civill eare.

One thing I cannot omit, that when this good Gentleman, vpon his fatall houre, was warned by his man (who perceived fome treachery intended to them by these hell-hounds) to looke to himfelfe, and withall ran away for feare of the milchiefe he strongly apprehended, and fo faued his owne life; yet his Master, out of the conscience of his owne good meaning, and faire deserts ever towards them, was so voide of all inspition, and so full of confidence, that they had sooner killed him, then he could or would believe they meant any ill against him.

At the time of this Maffacre there were three or foure of our Ships in lames River, and one in the next River, and daily more to come in, as three did within foureteene daies after; one of to which they endenoured to have surprised, but in vaine, as had also beene their whole attempt, had any the least fore-knowledge beene in those places where the Massacre was committed : yet were the hearts of the English ever Hupid, and averted from beleeving any thing that might weaken their hopes of speedy winning the Sauages to Civilitie and Religion, by kinde viage and faire converting among it them. Hee, and the whole Counfell writ further, That Almighty God Kkkkkkk 2

Converted 121:22.

Manner of the Sautges life.

(they doubt not) hath his great worke to doe in this Tragedy, and will thereout draw honour and glory to his great Name; lafety, and a more flourishing efface to themselves, and the whole Plantation there; and the more speedy conversion of the Children of those Sauages to himselfe. fince he io miraculously preferred to many of the English, whose delire to draw those people to Religion, by the carelelle neglect of their owne fateries, feemes to have beene the greatest canse or their owne entuing destruction. Yet it pleased God to vie iome of them as instruments to saue many of their lines, whole foules they had tormerly faued, as at lames Citie, and other places. and the Pinnace trading in Pamounkey River; all whole lives were faved by a converted Indian. difclosing the plot in the instant.

These wilde naked Natives live not in great numbers together, but dispersed, and in small 10 companies; and where most cogether, not about two hundred, and that very rare, in other places fifty or forty, or thereabouts, and many miles diffant from one another, in fuch places amono the Woods where they either found, or might easeliest make some cleared plots of ground, which they imploy wholly in fetting of Corne, whereby to fustaine their lines. These small and scattered Companies (as I haue faid) had warning given from one another in all their habitations to meete at the day and houre appointed for our destruction, at all our severall Townes and places feated youn the River ; fome were directed to goe to one place, fome to another, all to be done at the same day and time, which they did accordingly : some entring their Houses under colour of trucking, and fo taking aduantage, others drawing our men abroad vpon faire pretences, and the rest suddenly falling upon those that were at their labours.

By Letters and those that returned it is certified, that besides Master George Thorpe, before mentioned, Mafter John Berkeley, Captaine Nathaniel Powel, and his wife (daughter of Mafter William Tracy, and great with childe) and Captaine Maycocke, all Gentlemen of birth, vertue. and industry, and of the Councell there, suffered vnder this their cruelty and treason. That the flaughter had beene univerfall, if God had not put it into the heart of an Indian belonging to one Perry, to disclose it, who living in the house of one Pace, was veged by another, Indian his brother (who came the night before and lay with him) to kill Pace (so commanded by their King as he declared) as he would kill Perry: telling further, that by fuch an houre in the morning a number would come from divers places to finish the Execution; who failed not at the time: Perries 30 Indian role out of his bed and rewales it to Pace, that wied him as a Sonne : And thus the reft of the Colony that had warning given them, by this meanes was faued, Such was (God be thanked for it) the good fruit of an Infidell converted to Christianity; for though three hundred and more of ours died by many of these Pagan Infidels, yet thousands of ours were faued by the meanes of one of them alone which was made a Christian : Bleffed be God for euer, whose merce endureth for euer; Bleffed be God whose mercy is aboue his suffice, and farre aboue all his works: who wrought this deliuerance whereby their foules escaped euen as a Bird out of the snare of the Fowler.

Pace vpon this discourry, fecuring his house, before day rowed over the River to Iames City (in that place neere three miles in bredth) and gaue notice thereof to the Gouernour, by which An meanes they were preuented there, and at fuch other Plantations as was possible for a timely inselligence to be given; for where they faw vs standing vpon our Guard, at the sight of a Peece they all range away. In other places that could have no notice, some Peeces with munition (the vie whereof they know not) were there carried away, and some few Cattell also were destroyed by them. And as Fame disulgeth (not without probable grounds) their King hath fince caufed the most part of the Gunpowder by him surprized, to be sowne, to draw there-from the like increate, as of his Maiz or Corne, in Harueft next. And that it is fince discourred, that the fed before in last Summer Opachankano practifed with a King of the Easterne shoare (no well-willer of his) CaptainSmites to furnish him with store of poison (naturally growing in his Countrey) for our destruction, which hee absolutely refused, though he sent him great store of Beades, and other Presents to 50 winne him thereunto : which he, with fine or fix of his great men, offered to be ready to instifie against him. That the true cause of this surprize was most by the instigation of the Divell (enemy to their faluation) and the daily feare that poffest them, that in time wee by our growing continually upon them, would dispossesse them of this Country, as they had beene formerly of the West Indies by the Spaniard; produced this bloudy act. That neuer griefe and shame polleffed any people more then themselues, to be thus butchered by so naked and cowardly a people, who date not fland the presentment of a staffe in manner of a Peece, nor an vncharged Peece in the hands of a Woman, from which they flye as to many Hares; much faster then from their tormenting Diuell, whom they worship for feare, though they acknowledge they loue him not.

time.

ta 🦸 1144.

A Note of provisions necessarie for every Planter or personall Adventurer to Virginia : and accidents fince the Maffacre.

He Inconniences that have happened to some persons which have transforted themselves from P. Rigland to Virginia, without proussions necessary to suitant themselves, but greatly him dered the Prograssic of the Noble Plantation. For presention of the like disarders hereaster, that no man fuffer either through ignorance or misinformation; it is thought requisite to publish this loars Declaration; wherein is contarned a particular of [neb nesesfaries, as either primate Families or fingle 10 persons shall have cause to furnish themselves with, for their better support at their first landing in VIIginia; whereby alfo greater numbers may receive in part, directions bow to provide themselves.

Apparell	for one	man	and	ſo	afè	er	the
••	rate	for n	ore.

	fate for more.
	One Monmonth Cap	1.5.10.d.
	Three falling bands	1.5.3.d.
	Three lbirts	7.5.6.1.
	One Wafte-coate	2.5.2.d.
20	One sure of Cannase	7.s.6.d.
	One jule of Cannale	10,5,
	One Sute of Frize
	One Sute of Cloth	15.8.
	Three paire of Irish stockins	4.5.
	Foure paire of shopes	8.5.8.
	One paire of garters	10.
	One doozen of points	2.d.
	One paire of Canuase sheets	8.5.
	Scuen Ells of Cannafe, to make a bed as to be filled in Virginia	8.5.
30	D C I I I I I I I I I I I I I I I I I I
-	One Rug for a bed 8.1. which with the	rea jerming for two men, balfe is Fine Ells coorfe Canuafe, to make a bei	t at See for two men, to be filled with straw 4.5.	5.s.
	One coorfe Rug at Sea for two men, wil	cost 6.s.w
	for one.
	Jo, 5.104	a.li.
	Victuall for a whole yeere for one	man and fo for more after the rate.

Eight bulbels of Meale	2.li.
Two bushels of Pease at 3.8.	6. s.
Two bubels of Oatmeales.s.6.d.	9.s.
One gallon of Aquauitæ	2.5.6.
One gallen of Oyle	3.s.6.d.
Two gallons of Uineger 1.5.	2.5
	3.li.3.s.

Armes for one man, but if halfe of your men haue Armour it is sufficient, so that all haue Peeces and Swords.

One Armour compleat, light	17.5.
One long Piece, fine foot or fine and al
Musket bore	1.11.2.8.
One Sword	5.S.
One Belt	1.S.
Oxe Bandaleere	1.s. 1.s.6.d.
Twentis pound of Powder	18.4.
Twentis pound of Powder Sixtie pound of shot or lead, Pistoll	and Goose
) /001	3.30
	.li.9.s.6.d.

Tooles for a Family of fixe persons, and so after the rate for more.

after the rate for more.	e3 pholib. Hi
Fine broad bowes at 2 s. a piece 10.s.	*
Fine narrow bowes at 16. d. a piece 6.s.8.d.
Two broad Axes at 3 8.d. a piece 7.8.4.d.
Fine felling Axes at 18.d. a piece 7.s.6,d.
Two Steele Hand fames at 16.d. a piece 2.5.8.d.	51.5
Two two-band-sawes at 5.s. a piece 10.s, One whip-faw, fet and filed with baxe, file and
prest 10.5.	÷ 1
Two Hammers 12.d. a piece 2.5.
Three fouels 18.d. a piece 4.s.6.d.
Two Spades at 18.d. a piece 3.8,
Two Augers 6.d. A piece 1.8,
Six Chiffels 6.d. a piece 3.5.
Two percers fracked 4.d. a piece 8.d.
Three simblets 2.d. a piece 6ade
Two batchets 21.d. a piece 3.5.6.d.
Two frames to cleane pale 18.d. 34.
Twe band bils 20. a piece 3.5.4.d.	1 A 1
One Grundleftone 4.5. 4.5.
Nailes of all forts to the value of 2.li.
Two Pickaxes 3.5.
6.li.2 5.8,d.

Houshold Implements for a Family of fix persons, and so for more or lesse after the rate.

One Iron Pos	7.Se
One Kessle	6.8.
One large frying-pan	2.5.6.d.
One Griddiren	1.s.6.d.
Two Skillets	5.5
One Spit	2.5
Platters, dishes, Speones of wood	4.5
	7 li 8 e

For Sugar, Spice, and fruit and at Sea for fix So the full charge of apparell victuall, armes, stooles, & honihold-lituffe and after this rate for each perfon will amount vinto about the fum of 12.1. 10.5. The passage of each man is The fraight of these provisions for a man, will be about balfe a Tun, which is 1.1.10.s. So the whole charge wil amount to about 20.1.

Nets, Hookes, Lines, and a Tens must be added if the number of people be greater, as also some Kinc. And this is the viwall projection that the Virginia Company doe beflow upon their Tenants which they fend. Who ocuer tran ports himselfe or any other at his owne charge vato Virginia, shall for each person so transported before Midfummer 1625, haue to him and his herres for euer fiftie Acres of Land vpon a first, and fiftie Acres Kkkkkkk 3 Vpon a fecond division.

Cap. 105 Smith. M. Parie. Naked breaft concealed

Sir George Teardly intending to vilit Smulbs Lles, fell ficke and thereupon fent Maffee Forey with Estimen & Moll a Frenchman to finde a convenient place to make Salt, in Namenicus King of Paminiant came and shewed them his naked brack, protesting the inside to be astree ill meaning, aethat from deformitie, and promifing welcome if they would come into his Countrey, which they promifed. After this they having conferred with Kipropeke King of A auchanok, they paffed Ruffels Iles and Onancoke, and arrived at Pawinxunt, at Attentolisomoco the habitation of Namenacus, and Wamanato his brother, who came abourd them with a brother Kerele briefit without, within full of Oyfters. Hee was shewed their hunting conducted forth by the vounger and home by the elder : prefented also with Beauers skinnes, which hee requited wich fuch things as Wamanato faid he would keepe them while hee lived, and burie them with It him being dead : Namenacie his breaft proued vicerous within and treacherous, but without harme to them by reason of their circumfpection:an ambush being prouided in a Wood at a point where they would have had them land. Kiptokepe is the elder brother, and yeelded the movie of his Countrie to the younger, bearing still the greater burthen in government but leffe honour. whereas on the Westerne shore, the younger beares the charge, the elder the dignitie. These are Prouident Sathe most thriftie Sauages, keeping Corne for all the yeere and having to spare, whereas others want for one halfe. They are also more civil!, just reckoners, vie no Black-boy-ceremonies, and in Affinitie and Confanguinitie obserue a larger distance in their Marriages.

Iack of the Feather. G u:e of the Maffacre.

Anno 1623, the Abigail was fent, and therein Captaine Barmick with fine and twentie men to build thins and Boars, and others to build the East Indie Schoole. That fatall Maffacre , fome 20 thinke to have beene occasioned by Nemattanow, a Savage called vivally lacke of the Feather, in best esteeme amongst them for courage and policie; who perswading one Morgan to go with him to Pamannke to trucke, by the way flue him two or three dayes after hee returned to Moreans house, and answered his Servants asking for their Master that hee was dead, whereupon they would have had him to Mafter Thorpe, but hee fo moved their patience that they shot him. Hee (whom the Sauages effeemed free from hurt by the English and shot free)defired before his death that they would bury him with the Englifb, and not make it knowne that hee was flaine with a bullet. Opachancanough was moved with his lofte fo as he threatned revenge, which he could not effect but by treacherous pretence of greatest peace, after fourteene dayes by so many deaths, gining life to the following Tragedie: which you heard delinered by publike Authoritie.

This terrible blow so affrigheed all that it was concluded, that all the pettie Plantations 39 thould be left, to make good a few places (fome fay fine or fix) whither for want of Boats their goods and cattell could not be so suddenly conveyed, but that much was exposed to the Sauages cruell gleanings. Mafter Gookins at Nuperts newes, having thirtie five of all forts with him refused that order, and made good his part against the Sauages. Master Iordan at Beggars Bulb ga-Miltris Profler. chered a few about him, and fortified himfelfe in despight of the enemie. Miltris Profler would have adventured the like, and did it for three weekes till the Officers (as some report) would no longer permit her. Captaine Nuse and Captaine Cramshaw are much for prouidence and valour commended. Waters and his wife were kept prisoners by the Nansamuds (this Edward Waters is one of those three which first stayed in Bermuda, and found the great piece of Ambergreece) 40 whence by chance vpon occasion of a Boat loft by ill weather (whole company were fauled) and comming on their shoare, they being busied in their Triumphs and Dances for ioy, they found opportunitie to get into a Canoa, and escaped to Keconghtan. Captaine Nuce called his Neighbours together when he heard of the Maffacre, entrenched himselfe , and mounted three Peeces of Ordnance, to that in foure dayes hee was strong enough to defend himselfe against all the Barbarian forces. Captaine Craftan with fine others fortified himfelfe in delpight of all the Sauages, with the helpe of other Sauages, and made offer to the Colonie, if they would fend him a shallop with Armes, men and prouision for Trade, that the next Haruest he would prouide them Corne sufficient, which then (in the latter end of June) was little to bee had in the Countrie. Captaine Maddefon is reported to have given over-hastie credit to an exiled King, which com- to ming to Patowomeke for succour and not obtayning it, in reuenge deuised and slandered the Patowomeker with intent of betraying and killing the English: which credulitie produced effects of crueltie and the conceits of bloudie treacherie conceiued (if others conceiue not fallly) treacherie and bloud.

The last Summer 1 623, they fet forth a company which destroyed the Sauages Corneand houfes, and surprized Pamaunke chiefe Seat of Opachancanough. And the last report is that the Colonie is now in health, and that the Sauages have returned feuen of the English which they held prisoners, out of selfe guiltimesse and feare of revenge seeing ships still come thither, and wearie of their watchings and manifold loffes and dangers. Opachankanough the authour of the Maffacre is faid to have come to his end by meanes more lurable to his deferts, then perhaps agreeing with 63 Christian simplicitie. A sicknesse after the Massacre fell among it the English, by reason that from neere eightie Plantations, they were brought to fewer then eight, these distracted with a fudden remoone and diffressed wants. It is thought that 1800, survived both.

His Maiestie not a little moved with the loffe of so many his good Subjects, and some complaints also being made of the Gouernment, many of the Virginian Company here bolding no (uch uniforme agreement as was meete : bath shewed his gracious bomnie in the gift of diners Armes out of the Tower, with further promifes of his affitance; and appointed Commissioners to examine the Canles of Virginias not answering to the care and coft in fo long time bestowed on her. I am no fit Relater of things ensaine. and farre unfitter Vmpire in (uch differences, I will now feake to God rather than men : Quid enim niis vota superlunt. My Pragers shall betothe Almighte for Virginias proferitie ; whose Dwarfish growth after so many yeares, convultions by diffentions there and beere, lamentaions in the complaints of both tides (a Plurifie Stich in ber fidet, continuing after fo much bloud taken from her) weakneffe. 30 Sinne armes after Such Successions of armes and forces ; Tantalean startings amidst both Magazines and fertilute; [ubuer fions bere, and felfe enerfians there (permerfneffe I mention not) rather then connerfions of Sauages after so many learned and boly Dinines sent thither ; ponertie, sicknesse, deaths, in so rich a Soyle, and bealthfull a Climate; what should I say? I can deplore, I doe not much admire, that we have bad so much in Virginia, and bane so little; the promises as probable as large, and yet the premiset geeldung in the conclusion this Virginian sterilite, and meagrene fer ather then the multiplied iffue and shrift of a worthy Matron and Mother of a Family, answerable to her great Inheritance there, and lonter from hence. But what doe I in plaints, where some perhaps will complaine of my complayning? I will expelt better from God and his Maiestie, and while my selsemeane-while in the better thrining of the English Colonie in Bermudas or Summer Hands.

CHAP. XVI.

English Voyges to the Summer Hands; HENRY MAYS Shipwracke there 1593. The first Colonie fent 1612.

I!u

T is now time to leave the Continent and visit Bermudas, of Sir George Summers called Summer Hands. The occasion you had before related by Malter Strachie. and that some of their Company tooke up their abode there. This was not the fift time that English eyes had Reese those Ilands. For in the yeere 1593, Henry May had beene there; one of Captaine Laneasters Company, which had beene in the East Indies, and in returning had put ouer to Trinidad, and thence to Puerso

Rico and Hispaniola for refreshing, where Captaine Liendafter desired a Frenchman Monstenr de Barbotiere, to giue this Henry May paffage home with him. They departed from Lagana the last of Nouember, and December the seuenteenth were wracked on the North-west part of Bermade about midnight. The Pilots making therafelues at noone to be twelue leagues to the Southwards of the Hand, certified the Captaine that they were from all danger : and demanded their wine of height, which they had thought they had beene cast away by the shore, but were seven 40 leagues off; by the helpe of their Boat, and a Raft, fixe and twentie of aboue fiftie were faued. I (faith May) durft not preffe in, but flayed in the ship almost full of water, till the Captaine being entred the Boat, called me to him, and I entred leaving the better halfe of our company to the mercie of the Sea. We rowed all day till an houre or two before night; yer we could come on Land towing the Raft with the Boat. Having beene all day without drinke, wee fought long, and at last one digging among weeds, found fresh water being only raine water, which was all we found. It pleased God that we had faued our Carpenters tooles, and going roundly to worke, webuilt a Barke of some eighteene tun, for the most part with trunnels and a few nailes. For tacklings we made a Voyage to our ship and cut downe her shrouds; in stead of Pitch wee made Lime and mixed it with the Oyle of Tortoifes ; affoone as the Carpenters had calked, fpreading 50 it on with a sticke, which was soone dried by the heat, being in Aprill wee hasted away for feate

of water failing vs. We made two great chifts and calked them, and stowed them on each fide our maine Mast, and so put in our provisions of raine water, and thirteene living Tortoyses for our food. The Hogs were leane, and there was store of Fowle, Fish and Tortoyses. There is also good fishing for Pearles.

The eleventh of May we were cleere of the Land for our Voyage to New-found-land, and on the twentieth fell with the Land neere to Cape Briton, and thence to the Banke of New-foundland, where a Barke of Falmouth tooke vs in, wherein I had pallage home, and arrived at Falmonth in August 1594. Thus much for May.

Let vs now heare the Relation sene from an English Colonie planted there under the gouern-60 ment of Mafter Richard Moore. This following Discourse hath beene printed, and was added to a Tractate of Matter Siluester Iordan touching the wracke of Sir Thomas Gates and Sir George Summers on the Bermudas, which beeing delivered more fully by Master Stracbie fup. cap. 6. I have here omitted, and proceed to the English proceedings in those Ilands.

Being bound for the Sommer Hands, in the Ship called the Plough, wee imbarked the eight and

Sain: Georges Illand. Three men had ft nea behind and went

Harter Water.

and Chard.

twentieth of Aprill. 1612. So passing downe to Granefend, wee anchored at Tilbery-lope, vntill the fith of May. The wind comming faire, wee purforth and came to the Downes the fixth of May, where we stated till the ninth. And then setting forward wee had a faire and comfortable pallage, and by Gods bleding found to direct a courte, that on the eleventh of July in the morning. between nine and ten of the clocke wee descried our hoped and desired Hands, and in the afternoone of the fame day, about three a clocke, wee arrived in a verie fafe harbour neere S. Georges Hand, there wee landed all our men and women, and had beene at anchor about an houre, before wee could heare of our three men which had beene left there. As foone as wee had landed all our company, we went all to praier, and gaue thankes voto the Lord for our lafe arrivalland whilest wee were at praier. wee faw our three man come rowing downe tows, the fight of whom did Ic not to Virginia. much rejoyce vs : to they welcomming vs, and wee the like to them againe, we fung a Palme, and praised the Lord for our fate meeting, and went to supper.

The next day, being the Sabbath day, which wer dedicated to God in the boft manner wee could, wee abode fill in the forelaid Hand, with all the reft of our company till Munday morning. being the thirteenth of luly : Then we went up with our Ship and company higher into the herbour, to the place where these three men had planted themselves. They had planted Corne great fore of Wheat, Beanes, Tobacco and Mellons, with many other good things for the vie of man: Besides they had wrought upon Timber, in squaring and sawing of Cedar Trees, for they intended to build a small Pinnace to carrie them into Virginia, being almost out of hope and comfort of our comming; because Cap. Danies time was to have beene with them long before we came. 20

Wee were no fooner come withing a league of the Land, but a company of Fish, as it were. met vs and neuer left vs till wee were come to an ankor within the harbour; and as foone as we had naffed oner our bufineffe, and all things fafe and in order, with a Hooke and Line weet to be more then our whole company was able to eate, fo that there was enough to feed many more. The next day after the Sabbath, wee went with our Net and Boat, and if we would have loaded two Boats wee might; and so may you do day by day, Fishes doe so abound and there be of these forts, Mullets, Breames, Hog-fifth, Rock-fifth and Lobstars, with more forts of other Fifth which I cannot name.

Turkles there be of a mightie bignesse; one Turkle will serue or suffice three or source score at a meale, especially if it be a shee Turkley for shee will have as many Egges as will suffice fiftie or 30 threefcore at a meale : This I can allure you, they are verie good and wholfome meat, none of it bad, no not fo much as the veria Guts and Maw of it, for they are exceeding fat, and make as good Tripes as your beafts bellies in England. And for Fowle we went the third day of our arrivall vnto the Bird Hands (as wee call them Landwing norther Stick, nor Stone-bow, nor Gun, we tooke them wo with our hands fo many as wee would me that enerie one of the company were to have fome three, some foure a piece , three for a child, boy or girle, for a man foure ; then reckon what those that served some sourcescore people did amount vnto. But this is for certaine, if wee would haue brought awaie twice fo many more we might.

Some fixe daies after our comming, wee fent out for Hogges, fo the company which went out brought home some : for the meate of them, I hold your Mutton of England not of so sweet and 40

For the inclination of the weather, confidering in what climate it lies, wee have had for the space of some fortie daies no raine, but verie coole and fresh gales of wind, yet in the day time verie hot : but wee agree with it verie well, and not a man that had lien ficke or difeated, but all likes well, and followes and imploies themselves to one businesse or other.

For the fruites which the Land yeelds, they bee the Mulberrie, great flore, and Peares which have in them a red liquor, as the Pomgranat hat , or somewhat redder , but verie wholsome ; if you eate an hundred at one time, you shall never surfet of them, if you eate some proportion of them they will bind, but if you exceed in eating of them, then are they of the contrarie operation : yet neuer any that hurt themselves by them, eate they neuer fo many. It is certaine, that one 50 man eate aboue a peck of them in some ten houres, and was neuer the worse. We have a kind of Berrie voon the Cedar Tree verie pleafant to eate; and for the Palmito Tree, the top of it is a great deale fweeter and wholtomer then any Cabedge.

In fome of our Ilands there growes Pepper, but not fo good as our Indian Pepper: divers forts of other good things there is, which the feuerall times of the yeere bring forth one after another: but the top of the Palmito Tree is in season and good all the yeere. Take a Hatchet and cut him or an Augar and bore him, and it yeelds a very pleasant liquor, much like vnto your tweet Wines; it beares likewise a Berrie in bignesse of a Prune, and in tatte much like.

Also wee have Olives grow with vs, but no great store : many other good excellent things wee haue grow with vs, which this short time will not permit mee to write of so largely as 1 60 might; but this is of truth, that Hogs, Turkles, Fish, and Fowledoe abound as dust of the earth: for Amber-greece and Pearle wee have not had leafure, in fo few dates tince our arrivall to goe looke out for the one, or to fifh for the other; but the three men which were left there, have found of them both. Also they have made a great deale of Tobacco, and if some would come that have kill in making it, it would be verie commodious, both to the Merchant, and to the maker of it. And for the Silk-worme, if any were brought ouer, and some of skill to vie them, there would bee Timber Trees. rery much good done with them, for the verie Spider in thefe our llands doth weaue perfect fine * I have omit-Silke, both Yellow and White.

CHAP.16. Three forts of Timber. Articles propounded, and subscribed onto.

The Timber of the Countrey confifteth of three forts, the one is the Cedar, verie fine Timber this discourse, to worke vpon, of colour red, and verie lweet : the other forts we have no name for, for there is none in the company hath feene the like in other Countries before we came, &c.

ted the reft of as being better knowne to later Writers,

10 A Copie of the Articles which Master R. Mon E, Gouernour Deputie of the Sommer Ilands, propounded to the Company that were there with him to be subscribed unto, which both he and they subscribed the second of August, in his house, Anno 1612. which about the same time he fent into England, to the Worshipfull Company of the Aduenturors.

 \sqrt{V} Ee, who have here under subscribed our names, being by the great goodnesses God safely arrived at the Sommer Ilands, with purpose here to inhabite, doe hereby promise 20 and bind our felues to the performance of the feuerall Articles hereafter following, and that in the presence of the most glorious God, who hath in mercy brought vs hither.

First, We doe faithfully promise, and by these presents solemnly binde our selues ever-more to worthing that aforefaid only true and euerliung God, who hath made the Heauens, and the Earth. the Sea, and all that therein is, and that according to those rules that are prescribed in his most holy Word, and ever to continue in that faith into the which wee were baptifed in the Church of England, and to stand in defence of the same against all Atheists, Papists, Anabaptists, Browniffs, and all other Heretikes and Sectaries what soever, differing from the said Word and Faith. Secondly, because the keeping of the Sabboth day holy, is, that wherein a principall part of Gods worthip doth confift, and is as it were the Key of all the other parts thereof, wee do there-

30 fore in the presence aforesaid promise, That wee will set apart all our owne labours and implovments on that day, voleffeit be those that be of meere necessitie, much more vaine and vnfruitfull practiles, and apply our felues to the hearing of Gods Word, Prayer, and all other exercifes of Religion in his Word required, to the vitermost of our power.

Thirdly, Seeing the true worship of God and holy-life cannot be seuered, we doe therefore promife in the presence aforesaid, That to the vttermost of our power we will like together in doing that which is just, both sowards God and Man, and in particular we will forbeare to take the most holy name of God in vaine, in ordinary swearing by it, or any other thing, or by scoffing, or vaine abuling of his most holy Word, or to vie curing, or filthy speeches, or any other thing forhidden in Gods most holy Word, as also to line together without stealing one from another, or 40 quarrelling one with another, or flandering one of another : And to avoide all things that fland not with the good effate of a Christian Church and well gouerned Common-wealth, asalfoto embrace the contrary, as luftice, and Peace, Loue, and all other things that fland with the good and comfort of Societie. Fourthly, Whereas we are here together farre remote from our native foile of England, and yet are indeed the naturall Subjects of our most Royall and gracious King I A M E s of England, Sconland, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Farth, &c. Wee doe therefore in the presence aforelaid, folemnly promise enermore 20 continue the loyall Subjects of our faid Soueraigne King, his Heires and Successors, and neuer to result from him, or them, voto any other what soeuer, but euermore to acknowledge his Supreme Gouernment.

Fiftly, Whereas were were fent hither by divers Adventurers of the Citie of London, and other parts of the Realme of England, wee doe here in the presence aforesaid promise to vie all diligence for the good of the Piantation, and not to purloyne or imbefell any of the prohibited commodities out of the generall estate, but to vie all faithfulnesse, asit becommeth Christians to doe, as also to bee obedient to all such Governour or Governours, or their Deputie or Deputies, as are, or shall be by them sent to gouerne vs; As also to yeeld all renerence towardes the Ministery or: Ministers of the Gospel, sent, or to be sent.

Sixtly and lattly, Wee doe here in presence aforesaid promise, the Lord affitting vs, that if at any time hereafter any forrain power shall attempt to put vs out of this our lawful possession, not cowardly to yeeld up the fame, but manfully to fight as true English men, for the defence of the 60 Common-wealth we line in, and Goipel wee projette, and that whiles we have breath wee will not yeeld to any, that shall inuade vs vpon any conditions what locuer.

I had thought hitherto to have added a Letter of M. Hughes, written from thence, Dec: 21. 1614. and printed. But our latter intelligence, being more ample, hath cauled mee to omit him and others; Yea all things in tome, and tome things in all. M. Norwood hath beene a diligent Commodites of the Coun-Fiftes.

Torroifes' great, and of great vic.

Fowle.

Hogs by reafon of their food there, and our mens ftomackes, extraordinarily Iwect. The weather, Fruits. Peares not hurrfull.

> Cedar Berries Palmitos.

Pepper.

Palme-liquor.

Ambergrecce and Pearle.

Tobacco.

Surveyor of the place and accidents, and hath given a Map of the one (common to be fold) and a briefe relation of the other. But because his History of the Creatures is briefe, I have borrowed out of Captaine Smith, what he had borrowed of Capt. Butler, and others to give the Reader more full fatisfaction in that kind.

CHAP. XVII.

Relations of Summer Hands, taken out of M. RICHARD NORWOOD. bis Map and Notes added thereto, printed 1622. The History of the Creatures growing or lining therein, being inlarged out of Capt. S M I T H S written Relations.

If Thomas Gates, and Sir George Summers, having stated in Bermuda nine moneths, with helpe of such things as they faued with the Sea-ven ure, and of such as they found in the Company. In Advict of C. found in the Countrey, had built of Cedar, and rigged fit for the Sea, two Velfound in the Countrey, had built of Cedar, and rigged it for the Sea, two Vellers, a Ship and a Pinnace, and vpon the tenth of May, 1610, departed toward To grants, a same a manage of the people there. Vpon the four and twentieth of May, 30 from the reliefe of the people there. Vpon the four and twentieth of May, 30

they arrived fafely there, and shortly after some of them returned to the Sommer Hands against for a further supply, in the same Ship which they had formerly built there; where Sit George Sommers dying, his men did not according to his last charge given vnto them, returne to Promise but framed their course for England, leaving behind them three men, that stated voluntarily. who shortly after found in Sommer fet Hand, which is a part of Sandys Tribe, a verie great treasure in Ambergreece, to the valew of nine or ten thousand pound sterling : there hath also been found fince divers times of the best fort.

This new discourse of the Sommer Ilands, being thus made knowne in England, to the Virginia Company, by these men which returned, they fold it to some hundred and twentie persons of the fame Company, who obtained a Charter from his Maiestie, and so hold it. And toward the 20 latter end of Aprill, 1612, fent thither a Ship, called the Plough, with some fixtie persons to inhabite, appointing Governour one Matter Richard Moore, a man ingencous and carefull. who fince dved in Sir Walter Rambyes last voyage to Guiona, (a place as appeareth by our Moderne Geographers, very rich and spatious.) But, as I say, he arrived there about the beginning of July, and found the forefaid three men that itsied voluntarily, very well. Mafter Moore spene the three yeeres of his government, for the most part in fortifying the Countrey, and trayning the people in Martiall exercises, which custome harb beene continued by his successours : hee built some nine or tenne Forts, placing O duance and Municion in them. In his time, the Lord fent vpon the Countrey, a very grieuous feourge and punishment, threatning the veter ruine and defolation of it : That it came from God I need not strive to prove, especially confidering it was gene- 40 rally so acknowledged by vs at that time : The causes and occasions of it, I need not name, being very well knowne to vs all that then lived there, which were about fixe hundred perfons, thought shortly after much diminished. I will onely shew the thing it selfe, which was a wonderfull annoyance, by filly Rats : These Rats comming at the first out of a Ship, few in number, increased in the space of two yeares, or leste, so exceedingly, that they filled not onely those places where they were first landed : But swimming from place to place , spread themselves into all parts of the Countrey. Infomuch, that there was no Hand, though fewered by the Sea from all other Lands, and many miles diffant from the Iles where the Rats had their originall, but was pestered with them. They had their Nests almost in euery Tree, and in all places their Burrowes in the ground (like Conies) to harbour in. They spared not the fruits of Plants and Trees, nei- 50 ther the Plants themselves, but eate them vp. When wee had fet our Corne, they would commonly come by troupes the night following, or so soone as it began to grow, and digge it up againe. If by diligent watching any of it were preferred till it came to earing, it should then very hardly scape them. Yea, it was a difficult matter after wee had it in our houses, to saue it from them, for they became noyfome even to the persons of men. Wee vsed all diligence for the destroying of them, nourishing many Cats, wilde and tame, for that purpose, weevled Rats-bane, and many times let fire on the Woods, fo as the fire might run halfe a mile or more before it were extinct : Every man in the Countrey was emoyned to fet twelve Traps, and fome of their owner accord fet neeze a hundred, which they visited twice or thrice in a night. Wee trayned vp our Dogs to hunt them, wherein they grew to expert, that a good Dog in two or three houres pace, 60 would kill fortie of fittie Rats, and other meanes we yied to deftroy them, but could not preuzile, finding them full to increase against vs. And this was the principall cause of that great distresse, whereunto were were driven in the first planting of the Countrey, for these, denouring the truits of the earth, kept vs deflitute of bread

a veere or two, to that, when wee had it afterwardes againe, wee were to weaned from it, that wee should easily neelect and forget to eate it with our meat. We were also destitute at that time of Boats, and other prouision for filling. And moreover, Matter Moore had received warning from England, that hee should expect the Spaniard that yeere, yet they came not, but with two ships. attempting to come in, and having their Boat before them to found the way, were shot at by the faid Mafter Moore from Kings Caltle, and as we supposed one of them stricken through, wherewoon they prefently departed. But (as I fay) this expectation of them caused vs (though in great necessitie) to haften the fortifications of the Countrey. All these iountly (but principally the Rats) were the caules of our diffresse : for being destitute of food, many dyed, and wee all became 10 very feeble and weake, whereof fome being fo, would not; others could not fir abroad to feeke reliefe, but dved in their houses : fuch as went abroad were lubiect, through weaknesse, to bee suddenly furprized with a difeate we called the Feages, which was neither paine nor ficknesse, but as The Fearest it were the highest degree of weaknesse, deprining vs of power and abilitie for the execution of any bodily exercise, whether it were working, walking, or what else. Being thus taken, if there were any in company that could minister any reliefe, they would straightwayes recour, otherwife they dyed there: Yet many after a little rest would be able to walke again, and then if they found any fuccour were laued.

About this time, or immediately before, came thither a company of Rauens, which consinued with vs all the time of this mortalitie, and then departed. There were not before that time, nor 10 fince (to far as I heare) any more of them feene there. And this, with fome other realons of more moment, moved many to thinke that there was fome other Hands neere the Sommer Hands, betweene Virginia, and it; and M. Moore (in his time, with some other of vs) went forth in a Boat to far as then wee could conseniently, of purpole to discouerit : Since then, it hath beene endeauouted by other, and is vet (as I heare) to be further attempted. And how focuer I am perswaded (for certaine causes which I cannot here relate) there is no such thing; Yet would I not difanimate any from this enterprile, for if they find any, their labours will be well recompenced; and though they find none, yet might they discouer those parts so well, that the passage to and from Virginia would be more fafe and eatie. But to returne from whence wee have digressed: The extremitie of our distresse began to abate an a little before M. Moores time of government was expired, partly by supplies out of England, of victualland prouision for fishing, and partly by that reit and libertie we then obtained, the Countrey being fortified. Yet the Rats encreased and continued almost to the end of Captaine Tuckers time, although hee was prouident and industrious to destroy them, but toward the end of his time it pleafed God(by what meanes it is not wel known) to take them away, informech that the wilde Catsand many Dogs which lived on them were tamified, and many of them leaving the Woods, came downe to the houses, and to tuch places where they vie to gaibish their Fish, and became tame. Some have attributed this destruction of them to the encrease of wild Cats, but that's not likely they should be so suidenly encreased rather at that time, then in the source yeeres before, And the chiefe occasion of this supp sition was, because they saw such companies of them to leave the Woods, and thew themselves for want of food. Others have supposed it to come to paffe by the coolnesse of the weather, which not with standing is never so great there, as with vs in March, nor scarce as it is in April, except it be in the wind; besides the Rats wanted not feathers of young Birds and Chickens which they daily killed, and of Palmeto Moffe (as wee call it) to build themselaes warme nests out of the wind, as viually they did. Neither doth it appeare that the cold was so mortall to them, seeing they would ordinarily swim from place to place, and be very fat even in the midft of Winter. It remaineth then, that as we know God doth sometimes effect his will without subordinate and secondary causes, and sometimes against them: So wee need not doubt, but that in the speedy encrease and spreading of these Vermine; as also, in the prefernation of fo many of vs by fuch weake meanes as we then enjoyed, and especially in the sudden removallef this great annovance, there was joyned with, and besides, the ordinary and manifest meanes, a more immediate and fecret worke of God. Now to proceed. M. Moores time of gouernment being expired, Capt. Tucker fucceeded, arii- Cap. Tucker. uing there about mid-May, 1616, who likewife gouerned (according to the custome) three yeeres; which time hee ipent, for the most part, in husbandring the Countrey, planting and nourishing all fuch things as were found fit either for trade, or for the fuftentation and vie of the Inhabitants, wherein hee trauelled with much diligence and good fuccifie, fending to fome parts of the Indies fee Plants and Fruits; hee alto adjed to the Fortifications, and made tome Inclosures. In his time, viz. in the yeare 1617, was fent a Ship and prouision, with men of skill, for the killing of Whales; but they arrived there too late to wit, about the midft of April, to that before they could 60 make reasis their Shallops, and fit themselves, the principall teaton for Whale-filling was Whales past : For the Worle come thither in January, and depart againe toward the latter end of May: Yet they throok tome, but tound them to lively, fwift, & fierce after they were stricken, that they could take none. They well great flore of Oyle, as appeared by one that draue to shoare on Somme fer lland, in Sandry Trib. : and by another that we found not far from thence dead upon a

1796

Rat-plague.

How vaine a thing is man, whose best wits and induftry are triumphed ouer by Great God, giue vs grace to feare thee, that we may feare nothing elie: elfe fhall we feare with Pharas Frogs, Lice Flies. with others, Fleas Sparrowes.& .Yea a few Rats,in despite of Cats Dogs, Traps, poifons, thall farue vs.

Shares.

1798

I also received by Captaine Tucker, directions from the Adventurers to divide the Countrey. and to affigne to each Aduenturer his shares or portion of Land : and withall, a description, with notes touching the manner how they would have it done, as they had formerly determined by Lot. Which thing I did with all faithfulneffe and diligence, the manner of it doth about appeare. and is more largely manifested in a Booke of the Survey of the Country, exhibited to the Right Honorable his Maiesties Counsell, and the Court of Aduenturers for these parts. And then began this, which was before as it were an unfetled and confused Chaos (I mean as touching a Plantation, for confidered onely as a Regiment it was otherwife) to receive a convenient difpofition, forme, and order, and to become indeed a Plantation; for though the Countrey was small ver they could not have been conveniently disposed and well settled, without a true description on and furuey made of it; and againe every man being fettled where her might confirmtly abide. they knew their bulinesse, and fitted their houshold accordingly. They built for themselves and their Families, not Tenes or Cabins, but more substantiall houses : they cleered their grounds and planted not onely fuch things as would yeeld them their fruits in a yeere, or halfe a yeere : but all fuch too, as would affoord them profit after certaine yeeres, &c. So that in thort time after even before expiration of Captaine Tuckers government, the Country began to alpire and neerely to approch vnto that happinesse and prosperity wherein now it flourisheth. For may it not justly be accounted happinelle and prosperitie, for men to live where they enjoy the meanes of true Religion and Salvation, to wit, the fincere Ministerie of the Word and Sacraments: where the gouernment is good without rigour and oppression, the place healthfull and temperates where they are freed from all extreme care and toyle : where they have food in abundance, and very good, with other things needfull to the body; and where they have Commodities meete for Trade. by which they better advance their effaces? all which and more is largely verified in the prei pt citate of that Colonie, whattoeuer fome maliciously minded, or to evill ends suborned, may fay to the contrary, so that there may seeme to bee a restauration of that Golden Age so much fpoken of.

The Governour now there refident, is one Captaine Butler, for Captaine Tucker departing thence in December 1618, left in his place Captaine Kendall (who also was one that supplied the same place in the interim, betweene Master Moores time and Captaine Tuckers, and hath fpent fome nine or ten yeeres in the Countrey. But in the yeere 1619, about Midiummer, the 20 Adventurers fent thither as Gouernour for three yeeres (according to the custome) the faid Captaine Butler, and foure thips, with fome five hundred persons, there beeing at that time in the Countrey onely fine hundred more : for by the space of foure yeeres , to wit, during the latter part of Master Moores government, and all the time of Captaine Tackers, they had fent few this ther, being almost hopelesse of the place, by reason of the Rats : But fince there have beene sent many companies more then have come to my knowledge. Infomuch that I vinderstand the Countrey is now almost fully planted and inhabited.

Thus have I briefly related (to farre forth as hath come to my knowledge and remembrance) every thing of most note and importance that hath befallen in the first Discoverie and planting of these Ilands, till this present. I have laboured to contract my selfe, yet have exceeded my en- 40 tended limits. Now I multipeake fomething of the Countrey it felte: Which confilteth of a company of small Hands, situate and formed as about appeareth. It lyeth in the Westerne Ocean, in that part of the World lately discouered, and called America, or the New World, vulgarly, the West Indies: It hath Latitude, or Eleuation (as is abouefaid) 32. degrees 25. minutes, which is almost the same with the Maderaes, or rather more Southward.

The Countrey is round about enuironed with Rockes; which to the Northward, Westward, and Southward, extend farther then hath beene yet discouered : By reason of these Rockes the Countrey is very firong: For there is onely two places (and fcarce two, except to fuch as know them well) where shipping may safely come in and those places are very well fortified but within is roome to entertaine a Royall Fleet. The Rockes in most places appeare at a low water: 50 neither are they much couered at a high water; For it ebbes and flowes there, not about fine foot, The shoare it selfe (for the most part) is a Rocke: fo hardned by the Sunne, Wind, and Sea, that it is not apt to be worne by the Waues; whole violence is also broken by the Rocks, before they come at the shoare. The Mould is of divers colours; neither Clay, nor Sand, but a meane betweens. The Red, which refembleth Clay is worst; the whitish, refembling Sand, and the blackish, Clay, is good : the Browne, betweene them both (which they call white, because there is mingled with it, as it were a white Marle) is belt. Vnder the Mould two or three foote deepe, and fometimes leffe, is a kind of white, hard substance, which they call the Rocke : the Trees visally fasten their Roots in it : and draw their nourishment from it : Neither is it indeed Rocke of Stone, nor to hard, though for the most part harder then Chalke; not so white, but Pumice-like 66 and Spongie, easily receiving and contayning much water: I have feene, in fome places, Clay found under it. It feemes to be engendred of the Raine water, drawning through the earth, and drawing with it of his substance, vinto a certaine depth where it congeales. The hardest kind of it (which is commonly under the red ground) is not fo Spongie, nor retaynes much water : but lyeth in the ground in Quarries, as it were thicke Slates one vpon another: and there is fome chinkes or creuses betwixt one lare and another, through which the water hath passage : so that in fuch places there is scarce found any fresh water. For all, or the most part of their fresh waser (whereof they have good ftore) commeth out of the Sea; drayning through the Sand, or through the forefaid fubitance, which they call the Rocke, and leaving his Sale behind it becomes fresh : Sometimes we digged Welles of fresh water, within foure or five paces of the Sea-fide : Wels. fometimes further off. The most part of them would ebbe and flow, as the Sea did, and be levell or little higher then the Superficies of the Sea.

The Aire is most commonly cleere, very temperate, moift, with a moderate heate, very The Aire; to healthfull, and apt for the Generation and noursthing of all things; fo that there is scarce any thing transported from hence thither, but it yeelds a farre greater encrease; and if it be any lining thing, becomes fatter and better liking, then here. By this meanes the Country was fo replenifhed with Hennes and Turkeyes, within the space of three or foure yeeres, that beeing negle-Ated, many of them forfooke the Houses, and became wilde, and so lued in great abundance. The like encrease there is of Hogges and other Cattle, according to their kinds. There seemes to be a continual! Spring, which is the cause that some few things come not to that maturitie and perfection, as were requisite. And though the Trees doe shed their leaves, yet are they alwayes full of greene.

Their Corne is the same which they vie almost in all parts of the West Indies , to wit, Maiz: an which, to such as are yied to it, is more heartie and nourithing then our English Wheate, and veelds a farre greater increase, as a pound, sometimes, of one or two graines. Of this Corne, and civers other things, without either plowing or digging the ground, they have two Harvelts every yeere : for they fet about March, which they gather in July; and againe in August, which is ripe in December : And little flips of Figge Trees, and Vines, doe viually beare fruit within leffe then a yeere after they are planted, fometimes in halfe a yeere. The like fertilitie it hath in other things.

There is scarce at any time to be perceived either Frost or Snow, nor any extreme heate; for Teperature of there is almost alwayes some wind stirring, which cleereth and cooleth the Aire, Their Sum- the Gountrey. mers and Winters observe the same times with ours, but their longest dayes and nights are shoron ter then ours in England, by two hours and almost a halfe : as also their shortest dayes and nights are as much longer then ours : for their longest dayes and nights are about fourteene houres, and their shortest ten. When it is Noone with vs. it is Morning with them; and when it is about fine of the clocke in the Enening with vs, it is high-noone with them : to that whileft the Sun declines with vs. it rifeth with them, as also it doth in Virginia. It is apt to Thunder and Lightnine all the veere, oft-times more terrible then in England; but no man, or other living creature have I knowne hurt by it. There is no venemous creature in the Countrey : the yellow Spi- Spiders, der which is there, making her Webbe as it were of Silke, and bringing forth her young (as the Alchimists their stone) of Egges like little Balles of Quick-filter, is not perceived to bee any whic venemous. Yet there is a Plant (that climbeth Trees like Iuie, the leafe also of the fame colour, but in shape like the Vine) that is somewhat venomous, but of no great force.

There is great store and varietie of Fish, and so good as these parts of the World affoords not the like; which being for the most part voknowne to vs, each man gave them names as they heit liked; as one kind they called Rocke-fish, another Groopers, others Porgie-fish, Hog-fish, Angle-fish, Cauallies, Yellow-tayles, Spanish Makerell, Mullets, Breame, Connie-fish, Morrayes, Sting-rayes, Flying-fish, &c. The like they did by the Fowle, as Cohooes, Sandbirds, Herons, Ducke and Teale, Pemblicoes, Caele-boobies, Hawkes, &c.

The Country when we first beganne the Plantation, was all ouer-growne with Woods and Plants of severall kinds : and to such kinds as were voknowne to vs (which were the most part) we also gaue names: such as were knowne retayning their olde names: as Cedars . Palmetoes, Black-wood, White-wood, Yellow-wood, Mulberie-trees, Stopper-trees, Lawrell and Olivetrees, Mangrowes, Pepper-trees, Yellow-bery-weed, Red-weed : These, and many others, wee found naturally growing in the Countrey. But fince it hath beene inhabited, there hath beene brought thither, as well from the Indies as from other parts of the World, fundry other Plants. as Vines of feuerall kinds, Sugar-canes, Figge-trees, Apple-trees, Oranges, Lemmons, Pomegranets, Plantanes, Pines, Parsnips, Raddithes, Artichokes, Potatoes, Cassaui, Indico, and many other: Infomuch that it is now become as it were fome spacious Garden or Nourcerie of many pleafant and profitable things.

Now if I should proceed to a more special! Narration, and speake of all these Plants, Birds, Fithes, and other remarkable things particularly: I could not but bee much larger then were any to waves expedient in this place. Befides, I have long fince underflood, that Captaine Butler (the Gouernour there relident) hath undertaken to write of these and the like things, a peculiar Treatife. This therefore that is spoken touching the nature of the Countrey in generall, shall fuffice. Onely to make choice of two particulars, wherof I will speake, not so largely as the things require, but to farre forth as will be meet and convenient in this places surall Historie of them both.

The first shall bee the Tortoyse, which they call a Turtle : which having some effinitie and resemblance with Fishes, Beasts, and Fowles, shall serve instead of a Historic of them all. The other thall be that which they call the prickled Peare-tree: which participating in nature, and retembling in some things, herbs and in other Trees; shall likewise serue instead of the Na-

And first of the Turckle, not regarding (for breuities fake) the large Discourses of others :

I will onely write what I haue feene and knowne my felfe. They are in the shape of their bodie like a Crab-fish; and haue foure finnes : they are as great as three or foure men can carrie: the wpper part of them is couered with a great shell, which wee call a Galley-patch, weighing harder then Horne : shee hath also a shell on her belly, not so hard, but being boyled it becommeth foft, like the finewes or griffle of Beefe; and good meate. These line in the Sea, fremding the Spring time, and part of the Summer about these Ilands : but the relidue of the yeere, we know not where. They are like to Fowle in respect of the smalnesse and fashion of their heads and neckes: which are wrinkled like a Turkeyes, but white, and not fo sharpe billed.

They also breed their young of Egges which they lay. They resemble Beasts, in that their fiesh is like Veale, but more hard and folid; and they feed alwayes vpon graffe growing at the botsome of the water; neither can they abide any longer under water, then they hold their breath;

two minutes without comming vp to breathe, Shortly after their comming in, the Male and Female couple, which wee call cooting; this they continue fome three dayes together, during which time, they will scarce separate though a Boat come to them, nor hardly when they are fmitten. Not long after, the Shee-Turckle comes vp by night vpon fome Sandie Bay; and further yo then the water vieth to flow, thee digges a hole with her finne in the Sand, fome two foote deepe; and there comming vp seuerall nights, layes her Egges, some halfe a bushell

(which are about the bignesse of a Hennes Egge, and round as a Ball) and each time couers them with Sand very curiously; so that a man shall hardly finde the place. These Egges (asit feemes) are afterwards hatched by heate of the Sunne, and then by the Prouidence of God (the shee returnes any more to them, and yet in likelihood they remaine not long in the Earth after they are hatched, because (as I have before faid) they cannot live without breathing. We sometimes fee of the young ones no bigger then a mans hand, which some fish will deucure. They grow flowly, and feeme to have a very long life, they will fleepe on the top of the water, and were wont to sleepe often on the Land, till the Countrie was peopled; they will also line out of the water fome three weekes, and that without meate, but mourne and pine away; they are very wittie. Being on the Land turned v pon their backes, they can no more without some helps or advantagerecouer themselues; by which meanes when they come on shoare to lay them

Egges, they are eafily taken, as also they are when they are cooting, But otherwise wee take times wimme, and feldome fhunne : fo that a man flanding readie with a flaffe in his hand, which hath at one end a focket, wherein is an Iron lesse then a mans finger, foure-square and sharpe, with a line fastned to it, hee striking this Iron into the vpper shell of the Turckle, it fickes fo fait, that after fiee hath a little tired her felfe by fwimming too and fro, fiee is taken by it. They will live, the head being cut off, foure and twentie houres; so that if you cut the flesh with a Knife, or touch it, it will tremble and shrinke away. There is no meate will keepe lon-

But leaving these, we will now come to speake of the Prickled Peares, which are a fruit and Cliffes, and commonly by the Sea side, as if the salt-water did somewhat helpe to the gene- 50 growing in these llands, in such places as are scarce fit for any thing else, namely, vpon Rockes ration and nourishing of them. The tree seemes to grow certaine yeeres before it beares fruit, and then to continue bearing, very many yeeres, having almost all the yeere long fruit upon it. And although we call this a Tree, yet hath it fearce any bodie or branches, but confifteth in a mannes

But we will give you a larger Historie of the Creatures from Captaine Smith, in the next Chapter.

them for the most part by night, making a great light in a Boate, to which they will some 4

meanes are yet vnknowne to vs) are brought out of the earth, for wee could never perceive that 20

which the old ones will doe long: but the young ones being chafed to and fro, cannot continue 20

(as I take it) halfe a hundred weight : the flesh that cleaueth to the in-side of this being rolled 10 against the fire, is excellent meate: almost like the Marrow of Beefe : but the shell it selfe

CHAP. 18. The animal and Degetall creatures in Summer Hands.

1081

CHAP. XVIII.

Extracts out of Captaine IO HN SMITHS Hifterie of Bermudas, or Summer Ilands; touching the English Ads and Occurrents there from the beginning of the Plantation.

Ome one hundred and twentie of the Virginian Company bought that Title which the Company might feeme to have to Bermuda, and obtayned Letters Patents of his Mietle. Sir Thomas Smite was elected Treatment, and observation and the selected Treatment, and Mafter Ri-hard Moore lent thither with the first Colonie, which found the three men well, Carter, Chard, and Waters, which had found flore of Ambergrice, which Inuenianture was the occasion of great stirres betwitt Moore and Kendall, (who was imprifoned) (hard (who was condemned and on the Ladder to be hanged, but reprived, and all Moores time detayned prisoner) and Captaine Danies, who had almost kindled a mutinie till better thoughts did better him. Sie vos non vobis, was the conclusion of that Treasure to the finders, howfoener Danies and Kendall are faid to have licked their fingers well. For the natural Historie thereof I have added they much out of him to that which before bath beene delivered by others.

The most troubletome to their Ilands are the Winds and Wormes , specially in the Spring and 20 Autumpe, rather to awaken industrie then to cause despaire.

The Musketas or Flies are very buffe, with a certaine Indian bugge called by the Spaniards, a Flies, Cacaroatch, which creeping into Chifts by their ill fented dung detile all, besides their eating. Little Ants are in Summer to troubletome that they are forced to dry their figs on high frames, Ants anointing the feete with Tarre which flay their passage that elle would spoile all. Wormes in the earth are notiome to their Corne and Tobacco, caufing them great labour every morning to deflroy them; which elfe would deftroy all. Large Lizards have been there now deftroyed by the Lizards. Cats. Spiders are large but beautifully coloured, as if they were adorned with Silver, Gold, and Spiders. Pearle: their Webs in Summer wouen from Tree to Tree a perfect raw Silke in substance and colour, fo ftrong that Birds like Snites bigger then Black-birds, are fnared in their Nets.

There are grey and white Hearne, grey and greene Plouer, wild Ducks, and Mallards, Coots, Forles Red-shankes, Sea-wigeons, grey Bitternes, Cormorants, numbers of small Birds, like Sparrowes and Rubbins, which have lately beene destroyed by the Wild Cats, very many Wood-peckers, Crowes, which fince the Plantation are killed, and feldome feene except in places leaft inhabited, where they are observed to take their flight about Sun-set, directing their course toward the North-west, which causeth the consecture of other Hands. (Yea, the Spaniards lay this is not true Bermuda, &c.) sometimes also are seene Falcons, Jarfalcons, Osprayes, a Bird like a Hobby, bolden but a paffenger.

The Cohow is fo termed of his voice; a night Bird all day hid in the Rockes. The Egge-bird on the first day of May constantly observed to come, they begin to lay Egs as big almost as Hens 40 Egges; fo continuing till Mid-fummer, fo tame you must thrust them off : then permitted to breed (growing weake) and their young are excellent meate. The Egges of those are white; of the Cohomes freckled, as bigge as Hennes: ftrict inhibition was made for their sparing beeing al-

The Tropiks Bird hath his name of the places where he is most feene. Another Bird of her Cry is called Pemblico, feldome feene by day, an vinwelcome Prophet of Tempells by her clamorous crying. O wles are now gone, Pigeons proiper not, Tame Duckes and Geefe are there.

Now for Plants there growing, the most remarkeable are, the Porfon-wood, which is much in shape like our English Iuie, with the touch thereof causing rednesse, itching and blisters, all which after a while passe away of themselves without further hurt.

The Red-reed is a tall Plant, whose stalke is covered with a red rind : the Roote steemed, or a fmall quantitie of the juyce drunke alone procureth a forceable Vomit, generally vied and effe-Quall against diftempers of the stomacke.

A kind of Wood-bind is common neere the Sea running on Trees like a Vine, the fruit fomewhat like a Beane but flatter, which eaten any way caufeth to purge vehemently, yet without Another small Tree causeth costiuenesse. There is also a Plant like a Bramble, bearing a long yellow fruit with a hard shell, and within a hard Berrie which stamped and taken inwardly,

Red-Pepper is a fruit like our Barberies, which beaten, or bruized with the Teeth , fets all 60 the mouth on a heat, for the time terrible; but fwallowed whole have the fame operation that

The Sea-feather is a Plant growing on the Rocks in the bottome of the Sca in forme of a Vine. leafe, but fatre more spread with veines of a palish red, strangely interlaced and weated into each other; the vertue vnknowne.

wholly of leaves and fruit, foft and brittle.

LHIIII 3

Moores Forts.

apple, Plantans, and Papawes; the English Artichoke, Pease, &c. Master Moore applied himselfe to fortifying and to traine his men: hee laid the foundation of eight or nine Forts, called the Kings Castle, Charles Fort, Pembrokes Fort, Smiths Fort, Gates Fort. Warwickes Castle, Saint Katherines Fort, &c. mounting therein all luch Ordnance as he had. Be-Mafter Keath. ing busied in these and other necessaries, which held the men hard at worke, Mafter Keath the Minister, a Seot, taxed him in the Pulpit for grinding the faces of the poore, opprefing his Chri-Miniter, 2 360, taxen minital the appropriate generality contraction of the generality contracti ed, he fell on his knees and asked pardon, which was easily with good admonition granted. Two other malecontents were condemned to be hanged, one of which for feare fell into a dead palife. the other was freed, and after proued a good labourer. He got two peeces of Ordnance out of the Sea-Venture (Sir George Summers wracke) framed a Church of Timber, which was blowne Church built. downe and reedified, and another built in a closer place with Palmito leaves. Before the yeare Supplies fent expired, an Adulfo with thirtie paffengers were fent, to prepare for Spaniards; which made them fall to hard to worke, that many fell ficke. The Martha followed with fixtie paffengers. and in it Maiter George Barklie, who tooke good notice of those Ilands. The Elizabeth was fent the fecond time with fortie pallengers. These carried the first Potatos, which being all loft but two castaway rootes have yeelded increase there to admiration, and are great reliete to

There are besides truits thither carried which thrine and multiply, White, Red, Yellow Potatoes, Sugar-canes, Indicoes, Parlnips, exceeding large Radishes, Cassau (the American root for bread) the Indian Pompeon, the water Melon, the Muske Melon, the most delicate Pine-

M. Barbic. Increase of

An.1613.

Spanilly Ships.

Two Spanish Ships were seene soone after this Ship was gone, to found with their Boate, attempting to come in; but from the Kings Castle Master Moore made two shot, which caused them to depart, to the ioy of the Plantation, which then had but three quarters of a barrell of Powder, and but one shot more: the Powder also by carelesnesse tumbled under the Mussels of the two Peeces which were discharged, and yet not touched with fire. The like mercifull prouidence appeared in certaine cartrages of Paper filled with Powder; a negligent fellowleauing his Match burning voon one of them all the while they were at Prayer, so that the cole touched the Paper and fired it not.

Escapes from dangers

A worse thing happened by a caruell of Meale, which Daniel Elfred brought thither, so stored 20 with Rats, that had neere ruined all the Plantation. Two yeeres after came in the Bleffing with M.Bartlies fe- one hundred passengers, and the Starre with one hundred and eightie, and soone after the Margaret, and two Frieats with one hundred and fixtie. Mafter Barkley also came to divide the Countrie into Tribes, and the Tribes into shares; but Moore feeing his share and the Colonies to be none, gave him fo cold entertainment, that he returned as he came.

This bred Moore more diflike in England, and his minding fortification fo much, with neglect of Corne bred a famin; that attended with difeafes, specially one called the Feagues, which without fenie of paine, swallowed vp all their strength at once, whereof without succour they died; some by foode and rest recovered. The Rauens continued this mortality and then departed. William Millinton was drawne into the Sea by a Fish, and neuer seene more. The Famine gaue a fu- 40 persedeas to the workes, and Moore sent them to seeke reliefe. At Conpers Ile with a contrary extremity of the abundance of Cahows and Fish, many furfeited and died, Some killed the Cattell, and one stole away to the Woods and there franked himselfe, feeding on land Crabbes and Wilkes, For filhing, the Smith was faine to make Hookes of Swords, and Lines of old Ropes, till a Frigat being fent with aduice into England, the Welcome was fent with provision. Mafter Moore returned in this Ship, and left the Gouernment to a Councell of fixe, which fhould succeede each by a Counsell, other monethly ; viz. Captaine Miles Kendall, Captaine John Mansfield, Thomas Knight, Charles Caldicor, Edward Waters, and Christopher Carter, with twelve Affiltants. Moore arriving here, after much quarrell, obtained eight snares of Land. Hee died after in Sir Walter Raleighs Guiana voyage. He was a man very pragmaticall, and had before undertaken much in Foulenesse for 50 Rapes feede, &c. A man fitter for fuch a Plantation es this in the beginning was, then fome filken Citizen, or stalking Gentleman, or talking Traueller, or fowre Humorist, or grim Martialist might Caldicots lot.

1614. Famine and ficknelle.

Contrary ex-

M.Keath and

Caldicors Lot was first, whose moneth being ended, with Knight and Waters in a small Frigot he went to Vuginia, Mansfield succeeded in the new triumuirate, and a plot not to surrender the Gouernment to luch as from England should be appointed, was disappointed : Master Hushes was imprisoned, and soone set at liberty, but Master Kealb his Symmystes fell to frange allputes, and Hughes was againe convented, and by the Iury acquitted. Mansfields moneth being paffed in braules, the two next were quiet; yet those contestings after remined. The Estim attiued with good supplies. Divers Boates were lost at Sea about this time.

M.Hughes. Strange acci-

Button memorable accident was this: In March, a feafon most tempestuous, on a suite Friday morning, seuen men went in a Boate of two or three tuns to fish, some of them fasting, neither had they any prouision in the Boat with them but a few Palmeto berries; some foure leagues from shoare a tempest tooke them, and carried them quite out of fight of land; their strength being ipent, the strength also of the tempest abated on funday, and a calme followed. Too weake for Oaresthev lay adrift that night: the next morning Andrew Hillyard (the reit not able to helpe ares aduction them lelues) ipred the faile : On tuelday one died, on wednesday three, which were cast onerboord : on thursday night the fixth, whom he was not able to turne over, but stripped him, ripped his belly with his Knife, threw his bowels into Sea, fored his body abroad, tilted open with a flicke, and so let it lye as a Cesterne to receine some luckie raine water, which God fent presently after, to that in a small shower he recovered about foure spoonefuls of raine to his ynspeakable refreshment. He also prescrued neere halfe a pint of blood in a shooe, which hee did sparingly drinke to moisten his mouth. Two dayes he fed on his flesh to the quantity of a pound; the e-10 lenenth day after his lofe of Land, two flying Fishes fell into his Boate, whose warme incie bloud he fucked, to his great comfort, and within an house after, with greater comfort effied land.

which within foure houres he attained on a Rocke neere Port Royall, where his Boate was folic presently in peeces, and he made shift to climbe so steepe a Rocke by night, as would have troubled the ftrongest man in t' . ile to have done by day. He discerned in the morning where he wasand without other refreshing then water (which he tooke temperately, or might elie have drunk his last) he got in halfe a day to a friends house. He was living Anno 1622.

Some treasure in Dollers, to the value of twentie pounds was found, the remainder of some

Wrack. The Company fent M. Daniel Tucker, to be Gouernour; hee fet faile in the George, accompanied with the Edwin: some preparation was made to refit, but he at last was received and 20 acknowledged in May, 1616. Somewhat hee had to doe to bring them to their workes, which yet he effected; their day worke till nine in the morning, and then staying till three in the afternoone, they began againe continuing till fun-fet. Besides meat, drinke, and clothes, they had for a time a certaine kind of braffe Money, with a Hog on the one fide, in memory of the Hogs there found at first landing. Hee by Master Richard Normoods helpe, laid out the eight Tribes in the Tribes laid out Mayne, which were to confift of fiftie shares to a Tribe, each share twentie fine Acres. He began to plant some of the Colony on specials shares, and appointed Bailiffes to each Tribe, Hee held a generall Affite in his fecond moneth at Saint Georges , where for fedition John Wood a Frenchman Affifes. was hanged. He fent the Edmin to Trade with the Natiues of the West Indies for Cattel Corne. Plants, which had it been continued, might happily haue bin more beneficiall to the Plantation then the Magazines from hence. She returned with Figs, Pines, Sugar-canes, Plantans, Papawes. and divers other plants, which were presently replanted, and fince have increased by the Go-Bernours commendable husbandry. Severity, by the conceit thereof produced an admirable fact: Fine men which could by no meanes get passage for England, resolved to adventure an escape, viz. Richard Sander Mariner chiefe plotter, William Goodwin a Ship Carpenter, Tho. Harifon a Lovner. lames Baker Gentleman, and Henry Puet. These infinuated to the Gouernour, that they would build him a Boat of two or three Tuns with a close Deck, fit to fish in all weathers. Hee glad to royace, fee them so obsequious, furnished them with necessaries whatsoever they could defire. Shee was fitted and gone the evening before hee fent for her, to fee, as was reported, how shee could faile. This was most true, and Botelias his adventure from Goa in the East Indies to Lisben was not so

4 admirable a triall. Barker had borrowed a Compatie Diall of M. Hughes, leaving a Letter to him His course was to have patience for that lose, whereby their adventure was intimated. The Governours threats necter stoore. were not in that remotenesse to terrible as the two present swelling Elements, whom yet they with all providfound more gentle then a French Pickaroone, who in flead of fuccour, which they defired tooke from them what they liked , leaning them not so much as a Crosse-staffe to observe with, and so cast them off. They continued their course till their victuall began to faile, and the knees of their Small Boar Boat were halfe hewed away for fire wood. They at last arrived in Ireland, where the Earle of from Bermy. Tomund entertained them, and caused the Boat to be hanged up for a Monument, having fayled das commeth 3300. miles thorow the Ocean by a right line without fight of any Land. This fortunate San- to Ireland. ders in the rifling of a Ship taken in the East Indies, bought a Cheft for three or foure shillings, but

50 would for want of a Key have fold it againe for leffe. But one day having little to doe, hee broke it open and found therein 1000. pounds fterling, or fo much gold as bought him in England a good estate, which leaving with his wife he returned againe to the East Indies.

The Company sent Captaine Powell in the Hopewell, after he had landed his passengers in Sum- Cap Fowell, mer Iles, to trade in the Indies, who by the way tell foule on a Brafillman, and afterwards a French. man on him : but hee got fafe to the flands and told what he had done. The Gousmour kept his fecond Affize, and made a proclamation against the killing of coheires. Powell is against ent to the Well Indies from thence, with thirteene or fourteene men. Hee made triall but in vaine, for the Whale-filhing, for which and to which purpose the Company soone after sent the Neptune, In the beginning of his second yeere he called the third azife, in which one washanged, two others to condemned, but reprieued. The Rat Tragedy was now terrible: fome Fishes have been taken with Rats in their bellies, catched as they fwam from Ile to Ile. One Henry Long, with fixe others being on fishing, a sudden storm arose with terrible thunder, and the Boat was tossed over the Rocks, Hurchy Rats the fish toffed ouer-boord, and Long with two others escaped (the rest drowned) one of the three filling all the being demanded what he thought in the prefent perill, answered, hee faid nothing, but Gallowes Hand. LIIIIII 3

CHAP.10. Bulwarkes raised. Miserable torments. Noisome Wormes.

1305

Gallowesclappers fate.

claime thy right, which within halfe a yeere fell out accordingly. Powell returned with three Fria oats laden with Meale, Hides, and Munition. The Mafter and Governour contending both were difpossessed by a thronger power. Wasers, with twelue men were sent to Virginia, and would no more returne to Summers lles.

intended.

A. 1618. arrived there the Diana, with men and provision, and the first Magazine (a course I Magazines not heate not much applauded by the Planters here, or in Virginia, the companies honeft care) feeming fo provisible as by some others dishonestie frustrate. This Ship fraught with 3 0000, weight of Tobacco, gaue by the good fayle thereof encouragement to the Aduenturers. The Gouernour building a house of Cedar in the belt Land, appropriated it to himielte to the griefe of others there, of whom Mafter Hugher could not by threats nor imprisonment be so pacified, but that here to the Company hee Io approved his caute. Two men and a Gentlewomen, thinking to make their escape in a Boat to Virginia, were neuer heard of after. Sixe others attempted the like, but were apprehended. araigned, condemned, and one of them hanged. The Gouernours hard dealings fo much complainable ned of, cauled him in the Bleffing to returne to excuse himselfe, and to get that house affured him.

cicaping. Two thips fent

Efeapers not

leaving Captaine Kendall to Jupply his place. The Gilli-flower and the Treasurer were fent. By the Sea-flower which went to Virginia, 2 Preacher was ient to the Ilands, and newes of a new Gouernour. Captaine Kerb; came in with a small Barke from the West Indies. A Datch Frigot was cost away on the Westerne shoare, the people saued by the English.

Cap.Butler Gouernour.

Captaine Builer, the new Gouernour arrived in the Warmicke, the twentieth of October, 1619. The Redoubt, a platforme of the Kings Castle, at the same time whiles the New Goutmour and 20 old Planters were feafting aboord, accidentally was confumed with fire. The next month came in the Garland, which had come from England fixe or feuen weekes before him, and fpent feuenteen weekes on the voyage, which proued to tedious, that many both Saylers and Paffengers died. In Great flormes the end of November, arole such a storme that many great Trees were blown up by the roots, the Warwicke cast away, the Garland forced to cut her Masts ouerboord. Not long after happened another as fierce; in which the Monns, built by M. Moore for a Watch-tower, was blowne vp bw the roots; and their winter crop of Corne blaited.

He began the new yeere with refortifying the Kings Castle, and finding the Treasurer rotten, tooke nine Peeces of Ordnance out of her. Hee fent the Garland for England. Hee finished the Church begun by Captain Kondall, with great toile got three Peeces out of the wracked Warnick, 20 imployed a Dutch Carpenter of the former Dutch wrack to build Boates. A luckie fellow in February, found a piece of Ambergreece of eight Ounces, as hee had done twice afore, and according to order of Court (to preuent concealements) had thertore thirtie pound an Ounce. Two Dutch Frigots arrived, conducted by Captaine Powell, and much refreshed the Colony with Oyle and Bacon at cheape rates. The Gouernour made a new platforme in place of the burned Redants, and mounted feuen great Peeces on Cariages of Cedar. The Ministers not being conformable to the Church of England, nor vniforme with themselves in administration of the Sacrament, and Matrimony. Hee translated the Liturgie Booke of Garnsie and Iarsie, void of the pretended scruples which was generally embraced, and in his time practifed, and the Sabbaths observation proclaimed. They rebuilded the Mount, and divers Boats was indangered with a Hericano, one loft. 49 Sie George Sum- Finding a little Crosse erected where Sir George Summers his heart and entrailes were buried : he meramemorial caused a Marble stone brought out of England, to bee handsomely wrought, and an Epiraphengrazen, in memory of that worthy Souldier, and laid thereon, inuironed with a square wall of

Minifers scruples.

On the second of June , began their Ass zes, in which their Lawes and Government were re-Their fift Par- duced to the English forme. The first of August, was a generall Assembly in manner of a Parliament, at Saint Georges, divers Articles concluded, and being fent hither, by the Company confirmed, which for breuitie I omit. The Magazine Ship foone after came in weake case thither, hauing cast ouerboord twentie or thirtie of her people, and had they staied at Sea a weeke longer, were likely to have all perished. That aire foon mends or ends men in that case, and those which so died not soone after the landing recovered, not without infection of others there. 70000. weight of Tobacco was prefixed for her freight. Commandement came now to entertaine no Ships, but fuch as were fent from the Company, to the Colonies great griefe, which now were forced to a Magiz ane-Monopoly, and debarred of occationall reliefe. Cap. Powell foone after came thither, imployed by the States, defiring admittance for wood and water, which was denied with excee-Spenife Wrack, ding murmuring and exclaiming of the Colony. The Magazine Ship arrived, her Matter dead, and many passengers, the rest sicke. Then happened also in September a Spanish Wrack, which comming from Carrhagena with Then happened allo in September a spanjo verack, which comming from conditions the Spanis Fleet lost their Ship on those Rockes, and seventie persons were faued, some of which the Spanis Fleet lost their Ship on those Rockes, and seventie persons were faued, some of which Seamife Emba- had beene rifled, but their money to the value of one hundred and fortie pound reffored them by 60 habor alloyr the Gouernours meanes : into whose hands they committed it for disbursment of their charges. the Gouernours meanes; into whose hands they committed it for disbursment of their charges, ging the fame. Some were sent away, others forced to stay till their labours had procured meanes for their partitle counts. 115 WIS MANI- Tage. Her made meanes to get out of the Wrack two Sakers, and three Murtherers, which were the fame which Cap. Kendall had fold to Cap. Kerby, who was taken by two men of War of Carthagena, most of his men slaine or hanged, hee wounded died in the Woods, as these Spaniards related. Three Bulwarkes were raifed at Southampton Fort, with two Curtens and two lauelens. Armes were diffributed to all fuch as were able to vie them.

The Weauelis (which had at this time much hurt their Corne) found a strange remedy. For a Weauelis cure. proclamation being made that all Corne should be gathered by a day, because many had lost some for want of gathering, it Il haunting the Ships for Aqua-vita and Beere; some bad husbands hafilly gathered it, and threw it on heapes in their houses vnhusked, fo letting it lye foure or fine moneths. Now the good husbands husked theirs, and hanged it vp with much labour, where the Flies did blow it, which the others idlenesse, as the event shewed, prevented, that being thus so found to be the best way to faue the corne and labour, to let it lye in the huske. Divers places of fresh-water were now also luckily found out. Another triall of whale-fishing was vainely attempted by a Ship which came from Unginia, who returned thither fraught with Lime-flone. 20000. pound weight of Potatos, &c.

Aprill and May were spent in building a Prison, and perfecting some Fortifications, and soure Sakers were gotten from the Spanift Wrack, and mounted at the Forts. One was hanged for buggering a Sow, whose Cock in the time of his imprisonment vsed also to tread a Pig, as if it had beene a Hen, till the Pig languished and died, and then the Cock haunted the same Sow. About the same time two Chickens were hatched, one of which had two heads, the other is said to have crowed loud and huftily within twelve houres after it was out of the shell. Other Peeces

20 were got out of the Spanish Wrack, and a Saker also out of that of Sir George Summers. By a Barke going to Unginia, Captaine Bailer, his time expiring, conveied himselfe thither. leaving the government to C. Felgate C. Stokes, &c. In the Kings Caffle were mounted, or fufficient platformes, inteen Peeces of Ordnance. In Charles Fort two, in Southampton Fort five, betwixe Forts & Orda which & the Castle passeth the channel into the Harbor, secured by twenty three Peeces of good Ordnance. In Compille is Pembrookes Fort, with two Peeces. Saint Georges channell is guarded by Smiths Fort and Payers Fort, in which are eleuen Peeces. Saint Georges Towness commanded by Warnicks Fort, with three great Peeces, on the Wharfe before the Gouernours house are eight more, besides the warning Peece by the Mount, and three in Saint Katherines; in all tenne Fortresses, and fiftie two Peeces of Ordnance sufficient and serviceable. Hee left one thousand 30 five hundred persons, and neere one hundred Boates, the He replenished with provisions, fruites, poultry, &c.

Malter Iohn Bernard, was fent by the Honourable Company to supply his place, who arrived Governours within eight daves of Captaine Butlers departure, with two Ships, and one hundred and fortie Paffengers, with Armes and all forts of Munition and other prouifions. During his life (which continued but fixe weekes) hee gaue good proofe of his sufficiency in reforming things defective. M.Harrifon He and his wife were both buried in one day, and one graue : and Master lobn Harrison chosen Gonernour till further order came from London,

The Wormes before mentioned are still troublesome, and make them morning workes to bill Wormes noythem. Caterpillers are pernicious to their fruits, and Land Crabs are as thicke in some places, as 40 Conies in a Warren, and doe much harme. A Ship in which had beene much fwearing and blafpheming yfed all the voyage, perished; the companies negligence iovially frolicking in their cups and Tobacco (hauing landed certaine goods) by accident the Powder fired, and blew up the great Cabbin; some were taken up in the Sea, living in miserable torments, eighteene were lost with this tatall blaft, the Ship also lunke, with fixtie Barrells of Mealesent for Virginia, and her other provisions loft. The Company have fent Captaine Woodboufe in a Ship called the Tigre for that gouernment, a man much commended and hopefull. I have beene told that there are three thoufand persons of all forts living there, halfe of which number is able to beare Armes, and exercifed to that fernice.

M. Bernard

1622.

CHAP. XIX.

Briefe intelligence from Virginia by Letters, a Supplement of French-Virginian Occurrants, and their supplantation by Sir SAMVEL ARGAL, in right of the English Plantation,

He late alteration of Firginia Gouernment is vnknowne to none; and most know of the frequent complaints, both by prinate Letters, and by Petitionsto his Ma-ietly. Now leaft any fhould hereupon thinke Virginia to be vinovity of fuch our care and coft; I have out ofton of the Planters private Letters transfried a few words of gricuances, and yet a magnifying of the Country, that the English may be more blamed for want of Proudence, then the Region for defect of Natures beft more blamed for want of Prouidence, then the Region for defect of Natures best gifts. Other things I could alleadge from others, but my meaning is to amend things not to quarrell them, and to awaken the care of good men, rather then to recite the faults of the bad. In one Letter, dated Dec. 22 last past, he hatn these words :

dayfor a workter) befides meate and lodging.

The intollerable rates we pay here for commodities, as ten pound sterling a hog shead of Meale, sixteen He mentions Shillings a gallon of Alligant, three pound sterling a Henne and eight Chickens, Go. and so according to in other letters thefe rates for every thing elfe : lastly, the beaut taxations that are laid upon us free men, for building 3.s.a pound of of Castles, paying of publique debts, for the not gathering of Sasafras, GC. So that it will come to my Butter, 6.d. rea Bare, with that is paid, and that that is to pay in Corne and Tobacco, to at least twenty or fine and pinte of Milke, twenty pound sterling, this yeere; so that when I have paid this, and paid my faithlesse servants their wages. 10 20112.5.2 I shall carle bane good Tobacco enough left to buy my selfe for the next yeer a pint of Aquanita to. This you fee (I neither warrant, nor except against the truth, but present the worst quarelled paralel- to led with the best) complaints of great prizes of things, not arising from plenty of money as you reade before in the conquest of Pera, but from I know not what ill habit and indisposition of that Colony. And least any man should withdraw his heart, hand, or purse therefore from that worthy work, I have out of the fame mans Letters delivered a commendation of the Countrey. The Letters were written, and dated 22. March 1624, and containe for subflance none other then what before you have read in others; yet are more furable to this time and purpose, as later newes and fitter directories to the Philitians of that Effate ; that at laft the English honour may he windicated against to base perils from Sauages, and baser quarrels from and among st our owner. God profper his Maiesties care, and make those which are therein emploied not to feeke their owne good by hasty returnes, much lene other their fellow adventurers enill by calumnies and 20 underminings, but Virginias prosperity; of which, Natures prosperity is thus related by one querulous of his owne loffes and croffes. His words are there :

Now concerning the state of the Country, so much as I have observed, I will relate unto you : First the Countrie it felfe, I must confesse is a very pleasant Land, rich in Commodities, and fertile in soyle to produce all manner of Plants, Hearbes, and Fruites. I have seene here my selfe both Carrets, Turneys, Cabares, Onjons, Leekes, Garlicke, Tyme, Parfeley, Pompions, Muskmilion, and Watermilions rare fruits and exceeding wholesome, here are also Stramberries; I have lien downe in one place in my Corne field. and in the compasse of my reach have filled my belly in the place : and for Mulberries. I can when I list goe and gather a bufhell at a time : here is also a coole Fruite growing wildely on the ground, much refembling a great Walnut with the greene rinde on it, which refernes in it three admirable good tastes namely 30 of Stramberries, Rosewater, and Sugar, they were an exceeding great comfort to me in my last yeares sick-neffe, and are admirable good against the blondly fluxe.

English Wheate and Barley will grow here exceeding well; I have feene here growing as good Englift Wheate as ener I faw in England in all my life. For Timber we have the Oake, Ashe, Poplar, blacke Walnut, white Walnut, Pines, Gumme trees; the Pines bere afford admirable good Pitch and Tarre, and ferme, fplit out in small peeces, in many places of this Land instead of Candles; but it will smeare one world then a Linke; here are also leave treet which yearely bring forth Peares. But there is a tree that passible all Fruite trees, which we call by the names of a Prissurmon tree, which beareth a Plum much about the biqueffe of a Peare plum, I doe thinke it is one of the rarest Fruites in the world; when they are ripe they eate naturally of themselves from the tree better then any preserved Plummes I ever tasted in Eng- 40 land. The Beafts that this Land is plentifully stored withall are Deere, Beares in some parts, Beaucrs, Otters, Foxes, Hares, Squirrels, Roccounes, Poffucins, names strange to you, yet are they singular good meate; the Roccouns tasting as well as Pigges fielb. Indian Dogges here are as good meate with vs as your English Lambe. English Cattell bere increase and thrine very well, as Kine, Hogges, Gostes, and Poultry. Fowle bere are abundance, as Swans, Brants, Geefe, Turkies, Herons, Cranes, Eagles, fishing Hawkes, Bussards, Ducke and Mallard, Sheldrake, Dapchicke, Partriches, Pidgeons, Crowes, Blacke-birds, and all manner of small Birds in abundance. Our Rivers here are likewise rich by the abundance of Fish, as Herings, Shads, Perch, Eele, Pike, Carpe, Cat-fish, Rock-fish, Gor-fish, and Sturgeon. If here were any that would make filhing for Sturgeon an occupation they might take inough to furnish this Land, and also plentifully supply England. I my selse have seene aboue twenty Sturgeon leape 4- 50 bone water in leffe then two houres. As for our Graine, I thinke it produceth the plentifullest encrease of any Corne in the World; for I have seene one graine of Corne, that by the assistance of growth and time, bath yeelded a pint of Corne: we have here also Beanes and Pease.

I confesse bere are plentie of all those things I have set before you, but all the craft is in catching them; for be that will get any game, wift be a wary and a well eyed flost, and to prop his profession, he wast addo great care and vigilance, both in defending himfelfe and winning his game. It hath beene often frome in this Land, that whilest an Englishman hath beene winning bis game, an Indian bath dogd bim, attending his opportunitie by the others discharge to fill him full of Arrowes. Since the Maffacre they have killed us in our owne doores, fields, and boufes: thus are we not fafe neither at bome nor abroads and (which grieues me to write) our safetie is lessened by our malice one to another, for the mell part alloge-63 ther neglecting the common enemie. I my felfe and my wife are by some secret enemies much wronged for I am Shauen fo bare, that I bane scarse either Garter, Girdle, Stocking, or Shirt left; all my wearing Cloather likewife are sorne and tattered, I can accuse no man, and they that thewise doe it grunte b), and which grieves me most of all, they strine by base and instructing meanes to clip the wings, as well of my prosperitie as of my reputation; yet I hope God will give me patience to beare, and in his good time give me a jorfull delinerance in the middest of all these miseries. Whilest I was a writing these lines, newes was brought me of the killing of one, and the carrying away prisoner of another of my neighbours, by the Indians : one was an old Virginian, and one who for a long time was Sir Thomas Dale his Onerfeer in this Land, his name was Master Henry Watkins: and but two daies agoe there was another that had his braines beaten out by the Indians, in the next Plantation to vs. Wherefore with a fad and fortowfull heart I take my leave of you deere Father, Mother, Sifters, Brethren, and all the rest of my kinde and loning friends; for the cafe stands fo with vs here, that if wee goe out in the morning, wee know not whether wee shall ever returne; working with our Hoe in one hand, and our Peece or Sword in to the other, c.

CHAP.19. Virginias good & euill. Frenchmen and their fortunes in Virginia. 1807

And now from latest intelligence you have notice of the good and euill, as becommeth a faithfull Hiltorian, requid non veri andeat, nequid vers non andeat; It is good to know the worst, to preuent it : forewarned, forearmed, Early you may lee that the good things of Virginia are naturall and her owne, the bad accidentall and our owne; and confequently if wee amend our felues, Virginia will foone be amended. The body there is found; to cut the haire, avoide the excrements, paire the nailes, waih away fweate and dust, and to cure other like accidents of negligence, or impenitent and vnprofitable diligence, is a worke feafible and facile also to induttrious and vizatimous workemen. One thing touching the French (whole Plantations are before recited) remaineth, that we take away all foruple from feare of suspected neighbours. I shall 20 therefore adde a little more touching them, the conclusion of their Virginian Plantation in a double fenie. As for the English right to these parts, the next Chapter will shew, and consequently the Iustice of Sir Samuell Argali act. The Patents to Sir Humfry Gilbert, and to Sir Walter Raleigh, and their actuall possession before these latter Plantations may be alleadged likewise against the French. Their things I have collected out of Sit William Alexanders Encouragement to Colonics;

Lescarbot hath also related them.

The Marquesse de la Roche, by a Commission from Henry the fourth, intending a Voyage for Canada, happened by the way upon the He of Sablon (which is now comprehended within the Patent of new Scotland) and there (trusting to the strength of the place, where there are no Satages at all) landed some of his men, till he should have found a convenient place within the maine Carteregalia ao Land fit for a habitation, promiting then to returne for them. But it was his fortune, by reason to those parts of contrary winde, never to finde the Maine Land, but he was blowne backe to France without Ant 500, and feeing of them, where he was in the time of the civill warres (fuch is the vncertainty of world- another 1501 ly things) taken prisoner by the Duke of Mercant, and shortly after died; so that his people After that his whom he had left at Sablon, furnished but for a short time, had quickly spent their proussons, habothios. Gen uing for their maintenance onely such things as the place it selfe did without labour freely afford; mes another which hath a race of Cowes, as is thought, first transported thither by the Portugals, that have Portugal lought long continued there: they had likewise there growing wilde, of this which wee call Turkey straus ther. tong commerce unter Tutty in intervence tasts growing here abundance of Fishes, with Venifon, and (naumg no meanes to liue but by fport) as for their Apparell, they cloathed themfelues with and was called the Skins of Fuch treatures as they could kill by Land or Sea 1 to that haung liued there for the galaction for the galactic or t fpace of 12, years; when they were prefented to King Henry, who had hired a Fisherman to bring des. to S. Lasthem home, as I have heard from them that did tee them at first before the King, they were in rence. very good health, and looked as well as if they had lived all that time in France: having bin abuiled by the Fisherman, who cunningly conceiling that he had bin directed by the King, did bargaine with them to haueall their Skins for transporting them home, which were of great value. fome of them being of blacke Foxes, which have bin fould at fiftie pound sterling a peece and aboue: for the recourry thereof they intended a Processe against him before the Court of Parliament at Paris, wherein they prevailed, gaining by that meanes a flocke wherewith to traffique in these parts againe.

Monfieur de Montes betaking himfelfe to trade for Furs, Monfieur Pourrincourt resoluing 50 to projecute the Plantation at that place fent his fonne Biencourt to France, to bargaine with some that would fend them a supply, such as was requisite for establishing of that

The first that embraced his propositions were the Isfaires, who as they have ordinarily good Islaires, wits which made them the rather capable of fo advantagious a project, fo they were the more animated thereunto by vpbraiding the lazinelle of our Clargie, to thew with what feruency they travelled to propagate the Gospell, in doing whereof (whether it be ambition or devotion that prouokes them) sparing no paines, they have trau lled both to the East and West Indies, and to the admired Kingdome of China. Their fociety in France, prenailing with all that had any in-60 clination either to zeale or to vertue, did easily gather a voluntary contribution for the furthering of so commendable a purpose. Thereafter they sent away two Fathers of their Company, with a new tupply of all things necessary to the Plantation at Port Regall, but shortly after their arrivall (their predominant disposition hardly yeelding to any superiour, specially if it be a fewlar power) they began to contradict Pourtrincourt in the execution of those decrees which had bin sigen forth by him, as civill Magistrate of that place : whereupon the Gentleman extreamely discontented, and weary or contesting with him; having taid that it was his part to rule them vpon earth, and theirs enely to guide him the way to heaven, he returned backe to France. leauing his Sonne Biencourt in his place. Who being a youth at that time of more courage then circumfpectnesse, diddaning to be controlled by them whom he had enuited thither, and scorning their insupportable prefumption, ving spiritual armes for temporal ends, and an imperious kinds of carriage, who onely for spleene had excommunicated and branded him with a foirituall centure; he threatned them by his temporall power with a more palpable punishment. So that after much controuerie, reloluing to ieparate themselves, the two lessites taking a part of that aret much controlled, sent from thence to a place in new England, called by them Mount to Defart, where they feated themselves; and having a supply from the Queene Mother did plant fundry Fruit trees of the most delicate kindes in France, such as Apricockes and Peacher neuer intending to remove from thence.

was the Gountnot of Zirginia andt him.

teffeize killed.

At this time Sir Samuel Argall being then Gouernor of Firginia, coasted along t new Engl that Sir I.Dale land to traitique and diffeour, or to acquire things necessiry for the Southerne Colony in these parts, where the lands are reputed to be more fertil, and the Seas more frequented, & did conceine by a description made vnto him by the Sauages, that there were fome come from this part of the World to inhabit there; and being lealous of any thing that might derogate from the honour.or proue prejudiciall to the benefit of his Nation, where their interest in this was easie to be apprebended; he went whereas he was informed that they were, and his vnexpected arrivall, as it would feeme, not onely amazed the mindes of the French, but likewife preuenting their preparation and refolution; he approached so neere to a Ship that lay before their Fort, that hee beate them all that were therein with Musket shot from making any vie of their Ordnance, faue one of the two lefuites, who was killed in giving fire to a Peece: Having taken the Ship, they landed and went before the Fort, fummoning them that were therein to yeelde themselves, who at the first made some difficulty, asking a time to adusse; but that being refused, they privately abandoned the Fort, flealing out by some backe way into the Woods, where they flaied one night, and the next day comming backe, rendered themselues to Sir Samuel Argall, who had lodged all that night within the Fort, giving vp the Patent they had from the French King to be cancelled. He yied them very curteoully, as their owne Writers doe make mention, fulfring fuch as had a 30 minde to goe for France, to feeke out Fishers Ships wherein they might be transported; the rest that were willing to goe for Unginia went thither alongst with him; no man having lost his life but onely that one lefute, who was killed whilft they made resistance, during the time of the conflict. Thereafter Father Biard, the other of the lefuites, comming backe from Virginia with Sir Samuell Argall, out of the indigestable malice that he had conceived against Biencourt, did informe him where he had planted himselfe, offering (as he did) to conduct him thither. As soone as they were entered within the Fort, neere the uppermost of the llands, Sir Samuel directed the Ship to ride at a reasonable distance to attend occasions before the Fort did land himselfe with forty of the best of his men upon a Meddow, where immediately they leard a peece of Ordnance from the Fort, and he conceiving fince it was flot whilft it could doe no harme, that it 40 was done either but to give terrour to them, or to warne some that might happen to be abroad, did make the greater haite towards the Fort, where he presently entered, finding it abandoned without any men at all left for the defence thereof. He went vp the Riuer fide fiue or fix miles, where he faw their Barnes, and the ground where a great quantity of Wheate had grown, which he carried with him to proue for Seede in Virginia: he faw also their corne Milne very conveniently placed, which together with the Barneshe left standing vintouched. As for the Fruit it felfe he deftroied it downe to the ground, racing the Frencharmes, and leaung no Monument that might remaine to witnesse their being here. After this, Biencourt, who had been for ewhere abroad trauelling through the Countrey com-

ming home, defired to conterre with Sir Samuel Argall, who did meete with him a part from the 50 company upon a meadow: and after they had exposulated a space for what had past controllerting concerning the French and English, little to thele bounds, at last Biencourt offered, if hee might have a protection from him, to depend upon our King, and to draw the whole Furres of that Countrey to one Port, where he would divide them with him; as likewise hee would show him good mettalls, whereof he gaue him pieces, the other refused to lovne in any locietie with him, protefting that his Commission was onely to displant him, and that if hee found him there thereafter hee would vie him as an enemy. Biencourt labouring earneflly to have had the letter, as he confessed, with a purpose to hang him. Whilest they were discouring together, one of the Sauzges rushing fuldenly forth from the Woods, and licentiated to come neere, didafter his manner, with fuch broken French as he had earneftly mediate a peace, wondring why they that 60 feemed to be of one Country, should vie others with such hostilitie, and that with such a torme of habit and gefture as made them both to laugh.

After Biencourt remouing from thence to some other, Monsieur Champlein, who had flued long here, did carry a company with him from France of fome fortie perions or there bouts, vp the River of Canada whom hee planted on the North fide thereof, with a purpose to sue for a Factory, drawing all the trade of that farre running River, within the hands of a few whom he doth command, which a Plantation would have dispersed in many parts, other wise, if his deireshad beene bended that way, hee might have planted many people there ere now the blace is called Keberk, where the French doe prosper well, having Corne by their owne labour, which may furnish themselves for foode, and likewile for a stocke to traffique with the Sauages, with fundry other Fruites, Rootes, Vine grapes and Turkey Wheates. Champlein hath discouered the River of Canada from the Gulfe vpwards about 1200. miles, finding in it fometimes fuch fals as he must carry his Boate a little way by land, and then put it in againe. He did many times to come to great Lakes, at the end whereof he did alwaies finde a River againe : and the last Lake where he came was a very huge one, sudged to be three hundred miles in length; by the report The South Sea of Come Sauages, who did affirme vnto him, that at the further end thereof they did finde Salt Suspected (as of tome sanages, who did amine which think that the far the think the total they did need to before in Der-water, and that they had feene great Vesfels; which made Champlein believe that a passage might before in Der-mers keep by be there to the Bay of California, or to some part of the South Sea, which would prove an ineftimable benefit for the Inhabitants of these parts; opening a neere way to China, which hath bin tions. to many fundry wayes with fo great charges fo long fought for. Howfeeuer, in regard of the Geston, and for want of necessary proussions, Champleine did returne backe at that time, with a purpoje to goe againe another yeare: which it hee hath done is not yet knowne. but this is most certaine, that the River of Canada hath a long course, and through many goodly 20 Countries : fome of these great Lakes, by fending forth, or by receiving great Rivers, doe afford meanes of commerce as farre as to some parts of Terra Florida, as may be gathered by Champleines

Hus bane I given thee Others transells to Virginia and the Summer Hands, I will conclude with mine owne trancils for them. I fee many likely to bee disheartened by the stender growth of the Vitginian Plantation, which for the time might have beene not onely a fafe , but a rich and bleffed Mother of a unmerous thriwing generation, branching farreinto other Colemies; and yet is 1 But noy de l'inter-cept your eyes and dissert your thempts; (suffend them at best) from that which for my Countries good, and zeale to Virginia, without partial reflect on the right band or on the left, with a candid right band I 30 bere present, and forbid all finister bands to meddle with ? Troe Tyriusve mihi --- I fide no where, but embrace Virginia with a right bears, my pen directed, my bands erected for her good, which can doe mee no other good, but in reference to the publike, whose I am and whom under God and his Maiestie I serne and observe with all that I have, am, and can. I had written it as a traffate by it selfe, at the request of some worthy friends, but here have abridged it in some such things at the other parts of these Va-

CHAP. XX.

Virginias Perger: Or a Discourse shewing the benefits which may grow to this Kingdome from American English Plantations, and specially those of Virginia and Summer Hands.

difcouery, &c.

Od is the beginning and end, the Alpha and Omega, that first and last, of whom and for whom are all things. The first and last thing therefore in this Virginian are gument considerable, is God; that is, whether we have Commission him to consider the plantation may bring glogine bims. This in regard of v. and our scope; That in regard of it, and the lawfulnesse thereof. To begin with this; In the beginning God created beauer and earth (all things therefore are his by the market of the considerable and the considerable and the strength of both which Man. God in Man. and for whom are all things. The first and last thing therefore in this Virginian ar- 'Ex Aids aga

a higher name then right, this rule and the things ruled, being his creatures) of both which Man God in Man onely among t Vitible creatures was created capable, which Mofes deliuereth in thefe words, that Gini. 1. God ereated him after his owne Image: which is spoken not onely of the foirituall, immortall substance of his foule, whose vnity shineth with that created Trinicy of Vnderstanding, Will, Memory, in it felfe; and that of Vegetation, Senfe, Reafon, exercised in and by bodily motion; but more especially in regard of the Creator, a contormity to him in righteousnesse the bolinesse of truth (the whole Est. 4,24) Man finning with a borrowed light, as the Moone is the image and reflexion of the Sunne) and in regard of the Creature, a suit dominion oner the fame, as the holy words manifest; repleniff the Earth and Subducit, and have dominion over the Fish of the Sea, and over the Fowle of the agre, and 60 oner every lining thing that moueth upon the earth. Although Mans rebellion had torfeited this Naturall Charter, yet was the same in the repeopling of the World renewed to Noah and his Sons, General which ever fince have beene in actuall posteffion; and as Adam gave names (as humaine earemarks) to he lining creatures; to Noabs heires have fince given names to Seas and Lands, and other creatares a me thorow the knowne World. Neither did the Fall of Man to cracke this earthen welfell,

E/4:53.

A 100 . 2 T .

3. COT. 15.

that of Heathens to the world.

See thefe

5.3,4.5.

180.8.31.36.

There avo-

TOXALTO,

Heathens.

Gal. 3. 17.

Matth. S.

John 19.36.

2. Cor. 10. 4.

Matth, 16.

14d. S.

Ishn 19.11.

Rom.13.1.

Gen. 110

Alls 17. 27.

1.Cor. 3.

g.Cor.13.

Matthe 5.

1. Pet. 3.

Tit. I.

T.Tim. 1. 6. Christians

that all his created excellence ran out: for neither were the fubitance or faculties of the foule extinct, nor his prerogative over the visible creatures (the spirituall creature naturally excelling the bodily, and the realonable and living, the femitive, vegetative and torpid:) these received a wound, the other (his spiritual and religious conformitie in these to God) as a purer water of the pureft life, ran forth irrecouerably; and as our naturall parts were weakned and wounded, so of thole supernaturall wee were veterly robbed; till that good Samaritan vndertooke the restitution of that in redemption, whereunto in creation he had given first institution, God bash laid open him the immutie of us all, and in his stripes wee are bealed; our Charter is renued and now made to compleat, that whereas the deuills thought to rob man of Earth and Paradife, Hee which taketh the mile in his craftinelle hath reftored him : nay (that is little) hath added Heaven Himfelfe : that as 10 the /fraelites entred upon the houses, Caties and possessions of the curied Canaanites, fo Chriftians into those Thrones and celefiall Dominions, which those spiritual Thrones and Dominions loft, and there have God himselfe and the Lambe to be their Temple and All in all vnto them

Hence is it that Christians (luch as have the Grace of the Spirit of Christ, and not the profes. Chaftiens and fion of his merit alone) have and hold the world and the things thereof in another tenure where. of Hypocrites and Heathens are not capable. These have onely a Naturall right, by the reliques of the Law of Nature left in Man, by the Creators goodnesse, for the conservation of the face of a world in the world ; the fame further improved with a warrantization, Contra ownes genes (our enidences dialect) by the Law of Nations vnto Nations, and Lawes Politicke and Civill in each 20 fully handled Nition, allotting to the members thereof the publike and private civill rights and tenures, which in Te. I.bid.I. either publike or prinate, perfons or corporations, held therein.

This tenure comparatively that Christian , is by our Lord himselfe called a tenure in villenage, that of formes : the fermant hath his time and abides not in the bowle for ever : but the forme is berrein fee simple (fide simplici) for euer. Neither yet is it lawfull for Christians, to vsurpe the goods and lands of Heathens; for they are villains not to vs; but to our and their Lord; nor hath the fonne in nonage power to dripoffesse villaines : nor are wee sonnes by nature, but by adoption, and a later E langelical Charter which doth not disannul the former (the Truth, or Word of the may not ipoile Gospel receiued by Faith, makes wi free) free Tenants to our Lord, not Lordly subuerters of others tenures; which may with a good conscience vie our owne (all things to the pure or pure, 30 which others cannot, whose conscience being pitchy, all things it toucheth, are defiled) and not, as fome haue turned libertie into licentiousnesse, with a bad conscience take away that which is anothers. Christ same not to deftroy the Law, of which one Commandement is, Thou halt not fieale: My Kingdome, faith hee, is not of this world, and therefore properly medleth not with proprietie and civill interests. The weapons of our warfare, faith Saint Paul, are not carnall but spirituall, and the Keyes fo much boasted on by Peters pretended Successors, are called Keyes of the Kingdome of Heauen; la wfull keyes, not threuish picklocks; of Heauen, not of Earth. And it is remarkable that neither Pope nor Anabaptist (the troubles of Ifrael with worse then Heathenish conceits in this kind) euer inverted or interverted Scepters, till they had denied the very Christian name which they received in B. ptilme; nor diffifed government till they were twice dead, nor pro- 40 mifed this liberiie to others, till themselnes were the sernants of corruption. Euen a Malefactor, a Traytor, a very Fanx, or Raniliac, is permitted to breath, yea is in prison, the Kings house (whereof no private hand may dispossesse him) maintained at the Kings charge, till judgement have palfed on him, which to the world is not till the end of the world, when Christ shall come to judge the quick and dead; who once fo respected the iurisdiction of Ethnickes, that himselse was thereby adjudged to the worst of sufferings, yea acknowledged that power given to Pilat from above. His Birthacknowledged Augustu his Edict, his Infancy fled Herods tyranny, his Man-hood payd Tiberine tribute, and his Death was Roman both in kind and fentence. Let euery foule be subiect to the big ber powers, yeel led those noble armies of Martyrs in the Primitive Church; the contrary whereof hath yeelded Massiues and Monsters in these last and worst dayes.

Therefore was Babels building in the East (and shall not Babel bable building in the West be) confounded that men might bee difperfed thorow the world, to take poffession of their inheritance : and God which faid, Replenif the earth, hith made of one bloud all Nations of men, to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times and bounds of their habitation. Hee gave Ar to the children of Los, and the Land of the Horims to Efans posteritie, though not with like circum-Deut. 2.9,19. flances as Canaan to I frael: and it was by speciall indulgence, that I frael both spoiled the Egrptions and differited the Canaantes. Let it bee enough, that Christ hath given vs our selves in the Lords service to bee a perfect freeman, the Vniuersein an vniuersall tenure, and Heaven in reverse on; that hath given his Sonne, doth give his Spirit, will give bimfelfe; that all things are ours, and wee Christs, and Christ Gads: without thoughts of inuation and viurpation, knowing that Chris 60 stian Charity Seeteth nos her owne things (much leffe obtrudes on others) and Christian libertie maketh liberall Saints of naturall men, not vnnaturall deuills of professed Saints. Our Light should to hime before others, that they may see our good workes, that they which know not the world, may bee men without the Word, in admiring our Christian conversation.

to make Sauges and wild degenerate men of Christians, but Christians of the Sauge, wild, degenerate men; to whom preaching must needs bee vaine, if it begins with publike Latrocinie. And this is fufficient to preuent scruple of the Popes Bul, which (if Bafan Buls rearing were enidenc.) maketh af wel against England, this being no less questionable then Virginia, Paul, Pius, Gregory Sixtus breathing as much fire against this, as Alexander for that. But what right can England then challenge to Virginia? I answere, that we would be loth to begin our right at wrong, either to Etanick or Christian : nor need we, having to manifold and just interests. First, as men, we have a resturall right to replenif the whale earth : to that if any Countrey be not possessed by other men, righting laces 10 which is the case of Summer Hands, and hath brene of all Countries in their first habitations) every either wholy man by Law of Nature and Humanitie hath right of Plantation, and may not by other after com- or in great mers be difpossessed, without wrong to human nature. And if a country be inhabited in some parts part not inhatherof, other parts remaining unpeopled, the tame reason giveth liberty to other men which want convenient habitation of feat themselves, where (without wrong to others) they may provide for themselves. For these have the same right vuto these latter parts, which the former had to the former:especially where the people is wild, and holdeth no tettled possession in any parts. Thus the holy Patriarks removed their habitations and pafturages, when those parts of the world were not vet replenished; and thus the whole world hath been planted and peopled with former and later Colonies: and thus Virginia nath roome enough for her own (were their numbers an hundred times I have heard

This should be, and in the most Aduenturers I hope is the scope of the Virginian Plantation, not

20 as many) and for others also which wanting at home, feeke habitations there in vacant places, with perhaps better right then the first, which (being like Cain, both Murtherers and Vaga- more searched bon is in their whatfoeger and howfoeger owne) I can fearfly call Inhabitants. To question this the Countrie right, were to accul- al nost all Nations which were rocked (for the most part) in no other cradle; then any other and to disappoint also that Divine Ordinance of replensshing the Earth, whose habitations other- Cap. Smith, wife would be like scattered Ilands in the Seas, or as the present Spanish Plantations in the Indies, so much as all fo diffe-ried and diffoyned that one cannot in any diffreffe fuccour another, and therefore are made England, they an eafier prey to every Inuader. Another right is that of Merchandile: Non omnia possumus omnes, bauenot about Nec vero terra ferre omnes omnia possunt ; God in manifold wisedome hath divelified every Coun- 5000 men able tries commodities, so that all are rich, and all poore; not that one should be bungry and another dran-30 ken, but that the whole world might be as one body of mankind, each member communicating red and civilly with other for publike good. He hath made this immutable decree in the mutabilitie of the Winds, planted might commodities & commodiouinesse of Seas, and Harbors, varietie of Baies and Reuers, multiplicity of well nourish all Mens both Necessities and Superfluities, and their univerfall defires of Nouelties. Thus Sa- 1500000, and lomon and Hiram had right to fayle ouer the Ocean, and to negotiate with the Ophirans more; as for Gommes, Gold, Ivory, and other commodities seruiceable for his peoples necessities, appeareth by for pompous Magnificence, and for the Temples Holies. And if hee did not plant Colonies this out c. unthere, you must remember that the lewift Pale was then standing, which prohibited voluntarie trie nor having remote dwellings, where each man was thrice a yeere to appeare before the Lord in Ierurill Inherifallem. Befides, it is a question whether the Countrey peopled so long before, had roome for tunce. 40 fuch Neighbours:

It is therefore yngodly, and inhumane also to deny the world to men, or like Manger-dogges chandise. (neither to eat hay themfelues, nor to fuffer the hungry Oxe) to prohibite that for others ha- 1.cer 11.214 bitation, whereof themselues can make no vie; or for merchandise, whereby much benefit accreweth to both parts. They which doe this, Tollunt è vita vita societatem, to vie Tullies Gen. 10. phrase, or hominem ex homine tollant, to borrow Saint Ieroms in another matter. The Barbarians themiciues by light of nature faw this, and gaue Ours kind entertainment in mutual cohabita- Rom. 2. 14tion and commerce : and they having not the Law were a Law to themselves, practically acknowledging this Law of Nature written by him, which is Natura naturans, in their hearts : from which if they fince have declined, they have loft their owne Naturall, and given vs another Nate tionall right; their transgression of the Law of Nature, which tieth Men to Men in the rights of Right Nation Natures commons, explains them (as a forfeited bond) to the challifement of that common nall: 144 gen-Law of mankind; and alto on our parts to the feneritie of the Law of Nations, which tyeth tiam, Nation to Nation. And if they bee not worthy of the name of a Nation , being wilde and Satage: yet as Slaues, bordering rebells, excommunicates and out-lawes are lyable to the punishments of Law, and not to the priviledges; So is it with thefe Barbarians, Boilderers and Outlawes of Humanity. Armatenenti, Omnia dat qui insta negat, If the Armes bee iuit, as in this case of vindicating vinaturall, inhumane wrongs to a louing and profitable Nation, entertained Lucan. voluntarily, in time of greatest pretended amity. On this quarrell David conquered all the Kingsome of the Ammounter and lett it on his interioristin many generations, not with flanding Mo- 2. Sam. 10.

for fee had otherwife left a speciall caution for their security, testifying that God had given it the fonnes of Lot, and prohibiting inuation to Ifrael, That natural right of cohabitation and commerce Deut, 2, 19 we had with others, this of init inuation and conqueit, and many others pranicus to this, we have aboue others; to that England may both by Law of Nature and Nations challenge Virginia for her Owne peculiar propriety, and that by all right and rites viual among it men, not those mentioned Mmmmmm alone but by others allo, first discovery, first actuall possession, prescription, gift, cession, and livery of feeting fale for price, that I mention not the naturall Inheritance of the English their naturally borne, and the vinaturall outcries of io many vinaturally murthered, for just vengeance of root-Englands manureldri hts ing out the authors and actors of to prodigious injuffice. to Prizinia.

First d:fcouery

Dec.Ontel.oc.

M.Thorne.

And first for discovery, the English, Spaniard, and Portugall seems the Triumuirs of the Worlds first discourries, the Spaniard and Portugall first opening the Eastern, Western, and Southern parts. the English the Northern America, and all known parts thence to the North & Northeast, I could bring authority for King Arthurs conquests, about 1000. yeers fince in Island, Gronland, Estotiland: but I reare this would feeme too weake a foundation, and (which lyers get by lying) discredit our other authorities lesse suspicious; how soeuer Authors of best note in Geography alledge those, to which reverence of the truth makes me let paffe. And fo I doe King Malgo toone after him, and Saint Brandon, and the Friar of Oxford (which A. 1360. is faid to discouer to the Pole) and Owen Gwined Prince of North Wales his fonne Madock, A. 1170. which conneyed a Colony, as learned men thinke into the Well Indies. In all Antiquities, as Varro observed, there are some. things fabrilous (to I deeme the former) fomething vincertaine, as this last; and fomethings Hiforicall, as that which we shall deliver. Robert Thorne in a Booke to Doctor Leigh writesh, that his father with another Merchant of Bristol, Hugh Eliot, were the first discouerers of the New-foundlands; and it the Mariners would have beene ruled by their Pilot, the Lands of the West Indies from whence the Gold commeth had beene ours. What yeere this happened he expresses not; Sit Seb Cabola. but the words import that it was before Columbia his discovery. And before Columbia his discover- 20 ry of the continent, Sir Schastian Cabot, at the charges of K. Henry the feuenth, with two Caruels, the prime galin the years 1496. (10 mm felte, in Ramufie; the Map with his preture in the Privy Gallery hath Holland he'e 1407.) lailed to the New-found Lind, which he called Prima Vista, and the lland S. lobis, because it was discouered on the Feath of S. John Baptist; from whence he failed Northerly to 67 deg, and a words.Efficies halte, hoping by that way to paffe to Cathan, but his mutinous company (terrified haply with Set. Cabour Aa-Ice and cold) forced his returne, which hee made along the Coast toward the Equinc tiall, to gli fily loanais the part of the firme land now called Florida, and then his victualls failing, he returned into Eng-Cabote Veneti, militis aurati, land, where by occasion of warres with Scotland, the imploiment was laid aside. Atterwards the &c. he was born at Venice, fame Sir Sebaitian Cabot was fent, A. 1516. by King Henry the eight, together with Sir Thomas Pert Viceadmitall of England, which after coatting this Continent the fecond time, as I haue read, 30 7. r. z. gu.o. was accounted discovered the Coast of Brafil, and returned from thence to S. Domingo and Puerto Rico. Now Columbis his first discourry of the Hands, was in $492. of the Continent in his third voyage in Au-Englifb, &c. guft, 1497. or as others, 1498. fo that counting most fauourably for Columbus, Cabot had disco-

Sir Seb.Cab. Grand Pilot of England.

he was borne hundred fixtie fixe pound thirteene shallings foure pence) in which voyage Greeneland was difcouered (neither is there any other Willoughbys Land to be found, but in erroneous Maps) and the Ruffian Empire by the North Cape, and the Bay of Saint Nicolas. But for Virginia, as it was then discouered by Sir Seb. Cabot, loit received that name from our Virgin-Mother, Great Elizabeth: in whose time formal & actual possession was taken for her Maiesty, the thirteenth of July, 1584. by Captain Philip Amadu, and Captain Barlow, whom Sir Walter Raleigh had fent thither with prescription. two Barkes furnished , who also the next yeere, 1,84. Sent Sir Richard Greenevile with seven fayle, which there left an English Colony under the government of M. Ralph Lane. A. 1586, hee fent another Ship of one hundred Tuns thither for their reliefe : but the Colony being returned in Sir Francis Drukes Fleet, thee returned also. Sir Richard Greenevile also about a fortnight after of their departure arrived with three Ships, and not finding the Colonie, left fifteene men to keepe poslession, furnished with prouision for two yeeres.

uered the Continent in Luie next before; by one reckoning aboue a yeere, by another aboue two yeeres before. And indeed that New World might more fitly haue borne his name, then America of Americus vesputius, or of Columbus, Cabot having discovered farre more of that Continent then they both, or any man else in those Seas: to wit, from 67. degrees and an halfe to the Line, and

Hee also was the principall mover in the setting forth of Sir Hugh Willoughby, in King Edwards time (vnder whom he was constituted Grand Pilot of England, with the annuall stipend of one 40

from thence Southerly to the River of Plate.

The names of A.1587 Six Walter Raleigh lent a new Colony of one hundred & fifty persons, with three faile, about 100, are a Ship of one hundred and twenty Tuns, a Fly-boat and a Pinnace. Her appointed twelve Affiextant in M. Stants to the Gouernour, and incorporated them by the name of Governour and Affisiants of the Back 3. Tome. Citie of Raleigh in Virginia. To thele, Sir Walter Raleigh fent succour five severall times, the last by Samuel Mace, 1602. An. 1603, the Bristow men fent thither, by leave of Sir Walter Raleigh, in which Expedition was Mafter Robert Saltern , who the yeere before had beene with Cap. Bart. Gofnold. And thus are wee come to the beginning of his Maiettes gracious raigne, when the North and South Plantations were by new Patents eagerly pursued, the one from hence, the o- 62 ther from the Well parts of England. Mawoofhen and other parts, were many yeeres vilited by our men, and An. 1607. 2 Plantation fetled at Sagadabor, by two Ships fent by that wife and feuere Luftice Sir Iohn Popham and others : the fuccesse whereor hath been such, that from the North Plantation it hath beene dignified with the Title of New England. And for the Southerne parts,

A. 1606. 2 Colony went from hence, fet forth by the Virginia Company, which have ever fince maintained their Plantation in differing fortunes. As for the former Plantations of Sir Walter Raleigh, some children were borneto them there: and whether they line, they continued the Two somes posteffion; orif the Sauages dealt perfidioully with them (as Pombatan confessed to Cap. Smith. Colonies that hee had beene at their flaughter, and had divers vtenfills of theirs to flew) their carkaffes, wholly, &c. the disperied bones of their and their Countrey mens since murthered carkaffes, haue taken a mortall immortall possession, and being dead, speake, proclaime and cry, This our earth is truly English, and therefore this Land is suftly yours O English.

Thus have we discouered the English right by Discouery, Possession, Prascription; to which we no may adde, that none other Nation hath once adventured to fettle in those parts, nor scarce to view them ; yea the French and Spanish Plantations in Florida , Virginias Southerne neighbour, foone ended in bloudy mafficres, the Spanis cruelly " murthering the Fronth , under the conduct of Pedro Melendes, which An. 1567, was repaid them by Dominique de Gorgues, the acquitiance written with his f word in Spani boloud : Florida euer fince expecting civilizing from her first difcoursers the English : which is further ratified by the former Spanish disafters in the Expeditions of Pamphilo de Nauarez, 1527, and of Soio, 1537, into Florida : which two iourneyes confumed neere one thouland men therein imployed : besides other Expeditions of Ponce de Leon and others mentioned by Vega and the Spanifo Authors.

Now for voluntary subjection of the Natiues, giving themselves and their lands to the Crown 30 of England, M. Ralph Lane hath testified for the first Colonie, that Menatonon their King by his fernice to the Mc Inger, & with him twentie foure principal men fent from Okisko King of Weopomiok his Val- English. fall, formally acknowledged Her Maielty as feruants and homagers to her, and vnder her to Sir W. R. For the lait Plantation by the present Patent of His Maiefty , Paspehay, one of their Kings fold visland for Copper, and Powbatan the chiefe Lord of all the Sauages, with thirty nine Werowances, have yeelded to more then formes and circumftances of homage, besides contributi- Right by buy? on, having also actually sold for Copper by him received of Cap. John Smith, and made voluntary ing & selling a ceffion of as much as the English defired, going away with his people to leave it to the English and by ceffion onely. This purchase was much increased by Sir Thomas Dale, and for whatsoever else which he Right by Forheld, hee accepted a Copper Crowneas Vaffall to His Maiesty: which also hee really performed feiture, 30 for a time, how loener (ince they have beene perfidious. And this perfidiousnesse of theirs hath further warranted the English Title. Temperance and Infice had before kiffed each other, and feemed to bleffe the cohabitations of English and Indians in Virginia. But when Virginia was violently ranished by her owne ruler Natines, yea her Virgin cheekes dyed with the bloud of three Colonies (that of Sir R. Greenevile, that of Sir W. R. both confessed by themselves, and this last butchery intended to all, extended to so many hundreths, with so immaine, inhumane, doublish treachery) that I speake not of thousands otherwise mis-caring here and mis-carrying there, taking possession of Virginia by their facts, and fates, by so manifold losses adding to the price of Fatalloostess. Viremias purchase : Temperance could not temper her selfe, yea the stupid Earth seemes distem. on. pered with such bloudy potions and cries that shee is ready to spue out her Inhabitants : Iustice ao cive h to G o D foe vengeance, and in his name adjureth Prudence and Fortitude to the execution.

The Holy Patriarks had a promise of Canaan, yet held no possession but with their dead bodies; Heb. 11. Infeph by faith gaue charge concerning his bones: Virginia by fo many rights naturalized English, by first discouery, actuall possession, chargeable continuation, long prescription, voluntary subjection, delinery of feifin, naturall inheritance of English there borne, reall sale, legall cession, regall vaffallage; difloyall treason hath now conficated whatfoeuer remainders of right the vnnaturall Naturalls had, and made both them and their Countrey wholly English, prouoking vs, if wee bee our owne, not base, degenerate, vnworthy the name of English; so that wee shall not have any thing lett (like Danids Embassadors, which thus abused, brought their Matter a inst title to Am-50 mon, purchased by their disgraces) to couer our nakednesse, till Virginia couer, reward, inrich & with a totall subjection at left, if not a farall revenge. And thus much for our right which God hath given vs : whose Virginian tribute is bis glory, that hee may indeed be Alpha and Omega (as hath beene faid) of the Virginian Plantation : which if it hath not fatisfied the expectation hithereo, no doubt that defect hath in great part proceeded from this.

The end of a thing is the beginning, being first in intention though last in execution : the Word and end which Christians ought to ayme at is God, Doing all things in the name of our Lord lefus Workes ad-Christ, to the glory of God the Father, by the gracious guide and affiliance of the Holy Ghost. nanced by this Glory is, * Frequens de aliquo fama cum lande, And beereby is our Father glorified, faveth Plantation, Christ, if yee bring forth much fruite, and fo shall yee be my Disciples. Loe here the scope of 60 Christians Plantations, to plant Christianity, to produce and multiply Christians, by our words Is. 15. and works to further the knowledge of God in his Word and Workes. The workes of God glorifie their Creator : The Heavens, faith David, declare the glory of God, &c. I will trimmph in the workes Pr. 19.10 of thy hands. O Lord, how great are thy workes? and thy thoughts are very deepe. A bruitist man Pf. 9.4.

knoweth not, neither doth a foole understand this. All creatures are inuited to praise the name of the 1314 Gods olory in his various works, Mynes not they great minds wealth. LIB. IX.

Mmmmmmm 2

P . 16 / 45 2.

Lord for hee bath commanded and they were created : How much more should the tongue of man he the Pen of a readie writer, and as it is called, The glory of the man, fo imploy it felfe in fer ing forth the glory of God, in his Workes of Creation, Prouidence, Redemption?

The Whites of

God is a Glonous Circle, whose Center is every where, his circumference no where : himselfe God and va. i- to himselfe is Circle and Circumference, the Ocean of Entitie, that very vigue, from whom, to etie there feen whom (the Centre of vnitie) all divertified lines of varietie iffue and returne. And although we every where feele his present Deitie, yet the difference of heavenly climate and influence, canfine fuch diffeording concord of dayes, nights, featons; fuch varietie of meteors, elements, aliments; fuch noueltie in Beafts, Fishes, Fowles; such luxuriant plentie and admirable raritie of Trees. Shrubs, Hearbs: fuch fertilitie of foyle, infinuation of Seas, multiplicitie of Rivers, fafetie of 10 Ports, healthfulneffe of ayre, opportunities of habitation, materialls for action, ebiects for contemplation, haps in prefent, hopes of future, worlds of varietie in that diverfified worlds doe quicken our mindes to apprehend, whet our tongues to declare, and fill both with arguments of dunine praise. On the other fide confidering to good a Country, fo bad people, having little of Propagation of Humanitie but shape, ignorant of Civilitie, of Arts, of Religion; more brutish then the beatte the Goloelli & attended the beatty rewards there of they hunt, more wild and vinmanly then that vinmanned wild Country, which they range rather then inhabite; captinated also to Satans tyranny in foolish pieties, mad impieties, wicked idlenetle, butte and bloudy wickednetle : hence have wee fit objects of zeale and pitte , to deliver from the power of darknesse, that where it was faid, Tee are not my people, they may bee called the children of the lining God : that luftice may to proceed in rooting out those murtherers, that vet in undgement (imitating Gods dealing with vs) wee may remember Mercy to such as their owne finnocence shall protect, and Hope shall in Charitie judge capable of Christian Faith. And let men know that bee which converteth a summer from the errows of his way, Shall same a soule from death. and Shall hide a multitude of finnes. And Saniours Shall thus come on Mount Zion to indee the Mount of Elan, and the Kingdome (of Virginia) Shall be Lord. Thus shall wee at once overcome both Men and Deuills, and espouse Virginia to one husband, presenting ber at a chast Virginite Christ. If the ene of Aduenturers were thus fingle, how loone and all the body should be light? But Matth. 6.22 the louing our felues more then God, hath detained fo great bleffings from vs to Varginia, and from 2.Tim.4.8. Virginia to vs. Godlineffe bath the promises of this life, and that which is to come. And if wee be carefull to doe Gods will, he will be ready to doe ours. All the rich endowments of Ungines, her Virgin-portion from the creation nothing leffened.

are wages for all this worke : God in wifedome having enriched the Sauage Countries, that those riches might be attractives for Chriftian luters, which there may fone firstuals and rease

Anfweres to Objections : 8 first to the want of Geld and Siluer

Ism, 4, 20.

Obad plt.

1.Cor.11,2.

temporals. But what are those riches, where we heare of no Gold nor Silver, and fee more impouerished here then thence enriched, and for Mines we heare of none but Iron? Iron mindes! Iron age of the world! who gaue Gold or Silver the Monopoly of wealth, or made them the Almighties fall uprites. Precious perils, specious punishments, whose originall is neerest bell, whose house is darkneffe, which have no eye to fee the heavens, nor admit heavens eye (guilty malefactors) to fee 40 them; neuer produced to light but by violence, and continued, vpon records written in bloud, the occasioners of violence in the World; which have infected the furface of their native earth with deformity and iterality (these Mines being fit emblemes of mindes couetous, stored with want, and euer wanting their owne (tore) her bowels withdarknesse, damps, deaths, causing trouble to the neighbour Regions, and mischiefe to the remotest ! Penution mindes! Is there no riches but Gold Mines ! Are Iron Mines neglected, rejected for hopes of Silver! What, and who elfeis the Alchymift, and impostor, which turnes the World, and Men, and all into Iron ! And how much Iron-workes in Warres and Maffacres bath American Gold and Silver wrought thorow all Chriflendome? Neither speake I this, as itour hopes were blasted, and growne deplorate and desperate this way, the Country being to little fearched, and the remote in-land-Mountaines vn- 50 knowne : but to shew the fordid tincture and base alloy of these Mine-mindes. Did not the Spamifb Iron (tell me you that contemne Iron-mines) draw to it the Indian Silver and Gold? I will not be a Prophet for Spaine from Virginia. But I cannot forget the wily apophthegme of the Pilots Boy in the Cacafaego, a great Ship laden with treasure taken in the South Sea, by Sit Francis Drake; who seeing the English Ordnance command such treasure from the Spanish Casafuego; Our Ship, faid he , Shall be called the Cacaplata, and the English may be named the Cacafuego. I will not be fo vinmannerly to give you the homely English; it is enough that English Iron brought home the Spanish-Indian Silver and Gold. But let vs consult with the wifelt Councellour. Canaan, Abrahams promise, Ifraeli inheritance, type of heaven, and ioy of the earth! What were her riches " were they not the Grapes of Elbeal, the balme of Gilead, the Cedary neighbourhood 62 of Liberry, the pastury vate of leviele, the dewes of heaven, fertility of foile, temper of climat, the flowing (not with Golden Sands, but) with Milke and Hony (necessaries, and pleasures of life, not bottomelelle gulfes of luft) the commodious scituation for two Seas, and other things like (in how many inferiour ?) to this of Virginia. What golden Country ever nourified with her natural fore the hundreth part of men, in io imall a proportion of earth, as Danid there

CHAP.20. Virginia best in the best endowments of a Country. Cause of ill successe. 1815 mustered, being 1 100000. of Ifrael, and 500000. of Inda, not reckoning the Tribes of Leni and Compare Reniemin, all able men for warres. And after him, in a little part of that little Iebofhapbat (More 2 Sam. 24. with I dare tay then the Spaniards can finde in one hundred times fo much, of their Mine lands, and 1 chron. 21. It choose their best in Peru, New Spaine, and the Hands) the Scriptures containing an infallible mu- feemes that iter-booke of 1160000. able Souldiers in his small territories

That then is the richelt Land which can feede most men, Man being a mortall God, the best boue two millions of men part of the best earth, and visible end of the visible World. What remarkeable Gold or Silver besides women Mines bath France, Belgia, Lumbardy, or other the richest peeces of Europe? what hath Baby- and children. louis, Mauritania, or other the belt of Affa and Africke? What this our fertile Mother England?

to Aske our late Travellers which faw fo much of Spaine, the most famous part of Europe for Mones of old, and inriched with the Mynes of the New World, if an Englishman needs to enuy a Spaniand or prefer a Spanife life and happineffe to his owne. Their old Mynes made them the feruants of Rome and Carthage : and what their Mynes and mindes doe now I leave them to others. Once. as the Mynes are in barrennelt foyle, and couctous men have leaft, even when they are had of most money (medig ver Tantalus undis) fo I have heard that in Spaine is leffe Gold and Silver: then in other parts of Europe , (I dare not mention the proportions) from both Spanish and Eng-Wh relation : their vitall money also (to meddle with no more) is of base mettall, and their grearest summes computed by Maranedis lesse then our later tokens : except which (deuised for poorer vies of the poorest) England of long time knowes no base monyes; and hath seene plentie of 20 Silver and Gold, of Wine and Oyle which (grow not in her) when Spane, which produceth thefe, is fed with falads, and drinketh water, helped now and then with Hoggef-kinne vnfauoury Wine. The Indian Fountaines runne with golden and filter streames (fie vos non vobis) not to themselves, but into that Spanish Cifterne ; and these Cifternes are like those of the London Water-house, which hath the Conduit Pipes alway open in the bottome, fo that a thousand other Cifternes hold more water then it : fo may it be faid of the other; it is not Concha but Camalis, a Pipe rather then Cifterne, a Calh-keeper rather then Owner; and (which is spoken of better things) remaining poore, makesmany rich. To proceed, are not Myners the most milerable of Slaues, toyled continually, and voto manifeld deaths tired for others, in bringing to light those Treasures of darknesse, and living (if they live, or if that bee a life) in the suburbs of Hell; 30 to make others dreame of Heauen! Yea Paradife, the modell of heauen, had in it no Minerals, nor was Adam in his innocency, or Noah after the Worlds recovery, both Lords of all, employed in Mines, but (in those happy workes which Virginia inuiteth England vnto) in Vines, Gardening, and Husbandry. Neither let any man thinke that I pleade against the foureneffe of the Grapes, like the Foxe which could not reach them : but I featoufly flew that they are calues and not men, which adore the golden Calfe, or Nabachadnezzars great golden flatue, as if the body were not more then raiment, and those things to be preferred to money, for whole take mony (the creature of man; base Idolatry where the Creator worships his creature!) was first ordained, and fill hath both vie and being.

Doe we not fee in this respect, that the Silkes, Calicos, Drugges, and Spices of the East swal-40 low vp (not to mention the Belgian whirlepoole) all the Mines of the West ? and that one Carricke carrieth more Rials thither, then perhaps some whole Region in Spaine retaineth for vulgar vie? And whence are English, Partugals, or Dutchmen fitted for that commerce ? as if Amereca had ominoully (for other inft reason there is none) beene called India, as if the West were but drudge and factor for the East. And what hath dispeopled the New World, not leaving in some places one of Millions, but Aurifacra fames, others killing them in the Mines, or they killing themselves to prevent the Mines! Let it be riches enough, that Sir Thomas Dale testified Vaginias high by Letters from thence, and after his returne to me that foure of the best Kingdomes of Christen- Valuation. dome were not for naturall endowments comparable to Virginia: and which I have heard of one which hath travelled in all the best Regions of Europe, and hath seene more of Virginia then perhaps any man elfe, and which needes not speake for any gaine there or thence gotten, as no re-50 puted fauourite or fauourer of that Society and their actions; that he hath feene no Country to be preferred for foile, nor for commodious Rivers to be compared. And if successe hath not beene correspondent to English hopes : who seeth not the causes of Answer to the those diseasters?

Divition that taile-headed Amphisbanaand many-headed monster, deformed iffue of that diffor- successes and med old Serpent, in some of the Colony there & Copany here, hath from time to time thrust in her causesthereof, forged venomous tongue, wherby they have swolne with deadly poison of great thoughts of heart Ind. 5516. (onely by pride doe men make contention) with blinde-flaring eyes of felt-loue abounding in their own Proussalo, sense: whence sulpicions, lealousies, factions, partialities to friends and dependants, wilfull ob-

60 finacies, and other furious passions haue transported men from Virginias good and their owne. Couetoul nelle hath distorted others to minde earth and not heaven, in hastinesse of more then speedy returns and present gaine, forgetting that Godlinessess the beff gaine, and that they are a Time. planting a Colony, not reaping a harueft, for a publike and not (but in subordinate order) private Wealth. A long time Virginia was thought to be much encombered with Englands excrements, fome vicious persons, as corrupt leuin sowring, or as plague fores infecting others, and that Colo. ny was maile a Port Exquiline for fuch as by ordure or vomit were by good order and phyficke worthy to be enacuated from This Body: whence not only lazie drones did not further the Plantation, but wicked Walpes with flatking, and the worst, that is beggerly tyrants, frustrated and fundiated the labours of others. Calum non animum mutant qui trans mare current. A prodicious Produgall here, is not eafily metamorpholed in a Virginian paliage to a thrifty Planter; nor can there needs witer choice or more industrious courte in any vndertaking, then is requisite in a Chris fine Colonies plantation among it Infidels. Which Huppofe hath beene carefully by many Adnenturers practiced : and whatloener faults happened by ignorance in the beginnings, negle@ of uenturers practiced and whatteened taster or in Gouernours or Gouernment, abuses of Mariners, featons, riot, fleath, occasionall wants of or in Gouernours or Gouernment, abuses of Mariners, trechery of Fugitiues, and Sauages; and other difeates, which have in part attended all new Plantat ons, and confumed many: experience I hope by this time hath taught to preuent or remedy. The late barbarous Maffacre (bine illa lachryma) ftill bleedeth, and when things were reported to be in better forwardnesse then euer, in great part blassed those hopefull blossomes. pas: been too chiointed the proceedings in the Iron workes, Vineyards, Mulberry plants; and in fudden flifts later military for life, exposed them to manifold necessities; insomuch, that many of the Principals being flain. the rest surprifed with feare, reduced themselves almost from eighty to eight Plantations, whereby pestered with multitude, and destitute of Corne and other forsaken necessaries, they incurred a grieuous and generali ficknesse, which being increased by insection of some passengers tainted a grieuous and general in the state, in their Ship-pallage with corrupt Beere, there followed a mortality which confumed about five 20 hundred perions, befides three hundred and fifty or thereabouts murthered in that Sauage-Maffacre. All which notwithstanding, there remaine, some haue if truely calculated and conicdured eighteene hundred persons : for whose security and proussion it hath pleased his Maiesty to have presented by the Companie a Royall care, as I kewife the Honor ble Lords of his Maiesties printy Councell, besides the hoto the Lords of notable endeuours of the Councell and well affected members of that Society, which God almighthe Genneell. ty, the great Founder of Colonies, profper.

Mmmmmm 3

Now that I may show Virginia worthy those princely, honorable and industrious thoughts. Arguments for I have adventured briefely to point out, rather then to paint out her beauty and attractine ortation, asbe- naments. ine honorable.

First Religion (as is before observed) inviteth vs there to seeke the Kingdome of God first, and all 20 other things shall be ministred to us, and added as advantage to the bargaine : seeke the Kingdome of God, and see an earthly Kingdome in recompence, as the earnest, and the heavenly Kingdome for our full paiment. Of glorifying God in his word and workes in this defigne is already

s. Humanirie.

z.Religion.

Secondly, Humanity and our common Nature forbids to turne our eyes from our owne flesh; yea commands vs to loue our neighbours as our felues, and to play the good Samaritan with these our neighbours (though of another Nation and Religion, as the wounded Icw was to him) to recouer them if it be possible, as by Religion, from the power of Sathan to God; so by humanity and civility from Barbarilme and Sauageneffe to good manners and humaine polity.

Thirdly, the Honour of our Nation enjoyeth vs not balely to loole the glory of our fore- and fathers acks, which here have been shewed in King Henry the feuenth, King Honry the eight, King Edward the fixt, and Oneene Elizabeths times, all which illustrated their names by Discovery of Realmes remote, viknowne parts and ports (and the first, first of all Kings, and the last holding to the last) Discouering and possessing thele, and leaving them as just inheritance to his Maiesty. What shame to a degenerate posterity, to loose so honorable a claime, and gaine; yea, to neglect that which many English have purchased with doing and suffering to much, and not with their fweate alone, their care and coft, but with their decreft bloud and manifold deaths?

4. Honour of

Fourthly, wee may recken the Honour of our King, and his Royall posterity : to which, in time Virgonia may performe as much with equall manuring as euer Britannia and Ireland could 50 promite when first they became knowne to the then civiller World. And were not companions odious ! I am fure I heard Sir Thomas Dale confidently and feriously exulting in private conference with me, in the hopes of future greatnesse from Virginia, to the English Crowne. And if the wife King wifely faid, the honour of a King is in the multitude of his Subjects, loe here the way to preserve, employ, encrease them; and for his Maietty to reach his long royall armes to another World. The Roman Empire fowed Roman Colonies thorow the World, as the most naturalland artificiall way to win and hold the World Romaine.

... Honor of the

Fifthly, the honour of the Kingdome, thus growing and multiplying into Kingdomes, that as Scotland and England feeme lifters, fo Virginia, New England, New found Land in the Continent already planted in part with Englift Colonies, together with Bernada, and other 60 lands may be the adopted and legall Daughters of England. An honorable defigne, to which Honor stretcheth her faire hand, the fine fingers whereof are adorned with such precious Rings, each enriched with inualnable lewels of Religion, Humanity, Inheritance, the King, the Kingdome i Honos alit artes, omnesque incenduntur ad findia gloria.

CHAP.20. Spaines American greatnesse a motive for Englands Virginia.

And if Honour hath prevailed with honorable and higher spirits, we shall come laden with arguments of profit to prefit meaner hands and hearts to the feruice of Vnginia. Onely I define that 6. Argument guments of profit to prette meaner manus and meares to the tended or regime. Only the the of profit, gemen bring their hearts first, and consider that the very names of a Colony and Plantation doe imnerally pronerally promen oring chen and feafonable culture, and planting before a Harnest and Vintage can be expounded. pected : which if they here exercise our Faith and Hope both for earth and heaten, where all things are prepared; let vs not in ruder and cruder foundations and beginnings there, precipitate vnto hafty fals.

And before we come to Virginias particular probabilities for this Kingdomes good, we need Illustrated by not far fetched speculations, we have evidence from experience. Cafile (a Kingdome which now the Cafillan to floops to none, and which some of her flatterers advance about all, making it Catholike without respect to Faith) grew from an almost nothing out of the Moorife deluge, to be but a petrie fomething in comparison of others in Europe, till Ferdinands time who fent Columbia to Americe. And how poore abilities or probabilities had they for it, when Columbia upon falle grounds haung conceiued strong, strange hopes of the Eisterne Indies, stumbled vpon a Westerne World Vpon lisse whereof hee neuer dreamed, which therefore he called India, and Hiffaniola Ophir: to which probabilities Expedition (neither founded on found reason, nor experience of former Ditcoueries, when as vet the Mariners Art was but crept out of the Cradle, and bleffed only in the Euent) the flate of Callile was as poorely furnished as it feemes, eyther with money or credit, the Queene pawning part of her Iewels for 2000. Duckets, to fet Columbus forth with three poore Caruels for this 20 Discouery. Little was it then imagined, that in Hispaniola should be found (which happened in the taking of Domingo by Sir Francis Drake) a Spanish Scutchion with a Horie, whole hinder feet trod on the Globe, his fore-feet prauncing as it he would foot our another World (like Alexander hearing Philosophers discourse of other Worlds, weeping that hee had not yet finished the conquest of this) having this Mottoannexed, Non sufficit Orbis. Yea, but they found Gold and Silver in abundance; the Pockes they did 1 and plagued all Europe with the great ones, See Oniole & with the did not ones, See Oniole & with the did not ones of the pockes they did find Gold and Silver, how poore were the our fixth Book! proportions till the Mexican Discouery almost thirty yeeres, and that of Permsorty yeeres after their Indian plantation. And who knowes what Virginia in that space may produce by better Their greatest their Indian plantation. And who knowes what Originia in that space may produce by better benefit in Discovery of it, and further Discovery of parts adjoyning, whereof we have ten thousand times commodities. no more pregnant hopes, then they had in their first Expedition, by knowledge gathered from their notin Mines.

Befides, though Gold and Silver from thence hath enriched the Spanifb Exchequer, yet the mon fubica, Magazines haue found other and greater wealth, whereof Virginia is no leffe capeable, namely, the Country Commodities. What Mynes have they, or at least, what doe they vie in Brafil, or in all the Hands, where yet fo many wealthy Spaniards and Portugalls inhabit ? Their Ginger. Sugar, Hiles, Tobacco and other Merchandize, I dare boldly affirme, yeeld far far more profit to the generalitie of the Spanish Subjects thorow that vast World, then the Mynes do or have done this last Age. Which I shall make apparant by honourable testimonie, in one of the last English Exploits on the Spanifo Indies. The Right Honorable Earle of Cumberland in a Letter of his after the aking of Port Rice, (chiefe Towne if not the greatest lland in those parts, and far short of Hispaniola and Cuba) affirmeth, that if hee would have left the place, hee might have had by The Earle Had good account as much Sugar and Ginger in the Countrey, as was worth 500000 pounds. But purposed to he intended to keepe it, as the Key of the Indies, which who former possesses (I vie his owne words) leave Sir Iobu he intended to keepe it, as the Key of the indies, word was journer pureyers (1 vie in so will worlds) Barker with a may at his pleasure goe to any Chamber in the House, and see how they sleepe before hee be cuther slopped Garrison to or descried: so as they must at enery doore keepe so great a force to guard them, as will consume a great hold it, but a part of their yeerely Reuenue; and fend it frem place to place with fo great a waftage, as will cause them great ficknette to curse their new Porter : for when they have done what they can , they shall beare his charge to their and mortalities owne destruitions, and still be loosing places both of strength and wealth. Thus that valorous and renowmed Earle, whole bloud ennobled his attempts, whose attempts added glory to his bloud, men, he was and noblenesse to his Nobilitie: which I rather recite that you might see the great wealth which forced tolerue the Spaniards reape of Ginger and Sugar, to which that of Hides in that Iland holds fuch propor- the place, to tion, that one inhabitant thereof named Chirigo, had no fewer then twelve thouland Beenes: bring home his where Beeues growing wild, it was tolerable to any Ilander to kill a beaft, if hee returned the I finds this in a skinne to the Owner : and what he speakes of a Key and a Porters advantage, Mutato nomine de written Exte, change the name, and if Uirginia and Summer Hands fall short some wayes, they will, more task of all the then equall it other wayes, in Cale! But I muit contains my felfe, left I purchase a Purchase Cale Ports, thipping medling.

Now if any thall thinke that the many transplantations of people into thosepatts, would ex-which somehauft England, Spaine will answere that point also, now in their dayes complaying no more of times belong-60 scarcitie of people (notwithstanding their many and long Warres in so many parts of Europe, ex- ed to that incept the expulsion of the Moores and Marans, have caused it) then when first they undertooke custious Gen-

those contuming valt Enterprizes, not of a Virginia, but of a World. And yet what in compazifon is Spanne for multitudes of people, whose vastnesse is faid to yeeld (the King, Dukes, Mar- troller of the quelles and Earles only with their retinue excepted) from eighteene yeeres of age to fiftie, but Name.

Arg. 7. from our multitudes

1 124 390. men of alliorts, as I have feene in an Extract of the Royall Mufter-booke, which how much is it exceeded by the numerous excelle of people in this Iland, straitned in farre leffe roome. and wanting necessary employments, which almost exacteth a Virginian vent and adjenture. For how much more convenient is a transmigration, into a fruitfull, large and wholesome Region. where the Countrie hath need of a Colonie to cultivate it, as well as those Colons and Inhahis tants have need of a Countrie to inhabit rather then to breed a fulnes in This Bodie, which without some such euacuation either breeds matter for the pestilence and other Epidemicall Difeases. or at least for Dearth, Famine, Diforders, ouer-burthening the wealthier, opptessing the poorer. diffquieting both themselves and others, that I mention not the fatall hand of the Haneman And thus you have Virginias hopes in generall propounded by Spanish example viged and enforced by our necessitie of feeking vent to fuch home-fulnesse. Arguments of But looke upon Virginia; view her louely lookes (howfocuer like a modelt Virgin the is now particular co- vailed with wild Couerts and shadie Woods, expecting rather rausshment then Mariage from her Natiue Sauages) furuay her Heauens, Elements, Situation; her divisions by armes of Bayes and Rivers into fo goodly and well proportioned limmes and members; her Virgin portion nothing empaired, nay not yet improoued, in Natures best Legacies; the neighbouring Regions and Seas fo commodious and obfequious; her opportunities for offence and defence; and in all thefe you shall see, that she is worth the wooing and loues of the best Husband. First, for her Heavens and Climate, the with her Virgin Sifters hath the fame (being extended from 30, to 45, degrees of North latitude) with the best parts of Europe, namely the fat of Grecia, Thracia, Spaine, Ita- 20 lie, Morea, Sicilia, (and if we will looke more Northward to the height of France and Britaine, there her Sifters New England, New Scotland, and New-found-land, promife hopefull and kinde entertainment to all A Juenturers. If you looke Southwards, you may parallel it with Barbarie. Egype, and the fertileit parts of Africke) and in Afra, all that Chnerfoneffus, sometime the feate or foure thousand Cities, and so many Kingdomes, now called Natelia, with her Neighbours Antiochia, and other Regions of Syria, Damafew, Libanu, with Babylonia and the glorie of the Earth : and Types of Heauen, Indea and Paradife; the Silken Countries also of Perlia, China in her best parts, and lapan, are in the elevation; and Virginia is Daughter of the same Heavens, which promife no leffe portion to this Virgin, then those Matrons had for the foundation-stock of their wealth and glory.

. The fime climate with bell Countries

Secondly, this Climate as it promifeth wealth, so it doth health also, enjoying the temper of 2. Temperate. the most temperate parts, even of that in which Adam, Abraham, with the Prophets and Apofiles were bred in, and received as an Earthly priviledge; and in which Christ conversed in the 2. Large exfieth. And thirdly for extension, if conetousnesse gape wide, ten Indam, and a hundred Paradifes, may be equalled for quantitie in Virginia, whole mid-land Regions are wholly voknowne, till we arrive at that Nona Albion , which yeelded it felfe Englifb before the first Urreinian

